But our congregation is now rapidly forming, Wesley, the shepherd, is descending with his family from the lone house on the hill. Eli, the under-gardener, is coming in another direction from the lodge at the entrance to the park. Some, too, by the side of the long plantation are finding their way here from Felmersham. There is no special path nor special entrance marked out for the use of any, so they come from every side. And what a hardy, what a healthy, what a happy-looking lot of people, is the feeling that takes possession of one's mind. Here are Joel the milkman, Joseph the farm foreman, Billing the matmaker, and Young, of the same trade as he who furnished Paul with the means of escape from the turreted walls of Damascus. Here are Garne the gamekeeper, George the hedger, and Tom Clare the ploughman, whose brawny arms are occasionally used in beating the drum with the Pavenham band. Howe the farmer, too, is here with Hulatt, the carpenter, at his side; and, neither last nor least of the lot, we have Taylor the coachman, and Jolly the baker.

Then, there are old men and maidens, young men and children, folk of all ages, from old Jem Ball, who can do "a day's work" in his eighty-fifth year, down to the little babe in arms who has been brought to the service by its mother.

There are few more lovely spots in the country than where, on the velvety sward, we have assembled to worship the God of our fathers, after the fashion of our fathers, ere towers, spires, and other such adornments were deemed necessary to "places of worship." Away on the sunny glades of the park the peaceful kine and sheep appear to know that this is the Lord's day, so quiet do they keep. The birds in the branches over our heads, for their part, are filling the air with song, which one easily imagines they warble forth to the praise of the Lord God of Sabaoth.

Each tree around us has its sermon. Here is the graceful silver birch, which, suggestive as it is of the far North-west, reminds us of those who are spending the day among the heathen of distant lands. Then, by its name at least, the sycamore takes away our thoughts through the centuries of the past, and fastens them on a little man, who in his anxiety to see the Lord Jesus climbed up a tree that bore the same name, and drew from the lips of the Saviour the truth that the Son of Man had come to seek and to save that which had been lost. But with still more hallowed associations do the grand young cedars claim our regard. A hundred scriptural memories are clustering around their branches.

And then the glorious flowers—tended by John Wilson, the head gardener, and his men, with almost as much care as if they were children! Scarlet, crimson, purple, and white, yea of every imaginable colour and tint, how they seem to soften the mind by their beauty, and prepare it to hear of the God who has made them, in the preaching of his Word.

But we must think about the service. The preacher this afternoon is the Rev. W. Burton Alexander, who is now descending "The Bury" steps, and leading his mother-in-law, Mrs. Tucker, the venerable owner of the grounds. Mrs. Alexander takes her place at the harmonium, and now, like incense, goes up to heaven the opening hymn of the service. Songs and Solos with The Christian Choir are the books whence our hymns are taken. After the hymn follow very short prayers from the Vicar, and working men. Then comes a solo by the Vicar's wife, who sings "The Good Shepherd" from The Christian Choir. In the next place, we get some portion of the Word, and, after another hymn, the address. Mr. Alexander is a Scotchman of Scotchmen; his theology is that of Chalmers and McCheyne, whose memories he holds in the highest regard. But, in spite of his argumentative style, he has ever his anecdote ready, when, yielding to an inclination almost irresistible to one who has been working hard all the week in the hay or harvest field, some villager begins to nod his head. But having now for more than half an hour commended the truth to the consciences of his hearers, he closes his address with prayer, and gives out the parting hymn. Many of the congregation go home immediately after the benediction, but others linger behind, and gather at the harmonium to practise hymns from the ever-popular Christian Choir.

This, Sir, is how we spend the Sunday afternoon in our prettly little village of Pavenham. Why should not more of our Christian gentry throw open their grounds for the preaching of the Gospel in the same hearty and unreserved manner? And why should not more of our landed proprietors, who have been brought to know the Lord themselves, try to use their social influence in seeking to bring sinners to the Saviour, or to the edification of the Church? Maybe, some will take the hint. Then, though I may have failed to interest those for whom I have especially written this slight sketch—the "town-born" and "town-bound" readers of The Christian—I shall not have taken up my penal together in vain.—Yours in the Lord Jesus,

John E. Linnell.

Pavenham Vicarage, Bedford,
August 25.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on services to be conducted by Mr. John Elliott at Kingskerswell, Devonshire.——For the father of a large family who has given way to drink.——For Gospel meetings and Bible readings at Alexandria, N.B., by F. E. Marsh.——Rev. A. R. D'Arcy asks that prayer for God's blessing on Missions at the following places should be made on the days on which they are being held: New Catton, Norwich, Sept. 9, 10, 11; Acle, Norfolk, Sept. 13 to 23; Holy Trinity, Forest of Dean, Sept. 27 to Oct. 6; St. Luke's, Miles Platting, Oct. 30 to Nov. 4.

Notes and Comments.

WE give on a succeeding page some introductory notes of the Conference being held this week at Copenhagen, under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance. In view of the importance of the occasion, we purpose in our next issue (which will be a Double Number, price 2d.) to furnish copious reports of the sermons, addresses, papers and accounts of Christian work given at the Conference by leading British, Continental, and American pastors.

Germany has the unenviable reputation of being the country in all Europe where suicide is most frequent. In Saxony alone last year 2004 persons put an end to their own existence, 1081 of thsee being men and 923 women. In 1872 the suicides in that province were 687; since then, year by year, the number has risen until now it has reached the terrible total just named. Various causes doubtless are at work to account for this; but remembering how prevalent scepticism is in the German States, and how great is the amount of indifference to religion, it may fairly be asked how far this contributes to it. Where the conviction of eternal realities is loosely held, disregard of the responsibilities of life, and recklessness as to the issues of death, are likely to prevail.

The dark places of the earth are still full of the habitations of cruelty, and there remains much to be done in the way of civilisation and enlightenment. This is shown by the distressing fact that no less than three hundred human victims were sacrificed in connection with the funeral of the late King of Ashantee. His successor to the throne is said to be Meniah, who has been king before, but was deposed on account of his barbarities. The idea of his restoration to power has so inspired the Ashantee chiefs with terror that they have sent a deputation to the Governor of Cape Coast asking that their territory may be placed under the British Protectorate.

Our national relations with other countries depend in no little measure on the wisdom and ability of those who represent our Government at foreign courts. The death of Lord Ampthill, English Ambassador to the Court of Berlin, is an event which has called forth sincere regret from all classes of politicians, and proves a real loss in many ways. He filled a difficult post for many years with great tact and diplomatic skill. He was, as The Times has said, "trusted and respected alike by statesmen in his own country and in Germany," and his place will be hard to fill.

The inaugural address of Lord Rayleigh at the meeting of the British Association in Montreal, was characterised by great scientific acumen and penetration of thought. Many devout scientists will hail with peculiar pleasure his words when he said, after pleading for increased attention to science as a branch of general education:—

"There is one objection often felt to a modernised education, as to which a word may not be without use. Many excellent people are afraid of science as tending towards materialism. That such an apprehension should exist is not surprising, for unfortunately there are writers, speaking in the name of science, who have set themselves to foster it. It is true that among scientific men, as in other classes, crude views are to be met with as to the deeper things of Nature; but that the life-long beliefs of Newton, of Faraday, and of Maxwell, are inconsistent with the scientific habit of mind is surely a proposition which I need not pause to refute."

The conviction at the West Ham police court, the other day, of a builder charged by the Local Board with allowing two houses built by him to be occupied without having taken proper precautions in reference to drainage, is a fact worthy of being widely known, as a warning to others. The magistrate remarked that it was well it should be known that the Legislature looked upon such an offence as a serious one. Careless building, and defective drainage, lie at the root of much disease and social discomfort, and occupiers should be aware that wherever the evil can be traced, and brought home to the contractor, punishment can and will be inflicted.

There are few among our many workers for the public weal who can give such a comprehensive testimony to the value of total abstinence as that given by Rev. G. M. Murphy at a meeting of the Southwark "Help-myself" Society, held at the Pilgrim-hall, New Kent-road, the other evening. He said

"There was not a street, an alley, a court, a den even, in South London that he had not visited. There was not a hospital, a workhouse, an infirmary, an asylum, or a prison that he had not been regularly to; and he would say this—inside or outside any of these institutions, or anywhere else, he had never met one who regretted having taken the pledge of total abstinence.."

The determined action of Temperance advocates in various parts of the country for the diminution of the number of public-houses is very laudable, and deserves to be generally imitated. At Salisbury, a memorial, headed by the Bishop, was recentiy presented to the city magistrates, pointing out that the public-houses numbered one for every hundred of the presumed drinking public, and praying for a reduction. The chairman of the bench stated, in reply, that he and his brother magistrates fully concurred in every word of the memorial, and regretted that in some streets the public-houses seemed almost as numerous as the private ones. Several publicans were warned, and no little stir seems to have been made in the ranks of the drinking part of the community. The memorial was signed by nearly all the clerical and ministerial dignitaries of the city. Similar action has been taken in many other districts, and with favourable results.

Mrs. G. S. Reaney resumes her afternoon services in the Stepney Meeting House next Lord's Day, September 7, at 3 p.m. The remarkable interest awakened by these weekly gatherings has been well sustained throughout, and we trust Mrs. Reaney may have strength to carry them on for many years to come.

Professor André, of the Alpine Choir, recently offered to give a guinea each to ten destitute teetotal families if such could be found. Nineteen applications were received from various parts of England, but after being locally investigated, and the claims submitted to a committee of impartial men, only six proved eligible for the gift as being really destitute abstainers. To these the amount promised has been paid. It may safely be affirmed that were a similar offer made to destitute "drinking" families a very different result would be obtained. The testimony is manifestly in favour of Temperance and thrift, and fully establishes the value of Temperance principles. Most of the six cases allowed were destitute through the sickness or death of the family bread-winner.

We regret to say that Miss G. M. Taylo Holmesdale, Leamington, the much-esteeme superintendent of the Y.W.C.A. in th town, and author of a collection of bea tiful poems, is obliged, under medical auth rity, to take twelve months' absolute rest, order to a restoration to health.

In confirmation of General Haig's lett which appeared in our last week's issue, r garding Mr. Gordon Forlong's appeal for t "heathen" Maoris, a correspondent sen us a list of twenty-seven Maori clergyme who are at present labouring in New Ze land in connection with the Church Missio ary Society. All of these are supported, whole or in part, by their own congregation Our correspondent adds:—

"Mr. Forlong has probably only visited t European districts where a few hundreds of mise able natives, the dregs of the race, hang abou If he can win these to Christ everyone woul rejoice. Probably he has never seen—white m rarely do see—the Maori districts proper."

In view of the urgent need there is f increased aid to be given to our Hospit funds, it is a good suggestion that in additio to the collection made in the streets on Ho pital Saturday, our principal tradesme should be asked to place boxes at the doo of their establishments. Only, why n extend this to other times as well as just that particular day? Many customers wou gladly place their small change in the b for so worthy an object, and a great increa in the revenues of these important instit tions would result.

The Lord Mayor has written to the dai journals warmly commending the Tham Church Mission to the benevolent sympathi of the public. His special plea is the effo made by the Mission to counteract t mischief wrought by the grog ships which a wont to accompany the North Sea trawlin fleets. These have proved a source of unto evil to the hardy fishermen and their familie no legislation or other means employed havi yet sufficed to prevent their influence. T Thames Church Mission to Deep Sea Fishe men, however, has adopted the plan of sen ing out with each fleet, as far as funds allo a vessel fitted up as a church, dispensar Temperance hall, and club, so proving a bene to all classes, even the roughest and mo depraved acknowledging their value. T plan seems admirable, and one which cann be too heartily sustained. Four such vesse are already at work in the North Sea, ar have proved eminently successful in frustra ing the "coopers'" pestilent trade.

The statement made in the Daily Tel graph by a certificated master, who was f thirty-one years a fisherman, proves that t Lord Mayor has by no means exaggerate the evil caused by these floating grog-shop He says that having watched the rise ar progress of the "coopering" business, as it termed, for many years, he is in a positio to say that but for it there would not ha been half the drunkenness on shore, n anything like the amount of profanity an vice which exist afloat. He thinks that permission were accorded for the fisherme to have their tobacco out of bond, as oth seamen do, it would greatly help to put dow the illicit traffic of the "coopers." They d pend for their profits largely on the sale tobacco, as much as 1500 lbs. having bee sold by them in two weeks in one flee Anyway, all possible means should be en ployed to remove so glaring an evil as th which he justly speaks of as a fruitful sourc of intemperance, sorrow, and death.

The strange and groundless rumour that Mr. Sankey was so broken down in health as to be incapacitated for further public work seems to have gained such currency in the United States, that a letter, specially written by Mr. Moody to contradict it, has been published in the American religious papers. In a recent issue of a Newcastle (Pa.) newspaper, we are glad to read the following:—

"Ira D. Sankey, wife, and son Eddie, were the guests of Mrs. William Porter and family, near Enon, on Sabbath, the 10th instant. Mr. Sankey taught the Bible-class, presided at the organ, led the singing, and delivered an address to the congregation of Little Beaver that we hope will be as profitable as it was pleasing to those who heard it. In some way the announcement got out and drew the people as only Mr. Sankey can do."

Mr. Stanley, in the course of an interview with a representative of The Pall Mall Gazette, encourages the expectation that the difficulties connected with the government of the Congo will soon be settled by a Conference of the Powers. Negotiations for its composition and its procedure are in progress, and there is ground for hope that ere long we shall see a Congo Free State directed by an International policy, and affording scope and offering inducement for colonisation of a civilising and beneficent character. The possibilities of trade on this mighty river and its tributaries would seem to be almost boundless; with a railway such as is contemplated from the Lower to the Upper Congo, a vast agricultural and commercial field for enterprise would be opened up. While the secular interests of this wonderful country are being thus earnestly studied, how essential it is for the Church of Christ to be wide awake as to its moral and spiritual necessities. The dark continent is truly "an open door" set before us by the great Lord of all the earth.

Attempts to form bogus companies seem to be increasingly frequent just now. It is therefore a source of satisfaction to find that in two or three cases discovery has been made of late, and punishment ensured for the offenders. There are many who, through their eagerness to acquire wealth rapidly, and their lack of experience as to the ways of the world, fall an easy prey to victimisers of this description; it is a great public boon when those who endeavour to trade on the weakness and credulity of others are found out, and brought to book for their dishonesty and deceit. It would be well for society at large if the mania which exists for speculation could be checked, and a more general return to straightforward habits of business-life secured.

In spite of all that law has done to prevent it, gambling hells are still plentiful in London, and under shelter of club organisations games of chance are freely indulged in, to the ruin morally, as well as pecuniarily, of multitudes. The description which appeared last week in The Evening News of the scenes witnessed at the International Club, Greek-street, Soho, is appalling in its character, and reveals the need for more stringency in the application of law to the existence of such dens of vice. The writer of the article offers to furnish the police with the names and addresses of other similar institutions, and declares his intention, if the authorities do not act, to give full publicity to them. In the interests of common humanity, as well as those of moral right, we hope action may be taken speedily to further expose and exterminate those sinks of iniquity which are to be found in our midst.

The latest news from Madagascar is of a nature calculated to win lively sympathy with the natives in their present sad and trying position. The negotiations between the French and Malagasy Governments have been broken off, the latter having resolutely refused to accede to the unjust demands of France. The language of the Prime Minister at a special meeting of chiefs, convened to decide on the course to be adopted, was in harmony with the general feeling, and is eminently to the credit of the Government he represents. It is equally to the discredit of the Power which seeks to crush this deserving country at a time when its best interests are being in every way developed. He said:—

"We like not fighting, but friendship. Madagascar is not so great a country as some, but if men come to take it from us without showing just cause, then our trust is in God, and we shall do what we can to defend it. This is the land of our birth, which we have inherited from our ancestors, in which we have long dwelt, and in which we shall find a resting-place at last, and if it be stolen from us by those who have neither right nor justice on their side, then who says 'Shall we fight?' We are all assembled here, relatives of the sovereign, the titled, the great and the small: all are soldiers now. Some have friends who are smiths, and some have friends who are carpenters, all must use their efforts in defence of the fatherland."

The correspondent of The Daily News, writing from Antananarivo, under date May 22, says it is unspeakably grievous to see the many calamities which the French expedition is bringing on the country. Owing to malarial fevers and other causes, large numbers of soldiers on the coast have died, and in nearly every town and village of Imerina, from which province the soldiers have been chiefly draughted, there is lamentation and weeping for fathers, husbands, and sons who are dead. All the chief towns on the east and north-west coasts have been bombarded, and an immense amount of property destroyed. The foreign merchants and traders, too, in the island are suffering severely from the unsettled state of the country. Meanwhile the French are taking further and more vigorous steps for the forcible execution of their plans. Seldom in modern times has so great a crime as this been committed against civilisation and humanity.

The unhappy events that are now transpiring in China, resulting from disagreement between that nation and France, are naturally directing special attention to the position of English and American missionaries to the Chinese. An unusual interest, therefore, attached to a valedictory gathering at 186, Aldersgate-street, last week, when four ladies, about to leave for China in connection with the Inland Mission, were warmly commended to God's keeping and guidance. They were Miss Todd, Glasgow; Miss Simon, Liverpool; Miss Littlejohn and Miss Taylor (eldest daughter of Mr. Hudson Taylor), London. A second and larger party are also leaving very shortly, while two other parties are expected to sail in October.

All those who would have an intelligent interest in China as one of the great Mission fields of the world, will do well carefully to peruse Mr. Hudson Taylor's important brochure, CHINA'S SPIRITUAL NEEDS AND CLAIMS (Morgan & Scott, 1s. and 2s. 6d.) As the outcome of years of close and constant personal study and acquaintance with the Chinese people, it is an invaluable treatise upon a vast subject. Presented in a most interesting and attractive form, the book ought to find its way into every Christian household.

In the otherwise pleasant and gratifying communication sent by the Emperor of Germany to the Y.M.C.A. Conference in Berlin, our readers will observe with regret the sentence referring to the military manœuvres, which, in the esteem of His Majesty, seem to be of more importance than the deliberations of the Conference. Surely it is a thing of evil omen for any country, however strong its rulers may fancy it to be, when the military element is thus allowed to predominate, and warlike displays take precedence of Christian developments and of peaceful industries. Sooner or later a national Nemesis is sure to come. When the present long-lived Emperor passes off the scene, greater constitutional privileges, and exemptions from compulsory soldiering, will have to be granted by his successor, or we shall see the present smouldering discontent bursting into revolutionary flame.

The old proverb, "To be forewarned is to forearmed," has been too much forgotten, or at any rate neglected, by those who have in their hands the education and training of the rising generation. Many a guileless and unsuspecting young girl who leaves the parental roof, to buffet with the trials and temptations of the outside world, falls a ready prey to the arts of the wicked, because she has never been faithfully and kindly warned of the dangers that are sure to encircle her path. We therefore welcome the publication by Messrs. Dyer Bros., Amen Corner, E.C., of a penny pamphlet in which are set forth THE PERILS OF GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN AWAY FROM HOME. Written in a most sympathetic vein, and from an adequate knowledge of the subject, it is full of instruction and counsel that must favourably commend themselves to those who are immediately concerned. A valuable appendix contains full information as to places in the metropolis where young women can find shelter and help in fighting the battle of life.

In an article on tobacco and tobacco smokers, The Daily News comments on the enormous increase made of late in the consumption of this fascinating leaf. In 1841 the annual consumption of tobacco in the United Kingdom was a trifle over twenty-three millions of pounds; last year it was rather more than fifty-one millions, or about 1½ lbs. per head for the whole population. The most repulsive fact in connection with the spread of this pernicious habit is that women and children appear to be coming under its influence to a far greater extent than is openly avowed. Cigarettes are said to be now ranked among "the furtive joys of many a lady's boudoir, while the smoking infant of the United States bids fair, ere long, to have his counterpart among us." No other article is taxed so heavily as this, the duty amounting to about seven hundred per cent., but neither the costliness nor the perniciousness of the practice prevents its continuing to gain the mastery of young and old, rich and poor, of every grade.

From the last annual report of the Commissioner of Police, just published, we cull the following statistics relative to our metropolis. Some idea of the growth of the city may be formed from the fact that in the year no fewer than 21,110 houses were built, forming 361 new streets and one new square, covering a distance of 56 miles. The total authorised strength of the force organised for the protection of the city was, on 31st December last, 21 superintendents, 561 inspectors, 874 sergeants, and 9837 constables. The total number of offences for which apprehensions were made was 79,373.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE AT BERLIN.

NOT the least of the pleasures of a large Conference such as that just held at Berlin, are the incidents of the journey and the happy reunion of friends and fellow-workers long parted. One large party, for instance, consisting of sixteen from Scotland and five from Grimsby, reached Berlin by way of Hamburg. They spent a day together in that city, and proceeded together in a saloon carriage for the five and a quarter hours' journey. On Monday evening more than one of the popular hotels teemed with English-speaking delegates, of whom there were present ninety from Great Britain and Ireland, and forty from America.

The Conference commenced on Wednesday, August 20, and closed on Sunday, the 24th. On Wednesday Count Bernstorff, the President of the Berlin Association, with Baron von Oertzen, of Hamburg, Count Pückler, and a large number of the Berlin Reception Committee, met the delegates at the Association rooms in Friederich-strasse. Here credentials were presented, and delegates allotted to friends who had extended hospitality. Very many were also provided for at some of the leading hotels in the city.

In the evening a sermon in connection with the Conference was preached in the old cathedral church by Dr. Quandt, one of the most popular preachers in Berlin. The cathedral, the Emperor's church, has little pretension to architecture, and the service was severe in its simplicity. However, the congregation of active workers which filled the edifice must have rejoiced as they joined with one heart, though in many tongues, in the worship of God. The subject of the discourse was, "The Lord Jesus Christ as an example to young men," based on the text, Luke ii. 52, "He grew in wisdom and stature and in favour with God and man." The service throughout was in German. The points urged were that the Lord set an example in wisdom by (1) learning before He taught; (2) by obeying before He commanded; (3) by following (being subject to his parents) before He led. He attended no high school; He learned from his mother; Moses and the prophets were his professors. He showed his wisdom by his moderation. He did not commence active work before he had reached the mature age of thirty years. Of this last division the preacher made a strong point. In the closing prayer a special collect for rich spiritual blessing on the Conference was presented. It is a cause of hearty felicitation that the day has at length arrived when the clergy of the cathedral of Berlin delight to lead the prayers of the people on behalf of the Association—surely a sign that brighter and more blessed days are near in the religious history of the countries of Europe.

After the cathedral service, Count Bernstorff received the delegates in public meeting, in the large hall of the Berlin City Mission. This hall was formerly a theatre, and is still surrounded by a garden filled with well-grown trees; under the grateful shade of which refreshments have been served throughout the meetings. The proceedings commenced by prayer in German, French, and English, Mr. M. H. Hodder leading in English. The following letter from the Emperor, addressed to the Conference through Count Bernstorff, was read by the President:—

"His Majesty the Emperor and King has been specially interested by learning from your communication of the 30th of last month that the Tenth International Conference of the Young Men's Christian Associations will be held at Berlin on August 20—24 of the present year. His Majesty attaches to this meeting of Christian men, at which many foreign countries will be represented, an importance which is so much the higher as there is to be expected from their mutual gathering not only the strengthening of the Associations themselves, but also the invigoration and furtherance of religious life in general. In view of the ennobling and beneficent aims cherished by the Young Men's Associations, His Majesty welcomes the Conference with satisfaction. Nevertheless, however, His Majesty is obliged, though not without reluctance, to decide to forego a personal reception of the members at Babelsberg, because the physicians urgently desire His Majesty to give himself to an undisturbed rest of several weeks at the conclusion of his course at the baths, and especially to avoid during this period unwarranted mental and physical exertion, such as greeting and conversing with the members of the Conference from various countries would necessarily involve. It is to be added also, that the manœuvres which are soon to follow will task the strength of His Majesty in their full measure and in a high degree, and that it seems to be demanded for this reason, too, that His Majesty should be spared every encroachment upon a quiet life during his sojourn at Babelsberg.

"While, therefore, he is constrained to regret that he cannot accede to the request preferred by you, His Majesty, entertaining as he does the warmest wishes for the future prosperous development of the Young Men's Associations, desires you to communicate to the members of the Conference the lively sympathy with which he accompanies their assembling in Berlin."

The Count Bernstorff, who is eminently fitted for the post of President of an International Conference, and who has throughout the Conference translated the gist of each speech, both short and long, in German, French, and English, spoke hearty words of welcome. Although differing in language, he rejoiced to realise that all were "one in Christ." The Christians of Berlin had been encouraged to invite the Conference to visit that city by the great success which, by God's blessing, had attended the establishment of the Berlin Association. He concluded with the expression of a fervent desire that the spirit of Christian catholicity might increase and abound.

A few brief speeches from delegates followed, in which the various countries were fairly represented. Mr. George Williams spoke on behalf of the American and English delegates, and concluded by moving that the Reference Committee (to be appointed) prepare and transmit a suitable acknowledgment of the Emperor's letter.

Each day the Conference met for prayers at half-past eight a.m. On Thursday morning the presentation of the International Report was the first business. After detailing the duties devolving on the central office, the foreign work of the committee was detailed. M. Fermaud, the International Secretary, who speaks fluently five or six European languages, has visited, since last Conference, England, Scotland, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Russia. He gave a word of cheer with respect to each. The report closed with an expression of bright hopefulness for the future.

Then followed verbal reports from England, by Mr. George Williams; Germany, from Pastor Klug; Switzerland, by Mr. Eidenbenz; Sweden, by Captain Lagerorantz; Norway, by Pastor Eckhoff: France and Algiers, by M. de Rougemont; Russia, by Pastor Duarkowitz; Denmark, by Mr. Poulson; Belgium, by Mr. Lauffer; Italy, by Pastore Ro. Davio.

Concerning Great Britain and Ireland the salient features during the three years (since last International Conference) were the great increase in the number of associations—441 against 332—the membership (including associates now about 53,000); the organisation of the national and district work; the increase in travelling secretaries—five against one in 1881;—the acquisition of buildings, now valued at £297,797; the fervent missionary spirit manifested; the numerous evangelistic Missions held; the extension of aggressive work in the open air, theatres, &c.; the successful Temperance work; the commencement of work amongst boys and youths as a distinct class; and the increased number of seaside homes for young men. At no period of their history have the Associations of the United Kingdom been more determined to keep to their first work, that of leading young men to repentance and to a living faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Italian delegate thanked God for the wonderful contrast in his land between the present and twenty-five years ago; now there is civil and religious liberty, and the Bible is scattered over Italy. Who would have thought it? The Pope's efforts to hinder the distribution of the Bible is the one obstacle, but with or without him they are resolved to persevere. In 1881 there were eleven associations, now there are seventeen with a membership of 1000. He concluded by urging, "Pray for my Italy." M. Fermaud, the International Secretary, who had translated, at the close of the speech exchanged a hearty kiss with Signor Davio, amid the acclamations of the Conference.

The report from Norway spoke of the Lord's presence with the Associations. They had at present about 500 members. The report from France: "Not very strong at present; greatly needing increased support." From Russia: Six Associations in the Empire; Bible-classes doing a good work; deeply grateful for the visit of the International Secretary. This is the first time Russia has been represented at a Y.M.C.A. Conference.

From Belgium: Just celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of Association. The last three years have been years of inward strengthening. The missionary spirit has been greatly increased. The members have also undertaken aggressive work in their town. They have also earnestly witnessed for Sunday observance and Temperance.

From Switzerland: In 1881, 130 associations; now 171, with a membership of 3000. Special interest evinced on behalf of foreign Missions, Sunday-schools, and Sunday observance. The Christian young men in the army by conscription, have been able to arrange not to perform firing practice on Sundays.

From Sweden: A good deal of intolerance between the denominations; the Y.M.C.A. is, however, gradually overcoming it. The International Secretary's visit was much blessed. Not much organisation yet, but it is growing.

From Denmark: There are now thirty associations, with about 1000 members, and a Y.M.C.A. journal, with 2000 subscribers.

The next subject for consideration was, "The important phases of the work in America," specially dwelling on the work of the General Secretary and the opportunities for social, educational, and spiritual culture offered by the Associations. This led to a most interesting discussion, Mr. Morse, the International Secretary, of New York, taking charge of the meeting, and answering, or finding those who would give information in response to, questions put with great rapidity on all the salient features.

After dinner there was a meeting for British business, during which a hearty invitation that the British Conference next year should be held in Belfast, was unanimously accepted.

In the evening, a public meeting was held, entirely in German, for the sake of the Berlin residents. Addresses were delivered by Court Chaplain Frommel on the importance of the Association to the family; by Court Chaplain Stöcker on its importance to the State; by Rev. C. Wagner, of Sydenham, England, on its importance to the Church; and by Baron von Oertzen, of Hamburg, on its importance for the advancement of God's kingdom on earth.

On Friday, after the transaction of some formal business, the question of "How to win certain sections of our youth, who have hitherto furnished but few adherents to our cause," was discussed. Papers were read by a Dutch and an Italian delegate, and also by Mr. W. T. Paton, of London. The last-named friend impressed on the Conference the necessity of bidding for young men by means which are likely to appeal to their sympathies and educational needs. "It is no use fishing with a bare hook." We must be prepared to attract and then retain them by means which they appreciate; and we must be ready to supply whatever may be of interest and use to them all along the line of their life. He took care strongly to press the point, that all this must be done with the purpose of leading them practically to Christ; our success in the highest sense of the word must be in our spiritual results.

After the reading of three more papers on the best means of spreading amongst young men a deeper knowledge of salvation, the members of the Conference proceeded by train to Potsdam, a most pleasant and interesting excursion. A special train was provided both going and returning, and a portion of the journey was performed upon special steamers on the river Hafel. Supper was served in the garden of the hotel, at Wansee, overlooking the river, which there widens out into a lake. Not only did a band discourse sweet music, but the male choir of the local Y.M.C.A. attended, and sang chorales and other sacred pieces with great sweetness.

On Saturday morning the delegates re-assembled for prayer at 8.30; and during the forenoon considered the following topics: (1) The necessity for members of the Association of a real conversion to God; (2) Prayer and work in the Associations. In the afternoon, papers were read and briefly discussed advocating sympathy and co-operation with all societies and efforts for the suppression of immorality and intemperance. After dinner, several photographs were taken of the delegates en masse; and in the evening a reception of the delegates by the ladies of Berlin, with Countess Bernstorff at their head, was held in the rooms of the Association in Friederich-strasse. The capacity of the splendid suite of rooms, and the adjoining garden, was manifested by the ease and comfort with which the hundreds of guests were entertained.

Brief, hearty speeches were delivered by Mr. Henry Thorne, travelling secretary, Midland district, England; Mr. R. H. Smith, travelling secretary for Scotland; Mr. George Williams, who gave an account of the way in which, by prayer and effort, funds were raised for the purchase of Exeter Hall, with the view of stimulating the German friends to acquire permanent buildings in Berlin. After this Mr. Phildius, the general secretary of the local Association, gave a brief account of the rise and progress of the work there. It commenced with a very small nucleus of devout men, as the direct outcome of Mr. von Schluembach's evangelistic meetings in the winter of 1882. By God's blessing upon the zealous, prayerful efforts of the members and officers it has rapidly expanded into a "membership" of 700 young men. The details were exceedingly interesting. The devotion of the President, Baron Rothkirch, of Count Bernstorff, one of the vice-presidents, and of other loyal friends, called forth hearty thanksgiving.

The Association has been particularly successful in endeavouring to reach the young men, circle by circle, and has not been limited in its efforts by any social distinction. For instance, in order to reach the waiters of Berlin, a meeting was called at 12.30, midnight! 500 tickets of invitation were issued, which resulted in between two and three hundred responding, and that, too, without any adventitious attractions, even the refreshments provided being sold at cost price. Similar efforts have been successfully put forth to reach the cabmen, soldiers, and other bodies of young men.

The Conference was brought to a close on Sunday. Divine service was arranged at the chapel, Oranienburger-strasse, with the Lord's Supper at its close. There were also special services in the American and English chapels. Some of the guests, however, worshipped with their hosts; and in the afternoon a small party found their way to the Sunday-school, conducted in their own house, by Count and Countess Bernstorff, assisted by a few Christian friends.

At five o'clock the delegates, for the last time, assembled at the hall in Johannistisch to take part in the Farewell Meeting. Count Bernstorff again presided, and many earnest, loving words were exchanged by those who were the spokesmen on behalf of their fellow-countrymen.

The Berlin Conference will long be remembered by those who were privileged to be present as a season of spiritual refreshment, and loving, brotherly intercourse. The work, in its international relations, was much strengthened by the formation of new and lasting friendships. And, above all, it is anticipated that the influence of the Conference will redound very beneficially, not only on the Association work in Germany, but also on the religious life of that country and of Europe generally.

A LETTER FROM MADAGASCAR.

DEAR SIR,—When I last wrote to you, I stated that we expected there would be peace here before long, as we thought that the Malagasy would be able to come to terms with the French. I am sorry to say our hopes have not been realised, as negotiations have been broken off. They are fighting again, and the prospects of peace are as far off as ever.

In the Ultimatum which the French sent up to the Malagasy Government last year, they laid claim to about a third of the island; they have now given up nine-tenths of their claim, but as they still lay claim to a large part of the north-west of the island, and the largest and best bay there is round the island, the Malagasy decline to give up any of it, and negotiations are broken off. They were willing to pay a million sterling to the French as a war indemnity, but they will not give up a foot of their native land, and so the French have taken to their guns again to try and compel them. That they can never do, unless they come to the capital and conquer them there. To do that would require an army of at least ten thousand men, which would require a second army of thirty thousand baggage carriers, as there are no railways here, nor roads along which baggage waggons could be drawn; and such an expedition would cost the French five millions. . . . . .

The churches of Imerina have just raised £4000 for the sick and wounded of the Malagasy army. We had the honour at Ambatonakanga of leading the way with a free-will collection of forty pounds. The other eight congregations of the capital, and the eight hundred in the country followed our example, and most of the congregations in the capital raised twice as much as we did, although their collections could hardly be called "free-will offerings," as it became a matter of emulation as to which congregation could raise the most, and hence a slight pressure was brought to bear on the people.

The Malagasy are still having their weekly prayer-meeting to plead for their native land. It is most affecting at times to hear the poor fellows pleading with God to save them from the hands of their enemies. They ask God to go with them and fight for them; but above all to change the hearts of their enemies, and send them back to their own land wiser and better men! The Malagasy are by no means all they ought to be, or perhaps all they might be; in this affair with the French, they have certainly shown themselves to be the more civilised and Christianised nation of the two. Surely He, in whose hand are the hearts of all men, will not allow "the rod of the wicked to rest on the lot of the righteous" longer than is needful for their good and growth in grace and in all that alone exalteth a nation. T. T. M.

Antananarivo, Madagascar, May 22.

A SEASIDE HOME FOR EAST-END POOR.—Writing from 22, Bow-road, E., with respect to the Seaside Home he has secured at Herne Bay, referred to in our last issue, Rev. A. G. Brown says:—"The large premises with a sea frontage are now furnished. At the present time there are over twenty beds, and by the time these lines are before your readers I shall have arranged my first party to go down. None will be denied because they are too poor. For those who can afford a few shillings per week, or who have friends willing to send them, a nominal charge will be made; but in most instances not only will the railway fare have to be given, but their entire keep also, and in many cases respectable clothing into the bargain. Sometimes, also, the rent of the little room at home must be found during their absence. If any of your readers should feel led to aid me in this effort to give poor seamstresses, trouser-finishers, and other sons and daughters of poverty a season of rest in their toilsome lives, I shall be very grateful."

A LOST SON SAVED.

"This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his trouble."—Ps. xxxiv. 6.

OH, the pain a mother suffers
When her darlings go astray,
And the steps for heaven intended,
Learn to walk the evil way.
One I knew had such a lost one,—
Reckless through the livelong day,
And he ran at night sin's gauntlet,
Slave to wild debauch's sway.

Mother's prayers should be availing,
Mother's tears a son should stay;
Hating them, he fled the country:
Breaking heart was hers that day.
Storm and tempest wrecked the vessel;
Some were saved, and few were they,—
He among them—notwithstanding,
Will was still a castaway.

Homeless, houseless, friendless, drunken,
In the street how oft he lay,
Kicked from bar-rooms without mercy.
(They want only chaps that pay!)
Last he sought a friendly Mission,
Where the worst ones enter may,
Ragged, shivering, conscience-stricken,
Heard the words the Christ-songs say.

One, a hymn his mother often
Sang at home, now far away;
She was blithe then, little dreaming
To what end he'd come some day.
Gospel teachings in that Mission,
Led him tremblingly to pray,
And the drunkard rose rejoicing,—
For he found the better way.

What a change now, through God's mercy,
Came to him; no more astray,
"White as snow," and others learning
Christ to love, and Him obey.
Now he longs for home and mother;
Never more from her to stray,
See her smile and look so thankful,
As he kneels with her to pray.

New York, August, 1884. A. L. Stimson.

MR. J. WAKEFIELD MacGILL.

THE Manchester Guardian of August 28 contains the announcement that Mr. J. Wakefield MacGill, of Bromley-by-Bow, has been appointed General Superintendent of the Manchester City Mission. We heartily wish Mr. MacGill God-speed in this new sphere of labour. As the founder of the Grove-street Institute, Glasgow, and as an active worker in Burton, Brixton, and Bromley, Mr. MacGill has acquired much and varied experience which may be of valuable service to him in the resuscitation and development of the City Mission in the commercial metropolis of the North.

For the last year Mr. MacGill has been engaged in forming in Bromley-by-Bow a Home Mission Institute on the model of the Glasgow Grove-street Institute. Considering the time he has been at work, the numerous discouragements arising from various causes, and the degradation of the population, his success has been so satisfactory that Mr. Guinness is building institute premises for the proper carrying out of the operations of the Mission. It is hoped that these new premises will be opened early in October, when Mr. MacGill begins work in Manchester. The management of the Bromley Mission will then pass into the hands of Mr. Harry Grattan Guinness, who, we may say, is a young man of much promise, both as an evangelist and an intelligent organiser of Home Mission work. The Institute will consist of a hall for Gospel and Blue Ribbon Meetings, to contain 1000 persons; a lecture hall; and seven or eight rooms.

We cordially commend Mr. Harry Guinness to the sympathy and co-operation of East-end workers, and trust he will be enabled to make those operations so hopefully commenced by Mr. MacGill a great power for the elevation of a district which the Earl of Shaftesbury lately said was one of the worst, if not the worst, in London.

THE DEVIL'S RAZOR.

A TOTAL ABSTINENCE TALK

BY HENRY LAKIN,

In Old Palace Tent, Bromley, E.

(JUDGES xvi. 6—21.)

I WOULD advise every person in this tent at the first opportunity to read carefully the history of Samson. It is one of the most instructive, and one of the most interesting narratives that we have in the Old Testament. In this wonderful narrative there are pictures for every person here. Just as the devil had got a razor with which to shave Samson, so he has a razor to shave every one of us. I have been watching these things for a considerable time, and I know nothing that so aptly fits in with this razor, that shaved off Samson's locks, as the drink. How many men and women have been shorn of their strength, of their money, of their clothes, of their home comforts, of their prospects in this life and their prospects in the world to come, by this accursed drink that is in our midst. Every time I pass a public-house or a liquor vault I turn my eyes to the place, and say, "There is another of the devil's 'barbers' shops,' where he lathers and shaves men and women; there is another of the hellish places that bring such a curse upon our nation."

Samson was a strong man, and there are men and women in this tent who, I daresay, boast and glory in their strength. They say, "Ah! the devil can't take a rise out of me like that; he can't shave me like that. I can go into any public-house, take my glass, and go about my business." So it was with Samson. He played and dabbled with sin. I have been told that it is a very bad thing to play with edged tools, for they are likely to cut, and so it was with Samson. Delilah is a picture of the instrument that the devil uses on purpose to entrap, and to shave the spiritual strength of the children of God. I want to speak also to the children of God on this drink question. I know ministers of the Gospel who have occupied pulpits—men of great note for their spiritual power—who have been instruments in the hands of God in slaying their thousands of sinners, as Samson slew his thousands. I know such a man to-day who is actually going about on the streets of one of our towns, and getting his three halfpence or twopence from any person on purpose to get his gill of something to drink.

I was at a place in the North of England lately, and there had been three clergymen in that place. One after another the devil had shaved these three clergymen with this razor of strong drink. The first of the three had the pool dragged for him. He was seen helplessly drunk near the place. They thought he had fallen in and got drowned, and so the pool was dragged for him; but where do you think they found him? Having a comfortable game of cards with another clergyman, and decanters of liquor on the table. The minister that followed him in the same place was a man who had been like Samson; he had defeated the armies of the aliens, and put to flight the Philistines. This man took to drink, and he broke his neck off a horse on a race-course. The third clergyman, who occupied the pulpit in that very place, also got shaved with the devil's razor—strong drink. He said he would like to have some person to fiddle his favourite hornpipe to him as he lay on his dying bed, and his wish was granted him.

It is said here of Samson that the Philistines put out his eyes. Now sin puts out the spiritual eyesight. "The God of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them." They not only put out his eyes, but bound him in fetters of brass. How many are there to-day who are in that position? They have lost their spiritual eyesight, and are bound in fetters with this curse of drink.

How many are there to-day who are grinding in the devil's prison house, whose hearts are aching, who have brought themselves from the high and lofty position they once held, and who are now paupers — some of them occupying unions, and asylums, and hospitals? No man, and no angel from heaven, could tell the awful amount of wretchedness and degradation that have been brought upon our land and upon the people through this curse of drink.

Let me tell you a story that has come to me to-day in a letter. A friend writes to me, and tells me about a friend of his of the name of Alfred. Alfred was his old companion before he got converted. For fourteen years he was never in bed more than fourteen times on the Saturday night all those fourteen years. Saturday night, you know, when he got his "brass," was the "shaving" night. During those fourteen years, and on those Saturday nights, after he was turned out of the "barbers' shops" he used to loaf about the streets, or else sleep on a doorstep, or smoke his pipe till he went asleep; then he used to get disturbed by the police, who told him that if he did not move off they should give him a night's lodging.

Alfred signed the pledge. After signing the pledge, he came to a meeting like this, and was converted. His wife's friends were wealthy people, and after he got saved they gave him an invitation to go to their house for dinner. They were Christian people. When he sat down to the dinner-table he found glasses of ale put round the table at every man's place. He sat down, but he did not use the glass. His wife's uncle said to him, "Alfred, why don't you drink up the beer, and have another glass?" "No," he says, "I am not going to have any beer to-day." After a while the uncle said again, "Alfred, drink up your beer: what are you thinking of? Why don't you drink it up?" "I will tell you," says Alfred, "what I am thinking about. My wife always told me that you people here were Christians, and that you were Bible-reading Christians." "Well, Alfred," said the uncle, "we are all that." Says Alfred, "What part of the Bible do you read?" "Oh," says the uncle, "we read it all. What part of the Bible do you mean?" "Well," says Alfred, "I think you read mostly that part of the Bible where Paul says to Timothy, 'Use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thine often infirmities.' But I am not troubled with Timothy's complaint, and so I shall not take Timothy's medicine." I congratulate Alfred upon his courage and determination. He had learned to look men in the face, and say, "No; I intend, by God's grace, not to drink the beer."

The devil thought he had got a razor that would shave Alfred. When he went to work amongst his shopmates they saw there was a change in him; they could not but see it. They heard him singing at the bench; they saw his face was lighted up with a peculiar joy. They said to one another: "What is up with Alfred? Some wonderful change has come over him. Let us fetch in some drink, and ask him to have a drop." So they clubbed together, and sent one of the 'prentice lads for a bottle of drink. They poured out some of it. "Now, old chap, come and wet your whistle." Alfred said, "No, thank you." And they said, "Why?" He said, "I have made a promise that I will have no drink to-day." Very well. The next day they had another "fetch," and they said: "Now, Alfred, come and have a drink." "No, thank you." They said, "Why?" "I have made up my mind not to touch drink to-day." The next day they had another "fetch," and they said, "We will 'shave' him to-day." As they began to put out the drink round, they said, "Come, Alfred." "No, thank you." They said, "Why?" "I have made up my mind not to touch drink to-day." I will tell you what Alfred had learned: he had learned to live one day at a time. He found out this secret—that God gives a man strength and grace just a day at a time.

After a while the governor came into the shop where Alfred was, and one of the men said to the governor: "There is something come across Alfred which is very remarkable. He used to drink like the rest of us, and now he won't touch it. We have been trying him three days, and he won't touch a drop." "Oh," says the governor, "I'll shave him." So he says, "Alfred." "Yes, sir." "I want you in the office for a minute." Alfred followed the master into the office. When he got in there, there was a glass of ale standing on the desk. The master says, "Here, Alfred, take a sup." Alfred looked at him. "Master," says he, "I have made up my mind not to touch drink to-day." What do you think the master did? He took the glass into one hand, put his other hand into his pocket, and put into the glass a sovereign. "Now, Alfred, that is a razor that will shave you," he said. "Master, I have made up my mind not to touch drink to-day." Alfred stuck to his text like a brave fellow. His master put his hand into his pocket again, and put into the glass another sovereign; there they shone at the bottom of the glass. "Sup that up, and they are both yours." "Master," says he, "I have made up my mind not to touch drink to-day." His master put his hand into his pocket and put a third sovereign into the glass. "Now, then, sup up." "Master, I have made up my mind not to touch drink to-day." Then he looked his master in the face, and he said, "Master, if you were to fill the glass full of sovereigns, I would not touch it." These are the kind of men we want; but if Alfred had not had the grace of God in his heart along with teetotalism, those three sovereigns would have shaved him. You may rely upon it—if not the first sovereign, then the second, or the third. When you go into a barber's shop, you know, and they begin to shave you, they say, "Does this go easy, sir?" "Well, not so easy." The barber goes round the place, and reaches down another razor. "How does that go, sir?" "That's a bit better, thank you." Now the devil has got a lot of razors, and like a lot of these other barbers, he has got the "easy shaving shop." My friends, I want to tell you to-night that you must get out of these devil's barbers' shops—right out of them. You must keep out of the way of temptation, and you must be on your guard against these razors; and the only way, and the only advice that I can give you to-night is: Get your soul saved, get your sins pardoned, get washed in the precious blood of Christ.

My friend tells me another little story in his letter this morning. A few weeks ago a gentleman came to his house, hearing that he was going to leave it and go to another. He came, wishing to look over it, for he thought he should like to take it. My friend courteously invited him in. When he had shown him over the house he began to talk to him about Christ and about his soul. "Ah," said the man, giving a long sigh, "I used to have twenty or thirty men in my employment. Unfortunately, my wife took to drink. At that time my house was magnificently furnished. I had got a splendid piano in the front room, and a beautiful centre table, and on that centre table I had got £13 worth of good books. One day, when I came home, all that £13 worth of books had gone into the pawnshop for money to get drink with!"

What grieved this tradesman most of all was that his wife pawned the family Bible. What will women and men not do for drink? Seven times did that tradesman have to fetch the family Bible out of the pawnshop, and he said if it had not been for the grace of God one day, he should have cut her throat with his razor.

Oh, the murders there are throughout our land by this curse of drink! I never pick up a paper but I see a whole catalogue of crime of this description from the curse of drink. A short time ago, when I was down at Bristol, I looked at the paper, and the very first thing that caught my eye was the account of a murder, and I said to myself, "I will just take a look at this, and see what it is about." It was about a young man who sent for his father, his mother, his brothers, and sisters, and cousins, to come and pay him a farewell visit in Bristol Gaol. The account of the parting in the columns of that newspaper was most heartrending. He said to these friends, "It is the drink that has brought me here," and then, with such an appeal as only a condemned man can make, he said, "For God's sake, and the Saviour's sake, don't touch it any more."

The record of this traffic is something terrific. As I go about these streets of London, and see those huge drays loaded with those great barrels, they look to me like cannon balls to knock men to "smithereens." A brother of mine said to me when he saw a train-load of these barrels going from Burton-on-Trent, "If we could only follow these barrels to their destination, what black eyes, and bleeding noses, and wife-beatings, and awful rows, we should see before they are empty."

Thank God, it is nineteen years since I touched, tasted, or handled the drink! I saw the awful evil and curse there was in it; and every day that I live I am more and more against it. I cannot put my foot into any town, city, or village, but I either see or hear of some awful thing that has happened through the drink. It causes me to gnash my teeth, and to wish in my soul that I could drive it right out of the country.

I once had "Fiddler Joss" down at my place at Burton. "Now, fiddler," I said, "I want you to hit this drink right straight from the shoulder." I can tell you he roused the indignation of the brewers and publicans in Burton. He looked at them one night, and said, "If all your breweries in the town, and if all your public-houses and liquor vaults were on fire, and if I could put the fire out by spitting on them, I wouldn't do it." It was talked of in every public-house in the town, and they said, "Ah, it is that fellow Lakin that has got him here."

Before you go away, let me impress upon you that it is your bounden duty and privilege to sign the pledge, and in the strength of the Lord and on your knees to-night ask God to help you keep it; ask God to change your hearts and give you a look at Jesus on the Cross, that you might not only be teetotalers, but Christian men and Christian women. Then you will see what a blessed and happy time you will have in Bromley.

OBITUARY.

MRS. BILLINGTON.

THE sad intelligence has been received of the death of the wife of Mr. Billington, one of the missionaries on the Congo in connection with the Livingstone Inland Mission. Coming so soon after the death of Mrs. Richards on the outward voyage, the news has occasioned deep sorrow among the friends of the Mission. Prayer is asked that the brave band of workers who are thus battling with an inhospitable climate, may be preserved in life and health.

MR. J. P. LARKINS.

On Sunday morning, August 24, another veteran worker passed from our midst—Mr. J. P. Larkins, known to many for his valuable teaching and untiring efforts in the service of his Master. For many years he laboured in India, but more recently at Bournemouth. Within three weeks of his death he was taking part in a service on the rocks at Ilfracombe, where he had laboured for the Lord, and much blessing rested on the work. He departed to be with Christ, at the age of 76, deeply regretted by a large circle of friends, by whom he was much esteemed and beloved.

THE NORTH SEA FLEETS.—We have seldom read such a well-written and interesting sketch of Gospel work as that which appears in the current issue of The Churchman (1s. Elliot Stock), entitled "Fourteen Days among the Fishing Fleets in the North Sea." On a previous page we refer to the Lord Mayor's letter in commendation of the Thames Church Mission, and their work among the hardy fishermen of the North Sea. If those whose interest may be awakened by his Lordship's statement could but read this admirable sketch in The Churchman, their gratitude and practical interest would, we are sure, be still further increased.

HOME OF INDUSTRY HOLIDAYS.

By Miss ANNIE MACPHERSON.

WHAT an untold privilege it has been during these past twenty years to endeavour to soothe the "Bitter Cry" in our dear East London, to rejoice in a host of additional Missions, and listen to the sound of abundance of labourers raised up in our midst. But no greater joy has been mine for years than last week to take 400 of the busiest of all women and children out for a day to the old and much-loved Epping Forest. How the young girls made the forest glades echo with their gleesome shouts! Sundry rides on the donkeys, swings, &c., soon relieved them of all their slowly gathered halfpence. By eleven o'clock most of the dinners were eaten; thus freed, they wandered forth to the bramble bushes, gathering and eating blackberries, whether black, red, or green.

We sat down in a nice nook, and soon a group of little matchbox-makers, in a confiding way, drew near. They were about eight to ten years of age, with thin and wizened faces, and large full eyes—old beyond their years. I asked if they went to school? They nodded "Yes." Did they make boxes? Another nod. "When?" "At night." "How long?" "Sometimes all night." One dear child said, "I never sleeps; I can't." They opened an old bag, and there were several slices of dry bread going rapidly to crumbs, with the continual movement of their restless little hands.

A few more questions brought out the secret of the strain upon the life's blood of these innocent lambs. One of their mothers had ten children, while another had nine! Later on we gave them some additional food. And asking them how they had enjoyed the hard-boiled eggs, &c., "Oh, teacher! we're taking it home for mother and the baby," was the reply. Dear, unselfish children, how one wished that the children of the wealthier classes could be taught this holy principle of sharing with others of their abundance.

Our forest day was lovely. The fun and laughter were exuberant, especially when the adult Bible-classes tried their skill at running whilst holding in their hands a spoon with a ball in it. Two of the "mothers" were blind, but they jumped for joy and joined heartily in the merry-making; three or four grandmothers would run for a prize, to the amusement of all.

On the return journey, Mr. Sankey himself would have shed tears of joy with us listening for an hour to these young lassies of toil, singing his sweet songs. The boundless ages of eternity will reverberate their wondrous loveliness; meanwhile, not only in the narrow streets and dark alleys, but in many a little room where whole families are crowded in, these songs of Zion from infant voices are brightening thousands of sad lives. A happy hour flew by in a forest glade, giving small prizes for the best Solos sung; their sweet minstrelsy can reach where no other dare enter.

We were greatly cheered by a kind invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Bockley, of Leyton, to myself and fellow-workers, and fifty policemen from our Commercial-street Station, to spend a day with them. The dear fellows perfectly revelled in being out of their heavy "blue," and in wearing their own lighter clothing. Between dinner and tea they played at cricket, quoits, and at football, as well as any Rugby boy just out of school! But the greatest treat of all, they told us afterwards, was the beautiful story of —— told by the clergyman after tea. One said, "I could sit all night listening to talk like that." Another said, "I shall think that all out again whilst on my beat in B—— street at night." We had singing all the way back to the great city, finding out their favourite hymns one by one.

On arriving at the station many of them would escort our band of workers to the Home of Industry. Time was considered; they reckoned that twenty minutes would get them into their "blue" and take them to their various destinations, so around our new American organ we had a few more hymns, and formed a "Policemen's" choir; we also arranged for a Bible-class on Sunday afternoons How easy it is to give joy, if sunny-faced Christian women like our hostess would follow her example. The two inspectors made little speeches, thanking their kind friends for the happy day they had had, but privately one of them said, "Truly it is not the food the men care for so much, as the friendly way in which the whole family received us, and the brotherly way in which the rev. gentleman has spoken to us." How it will reflect back on the very poor they meet with, friendless and without a home.

Another happy day was given us through the liberality of Sir Kingsmill and Lady Key. In long open waggonettes we took about eighty of our widows to their residence. Their delight was great and their gatitude also. They called the lawn a leafy bower, fit for a queen. We have noticed that since the Flower Mission has been established, the poor pay greater attention to God's works in Nature, and they display greater intelligence. How we long that, while much money is being spent on decorating graves, the living also should have their share. We know that even a flower, when given in Christ's name, shall have its reward.

We are thankful to have returned from Canada in time to take nearly 600 into the country. Everything of this kind gives an opportunity of winning hearts, and presenting our precious Saviour as a personal Redeemer for each.

THE CHOLERA IN MARSEILLES.

DEAR SIR,—Your readers will join with us in gratitude to God that, throughout the epidemic of cholera which has raged in Marseilles during the summer, all the members of the McAll Mission there, and all the Christian ministers, have been mercifully spared. One of the pastors, M. Bruguière, and two agents of the Mission, M. Saillens, senior, and Mlle. Deluz, have been attacked; but they have recovered, through the goodness of God.

Not one of the ten mission-halls which the McAll Mission have opened in Marseilles has been shut. The meetings have been carried on as usual, notwithstanding the fearful heat, and while all the theatres and public places of meeting were closed. Throughout the epidemic, there have been three prayer-meetings weekly in the Reformed (Presbyterian) Church at the early hour of eight in the morning. As many as 200 were present at a time. This season of trial seems to have been a season of great blessing for the churches, which have been aroused.

A tract entitled "Cholera" has been printed with the help of the Religious Tract Society; 50,000 copies are in circulation in France. In Marseilles alone 10,000 copies have been distributed by the members of the McAll Mission. We have reason to believe that this pamphlet has been useful to some of its readers.

Through the kindness of friends from many parts, the poor of the Protestant churches have not suffered want, neither have those of the Mission.

While there is in these facts reason for thanksgiving, let all our friends join with us in asking the good Lord who reigns above to stay his hand, if it be his will, and to spare this country from further sorrows. The epidemic has lost its intensity, but it spreads over a large track of land, from the Pyrenees to the Alps.

Let me take this opportunity to speak of our great want in these times. We need faithful, earnest, and humble-minded Christian ladies to help in the good work of evangelisation. In Marseilles, in Corsica especially (where we are going to open a new Mission in Ajaccio), in all parts of France, such workers would be invaluable. Pastor Kissel asks for a Bible-lady in Lorient, Brittany; Mons. Chaigne, at the head of the work in Toulouse, also begs for such a helper. I shall be glad to enter into correspondence with any Christian lady willing to answer this call.—Very truly yours, R. Saillens.

177, Avenue du Maine, Paris, August 29.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE IN DENMARK.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORESPONDENTS.]

THERE is at least one notable feature of the Copenhagen Conference of the Evangelical Alliance that was characteristic of the assembly which met in Berlin in the year 1857. The King of Prussia and other members of the Royal family attended many of the sittings, and His Majesty besides gave a reception in the Royal Palace at Potsdam to about 1200 members of the Conference. The King and Queen of Denmark, as well as the Crown Prince and Princess, have accepted the invitation of the Committee, and have promised to be present at several sessions of this Conference this week.

Already there are encouraging signs of a successful Conference. The local committee are strongly tempted to hold their hands awhile in regard to the issue of tickets, as they are somewhat alarmed to find that even the capacious building they have obtained for the meeting will be found too strait for the fast increasing number of applicants.

The Bethesda Mission-house, a fine building erected about two years ago, has been secured for the meetings of the Conference. It is fresh and bright in appearance, both inside and out. The principal hall, accommodating some 1500 persons, is particularly handsome—surprisingly so. The walls are decorated in the ornate style of the Italian Renaissance. There is abundance of colour, and on each side of the pulpit there is a picture on the wall painted in bright colour, striking, but not dazzling to the eye. One, with a background of gold, represents St. Christopher (the Christ-bearer), who is carrying the infant Saviour across the river, according to ancient legend. The other is a painting of the Good Shepherd. Below each picture is a curtain, which hangs in graceful folds, but, on examination, it proves to be a painting also—a clever imitation of the real thing. The canopy of the pulpit is surmounted with a miniature figure of John the Baptist.

There is below the pulpit—itself a fine piece of work—a reading-desk, removable, but now noticed because of the words inscribed on the front, Saeden er Gud's ord: i.e., "The seed is the Word of God." The adornment of the ceiling is in keeping with the elaborate embellishment of the walls. Chandeliers, massive and in Roman style, are pendent from the roof. Here and there the decorations approach the gorgeous, but the general effect is far from unpleasant. There is much buff and blue, not too much red, and perhaps just enough glitter to make the inside of the building—what in the gloomy days of winter must be a desideratum in this northern clime—bright and beautiful. The acoustic qualities of the hall are declared to be excellent. For the chief members of the Conference 300 seats are reserved near the pulpit, and next are placed some ten chairs covered in crimson and gold for the members of the Royal Family.

In addition to the large hall there are minor halls, which will contain between 400 and 500. The latter rooms are to be called into requisition on certain occasions when two or three sections assemble simultaneously, which will occur at least on five out of the six days of the Conference.

Many distinguished persons have enrolled themselves as members of the Conference. It is both delicate and difficult to make a selection where the list is so long. The names, however, may be mentioned of the Marquis of Ailsa, Lord Radstock, the Lord Mayor of London (now a Vice-President of the British Council), Sir W. McArthur, M.P., Dr. Pressensé, and Pasteur Theodore Monod (both from Paris); three professors from Sweden—Myerberg, Rosenius, and Skarsted—an interesting fact to all who happen to know the history of the change of venue, as to the place of meeting, from Stockholm to Copenhagen; Professor Christlieb, of Bonn; Professor Godet, from Switzerland; Professor Schaff and the Rev. John Hall, from New York; Principal Cairns, the Rev. Dr. Murray Mitchell, Dr. Boyd, and many more from Edinburgh and London; and a host of others from various countries.

The reception of foreign delegates took place on Saturday at the ancient university, in the handsome hall, adorned with splendid paintings by Danish artists. The address of welcome was given in eloquent terms, expressed in harmony with the spirit of the Alliance.

Rev. Dr. KALKAR said: The Christian world had often been witness of great assemblies, but none recorded in national or in ecclesiastical history can compare with that little community at Pentecost, who met with one accord in one place, and on whom the Spirit of God descended. That was the first awakening of the Church into life; and, thank God, the echoes of that first pentecostal miracle still resound in the Church of Christ. It is the hope of all true Christians that the day may soon arrive when the faithful will come in vast crowds from every country, and with one heart and voice glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. It was this longing for union among Evangelical Christians of all denominations and all nationalities, which called into existence the Evangelical Alliance.

On behalf of the Danish Committee, and of those whom the Committee represented, he welcomed most heartily the excellent friends of that Society who had come to the Copenhagen Conference. In the first place, he would greet his own dear countrymen, to whom it was granted to possess the inheritance bequeathed to them by the faithful witnesses of the last century—by Balle and Mynster Grundtvig and Martensen. Next, he welcomed his Scandinavian kinsmen, who had come from the wood-clad countries, and who had cherished the old memories from the heroic age of the North. Turning to the west and east, he welcomed the men of facts, whose home was the British Isles, to whose country belonged the honour of conceiving the idea of a Christian Association, whose aims had met with universal sympathy, and who, with far-seeing glance, ventured to prophesy that the Alliance would yet assemble in Rome and in Jerusalem. Welcome also to the friends from across the Atlantic, who were now vieing with their brethren in the Old World, in the glorious pursuit of carrying the flag of the Gospel from country to country, and over the deep seas. Welcome to the men of deep thought from Germany, who had taught that science had her treasures and jewels. Welcome to their kinsmen from the dyke-girdled country of the Netherlands, where heroism had valiantly carried the standard of religious liberty across the roaring waters, and which had produced famous scholars who astonished the world. Sincerely did he and his Danish friends regret that so few of the French nation, and also so few from Switzerland, had come to join this united assembly of Christians.

Looking upon that assembly, he could not but exclaim, "God be praised! That which unites is much greater and much stronger than that which separates us." They acknowledged the same Lord, the same God, and Father; and all, in spite of differing nationalities, spiritual gifts and habits of life, confessed their belief in the same catholic Church, in the same universal articles of faith. No denomination dared to declare itself alone the possessor of the whole undivided truth, because the Apostle had himself called to their mind that to everyone of them the grace of God was given by the effectual working of his power. Therefore, on that occasion, a welcome was offered to all who in humility and earnestness were united to their common Head, Jesus Christ. Stronger than any other were the ties which bound them to Him who loved them with an eternal love; or (as expressed by one of the most orthodox Lutheran Churchmen), "The sympathy between the Christian confessions widely surpasses the antipathy."

The password of the Alliance for all in that assembly was—"Peace with them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart." With this welcome he would combine the exhortation of the Apostle: "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for He is faithful that promised; and let us consider one another to provoke unto love and unto good works, not forsaking the assembling of ourselves, as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching."

A number of the foreign visitors delivered addresses in reply.

[In our next week's issue, which will be a Double Number, we purpose giving lengthy reports of the Alliance meetings.]

Notices of Books, &c.

CITY ECHOES; OR, BITTER CRIES FROM GLASGOW. A. Gardner. London is not the only city in this so-called Christian land that has its loud and exceeding bitter cry. If anyone doubts that, let him read these graphic and realistic sketches of "low life" in Glasgow. The conversations carried on in the broadest of Doric will puzzle many a southern reader, but there is enough of genuine and tragic interest to arouse and fix the attention of all. How to cure the running sores of our social life in great cities is a vast and puzzling problem, but the experience of every day proves that its solution is not too vast or too difficult, if undertaken in the strength of God and with the means He has put at our disposal. We bid a hearty God-speed to this message to the Christian churches of Glasgow and Great Britain, and hope it may not pass away unheeded.

"BLACK, BUT COMELY." By Rev. J. B. GRIBBLE. (Morgan & Scott. 1s. and 2s.) In a recent number we briefly referred to these "glimpses of aboriginal life in Australia," but we venture again to say some words in commendation of them. The picture which Mr. Gribble draws for us in this brochure, of the relations that Englishmen have borne in the past to these coloured children of the soil on the other side of the globe, is, for the most part, a forbidding one, but it is one at which we are bound to look. If, in byegone days, by our base and unrighteous treatment of these aboriginals we have brought disgrace on the name of Englishmen, not to speak of Christians, so much the more is it our duty to make haste in repairing the wrong, as far as it can now be repaired. Mr. Gribble, by his earnest and self-sacrificing efforts for the salvation of the natives, has fully earned the title to ask our sympathy and help in extending that good work. The little book contains contributions from various qualified pens, and altogether its contents are of the most absorbing interest. We are glad to notice in it warm references to the kindred work of Mr. and Mrs. Mathews, of the Maloga Mission.

OUTLINES OF PROPHETIC TRUTH. By ROBERT BROWN, author of the "Hidden Mystery," &c. &c. S. W. Partridge & Co. From several previous valuable and important works, Mr. Brown is known as an author sound in the truth, and able both to expound and defend it. His "Outlines," though a large book, have not exhausted his subject, and he therefore proposes to follow them with another volume. In the present work, the reader will find a fund of Scriptural knowledge. Mr. Brown carefully compares scripture with scripture, seeks to give the force of the original Hebrew and Greek, and an interpretation in accordance with the context. In his book, not only are the prophecies themselves, but also the prophetic aspects of the types, handled with much ability. The privileges of the believer, his standing in Christ, his call to separation from the world and entire consecration to God, and the increased importance, in these darkening, closing days of the dispensation, of being girded and ready for the Advent of the Lord, are presented with force and clearness. The spirit of the book is everywhere devout; in it the instructed Christian will find little with which he cannot agree, but much to promote his edification.

Books received:—

J. Hawkins:
Bible Lilies: Scripture Selections for Morning and Evening. 1s.

Wesleyan Methodist Book Room:
Orphans of the Forest, by Annie Courtenay. 2s. 6d.
Poet-Toilers in many Fields, by Mrs. R. A. Watson. 2s.

Elliot Stock:
Golden Links, by Charlotte B. Wheeler.

Nisbet & Co.:
Church Ordinances from the Layman's Standpoint, by Captain Seton Churchill.

F. Bordon Hunt:
Brahmoism; or, History of Reformed Hinduism, by Ram Chandra Bose.

Cassell & Co.:
Simon Peter: His Life, Times, and Friends, by Edwin Hodder.

Pamphlets received: His Name in their Foreheads: No. 22 of the "Beta Tracts" (Stevenson, Edinburgh)—Present Day Tracts: The Philosophy of Herbert Spencer Examined, by Rev. J. Iverach (Religious Tract Society)—In Memoriam. Eleanor D. Harford Battersby, with portrait, 6d. (Hodder & Stoughton).

A JEWISH RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT.

In a letter to The Times of the 23rd ultimo Bishop Titcomb gives the following interesting and reliable account of what is, perhaps, the most remarkable event which has occurred in connection with modern Jewish history. The facts are full of significance, and fraught with promise of issues that readers of the prophetic Word will not be slow to discern and duly estimate:—

"The author of this South Russian Bessarabian movement is a lawyer named Joseph Rabinowitz, a man who is respected far and near by his compatriots, and who has for a long time been endeavouring to ameliorate the condition and to raise the culture of his people. During the time of that persecution in South Russia in 1882, which The Times so forcibly brought before the British public, he was zealously advocating the repopulation of the Holy Land. In order to discover ways and means for this he set out himself for Palestine, and from the time of his return there commenced a complete revolution of his religious convictions.

"These convictions are based on a belief that the historical Jesus of Bethlehem was, after all, the true Messiah spoken of by Abraham, Moses, and David; for the crucifixion of whom the Jews have ever since been wanderers and their land made desolate. This deep impression on the mind of Rabinowitz was not produced by any influence of Christian missionaries, but entirely by the force of circumstances; and it carried along with it a very strong feeling that the only hope for his people's return to their land would be by their acknowledgment of such facts. In this way, without for a moment thinking of joining the Church by baptism, a plan of forming congregations of Jewish nationality, founded upon the historical and doctrinal works of the New Testament, slowly and gradually ripened in his soul. He returned from Palestine with this watchword—'The key to the Holy Land lies in the hands of our brother Jesus.' It may be said, indeed, that the centre of gravity in his creed lies hidden in the cry—'Jesus, our brother.' These thrilling words have proved, as a matter of fact, to possess such powers of attraction among his persecuted brethren that they have not only awakened the hearts of all in Kischinew—his own place of residence—but of many also in other parts of Bessarabia. More than 200 families have now joined in one communion under the title of 'The National Jewish New Testament Congregation:' and by some of them the last Passover was celebrated according to a liturgy expressly drawn up by Rabinowitz.

"In order to illustrate more completely the nature of this singular movement of the Jewish mind, resulting from the painful massacres of 1882, I subjoin from their 'Articles of Faith,' which Dr. Delitzch now gives to the world, a translation of the 10th Article. It is worded as follows:—

"According to the decree of the inscrutable wisdom of God, our fathers were filled with hardness of heart, and the Lord punished them with the spirit of deep sleep, so that they opposed Jesus Christ and sinned against Him until the present day. But by their unbelief they led other nations to greater zeal, and they thus contributed to the propitiation of mankind, who have believed in Jesus Christ, the Son of David, our King, when they heard the good tidings through his peace-promising messengers (Isaiah lii. 7), who had been disgracefully expelled from communion with Israel. In consequence, however, of this our sin against the Christ of God, the world has grown rich by its faith in Christ; and the nations in fulness have entered the Kingdom of God. Now, too, the time of our fulness has also come. And we, the seed of Abraham, are to be blessed by our faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; and the God of our forefathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, will take pity upon us, and replant the branches which have been torn out into our own Holy Root—Jesus. And thus all Israel shall share the eternal salvation; and Jerusalem, our Holy City, shall be rebuilt, and the Throne of David be re-established for ever and evermore."

Letters to the Editor.

HOSPITAL EXPERIMENTS UPON THE POOR.

Dear Sir,—I regret to see in your issue for August 28 an article under the above heading from the pen of Mr. Alfred S. Dyer, which is calculated to do an immense amount of harm to the cause of hospital charities, coming, as it does now, on the eve of Hospital Saturday.

As far as my own personal experience in one of the large London hospitals goes, I can honestly state that never have I seen anything to compare with the practices spoken of by your correspondent. On the contrary, the physicians and surgeons are, on all occasions, most particular to take every care of the feelings of sensitive women; and it is only in the case of our poor fallen sisters, whose sense of shame must, in virtue of their mode of life, long ago have fallen to zero, that that care is at all relaxed, and then only to a slight, but necessary, degree.

I know, moreover, from personal experience (I speak now only of that hospital to which I belong), that several of these "teachers and guides of youth," whom your correspondent so vehemently maligns, are earnest Christian men, truly serving God in that state of life in which it has pleased Him to place them, and anxious that the strange sights and scenes, that affect more especially the freshmen, should not have the effect of leading them from the paths of virtue and holiness, but rather, by showing them the wonderful works of God, as evidenced by the human frame, in health and in disease, should have the effect of drawing them nearer to that one true God, in Whom alone we live and move and have our being.

A Medical Student.

The Secretary of the Chelsea Hospital for Women writes to us to say that that institution, at any rate, must be exempted from Mr. Dyer's criticisms, as they do not admit students, and have no lectures at bedsides.

SALVATION ARMY TEACHING.

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. Samuel McComb's questions which appeared in your last issue I desire to say:—

(1) The "flesh" is used in two senses in the Scriptures. In a bad sense when, by a common form of speech, it stands for the sin which dwells in it. In a good sense when it itself is intended to be representative of good, as Ezek. xxxvi. 26., John i. 14, Acts ii. 30, 2 Cor. iii. 3, Eph. v. 30, Phil. i. 22, 24, 1 Peter iv. 2, Jude 8. The same holds true of the term "body." St. Paul ceased to be troubled by the flesh in the first sense, when Gal. v. 24 was fulfilled, in the emphatic sense of the text, in his experience. Until that time, he and others are guilty of the things mentioned in Gal. v. 19—21, at least in their inner mental character, which our Saviour declares to be as sinful as the outward acts.

(2) The body (in a bad sense) is used for the flesh (in a bad sense), Rom. viii. 13. Compare Col. ii. 11, and so also "the old man." Therefore, the commands in the present and aorist tense (Rom. viii. 13; Eph. iv. 22; 2 Cor. vii. 1, &c.) relate to the flesh in a bad sense. It is nowhere said that the flesh was crucified with Christ, excepting in the sense of the "old man" or "body."

(3) The priesthood of Christ is for our daily cleansing, in the sense of keeping his people clean according to the perfection of the new covenant. The believer, therefore, requires not less, but more of his priestly functions. It requires grace to sustain a given state, as to give it at the first. We must not make Christ, in his priesthood, a minister of sin, or build again on such a foundation what He came to destroy.

(4) It refers to both. The blood is the life, and the Life of Christ given in his shed Blood not only meets our guilt, but purchased for us that Spirit of Life by which we are cleansed and renewed.

(5) Believers should ask forgiveness for their trespasses when they commit any. There are about sixteen general prayers in the New Testament, and it is not remarkable that one, and one only, which was given before Pentecost, should contain one petition in regard to trespasses.

(6) Yes; the spiritual significance lies in the perfection of that great Sacrifice, which takes them all away, and in making us the pure to whom all things are pure.

(7) In a general sense salvation is "a unity;" but there is also a sense in which the man who has not yet cleansed himself from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit is not fully saved.

(8) It must ever be possible for a free agent, under a moral Government, to do or become anything in the way of righteousness or sin.—Faithfully yours, William Woods Smyth.

Maidstone, Aug. 29.

VOYAGING TO THE ANTIPODES.

Dear Sir,—We are nearing Naples. W have had a splendid trip thus far. The sea has been as calm as a lake all the way, even through the noted Bay of Biscay; so there has been but little sickness, and all have enjoyed it immensely. I am glad to tell you there is no gambling at present that I have seen, and very little drinking.

One of the Maori Chiefs, who are returning to New Zealand, often comes and sits with my little family group. He is a very pleasant fellow, can speak a few words in English, and it is not at all difficult to make him understand. He told my eldest daughter (in answer to a question she put to him) that he knew Jesus loved him. Pointing upward, he said, "Good, good." He said to me, "Spurgeon good, blessed man." He is going to bring the King to have a talk with me. Pray that the Lord may give me a word that may reach his heart. The Maoris are very affable, shaking hands with many of the passengers, and sometimes singing to them. I was specially glad to see them wearing the little "bit of blue" on board; also attending the service on Sunday in the saloon.

I might say here, we had a splendid address, short, sharp, and to the point, from Heb. xiii. 14, by Rev. James Murdoch. He spoke in the power of the Spirit. I was filled with joy. Another service was held among the steerage passengers in the evening, a large number gathering round and listening most attentively. Never did I hear the "old, old story" sung more sweetly. There are many of the Lord's people on board, so we are often singing the Gospel. The Christian Choir hymns are the favourites.—Yours in the Gospel,

Steamship "Potosi." C. Carter.

SCHOOL FOR MODELS, ROME.

Two years ago I wrote about the Night School for Models in Rome; a friend who had heard about them writes: "I am very glad your School for Models has been persevered in, and placed on a larger footing; growing as this work does out of your Art College, it may be the beginning of the expiation which Art owes to generations of human beings who have lent their material gifts to the painter and the sculptor, and for whose souls no man has cared."

It may interest your readers to know how this school began. I took one of the models up to the top of the house to see the splendid view from thence of Rome and the Campagna. He exclaimed: "This is Paradise." When I said, "Paradise will be much more beautiful than this," he answered: "That's no matter to me. I shall never see Paradise. The priests tell me I must do so many good works; those good works I cannot do. There is nothing for me but l'Inferno (hell-fire), adding, with a shudder, "Ho tanto pauva dell'Inferno." "But," I said, "it is written, 'God so loved the world,' &c. &c." He started at the words, and with tears streaming down his cheeks, asked: "Could that be true? How did I know it to be true?" When I told him they were Christ's own words, he would not rest till I had shown him a Bible, and read them to him over and over again till he knew them by heart. So began the Model School. He was the first pupil.

M. A. Mayor.

8, Gayton-crescent, Hampstead, N.W.

A DAY BY THE SEA.

ONLY a day's excursion,
A break in the constant whirl:
A peep at the tossing ocean,
A walk where the white waves curl.
Long was the weary journey
Reaching the looked-for goal—
A little walk, and they gather
Where the boundless waters roll.
And I thought as I saw them passing,
With trumpet and beating drum,
I thought of the last excursion
When we shall be gathered home.

To-day we are on the journey,
The weariness now is ours;
But we haste to the boundless ocean,
And the shores of the fadeless flowers.
To-day we can only wonder,
And dream what that scene will be;
For the visitors know but little,
Of the shores that they hope to see.
Oh, I watched as the vision opened,
The beauties their ears had heard,
I watched as their eyes beheld them,
And the longing heart was stirred.

What will it be to gather,
When the journey of life is o'er,
Far, far from life's crowded city,
On the beautiful golden shore?
To walk through the sinless city,
To the sands of the jasper sea,
And view what we only hear of—
Oh, what will the rapture be?
To wander in fadeless gardens,
And bathe in the crystal waves
Of the love that is pure and boundless,
A love that for ever saves.

Only a day's excursion!
I saw them at eve return:
And their steps were tired and weary;
But I seemed in their path to learn,
That the pleasures will be for ever,
Where trials and toils are o'er.
We go to abide, not visit
The beautiful, peaceful shore,
Never again returning:
Yet we will remember long,
The day of our first glad entrance,
The first glad wondering song.

William Luff.

A RECONSTRUCTED LIFE.

THE Montreal Young Men's Christian Association received a letter from a young man in New York City who had been benefited in their meetings, of which the following are extracts:—

"I am well and doing well. By the grace of God I grow stronger every day, and the stronger I grow the more I recognise my own weakness. It is wonderful as I look back a year and think how I was rapidly drinking myself out of the hospital, the getting into which at the time seemed to me such a God-send, to realise that, after all, the prayers that were offered for me have been answered, and I am free from that curse of drink. You know, none better, to what a state of degradation and shame my sin had brought me. And even when I gave up the drink I was nigh being wrecked on the rock of Self. I seemed to imagine that, being free from drink, I was strong, and could govern myself—'run' myself, to use an expressive phrase. But I saw my error, and was able to ask God to take all of self out of me; to pray from my heart 'Thy will be done' in me. And since then I have been happy as the day is long.

"I went out from the 'Home' without money and knowing no one in the city. But I remembered what Paul said, 'My God shall supply all your needs according to his riches in glory,' and I believed He would. He did so wonderfully. I got temporary employment for a time, and for some time was unemployed. But then came the wonderful fulfilment of that verse. I had sent some sketches to Harper Brothers, but had heard nothing of them, and concluded they had been declined. One day I had not a cent, and did not know where I was going to get my meals. I was walking down town to see if I could get any work, and thought I would call at my old lodgings to see if by any chance there might be a letter for me. There was one from Harper Brothers, accepting one of my sketches, and enclosing me money for it. So God supplied my needs. Then I got employment at a small salary till an opportunity presented itself of my going into business on my own account. My father, who had heard from other sources that I was acting up to my profession, advanced me money, and now, as you will see by the heading of this, I am in a good business with every prospect of doing well.

"Surely goodness and mercy have followed me. Only to think that nine months ago I was a miserable, selfish, hopeless drunkard, and now I am respectable and respected, sober and happy. But this is not all. Freed from my own chains, I wanted to tell others who were in the circumstances in which I had been situated, of God's love and mercy, and of a Saviour who had died for them. For some time past I have been doing so in one place or another, till at last I was asked to take general charge of Mission services and midnight meetings held every night in Twenty-seventh-street. Here nightly I am able to talk personally with some of the worst characters that prowl around New York, thieves, gamblers, loafers, and drunkards. A grand work is being carried on there, and many have been saved."—Y.M.C.A. Watchman.

DR. PENTECOST'S WORK IN LONDON.

By ROBERT ANDERSON, LL.D.

THE American evangelists carried with them from England the good wishes of thousands on their return to America at the close of their London "Mission." On coming back to England Mr. Moody found himself among friends innumerable. Dr. Pentecost, on the other hand, in his recent visit to London, came among strangers. A great many people, of course, had bought his books; but, speaking generally, his name even was but little known, and of those who knew his fame as a preacher not a few were prejudiced against him.

It may be doubted whether ours is a day of great men; but certainly it is not noted for great preachers. It is true we have attained a high standard of mediocrity, thanks to the extraordinary advantages within the reach of all. But mediocrity, however high, is far removed from genius, though it may be mistaken for it in a hurried and shallow age. Genius is proverbially eccentric, and therefore eccentricities are often accepted as proof of genius. Nowhere is this more true than in the pulpit. Just as the most commonplace of men may make himself notorious by acts of crime or immorality, so a very ordinary sort of preacher may attain what he may imagine to be fame, by glaring peculiarities of style or heresies in doctrine. The good husband and good citizen is not so interesting a character as the man who lives by swindling, and ends by running off with his neighbour's wife. He is a far worthier person, doubtless, and enjoys the esteem of all who know him; but the newspapers would not write about him, nor would his photograph sell. Very few people in the world would care to know how Tom Brown came to Christ; but the story of Lucy Brown's going to the devil would be called for at all libraries. Human nature takes a greedy, morbid interest in what is evil. This is a proof of human depravity. But the preference for error over truth marks a degradation deeper still. In the one case strong passions are at work to warp the judgment; in the other the choice is deliberate and free.

Certain it is that extravagance and error are popular in the pulpit, and, rightly or wrongly, the impression prevails in England that the American pulpit has, in a special degree, pandered to the evil. But popularity of this kind, while it will draw crowds at morning service on Sunday, will go for nothing in Mission work throughout the week. Decent folk must attend morning service; and there are thousands everywhere who seek for preaching which will interest them, without touching their conscience or making them uncomfortable in a life of indulgence and worldliness. But the success of Mission work largely depends on the earnest co-operation of those who are Christians in the deeper and truer sense, and who, knowing the reality of spiritual conversion, value only the preaching which leads to conversion. At first, therefore, Dr. Pentecost was left to work alone; but when it became known that he was no sensationalist or apostle of higher criticism, but a man who believed in God and preached his truth faithfully and fully, the Christians gathered around him, his meetings became crowded, and every week added to the number of his warm and enthusiastic friends. There are hundreds in London to-day to testify to the blessings they have received through his ministry, and to thank God for his visit to this country. . . . .

Dr. Pentecost has a work to do in London, and it is earnestly hoped that he will soon return to take it up. Not that we wish to rob Brooklyn of him. On the contrary, now that he has won the confidence of English Christians, his being an American gives him a vantage ground which he would lose were he connected with pastoral work in England. There are many, no doubt, so blind and stupid in their bigotry, that they will hear no man who is not a priest of their own communion. It would take a surgical operation to cure such people of their folly; and we can't deal with surgical cases. There are prejudices of another kind, however, which ought to be considered. One of the happiest features of Dr. Pentecost's work in London was the cordial support he received from some of the leading clergymen and ministers. Without in the least asserting that they would refuse to co-operate with him in evangelistic work were he himself the pastor of a chapel at their doors, it is obvious that such a circumstance would create difficulties of a kind which ought by all means to be avoided. The welcome accorded to him is as an evangelist, not as a pastor; and that welcome is all the more hearty because he is a stranger, and, above all, an American.

Our appeal, then, is only for a share in his ministry. It is not much to ask of his friends and flock in Brooklyn to spare him for a London season, to take up and carry on the good work he has begun. An interchange of ministers between England and America is greatly to be desired. Everything that draws together the Christians on both sides of the Atlantic will not only strengthen the cause of evangelical truth, but, by strengthening the truest and most enduring bond of union between the two countries, will prove a blessing to both and a benefit to the world.—New York Independent.

FAITH HEALING.

Dear Sir,—The objection of an esteemed correspondent has led me to reconsider the suggestion, in my article of last week, that the illness of Trophimus, mentioned in 2 Tim. iv., occurred during the journey of Acts xx.-xxi. Trophimus was certainly Paul's companion on this journey, which brought the travellers through Miletus, but the date of the Second Epistle to Timothy is too late to refer, without explanation, to an incident of that journey, even with the use of the aorist (or indefinite past), and even if we suppose the context in 2 Tim. to refer to the Apostle's first imprisonment, and the reasons why friends were not then with him who would otherwise have been so.

I therefore withdraw the suggestion as one that cannot be sustained.—Yours faithfully,

Uckfield, Aug. 30. J. F. B. Tinling.

MR. C. H. SPURGEON.—Many will have heard with sincere regret that Mr. Spurgeon is again laid up by an attack of his old complaint. His son Thomas has occupied the Tabernacle pulpit on the last two Sundays.

"Moon's" Society for Embossing the Scriptures and other Books for the Blind.

Dr. Moon's simplified type, suitable for all ages and capacities of the blind, is of universal application. It has been adopted by him to 250 languages and dialects. More than 150,000 volumes of the Word of God, and other books, have been supplied to the blind of numerous countries.

Subscriptions and donations are urgently needed to carry on this daily increasing work, and will be gratefully received by Dr. W. MOON, 104, Queen's-road, Brighton (Acting Trustee); also by the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND,

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President, The Rt. Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

OFFICES:
27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin
and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAS. KEARNEY WHITE, or by the Proprietors of this paper.

NOTE.—Subscriptions or Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

OUR LITTLE LADS.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM and SWANLEY.

FUNDS are still URGENTLY NEEDED to feed, clothe, and educate 320 homeless little ones in the Cottage Homes at Farningham, and to complete the new Homes for Orphans at Swanley.

Will each reader of this do something?

Bankers.
Messrs. SMITH, PAYNE, & SMITHS, 1, Lombard Street, E.C.
Offices: Ludgate Circus. A. O. CHARLES.

"THE BLUE."

Twelve Blue Ribbon Text Cards, in Blue and Gold, and Blue and Silver, very chaste and pretty. Post free, Sixpence.

JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

BIBLE LIGHT

For Truth Seekers & Christian Workers.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."—Ps. cxix. 105.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light."—Ps. cxix. 130.

THE OBJECT of "BIBLE LIGHT" is to interest its readers in the written Word, and to lead them through the latter to the Living Word, for the salvation of the unsaved, and the strengthening of the believer's faith. Monthly, One Penny. Strongly recommended by the Press. The Vol. for 1883, price 1s. 6d.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & CO., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.
And of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

JUST PUBLISHED.
Tinted Paper, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 2s.

"BLACK, BUT COMELY;"

OR,

Glimpses of Aboriginal Life in Australia.

BY THE REV. J. B. GRIBBLE
(Founder of the Warangesda Mission).

All profits to be devoted to the Warangesda Training College.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Four hundred and twenty-ninth Edition, 1s. 6d.

BUTTER'S SPELLING.

BUTTER'S READING & SPELLING IN EASY GRADATIONS, on an entirely Original Plan, making Words of two Syllables as easy as those of one. 78th Edition. 1s. 6d.

BUTTER'S GRADUAL PRIMER. With Engravings, 6d.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL & Co. And all Booksellers.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

By HECTOR BETTEX. Translated by JOHN CHURCHILL

I. The Kingdom will be established by the Glorious and Personal Coming of the Lord.
II. The Kingdom in the Present Dispensation as seen in the Seven Parables of Matthew xiii.
III. The Coming of the Lord, first to receive His Church, then to establish His Kingdom.
IV. Antichrist and his Destruction by the Lord, when He comes to establish His Kingdom.

London: JAMES E. HAWKINS, 36 Baker-street.

Immanuel Church,

WEST BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

Minister: Rev. AUBREY CHARLES PRICE, B.A.

£1,000 REQUIRED to complete the Purchase of the Freehold of the Site for the Permanent Church on September 29 in the present year. Contributions will be thankfully received and all information afforded by W. PARRY JENNINGS, Esq., 6, Kingsdown-villas, Wandsworth-common, Surrey; or W. B. CAULFIELD, Esq., 73, Ferndale-road, Clapham, S.W.

Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN & Co., Lombard-street, E.C.

WORKS BY D. L. MOODY.

"TO THE WORK! TO THE WORK!"

Exhortations to Christians. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (Just Published.)

"This volume contains various addresses which it has been my happy lot to deliver to Christian workers throughout London during the Mission of 1883-4."

EXTRACT FROM PREFATORY NOTE.

PREVAILING PRAYER. A Series of Addresses on Prayer. In tinted covers, 1s. limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (Just Published.)

"This book shows partly in what Mr. Moody's power lies—his clearness, earnestness, simplicity, and faith. Would that we had a thousand such preachers! Surely they would move the world!"—Watchman.

SOVEREIGN GRACE: Its Source, its Nature, and its Effects. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (6th Thousand.)

"Will be welcome to multitudes. Has the directness, the illustrative power, the righteousness, the earnestness, and the nervous English, that have made Mr. Moody so effective a preacher of the Gospel of the Grace of God.—Christian Treasury.

ADDRESSES BY D. L. MOODY. Delivered in Great Britain in 1874-75. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (110th Thousand.)

"Will be read by thousands with the memorable interest attaching to the words which God used in first awakening them to spiritual life."—Children's Record.

THE WAY TO GOD. A Series of Addresses on the Way of Salvation. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (43rd Thousand.)

"Full of the point and pathos, the fire and force, of this great evangelist.—The Outlook.

POWER FROM ON HIGH: or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (25th Thousand.)

"This series of earnest and solemn addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

THE FAITHFUL SAYING. A Series of Addresses. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (14th Thousand.)

"Full of the Gospel; well illustrated; thoroughly alive."—Sword and Trowel.

HEAVEN: Its Hope, Its Inhabitants, Its Riches, Its Rewards. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (42nd Thousand.)

"Simple, direct, anecdotal, and earnest."—Freeman.

DANIEL THE PROPHET. An Amplification and Extension of Mr. Moody's various Lectures on the Life of Daniel. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth, 1s. (8th Thousand.)

"A small book; but big as regards the truth it contains. Every worker in the Lord's vineyard would be helped by reading it."—Railway Signal.

THE GREAT SALVATION. SIXTEEN ADDRESSES. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Come thou into the Ark.
Confessing Christ.
"Seek ye the Lord."
Grace.
Law and Grace.
"What must I do to be saved?"
The Way of Life.
Trust.
The Love of God.
Repentance.
Seeking and Finding.
The Return of Christ.
Substitution.
The Prey taken from the Mighty.
"One Thing."
The Prodigal Son.

WONDROUS LOVE. FIFTEEN ADDRESSES. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, 2s.; cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Christ's Compassion.
The New Birth.
The Blood.
Heaven.
"Son, Remember!"
Christ All in All.
Naaman the Syrian.
One Word—"Gospel."
The Way of Salvation.
The "I wills" of Christ.
Christ's Commission.
Faith.
The Dying Thief.

STAND UP FOR JESUS! FIVE ADDRESSES TO CHRISTIAN WORKERS. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth limp, 8d.; cloth boards, 1s.

The Prophet Daniel.
Personal Effort for Christ.
On Prayer.
Be Strong!
How to Study the Bible.

SALVATION FOR ALL. SIX ADDRESSES. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth limp, 8d.; cloth boards, 1s.

Salvation for all.
The Promises of Christ.
"What think ye of Christ?"
The Book of Memory.
"Be sure your sin will find you out."
Seeking and Saving.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST. Limp cloth, 6d. (33rd Thousand.)

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per dozen.

THE FULL ASSURANCE OF FAITH: Some Thoughts on Christian Confidence. Limp cloth, 6d. (5th Thousand.)

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per dozen.

"A wise little book by Mr. Moody that believers troubled with doubts and fears would do well to read and act upon."—Christian Treasury.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

DISTRESSED AND PERSECUTED JEWS.

OUR agent in Jerusalem acknowledges with gratitude the parcel of clothing sent for distribution. In it, among other things, were woollen socks, knitted in London by a few poor foreign Jewesses, whom we have since 1882 employed in this way to save them from starving. Our agent states that there has been very interesting work in relieving some of the Jewish emigrants from Arabia to Jerusalem, who call themselves "Gadites." They were visited in their own homes, and were found to be in great destitution and miserably clad. They had arrived about two years before in a condition of extreme poverty, and for lack of work and of means had sunk into a most distressed state. For them and for the Jerusalem Jews generally, our agent pleads earnestly that we should give work as before. The crowds of starving people beset the doors from early morning till late at night; they have nothing to do, and are perishing. They crave employment, and we are willing to give it, if means be provided for payment of the small wages which would be such a boon to them.

A body of our Cyprus colonists have left the island. They were given means to do so by their Jewish brethren. One reason given for their leaving was that the land granted them by Government, being chiefly fit for vineyards and oliveyards, would not be made productive for several years, and that during those years they must be dependent upon Christians whose object it was to keep them dependent that they might be obliged to give up Judaism and become Christians. An appeal was printed by Jews in London for aid to preserve the bodies and souls of their brethren, by enabling them to leave the Colony. So little are the motives of Christian efforts on behalf of Jews understood by many of the Jewish people.

The newspapers of the last fortnight contain heartrending accounts of the renewed persecution of the Jews in Russia. The old charge of stealing Christian children for their blood still does duty in most cases. In Kutais a child was lost, but was happily found by the police just in time to stop the mob who were rushing on the Jewish quarter with the cry, "Down with the bloodsuckers."

In Bialystock about the same time a Christian girl in service of a Jewish master disappeared. People came forward to testify that she had been killed by her master, they being eye-witnesses. The mob attacked the house of the master, but the police rescued the family and got them away to prison, their house being plundered, and what could not be removed destroyed. Before the evil spread further the girl was found hidden in a neighbouring village. She declared on oath that two neighbours had carried her off and hidden her, and these neighbours turned out to be the identical persons who had accused the girl's master of her murder. Near Nigni Novgorod there has been a terrible outbreak, several Jews being beaten to death; the cause was an accusation brought against a poor Jewess that she was going to murder a Christian child, because she had picked the little creature out of a ditch, saved it from drowning, and taken it home to dry its clothes!

But I forbear to add more instances, which are wearisome in their horrible sameness. Incendiarism has increased of late in Jewish towns and villages in Russia; sometimes the criminals are caught at their wicked work, for in some towns the Jews have formed patrols who go round the streets day and night. There is panic among the Jews, and in South Russia there are signs of another serious outbreak being at hand.

In Roumania the Government are, by one cruel measure after another, preventing the Jews from earning their bread. First, their trade of hawking was stopped, then all sojourn or work in rural districts, next the exercise of trades in the towns. Extermination or expulsion is the practical object of these measures. All remonstrance has failed. Need I add more to show that there is more need than ever for relief of persecuted Jews, in token of Christian sympathy.

E. A. FINN.

The Elms, Brook-green, W.

[630]

Forthcoming Meetings.

COMING CONFERENCES.

PERTH, City Hall.—September 9—11. Subject: "Three Privileges of Believers, with Corresponding Duties (Heb. x. 19—25). Afternoon, free conversation; evening, evangelistic addresses, &c. Information as to lodgings, &c., from Mr. Thomas Russell, 61, So Methven-street, Perth. Communications as to ladies' meetings to be sent to Mrs. Bannerman, St. Leonard's F. C. Manse, Perth.

DUNDEE.—September 16—18. Speakers: Mr. William Ferguson, Kinmundy, Major Mossman, Colonel Oldham, Dr. Elder Cumming, Dr. Laidlaw, Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, and others.

SALISBURY, Maundrel Hall, September 23—25.—Morning subjects: "The Believer Called to—(a) Sonship, its Privilege; (b) Saintship, its Separation; (c) Stewardship, its Responsibility." Evening subjects: (a) "Peace; (b) Power; (c) Perfection, at Christ's appearing."

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE, Queen's Rooms, Glasgow.—September 23 to 25, daily at 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. Revs. Hubert Brooke, Charles A. Fox, Charles Graham, D. B. Hankin, William Haslam, E. H. Hopkins, E. W. Moore, J. Hudson Taylor, Mr. Robert Wilson, and others are expected to take part.

CHURCH CONGRESS, Carlisle.—September 30 to October 3.

CLIFTON, Victoria Rooms.—October 7—9. Subjects: "Prophetical Signs of the Last Days;" "The Attitude of the Church with Reference to Them;" "The Glorious Hope of the Church." Inquiries of Rev. J. Ormiston, 14, Arlington-villas, Clifton, Bristol.

EVANGELISTIC.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street Strand, W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and Evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-square, S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec. Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHILDREN'S EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—Messrs. T. Eyres and Jeynes conduct Missions for children in any chapel, hall, or school of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Secretary, 253, Southampton-street, Camberwell, S.E.

MR. HENRY THORNE.—September 6 to 15, Carlisle; 20 to 29, Sheffield.

REV. W. HASLAM.—Wemyss Bay, N.B., September 1; Belfast, 10th; Glasgow, 23rd; Plymouth, October 11; Ryde (I. of W.), 25th.

MR J. M. SCROGGIE.—September, Belfast; October, Bristol; November 2, Elgin, N.B.; November 15, Inverness; December, Paisley.

STEPNEY MEETING HOUSE.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney preaches every Sunday at 3 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, September 7, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. John Creer; and 7 p.m., Mr. Charles Inglis.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Sunday, September 7, Rev. Dr. Thain Davidson, 3.30 p.m.; Mr. Elvin and Miss Havill (soloist), at 7 p.m.

OPEN-AIR MISSION (West London Auxiliary).—United meetings in Regent's Park (in the Broad Walk near the fountain) Sunday, August 31, from 3 to 7 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REST, Burlington-place, Eastbourne.—Tuesday, September 9, at 7.30 p.m., consecration meeting, subject: "How to walk in the power of the Spirit," by Miss Mason.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. F. C. Bland on Sunday, September 7, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. No meeting on Wednesday, September 3, at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, as it is under repairs.

CONFERENCE HALL, ECCLESTON-STREET, S.W. (near Victoria Station).—Evangelistic meetings, by Captain Baring and others. Sundays at 3.45 and 7 p.m.; Thursdays at 8 p.m. Meetings of Christians for prayer and instruction, Tuesdays at 11.30 a.m.; Fridays at 8 p.m.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—Bignold Hall, Forest-gate; Hammersmith services temporarily transferred to Blythe-lane, as under; Kilburn Hall (not Town Hall), Kilburn-gate; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill;—all, Sunday, 7 p.m. Nightly services (except Saturday) at 8 in the Tent, Blythe-road, West Kensington; and Tuesdays and Thursdays, at 8, in the Tent on the ground connected with Dalston Hall, opposite Dalston Junction.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.—Mr. J. Spiers and Mr. Westall now at Langland Bay, near Swansea; Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Scarborough; Messrs. W. Ranger, B.A., J. B. Wane, B.A., and others, Eastbourne, till September 4; Messrs. J. C. Farthing and A. T. Polhill Turner, B.A., Bournemouth; Mr. H. G. Harris, B.A., Weston-super-Mare; Mr. E. R. Knapp, Southsea; Messrs. E. T. M. Dennes and E. Salisbury now at Weymouth; Captain Dru Drury, Perranporth; Mr. L. H. Caley, Sandown: Mr. A. J. Shepherd, Littlehampton; Mr. H. M. Trickett, Walton-on-the-Naze, from August 16: Mr. W. R. Moore now at Ilfracombe; Messrs. Hankinson and Seyler, Penzance, August 29 to September 8; Mr. G. Soltau, Lowestoft: Mr. G. Bennett, Whitby, from August 23; Mr. Geo. Banaster and Mr. Kidd in the yacht "Kingfisher," Tenby; Mr. W. F. Seagrove, St. Leonard's-hill, September 13.

Y.M.C. ASSOCIATIONS.

61, GRACECHURCH-STREET, E.C.—Daily prayer meeting 1.15 to 2 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Bible-readings in Isaiah each Tuesday, 6.15 p.m.

EXETER HALL.—Gospel meeting every night at 8 (Saturday excepted). Mid-day prayer-meeting 1 to 2 (Saturday excepted). Bible-reading, Saturday, at 8, by Colonel Puget. Gospel Male Choir practises every Friday, at 7.30. Musical Christian men cordially invited.

186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Central Noon Prayer Meeting, daily, 12 to 1 o'clock. Sunday. Bible-class, 3.15 p.m.; evangelistic meeting, 7 p.m. Monday, strangers' reception, 7.30 p.m. Tuesday, teachers' preparatory Bible-classes, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Thursday, foreign Mission prayer-meeting, 7 p.m.; devotional meeting and address, 8 p.m. Friday, Gospel meeting, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Saturday, Bible-class, 7.30 p.m.; special workers conference for winter's work, 4 p.m.

17, CAMDEN-ROAD, N.W.—Mr. Charles Inglis will give Bible lectures every Sunday afternoon in September, at 3.15 p.m.

MISCELLANEOUS.

UPPER NORWOOD, Stafford House, Tudor-road.—Drawing-room meeting, at 3 p.m., every Thursday. A young women's meeting on the same day at 8 p.m.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Friday, September 5. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. An address by Mr. John E. Jack; subject, 2 Cor. viii. 9.

3, HIGHBURY-PLACE, N.—Meetings every Tuesday, 6 p.m., at Rev. W. E. Boardman's, from September 2. No afternoon meetings. Mrs. Boardman's Bible-class every Wednesday, 11 a.m.

BETHSHAN, Drayton-park, Highbury, N.—Meetings are now held as usual. Sundays, Bible reading, 3 o'clock; evening, 6.30. Wednesdays, holiness and faith-healing, 3 o'clock. Fridays, holiness meeting, 7 o'clock.

Notices.

E.—You have evidently misunderstood the remark by Rev. E. W. Moore. He did not mean that Christ was not now "incarnate," but that He is, so to speak, incarnated again in those who believe in Him, and live out his divine life.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—J.D.B. R.B. M.C. D.G.M. F.P. W.C.A. A.E.W. J.B. G.H.B. J.S. H.W. J.H. A.L.S. C.B. R.W. M.J.W. J.T.I. S.R. W.C.B. H.L.D. T.F. R.H. T.S. J.E.L. H.N.B. D.A.M. R.A.H. Pola. K.E. E.S. W.C. L.B. A.R.D. C.G. G.H.D. E.R. W.T. T.R. A.McP. W.G. A.L.S. J.G. E. E.J.A. I.L. F.K. K.B.S. A.M.C. M.H.B. F.W.C. W.W.S. E.N.T. J.R. R.A. H.W.W. P. G.N.P. J.H.M. E.A.F. A.G.M. E.B. J.O. J.B. E.E.B. F.J.T. R.S. B.H. A.S.D.C. S.M. C.I. R.W.G. H.P. S.C. C.C. A.T. P.W. F.W. G.G.A. A.G.B. J.F.B.T. J.W. W.M.D.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—Miss Doubell, Clifton House, Fairfield-road, Burton, Derbyshire; Mr. W. G. Aubert, 38, St. Thomas's-road, near Edinboro' Castle, Stepney, E.; T. Franklin, 11, Bell View-terrace, Hendon, N.W.; T. James, Steventon, Berks; E. L. Ceresford, The Firs, Teston, Maidstone, Kent; W. Doggett, Cherryhinton, Cambridge; Miss Annie Whiteside, 38, Cornbrook-street, Stretford-road, Manchester; W. Parr, 31, Lee-street, Plumstead-common; T. De La Mare, Post-office, Guernsey; D. Huggins, Launceston, Cornwall; Mrs. Stephens, Cliffe Cottage, Newquay, Cornwall; T. W. Rowe, High-street, Knaresbro'; C. Whimhurst, Tidenham, near Chepstow; J. P. Squire, 1, Adelaide-terrace, New Benwell, Newcastle-on-Tyne; F. Squibb, 66, Ratcliff-highway, E.; A. Bendall, care of Mrs. Sears, Boughton-green, Maidstone, Kent.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most important that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away. All applicants must send the name of one or more responsible referees.]

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, August 30, 1884.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps. Cheques to be drawn in favour of Morgan and Scott, and crossed City Bank; P.O.O.'s payable to Morgan and Scott, at G.P.O.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the Missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Saturday Morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

	£	s.	d.
Day in the Country Fund—E. N. S. 5s.; L. G. S. 10s.; Thankoffering, £1; R. T. 10s.; M. E. B. 2s. 6d.; E. G. W. 5s.; H. F. B. £1; F. J. W. 15s.; E. M. 2s.; H. A. V. 5s.; A. C. S. 10s.; P. S. 5s. ..	5	9	6
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—G. H. R. £1; A. D. P. G. £5; Louisa P. £3; Backhill Sunday-school, £1; E. P. 2s. 6d.; (Girls' Home, Ilford) Alice, £3.. ..	13	2	6
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—G. H. R. £1; Louisa P. £2; E. P. 2s. 6d.	3	2	6
Work among Navvies, Hull—Thankoffering, £1; H. T. 10s.	1	10	0
Mr. Faithfull's Work, Marseilles—Thankoffering, £1; (Sufferers from Cholera) Mr. and Mrs. A. T. D. N. £2	3	0	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—Amy, 5s.; F. J. W. 10s.; C. Y. 10s.	1	5	0
Clergy Rest House, Bournemouth—M. A. and E. T. £1; C. Y. 10s.	1	10	0
Deacon Abraham's Work, Oromiah—Mrs. G.	0	5	0
Friendless and Fallen—S. W.	5	0	0
Miss Mason's House of Rest, Eastbourne—Mr. and Mrs. A. T. D. N.	2	0	0
Stockwell Orphanage—Mr. and Mrs. A. T. D. N. ..	2	0	0
Rescue Work, Whitechapel (Mrs. Bramwell Booth)—W. W. £1; Wellwisher, 3s.; T. N. J. 10s..	1	13	0
Mr. Pascoe's Work in Mexico—H. H.	5	0	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—L.	1	0	0
Miss Whately's Schools, Cairo—B. M. W.	1	0	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—E. H. and M. H. £2; F. J. W. £1 5s.	3	5	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission—E. H. and M. H..	2	0	0
Mrs. Birt's Sheltering Home—E. H.	1	0	0
Fresh Air Mission—E. P.	0	5	0
Distressed Jews in Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—E. M. W. S. M.	0	5	0
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street—X. P.	10	0	0
Free Distribution of the Scriptures—T. N. J.	0	10	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—T. N. J.	0	0	6
London City Mission—M. K.	5	0	0
Jewish Refugees Aid Society—C. Y.	0	10	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—H. W. T. £1; S. W. £2 ..	3	0	0
Rescue Society—S. W.	1	0	0
Mrs. Wilkes' Rescue Work, Poplar—S. W....	2	0	0
Evangelisation Society—X. P.	10	0	0
	£83	13	0

[ADVERTISEMENTS]

The Clergy Rest House—From M. B. B. 10s.

Home for Blind Children, Hackney (Miss Rye)—£100 from Mr. W. B.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes for Destitute Children—E. P. £5 E. V. £1; F. W. R. N. 10s.

Continued from page 3.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Clairville, Ogwine-road.—Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. JACKSON. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

BOURNEMOUTH, Ivors, Old Christchurch-road, Boarding House — Cheerful central position, near Holy Trinity Church. Very comfortable house. Permanency or otherwise. Terms moderate.

PARIS EN FAMILLE. — Board and Residence with Mme. DE PRADEL, sister of the late Lieut Bellot, who lost his life in the Expedition of 1853, undertaken for the discovery of Sir John Franklin, 86, Boulevard de Port Royal, near the Luxembourg-gardens, the Sorbonne, and Collége de France, where free lectures are given by the most eminent professors. A comfortable home, with good board. French always spoken. Terms moderate. Highest references from recent English boarders.

BRIGHTON, Inkermann House, Lansdowne-place.—Preparatory Boarding School for Boys, conducted by the Misses ASHBY. Very near the sea and fields. 40 or 45 guineas per annum. A visiting master.

HASTINGS, Shaftesbury Hotel.—This first-class Hotel or Boarding House, formerly a gentleman's mansion, has been re-decorated and handsomely furnished throughout, and is opened for the reception of Ladies and Gentlemen. Terms exceedingly moderate, from 6s. 6d. per day, or £2 2s. per week.
Miss ABLEWHITE, Manageress.

HASTINGS NEW HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT. — Charming residence for change and rest. An unequalled health resort. Purest air. Turkish baths, with sea-water plunge. Scientific baths of every description, with skilled attendants. One and a half hours from London. Moderate charges. Opened Wednesday, September 3. Rooms can now be secured. Early application desirable.—Apply to the SECRETARY.

SOUTH NORWOOD.—To be Let or sold at a very low price. Large detached Freehold House and Garden, 14 rooms, suitable for family, school, private orphanage, or home. Rent £60. Any philanthropic or religious institution would be treated very liberally.
S. W., 393, Strand.

CLACTON-ON-SEA, only two hours from London, and noted for its bracing air and salubrious atmosphere. To be Let, furnished, for six or eight months, a desirable Residence, facing the sea, containing eight bed-rooms and three sitting-rooms. Well furnished with the usual offices. Gas and water laid on. Rent, three guineas per week. Should be inspected at once.
OWNER, 36, Station-road, Harlesden, N.W.

EASTBOURNE. — Comfortable Apartments (vacant Sept. 6), close to Devonshire Park and sea. Drawing, dining, and airy bedrooms to Let, together or separately. Excellent references.
G. J. A., Handel House, Compton-street.

A LADY, invalid or otherwise, would be received into a private family of position in Bournemouth. The highest references. Terms liberal.
L. G., Mr. Worth, Chemist, Bournemouth.

A WIDOW LADY, residing in a pleasant part of Folkestone, wishes to receive one or two Lady Boarders. Excellent references. Terms moderate. Home comforts.
Mrs. WALLIS, Post-office, Sandgate.

FURNISHED HOUSE.—A Gentleman wishes to Let his House at Notting-hill, retaining a few rooms. Rent moderate.—By letter only, in first instance, care of Miss Greene, 25, Kensington Palace-gardens, London.

TO PARENTS and friends desirous of sending children, age 7 to 14, to the sea-side, every care is offered by a Christian Widow Lady in superior home. Bath-room. Trustworthy nurse kept. Large tennis grounds. Terms, one guinea per week. Good references.
H., Mona House, Compton-street, Eastbourne.

CHRISTIAN LADY or Gentleman can find comfortable Apartments, Furnished, in own house of a widow without family; near church and chapels. Terms moderate.—Winterbourne Cottage, Sutton-grove North, Sutton, Surrey.

A LADY LIVING alone, about four miles from Manchester, wishes to meet with a Christian Lady boarder, widow or unmarried, who would really make her house a home. Terms on application to M. MAY, Post Office, Fallowfield, Manchester.

HOUSE TO BE LET, Unfurnished, within a short distance of Mildmay Conference Hall. Ten rooms; garden with separate entrance. Rent £50. In occupation of owner, who will give immediate possession.
18, Alma-road, Canonbury, N. (near station).

WANTED by a Lady and Gentleman of quiet and regular habits, comfortably furnished Apartments in North London. Highbury preferred. Address, stating terms.
W. B., 56, South Molton-street, W.

TWO SISTERS would like to join a Christian Lady in a home on mutual terms, or might board. Seaside preferred. West of England. Moderate terms.
H., Pethybridge, Bookseller, Newton Abbot.

WANTED, for immediate occupation, within easy distance from London, a six or seven roomed cottage. Good garden. Must be near a church (Evangelical) and station. Rent not exceeding £20.—H., Clevedon House, Shooter's-hill-road, Blackheath.

EXETER.—To be Let (furnished), a genteel, semi-detached Residence, containing four reception-rooms, six bed-rooms, two kitchens, and necessary offices (stable and coach-house may be had if required). Water and gas throughout the house. The premises are very pleasantly situated, and the views open and extensive. Rent £100. Further particulars may be obtained of M. A. L., 11, The Friars, Exeter.

TO MINISTERS and Mission Superintendents.—To be Sold, immediately, an iron building, accommodating 600 persons, with fittings, fixtures, seats, and every necessary for public worship—vestries, platform, kitchen, &c. Price £175, or offer.—E. L., 6, Norfolk-street, Globe-road, Mile End, E.

SWISS COTTAGE (near).—Board and Residence required by a Lady in a private Christian family. Other boarders objected to, also very young children. References exchanged.—F. M., care of COOPER, 6, Belsize-park-terrace, Belsize-park.

BED AND SITTING ROOM combined for Young Man, or two Friends, in a Christian family. Terms moderate. Trams pass door.
130, Southgate-road, Kingsland, N.

DIPSOMANIA. — A successfully established private Home at the seaside for six, suffering from excess of morphia, chloral, absinthe, stimulants, or Nervous Debility. Christian care and influence. Judicious supervision and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS are again earnestly invited to write. Many have received blessing.
Rom. x. 10. EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W.

A FAMILY about to remove, would like to know of an Evangelical Church about 10 miles from London.
8, Macclesfield-street, City-road, E.C.

AUSTRALIA.—The Advertiser desires to meet with a young fellow-Christian Gentleman, to share cabin in voyage to Adelaide, by sailing vessel, early in October.
EDWIN ASHBY, Oakland, Redhill.

ADOPTION.—A Christian couple in good circumstances desire to adopt an orphan boy and girl, aged respectively 10 and 8 years. Healthy, amiable, and of good parentage, those without any relations and brother and sister preferred.—R. A. S., care of F. Staunton, Stationer, 28A, Villiers-street, Strand, W.C.

FURNISH on NORMAN & STACEY'S Hire-Purchase System. Deposit not necessary. True economy on sound commercial principles. Strictly private. 1, 2, or 3 years. 60 wholesale firms. Ordinary selling prices.—Offices, 11, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

MISSIONARIES AND FOREIGN RESIDENTS should call or write to BYWATER, PERRY & Co., special agents for missionaries, &c. Outfits and goods at wholesale prices. Passages engaged. Shipments effected. 2000 references.—11, Queen Victoria-street, London, and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

AMERICAN ORGAN, New.—Handsome walnut case, thirteen stops, including sub-bass, coupler, &c., knee swells, bench. Cash £13 13s.—9, The Crescent, Leighton-grove, Kentish Town, N.W.

LARGE HARMONIUM for Sale, by Cesarini. Suit a Mission-room. 5½ rows of reeds, 14 stops, walnut case. Price £20.—To be seen at 74, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

REMARKABLE CURES of Diabetes, Bright's, Dropsy, Kidney Diseases effected by Glenn and Bethesda Mineral Waters. Bronchitis, Asthma, &c., cured by Allen's Euphorbia.—Testmls. from T. Penrose, Reading.

DOUBLE DAISIES: white, red, mottled, 3s. 9d. 100, dozen 1s. Plant now for good bloom next spring. Cuttings: six genuine Clove, two choice Tree Carnations, 1s. 2d.
SIMCOX, 158, Severn-road, Cardiff.

PLANTS. — Strong. — Clematis, early white, Deutzia gracilis, Anemone Honorine Jobert, lovely autumn white flower, Singly, 1s.; lot, 2s. 6d. Fuchsias, four choice, 1s. 3d.; dozen, 2s. 9d. Free.
SIMCOX, 158, Severn-road, Cardiff.

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted.—Abstainer preferred. Age from 25 to 30.
Miss BIRD, Chilbolton-down, Stockbridge, Hants.

A GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted, for Warwickshire. Age from 25 to 30. Abstainer.—A. D., care of Miss Bird, Chilbolton-down, Stockbridge, Hants.

Publications.

Twelfth Edition. Post-free, 1s.

DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.—SIMPKIN MARSHALL.

FLOWER MISSION CARDS.—New and convenient design, plain white, 8d.; crimson, 1s.; gold, 1s. 3d. per 100, post free. Sample pack of various-tinted coloured, 8d.
Only of F. V. HADLOW, Lithographer, Brighton.

ENGLISH VERSIONS OF THE BIBLE.

A HANDBOOK.—With Copious Examples Illustrating the Ancestry and Relationship of the several Versions, and Comparative Tables. 508 pp. Crown 8vo. cloth, 6s.
By the Rev. J. I. MOMBERT, D.D.

This Volume, on which the Author has spent years of laborious research and study, presents an exhaustive view of the English Versions from Anglo-Saxon times to the Revision of 1881, brings together information not contained in any single work extant, and is an indispensable book of reference to all readers of the Bible.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION for General Distribution, PRICE SIXPENCE.

TELL JESUS.

Recollections of EMILY GOSSE.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.; cloth, Gilt Edges, 2s. (post free).

"Presents us with notices of a life spent in loving, intimate, and uninterrupted communion with a personal Lord. . . . We have read the book with deep interest. We would that indolent professors might read it and be quickened, and that suffering saints might read it and be comforted."—Christian Times.

"The sentiment of this book is illustrated in a pleasing narrative, in which its influence upon the experience of an eminently pious friend of the author's, and of her own, is admirably pourtrayed. It is calculated to produce a certain impression upon the hearts of true Christians that will be greatly beneficial to them."—Sword and Trowel.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE POPULAR EDITION OF

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE

Strongly Bound in Cloth Boards, PRICE FIVE SHILLINGS.

Presentation Edition, handsomely bound in Cloth, price 7s. 6d.

THE POPULAR EDITION

Of CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE (Published by MORGAN & SCOTT) contains a carefully revised and much extended List of the PROPER NAMES of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS with their Meanings in the Original Languages, by Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., Author of "The Proper Names of the Old Testament Scriptures Expounded and Illustrated.

Mr. D. L. MOODY, after having recommended the purchase of a good Bible, says, "Next I would advise you to get CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE and a Scripture Text Book. These books will help you to study the Word of God with profit. If you have not got them, get them to-morrow, for every Christian ought to have them."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

A Cheap Edition, price 6d.

The Life of GEORGE WHITEFIELD.

By J. R. ANDREWS,

Author of "The Life of Oliver Cromwell to the Death of Charles I."

In cloth (with Portrait), 1s.

Superior Edition in large type, for Presentation, cloth, bevelled boards (with Portrait), price 5s.

"Whitefield was not a framer of discipline, not a leader of a sect, not a founder of societies, not a ruler of men, but pre-eminently a winner of souls. Would that such preachers were multiplied in the present day! We thank Mr. Andrews for this seasonable addition to our religious biography. No young preacher or student should be without it. But it possesses an interest far beyond any special class, and deserves a wide and general circulation."—Methodist Recorder.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Terms for Advertisements

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words	3	0
" 39 "	3	9
" 48 "	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of THE CHRISTIAN they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning's first post.

MRS. GRIMKÉ having now printed 50 languages, wishes to send out one million Text Cards to Missionaries this year, cost about £500, proposing to double all gifts sent by Christians, whose aid she asks. Many varieties of English (some very beautiful), F. M. sheets, tracts, quilt texts on calico, &c., always on sale.—For list, send stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. GRIMKÉ, Prestwich, Manchester.

Just Published. Price One Penny, 7s. per 100.

HOW TO FEED UPON THE WORD.

An Address to Young Christians.

BY JOHN MONRO GIBSON, D.D.

"Thy words were found, and I did eat them." JER. XV. 16.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any bookseller.

SIXPENCE POST FREE.

LARGE EDITION, BOUND IN CLOTH, 1s. 3d.

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work ON CONSUMPTION CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

AND ALL

OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. May be had from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER-ROW, E.C., or from Mr. Congreve (the Author), COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

Eleventh Series of Weekly Cases.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

BRONCHO-PHTHISIS—
CASE of a LADY at MAIDENHEAD.

Mrs. H. A. B. came to Coombe Lodge in May of last year. Had never been strong. Chest weak from girlhood. Examined by Dr. Brown. Upper lobe of right lung diseased, pain in her right side, cough, expectoration, short breathing, and the usual symptoms as well as physical signs.

From the commencement there was a marked improvement, and the patient was soon gaining strength; cough decidedly better, pain less, and breathing more free. She says, "I call your medicine the 'World's Treasure.'"

In December her progress was retarded by taking cold, but she got ultimately well.

In a letter dated April 17, 1884, she writes:—

"I have much pleasure in saying I am really better than for many years. I have recommended your medicine to many, who have benefitted from its use. I do not know how to express my thanks and gratitude to you. You are free to use my testimony, kindly giving initials only in print."

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth, 6d.

THE ENQUIRY ROOM.

Hints for Dealing with the Anxious.

By GEORGE SOLTAU.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOLD MEDAL, CALCUTTA, 1884.

Fry's Cocoa Extract

Guaranteed Pure.

"There is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.
"Strictly pure."—W. W Stoddart, Analyst for Bristol
"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin
NINETEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

A NEW EDITION OF

The Life of Richard Weaver,

THE CONVERTED COLLIER.

By R. C. MORGAN.

Price 4d. (3 copies post-free for 1s.)

"We recommend a careful perusal of the volume by every Christian desiring to improve his own heart or to do good to others; it will point out a way to be useful, and stimulate, by the force of a good example, to greater efforts for the best of masters."

A LARGE PRINT Edition of the LIFE OF RICHARD WEAVER, with an Engraved Portrait, and bound in cloth covers, may also be had, price 1s. (post-free).

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY RICHARD WEAVER.

COME TO THE SAVIOUR. A Series of Addresses by RICHARD WEAVER. Tinted Covers, price 4d.

A VOICE FROM THE COAL PIT. A Series of Addresses. Tinted Covers, price 4d.

TO YOU. A Series of Addresses. Tinted Covers, 4d.

Also, SIX ASSORTED PENNY ADDRESSES will be sent, post free, 6d.

WEAVER'S LEAFLETS.

A Series of 64 Two-page Tracts neatly printed on coloured paper.

Price 6d. per packet of 96, post-free.

1,000 Copies of "RICHARD WEAVER'S LEAFLETS" may be had for 4s. on application, direct to the Publishers, not carriage paid.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller

WITH LIFE-LIKE PORTRAIT.
Price 1s. per dozen; 7s. 6d. per 100.

THE LATE

CHARLES READE:

Author of "It is Never too Late to Mend," &c.

The Story of his Conversion.

BY HIS FRIEND AND PASTOR,

Rev. CHARLES GRAHAM,

Author of "Scriptural Holiness not Sinless Perfection," &c.

Reprinted from "The Christian."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s.

BIBLE READINGS ON

THE GOSPEL OF MARK.

Suitable as a Handbook and Help for Bible Classes, Lay Preachers, and Evangelists.

BY

HENRY THORNE,

Travelling Secretary for the English National Committee of the Y.C.M.A.

With beautiful Map of Palestine, showing the localities referred to.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

AN ATTRACTIVE WEDDING GIFT.

Marriage and Home.

A Volume of Kindly Counsels to the Newly-Married. Beautifully bound in White and Gold, 2s. 6d.

"One of the daintiest little volumes we have seen for a long time; done up in white, crimson, and gold, most tastefully printed, and full of wise counsel and Christian teaching."—Freeman.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

In Neat White Enamelled Cover. Gilt edges. Sewn with silk cord.

Price Sixpence. Post free.

AN APPROPRIATE WEDDING GIFT.

BE LOVERS STILL.

Friendly Hints to a Bride and Bridegroom.

By Rev. G. PETTITT.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Use Only
WRIGHT & BUTLER'S
PATENT PRIZE MEDAL
COMBINATION OIL STOVES
PETROLEUM
THEY WILL DO ALL THE COOKING REQUIRED & BY A LARGE FAMILY EQUALLY AS WELL & MORE ECONOMICALLY THAN AN ORDINARY COAL FIRE
ALL OUR STOVES ARE GUARANTEED TO BE THOROUGHLY EFFICIENT.
DO NOT BE DECEIVED BY UNTRIED NOVELTIES.
CAN BE HAD OF ALL IRONMONGERS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.
No 36.

ANNUAL SALE OF OVER HALF A MILLION.

McCALL'S PAYSANDU OX TONGUES.

A DELICACY FOR BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, OR SUPPER,

TO BE HAD AT ALL GROCERS.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom for 12 months, for 8s. 10d., including Double Numbers.
"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months, for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

[LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 763.] THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1884. DOUBLE NUMBER. [TWOPENCE, POST FREE, 2½d.

CONTENTS.

Poetry—The Men of Jabesh-Gilead.. 5
Our Boys and Emigration 5
Notes on Scripture 6
The Mormon Infamy 6
The Children's Portion 7
"The Lord is at Work!" 7
Notes and Comments 8
Intemperance in Switzerland 10
Doing the Will of God.
REV. G. F. PENTECOST 10
Homes for Working Boys in London.11
Navvies at Tilbury Docks 11
Persecution in Switzerland 12
Liverpool Children in Canada 12
"I gets Sulky when I'm spoke to."
REV. G. F. PENTECOST 13
American Summer Resorts 14
COPENHAGEN CONFERENCE :—
Religious Indifference.
DR. MARSHALL LANG.....15
Incarnation and Atonement.
REV. WILLIAM ARTHUR.....16
Science and Revelation.
PREBENDARY ANDERSON 21
Modern Unbelief.
DR. MACVICAR 21
DR. SINCLAIR PATTERSON 22
Sunday-school Work.
MR F. J. HARTLEY 24
The Baptism of the Holy Ghost.
DR. CLEMANCE 26
Discord and Concord of Christendom.
DR. SCHAFF.....27
The New Testament Scriptures.
PROFESSOR GODET 28
General Conference Report 28
Among the Swiss Mountains 30
The Evangelisation of Egypt 30
Poetry—Sunlight on the Sea 31
Unfulfilled Prophecy 31
Village Schools at Nazareth 31
A Busy and Useful Life 31
Mr. Henry Lakin 32
Gibraltar Seamen's Mission 32
North of England Notes 32
Prof. Andre's Training Schools 33
Costermongers' Cottage Mission ...33
"It was only a simple Leaflet" ...33

"A VERY PRACTICAL AND HELPFUL LITTLE VOLUME."
Evangelical Christendom.

THE

ENQUIRY ROOM:

HINTS FOR DEALING WITH THE ANXIOUS.

By GEORGE SOLTAU.

TINTED COVERS, 4d.; CLOTH LIMP, 6d.

"Many Christian workers have felt the need of such a handbook as this; and Mr. Soltau's wide experience makes his advice specially valuable."
Christian Miscellany.

"The 'Enquiry Room' is a very clear and simple, yet thorough and comprehensive, direction for those who undertake to guide the awakened to the Saviour."—The Outlook.

"We heartily commend this little manual to all who would be wise in soul-winning, and also to the earnest perusal of the anxious themselves; and may it be as the good Samaritan to many."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

"This is an excellent little handbook for all Christians who desire to help wisely and well in the great work of winning souls for Christ."
The Watchman.

"In this little book Mr. Soltau furnishes Christian workers with counsels, which they will find invaluable in leading anxious souls to Christ. Even experienced evangelists may derive help from it."
Primitive Methodist.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

A QUARTO VOLUME OF MUSIC AND WORDS.

BY

IRA D. SANKEY and J. Mc GRANAHAN.

Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions, when all the mists have rolled away."—Baptist Messenger.

This Volume, which is largely composed of NEW SACRED SONGS, DUETS, CHORUSES, and ANTHEMS, has been used alternately with "Songs and Solos," during the great London Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. Mr. Sankey and Mr. Mc Granahan are already well known by their hymns, which are sung all the world over; and the present collection, which is specially suitable for Gospel Choirs, will doubtless add to their reputation as true Gospel musicians.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

HODDER & STOUGHTON'S LIST.

Now ready, price 7s. 6d. the Eleventh Edition of NATURAL LAW IN THE SPIRITUAL WORLD. By Professor HENRY DRUMMOND, F.R.S.E., F.G.S. Twentieth thousand.

Just Published, Fourth Edition, Price 7s.
THE TEN COMMANDMENTS. By R. W. DALE, M.A., Author of "The Atonement," &c.

THE CHRISTIAN says:—"In these truly admirable expositions, Dr. Dale goes straight to the root of the matter."

THE BRITISH QUARTERLY REVIEW says:—"Dr. Dale's Expositions demand the very highest eulogy."

NEW BOOK BY REV. DR. BROOKES, OF ST. LOUIS.
Price 1s. 6d. cloth; paper covers, 1s. Suitable for Distribution.
SALVATION: The Way made Plain.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR. Price 1s. cloth.
LIFE THROUGH THE LIVING ONE.
"One of the best books to give to inquirers."—Sword and Trowel.

Just Published, Price 6s. cloth.
ANECDOTES ILLUSTRATIVE OF NEW TESTAMENT TEXTS.
"Exceedingly useful and interesting. Ministers and preachers will find it of great value in the introduction of bright, apt, well-selected illustration of texts."
The Christian.

☞ MODERN SPIRITUALISM AND THEOSOPHY.
See the startling facts recorded in the New Edition of EARTH'S EARLIEST AGES and their connection with Modern Spiritualism and Theosophy. By G. H. PEMBER, M.A. Crown 8vo., 7s. 6d.
"Most serious facts to which the attention of the Christian world ought to be called."—Literary Churchman.
"A singular book, wonderfully instructive in its own line."—Sword and Trowel.

London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

THE

Gospel Male Chorus Book.

A COLLECTION OF NEW PART SONGS, CHORUSES, AND ANTHEMS.

Written and Arranged expressly for Male Voices.

By JAMES Mc GRANAHAN.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Limp, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

The Gospel Male Choir was, during the last five months of the London Mission, a special feature of the meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. There are, doubtless, many more who would wish to dedicate their voices to the service of the Master; and with the present volume (which is arranged for 1st and 2nd Tenor and 1st and 2nd Bass) in their hands, and the hearty co-operation of a few brethren like-minded, this wish can be easily gratified. Says Mr. Mc Granahan:—"Organize a quartet, a double quartet, or better still, a chorus of male voices; and prove the power for good in the harmony of male voices when consecrated to the glory and service of our divine Master."

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION.

To Meet the Needs of the SICK POOR. "Preaching the Gospel and Healing."
Donations and clothing (new and old) thankfully received. Reports sent on application.
Hon. Director—Dr. G. SAUNDERS, C.B. Hon. Treasurer—Br. W. R. BELL. 47, Endell-st., St. Giles'.

GREAT COLEMAN'S. — Gentlefolk of limited means needing change and rest, will find all advantages of a gentleman's country house. Drives given For particulars apply to Mrs GRIFFITH, 48, Finsbury-square, E.C.

THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, Paddington-green, is in urgent need of Funds There are 25 beds now occupied, and the attendance of out patients is about 100 daily. This Hospital entirely depends on voluntary assistance. All parents, whether their children are in health or sickness must surely sympathise with this good work, for the sake of Him who loved little children. Treasurer, GEORGE HANBURY, 21, Portman-square, by whom any donations will be most thankfully received.

DAILY PRAYER MEETING at 12.0. at the House of Rest, Burlington-place, Eastbourne. Close to the Parade, near the Cavendish Hotel. Christian brethren and sisters are earnestly invited.

MISSION WORK AT NEATH, South Wales.—This Mission, conducted on strictly unsectarian principles, by two young men named Joshua, evangelists, has been the means of effecting great spiritual and temporal good, principally amongst the poorer classes, by means of open-air and tent services, &c. A plain but commodious Mission Hall is now in course of erection, and funds being urgently needed for its completion, an appeal is made for contributions to this good work.—Remittances may be made to the Treasurer, Mr. John Rees, Currier, Neath; or to either of the following Trustees—Messrs. C. S. Price, Brunderwen, Neath; W. G. Hibbert, Neath F. J. Gibbins, Neath

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.—The Right Hon the Lord Mayor M.P., Treasurer: J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman: Mr. Sheriff Clarence Smith, Hon. Secretary For ninety-nine years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 200 Christian men and women. Subscriptions and letters for Convalescent Homes are urgently needed. The Banking account is considerably overdrawn. The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.—Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. B. H. GERMANS, Secretary.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving Flowers, Fruit, and Vegetables, from an unknown Friend

The Infant Day Nursery opens every morning at 7.30 The Day Ragged Schools are open in the morning from 9 to 12 in the afternoon from 2 to 4.30. Classes and Meetings for Children on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, at 6.30 p.m. Adult Evangelistic Service on Sundays at 7 p.m Open-air Services at 7. Temperance Meeting on Mondays at 8.30 p.m. Prayer Meeting on Tuesdays at 8.30 p.m. Mission Meeting for Inebriate Women at 3 p.m. on Thursdays Bible Classes at 8 on Fridays, and other Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 86, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

A HOME FOR LADIES with very limited income has been opened at 30, Westhill, St. Leonard's-on-Sea. A considerable outlay has been incurred for furniture &c., which the payments of the Ladies are wholly insufficient to discharge; an appeal therefore, is made to those who may feel an interest in this needful and benevolent enterprise, and be willing to give of their abundance for the Master's sake. Donations will be received and gratefully acknowledged, by Messrs. BEECHING & Co., Hastings Bank, Hastings, or by the LADY SUPERINTENDENT, 30, West hill. References will be given on application.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College Avenue, Hackney.—The Annual Sale of Work will be held at the Home, on the 28th 29th, and 30th of October. Articles for sale will be gratefully received by Miss S RYE.

PRIVATE HOME-HOSPITAL, 9, Lupus street, St. George's-square, South Belgravia, for Ladies and Children (medical, surgical, and obstetrical cases) Situation most healthful, being open back and front, and adjoining the square. Applicants are requested to send in their names, as the beds are filled up in order of application. unless in cases of urgency. There are vacancies for three lady probationers Terms, including board, residence, and instruction, one guinea per week. — For terms apply to the LADY SUPERINTENDENT at the Hospital, enclosing stamped directed envelope.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money and clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee

FAITH-HEALING Meetings, conducted by the Rev. JOHN ALLEN, Trinity Church, Triangle, Hackney, London, E. Sundays, 3 p.m. Mondays, 7 p.m., addresses and testimonies; Tuesdays, 11.30 a.m., anointing service. Rapeigh Rooms, Rapeigh-road, Paddington, Fridays at 7 p.m. Royal Oak-station.

Educational.

MORAVIAN EDUCATION.—Fulneck, near Leeds. Established 1750. Application to be made to Miss SHAWE for the Girls' School, and to Rev. W. T. TITTERINGTON for the Boys' School.

KNIGHTSVILLE COLLEGE FOR LADIES, Lewisham High-road. — Thorough education, with careful individual training. Resident foreign governess. Professors attend. Domestic arrangements those of a happy Christian home. House and gardens spacious.

41, LEWISHAM HIGH-ROAD, S.E. —Mrs. and the Misses WILLMOT receive day pupils, and a few boarders. A thorough English education; usual accomplishments. Masters. Motherly care and Christian training.

D'URBAN HOUSE SCHOOL, BLACKHEATH.—This old-established School for the sons of Gentlemen is conducted by a Lady, assisted by trained governesses and qualified masters. Highest references.—Address the PRINCIPAL.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Boys, The Woodlands, Hitchin. Principal. ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Hitchin may be reached within an hour from King's Cross Station.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, Belgrave-place. Principals, Mrs. and Miss WILKIN.—High-class education for Girls. Pupils prepared for the Royal Academy (Music) and University Examinations. Healthy situation. Home comforts.—Prospectus and references on application.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Girls, conducted by the Misses ROBINSON, Rutland House, Blundellsands. A pleasant, healthy locality, on the coast between Southport and Liverpool. Excellent references. Moderate terms.

LADIES' COLLEGE, Ilfracombe.— Principal, Mrs. HEALE. Thorough education, with careful individual Christian training. Charges moderate. Situation unsurpassed for health. Splendid sea and land views. Pupils accompanied to and from London.

KEMPLEY HOUSE, BRISTOL.— Boarding School for Young Ladies. Principal Mrs. PRESCOTT. Sound and thorough education. Twelve guineas per term, including accomplishments. Next term begins Sept. 16. Governess-pupil wanted.

BATH. — Lime Bank, Oldfield Park, Ladies' School. Eight pupils received as boarders. Superior education. careful training, home comforts. Bracing country air. Numerous testimonials. First-class references.—Principals, Miss MAW and Miss M. MAW.

DIEZ-ON-THE-LAHN, near Ems. —Fräulein von Griesheim receives a few young Ladies. High-class finishing education. Christian training. Home comforts. Liberal table. Governess-pupil wanted. Prospectus and references on application.

ALBURY HEATH, near Guildford. —Miss BAKER receives six Young Ladies. Home comforts. Excellent education. Certificated governesses. Visiting professors Healthy and beautiful situation. Indian children received. Highest testimonials. Pupil teacher required, premium £20.

BEDFORD. — Melrose House. — Principals, the Misses RAY, daughters of the late Rev. R. Ray. Pupils received for high-class education and board. Personal supervision, with Christian training and home comforts. Preparation for Cambridge and other Local Examinations when desired. The autumn term will begin (D.V.), on Friday, September 19

KINGSTON HOUSE Ladies' School, Abbotsford-road, Clifton.—Careful Christian training; first-class education. Vacancies for three Boarders on reduced terms. Governess Student required. Small premium. Candidates prepared for examination, music, &c.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE for Young Ladies, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon, and CLARENDON HOUSE, Topsham (for delicate girls requiring sea-air) Education of the highest order. Professors, English and foreign certificated governesses. Pupils successfully passed Edinburgh, Oxford, Trinity College, College of Preceptors. Honours, and special certificates. The Principal's aim is to secure a training that will ensure spiritual well being; she engages as teachers ladies of decided piety only. Numerous references to parents in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and abroad. Pupils accompanied to and from London (journey of four hours). The term commences (D.V.) September 19.

LONDON.—First-class Education for the daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors; their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles. — DELTA, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

MRS. SANG and Daughters, 1, Waverley-villas, Clarendon-road, Nottingham, receive a limited number of Boarders and Day Pupils, to whose intellectual improvement and Christian training they devote their time and personal attention. Good references. Ensuing term Tuesday, September 16.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Gentlemen's Daughters.—Miss PENN, and Fräulein ESSER receive twenty-five boarders. Efficient staff of professors. Christian influence. Home comforts. Large house and garden. Languages and music specialities. Fees from date of entrance.
Grove House, Upper Clapton, London, N.

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the school) is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, DELIGHTFULLY SITUATED FACING THE SEA on the South Coast, a short run from London, in which a thorough and first-class Education is given, based upon the teaching of the Holy Scriptures.

It is one of the few remaining schools in which the power of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ influences the hearts and conduct of the pupils.

The success, happiness, and training of the Boys have been so remarkable in this school that a BOOK OF TESTIMONIALS GIVEN BY THE PARENTS, together with the papers of Examinations passed and Honours gained, should be read to appreciate results so unusual. Two Vice-Chancellors have placed their wards as pupils in the school. Reference kindly permitted to DR. THORN, Paddington, London.

HIGHBURY HOUSE, St. Leonards-on-Sea. Boys prepared for Commerce, Public Schools, or the Universities. Upper, Middle, and Preparatory Departments. Seven resident Masters. The Junior Division taught by Ladies. Delicate boys requiring a mild climate receive every kindness and constant care.—For Prospectus, apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal. The Autumn Term will commence Sept. 20.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for Little Boys, near Brighton. Locality healthy. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Separate beds. Visiting masters. Twenty guineas. Sisters of the boys received at a distinct establishment.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Hamilton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE, Principal: DR. CRANAGE.
The school will re-open (D.V.) Thursday, Sept. 25.

SOUTHPORT.—First-class Girls' School. Conducted by members of the Society of Friends. Special educational advantages. Masters and Lecturers of acknowledged merit Watchful care and home comforts. Situation particularly open and healthy.—Mrs. WALLIS, Brightholmston, Birkdale, Southport.

LOWESTOFT (South).—Claremont House.—The Misses BIGNOLD, having removed to larger premises, have vacancies for several Boarders (gentlemen's daughters), whom they earnestly desire to train for God, while giving them all the advantages of a thorough education, and a happy home.—Referees: The Rev. E. H. Bickersteth, Hampstead; the Rev. T. Romaine Govett, Framingham, Norfolk; Dr. F. S. Worthington, Lowestoft.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, about to reside at watering-place on the Suffolk coast, would be glad to hear of pupils (Gentlemen's sons) age 7 to 14.
M. A., 3, Myddleton-road, Hornsey, N.

ROTHESAY HOUSE, Alum Chine, Bournemouth.—Miss COLE (certificated in London University Examinations for Women), having for some years successfully conducted a large school for girls, now receives a few Pupils in her own home. Healthy position near sea. Thorough education, combined with comforts of refined Christian home. Lady boarder received.

SOUTHDENE, Ramsgate.—Splendidly situated Home for delicate children requiring sea and country air, combined with educational advantages. Under the personal supervision of experienced Christian Lady. Prospectus on application. Terms moderate.

MORNINGTON HOUSE, 27 & 29, Clapham-road, London.—College for Ladies In this old-established College great educational advantages are offered, combined with kind motherly care, and thorough Christian training. The Collegiate system of teaching is pursued with elder pupils, who are prepared for Public Examinations. Kindergarten school for little ones. First-class professors attend for accomplishments. Terms moderate and inclusive. Next term commences Sept. 11. Governess-Pupil required; also foreign Governess.—Address THE PRINCIPAL.

A YOUNG LADY desires to enter a family, or high-class private school, where she could gain experience in teaching. Could teach German (conversa.), good French, and English, and superior classical music. In return for her services she wishes to join a French conversational class, to have time for practice and to have laundry expenses paid. Highest references given.—B. E. H., Burnside's, The Village, Blackheath, S.E.

PRIVATE TUTOR. — Can any gentleman thoroughly recommend an earnest Christian gentleman as above to three boys, eldest nearly 10. Following requirements essential: thorough English, Latin, French, music, and drawing. Will no one please apply for the appointment unless he is an earnest Christian and of Evangelical views.—R. G., care of Mrs. Palmer, Monckton Villa, Queen's-road, Norbiton, Surrey.

TO EVANGELICAL CLERGYMEN and Professional Gentlemen. Two young Ladies who would exert a healthful religious influence in a high-class school in Harrogate, would be received on greatly reduced terms.
B., Parker's Library, Harrogate.

MORNING AND AFTERNOON ENGAGEMENT required by an English Lady returning to London shortly. Eight years' residence in Germany, two in Paris. Fluent German and French; brilliant music; thorough English. Highest references. — A. G. M., Lerchenstrasse 24, Frankfort A/M.; or, for particulars, M., 134, St. George's-road, Tufnell-park, N.

PARIS, Pension de Demoiselles.— Mademoiselle VIÉNOT, autrefois Rue Demours 18, vient de prendre une maison avec grand jardin. Bonnes références —36, Avenue des Princes, Parc des Princes, Bois de Boulogne.

BONN. — Superior Home for a youth needing stay in Germany for purpose of study, in an excellent German family.—Madame CHRISTIE, Hill House, Belstead, Ipswich, will gladly give every information.

WIESBADEN. —High-class Ladies' School.—Fräulein BEYERHAUS, the Principal, is now in England, and will escort Pupils on the 22nd September.—For interview or prospectus address, THEODALD'S, Waltham cross, London, N.; or 12, Suffolk terrace, Bournemouth.

FRANCE.—Saumur.— Pensionnat protestant de demoiselles. Mdlle. BONIFAS recevrait à prix réduit, une jeune personne Anglaise qui, en suivant les cours de l'é ablissement, donnerait des leçons d'Anglais. Rentrée 3 Octobre

Madame VVE. PAUGOUE-DIETZ, ex-directrice diplomée d'une institution de demoiselles à Barr (Alsace), recevrait dans son Home Protestant à La Chartre (Sarthe), trois pensionnaires Anglaises, qu'elle préparerait, avec une élève Parisienne, pour les examens d'enseignement classique. Langues: Française, Anglaise, Allemande. Prix £25 par ann., tout compris, musique exceptée. Références, Pasteur Stapfer, au Mans; Mrs. Dawson, Eglantine-road, Wandsworth, S.W.

CAPTAIN MORETON having been acquainted with Mr. Foster for about ten years, has great pleasure in recommending him to parents, as one both capable and anxious to train children in secular and spiritual things.
Kelvedon School, Essex.

MORLEY COLLEGE for Young Ladies.—Healthy neighbourhood. Careful training and special advantages for the study of languages music, and painting. Next term will (D.V.) commence 18th September, when a Pupil Teacher will be required. For prospectus and references address the Misses TURNE & LYNN, 17, Wickham-road, Brockley, S.E.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen, Fair View, 89, Cazenove-road, Stamford-hill, London, N.—Miss BROWN and Miss GOOD (who for ten years conducted Mrs. Pennefather's Educational Institute at Clapton House) receive about 20 Resident Pupils First-class education, with careful Christian training, and home comforts. Preparation for the University Local Examinations. Children from India and the Colonies received, and lovingly cared for. References kindly permitted to Mrs. Pennefather, J. E. Mathieson, Esq., and others. Prospectuses on application.

EDUCATION. — There are two vacancies in a happy home, with educational advantages, for two young Ladies, where their health, happiness, and progress are thoroughly studied by a Lady who has been established 25 years.—C. B., 45, Boundary-road, N.W.

VACANCIES will occur September 29, in an old-established School, in which Young Ladies have a thorough education, based upon Gospel principles, combined with the advantages of a happy home. Holidays only twice a year: Christmas and Midsummer Terms moderate. Miss BIRCH, Florence House, Baschurch, Salop.

TUTORSHIP.—A Graduate of Oxford in Classical honours, desires a Tutorship in a Christian family; or that of Master in a first-class school. Good references
T. H. G., The Marble House, Warwick.

FRENCH TUTOR well qualified and highly recommended, offers for school or family, at a small remuneration.
Rev. M. GALLIENNE, Alderney, Channel Islands.

A YOUNG GIRL of thoroughly reliable character and fond of children is offered a good home, with education, in return for help with a large family.
Roy, Cox's Library, Whitstable.

WANTED, by an Ex-Pupil-teacher, re-engagement as Teacher in an Institution. Good needlework. Good references. Five years' experience in an Orphanage.—M. J. S., 47, Queen's-road, Manningham, Bradford, Yorks.

A YOUNG LADY, Student at the Guildhall School of Music, wishes to board in a family, within reach, in return for two hours' daily instruction in English, French, and music. Good teacher.
G. H., 39, Western-street, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

A LADY, 14 years in high-class Preparatory Boys' School, desires re-engagement in similar school or in a family. Acquirements: thorough English and Latin, French, good arithmetic, elementary music.
G., 255, Branstone-road, Burton-on-Trent.

WANTED AT ONCE, a Master and Mistress, of decided Evangelical principles, for a mixed School, infants and elder children, in a small country town in Worcestershire.
T. B. B., Salperton Park, Cheltenham.

SINGING.—Madame D'ESTE gives Lessons in Singing (Sacred and Secular) on moderate terms. Voices rapidly cultivated, improved, and strengthened. Easy and perfect method.—ACADEMY, 261, Tottenham-court-road (few doors from Oxford-street).

A CHRISTIAN YOUNG LADY required, upon reciprocal terms, to take supervision of a few girls out of school. Advanced lessons in music, German, and drawing offered.—Application, with full details, to Miss HERBERT, Pembroke House, Bedford.

BRIGHTON, Inkermann House, Lansdowne-place.—Preparatory Boarding School for Boys, conducted by the Misses ASHBY. Very near the sea and fields. 40 or 45 guineas per annum. A visiting master.

WIESBADEN.—The Misses BEVERAUX continue to receive a small number of young Ladies. High class finishing education. Christian training. Home comforts. Liberal English diet. Prospectus and references on application.

A CLERGYMAN'S WIFE can receive one or two girls, to be educated with her own daughters (aged 9 and 10) under an accomplished resident governess. Pleasant house and grounds. Two miles from the sea.
Mrs. KIMM, Trunch Rectory, North Walsham.

GOVERNESS-PUPIL required, to assist with junior English and music. Special advantages to a young lady desiring to learn the art of teaching. Premium required.
PRINCIPAL, Prospect House, St. Neots.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS can be received in the Junior Division of a high-class School on very advantageous terms. Unexceptionable references given and required.
LADY PRINCIPAL, Abney-park College, N.

AN EXPERIENCED MUSIC Teacher wishes to give Lessons in Music in a Christian family or school. Three years' reference to her present pupils. Terms moderate.
THETA, 25, Brownswood-road, S. Hornsey.

GOVERNESS, English certificated (20), desires re-engagement. Children under twelve. English, French, music, drawing, needlework. Good needlewoman. Two years' experience. Good references. £30, and laundress. No. 228, KEITH & Co., George-street, Edinburgh.

FRENCH GOVERNESS (23) seeks re-engagement in Christian school or family. Prepares for examinations. Thorough teacher. Clever at needlework. Speaks English. Four years' experience.
M. P., Col. Beers, The Firs, East Liss, Hants.

A YOUNG LADY (25) desires engagement as Governess to girls under 12. English, French, elementary Latin, music. Nearly four years' experience. Evangelical Clergyman's family in country preferred. Or as Companion to Christian Lady. Would gladly assist in Mission work.—Y. Z., Corporation Chambers, Guildhall-yard, London, E.C.

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS (Group B. Honours for French and German, Higher Cambridge) seeks Afternoon Engagement in Christian family. English, with literature, &c., advanced French and German, including conversation (Paris, Germany).
MACHA, 17, Old Cavendish-street, W.

EXPERIENCED NURSERY GOVERNESS desires situation. Thorough English, rudimentary French, German, Latin, music. Will take entire charge of children under 12. Good references. £40
Y., Mr. Hunter, 15, Bank-street, Edinburgh.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Young Lady desires engagement in Christian family near London. English, music, French, and drawing. Fond of children, and could take entire charge. Good needlework.
K., 17, Listria-park, Stoke Newington, N.

AN EXPERIENCED Christian Lady seeks re-engagement as Governess or Companion; or to take charge of a household or home. Highest references.
A. B., 92, Church-road, Essex-road, N.

GOVERNESS.—Experienced and decided Christian wishes re-engagement. Charge motherless children valued. English, French, music. Highest testimonials. Recommended by Rev. Wm. Haslam.—BETA, Mr. Howard's, Mission Printing Office, Upper Sydenham.

NORTH GERMAN GOVERNESS (certificated).—A Lady desires to recommend to Christian mothers, a young Lady as Governess requirements, German, French, English, music, kindergarten. Good disciplinarian. Amiable disposition.—D. J., W. Parkinson, Esq., 16, Carlew-road, Tufnell-park, N.

A LADY LIVING in a healthy country neighbourhood, wishes to meet with a little boy from 5 to 7, to be educated with her own. References given and required.
L., 39, Cadogan street, South Belgravia, S.W.

A FOREIGN LADY desires a six months' engagement to teach German, French, and elementary music and drawing. Good references.—S., 53, Parliament-street, S.W.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

SCRIPTURE READER desires re-engagement the end of this present month. Ten years' experience in Mission work. Organist and choirmaster, first-rate tenor voice. Highest references.—LAY READER, 20, Rosefield-street, Leamington, Warwickshire.

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN, who has for some time had charge of a City counting-house, and can give the highest references in regard to taking a situation of trust.—G. H., care of White & Beechy, 43, Basinghall-street, E.C.

WANTED, by an earnest Christian young man (married), employment as Scripture Reader, or the charge of a Mission. Accustomed to public speaking. Good references.
HORACE HUNT, 17, Tett-road, Stratford, E.

MAN AND WIFE want situation as Managers of Coffee Tavern. Excellent references. Ages 27 years. Christians and abstainers. No objection to any Christian work.—OSBORNE, Strawberry Cottage, Greenford-road, Harrow, Middlesex.

LEICESTER AND COVENTRY DISTRICT.—Some situation desired that will be permanent, by earnest Christian Young Man, 28, single, for 15 years in one place at wholesale trade and Christian Institution, with quiet varied experience. Small salary.
H. L., "Advertiser" Office, Rugby.

FOOTMAN, under butler.—Owing to change of residence, a Gentleman wishes to find a situation in a Christian family for young man, nearly 18. Excellent servant. Total abstainer, and member of Y.M.C.A. Would like outdoor employment, but particularly fitted for Footman. Leaves end of October.
J. ELDRIDGE, Solicitor, Newport, Isle of Wight.

NO SALARY.—A Lady (widow). Re-engagement as Matron or Housekeeper. Efficient for either position. Economical, energetic. Used to children. Highest references.—T. D., care of Lushby, Stationer, 9, Spring-bank, Hull.

NO SALARY.—A middle-aged Lady, of quiet tastes and habits, accustomed to good society, whose home has been broken up through death, desires to give her services as Lady-Housekeeper, and useful Companion, in return for a refined Christian home. Highest references given and required.—ALPHA, Martin's Library, Trinity-road, Upper Tooting, S.W.

EMPLOYMENT (Office or otherwise) most urgently begged by a Gentleman, aged 40, anxious to retrieve lost opportunities through unfortunate speculations.—FREEMASON, Deacon's Advertising Office, Leadenhall-street.

WILL ANY KIND Friend help a Lady (42), alone in the world, to obtain a suitable position? Earnestly solicits interest. Well educated; domesticated. Speaks French fluently. Has some furniture.
S. A., 303, Fulham-road, S.W.

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEWOMAN, capable and experienced, wishes, without salary, the superintendence of a quiet household; or to act as Companion to a Lady.—K. E. N., Mrs. Blackler, 12, Fore-street, Devonport.

A DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER wishes re-engagement. Good reader, amanuensis, &c. Elderly people, or invalids, would find a thoughtfully kind, and very useful Companion.—Miss CHANDLER, 3, Upper Byron-place, Clifton, Bristol.

A LADY DESIRES a re-engagement either as Useful Companion, or Mother's Help. Fond of children. No accomplishments. Good needlewoman. Five years' reference from last situation. Salary not so much an object as a comfortable Christian home. Brethren preferred.—E. H., 56, Commercial-street, Hereford.

A LADY IS ANXIOUS to recommend a most reliable, trustworthy person to take care of an invalid Lady or Gentleman. She is a trained nurse, and can give highest references.
Miss HIGGS, Gwydyr House, Brixton-rise, S.W.

A WIDOW, clever Dressmaker, with little girl (five), would be glad if any Lady would employ her as such, for few weeks in the country.
Z., 16, Oldfield-road, Stoke Newington, N.

WANTED, by a young Lady, aged 26, a situation as Companion. Musical, and a good reader. References to clergymen and doctors.
M. R., 16, Brondesbury-road, London, N.W.

A YOUNG LADY (aged 28) desires an engagement as Companion to an elderly Lady or invalid. Good needlewoman. Domesticated, and willing to make herself useful.
Miss J., Post Office, Brook-green, Kensington, W.

AS WORKING HOUSEKEEPER to bachelor, widower, or elderly lady. Good plain cook and needlewoman. Middle age. Highest references. Salary £20. Active and kind.—ALPHA, Mr. Wood, Stationer, 446, Stretford-road, Manchester.

A LADY (24) seeks engagement as Companion to clergyman's wife, or to a lady who would like help in parish work, or travelling companion. Highest references.
K. S., General Post Office, Leicester.

ENGAGEMENT desired with a Christian Lady as Companion, Amanuensis, or English Governess to young children. Would be useful in various ways. Salary unimportant.
ELLA, care of Mr. Davis, Stationer, Bromley, Kent.

YOUNG LADY (20) seeks engagement as Mother's Help in Christian family. Willing to make herself generally useful.
Mrs. BOWDEN, West Appledore, North Devon.

NEW ZEALAND, Australia, or the Cape.—A Lady recommends a young person as Maid or Nurse to any Lady sailing to the above.—K. M., 49, Wilbury-road, Brighton.

AS GOOD PLAIN NEEDLEWOMAN, and to assist in light housework. Near London. Middle age. Two years' character.
B. E., The Grove, Carshalton, Surrey.

PLAIN COOK in small Christian family; or would undertake, with occasional help, the work of small house. Respectable and trustworthy. Age 29. Near London.—G. H., 18, George-terrace, Northwold-road, Upper Clapton, E.

A LADY is anxious to find a situation for a girl of 15, where she would be trained in house or kitchen work.
Miss GUNNER, Will Hall, Alton, Hants.

A LADY DESIRES to hear of a situation as General Servant for a capable girl of 16. Good servant, but needs a watchful mistress. Has been 2½ years in her first place.
Miss CROPPER, Ellergreen, Kendal.

WANTED, to place a young Lady with a kind, judicious Christian Lady, where she would have some light occupation. Terms moderate.—ALPHA, care of Mr. Davis, Stationer, Bromley, Kent.

A TRUSTWORTHY married man seeks employment as Scripture Reader, Mission-hall Keeper, or as Messenger, Timekeeper, or light Porter, or as Coachman. Highest reference. Age 35. Total abstainer.
R. J., 83, Highbury-hill, London, N.

USEFUL OR SEWING MAID in a family, institution, or school. Good needlewoman, dressmaker, and machinist. Near London preferred.—E. P., 107, Albion-road, Dalston.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant

SOUTH AMERICAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.—Wanted immediately, for Rio, a Missionary to Seamen, used to hot climate. Able to address meetings and lead singing. Married, without family, and wife able to take care of Institute preferred. Abstainer.—THE CLERICAL SECRETARY, 11, Serjeants' Inn, Fleet-street, E.C. Also Engineer, second-class Certificate, for New Auxiliary Screw Mission Steamer, for Tierra del Fuégo and Falklands. Unmarried, and abstainer.—THE SECRETARY, 11, Serjeants' Inn, Fleet-street, E.C.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY, at Rosevale Home, near Lisburn, Ireland, a Lady Superintendent, to take charge of the Institution. Qualifications necessary, the love that seeks to save the erring, and gifts of grace and wisdom to influence and lead such on in their desires and efforts after a new life. The Home is a long-established and successful one, pleasantly situated in the country, and is in good working order. The number of inmates averages about 20; their employment is washing and needlework. Experience in these is also essential.—Apply to Mrs. JOSEPH RICHARDSON, Springfield, Lisburn, Ireland.

LONDON SOCIETY for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews.—Wanted, in November, a Matron for the Hebrew Schools, Palestine-place, E. Must be a member of the Church of England, and a consistent Christian. Average number of Scholars, about 40 boys and 40 girls. Salary, £50 per annum, with board (except grocery), lodging, and washing.—Apply, with testimonials and references, to the Chaplain, Rev. J. B. BARRACLOUGH, 46, King Edward-road, Hackney.

A CHRISTIAN LADY, about 35, practically domesticated and precise, wanted by a Widower to manage his home. Educated, musical, and able to do needlework. Gentle, amiable and Church of England evangelical. Family is small, and one servant.—Address full particulars to T. A., Mr. Cooke, Bookseller, 319, Fulham-road, S.W.

WORKING HOUSEKEEPER wanted, for a family consisting of Gentleman and three children (at sending school). A careful manager, who could undertake the entire management of household work, cooking, &c. (no washing). A comfortable home and moderate wages to a competent person. Age about 35 years.
A. Z., Mr. Wheeler's, 88, Mildmay-park, N.

SUB-MATRON wanted, for Home for Fallen Women. Must bear undoubted Christian character. Salary £30.—Apply, with copies of testimonials and satisfactory references to Mr. FORBES MOSCRIEFF, 15, Hill-street, Edinburgh.

A WORKING HOUSEKEEPER wanted for a large business house. Good references indispensable.
Mrs. ROGERS, 26, High-street, Shrewsbury.

A LADY WISHES to hear of a Young Lady requiring a comfortable home. She must be a good musician, understand German, and a good needlewoman. Moderate salary. Church of England; evangelical preferred.—Apply by letter, stating all particulars, to Z. D., care of May's, 159, Piccadilly, W.

BIBLE-WOMAN NURSE wanted, for the Hastings Branch of the London Bible and Domestic Female Mission. Must be approved by the Parent Institution (2, Adelphi-terrace, Strand). Salary 16s. weekly.
Mr. LANGDON, 4, Castle Down-terrace, Hastings.

NURSE WANTED, thoroughly trustworthy, careful, experienced. Good needle woman, healthy, good-tempered. One baby. Country, near Bromley. No beer.—Mrs. M., Brook House, Farnboro', Beckenham, Kent.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a nice, healthy, trustworthy girl, of 16 or 17, for the work of a small house? Kind home for orphan or otherwise. From country preferred.—Mrs. A., 130, Villiers-road, Willesden-park, London, N.W.

GENERAL SERVANT WANTED.—A good General Servant wanted where another is kept. Good wages. A quiet, respectable young person will find a comfortable home.—51, Manor-park, High-road, Lee, near Lewisham, S.E.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted at once. Good plain cooking. Quiet, regular family in the country. Washing put out.
MAYER, Stedman's Library, Godalming.

GENERAL SERVANT with good character wanted, in a quiet Christian family.—P., 8, Claude-villas, Grove-vale, East Dulwich, London, S.E.

AN ACTIVE and thoroughly trustworthy General Servant wanted, in a quiet family where the mistress is an invalid.
Mrs. Z., 2, Lorne-villas, Cliftonville, Margate.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY, an experienced Parlourmaid for gentleman's family at Bournemouth. Age between 25 and 30. Church-woman. Wages, £22.—Mrs. FOX, Birkdale, Branksome-park, Bournemouth.

A SINGLE-HANDED GARDENER wanted. Married. Abstainer. No cottage.—A. B., Mrs. W. Heath, White Rose-lane, Woking.

MISSION HALL, ALDERSHOT.—Miss DANIELL wants a man and wife to serve in the refreshment bar, and cook, in one of her Soldiers' Homes.

WANTED, in Sir Josiah Mason's Orphanage, Erdington, near Birmingham, a Cook, not under 30 years of age, who will take an interest in helping to train young girls for domestic service.—Applications, stating age, references, and salary required, to be addressed to the MATRON.

A PLAIN COOK, clean and industrious, and not too young, wanted, for a family in a quiet village.
Mrs. A. CHITTY, Great Bookham, Leatherhead.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, to assist in the house; boots, a little washing. Also good HOUSE-PARLOUR-MAID. Good characters from last situations indispensable.
MRS FALKNER, South Lodge, Worthing.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, respectable, willing girl.—Apply, stating age and whether lived out before, to M. E., Magnolia House, Swanage.

A CHRISTIAN GIRL wanted, as House and Parlour-maid in a small family.
E. F., Oakley Cottage, Weston-super-Mare.

HOUSEMAID wanted for quiet family of three. Three servants kept. Efficiency and trustworthy character essential. Wages £16, all found.
Mrs. M., 5, Burwood-place, Hyde-park.

GENERAL SERVANT, who can cook, wanted at Weston-super-Mare by 25th September. Two in family. Good character indispensable. Must be abstainer.
S. L., 2, Westend-villas, The Barrows, Cheddar.

AGENTS (male and female) required throughout England, Scotland, and Ireland to sell our pure Teas on commission varying from 7d. per lb. Our terms are the most liberal in the trade, enabling Agents to earn £2 weekly. Payment only required after sale. Special terms for cash. Free delivery. Write for samples (gratis) to the United Tea Growers' Association, 11½, Union-court, E.C.

A CHRISTIAN HOUSE and Parlour Maid wanted, where three other servants are kept. Wages £16, all found, but no beer.
F., Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

TWO SERVANTS required at once. Nurse for two little boys, to assist in light housework and be a good plain needlewoman (healthy). Also, General Servant who can plain cook. Wages £14 to each.
Mrs. S., 13, Hammersmith terrace, London, W.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

This First-class Private Hotel is highly recommended by readers of THE CHRISTIAN from all parts of the world. The Bishop of Algoma writes: "The comfort, perfect order, and attendance at PERCY'S Hotel render it all that can be desired as a central place of sojourn in this great city." Beds from 1s. 6d. a, 1s 9d. Tariff on application.

LONDON.
WEST CENTRAL HOTEL,
97, 99, 101, 103, Southampton-row, Russell-sq.
Highly recommended by Rev. John Cairns, D.D., Rev. Forbes E. Winslow, M.A., Rev. Canon Hopkins, B.D., Frederick Sherlock, Esq., Mrs. E. S. Ellis, and numerous readers of The Christian. Hot and cold baths. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Printed Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH.

VISITORS TO LONDON will find a Christian home at Taverner's Temperance Hotel, 35 & 36, Hunter-street, Judd-street, Euston-road. Five minutes from G. N., Mid., and N. W. Railways. Patronised by ministers and Christians of all denominations.

HUTCHINSON'S PRIVATE HOTEL, 24, Guilford street, Russell-square, the most central position for all parts of London. Extensive patronised and strongly recommended. Home comforts. Terms moderate.

ROTHESAY, Scotland.—House of Rest and Hydropathic Establishment. Terms board, lodgings, and baths, from 25s. per week. A congenial home for Christians.—Prospectus from C. CAMPBELL. Note the address.

BRIGHTON.—Sussex House Boarding Establishment, pleasantly situated in the Old Steine, having a sea view, and the beautiful Steine Gardens in front. Near to Pavilion, Aquarium, and piers. Liberal table, with every home comfort.—Mr. & Mrs. BOX, 58, Old Steine.

Continued on page 38.

THE HYGIENIC VALUE OF MAGNETISM.

We have endeavoured to demonstrate that derangements of the nervous system will account for almost all chronic ailments, whatever form the symptoms may assume. The question then arises, What means are best calculated to prevent these derangements? From experience of the most practical character we answer, The Magnetic method of treating disease which we advocate, instead of medicinal agents, because it relies upon aiding the restorative forces of nature by supplying a self-regulating power to the nervous system. By stimulating from nerve centres to nerve extremities, and assisting nature in her constant efforts towards restoration, more of the vis medicatrix naturæ is induced, and when the impalpable but vivifying force of Magnetism thus aids the recuperative powers of the system, there is every hope (presuming renewal of health is possible) that unfavourable symptoms will disappear, trying temperatures lose their depressing effect, and the vitality of the system be so increased that hereditary tendencies will be rendered inert, and the constitutional weakness overcome. We trust that this explanation clearly proves to those least accustomed to reasoning from cause to effect, that Magnetic influence directly touches the origin of our chronic ailments, and is therefore of all known means the one best calculated to prevent the development of any organic disease. This being the established character of the remedy under consideration, a patient may as safely rely upon its health-giving virtues as he does in seeking the genial influence of pure air and sunshine, because Magnetism does not stimulate but sustains, equalises, and harmonises, and thereby enables the system to maintain the required balance of health. It cannot, therefore, tax and exhaust the system, for while it restores and sustains the failing energies, every organ of the body is better fitted to perform its proper function, and to render united and effectual opposition to disease so long as the natural term of life shall last.

From Mr. G. W. Hill, 13, Victoria-terrace, Limerick.

Nov. 22, 1882.

"We wish to tender you our sincere thanks for your great kindness, and to express gratitude to you, under God, for the great benefit Mrs. Hill received from your treatment. As I stated to you in my first letter, she was also a cripple, and could not move about without help. I have now only to say she is relieved from all pain (rheumatic), is as well as ever she was, and able to take her accustomed walk with me of four or five miles every day, besides her usual exercise attending to household requirements, both in and outdoor."

June 10, 1884.

"I regret that we cannot thank you personally for your kindness, but we can say how grateful we feel to you that, under God's blessing, Mrs. Hill has derived such benefit from your appliances. Mrs. Hill has no touch of the pains now, and has kept well through the winter and spring.

"Wherever she finds an opportunity she speaks of the advantages and benefits she received from your Odo-Magnetic Appliances."

Letters commendatory of Mr. Garratt's treatment by Magneto-Electricity have been received from hundreds of persons, in all classes of society. A private list of 850 names as referees can be had on application. Consultation free, personally or by letter. B. Copson Garratt, Medical Electrician, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

READY 1st OCTOBER, No. 1 OF

MORGAN & SCOTT'S COMPLETE EDITION OF

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE

TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

ILLUSTRATED WITH

THE FOLLOWING EXQUISITE STEEL PLATE ENGRAVINGS:

SAMARIA.
ELISHA'S FOUNTAIN, JERICHO.
REPHIDIM.
DAMASCUS.
MOUNT TABOR.
TYRE.
HEBRON.
JERUSALEM FROM THE SOUTH.
SHECHEM—SYCHAR.
TIBERIAS.
BETHANY.
ATHENS.

AND SIX BEAUTIFULLY COLOURED MAPS.

"I have never seen any engravings equal to these for the purposes of Biblical Illustration. True to existing nature, exact in outline, beautiful in execution, they leave nothing to be desired. Knowing the country so well, I am pleased to have my recollections refreshed by the minuteness of detail, in which engravings got up for illustration so frequently fall short."—Rev. H. B. Tristram, LL.D., Canon of Durham, Author of "The Land of Israel," "Bible Places," &c., &c.

"I have examined with care the views for Biblical Illustration. . . . The engravings are very beautiful. In clearness, accuracy, and general effect, they surpass, I think, any I have seen. The places represented are all familiar to me; and I have been particularly struck by the fidelity with which your artist has reproduced Frith's admirable photographs. The views of Hebron, Shechem, Tabor, Tiberias, and Jerusalem, could scarcely be surpassed. . . . It would mark a new era in Biblical Illustration if the work were extended to all the scenes of Bible incidents; and if, instead of fancy pictures, which only misrepresent the East, engravings from photographs were introduced."—Rev. J. L. Porter, D.D., Professor of Biblical Criticism, Author of "The Giant Cities of Bashan," and "Syria's Holy Places," &c., &c.

TO BE COMPLETED IN 18 MONTHLY PARTS, PRICE SIXPENCE EACH.

May also be had Complete in One Volume. Library Edition, Handsomely Bound, 10s. 6d.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY D. L. MOODY.

PREVAILING PRAYER. A Series of Addresses on Prayer. In tinted covers, 1s. limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (Just Published.)

"This book shows partly in what Mr. Moody's power lies—his clearness, earnestness, simplicity, and faith. Would that we had a thousand such preachers! Surely they would move the world!"—Watchman.

SOVEREIGN GRACE: Its Source, its Nature, and its Effects. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (6th Thousand.)

"Will be welcome to multitudes. Has the directness, the illustrative power, the righteousness, the earnestness, and the nervous English, that have made Mr. Moody so effective a preacher of the Gospel of the Grace of God.—Christian Treasury.

ADDRESSES BY D. L. MOODY. Delivered in Great Britain in 1874-75. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (110th Thousand.)

"Will be read by thousands with the memorable interest attaching to the words which God used in first awakening them to spiritual life."—Children's Record.

THE WAY TO GOD. A Series of Addresses on the Way of Salvation. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (43rd Thousand.)

"Full of the point and pathos, the fire and force, of this great evangelist.—The Outlook.

THE FAITHFUL SAYING. A Series of Addresses. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (14th Thousand.)

"Full of the Gospel; well illustrated; thoroughly alive."—Sword and Trowel.

HEAVEN: Its Hope, Its Inhabitants, Its Riches, Its Rewards. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (42nd Thousand.)

"Simple, direct, anecdotal, and earnest."—Freeman.

STAND UP FOR JESUS! Five Addresses to Christian Workers. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth limp, 8d.; cloth boards, 1s.

The Prophet Daniel.
Personal Effort for Christ.
On Prayer.
Be Strong!
How to Study the Bible.

SALVATION FOR ALL. Six Addresses. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth limp, 8d.; cloth boards, 1s.

Salvation for all.
The Promises of Christ.
"What think ye of Christ?"
The Book of Memory.
"Be sure your sin will find you out."
Seeking and Saving.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST. Limp cloth, 6d. (33rd Thousand.)
Cheap Edition, for General Distribution, 2s. per dozen.

THE FULL ASSURANCE OF FAITH: Some Thoughts on Christian Confidence. Limp cloth, 6d. (5th Thousand.)
Cheap Edition, for General Distribution, 2s. per dozen.

"A wise little book by Mr. Moody that believers troubled with doubts and fears would do well to read and act upon."—Christian Treasury.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Christian.

THE MEN OF JABESH-GILEAD.

By SARAH R. GELDARD.

(1 Sam. xi. 1—11.)

"WOE to Jabesh! Woe to Jabesh!
Hope is none, but force or flight;
All around us wave the banners
Of the conquering Ammonite.

Vainly have we fought and suffered,
What avails to longer strive?
Let us make a league with Nahash,
Surely he will let us live."

Nahash coldly heard their pleading;
How he scorned each coward word!
Well he knew the trembling suppliants
Were the people of the Lord.

"I am willing ye should serve me;
Such as ye are fit for slaves;
Else to-morrow, ere the sunset,
Ye should fill dishonoured graves.

"I will grant you life, ye Hebrews,
If I thrust out each right eye;
One will serve a slave for labour;
Choose ye, will ye live or die?

"Only know that thus on Israel,
By your fate reproach I fling,
Since the shame that falls on Jabesh
Falls on Israel and her king."

"Hard conditions, mighty Nahash!
Grant us but seven days' delay;
Then if Israel do not help us,
We must bear them as we may."

For a faint, bright hope was dawning
In the midst of their despair—
"We will seek the help of Israel,
And they will not scorn our prayer;

"Surely we are one with Israel,
One in glory, one in shame,
Since the shame that falls on Jabesh
Brings reproach on Israel's name."

Thus the men of Jabesh reasoned
In their hour of bitter need;
Then they chose them trusty bearers,
And they sent them forth with speed.

Swift they climbed the hill to Gibeah,
Not one moment did they wait,
Ere they told their tale of sorrow
To the elders at the gate.

This they heard in speechless terror,
Rent their garments, tore their hair,
Old and young wept loudly, wildly,
In a tempest of despair.

Horror seized upon the people,
Hopeless wept they one and all,
When that even, back from ploughing,
With his oxen, came King Saul.

All amazed, he questioned sternly,
"Wherefore do the people weep?"
And he heard their tale of sorrow,
As a man half roused from sleep.

Then he started, as a lion
From his covert mid the rocks,
When the Jordan, in its fury,
Drives him forth amid the flocks.

And his words rushed forth indignant,
Stung the coward, stirred the brave—
"'Tis no time to weep for Jabesh,
While there yet is time to save."—

Till the weeping men of Gibeah
Started up as heroes all:
Israel as one man came forward
Vowing each to follow Saul.

"Go back, messengers of Jabesh,
With glad tidings to your home,
Tell our brethren there in Jabesh,
That to-morrow help will come.

"Ere the sun shine hot on Jabesh
Israel's armies help will bring,
For the cause of stricken Jabesh
Is the cause of Israel's king."

There was stir that night in Israel,
As the host went forth to fight,
Calm presumption brooded o'er the Tent where slept the Ammonite.

There was joy within the city
As men passed from home to home,
Whispering in the silent darkness,
"On the morrow help will come."

Some were watching as the starlight
Dimmed before the dawning day,
And beyond the camp of Ammon
Sounds came faint from far away.

But they, one and all, in Jabesh
Were right glad at heart that night,
For the poorest man in Jabesh
Knew his claim as Israelite.

And the faintest heart in Jabesh
Knew the morrow help must bring,
Since the cause of stricken Jabesh,
Was the cause of Israel's king.

Through the silent starlit darkness
Israel's host was on its way,
Burst upon the sleeping army
Ere they saw the light of day.

Ammon woke to hear the thunder
Of the foeman's battle shout,
And to see their bravest scattered
Far and near in helpless rout.

Fling ye wide the gates of Jabesh,
Come ye forth to greet the king,
For to him his meanest hamlet
Is a dear and sacred thing;

Who made ours the nation's honour,
Whose brave spirit knew full well,
That the grief and shame of Jabesh
Meant reproach to Israel.

So the people went with Israel,
Singing gladly one and all;
With one heart they vowed at Gilgal
They would serve their lord King Saul.

* * * * *

O Christians! slow of heart indeed
And dim of sight are we;
The lesson taught so long ago
Our eyes are slow to see.

When shall we learn our brotherhood,
And own our brother's claim,
Weep sadly o'er our brother's sin,
Blush for our brother's shame;

Mourn our own sin, because it brings
On Christ's one Church a blot;
Seek to be pure, that her white robe
Be stainless, without spot;

Joy when our brother wins a soul
As joy the angelic throng,
Joy, though our voice must silent be,
That his bursts forth in song;

Joy in our brother's victory,
Weep for our brother's fall,
As, when he fell on Gilboa's plains,
All Jabesh wept for Saul?

OUR BOYS AND EMIGRATION.

REV. JOHN CONDER, of the South American Missionary Society, took part in a discussion which occupied much space in the daily journals some time ago as to "Our Boys, and What to Do with Them" He promised after he had had a year's experience abroad, to give the Daily Telegraph the result of his observations as to youthful emigration. He has just fulfilled his promise, and referring to the Plate River Republic, declares it to be an eminently suitable sphere for the development of youthful genius and industry. In the case of those who have capital at command and are willing to work, he says parents may send their boys there for farming operations with advantage. Where capital is wanting, all boys who have learnt some mechanical craft are sure to make their way; but for ignorant boys to be sent out among the ignorant is worse than useless. Skilled workmen are scarce, and handicraft labour of all kinds in great demand.

Mr. Conder wisely says that the boys who will succeed in Uruguay are those who would succeed in the old country; but there is this difference, that there they can readily find a demand for their services, and can succeed much sooner. The secret, he declares, is this, that labour abroad is honourable, and the mechanic ranks socially equal to the highest in the land. Among ourselves, the miserable farce that to work with the hands is demeaning still obtains with many, and forms a barrier to social progress, by maintaining a class of idlers and dependents who are of no use to society; and by keeping others from honest and honourable occupations, who, but for the social stigma, would be usefully employed. The dignity of honest toil is a lesson which cannot be too strongly and deeply instilled into young minds.

Colonisation is more and more calling forth the energies and commanding the thought of European politicians and reformers. Germany is rapidly developing in this direction, and other countries are also alive to its importance; but our wonderful success in establishing colonial settlements all over the world has excited natural envy and led to similar ambition.

It is, doubtless, one of the means intended to be used for the prevention of evil in overcrowded areas, as well as for the diffusion of good by the dissemination of social industries all over the earth. A tract of 100 000 acres of land has just been secured in Utah for the purpose of forming an Irish colony there. The scheme appears to be worthy of commendation and we may hope will prove a means of remedying some of the grievances and miseries which afflict the Emerald Isle. Our Irish neighbours are quite able to take their part in further promoting British enterprise abroad.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY WIGGAN, evangelists, are continuing their successful "tent services" at Carlton-road, Kilburn, London, N.W. The Kilburn Times says:—"The immense congregations that throng meeting after meeting reveal, in a way that cannot be misunderstood, that Mr. and Mrs. Wiggan's 'tent services' are in great favour with the people."

NOTES ON SCRIPTURE.—10.

IS SATAN IN THE HEAVENLIES?

THE question, mooted in "Notes on Scripture" (see The Christian, Aug. 21, p. 13), is not solved by the writer or his commentator. The difficulty lies wholly in he erroneous translation of our Authorised Version, unhappily not amended in the Revised Version.

The word rendered "high places" in Eph. vi. 12, is elsewhere rendered "heavenly." It is the word οὐράνιος, which is properly heavenly, augmented by the prefix ἐπί, which is upon or above. In its abstract plural form, without a noun, but with the definite article, τὰ ἐπουράνια, "the Superheavenlies," it is almost limited to the Epistle to the Ephesians (except John iii. 12; Heb. viii. 5; and ix. 23); in which it is very characteristic. It is used to express the highest heavens, to which Christ has been raised (i. 20); and where believers, co-quickened, and co-raised, are co-seated with Him (ii. 6). Thus, at the very opening of the epistle (i. 3), the Holy Ghost bursts forth with a grand doxology, to God the Father, "who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings, in the Superheavenlies, with Christ."

Again, the glory of God is to be most widely extended through this grace shown to us; since even his loftiest servants, the Principalities, and the Authorities, are learning, by means of the Church, in the [matter of the] Superheavenlies, the manifold, or greatly varied, wisdom of God.

The presentation and establishment of this glorious truth,—the present identification of all believers with the risen Christ, at the right hand of God, and that absolutely independent of their personal behaviour—is the chief subject of this very grand portion of the Divine Word. No wonder that Satan and his angels bend all their efforts, unceasingly, to hide this truth from saints; and thus rob them of the power to be drawn from their realisation of this most marvellous grace of God. How successful those efforts have been, and are, is seen in the saddening fact, that comparatively few—I fear, alas! very few—even of real believers, habitually live in the upper atmosphere of the Epistle to the Ephesians, or even know what the epistle means.

The type of what is presented in vi. 12 seems to be Amalek's assault upon Israel in Rephidim (Exod. xvii.), to rob them of the living water from the smitten rock; which assault was no less than a laying of his impious "hand upon the Throne of Jehovah." For "that rock was Christ."

In the passage under consideration, the Superheavenlies are not the seat of the wicked spirits (what! the demons on the right hand of the Throne of God!), but the object of the contention. The apparent difficulty, which has misled the translators, is the common literary device of suspending the main theme to the end of the sentence; the intervening clauses bearing a sub-parenthetic force. I would render the verse, very literally, thus: "For our wrestling, in [the matter of] the Superheavenlies, is not against blood and flesh; but against the Principalities; against the Authorities; against the World-powers of darkness of this age; against the spiritual beings of wickedness."

P. H. Gosse.

MR. THOMAS WALES, many years in connection with the Evangelisation Society, has just sailed, with most of his family, for Sydney, New South Wales, in the steamship Aberdeen.

THE MORMON INFAMY.

WE lately mentioned that a Mormon emissary, who was attempting to propagate his atrocious doctrines at a southern English seaside town, was happily confronted and confuted by some visitors who had listened to him, so that he discreetly took his departure the succeeding day. The Indian Witness has the following, which shows that the subtle way in which these apostles of Satan begin their work is the same the world over, whether in India or in Dorsetshire:—

"The latest, and we may add worst, new thing in Calcutta, is the arrival of a party of Mormon missionaries in our midst! The leader is an elderly Englishman who has spent many years in Utah. He is accompanied by two young men, one of whom is a son of the notorious Orson Pratt. This is not the first attempt made by the Mormons in Calcutta, but their success on previous occasions was very slight. They talk piously, use the current language of evangelical Christians very glibly, profess a great concern for their hearers' souls, and defend the iniquities of their system by blasphemous appeals to Jesus Christ and the patriarchs. Of all forms of pious iniquity ever taught, we have never heard of one so revolting to our instincts of truth and purity as this horrible imposture of Mormonism."

Surely the following facts, which are vouched for by the Salt Lake correspondent of a New York paper, ought to enable our readers to stop the mouth and spoil the plots of any Mormon deceiver and procurer who may cross their path:—

"The sad side of Mormonism is not very often touched upon. Many observers see its ludicrous features and others the dangerous political tendencies of the hierarchy; but few discover the heart-breaking sorrows so closely veiled in hundreds of homes by fanaticism and terror. When Joseph Cook was here he received a letter from Mrs. Paddock of this city, telling the following story: 'A short time ago an educated young newspaper man came to Utah from England with his young wife. They had fallen under the influence of a Mormon missionary, and were devout believers in the teachings of the saints. For a time they lived here unmolested, but the priesthood at length exerted their influence on the husband to force him into polygamy. The wife, finding opposition in vain, at last gave her nominal consent. A second wife was brought into the house. In a short time the first wife became a mother, but the infant never cried aloud. It came voiceless into the world, and it wept in silence all the time. Sleeping or waking, the tears flowed from its closed eyes, and in three or four weeks it died. The mother said it died of a broken heart. The mother herself soon followed the child, and both rest together on the hill.'

"Isaac Langton and his wife have grown grey in the faith. For years they have resisted the appeals of the priests and have lived for each other. They have been poor all their lives, and both have had to struggle hard to keep their home and rear their children. A happier old couple could not have been found in Utah until recently. Both being near the end of their earthly race, the fond old wife had long ago given up worry or apprehension concerning her husband's loyalty. In his old age, however, the wiles of the priest caught him. He took another wife. The old lady was staggered by the blow, but, restraining her feelings, told the newly-married pair that she would soon be out of their way. Langton and his bride went off on a visit, and on their return on a street car Mrs. Langton No. 1, in abject despair, threw herself under the wheels of the vehicle. The driver chanced to have control of the brake, and stopped the car before the old lady was crushed. Her clothing was torn from her, however, and she was seriously injured internally.

"George Walker had two wives and married a third, a woman much handsomer than either of the others. The first one died in a few weeks, and the second went insane and was sent home to her parents. Wife No. 3, who thus became the only wife, led a very contented life for awhile; but she is now filled with rage and grief because her husband has married another woman, and is maintaining her in good style in another part of the city.

"The strenuous efforts which the leaders in the church are making to stimulate polygamy, and the necessity which exists for keeping plural marriages secret, have induced many of the faithful to keep the fact of their later marriages from even their previous wives. Knowledge of this state of affairs has driven many Mormon wives, who are suspicious of their husbands, to the verge of distraction, and not a few of them have adopted extraordinary measures to discover whether their apprehensions are well founded or not. Nothing makes the average Mormon woman's lot harder than the suspicion that there are wives of whom she knows nothing. It is bad enough to put up with those who, she is well aware, divide with her the honours of wifehood, but the idea that others of whom she knows nothing may be rolling in luxury somewhere is intolerable. Nearly all this wretchedness is concealed. The most extraordinary devices are resorted to to cover up any scandal among the faithful, and were it not for the fact that there are many keen-eyed Gentiles here, the suppression would be complete.

"A young girl named Annie Elmore, who came here from England a while ago with a batch of converts, was immediately beset by several old Saints with proposals of marriage. She was unusually pretty and intelligent, and the rivalry of the elders was great. To all she turned a deaf ear, however, and one after another was flatly refused. Then one of the bishops called on her and undertook to terrify her into marrying. He told her that if she remained obdurate he would be compelled to cut her off, not only in this world but in the next, and he explained to her that to be cut off was eternal ruin. She defied him to do his worst, and told him that in England the Mormon missionaries had taught that a woman should only marry the man she loved, and that she was bound to do so. The bishop did not cut her off, but learning soon after that she had married a young man who had followed her to this country and joined the church, the excommunication was withdrawn. Just now this true-hearted girl, who withstood the blandishments and threats of her elders so heroically, that she might remain true to her absent lover, is a raving maniac, because he, three months after his marriage with her, brought home another wife. Suppressed, denied, and made light of as these things are by the Mormons, they crop up occasionally, revealing the depth of woe which exists here for the most part in silence."

In one of the recent numbers of the New York Independent we find the following Editorial Note:—

"A fearful murder is reported in Lewis County, Ky., which has more than a local interest. The Mormon missionaries were attacked on Sunday, while a meeting was in progress, by a party of forty masked men, and two of them and two of their converts shot dead. There is no further account of the affair; but the explanation is easy to guess. Converts had been made and induced to go to Utah. Women had there been forced or persuaded into polygamy. If this had not actually been done those citizens knew that that was what the missionaries were trying to do; and, after a Southern fashion, not waiting for law, they saved public expense and all uncertainty of law by an effective use of the shot-gun. Wrong? Of course it was. But where does the wrong lie? Chiefly at the door of our National Government, which has not put its strong hand on Mormon polygamy and crushed it. Our people are quite willing to be tolerant toward religious vagaries; but when seduction is one of the cardinal points of a religion it should be treated roughly by law, and is likely to be handled according to the customs of the country in barbarous communities. We suggest that the legislature of Kentucky should consider what restriction can constitutionally be put on the efforts of advocates of polygamy to persuade women to emigrate to a territory where the immoral practice can be indulged in."

The Children's Portion.

ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S ACROSTIC.

"Accepted in the Beloved" (Eph. i. 16).

A ristarchus.....Acts xxvii. ii. 2.
C rispus.....1 Cor. i. 14.
C arpus.....2 Tim. iv. 13.
E paphroditus.....Phil. ii. 27, 30.
P riscilla.....Acts xviii. 2.
T imotheus.....Acts xx. 4.
E paphras.....Philemon 23.
D amaris.....Acts xvii. 34.

I conium.....Acts iv. 19.
N iger.....Acts xiii. 1.

T ertius.....Rom. xvi. 22.
H ymanæus.....1 Tim. i. 20.
E pænetus.....Rom. xvi. 5.

B arnabas.....Acts iv. 36.
E rastus.....Rom. xvi. 23.
L uke.....Col. iv. 4.
O nesiphorus.....2 Tim. i. 16.
V crity.....1 Tim. ii. 7.
E ubulus.....2 Tim. iv. 21.
D emas.....2 Tim. iv. 10.

Frank Flynn.

A BOY'S LETTER.

Dear Sir,—This letter to his family by a boy who has just left school, from Scarborough, where he had gone to help Mr. Arrowsmith in Children's Mission, may interest your readers, showing as it does how natural and healthy is the character of the work. It was written without the smallest thought of publication. A. M.

Scarborough.—We get up at 6.30, or soon after, and go down to bathe; then we have prayers, which consist of reading the Children's Scripture Union portion, and then prayer; each prays for something special, either one particular service or else some family, or anything special. Then we have breakfast, and then are very busy getting little books and papers and notices together to give away at the services.

There are either two or three every morning, one at Filey three times a week, one at the south shore, and at the north shore every morning at about 11. I went with L—— and C—— B—— to the north shore yesterday morning. We had rather a small meeting, but there was a large one at the south shore. . . . We find it is so very difficult to get at the boys this year, because we cannot get a cricket ground, and so yesterday we got up a paper chase. . . .

There is a meeting for boys to-night; so we have had instructions to get hold of some boys, and ask them to tea, and then take them to the meeting afterwards, and the consequence is that some have been going out and asking almost every boy they meet to come to tea. . . . The tea party was rather a success, but very amusing; nobody knew in the least how many were coming. . . . and nobody thought of ordering any tea; but they sent out at once and secured enough, after some trouble. About forty came. . . . Tea was rather late, but passed off very well. They all went to the meeting afterwards, which was a grand one, and a good many boys decided for Christ.

We had a splendid meeting at Filey as well, and about seven or eight boys and about as many young women gave their hearts to the Lord. It is so splendid that so many boys have come out who mostly are either at, or going to large public schools.

We had consecration meetings, addressed by Stanley Smith, on Tuesday and Friday evenings, in a room joining the Holy Trinity Church. They have been packed full, and then chairs put down the middle, and right up to the door, so there was not room for another person, and then the door leading into the church was opened, and a good many people sat in the church and listened.

Yesterday afternoon we had races on the sands for the children, and then gave away books as prizes. . . . They all seemed to enjoy it very much. To finish up with we had a steeple chase with a water jump, which was a great success.

We do think of you all so much (that is as much as we have time for, for we have not much time even to do that), and wish we were with you all. . . . It is very nice here, and all the men are so bright and happy, and when we laugh, we do laugh. . . On Saturday, at Filey, there was a dear little fellow, who gave his heart to Jesus last year, at the meetings giving cards away, and making himself useful.

We have had a good time to-day. We all went together to Mr. Faithfull's church at 10.30. . . and at 3 we had a boys' meeting in the drawing-room. Almost all stayed to the after-meeting; more than half were converted before, mostly last year, I think, at the services, and nine more decided then.

CHIN WAN LOO.

Poor little Chin Wan Loo! Daily his cheeks, that had been round and plump, grew thinner and paler, and his merry almond-shaped eyes grew dull and sad. Day by day his portion of rice and soup had grown less and less, and little Chin Wan Loo was slowly starving.

There had been no rain for a long while. The streams had dried up, the crops had failed, and nobody had enough to eat.

"We must go to the temple," said Chin Wan's father, "and pray for rain."

So to the temple they went—Chin Wan's father, his uncle, and his oldest brother, with two or three of their neighbours; and Chin Wan went with them, for he wanted rain and rice as much as anybody.

They carried incense and joss-sticks to burn before the idol; and bowing, kneeling, and wringing their hands, they entreated their joss to send the needed showers.

But what could a block of wood or stone like that do?

It is God only that can give rain upon the earth, and make the grass and trees, the corn and rice, grow for our use.

Chin Wan did not know that; he had never heard of such a God as ours. So he prayed very earnestly to the idol in the temple, and then went home again with his friends, all hoping their prayers might be answered.

But the supply of food grew smaller every day.

Chin Wan's father sold their clothes, their mats, their dishes, and finally the roof of their house and their walls as well, to buy more. And very little could he buy, even then; for food was so scarce everywhere about them that the price of it was very, very high.

Mrs. Loo gathered up the parched leaves and grass, and tried to make bread or porridge of them; and it would make your hearts ache to know how much worse things than that the family ate.

Chin Wan's baby sister died, and his little brother, and his uncle's wife, and his cousin that he used to play with.

One day Mr. Loo heard a few of his neighbours tell of some who had gone away to a distant province, where there was more to eat.

"We shall all die if we stay here," said Mr. Loo. "It is a very long way, but we too must go."

Oh! you little boys and girls who sometimes come in from your play exclaiming, "I'm about starved!" or, "I'm tired almost to death!" little do you know what those words really mean.

Chin Wan knew, when, with nothing that you would call food to give him strength, he staggered along those many weary miles.

Mrs. Loo and Chin Wan's eldest brother dropped and died by the way; and of all their little family, it was only Mr. Loo and Chin Wan that at last reached a town where they could have food given them—not in plenty, but just barely enough to meet their needs.

Chin Wan had a great many trials, but a very blessed thing happened to him at the place where he went. He heard about the God who only controls the wind and the clouds, who only answers prayer, and gives us better than bread for the body, even the precious bread of life. Will you not pray for all Chin Wan's Chinese brothers and sisters, that they may all have the bread of life?—Mission Dayspring.

"THE LORD IS AT WORK!"

A FAITHFUL and zealous Methodist minister in North Carolina writes to a friend in Calcutta:—"There are two cotton factories here, and my charge consists chiefly of the proprietors, operatives, and others connected with the factories. The proprietors are Christians and Methodists, and stand ready to do what they can for the cause of Christ. The leading man takes a lively interest in our church work, and teaches a large class of little boys in our Sabbath school, although weighed down by the cares of an immense business all the week. When the new factory was built, the building, with all its machinery, was solemnly dedicated, by a public religious service, to be used for the glory of God. Two years ago a great revival was in progress here. Mr. —— stopped the factory, that all hands might attend the meetings. He received an urgent order from New York for goods. He replied that the goods could not be furnished. They telegraphed from New York that they must have the goods. Then the wires flashed back the message: 'The Lord is at work: the factories will not run this week.'

"Would that we had more such men! Christ requires that money, as well as intellect and heart, be consecrated to Him. 'The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts.'" Surely the Lord would say to that mill-owner, as He said to the Canaanitish woman, Great is thy faith! —Indian Witness.

STANSTEAD ABBOTS, HERTS.—During the past month various open-air meetings have been held in this village, when the Gospel has been faithfully, and, in the face of considerable opposition, fearlessly preached by Mr. W. E. Bailey, of the Open-air Mission. As the village is a favourite resort of pleasure-seekers, especially on Sundays, the word has reached the ears of many who doubtless never attend any place of worship.

Notes and Comments.

WE beg our readers to read, and reflect upon, the shameful story of Swiss oppression and injustice told on another page by Mrs. Butler and the correspondent of The Daily News. It is a record worthy of the darkest ages of European history. Seeing that the lives and liberties of British subjects are deeply concerned, it seems pertinent to ask what our Government are doing, or going to do, in the matter. At present we cannot discover that anything has been done. If this is not an occasion when they ought to use their good offices for the protection of their fellow-countrymen, we can scarcely see when such an occasion is likely to arise.

The approaching presidential election in the United States is calling forth a large amount of concern, and also of earnest action on the part of those who desire to see righteousness exalted in that land. At the conference of "Independents," held in New York City, to discuss the situation, it was urged that the paramount issue of the election this year is moral rather than political, concerning the national honour and character of administration rather than general policies of government. The most threatening national peril was declared to be an invidious political corruption, a mercenary and demoralising spirit and tendency showing itself in high places, and all loyal citizens were called upon to sink other considerations for the securing the triumph of moral sentiment and truth.

On such grounds, the candidature of Mr. Blaine was rejected by these "Independent Republicans," and their choice lay in the direction of Mr. Cleveland, the nominee of the Democratic party. Since then, however, grave charges affecting Mr. Cleveland's moral character have been widely made, and, to a certain extent, sustained.

The New York Independent speaks of the present position of things as a grave crisis. In a recent issue of the same journal, the Rev. Washington Gladden says, "The political situation is full of perplexity and peril." He advocates the calling of another conference to nominate candidates for whom no apologies would have to be made. The free and full ventilation of the question of national morality to which the circumstances have given rise, and the formation of a strong party purely in the interests of righteous administration, cannot but deeply impress the public mind, and will go far, we may hope, to regenerate political life in the country.

Our Wesleyan friends are not, as a community, oppressed with poverty. Their Thanksgiving Fund, which was started in 1878, has now reached the sum of £297,518. In 1839 a fund was raised by them in connection with the 100th year of their history; this amounted to £216,000. In 1863 they celebrated the jubilee of their Foreign Missionary Society by raising a special fund of £188,925. And now their third great effort has resulted in a total of £305,000, of which only about £8000 remains unpaid. The report just issued shows that grants have been made from this of £63,869 to Foreign Missions, £45,000 to the Extension of Methodism fund, £37,000 to the Schools fund and other large benefactions to their other institutions. Clearly this zealous section of the Church knows how to awaken the spirit of liberality among its members and friends.

Mr. Joseph Hannington, late of Fishergate, Brighton, writes to us from Florida, whither he proceeded in April last. He speaks in high terms of the natural advantages of the country, and the excellence of the climate in his part of the State, and sends an urgent appeal for other English Christians to go out and settle there. There is an open and ample field for evangelistic and other effort, especially among the negro population. He states that any friends who have a taste for orange growing or vegetable gardening would be likely to succeed. Mr. Hannington's address is Post Office, Winter Park, Orange County, Florida, U.S.

The death of Mr. Joseph Livesey, of Preston, the veteran Temperance reformer, removes a well-known and valued member of society from our midst. His career has abounded in interesting and striking incidents illustrative of the worth of perseverance, fidelity to principle, and industry, in the battle of life. He has been justly called "The Father of Teetotalism," having himself written out the first total abstinence pledge, on September 1, 1832. As an author, a lecturer, and philanthropist, he laboured indefatigably in the cause of godliness and social reform, and won for himself in all directions the good name which "is better than precious ointment." He has passed away at the ripe age of 91, and will long be remembered with grateful and respectful affection by a large circle of admirers and friends.

The papers read by Miss Rye and Mrs. Birt on Child Emigration to Canada, before the Economic Section of the British Association at Montreal, contained many interesting items of information. Since Miss Rye commenced her work in 1869, she has been the means of placing no fewer than 2100 children in positions of usefulness and comfort in different parts of the Far West. Others have imitated her example, so that not less than 10,000 children have been transplanted from British to Canadian soil, and there happily settled and provided for. Miss Rye was able to state that 97 per cent. of the children she had taken out were doing well. Only four deaths had occurred among the over 2000 emigrants in fifteen years, while the expenses had averaged not more than £300 annually. The fact that applications from Canadian farmers for children are increasing rapidly goes far to prove the success and popularity of this excellent and really philanthropic work.

Mrs. Birt's paper was devoted to the Liverpool Institution for training and sending pauper children abroad. In eleven years some 1700 young people had thus been placed in good homes in the provinces of Quebec and Nova Scotia. These have all been taken from the destitute classes in Liverpool. At a cost of £15 each child they had first received six months' education and preparation, and then been fitted out, shipped, and settled in life. But for this they must all have been doomed to the degradation and misery of pauperism, and have become a charge upon the rates. Now they were nearly all prospering in their situations, and some were married and comfortably supporting themselves, and helping others dependent upon them. There is ample room for almost indefinite extension of this admirable scheme, and probably the beneficent and wonderful results thus shown to have been obtained will give fresh impulse to philanthropic efforts for its further and wider extension.

Archæological pursuits are, to those who have taste and facilities for their cultivation, extremely fascinating, although to the great majority of men they may appear to be tame and unpractical. The British Archæological Association has held its annual Congress at Tenby, under the presidency of the Bishop of St. David's, and has been largely attended by its members and friends. As a handmaid to history, helping to determine the records of the past, and to indicate the developments of the ages in art and science, the Association fills an important niche. Pembrokeshire was shown by the President to be so rich in primeval and Roman remains, that it forms, as he said, a perfect paradise for such an assembly.

The missionaries and other Christian workers in China have organised a society among themselves to be known as "The China Branch of the Evangelical Alliance." Its object is to promote the unity of Christians belonging to every section of the Church in China, and to secure their co-operation for the advancement of the Gospel in every possible way. The terms of membership agreed on are eminently catholic and yet pure; they find expression in the following article, and embody as we believe the true bases of Christian union:—

"This Branch of the Alliance shall receive as members 'all Christians who walk in brotherly love, and who, according to Holy Scripture, confess their common faith in God the Saviour—in the Father who loved them, and justified them by his grace—in the Son who redeemed them by his passion and death—and in the Holy Ghost through whom they are born again and sanctified—in one only God, blessed for evermore, to whose praise and glory they desire to consecrate their lives.'"

Summer days in the country are now well-nigh come to an end, and it is a pleasant thought to reflect on the many who have, through the kindness of our readers and others, shared in the joy they have caused. Experience, however, shows that in future arrangements for these excursions some points will require closer attention. In a few cases which have come to our knowledge there has been a mixture and a want of supervision which has led to reproach, and tended to defeat the object aimed at by the promoters. It seems desirable to strictly confine the participants in the pleasures of the day to those known to be connected with the mission or school provided for. Deviation from this rule leads to some going to three and four excursions belonging to different churches and chapels, and opens the way for inebriety and demoralisation which would otherwise be prevented. The moral and spiritual good of the excursionists needs to be kept in view on such occasions, and all the arrangements made to bear upon its furtherance. This has, we know, been done in most cases, and with very happy results.

Sunday gambling in the metropolis has become so notorious, that the authorities appear to be awakened to the need of vigorous effort for its suppression. Thirteen persons were charged with it in the Bow-street Police Court one day in last week, beside other cases in other districts. The fines imposed, and warnings given, will, it may be hoped, tend to check this crying evil. The police speak of the great difficulty experienced in securing offenders, owing to the fact that spies are ingeniously placed to warn of their approach. It is well for all who are witnesses of it to aid the cause of public morality by giving information, and so rendering conviction more easy and sure.

The advocates of funeral reform are diligently prosecuting their useful and praiseworthy task. At a conference just held at Watford, of the Church of England Funeral Reform Association, the Earl of Essex, in a letter sent by him, spoke of the ostentation and expense usually associated with the burial of the dead as a crying abuse and folly. It was indeed the mockery of woe. In face of the fact that surviving friends fear lest, if they act on the principle of simplicity and economy, it would be regarded as a want of respect for the departed, or be attributed to parsimony, it was strongly urged that every one in favour of reform should leave written instructions for its adoption in their own case. The subject is of sufficient importance to claim the attention of all who desire to promote the general interests of society.

Following in the wake of The Times of a recent date, The Daily Telegraph has been espousing the cause of anti-teetotalism. In a leader last week, that journal boasts that it has never sought for a moment to foster "the preposterous, the cruel, and the unjust idea of robbing the poor man of his beer." It further asserts that beer-drinking nations are the strongest, bravest, wealthiest, and honestest peoples in the world, while the most blood-thirsty races are either extremely temperate, or total abstainers. This is a terrible indictment, and if true, might well stagger the most zealous teetotaler in the world. But a glance at our police reports, and a very slight knowledge of the drinking fraternity, as compared with temperance communities, will show the falsity of the principle which underlies the statement.

The same journal says:—"If a tithe of the stuff we hear about the deleterious effects of moderate drinking were true, we should have become, years ago, a nation of imbeciles, paupers, and assassins." Let the writer of these words analyse the statistics of the members of such classes to be found amongst us, and see in how vast a proportion of them drink has been the precursor of their imbecility, pauperism, and crime, and he will soon see that, but for drinking habits, their numbers would have been far less sad and sorrowful than they are. Certainly the facts as to the increase of these evils in our midst are in every way on the side of abstinence principles, and point with unmistakable clearness to the injurious effects of indulgence in alcohol.

Despite the unpromising outlook in Europe at present, it would seem that the principle of arbitration in the settlement of international disputes is gaining ground. The English Peace Society (47, New Broad-street, E.C.) has received from a correspondent at Copenhagen an account of a recent brief discussion upon international arbitration in the Danish Parliament, arising out of the proposal of one of the members, M. Bajer, to introduce an arbitral clause into the treaty now under negotiation between Spain and Denmark. The Danish Minister of Finance, M. Estrup, in reply on behalf of his Government, expressed his gratification at the progress already made by international arbitration, and his hope that wherever practicable their own country would profit by its application in cases of difficulty. At the same time he feared that this mode of settling differences would be apt to fail in the graver crises between nations. We are more sanguine than the Danish Minister appears to be. If arbitration is good for application in comparatively small matters, surely it is still better in the settlement of matters of international difficulty.

Life in New Zealand, according to a correspondent of The Daily News, is replete with vigorous interest from every point of view, and compares most favourably with Old World conditions. Nelson, a little city of 7000 inhabitants, has two daily papers, a well-furnished, and extensively-used free library and reading-room. All classes are said to be intellectually above rather than below the average of our own population. Home and domestic life, on the other hand, is far from satisfactory. The young people are so much better educated than their seniors that, as a consequence, respect for age, and reverence for parental claims, are but little shown. Women drink a good deal in secret, and, except in the upper classes, wives are frequently little better than overworked drudges, servants being extremely scarce. The social conditions of life are very similar in most other respects to our own, and the new comer finds himself far less in a strange land than he would expect.

The writer of the sketch from which we quote, having spent some years in a New Zealand city, and for Press purposes had the whole colony continually before him, speaks with authority on the subject of which he writes. The religious advantages are by no means great or calculated to promote spiritual life. Preaching power is at a low ebb; it forms a weak point, we are told, in Colonial life. A fine field seems open for ministers who combine with sound sense the qualities of earnestness and true enthusiasm. For all the defects enumerated, the writer yet thinks there is much to be praised as well as censured, and a great deal of real earnestness on the part of a good many workers is evinced.

The Jewish Intelligencer for September invites special prayer for Syria and those engaged there in spreading the Gospel of Christ. Rev. C. P. Sherman, writing from Zahlet on July 29, speaks of the great anxieties by which Christian workers in and around Damascus are beset. There are very ominous political signs of danger, which threaten a repetition of the massacres of 1860. Fanatical outrages incited by European emissaries have led to quarrels between Christians and Moslems, the latter vowing vengeance. Papers have been posted on several churches, calling upon the Moslems to rise and slay all Christians. Mr. Sherman thinks that nothing but a serious defeat of the Mahdi, humanly speaking, can save them from terrible persecution and slaughter, and earnestly entreats the prayers of the churches at home. Such a request calls for fervent response, and will not be made in vain.

The custom of supplying rounds of whiskey to those assembled at funerals in some parts of the Scottish Highlands is one that is extremely objectionable and reprehensible. It is strange that ministers officiating on such occasions do not more firmly set their faces against it, and use their influence to put it down. From some recent correspondence in The Christian Leader, it appears that the evil is a deeply-rooted one. We trust the ventilation of the subject in the pages of our northern contemporary may lead to the formation of a strong and irresistible public opinion in favour of abolishing such a senseless and pernicious abuse of the canons of hospitality. In a modified form, the evil exists to a large extent in England, as those who reside in the vicinity of public cemeteries well know. In the latter case, however, the sanction of ministerial acquiescence is happily wanting.

An admirable suggestion is made by a writer in The Echo for the formation of a "Domestic Servants' Protection League," with the object of watching over the interests of this useful portion of the community. The opening of "Homes" for their reception when out of situation, and for discharging, without fee, the duties of a registry office, is advocated. Servants are greatly at the mercy of their employers, and are often discharged without a character, through the caprice and thoughtlessness of a mistress, to the peril of their future life. Girls are often blamed for preferring the independence of factory life to the advantageous restraint of domestic service. But those who choose the latter are often in the greater danger. The factory girl, though she contracts a coarseness of speech and behaviour, learns a rough and ready way of taking care of herself, and if she forfeits her moral character she still can obtain work; but her sister in service is more helpless, and if she loses her character there is nothing for her but the river or the street. Every movement for their protection has our heartiest sympathy. Great good would result, we believe, from the founding of such an extensive organisation as that referred to.

Dr. B. W. Richardson, at the instance of the Committee of the Battersea Home for the reception of Lost or Stray Dogs, has been devoting special attention to the discovery of a painless method of destroying animals which may from various causes have to be killed. Under his superintendence a "lethal chamber" has been constructed, where by means of an anæsthetic gas the animal to be destroyed is rendered unconscious, and a painless death ensured. Other means for accomplishing the painless slaughter of animals have been devised. It is said that with the same end in view the London Model Abattoir Society is about to provide a place for the humane destruction of sheep and oxen in the neighbourhood of Islington Cattle Market. Considering the amount of suffering inflicted upon helpless animals in slaughter-houses of various kinds, it is a cause for thankfulness to find eminent scientists seriously considering this important subject.

It is our painful duty to record the death, after a very brief illness, of Mr. Brailey, the valued secretary of Mr. Fegan's Home for Boys. He leaves a widow and four children quite young. Only a few days ago he was the picture of health. Mr. Fegan is expected home from Canada at the end of this month.

We very much regret to say that that indefatigable worker, Mr. George Hatton, of the St. Giles' Christian Mission and the Prison Gate Mission, has returned, after a few weeks' absence from London, without any apparent improvement. His medical adviser insists on absolute rest and change for some months. We commend him and the Missions to the prayerful and practical sympathy of those who appreciate his worth, and the value of the work to which he has for so many years gratuitously devoted all his energies.

SOUTH AFRICA.—A correspondent writes:—"You will rejoice to hear that the Lord is working mightily in South Africa by his servant Andrew Murray. There is a glorious revival at Wellington; two hundred souls have professed conversion. Mr. Murray was going to commence operations at Stellenbosch, where the ground has been thoroughly prepared."

INTEMPERANCE IN SWITZERLAND.

THE Federal Council of Switzerland has issued a Blue Book in reference to the consumption of alcohol in that country. It has justly been described as one of the most extraordinary State documents ever published. There is perhaps no other country in which drunkenness so alarmingly prevails, or in which the consumption of alcohol is so large. The consequences are that mental diseases and poverty have so increased that the madhouses are full to overflowing, and pauperism amongst the lower classes is terrible to contemplate.

It has long been felt by many in all the Cantons that determined efforts should be made to cope with the evil and suppress it. Petitions have gone to the Government from all parts, and the Blue Book referred to is the deliberate réply of the Council to the call made upon it to take steps to modify the existing state of things. Two ways were open for it to deal with the matter, first by lessening the number of licences, and secondly, by raising the duty on alcohol, which at present is ridiculously low.

In refusing to do either of these things, the Council admits the seriousness of the evil, but pointedly refers to the fact that the enormous sale of wines, beers, and spirits, results in a very large revenue to the State. A chapter headed "Advantages of Spirituous Drinks," is appended, in which the following words occur:—

"Everyone knows by experience that after a hard day's work, when one feels overwhelmed by professional cares, it is impossible to bring a cheerful temper into the society where we amuse or mutually encourage each other unless one indulges in a glass of generous wine or refreshing beer, which effaces the traces of daily labour, and opens the heart to other impressions. As much as we sympathise with those whom the craving for drink has thrown into the arms of madness or has led to suicide or crime, we must not forget that in the public-house is to be found a social life that is an efficacious remedy against hypochondria and misanthropy, as well as against egotism, vanity, narrowness of ideas, and extravagance of imagination."

The immense number of persons engaged in the liquor traffic form a powerful class of whom probably the Council are afraid, but this apology for drunkenness and bold alliance with the drink traffic will produce a great revulsion of feeling in Switzerland. It is more than probable that at the next elections a course will be taken which will bring about a complete revision of the Constitution in reference to Temperance measures.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for the ensuing week:—Sept. 14, Mark xv. 16—32; Sept. 15, Mark xv. 33—47; Sept. 16, Mark xvi. 1—20; Sept. 17, Zech. i. 1—16; Sept. 18, Zech. iii. 1—10; Sept. 19, Zech. iv. 1—14; Sept. 20, Zech. viii. 1—12

CENTRAL HALL, NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—At this hall a successful seven days' Mission, conducted by Mr. W. Forbes, of London, was brought to a close on Friday evening last. Each evening he addressed well-attended meetings, and the closing address was warmly appreciated by a large audience. This hall is one of the greatest centres of philanthropic effort in the North, and having lately been re-painted and re-decorated at considerable expense, is now, perhaps, one of the handsomest. Since the death of Mr. Rowland Lambert the work of the hall has been a labour of love on the part of his estimable widow. We are glad to think that the translation of her brother, Rev. W. J. Townsend (late of Stockport), to Newcastle will in a great measure have lightened the labours and encouraged the efforts of Mrs. Lambert.

DOING THE WILL OF GOD.

By Rev. H. W. WEBB-PEPLOE.

(Concluded from last week.)

SHALL we take it, then, that we are no longer "to live in the flesh, to the lusts of men? That old life is dead; it was dealt with on Calvary. What has the child of God to do with worldly tastes and desires? What do they end in? Hear Solomon, the most magnificent instance of any man who lived to the flesh. He had possessed all that the wisdom, wealth, pleasure, and power of the world could bestow, yet he says it is all vanity, vanity and vexation of spirit! He never got a bit of joy out of the whole of his pleasures in the world. You may get satiety, but never satisfaction in the deep sense of the word. The worldling may think he is happy, but it comes with the hap, just as it goes; it is dependent on circumstances. Not so with the man of God, who has got into the position that God gives him. His life is a calm, ceaseless flow of joy that is better than "pleasure."

"All joy his loved ones bringing,
When Jesus comes;"

and that may be now as well as hereafter!

The saint of God is lifted by faith into this new resurrection-life. It is living in the Spirit; it is no mere bodily frame or feeling. Why does Paul groan, as he says in the eighth of Romans? Because he is weary of this poor old carcase, and he wants to experience the glorious manifestation of the sons of God in the world to come. And yet with all its pains you can glorify God in this body of humiliation. If you have to suffer in the flesh you do it in a double sense—first, by faith, in the person of God's dear Son, in whom you have ceased from sin; and now experimentally in your own poor frame, tied down to the earth by the laws of gravitation. And yet this shall not hinder the manifestation of God's power in you—God working in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure.

How far are you willing that you should no longer live to the lusts of men, but to the will of God? "Oh, of course we must submit to the will of God," some Christian says. What! a Christian speak thus? Yes, alas! too frequently; because men do not understand or "know God" as they ought. Why, my brother, the will of God is the most delightful thing any Christian can know. It is not a dreadful thing. Let us look at half a dozen texts. "It is not the will of God that one of these little ones should perish" (Matt. xviii. 14). We start fair, then; there is no perishing now. But the Lord has got a better will concerning us than this even (Rom. xii. 2). He desires that there should be transformation scenes taking place. People are frequently going to the theatre to have a transformation scene. Why do they not work it out to the glory of God, in their own spirit, soul, and body, which are God's? "Be not conformed to this world." It is not at the theatre that God wants to have a transformation scene, but in the heart, in the home, in the daily life. "Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God."

But that is not all. We read, in 2 Cor. viii. 5, of certain people in Macedonia who gave themselves to the Lord and to the Apostle Paul "by the will of God." Paul had not even hoped for that. I suppose Paul's faith failed sometimes a little; he did not fancy they were going to be so real. I am afraid that a great many of us ministers of the Gospel have not the least belief that the 1,500 people here are going to give themselves unto the Lord and unto us. Will you do it, and put us all to shame? Give yourselves up unto the Lord by the will of God. Do it; it is God's will. You can never exhaust his storehouse. You can never become a pauper. The man who has God is a millionaire. Dear brethren, are we living up to our income? We can never overspend. Give yourselves to the Lord and unto us to-night, and you will find there will be a grand transformation going on. When you begin to give out, the world will begin to get rich through you. Remember Him who, though He was rich, for our sakes became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich. Will you try Him?

But that is not all. In Gal. i. 4 we read that Jesus Christ "gave Himself for our sins that He might deliver us from this present evil world according to the will of God and our Father." It is not God's will that we should be living according to this world. Mothers think that because their girls are "coming out" they must take them into society. Then the boys must be looked after, or they will never "get on." You remember the lawyer's advice to his son: "My boy, 'get on,' honourably if you can, but at any rate 'get on.'" That is pretty much the advice of half the Christian people in the world. They say, practically, "You know I must get a position for my boy. I must place the girls well. It would not do not to let them see any society; why, they might never get married." Dear friends, I wish you would let them be given up to the Lord, and see if He would not manage the marriages and everything else.

There is another word for us in 1 Thess. iv. 3: "This is the will of God, even your sanctification." What does that mean? The Apostle is telling them that they ought to keep their bodies for God; that they have no right to sin against the body. Let it be held in sanctification and honour, and consecrated wholly to the Lord. I am not to take this body and use it for the devil, it is God's property. "Glorify God in your bodies which are his." My brethren, I beseech you never allow the devil to have a single hold upon your body; let it be kept for the Lord. This is his good and holy will.

Once again. In the same Epistle (v. 18) we read: "In everything give thanks." You say you came to Keswick with such a bundle of cares resting on you. "In everything give thanks." "But what about that special trouble of mine?" you say. "There is my dear child, who has been laid aside with spinal disease for many months. Can I give thanks in that?" "In everything give thanks, for this is the will of God, in Christ Jesus concerning you." Oh, let us have more thankfulness, ever giving glory to God. And if some feel they would like to shout it out—well, though I do not feel disposed to express it in that way myself, if you must have it I will forgive you! But do let us be downright real when we say, "Glory to God!"

Turn to another passage, 1 Peter ii. 15, "For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men." And again, chap. iii. 17, "For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well doing than for evil doing." Ah! this well doing will bring you suffering. God has never said his children were to be easy-going Christians, walking through the world with fine weather all the way. Christ suffered in the flesh. He suffered all the time he was in the flesh. We must be prepared for it too. It is better if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well doing than for evil doing. Only let it be the will of God that you suffer. If it is, we know that we are in good company. What we want is to be real in our Christian life; if we are, of course we will suffer.

Take one more passage in the same Epistle, chap. iv. 19, "Wherefore, let them that suffer according to the will of God commit the keeping of their souls in well doing to Him as unto a faithful Creator." Let us commit the keeping of our souls to Him, and then with determination let us go forward to suffer, if need be. We commit and God keeps. As we are exhorted in chap. v. of this same Epistle (ver. 7): "Casting all your care upon Him, for He careth for you." He will look after you. This applies to everything that concerns you. Commit solemnly to God your salvation, your body, your business in the world, your method and manner of life—every sphere and position of your being. Do you say, It is too much? Remember that Christ suffered for us in the flesh, and we are to "arm ourselves with the same mind." That is what we come here for—to arm ourselves before going back again to the battle. This is the armour: "Let the same mind be in you that was in Christ Jesus." Cover yourselves with this armour, and you will find that it wonderfully equips you for the battle.

This, then, is the will of God concerning you. You say it looks rather hard. But I am to arm myself with the mind that is in Christ. What was the will of God to Christ? We find it in the 40th Psalm, and it is quoted in the 10th of Hebrews, where Paul is setting forth the provision of God in our High Priest Christ Jesus. He says: "I delight to do thy will, O my God; yea, thy law is within my heart." What saith the Psalmist? "Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage." (Ps. cxix. 54). Oh, then, it is only a pilgrimage. It was the delight of the Son of God to do the will of his Father in Heaven. How much do we know about this? Christ gave Himself up to do the will of his Father, because he knew it would result in glory to God, and the salvation of many souls. Would that it were so with all of us.

One last thought. It is a great thing to speak about the life of God in a poor, weak believer, but how am I to live it out? What is to be done? I see that there is something brighter and better that I have not got; how am I to get it? We cannot tell you all that you have to do; it would take too long. But let me say just one or two words more. The first thing is to apprehend by faith what Christ has done for you, and what God now claims from you every moment of your life. Let me quote some words of Archbishop Leighton, who, as you know, was perhaps the best writer on this Epistle of Peter we have ever had. He says, "The death of Christ's sinless flesh becomes to the believer the death of his sinful flesh—that is, of his corrupt and evil nature." Then he adds, "As our sin caused the death of Christ, so his death causes the death of sin in us." That is to say, it is a real potential force working in us day by day which causes us to know experimentally that we are dead to sin. It is a blessed thought that by the grace of God we can so realise what the Lord Jesus Christ has done for us, that though we can never be perfected here below, the work is perfected in Him. Here lies the distinction between two classes of preaching. I do not mean now to introduce anything like division, but I want you to distinguish here. I can never preach the perfection of the sinner on the earth, but I can preach a perfect Saviour in heaven, who is ready to come to the sinner on the earth; and whoso takes Him shall find Him strong to keep that which is committed to his keeping. Believing into this Christ we find that He is able to do it.

Now we must take the position He assigns us; we must be separated from the old domination. If you have got into a position or into a companionship in which you cannot glorify God, let this Convention not pass till you have made the solemn determination that by God's grace you will remain in no position in which you cannot glorify God. Do not begin to talk against circumstances, or to say that they are holding you down. Do you mean to tell me that our God is not a Master of circumstances, that He cannot manage a paltry twopence? Of course you say, He can manage twopence, but you doubt whether He can manage a business of £2000 a year. "I am placed in such circumstances that if I were to make the sacrifice, it would mean ruin to me and my children." The Lord knows all about that; He can manage the £2000 as easily as the twopence. Why, the cattle on a thousand hills are his. Do you suppose He cannot work up a little fortune for you according to your need? We have heard of the Scotchman who prayed God "to give him a little competency, and to pay it quarterly!" But ours is better than quarterly. "Give us this day our daily bread." Can we not trust God to give us our daily bread? Oh! it is a blessed position to depend on omnipotent love and inexhaustible wealth.

Lastly, I beseech you, if you would really apprehend all that Christ has done for you, take time for a devout study of God's Word. Half the Christians know nothing of their Bibles, I am sorry to say. They like Conventions, but they do not like to study the Word of God. Be in earnest about it; be constantly engaged in learning all that God would teach you. Then it will come to pass that, though there will never be perfection on earth, there will be this—the world will look at you and say, God is in you of a truth. The mind that was in Christ Jesus shall be in you. While you are in the flesh you will no longer live to the lusts of men, but to the will of God. So help you God. Amen.

HOMES FOR WORKING BOYS IN LONDON.

THE seven homes connected with this institution, and situated in various parts of London, are intended for boys between the ages of thirteen and seventeen, who are able to work and earn wages, but have no home, to save them from the temptations of common lodging-houses. The pressing need for such Homes will be seen by the fact that while there are thousands of homeless youths in London, the whole sleeping accommodation of the institution does not amount to 400.

As indicating that the purpose of the institution is being definitely answered, several "cases" are submitted in the recently issued report, to enable readers to judge for themselves. In one instance a poor lad found his way to one of the Homes in a state of utter destitution and friendlessness. He was at once received, a situation found, and ultimately a good position on the Great Northern Railway was offered to him. Recently he paid a visit to the old Home in a suit of clothes that would have done credit to any City clerk. Another lad, who was evidently going to the bad, was so reclaimed and reformed, that he is now holding a comfortable post in an hotel. Another is in a position of trust and confidence, who formerly served a term of imprisonment for theft. Many of the cases go to prove that these lads are frequently "more sinned against than sinning."

Everything is evidently done that can be done to make the Homes attractive, the evenings instructive, and the Sabbaths spiritually profitable. The committee are fortunate in their choice of superintendents, who evince an unfeigned love of the work they have undertaken, and have the temporal and spiritual interests of the boys at heart. This accounts for the attachment which is created in return, and which finds expression from time to time in loving and grateful testimonies, similar to that uttered by one of the poor lads to the matron: "You have been like a mother to me." The office of the institution is 8, Duke-street, Adelphi, W.C.

WORK IN EAST LONDON.—In consequence of our Hall in Blair-street being too small, we have been compelled to take another and larger one, the late Welsh Chapel, Brunswick-road, Poplar, E. We ask your readers to assist us in carrying on a Gospel work in this neighbourhood, also in the densely populated district near the East and West India and Milwall Docks. Geo. Fuller, Supt.

34, Cawdor-street, Poplar, E.

AS YE GO, PREACH.—Mr. Wm. Catlin, of Clerkenwell, sends us some details of a summer's holiday lately spent in the South Western counties, in the course of which he visited and preached at Plymouth, Exminster, Exeter, Pontymoile, Weston-super-Mare, &c. Speaking of the work in Plymouth, he says: "We had open-air meetings, processioning the neighbourhood, and indoor services every night during our stay of eight days. Shaftesbury Hall was never known to be so crowded. Professor Williamson, a public singer and teacher of music, heard us singing in the streets near his residence, came out with a splendid guitar, mounted the empty case, and in presence of his neighbours struck up, with marvellous effect, "Sing them over again to me, wonderful words of life." He was brought to the Lord at one of Mr. Moody's meetings at St. Andrew's Hall, being struck with the words they were singing as he entered: "Oh, take me as I am!" He found peace, and now he was with us nightly in the streets of Plymouth." Referring to Pontymoile, Mr. Catlin writes:—"Brother Wintle, himself but a labouring man in the adjoining ironworks, has a noble band of workers for God around him; together we visited night after night the neighbouring towns and villages on the mountain sides, singing and preaching to thousands in the open-air, in blast furnaces, in nut and bolt and wire works, or the mouth of the pit, as the case might be."

NAVVIES AT TILBURY DOCKS.

DEAR SIR,—I visited the Tilbury Docks when the Thames Church Mission Society first appointed Mr. Simons to take charge of the Mission there, and assisted in the distribution of Bibles, tracts, &c., during the dinner hours of the workmen. We were generally well received even then, but care and tact had to be observed.

After a lapse of eighteen months I again visited with Mr. Simons last week, as I was anxious to see if the men had learned the value of the Society's labours. On entering the works I observed the great change which 3000 or 4000 navvies, with spade and shovel, had made. Coming to the Mission Hall, I found the missionary in one of the little class rooms, bathing and binding up the broken head of one of the dock workmen. Whilst the bandaging was going on I noticed many conveniences to meet the immediate wants of the daily-occurring accidents amongst the thousands of workers. The hall also was ready for evening prayer and praise.

After a few words with Mr. Simons and his active helper Williams, another colporteur and myself started with loaded bags for distribution amongst the men. I lost the other members of our party amongst the deep cuttings and planks of rough bridges, but I found the navvies eager to take the books and enter into conversation. The dinner appliances and positions were very varied, sods of earth forming generally their seats and tables, the men holding their food in their hands. There were also little huts made up partly of sods and boards, and after supplying the men under the bright sun, I was called to the cabins. The first contained men with long heavy sea-boots and slouched hats; men who probably had dug and delved and prepared a refuge, in many lands, for our ships.

Having finished that part of the work, I ran down under a "tip," and came suddenly before a dozen more men who had finished their dinners, and I was about to commence my work of conversation and distribution, when I heard some one reading. I stopped, and listening, found they were reading the Bible. I observed that the men of this gang were young, probably employed in tipping the earth, and forming the embankment. They were reading Matt. xxv. These men were in attitudes in which they could rest, while comfortably hearing the reader. Some were smoking, but all were attentive. On moving to the front I saw that the reader was about 25 or 30 years of age, and was sitting at the higher part of the shed, on some sods, whilst the other men formed an oblong square. I had surprised them, but they did not stop reading. After they had finished the chapter, they invited conversation. Our talk could only be short, but the Bible was freely used, and references were read and discussed. All seemed anxious for the one thing needful: joy and gladness marked their sunburnt and intelligent faces.

I remained for the evening address in the Mission Hall, and came away much refreshed by what I was permitted to see during the whole day's proceedings, and deeply impressed by the evident thoroughness of the work, and, as I have noticed in other sections of the Thames Church Mission sphere, the admirable adaptability to the special circumstances of those to whom the Mission agents minister, and whose conversion to God is the object apparently ever present to their minds. John Webb King.

Christ Church-road, Hampstead, N.W.

A MESSAGE FROM CANADA.—Dear Sir,—We wish to thank our kind, but unknown, friend at Eastbourne, through the medium of your pages, for regularly sending us a copy of The Christian. Under any circumstances the magazine would be welcome for the sake of its cheering and refreshing contents, but situated as we are so far from civilisation we assure you it is quite a boon to us. Will our kind friend address it for the future to Rev. J. Hines, St. Carlton Post-office, Saskatchewan, N.W.T. of Canada? Another Asissippi has sprung up lately nearer Winnipeg, and we find our letters, &c., are frequently sent to the new Asissippi, and in consequence are much longer in reaching us. For this reason we think it safer to address as above.—Yours truly,

E. M. Hines.

PERSECUTION IN SWITZERLAND.

IN the Pall Mall Gazette of the 3rd instant the following letter appeared from Mrs. Josephine Butler, dated Switzerland, August 31, concerning the persecution of the Salvationists in the canton of Berne :—

It is very desirable that you should know the present deplorable state of things in this country. The time is past when we had hoped by "speaking fair" to the authorities of this land with their supporters, the violent mob, that we might tide over the evil time without calling upon their country the censure of the civilised peoples of Europe. The picture, however, becomes darker every day. It is not now the Salvationists alone who are persecuted, but any and all Christian people who may have evinced publicly or privately any sympathy for them, or who commit the offence of holding religious meetings of a voluntary and informal nature. Incidents are being multiplied of the same character as that which occurred in the Canton of Neuchâtel, where the prefect of a village entered with his gendarmes a private house in which a few friends had met to take tea and converse together. When the company asserted that they were not holding a Salvationist meeting, the prefect pointed, with a scornful triumph, to a Bible which happened to be lying on the table, and said, "There is the proof against you, the proof that you are Salutistes!" On another such occasion the family Bible was thrown on the ground, torn, and trampled under foot by the persecutors. In every such case of violence the assailants are protected, and the victims are not unfrequently fined or expelled.

The foreign Salutistes are now almost all expelled, and the persecution rages against the Swiss Christians themselves who are carrying on the work of revival, initiated by English Salvationists. You probably heard of the affair at Bienne, where the house where a few worshippers were gathered was "more completely destroyed than if it had been set on fire," and whence the inmates scarcely escaped with their lives. The incident of this outbreak has had such an influence with the Federal Government that they have continued to limit more and more the small amount of freedom and peace before enjoyed by the Salutistes. Their action has culminated in the decree of the Berne Government proclaiming that no meetings whatever of the character of Salutism, public or private (not even in the most intimate fashion in family circles), shall be henceforward permitted, and that, moreover, it shall be penal to speak in favour of the Salutistes! In order that you may estimate the enormity of this decree, I must remind you that these poor Salutistes have never in Switzerland provoked opposition, as they have done in England, by displays, processions, noisy music, &c.; on the contrary, they are driven to pray and speak, like the Covenanters of old, in forests and caves, and quiet places where they may be uninterrupted.

What is the secret of this hostility against them on the part of the rabble and the authorities? I have known the social life of this country well for many years, and am able to give you the answer. It is because the Salutistes have not confined themselves simply to preaching Christian doctrine (which, indeed, is very assiduously taught by the churches here), but have pitilessly attacked the vices of the people, high and low, rich and poor. Those vices have enormously increased of late years; and the drunkards, the impure livers, the gamblers, with the egotists and materialists of every kind, have banded themselves together to annihilate the messengers of the higher and purer life. They cling to their vices with the dogged tenacity which the Swiss have formerly manifested in the pursuit of good or the overcoming of difficulties. The Salvationists have been pelted and mobbed in England, but in England the magistrates and our chief judges have taken the part of order and justice, and have not applauded the assailants. It is the sympathy of the authorities here with the roughs which has brought the country to such a pass, and that sympathy is based on the common desire to be let alone in their evil habits. "Let us alone; why art thou come to torment us?" was the cry of the Gadarene devils. It is very much the same cry which we hear now. M. Cornaz, Minister of Police and Justice (!) at Neuchâtel, who is the Judge Jeffrys of the present persecution, has declared in a public speech that not only must the Salutistes be silenced, but the members of the British and Continental Federation (for higher morality) must be expelled; and for the same reasons: because we of the Federation say to M. Cornaz and all men in authority, "Have done with your vices, and set a decent example to the people." There are men in the different cantonal governments who would do better, but they are weak enough to be carried along by the muddy tide.

We ought in England to sympathise with the good men and women in Switzerland who are against all this. A league for the defence of law and justice has been formed—La Ligue du Droit Commun—the history of which I expect will be worthy of observation by all lovers of justice. They have put forth a grave manifesto, not expressing sympathy with the Salutistes, with whom some of them do not agree, but pleading the cause of equity on their behalf, as they would for any injured or outraged people, and warning the Government of the dangers of the reign of anarchy which it is inaugurating. The faces of these good men, I observe, are sad and careworn, more than they were when I saw them last. They are suffering as patriots. They had prepared some pamphlets for wide distribution. It seems now that it will not be worth while to print them, as 'scarcely anyone will have courage to buy or possess them.' There is here, in fact, a miserable reign of terror. The elections seem likely to result in favour of the "Radicalisme autoritaire," at the head of which are these violent persecutors. The Ligue du Droit Commun seems likely to be prosecuted because of its brave and constitutional utterances. A Swiss gentleman of great experience writes to me: "As for the foreigners, they will all be expelled. Tell your countrymen they may look out for that, and they need not be surprised at anything."

Meanwhile the violences continue, private correspondence is opened and read, women are beaten in the streets in daylight. The youngest daughter of M. Aimé Humbert, coming from a meeting in the country a few days ago, was struck on the head by a stone thrown by one of the protégés of the Neuchâtel Government, and has remained stunned by it for several days. The motto of the persecuting party seems to be to de-Christianise Switzerland. What the end of it all will be, politically, it is difficult to foresee. It is clear, however, that the great power of modern days—public opinion—should be brought to bear on the matter. These tyrants in Switzerland should be made to feel that civilised public opinion in Europe is against them.

On the same day there was published in The Daily News the following communication from their Geneva correspondent:—

The Berne Government has once more made itself ridiculous by issuing an edict which absolutely forbids all meetings, whether private or public, of the Salvation Army. This edict, however, unlike the historical one of Henry IV. of France, accords no guarantees, as that of Nantes accorded to the Protestants. On the contrary, the rulers at Berne decline to recognise the Army as a sect, and say that as it is not an acknowledged religion, it is not entitled to the benefits which Article 50 of the Federal Constitution gives. That article especially provides for the freedom of religious opinion throughout the country, and does not in any way attempt to define to what extent that opinion may go. It would therefore be interesting to learn by what process of logic the Berne Government has come to the conclusion that the Salvation Army is not entitled to the benefits of the Article. However eccentric the Army may be in its mode of worship, the fact remains that the soldiers of the Army are as earnest and zealous in their faith as any other recognised sect. Why then should they not have the same rights and liberties extended to them?

This question is the more pertinent at the present moment as it happens that large numbers of Mormon missionaries are scattered through the country, and not only are they allowed to preach their doctrines with impunity, but it is an admitted fact that they have supplied means to enable their converts to emigrate to Salt Lake City, and during the last six months some dozens of men, women, and children have thus been sent away. These Mormon missionaries have had no restraint of any kind put upon them, and although a petition was sent by some of the inhabitants of the Bernese Oberland, where the followers of Brigham Young have been very active, praying the Government to stop the missionaries from preaching, the petitioners were curtly informed that these representatives of a polygamous doctrine were protected by Article 50 of the Constitution, and so long as they created no disturbance could not be interfered with.

How, then, is the Berne Government going to justify its act with reference to the Salvation Army? In what quality does it assume to interdict the citizens of a free State from worshipping God in any way they please? This interdiction is at once a confession of weakness and an act of despotism, and if the Army had not been assailed by brutal mobs the Government would have allowed the meetings to go on; but the mob has its way, and the Government of free Switzerland bows before its laws. There are some clever men amongst the rulers, and it is to be regretted that they have allowed themselves to be hoodwinked into a despotic policy that can only serve to cover them with ridicule, while it is certain to miss its mark, for the Army has got too strong a footing in the country to be easily dislodged, and though they may suffer defeat at one point they will conquer at another, and finally triumph all along the line.

LIVERPOOL CHILDREN IN CANADA.

OVER 200 of our Liverpool waifs have this season been placed in situations and homes from the Distributing Home in Canada. Our family in this Dominion now numbers some 1700. They each get their Christmas cards and New Year's letters, and are reported upon by the clergyman of the district. We visit them, as far as strength will allow, and they, in return, visit this Home they like so well.

The elder girls are our greatest source of anxiety and care. The overcrowding in small rooms and cellars in Liverpool, and the drinking, careless, wretched habits of the mothers pollute the young minds, and sometimes leave evil traces in years of after life. We would urge upon ladies who are willing to spend time and strength in labouring for the good of others, to establish more mothers' meetings, and instruct these mothers in the right bringing up of their children.

We have had but frail health, and so obliged to attempt less this summer, but hope to return to England in September, and make arrangements for another winter's work.

Knowlton, Canada, Aug. 21. Louisa Bird.

MR. AND MRS. J. B. WOOKEY opened their purity work in Luton on Sunday week, in a large building intended for a theatre, but which, fortunately, the authorities will not license. At each service the place was crowded, hundreds having to stand, and the utmost interest was evinced. The afternoon and evening services were intended more especially for the young, great numbers of whom were present. On Monday evening a welcome tea-meeting to Mr. and Mrs. Wookey was followed by a meeting in the Friends' Sabbath-school building, in Church-street. Mr. Wookey stated his intentions and views in forming a Social Purity Society, and produced cards of membership, and we understand a considerable number joined.

"I GETS SULKY WHEN I'M SPOKE TO."

BY REV. GEO. F. PENTECOST.

THE inquiry-rooms had been unusually full that night. It was now near twelve o'clock and almost all the workers and inquirers had gone home. A few workers were having last words with souls whose distress of mind and doubts were not removed. It had been a blessed night. Nearly one hundred souls had found Jesus, or rather had been found of Him. We were all tired, but greatly rejoicing. I had just left a young man who had yielded his last difficulty and given himself up to the Lord who bought him.

After bidding him good-night, I turned to speak to one or two of my fellow-workers before we separated for the night. As I did so I noticed sitting, apparently unobserved and unnoticed by any one, what appeared to be a little mite of a girl. At first I was inclined to pass her by, supposing that she was a child only waiting for some of the late lingerers; but a second thought led me to go to her and ask who she was and what she was waiting for. Making the simple inquiry, and looking into her face as she turned it up to answer my question, I saw a very plain but intensely troubled face. The tears were silently coursing down her cheeks. My attention was riveted and my interest instantly quickened and fixed. I sat down by her side and asked her what her trouble was that made her look so sad. I found that she was a little kitchen-maid, about fourteen years old, and that she had been to the meeting in the great Mildmay Hall, and had come into the inquiry-room, and had been present there for nearly three hours, hoping that some one would come and speak to her. But no one had noticed her, or if they had, had passed her by as a child.

To my question as to what was the trouble with her, she made answer:

"I want to get saved."

I cannot put on paper the tone of her voice, or her manner of speech. But it was sad and despairing to the last degree. Her speech was slow and measured, as if there were a space between each letter of the words she spoke. It was a drawling monotone. Can you fancy how this would sound?

"I w-a-n-t t-o g-e-t s-a-v-e-d." With the slightest upward inflection on the last syllable of the last word, which gave it a little song-like intonation.

"Well, my child, are you not a Christian?"

"I thought I was."

"When did you think you were a Christian?"

"Last week, when I was here before."

"What made you think you were a Christian then?"

"Because a lady told me that Jesus died to save me, and if I trusted to Him he would save me; and that was the same as you told us in the sermon; and she showed it to me in the Bible."

This was said in the same monotone as the rest; and, indeed, throughout the entire interview she never changed her tone, except that at the last she spoke a little quicker, and with a certain eagerness as the final truth dawned on her little mind and heart. All the time she was speaking to me her face was turned upward to mine, her eyes filled with tears, and with an eager, hungry look in them, as though she were listening for her life, as indeed she was. The little, plain face became positively fascinating, if not beautiful, as she looked up into mine, as if her soul's salvation depended on the next word I said to her.

"Well," continued I, "and did you believe what the lady told you about Jesus?"

"Yes, sir."

"And did it make you glad to know that the dear Saviour had died for you and saved you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, how is it that you are in trouble now? He has not changed since last week; and besides, He does not save for a few days, but when any one gives herself to Him, He saves her for ever. Don't you know that He says 'I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish'?"

"But I ain't saved now." This in a most distressed and despairing tone.

"But how do you know you are not saved now?"

"'Cause I've gone back to my old ways."

"Well, that is too bad. But what do you mean by going back to your old ways?"

"Have bad thoughts."

And here for the first time she dropped her eyes and looked intensely ashamed, and began to cry audibly. I deeply pitied the poor little thing, who, because bad thoughts had assailed her, had given up all thought that she could be saved. I thought of David, who said he "hated thoughts"; and I thought of myself and wondered if I were as sensitive as this little kitchen-maid to bad thoughts, and remembered how subtle and distressing evil thoughts are to a heart that really desires to be pure and holy, as this child evidently did. And then I wondered what her bad thoughts could be, and determined to comfort and reassure her a little, and so said:—

"Bad thoughts are sinful; but if you do not encourage them, and turn away from them, and ask the Lord who saved you to take them away from you and put his own thoughts into your heart, He will do it. You must not suppose because some old bad thoughts come into your head that you are not, therefore, a child of God. Besides, when we are first saved or forgiven all our sins are not taken out of us. Jesus first takes us and makes us his own children, and then He begins to take away all the old evil. Just as if some kind, rich lady should make you her child; then she would take off your old clothes and put on new ones, and teach you all sorts of nice ways, and send you to school, so that you might be fitted to be her child. Now, you see, all this could not be done in a minute; but you would be her child all the time that you were getting rid of your old ways and learning all the new ways which your new mother would be pleased to have you learn. Do you not see that God has to teach you, now that He has got you, and you should not get discouraged just because in one week you have not learned everything that a Christian should learn, and got free from every evil thought and old habit. This is a part of God's goodness to us—that He gives us grace to overcome the evil. He is with us all the time, just as a loving teacher would be, to point out our mistakes and show us how to overcome them and do our lessons rightly. He is satisfied when he knows that we have a desire to be good children. But you said you had gone back to your old ways. Now what are these old ways which have given you so much distress?"

At this the little maid hung her head again, and looked very shamefaced. For a long while she would not speak. I wondered what her besetments were, which had overcome her. I was expecting to hear a confession of some one of the hundred vices and evil ways into which all sorts of people (mistresses, as well as maids) fall. For while we do not hold a "confessional" in the inquiry-room, many a strange confession is made of sins and habits which have long burdened the soul and stood between it and its peace.

Not getting an answer, I said, with some urgency, yet with kindness:

"Come, my child, tell me what your old ways are, which so distress you; perhaps, if you will tell me, I can help you, or at least tell you how you can get rid of them."

After some minutes of hesitation, with her head bent still lower, as if to hide her shame, she said:

"I gets sulky when I'm spoke to."

At first I could hardly repress a smile—so despairing was this confession, so distressed was the little maid. This was one of her old ways, which she had supposed would disappear when she became a Christian. It was her trouble, her sin — no doubt the most conspicuous in her obscure life. A little kitchen-maid with a dull and stubborn disposition, who, perhaps, knowing little sympathy from those for whom she worked, and perhaps receiving many a scolding and harsh word, had resented them with the "sulks." The deep contrition in her face, the choking sobs in her throat, attested how deeply the little one felt. My heart was touched for her, and, taking her by the hand, I said, as kindly as I could:

"My poor child, I am sorry that you have fallen back into this old way of sulking when your mistress or the older servants speak to you. It is very bad of you to do so, and certainly it is displeasing to God; but he will give you grace to overcome this habit, and make you cheerful, and prompt to mind and do what you are told. But you must not be discouraged. And was this the reason you thought you were not a Christian?"

"Yes, sir; my mistress told me that I was a 'pretty Christian' to be sulking when I was spoke to. And I knew that if I was a Christian I would not be cross to people when they told me to do things, even if they was cross to me; but I do want to get saved." And here was more quiet crying and distress of countenance.

I had gathered the little one's faith had been of the simplest kind, based on a most superficial knowledge of the word and way of salvation, so I set to work, and as carefully as I could, and as simply, too, unfolded to her the Gospel. She looked with eager, hungry eyes straight into mine all the time I was talking to her, fairly eating and drinking the "words of life." I asked her if she understood what I was saying to her. She said. "Yes, sir," in the same monotonous tone, drawling the words out slowly.

"Well, do you believe that the Lord Jesus saves you?"

"I thought I did, last week: but now I don't think I am saved, for, if I was, I wouldn't get sulky when I'm spoke to."

This was the one thing which had overthrown her faith; and she was so taken up with her besetment, and especially since the taunt of her mistress, that her belief that she had been saved was gone. I often find this to be a serious trouble with inquirers. When they have simply believed, and then something comes into their lives, which leads them to doubt that they were really saved, simple belief does not satisfy them. They then begin to look for something more than the naked Word of God as a ground and warrant for their salvation.

After trying various expedients to get her thoughts off herself and on to Christ and his Word, I asked her if she knew any of Christ's promises.

"I know 'God so loved the world,'" she said.

"Very well," said I, "let us see if you understand and believe this promise. Who said 'God so loved the world'?"

"Jesus."

"Yes, Jesus said it; and do you believe that what He said is true?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you any doubt about it?"

"No, sir."

"What did God so love?"

"The world."

"And who is the world? Does it mean the trees, and rocks, and the earth, and the sea?"

"No, sir; it means the people."

"What people; the rich people and the poor people, or the Jews?"

"Yes, sir; but it means everybody."

"That is quite right. It does mean everybody. And especially it means sinners, those who most need his love. And it means you. Do you believe that God so loved you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now let us go a step further. 'God so loved the world that he gave' — whom?"

"'His only begotten Son.'"

"Yes; that is right. And who was his only begotten Son?"

"Jesus."

"Yes. And what did he give Jesus for?"

"To die for us."

Then I tried, at this point, to explain to her and show her, out of the Word, what the death of Jesus meant, how He bore our sins and put them away, &c., and continued my catechism.

"Now go on with your verse, 'Gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever'—what?"

"'Believeth on Him.'"

"Yes. It does not say that whosoever is good, or whosoever is able to give up and overcome all their sins; does it?"

"No, sir. It says 'whosoever believeth on Him.'"

"And what does believing on Him mean?"

"Why, sir, you told us that it meant to believe what He says, and what He has done for us, and to trust Him."

"Well, do you believe what He says, and what He has done for you; and do you trust Him?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, go on with your verse again. 'That whosoever believeth on Him should not'—what?"

"'Perish.'"

"And what does that mean?"

"To go to hell."

"Quite right," said I, not a little amused and instructed by her straightforward and simple definition of the word. Whatever difficulties some of our modern theologians have in understanding the meaning of the word "perish," she had none.

"Well, then, if you believe on Him, will you go to hell?"

For the first time the dull, despairing look gave way from her face, and something like the suggestion of a smile came in, as she said, even more slowly than her wont was, as if she were yet a little fearful of accepting the truth—

"No, sir."

"No," continued I, "you will not perish, but have—what?"

"Everlasting life."

"And what does that mean?"

"To go to heaven."

"Yes; and will you have everlasting life?"

"If I believe on Him."

"Do you believe on Him?"

"Yes, sir."

"How do you know that you will not 'go to hell,' but 'go to heaven'?"

"Because Jesus says so."

"Well, if Jesus says that you will not go to hell, but go to heaven, are you saved or lost?"

"I'm saved."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, sir."

"How are you sure?"

"Because he says if I believe on Him I shall not perish but have everlasting life; and I do believe on Him."

With this last answer and confession of her faith the darkness fled away from her face and a happy peace spread itself over it, and the child positively looked pretty. The tears were gone, and a soft, happy light filled her eyes. I thought I had never spent a happier hour with an inquirer in my life, albeit she was a little kitchen-maid.

"Now, my child, what is to be done with the sulks?"

She replied, with a smile, as if the whole matter were now perfectly plain and clear to her:

"I will have to give them up, sir."

"But are you sure you will be able to give them up?"

"Oh! yes, sir."

"But how do you know you will be able?"

"Because, sir, now that I know Jesus saves me, nothing can make me sulky. I won't care what anybody says to me now that I'm saved."

We had a little prayer together, and the little kitchen-maid went away home. During the next week or ten days my time and attention was crowded with new cases every night, and the little maid had passed out of my mind. And now the meetings had come to an end. The last sermon was preached, the last address to the inquirers was over. It was twelve o'clock, and yet many of the dear friends were lingering to say "good-bye" and to speak out their gratitude to God for the great refreshing we had all had. I was sitting on the end of a seat in the room we had used for our after-meetings, talking with one or two friends, when I felt a little hard, rough hand make its way into mine from behind. I looked up, and there stood my little kitchen-maid, with a face like an angel's for brightness.

"Halloa!" said I. "Is that you? How do you know you are saved?"

"Because God so loved the world, that He gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." This blessed verse came out quick and clear, and her little, plain face was full of light and peace.

"Well, how about the sulks?" said I.

"They are all gone, sir, and I am so happy, and I have been waiting all the night to say 'good-bye' to you, sir, and to thank you for teaching me about 'God so loving the world.' And I am quite sure I am saved now."

Thus ended the chapter in which I had a part, but without doubt that humble life will go on in the strength of that great love, and glorify God in the kitchen, and mayhap in higher places, though there is many a daughter of the King glorifying Him in the kitchen who will be glorified by Him "in his appearing and kingdom."

SUNDAY AT AMERICAN SUMMER RESORTS.

CHAUTAUQUA.

OF all the delightful places to spend Sabbath, it seems to me that this is one of the most inviting. A sacred quiet prevails everywhere, and the modest, unfroward walk of the passers-by, hither and thither, disturbs in no way the most trivial meditation. You sit upon the verandah of your cottage and see and hear nothing to annoy your inherited sense of how the Lord's day should be observed. No immoral scene arrests the attention, no "blue coat" hurries along to put a stop to a quarrel born of strong drink, no horse cars, steam cars, steamboat, nor even carriage, divides your thought. There are none coming, and none going, for the gates are closed all day. No boats are rented, but all play at their chains with a kind of harmony which makes one rejoice that even they can have one day of rest in seven.

With all these removed and cut off it must be a dull day? By no means. All that body, mind, and soul could wish is here to invigorate, quicken, and inspire. Never shall I forget July 27, 1884. We awoke to find it raining, steadily and fast. It continued on, and one observed that "our blessings were coming directly from above to-day," and sure enough they did. The devotional conference at 8, and the Bible-classes at 9, were somewhat interfered with, but the after services not so much.

At 11 a.m. an audience of about 1200 in the "amphitheatre" greeted the Rev. Wm. Kincaid, of Oswego, N.Y., who was to preach. He took for his text one phrase of Eph. iii. 8, "The unsearchable riches of Christ." The discourse reached its climax when the preacher said with marked power, "We can have real friendship with an unseen presence." It was a message grand in its simplicity, forcible in its presentation, and remarkable in its spirit. He is a preacher to the souls of men. We were all helped.

This was only the beginning. After a little rest and bodily refreshment we returned to a second treat at 2 p.m. The sun was shining brightly. About 3000 had collected. The leader of this service was no stranger. Probably the most of those present had heard his voice. But to have heard was only to awaken a strong desire to hear again. It gave no uncertain sound. When the great light of Brooklyn Tabernacle announced his text (Ps. xix. 8): "The statutes of the Lord are right," every wandering gaze was arrested. It was a thrilling, melting effusion of Gospel truth. I saw strong men swaying, and many eyes weeping. Every individual received his portion of meat. I sincerely believe many a noble purpose was formed under his inspiration, and certainly scores of broken resolutions were recalled. He so manfully put the Bible above every other book and gave such cogent reasons why we should keep it there in our hearts that we were all better equipped to do so. As he glided into the fourth part and gave illustrations from real life, of the power of the Bible over hearts, every straying thought was captured and brought into line, and we were made to feel that the old Bible is the only safe thing to stand on, and the most blessed thing to have for a pillow in a dying hour.

The day was fittingly closed with a vesper service and sacred song—a day to be cherished. "The voice within was more distinctly audible than in the city, because of the stillness of the place, and the gentler affections of our nature sprang up more freshly in its tranquillity and sunshine—nurtured by the healthy principle which we inhale with the pure air and invigorated by the genial influences which descend into the heart from the quiet of the sylvan solitude around, and the soft serenity of the sky above." Such Sabbaths are a delight on earth. — Christian Intelligencer.

SARATOGA.

Our correspondents all refer to the remarkable quiet of the Saratoga Sabbath. No one of our great summer religious cottage cities seems more so. There is a hush in the air, save the subdued chorus of the thousands of birds singing in the grove. The only breach upon the morning sanctity is the sharp call of the newsboy, awakened by the unsanctified enterprise of the proprietors of the New York Tribune, who at half-past eight in the morning is shouting the title of these papers along the streets. We fear they have too large a patronage even among the church members.

Large congregations filled the churches in the morning. Last Sabbath Dr. Newman preached in the Methodist Church. The great house was filled. The audience was as conspicuous for character and social position as for numbers. Near us as we waited upon the service, sat ex-Senator Davis, Mr. Hendricks, the Democratic nominee for Vice-President, and W. H. Vanderbilt, with scores of noted clergymen and members of the learned professions sprinkled throughout the congregation. The sermon of Dr. Newman was an able one. Its theme was "The Great Conversion"—that of Paul. It was a sacred oration, giving a sketch of Paul's birth and education, a clear and orthodox analysis of regeneration, a picturesque description of the journey of Paul from Jerusalem to Damascus, and a very dramatic representation of the scene of his heavenly arrest and amazing change of heart and life. The Doctor held the great audience for over an hour.

The flavour of the Sabbath passes over into the Monday meeting of the preachers. This is always an interesting occasion. From fifty to one hundred are present. Usually the hour is devoted to discussions. Last Monday a lecture was given by Dr. E. L. Magoon, upon "Christian Art." It was an hour long, delivered without a note, or a moment's hesitation in speech, and was one of the most interesting and instructive discourses to which we have ever listened. It gave the whole history of monumental art, and the effect of the Christian idea upon Greek and Roman architecture.—Zion's Herald.

WHO WILL RESPOND?—I wonder if any reader, or readers, of THE CHRISTIAN would be disposed to assist me in enabling a young, unmarried lady, thoroughly educated, and speaking fluently both French and Italian, to give herself to Mission work, either in France, Belgium, or Italy. She is a true, earnest Christian, an excellent teacher, and animated, I believe, with a genuine love to the Saviour in her desire to go forth in his name. Having no means of her own, she would need to be supported. Perhaps some who are unable to leave home themselves, and to whom God has given the silver and gold, may be led to supply her lack. Should anyone be moved to respond to this appeal, I will gladly put them in communication with her. FRANK H. WHITE.

164, Westbourne-terrace, Hyde-park, W.

Evangelical Alliance Conference,

COPENHAGEN, AUG. 30 to SEPT. 6.

We have thought well to report at length some of the addresses, which, from the importance of the subjects and the ability of their treatment, seemed to merit the special attention of our readers. The more general report follows.

THE RELIGIOUS INDIFFERENCE

WHICH PREVAILS AMONG VARIOUS CLASSES, AND HOW BEST TO MEET IT.

By Rev. Dr. MARSHALL LANG, Glasgow.

"THE indifference which prevails." Does it prevail to such an extent as to make it a marked feature of our day? I answer, A surface-glance might prompt a "No;" a closer view compels a "Yes."

No. The Zeit-Geist—the spirit of the age of the telegraph and the telephone—is against apathies of all kinds. With regard to the things of faith, the signs are mixed. Compare the close of the nineteenth century with the middle of the eighteenth, when men were busied over apologies for Christianity, thinking little about what was to be done with the Christianity apologised for. What a difference of tone do we observe! The rationalistic spirit is abroad; but the older rationalism has been routed. One of the best answers to Strauss has been given by John Stuart Mill. The Rationalism of to-day confesses that men's souls cannot thrive on negations. Positivism is the name of its most striking efflorescence. In the Church we see more vigour: much heterodoxy certainly; but it is better to have thought-force, even in wrong directions, than to have a dull inertness, a stagnant orthodoxy. Church and no-church are conscious that, in every sphere of energy, there rings the voice heard in Patmos: "I would thou wert cold or hot,"—one thing or another, but not the insipidity of lukewarmness.

Yet I must balance the No by a Yes. Indifference does abound: sadly, fearfully does it prevail, in forms and types caused by the frictions, the struggles, the peculiar developments of our time. I cannot specialise these: some will be noticed by brethren at future sessions of the Alliance. I am not going to dwell on Agnosticism, Socialism, and other -isms which run up into the one generic word unbelief. I limit myself to the idea of indifference: the indifference which is the chronic malady of our fallen nature; the aversion from God and the testimony which He has given concerning his Son, whose root in all periods is one and the same: "The carnal mind is enmity against God." You call on me to trace this heedlessness of soul among various classes; in other words, to present some varieties of tint and tincture promoted by different surroundings, cultures, circumstances, influences—a subject far too wide to be satisfactorily discussed in the limits assigned to me. I must select only some view-points.

(1) First, I observe this indifference co-existing with many beautiful and semi-religious enthusiasms. To instance two:—

(a) "Has not the man of science," asks the author of "Natural Religion," "a faith, a worship, a glorious and fearful God? Is not his nature-unity an object which commands his devotion, calls forth his love, towards which his attitude is more reverent than that of the ordinary Christian to his God?" Well, grant that, in a genuine scientific ardour, there is much that elevates and purifies. But what is the effect when the motive power is only the admiration which is declared to be the scientist's ruling principle? No personal relation with God is allowed. The nature-unity is a mere intellectual abstraction; there is "no help to weakness or Redeemer to faith." Such an enthusiasm only hardens the unreceptiveness of the kingdom of God.

(b) Again: very notable is the development of social interests in our time. Politics, hitherto the domain of the few, are the care of the many. Sociology, one of the latest, is the most engrossing of sciences; and a noble science it is. Only, men may be so occupied with constructing an earthly paradise as to lose the vision of, the care for, a heavenly. "From the science-millennium of Comte the good Lord deliver us!" exclaims Mr. Maurice. Such a millennium may not, in a definite form, be accepted as a prospect by many; but the spirit of which it is the expression inspires an ever-widening circle of minds. And in the measure in which it spreads there will be an increasing distaste for the New Testament type of doctrine and holiness.

These instances may suggest other illustrations of what specially affects the cultured classes—the tendency of much that is intense in thought and action to silence the response of the heart to the kingdom of God's dear Son.

(2) Now, to glance at the more ordinary aspects of worldliness.

Nobody needs to be reminded of the idolatry which infects every class — the idolatry of wealth, with all which this involves: work at tremendous pressure, to push a gain, to hasten a fortune, or to maintain a position. Where is the guest-chamber for Jesus in minds on which Mammon has written his mark, or whose ambition is to win a place in the Mayfair of society?

The hurt operates more widely still. Do not overlook the moral effect of the keen struggle for existence to which so many are doomed. The poverty of over-taxed strength and gnawing worry is not favourable to the higher soul-life; it impoverishes the soil in which all that is generous takes root; it deadens hope; it indisposes for what is spiritual. When the toil ceases, there is the longing for some sensual stimulus or some mere amusement.

Verily, the Lord knew man. He knew the men of 1884, when He spoke of the "cares of this world," as well as "the deceitfulness of riches," choking the Word, so that it becomes unfruitful.

(3) Add to the outline I have given, the subtle influence of the critical temper of our age. Men talk about faiths; they have not faith; and people get to think that religion is either a matter of talk or not to be talked about. The old certainties—where are they? All seems uncertain. One feels in many—ay, even in many who go to our churches betimes—the echoes of John Sterling's words: "On higher matters, nothing to say; certainty I have none; nothing for it but to keep shut the lid of those secrets with all the iron weights in my power."

And so there passes before us to-day a sad procession: in the front rank, men and women speaking of things in earth and heaven; but their God—a socket without an eye; behind them the multitudes to whom life is either a grind, and a weary grind, or a laughter without real mirth; and the rank-and-file composed of thousands and tens of thousands—not the poorest only, those concerning whom the "bitter cries" have been raised but all sorts and conditions as well—carrying drearily banners over which are written, "No Church, no Priest, no Bible, no Sacrament, no God, no hope in the world." That is the exceeding great army arrayed against us. Indifference—ah, you may give it what name you choose—Secularism, Agnosticism, &c. There is the one awful fact, before which the prophet soul, in moments of depression, is tempted to cry, "Lord, who hath believed our report?"

How are we to deal with this fact? How shall the Christian life seek to vitalise this body of death? A question for whose answer I must refer you to the Lord Himself: "Lord, increase our faith!"

But some things we may say one to another, stirring up our minds by way of remembrance.

(1) First, let me remind you of two postulates—the assurance from which, the regulative principle on which, to fight. Both are contained in one word of our Lord.

(a) "When the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, He shall testify of Me; and ye also shall bear witness." Mark the "ye also." The Holy Spirit is not our accompaniment—we are His. It is not we against the world; it is He. He is come; He is testifying: we also.

What is his testifying? The energy of life. A recent writer has spoken of "the heresy of confounding force with vitality." It is a heresy that has penetrated our orthodoxy. Orthodoxy has expected to generate life by orthodoxy, preaching sound doctrine, effort. Oh, no; life is from above. Brethren of the Alliance, Sursum corda. The testifier is the Spirit which proceedeth from the Father.

(b) That is our assurance. The principle on which our warfare is to proceed is, that the condition of the effectual witness-bearing is the revelation of the Christ. "Testify of Me," convict the world through this testifying. All treasures of wisdom and knowledge are ours, to be used, but all as hidden in Christ. Be sure that it is the true Christ, the full Christ, the whole Christ, nothing but Christ. We have been reminded of "a parasite form of evangelical religion"—the syllogism, "Christ died for sinners; you are a sinner. Christ died for you: hence you are saved." As thus stated, "it is a sort of molluscous shell." The author, however, omits a link which is generally found: "Believe, and you receive it; believe, and you shall live." But the Gospel is not a formula, not a set of phrases iterated and reiterated, not an appeal to mere safety, not a preaching of faith only. Jesus began preaching repentance. It is the revelation of the Son of God, making men so to see Him that the heart is pricked: "Men and brethren, what must we do?"

(2) Now think. The Lord knew the opposition, the indifference, deep and radical, in the heart. What has He provided? What weapon has He marked? What instrumentality has He supplied? It is the Church, the "unum corpus," the one body in which we rejoice. The best means of meeting the world's indifference is through the Church's increasing earnestness, aggressiveness, wisdom, sympathy, love. This is borne in upon me; this I must speak forth.

(a) What is needed, if we would work with the Holy Ghost in revealing Christ, is REALITY. It is reality, earnestness, that convicts. Minister's "abummin awaäy loike a buzzard-clock over my 'eäd;" members dozing in their pews and going away and forgetting what manner of persons they were; the godliness, a mere clerical robe of go-to-meeting dress. It is this that sends people from church, this that makes infidels. We want a higher temperature in our churches. It is down below zero often. It is seldom at summer heat. We want real men and women: men, not mannikins; women, not masculines. The enthusiasm of humanity—that should be found in the Church—the love of Christ. "Lord, wilt Thou not revive us again?"

(b) What is needed with more devotion, is more tact and sympathy. Have sympathy with the age; do not believe that it is going to the devil—feel with it; feel it with and in you. The Church is not a mere system of truth; it is a social state, meant to bless the earth: to be in the world, though not of it. You will never win by denouncing, or by standing aloof. Get at the man by being, not a thing of starch and cloth, but the brother, the truly brotherly. Wise in winning souls: oh, there is no grace which we more need. An English statesman, in a work of fiction, spoke of one of his characters as committing suicide for want of imagination. In the older churches we want imagination: we are too stereotyped, too held in by the bit and bridle of precedent and tradition. It is possible to have too much imagination. I don't want novelties or concerts, or things foreign to the simplicity in Christ. No: but we must remember the material with which we have to deal, and claim for Christ all that healthily appeals to eye, or ear, or heart. Kindness, sympathy, oh, blessed graces; would they were in us and abounding! Then would the personal life, Christ breathing through persons, be the witness against indifference. Every one in light would be the evangelist to the one in darkness—the bridge between heaven and that soul, and none would be content with a starless crown.

(c) Finally, what is needed, with more devotion, more sympathy, is more love one toward another, and toward all men—ay, toward all men. Until you have a thoroughly missionary Church, you will have a half-hearted and feeble-kneed Church; because only then have you a Christian Church—a Church that has learned the Lord's Prayer. And then only will you have a Church bound by the perfect bond of charity. To save us from our little jealousies and divisions we require a play of larger life from without—a window, a great, large window into the world. The still, isolated Church—feeding itself and living by itself—having no business with other men, that is the Church for Rationalism, the Church which will have as its environment an indifferent population. Ah! it is enlargement, width, variety of interest—it is a big Church with a big Christian life that the world wants. The world is tired of—won't have—the things that often bulk so largely in the ecclesiastical mind. It looks in at your presbytery door, your synod door, and hears you fighting away over some trifle, or some mere sect interest, and it turns away wondering if there be a risen Christ, when that is the sign of Him. Would God that from this beautiful city might be heard from afar the call to Christendom to shake herself from the dust of her earthly, sensual wranglings—the call which the English poet interprets in the voice which he gives to Adam, when addressing the sharer of his "Paradise Lost":—

> "Then rise, let us no more contend, nor blame
> Each other, blamed enough elsewhere; but strive
> In offices of love how we may lighten
> Each other's burden in our share of woe."

When Bernard of Clairvaux preached the second crusade, from the vast and excited throng which hung on his words there burst the eager cry, "Crosses! crosses!" And he threw among the crowd the pile of crucifixes which he possessed; and, having done so, tore into shreds the cowl of his monkish habit. To-day, let us realise the truer, nobler cry of Christian love. Let us lift our hearts with our hands to our King; and, renouncing all that is of the world, the flesh, and the devil, let us beseech Him to count us worthy, with a new devotion, to bear his cross, to lead us to fresh triumphs over the world-prince, with his spells of slumber and his blinding delusions; our inspiration—our word of fire—the old one recorded by the Apostle of Love—"This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith."

INCARNATION AND ATONEMENT.

By Rev. WILLIAM ARTHUR.

IF we took up the position that in the person of our Lord Jesus Christ there was no incarnation of the Godhead, and that in the work of his life and death there was no atonement for sin, we should be obliged to take up also the position that Christianity has gained her triumphs under false pretences. Among curiosities of literature, very exceedingly curious would be the history of an apostle of some nation who had led them from dumb idols to serve the living God, by preaching that the person of Christ was that of a creature—that his life was merely a mission, and his death merely a martyrdom.

The records of a heathen community converted by such preaching are not to be found. But, on the other hand, it is easy to find records, ancient and modern, of triumphs won by Christianity, through her missionaries dwelling on the wondrous love of God to man, as displayed in the person of Immanuel, in the person of God with us, of God manifest in the flesh, of Him who was at one and the same time the Mighty God, and to us "a child born," at one and the same time the "Everlasting Father," and to us "a Son given," at one and the same time "Wonderful Counsellor, Prince of Peace," and yet the bearer of the iniquity of us all—iniquity laid upon Him by the Lord, and borne by Him that He might present his soul an offering for sin, in order that we, "by his stripes," might be healed." While men who believed that story told it—told it with the fire of faith and of the Holy Ghost—in ancient times as well as in our own days, the hearts of gentle women opened, and those of stern warriors were melted. Kings that wore the Roman purple, kings that swayed the club of the cannibal, priests who waited at the altars of Diana, at those of Serapis, at those of Vishnu, at those of the nameless gods of the South Seas, unaccountably became changed in spirit. And the men to whom grateful nations point backwards as their prime benefactors were men who would rather have spent their lives in breaking stones than in preaching a Christ who was no God, or a Cross which was no altar of sacrifice for sin.

If the triumphs whereby churches were originally planted are traceable to the preaching of a Divine Jesus and of a redeeming death, so also are those internal triumphs of life over decay, by which churches having a name to live, but really dead, were again quickened with the powers of an inward life. It would be, indeed, hard to find the records of the case wherein a dying church was warmed again by the ministry of men who set before her a created being as her Lord, and an unjust punishment as the sum of his passion. Calvin has said that "no church can live without many resurrections." Whether we take the cases of particular churches and nations in which a marked revival of spiritual life has arisen to check a long progressive decay, and to initiate new eras of power, or whether we take cases in which a whole range of nations and churches has felt the return of vitality, it is always true that the men through whose ministry Christianity has risen again as if from her own embers, have been men whose hearts were full of the glory of Christ, as being One with the Father, as being the fulness of his glory and the express image of his person, as "upholding all things by the word of his power," and yet as having by Himself, yea, by the one sacrifice of Himself, purged our sins (Heb. i. 3).

Of all those who during the Middle Ages, with greater or less power, combated death and became instruments of restoring life, where was there one whose gospel was without an incarnate God—without a propitiating sacrifice for sin? When the breath of the Reformation breathed, who among the mighty of that restoration proclaimed a Christ who was not God, a crucifixion which was not his offering up of Himself for our redemption, or a Holy Ghost who was nothing more than an attribute or an influence, and was not the living Spirit of the Father and the Son? And when, in modern times, men have gone forth to tell—here the Greenlanders, there the Red Indians, yonder the Hindus, and elsewhere the Africans and Polynesians—of the blessings brought to mankind in the Gospel, were they men who would have gone so far or who would have gone any distance at all, to preach a Saviour who was less than Divine? Were they not always men to whom the Alpha and Omega of their own creed, as of the New Testament, was the union of Deity with manhood in the person of Christ, and the redeeming efficacy of his death upon the cross?

But if the fruits of those who deny the Divinity of our Lord and his atoning work are not to be sought in the conversion of nations, the founding of churches, the revival of dead churches, or the raising up of men instinct with power to edify at home and to evangelise among the heathen, is it difficult, wherever they have prevailed, to find their fruits in spiritual decline, and in the barrenness of churches which once were fertile?

This manifest connection between the life of the Church and her faith in the Godhead and Atonement of Christ, is only the continuation of her experience in the first age. If, from the very outset, she had the consciousness that to confess a crucified Lord was to raise a stumbling-block—was to invite the charge of foolishness—nevertheless, she equally had the consciousness that it was impossible to hail a risen Lord but as "my Lord and my God." As such, did then the weakest in faith hail Him; and, as such, did they announce Him to a questioning and gainsaying world.

Not as they would announce the name of preceding prophets—whether John, the forerunner, or Isaiah, or Moses—did the apostles of Jesus announce to men their Divine Master and his sufferings. Of any prophet who was a mere man they ever spake in that reverent tone which befitted the calling wherewith the Lord had honoured those his servants. But the idea of setting forth their glory, of proclaiming their kingdom, of extolling their grace, of linking the hopes of the individual and the life of the Church with faith in them as saviours, was one of which a trace was never found in their testimonies to the prophets.

WHAT PETER TAUGHT.

When Peter addressed himself to the crowds of Israelites in Jerusalem, to the few selected Gentiles in the dwelling of Cornelius, or to the widespread churches of those who, with himself, had obtained the precious Christian faith, it was, in each case, as a man for whom that faith was a grace given and obtained "through the righteousness of our God and Saviour, Jesus Christ" (2 Pet. i. 1). It was as a man for whom the multiplying of grace and peace in human souls sprang equally "from the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord" (2 Pet. i. 2); as a man, whose soul, in seeking to promote the glory of God, knew not how to do it without lifting up the name of Jesus above every created name, and crying—as cry he never would for saint, prophet, angel, or archangel—"To Him be glory, both now and for ever. Amen" (2 Pet. iii. 18). Far other from what the man Peter in reality was, would he have been, whether in presence of the Jews, the Pagans, or the Christians, had he come to speak to them only of a prophet who was, in respect of John the Baptist, no more than what John was in respect of earlier messengers of God. It was the felt glory of his Lord that transfigured him from the timorous spectator of the humiliation into the fearless witness to the exaltation—that emboldened him to charge home upon the men of Jerusalem a crime such as had never before been laid at the door of human being—a crime to express which language seemed as if it must be overstrained—"Ye killed the Prince of Life" (Acts iii. 15).

For him that death—the death of the "Prince of Life"—was not a loss to be bemoaned, as had been that of the highest prophet, as was even the translation of Elijah. For him that death was not merely the sufferings of Christ; it must be looked upon in the light of the glory that followed; and, so looked upon, was the very redemption of our souls. The blood that fell from the agonising Jesus was not merely the die of a crime, not merely the red rain of a catastrophe, not merely the seal of a martyrdom. It was the precious blood of Christ (1 Pet. i. 19) wherewith we are "redeemed"—blood so precious that the things which, in comparison with it, were to be called "corruptible," were precisely those which, in comparison with human flesh and blood, in comparison with our ordinary goods and valuables, would, by us, be called incorruptible—namely, silver and gold.

Faith in this Lord and Saviour, faith in this incorruptible price, was the soul of Peter's own life, the fire of his ministry; and so, likewise, did he bear witness to it as the light and joy of his fellow-believers. He had seen the Lord—they had not; yet did they look for his appearing. His eyes had gazed upon the Lamb slain, when He was no longer the Lamb dead; though, still, even then, when alive again, He bore upon Himself the marks of the spear and of the nail. But they had seen Him not; and yet they felt, as Peter felt, that the Lamb was slain from the foundation of the world, and that He would live for ever as a Lamb newly slain. They had not, indeed, been called to look upon or touch his hands or his side, but they had, through the power of the Holy Spirit, felt the "sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ" (1 Pet. i. 2).

Therefore, though they had not seen Him, yet, believing in Him, they rejoiced with joy unspeakable and full of glory" (1 Pet. viii. 9). And why did they so rejoice? Because they had consciously received that which, in the act of believing, they sought—namely, salvation; "receiving the end of your faith—the salvation of your souls." They believed in a Saviour, they received salvation; they believed in a triumphant Saviour, they received an unspeakable joy; they believed in a Saviour who, though He once bowed down to death for them, once "bare their sins in his own body on the tree" (1 Pet. ii. 24), had now entered into his glory, being "by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost" (Acts ii. 33). This glory, beheld by the eyesight of the soul, by a living faith, this Holy Spirit poured out by the enthroned Jesus, filled up the joy wherewith his sons rejoiced, till it became, even in heaviness and temptation, a joy unspeakable and full of glory.

A Peter whose Christ had been less than Divine—a Peter to whom the blood of Christ had not been atoning blood—never could have spoken in such terms. No more could a people have comprehended and responded to those terms to whom Christ was not all that he was to Peter, to whom the sprinkling of his blood was not that of their passover slain for them, that of Him by "whose stripes they were healed" (1 Pet. ii. 24); healed not alone by his lessons and ministry, not alone by the healthful air of his example and the pure shining of his truth, for such healing is for them who are infirm only, not for them who are guilty. They were healed by his stripes when "He was wounded for our transgressions," when "He was bruised for our iniquities," when "the chastisement of our peace was upon Him" (Isa. liii. 5). Ay! the chastisement of our peace!

The work He had to do for us was not merely to instruct our ignorance, or to strengthen our weakness. He had to make our peace—our peace with a broken law; our peace with an authority set at nought; our peace with a righteousness grievously wronged; our peace with all those principles of moral government which make death the wages of sin; our peace with every dutiful and unsinning one among our better brethren, the angel sons of God; our peace with all things visible and invisible; so that when we should claim to fill a place among the blessed in the Father's house the question should not be raised whether within its sacred enclosure innocence and guilt, obedience and disobedience, were henceforth to be equally at home.

And this peace was to be made at the price of such a chastisement that when the guilty should appear lifted up to the same level as the guiltless, when the defiled should be brought forth shining as brightly as the undefiled, it should be known—should be seen—should be felt for ever—that this, as it was not a thing that came by nature, as it was not one that came by right, so was it also not one that came of remissness, but one that had come to pass because the sin of the guilty had been expiated by a death making louder proclamation of its odiousness and heinousness than could have been made by the death of all creation—had come to pass because, through that death, the robes of the defiled had been washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb.

We might sum up the belief, feeling, life, and ministry of the Apostle Peter in words of his own, spoken in one of the great historical utterances of his life—that, namely, delivered at the Council of Jerusalem: "We believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved" (Acts xv. 18). Here we have the immortal hope of Christianity—a belief "that we shall be saved." We have the confession that our salvation is not of nature, not a matter of course, not of merit, not of right, but of grace. "We believe that through grace we shall be saved." We have, further, the Christian faith as to the Author of salvation; the grace through which we are saved is the grace of "our Lord Jesus Christ."

In weighing the import of this typical confession, we must bear in mind that Peter was not one in whose manner of conceiving of salvation it was a little thing. He was not one who took it for granted that salvation must come of itself to all, in the very nature of things. He was not one who thought that even the ungodly and the sinner would, after all, be saved, must be saved, or else the universe would be harshly governed, and its Ruler would be exposed to reproach. With him, salvation for the sinful, eternal glory given to those who had by acts and deeds merited eternal shame, was a great salvation—a salvation so great, that even the righteous could scarcely be saved; and as to the unrighteous, his simple reply to all questioning was, if it be a great work to give salvation to the righteous, "where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" (1 Pet. iv. 18).

Now such being Peter's habitual mode of conceiving of salvation, I cannot but wonder whether those who look upon our Lord Jesus Christ as being a mere man, similar to any of the prophets, can, in their own minds, form an idea of Peter saying to assembled apostles and elders, "We believe that we shall be saved through the grace of John the Baptist," or through the grace of Elijah, or of Moses, or of Father Abraham. And I also wonder whether any of those who look upon our Lord as being in nature an angel, can conceive of Peter saying, "We believe that we shall be saved through the grace of the angel Gabriel," or any higher angel. It is certain that every reader of the New Testament would feel that the exchange of the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, in the utterance of Peter, for any name of man or angel, would be a shocking departure from all New Testament usage—from all the fundamental modes of thought which pervade its sacred pages. There is no creature name that can be interchanged with that name; there is but one name that can be interchanged with it. It would be no shock to any one's sense of New Testament usage, to any one's sense of its prevalent modes of thought, were it said, "We believe that we shall be saved through the grace of God;" and, with those words in our ears, it would be no shock to hear again, and to hear immediately, "We believe that through the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved." God was in Christ, and Christ was God; therefore may the two names be interchanged. We believe that by the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved; we believe that by the love of God we shall be saved; we believe that by the communion of the Holy Ghost we shall be saved. And beyond these three names, there is no name in earth or heaven of which Christians at any time could profess and testify: "We believe that through his grace we shall be saved." These three names had been fused by the Lord Himself, when risen from the dead, into one name; and infused as such into the very life-blood of the Church, and into her vital action, so as to become inwoven in the tissues of every member of the body, so as to be marked bright upon her brow. This He did when He declared that all power was given to Him in heaven and in earth, and commanded that his disciples should go and make disciples of all nations, "baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

PAUL'S TESTIMONY.

If such, then, is the testimony borne by the life and sayings of Peter, what is that borne by those of Paul, the other great actor in the Acts of the Apostles? Did he look upon himself as having taken up a cross which did not represent a sacrifice for the sin of the world—as having become the ambassador of a master who was not the King of kings and Lord of lords? No one will doubt that the aspect in which the Lord Jesus was most frequently present to the mind of Paul was that of a Saviour—the one aspect which illuminated the others and modified them all. It is by this particular aspect of Saviour that is most naturally drawn out to view the conception entertained of our Lord's person, as either Divine or not Divine; and of his work, as being a propitiation for sin, or not being so. When Paul spake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, in what sense was He to him Lord, and in what sense was He to him a Saviour?

As of Peter, so of Paul must it be noted that he was not one of those to whose view salvation appears as a very easy thing—if not, indeed, a thing eventually inevitable. When he thought of Saul of Tarsus, a chief of sinners, it seemed to him that it was not without a wonder of mercy—not without the intervention of a Saviour, for ever to be adored—that the sinner had not been lost. When he thought of Paul the Apostle, the sinner who had obtained mercy, it seemed to him that the boon was so vast that it could come only by grace, not as a matter of course; yea, by grace "exceeding abundant"—a fulness of grace that evoked from his soul the doxology: "Now unto the King Eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen" (1 Tim. i. 17). When he thought of his unbelieving kinsmen of the line of Abraham, their salvation did not seem to him so much a matter of course, in the long run, that he might be at ease. Shame and sorrow, toil and destitution, blows, stripes, chains, the dock, the dungeon, the barrack-room, the gallows-tree, were all to him things to be deliberately walked up to, "if by any means he might save some."

If he looked at mankind at large, he never marked out either a class who have no need of a Saviour, or a class who cannot possibly be lost eventually, or a class who—living and dying impenitent—will be put out of pain, or a class who will be saved after death. To him all men are lost, and the salvation of any is a great salvation. The universe on which, for him, fell the lights of nature and revelation, was not a universe wherein the aggressor or offender was always assured of eventually recovering himself; not one in which pain was an evil more to be dreaded than wrong; not one in which wrong was always certified that it would incur only terminable pains. It was a universe in which pain and penalty were ofttimes the merciful ministers of protection and quietness. It was one in which the same source of justice dispensed, with equal beneficence, "tribulation and anguish to every soul of man that doeth evil," and "glory, honour, and peace" to every man that doeth good (Rom. ii. 9, 10). It was one in which the course of nature showed the way of transgressors to be hard, and the end of persistent transgression to be ruin irreparable. That universe was one from whose death-beds the veil had once been drawn, and only once, by Him who alone was empowered to withdraw it; by Him who alone saw, with equal clearness, through the light of life and the shades of death; who, of all teachers that ever spoke, was alone the Lord both of the dead and the living. Therefore, in withdrawing the veil, He passed not beyond his place. He did withdraw it; and the world beyond the veil, which, in so doing, He displayed to the eyes of his servants, Peter, and John, and Paul, was not a world in which no one lifted up his eyes in hell, in which no one was in torment.

To Paul, then, sin was exceedingly sinful, and the danger of sinful souls being lost was real, urgent, appalling. Great, however, as was this danger, he proclaimed Christ as a Saviour by whom it was overcome. But the question is: Did he preach Christ as a fellow-creature saving his fellow-creatures, or as the Son of God, One with the Father, saving the sons of men? Did he preach Him as saving men without an atonement, merely by counsel, example, institutions, and methods of moral amelioration; or did he, on the contrary, preach Him as saving them by the propitiation of his own blood, from which, as from a fountain, flowed all the institutes of religion, and all the lessons of revealed truth?

Men are capable of doing great violence to the writings of Holy Scripture. But, for my own part, I cannot conceive of any man first sitting down and marking, in the words of St. Paul, all the passages wherein our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is spoken of, either in general terms, as saving us, bringing us to God, reconciling us to God; or in particular terms, as bringing to us and bestowing upon us individually forgiveness of sins, washing and regeneration, peace of soul, love to God, the witness of the Spirit to our adoption, the joy of the Holy Ghost, meetness for heaven, triumph over death, a blessed rest after death until the resurrection, a wondrous perfecting of spirit, soul, and body into one immortal and incorruptible manhood at the resurrection, and, after that perfecting, an eternal day of life and glory for ever with the Lord—I cannot conceive of any one noting all these passages, and then saying, "This man preaches a creature saving his fellow-creatures—preaches a saviour who saves without making an atonement."

If ever there was a case in which a community of men might have called a fellow-man their saviour, it was surely in the case of the Israelitish nation and Moses. By counsels, precepts, statutes, and institutions had he formed the people, off whose neck he had broken the yoke of servitude—had formed them into a living nation which permanently endured. They fully recognised the part he played. But all down the long line of Jewish writers to whom his name is precious, where can one be found who, even for an instant, by a single incautious epithet or unseemly coupling, runs any risk of appearing to confound this great and elect servant of God with his Divine Master? Great as servant could be, he is never associated for a moment with praise and prayer, with faith and hope, with worship or with blessing. Any association of his name with the name of the Lord, as if the one naturally coupled with the other—any ascription to him of other act than that of a minister, an accountable servant, would have been abhorrent to every biblical Jew. The Divine name, prerogatives, and rights were ever held as high above those of servants as were the sun and moon above the lamps of earth.

This Jewish veneration for the name of God, this Jewish severance of all ministers from the seat of supreme authority and honour—a Jordan running strong and swift between creature and Creator—belonged to Paul in a degree as high as ever to any other man. And of impossibilities, none could be, to our conception, more impossible than that he should tolerate on the part of any one the linking together in one benediction upon the Israel of God, in the first place the name of Moses the Mediator, in the second place that of the Father Eternal, and in the third that of Aaron the Anointed Priest; nothing more impossible than that he, in his own writing and preaching, should habitually lay himself open to the appearance of speaking in one and the same tone of creature and Creator—of so interchanging names, attributes, and offices as to suggest an identification between them.

This, then, being so, what is, nevertheless, his ordinary manner of speaking respectively of God and of Him who from the flaming sky said to him, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest"? Does he, as between these two names, keep up the careful discrimination between the glory of the Creator and that of every other? Does he take care to connect with allusions to Christ some note of merely created nature which would serve to check any ascription to Him of Divine honours? Does he, as they were wont to do with Moses, call Jesus "the Man of God"? Does he, as did Elisha when he had seen Elijah ascend, take care in his invocation not to call upon Elijah, but upon the God of Elijah? for he cried not, as he smote the Jordan, "Where is Elijah?" but he cried, true to the worship of one God, "Where is the Lord God of Elijah?" Does Paul habitually place Jesus among any class of God's honoured creatures, and habitually dissociate Him from union with the Father; or does he, on the contrary, when speaking of commissioned teachers or any creatures ministering for God, habitually set Jesus apart and alone, and at the same time, when speaking of the Father, of his works, offices, gifts, and mercies, habitually set the Lord Jesus in intimate association as verily one with Him?

With this question in view, it is a solemn thing and a glad one to go over the epistles of Paul—from Romans to Philemon. In these writings, the prevalent thoughts and feelings of the author in regard to the person of Christ and his work for sinners, is not to be painfully disentangled from overshadowing thickets of foreign matter. Those two points are the great matter. Upon them is the feeling of the writer ever welling up as a spring close by the everlasting hills—a spring sending forth streams with a rushing sound of force. Does he speak of himself and his fellow-labourers? They are now the apostles of God and now the apostles of Jesus Christ. Does he speak of himself in particular? he is now a servant of God, and now a servant of Jesus Christ; and far from him was the idea that in so speaking he laid himself open to the charge of serving two masters. Does he speak of the source of the apostolic office? now it is the will of God, now it is the will of Christ, now it is the will of both God and our Lord Jesus Christ, spoken of as one authority. Does he speak of his sacred message? it is the word of God, and the word of our Lord Jesus Christ; the Gospel of God, and the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. Does he speak of the power to which was due the efficacy of all ministers? it is now the power of God, now the power of Jesus Christ, now the power of the Holy Ghost.

Does he particularly relate the manner in which a dispensation of the Gospel was committed to himself personally? he describes the Lord Jesus, speaking to him from out of the brightness above that of the midday sun, and saying, "I make thee a minister . . . . I send thee to open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness unto light, and from the power of Satan unto God." Does he, in general terms, state how this same dispensation was committed to him? he says God committed to him the ministry of reconciliation. Does he speak of the gifts of the ministry? they were now the gifts of God, now of Jesus Christ, now of the Holy Ghost. Does he speak of the working in them (the ministers) which set them in action, of the working by them which attested their mission, of the living in them which made them living temples? it is now the working and indwelling of God, now of Christ, now of the Holy Ghost.

Passing from the ministry to the Church: it was now the Church of God, and now that of Jesus Christ; and the kingdom, likewise, was now the kingdom of God, and now that of Jesus Christ. Did he speak of the graces of Christianity? faith is the gift of God, and is the faith of Jesus Christ; love is the love of God, and the love of Jesus Christ; peace is the peace of God, and the peace of our Lord Jesus Christ; joy is the joy of God, is rejoicing in Jesus Christ, is joy in the Holy Ghost; and, in one word, grace is the grace of God, and the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ; while the summit and the crown of all grace, glory itself, is now the glory of God, and now the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. Does he speak of the object of faith and worship? he believes in God, and he believes in Jesus Christ; he trusts in God, and he trusts in Jesus Christ; his hope is in God, and Jesus Christ is his hope; he prays to God, and he prays to Jesus Christ; he gives thanks to God, and he gives thanks to Jesus Christ; he invokes the peace of God, and the peace of Jesus Christ; he blesses in the name of God, and in the name of Jesus Christ; he baptizes in the name of God, and of Jesus Christ. Does he look onwards to death, resurrection, judgment, eternity? if he desires to be absent from the body, it is that he may be present with the Lord; if he longs to depart, it is that he may be with Christ. It is God that will raise the dead, it is Christ that will raise us up; it is God that will judge the world, it is Christ that will judge the world. In fact, when he would prove the point that "we shall all stand before the judgment-seat of Christ," the evidence he adduces is, that "every-one of us shall give account of himself to God" (1 Cor. xiv. 10—12).

And what shall I say more? When the eye of Paul was lifted up to contemplate his Lord in the seat to which He had ascended, did it find Him as the head of the martyrs? of the apostles? of the prophets? of the angels? None of those titles could answer to the place He occupied. Even a name which should indicate the combination of all these dignities into one would not correspond with his place. He was "Head of all things;" there being placed lower than He, not merely angel, prophet, apostle, and martyr, but worlds and systems of worlds, forces and systems of forces, organs, functions, dominions, principalities, and powers. He was "far above" all these; above them, with the superiority, not merely of pre-eminence, but of command. They were put, not merely on less elevated ground, but "under his feet"—language strongly expressing a subject condition (Eph. i. 22). At his name were to bow and to confess, not only things in heaven and things on earth, but also things under the earth. He in whom dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily took his own place as "over all, God blessed for ever. Amen." In the language of the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews, the various views set before us by Paul seem most naturally to express themselves: "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever; a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom." And again: "Let all the angels of God worship Him."

Yet this divine glory never obscured the Cross. The Christ whom the princes of the world crucified was the Lord of glory. And so the Christ whom the Eternal Father honoured as Lord of glory was ever and always Christ crucified. He had entered into the excellent glory, not alone with the tokens of life, but also with those of death; He had not entered without blood. It was through his blood that were proclaimed our redemption and the forgiveness of our sins. It was around his death that centred all the reconciling forces. He was "set forth" by God, not merely as our Light and Helper, but was "set forth to be a propitiation through faith by his blood." A propitiation to what intent? In order to constrain a reluctant judge to love an offender? No; for the judge it was whose love to the offender found and gave the propitiation. He was set forth as a propitiation in order to show the righteousness of the Judge, when having first permitted transgression, He afterwards proceeded to cancel the condemnation of the transgressor, and even to lift him up and set him upon a level with those who had never sinned —"to show his righteousness, because of the passing over of sins done aforetime in the forbearance of God; for the showing, I say, of his righteousness at this present season, that He might himself be just, and the justifier of him that hath faith in Jesus" (Rom. iii. 25). Here we have the propitiation of Christ held up as being, firstly, the means by which God can, without doing injustice, freely pardon an offender whom He has permitted to transgress; and, secondly, as being the evidence by which He can "show" to the conscience of all accountable creatures, fallen or unfallen, that in so pardoning He is not unrighteous.

Here we find the two principles exhibited face to face, that whereas, on the one hand, the offending creature cannot be cleared in any wise that shall enfeeble law or obscure it, but only in such wise as shall magnify it and make it honourable; so, on the other hand, must the pardoning act of the Creator be justified in the view of universal conscience; else law itself would fail for want of a foundation in conscience, were it once possible to believe that wrong was as safe as right, and offending as certain of ultimate acceptance as humble obedience. The Judge of the whole earth will constrain all to say that He does right; that, as in punishing his goodness never is absent from his justice, so, in forgiving his justice is never absent from his goodness. He will be justified when He speaks, He will be clear when He is judged; so that in being, in their turn, judged of Him all shall confess that they stand before the Holy and the True, all whose judgments are right.

In modern times certain theologians make the great mystery of God's dealings in respect of sin to consist in its punishment. That is not where the Bible ever places the mystery. It is not where nature ever takes note of a mystery. In nature, two things are so familiar, that the human mind always takes them for granted. Those two things are the protection of innocence and the punishment of guilt. In neither of these is there any mystery; and recent attempts to found mysteries upon punishment will have, in the long run, the same fate as similar attempts in past ages. In nature, the true mystery recognised by universal consciousness—the true mystery emphasised by the Bible—consists, first, in the permission of wrong-doing—the permission not merely of one original act of offence, but the forbearance which permits wrong after wrong in a series long repeated; and, secondly, the entire remission to the offender of the punishment due to his wrong done, so that he be raised up to the favour and happiness of the innocent. The forbearance which permits of repeated offending is very mysterious; involving, among other perplexities, a limitation of the protection given to innocence. This limitation is its inevitable concomitant; for whenever the wrong-doer is permitted to carry out his purpose, there must be a sufferer who has not merited that suffering. We cannot permit one boy in a playground to throw stones without so far ceasing to protect the persons of his comrades. The sonorous question of how wrong, violence, ruining of others can be permitted—of how long it is to be permitted? heaves and moans everywhere in the universal conscience—heaves and moans all through the Bible, like a ground-swell troubling a great sea. The only answer of the Bible, and the only answer in the facts of nature is, that though judgment against an evil worker is delayed, that judgment is sure and slumbereth not.

The question of how the guilty can be raised to the place and heritage of the innocent without undoing the foundations of all order and hope, could never be answered without an atonement. God sets forth Christ crucified, to show that even in this also He is just; and of notable facts which stand clearly graven on the tablets of human life, none is clearer than this—that of the events which have served to impress the minds of men with the heinousness of sin, none has ever made that impression so deeply as the death of the Lord Jesus Christ. All those who believe in Him as dying, the just for the unjust, to bring us to God, view sin as abhorrent to a degree beyond what they could otherwise have done.

THE TEACHING OF JOHN.

I now turn to the Apostle John, to know whether he did or did not teach upon our two points, even the same things as his brethren, Peter and Paul. Thou, O John, wert beloved above others. Thou wert the one who, earliest in life, learned to love that visage; the one who last survived through years of old age to bear testimony after thy fellows had concluded theirs. Thou, too, wert the only one of the twelve who stood near the tree to behold death seal his victory, and to hear dying words from the victim. So, again, thou wert he to whom the ascended Lord did most signally manifest Himself. Say, then, say, was the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world verily the true God and Eternal Life; or was He only a creature? Was He the Author of Salvation? or was He only an angel sent forth to minister to them that shall be heirs of salvation? Viewed as the Lamb, was He to thee simply an emblem of innocence? or was He our Passover sacrificed for us? Was He, or was He not, the Lamb by whose precious blood we are redeemed?"

John tells us in what form the Lord showed Himself amid the golden candlesticks—glorious, kingly, mighty. So overwhelming was his majesty, that the disciple who had once leaned upon his breast now fell at his feet as dead. How, then, does He raise him up? By saying, as Peter to Cornelius, "I, myself also, am a man?" By saying, as the angel said to this same John, "See thou do it not; for I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren the prophets . . . . worship God." Nay, not with any such caution against worshipping the creature did the effulgent Christ greet the prostrate John. "Fear not," just as the JEHOVAH of old spake to Father Abram (Gen. xvi.); "fear not: I am the first and the last; I am He that liveth." So far, all befits the glory in which He now is shining; but the next word seems alien to that glory—"and was dead!" Thou wast dead! the Alpha and the Omega dead! the First and the Last dead! He that liveth, dead! Yea, "I was dead;" not, however, "I am dead." "I was dead, and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of death and of Hades" (Rev. i. 17, 18). Here the suffering of death is placed in immediate connection with triumph over death, and what is far higher, in connection with his dominion over death itself, and over the dead. Paul's words—"He died, and rose, and revived again, that He might be Lord both of the dead and living"—might have been caught as an echo from this vision. All-comprehending existence is here coupled with a season of dying and of death; all-excelling glory is coupled with a season of abasement, even to the gibbet and the grave; all-commanding dominion is coupled with obedience to death, even the death of the Cross. And the crown of all is life, life in Himself, life for his members, life to which the grave and Hades are powers only as is the lock a power to the hand that holds the key.

This, then, is the ideal of our Lord which John the Boanerges—which John the beloved constantly sets before our eye. It is the ideal of true divinity, united with that of full atonement for sin; both of which ideas are constantly represented in his use of the word Lamb. The very first time that in the Apocalypse that name is to be used, immediately before the Lamb is beheld, is He described by another name: "The Lion of the tribe of Judah"—the royal conqueror, but, nevertheless, the spotless victim; and these two evermore one, and that one seated in the central place of supreme authority, not on a level with, but above all principality and power—earthly, heavenly, or in hell; above all dominion, whether wielded over men in the body, over bodies in the grave, or over spirits of men, be they spirits in Hades in general, or in Paradise in particular. The Lamb is "the Lord of lords, and the King of kings" (Rev. xvii. 14). And, if thus set above creature powers, is He kept distinct from the divine power, kept distinct from it with that jealous care which was displayed in the cases already cited of Peter with Cornelius, and the angel with John? No; so far from it, He is associated with that power, identified with it in every possible turn of language, and in some which would have seemed impossible; turns of language which could arise only from the necessity of expressing things apparently contradictory. The kings of the earth, the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, flee, and hide, and cry for cover, "from the face of Him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb" (Rev. vi. 16).

This identification of the sacrified One with the supreme power, in the act of judging and punishing, is continued when the act is that of hallowing the eternal abode of bliss, and flooding it with the unfading light. Why is it that we see no temple in the holy city on high? Because "the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it." God and the Lamb the deadly storm of the guilty! God and the Lamb the temple of the saved! And why, in that city, is there no sun, no moon? Because "the glory of the Lord did enlighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof." And when from the city we advance to the throne, we find out of it proceeding, now the pure river of the water of life—the Spirit of God that makes all things live—now lightning, fires, voices—the Spirit of God sent forth into all the earth. And is the Lamb among those who bow before it? No, the throne ITSELF is the throne of God and of the Lamb; not the throne of God and any angel, saint, or prophet, but of God and of the Lamb; and they who bow before it, whether undistinguished hosts of angels and redeemed man, whether the four-and-twenty crowned and throned elders, whether the four living beings,—all fall down before the Lamb. When the redeemed sing before the throne, their song is the song of Moses and the Lamb. When they ascribe salvation, it is "to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and to the lamb" (Rev. vii. 10). When all creatures, from the four down to the lowest in earth or sea, unite to ascribe "blessing, and honour, and glory, and power," they ascribe it "unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever" (Rev. v. 13).

This identification of glory and in worship is set forth in the central appearance wherein the Lamb is revealed in vision. When we would here obey the voice crying in the wilderness, and saying, "Behold the Lamb of God," where shall we find Him? Martyrs! stands He at the head of your army? Not amongst us: higher. Prophets, apostles! stands He among your company and fellowship? Not among us: higher. Angels! stands He foremost in your host? Not among us: higher. Elders! the crowned and throned? Not of us: higher. Ye four living ones who praise? Not of us: higher. And the timid eye which has now traversed all the tracks of heavenly light, which has passed over all the forms of immortal beauty and angelic strength, daring still to lift itself up, and yet up higher than all of these, that it may behold the Lamb of God, sees, "In the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the elders, a Lamb standing, as though it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth" (Rev. v. 6). Literally the most high; literally over all; literally God blessed for ever. When all bow, does He bow, or stand in the midst of the throne? When all ascribe power and might, does He ascribe it, or wear it as his own? When all of human kind sing of redemption, sing of salvation, is He one of those to swell the song, or the One to receive it? In the loftiest manifestations of the eternal power of the Godhead—manifestations of Him who will not give his glory to another—we find glory, honour, dominion, and every known name for honours to be rendered to God alone, ascribed by the most exalted creatures in one breath to God and the Lamb; and if we ask, is this glory given to God and another? the answer is: It is given to God and the Lamb, because the Lamb is not another.

If, then, the revelations granted to John thus unequivocally set before us and make manifest the proper divinity of our Lord, not as a doctrine stated, but as a nature and power displayed to our view in life and action, what light do the same revelations cast upon the question of atonement? Was the lamb a sacrificial lamb, or only a meek monitor of purity?

In the midst of the throne, looking down upon all created glory, "like the sun looking down upon his own beams;" in the midst of the throne, pouring out the flame of his eyes into all the earth, which flame is the fire of "the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth;" in the midst of the throne, standing while all creation bows; in the midst of the throne, from it sending forth the very Spirit of God, while all creation looks up to it for every supply—He is not as He was when John the Baptist saw Him as the Lamb by the waters; He stands not now without spot, for the mark is upon Him that He bare sin in his own body on the tree. He is here standing, a Lamb not incapable of death, but actually a "Lamb as it had been slain." Strange, above all strange things! The marks of death, the marks of sin's own wages, the marks of a curse amid all the lights that radiate outwards from the central point of thy majesty and blessedness—O Holy, Holy, Holy Lord God Almighty! the High Priest amid cherubim, law, and Shekinah; but not without blood.

Even so, Amen! Thou art the First and the Last! Thou art He that liveth and was dead. Thou hast redeemed us with Thine own blood. Our happy brethren on high are there because they have washed their robes and made them white in the Blood of the Lamb. In the same manner shall we attain at last unto the same victory. Then, with all who have gone before, will we take up the song which sings: "Unto Him that loveth us and loosed us from our sins by his blood; and He made us to be a kingdom, to be priests unto his God and Father; to Him be the glory and the dominion for ever and ever. Amen."

SCIENCE AND REVELATION.

By Prebendary ANDERSON.

THIS is the most important of all subjects, and most suitable to be discussed at the meeting of this Alliance. There have been misunderstandings and misr presentations on both sides. Religious people need not suspect the progress of science, for science has rendered the greatest service to religion. To enumerate these services would be the chief object of his address.

Science has destroyed the two opinions by which the elder atheists tried to get rid of belief in God. These were belief in chance and in the eternity of the world in its present state. These opinions have been condemned by Scripture from the first, and science has now shown that Scripture was right. Nowhere will science admit accident or chance, and she has shown that the world has been developed from a condition very widely removed from that which surrounds ourselves. Science traces all animals and plants, as well as the solid earth itself, to a nebulous mass of heated vapour millions of years ago. Whether this theory be true or false, it has shown the absurdity of believing in the eternity of the world.

Science has also helped revelation in disclosing to us the unity of nature, which is necessarily connected with the Scriptural belief in the unity of God. Science has also accumulated an almost infinite number of facts proving design and contrivance in nature. These facts are the common property of all who think, and no one can welcome them more heartily than the believer in revelation. Much of the prejudice against science has been created by the unfair and illogical use of facts which are consistent with religion as with science. They should be treated as impartial witnesses.

It is unworthy of a seeker after truth to become the advocate of a favourite theory. Let us examine the argument from design. Why should we not believe that whatever exhibits marks of design must have had an intelligent author? In every other question it would be conceded at once, and in every court of justice it would be taken as an axiom which no reasonable man could deny. When Robinson Crusoe found the track of a foot on the sand he inferred the presence of a man, and when a geologist finds a stone with rude carving scratched on the surface with an oyster-shell, he says a man must have lived there, because he finds contrivance and design. Why should we not be permitted to draw the same conclusion from the marks of design in the universe?

Evolution answers a different question. The question, How and by what steps these things succeeded one another? Not the question, Why and by whom? Evolution is not contrary to revelation, but consistent with it. It is far from being established as a law of nature. There are more gaps than links in the chain. It is a good working hypothesis and nothing more, but if even it should be proved, it would become not an alternative for belief in God, but the most complete proof and illustration of the great Architect of the Universe which has been discovered. It is a greater proof of the skill of man to contrive a great factory which will turn out thousands of yards of cloth in a day than to invent a spinning wheel. Creation by evolution would give a higher idea of Divine wisdom than creation by a number of separate and unconnected acts.

The discoveries of geology have shown that the world had a beginning, the laws of heat prove that it must have an end. Both of these conclusions confirm the testimony of Scripture. If the clock is running down it has been wound up. It is no explanation to tell us that it is kept in motion by the weight acting on the works. But if evolution be true, the old argument from experience against miracles falls to the ground. Hume said that since miracles are contrary to experience, they are incredible. But nothing could be more contrary to experience than that a globe of heated vapour should condense into the world in which we live, with its countless forms of life, beauty, and intelligence. We have no experience of the transitions from species to species, and the survivals of the fittest which we are sometimes expected to believe.

No miracle of Scripture is so incredible and mysterious as the mysteries of science. The faith which we are asked to place in the past and future revelations of the historians and prophets of science is far more exacting and less capable of verification than is required from the student of revelation.

Science has also helped revelation by enabling us to test the capacity of the mind of man. In one direction there seems to be no limit to discovery. The infinitely great and the infinitely small yield up their secrets, and instruments of precision can divide an inch into a thousand parts. A subtler ether than breathes round the summit of Parnassus is now the subject of differential equations. But of the origin of the universe we are as ignorant as the contemporaries of Aristotle. This underlies all theories of the universe. It is beyond our research, for it depends on the creative will of the Omnipotent. Science tells of growths, methods, developments, theories; of the action of will she knows and can discover nothing. The secret and home of the mysteries of creation, of life, of reason, of conscience, of immortality, are to be found in the revelation of God, and nowhere else.

MODERN UNBELIEF,

AND THE BEST METHODS OF COUNTERACTING IT.

By Rev. Dr. MacVICAR, Montreal, Canada.

The speaker referred to the various methods employed by unbelievers in propagating their views, and more especially to the preference shown for elementary and higher education made intensely secular, and for teachers and professors who ignore the voice of God in revelation. Unfortunately, these enemies of truth were, in many instances, aided by the exercise of a spurious liberality, or by the power of sectarian bigotry, making it impossible for the churches to agree among themselves upon the elements of Christian instruction which should be included in the work of public educational institutions.

The baneful influence of certain schools of thought was next touched upon. Advocates of the old sensualistic philosophy of France were now engaged in degrading man to the level of the brutes, in persuading him that he was the offspring of creeping things, all body and no soul. Materialists, Positivists, and Pantheists, all agreed in confounding physical, moral, and spiritual laws, thus sapping the foundations of morality as well as of religion; while another school of thought professed to regard all forms of religion as having the same origin, being simply the product of the human mind, by a process of natural evolution. Thus everything that was Divine and truly distinctive of Christianity was ignored. The enthusiastic disciples of this philosophy lived and moved in a sort of incandescent fog of liberality, and delighted in vague, meaningless statements about science, æstheticism, agnosticism, and the like.

Sceptics were roused to do their worst by the very success of the Gospel, whose progress during the last century had been unprecedented. With increased facilities for disseminating truth Christianity had infused its spirit, more or less, into the literature and science of all the great progressive races of the world.

Among the triumphs of the truth the writer instanced the abolition of slavery, the reformation of the criminal codes of the civilised nations, the elevation of woman, the observance of the Lord's day as a season of rest, the establishment and direction of educational and humane institutions of every description, the improvement of international relations, lessening the horrors of war, and teaching nations to settle their quarrels by rational arbitration.

In view of such triumphs it was not surprising that the enemy was busy in propagating unbelief. With regard to the question, viz., the best method of counteracting modern unbelief, the answer was: Nothing but the revealed truth of the living God, accompanied by the Holy Ghost, could accomplish this task.

(1) We should seek to make a full and loving proclamation of God's saving message to all men, and this should comprehend a clear and systematic course of instruction in all the great doctrines of grace. Nor should the ethical and devotional teachings of the Bible be withheld, for truth accurately formulated and earnestly proclaimed was the proper antidote of error. But more than dogma was needed. Men might be sound and at the same time cold and dead; and a wavering, theorising, dead ministry was unquestionably one of the most potent causes of unbelief, while men full of faith and of the Holy Ghost were the most effective in banishing it. Hence the duty of all believers at this time to be earnest and importunate in prayer, that God would call and inspire with heroic faith and courage a great army of strong men, who, with honesty of purpose and personal conviction of the truth, would beat back the advancing hosts of unbelief—men who are not set upon lofty, sacerdotal pedestals, and who do not require to expend their energies in maintaining ecclesiastical forms and dignity, and who, without any feigned condescension, can come down to the homes of the people in the true spirit of the Master, to seek and to save the lost.

(2) To meet prevailing unbeliefs, we required critical books on Apologetics, covering all the points of modern attack, and specially adapted to our own day. This difficult undertaking needed much sanctified skill and learning. The Church must carefully train her own sons to be scientists and critics, not in any narrow, bigoted spirit, or apart from the great universities of the world, but rather by enabling them to participate in the life and culture of those institutions, and to be fully acquainted with the investigations and discoveries of the age.

(3) We required more thorough Biblical instruction in the family, where the foundations of true piety and Christian stability were laid, and where persons were fortified against the deadly assaults of unbelief.

(4) The spirit of Christianity must be infused more fully into colleges, and all institutions for higher culture. There should be in all such places men who are not afraid, or ashamed, to call themselves Christians, and who can speak of Christ and Christianity, of the facts and principle of revelation with as much naturalness and decision as others talk about the strata of the earth or the stars of heaven.

(5) We required to put forth missionary efforts commensurate with the wants of the world.

(6) The thought of Christian stewardship with respect to money and money's worth must occupy its true place in the Church. Sordidness, meanness, and appalling untruthfulness with respect to what men can or cannot afford to do for the Gospel's sake were characteristic sins of Christendom at this moment.

In combating unbelief, men must learn that the strongest parts of their creeds were those which they held along with all Christians, and the weakest parts those which they held alone. The unity of the mystical body of Christ must be maintained. It must be unmistakably apparent that they were all one in Christ, with one heart and one mind, pleading for the presence and the power of his Spirit, that when the victory was gained, as assuredly it would be at last, all the honour and glory might be to his name.

BY DR. SINCLAIR PATERSON.

WHEN we speak of modern unbelief, we refer rather to form than to substance. From the beginning faith and doubt have been permanent in character, even when their manifestations have been most varied. The reasons adduced in vindication of either may change from age to age; but in every case faith receives the Gospel of grace, while unbelief rejects it.

At no very distant date Christian apologists associated infidelity and immorality, not infrequently suggesting, if not asserting, a causal connection between the latter and the former. Many unbelievers, especially in more recent times, resented the implied charge, and challenged a comparison between their conduct and that of ordinary professing Christians. Now it is neither courteous nor necessary to deny that, so far as overt acts are concerned, there may be little, if any, difference between one who professes faith and one who avows unbelief, though we are not prepared to admit the equality or even identity of morality in the Christian believer and in the most blameless type of which infidelity can boast. Nevertheless, even when we frankly make this admission, we must not for one moment forget the real antagonism towards God which is never absent from the sinful heart.

If we may group together unspiritual men without respect to their acceptance or rejection of Scriptural truth, then, concerning all alike it may be truly said: "The natural mind is enmity against God." For two reasons this fact must be made emphatic. (1) The study of Divine things must not be confounded with ordinary service, nor must it be supposed that we can gain spiritual knowledge simply by the culture and use of such natural faculties as we possess. For it is written, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." Secondly, even were we to succeed in establishing the authority of revealed truth beyond the possibility of contradiction, and in closing for ever the long controversy between Infidelity and Christianity, yet even then truth would not triumph unless the Word, acknowledged to be true, were also welcomed and accepted by the heart. To perceive truth, and to submit actually and always to its influence, are by no means identical. Receiving the truth in the love of it alone saves.

Laying stress on this unquestionable distinction, some excellent and earnest men are disposed to deny the necessity, or at least to depreciate the value, of Christian apologetics. They say, with fair show of reason, "Why attempt to prove truth? Rather let it approve itself. Evidence cannot regenerate: souls are only born again by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever. Be content to speak the Word of the truth of the Gospel, and let it have free play, so that it may exert its own inherent energy."

Now, no one can contend more earnestly than I do for the efficacy of the Divine Word through the power of the Holy Ghost. The weightiest arguments from human lips are valueless. In the Gospel of Christ, and in the presence of the Holy Ghost, do we alone find the "power of God unto salvation." Nevertheless, I cannot forget the thousands to whom the very truth of God seems to be a lie; and whose hearts are steeled against conviction by an impenetrable unbelief. John Bunyan, in his narrative of the capture of "Mansoul," tells us that "Diabolus" provided his soldiers with shields of "unbelief," which were proof against all the promises and threatenings of the besiegers. At the present hour, in so-called Christian countries, there is an overwhelming, and apparently a still-growing, multitude to whom even the invitations of the Gospel scarcely ever come. They seem to have resolved to treat Christianity as a fable, and they judge it a waste of time to listen to a sermon or to open a Bible. If a friend or relative ventures to speak to them a faithful word, they are either complacently indulgent as to a weak-minded monomaniac, or violently angry as to a meddlesome fool. Somehow or other they have reached the conclusion that all religion is unreal and visionary, and so long as they continue in this mind, they are little likely to be touched by the most earnest and winning appeals, even were they disposed to listen to them. They are fortified also in their convictions by a widely-spread, concurrent public opinion. Now, I honestly believe that in the present day such persons are most likely to be reached and rescued by the persistent evidence of a Divine presence and power pressed upon their notice hour after hour by consistent Christian lives. From the living epistles of Christ they cannot turn away their eyes, and the simple message conveyed by them is more likely to be understood than even the most tender or impassioned appeal of an apostolical epistle.

Yet while I cannot withhold this admission, and while at the same time I must admit no small share of the blame for the progress of unbelief is due to the sinfulness and worldliness of many who call themselves Christians, I must still firmly maintain that it is the duty of the Christian Church to challenge the fullest examination of the truth which it confesses, and to expose, so far as it is possible, the falsehoods by which that truth may be assailed. From the time of the earliest Christian apologists, who were also Christian martyrs, this has been repeatedly done. Action and argument, the holy life and the reasonable appeal, have been combined, and when creed and conduct are thus mutually illustrative, the effect is wondrously intensified.

There is unbelief and unbelief. Even on a superficial examination we cannot fail to discover four phases of infidelity; or, to speak more correctly, four distinct classes of unbelievers. There are those who deny even the evidence for the existence of God in the name of philosophy or science. There are those, again, who are not prepared to deny, but are resigned enough to doubt. Then there is, perhaps the largest class of all, those who are thoroughly indifferent to all spiritual truth, and who, certain only of the life now passing and the world now existing, are determined to make the best (though it may turn out to be the worst) of both. And, lastly, there is another class of recent birth, and most portentous of danger in the near future, who, hating with a deadly hatred society as it now exists, and perceiving clearly enough the strength and security of the foundation laid for it in the Word of God, are resolved, mainly if not solely in the interests of an anarchic revolution, to banish God from a world in which, as they think, He has succeeded in maintaining order too long. We may name them severally, the Deniers, the Doubters, the Secularists, and the Social Anarchists. Our concern at present is chiefly with the first class, and their relation to the others.

Let us give the first place to Philosophy. The wisdom of this world has become bold enough to deny the possibility of attaining to the knowledge of God. In one sense we are not anxious to controvert this judgment. So far as human nature and human action are concerned, even a knowledge of God communicated by a Divine revelation may become faint, and finally disappear. There are survivals of a purer belief in some religions which we now rightly designate heathenish and profane. When men do not care to retain God in their thoughts they are given over to a reprobate mind. That "the world by wisdom knows not God" is no novel discovery of the nineteenth century. Neither is the complemental historic fact obsolete to-day—"It pleased God through the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

But let us glance for a moment at some of the reasons which philosophy adduces in proof of the unknowableness of God. He is infinite, and therefore a finite mind cannot know Him. He is absolute and unconditioned, therefore He cannot even be defined, for definition implies both limitation and relation. Behind nature there is a mighty, mysterious power, which, to human reason, is altogether inscrutable. This latter allegation, which has become somewhat popular in English-speaking countries, carries with it more than the philosopher is prepared to recognise. For if nature be an effect produced by, or, if the phrase be preferred, evolved from, this mighty mysterious cause, then we are certain it contains intelligence and will, since these are claimed by the philosopher himself; and there can be nothing in the effect which did not previously exist in the cause. In all our sciences we only decipher and classify the thoughts embedded in the universe. He is a bold man who denies the unity of nature; and he is bolder still, even to midsummer madness, who would assert and assign the infinité intelligence necessary to each individual atom, if without ONE mind behind them, they grouped themselves together in that marvellous combination of order and exactness we call the solar system, or even in that one planet so wondrously fitted and furnished for man's habitation which we call the earth. Grant only the existence of this "Unknown Power," demanded by Herbert Spencer as a philosophic axiom, and the effects produced by it, which give us all the philosophy and science we possess, make it knowable at least to the whole extent of our knowledge. Even in our current literature there are occasional significant indications which betray an uneasy consciousness of the fulness of proof which this philosophic admission of a mighty mysterious power behind phenomena really contains.

So far as the argument based on the "absolute and unconditioned" is concerned, there is no reason for anxiety. It is a mere fencing with words, which, while convenient enough as the expression of thought, represent no actual existence. For some purposes we may speak of an ideal man, neither European nor Asiatic, neither African nor American, without distinctive features or character; but no such abstract characterless vagabond can be found in any quarter of the globe. So philosophy has formulated an idea of abstract being, and it has attempted to palm this counterfeit on the world as the impossible God whom Christians worship. They must belong to the order of Greek σχολαστικοί, who are deceived by this verbal jugglery. The God whom we worship is neither visionary nor characterless. God is love. He cannot lie. He is faithful and cannot deny Himself. He is limited, if you will, by his very excellences. Pantheism alone can speak (though even in this case I am disposed to doubt if any true conception lies behind the word) of a God who is neither one thing nor another.

We admit, without hesitation, the distance between the finite and the infinite, though even here we must be careful not to allow language to fetter or control thought. "Who can by searching find out God?" is a question as old at least as the days of Job. Agnosticism, so far as it contains any truth, is not of yesterday. The falsehood of it lies in the assertion that what is possible to man is impossible to God. Too wise, or too prudent, to deny the Divine existence, the Agnostic is content to assume that if God exists He must necessarily and for ever, because of his infinitude, remain unknown to, and therefore unknowable by, the rational creatures whom He is said to have fashioned after his own likeness. Man can forsooth reveal himself to his fellows in a thousand ways, but He who is infinitely greater than man, ex hypothesi, is doomed to silence and secrecy by his very greatness. "Credat Judæus Apelles!"

Because I cannot know God perfectly must I therefore remain ignorant of Him altogether? So far as I know, space and time are limitless, and I cannot fully, even in thought, know either the one or the other. But I know miles and hours, and I can intelligently speak of leagues and years. Far as the eye, assisted by microscope or telescope, can travel we reach no limit, and we speak with some reason of the boundlessness of creation. Because we cannot traverse the whole distance from the atom to the farthest star do we therefore know nothing of nature? Surely he who professes to know so much in a world which is filled with mysteries, and which forms part of an apparently boundless whole in which the darkness is as the surrounding night to the lamp of the glow-worm, speaks with a bad grace when he denies to finite man any knowledge of the infinite God. To be consistent the Agnostic must become a Pyrrhonist. Matter itself, with which we seem so familiar, eludes our scrutiny. Not even Hegel could discover the "dingan sich." The very materialness of matter is gravely questioned, and one of the latest theories resolves it into vortex-rings of motion. Yet no one is mad enough to question the existence of that which, nevertheless, he cannot even define.

There is a revelation of God in nature which man may read if he will. If he close his eyes and roundly assert there is no vision, the blame be upon his own head. He is certainly without excuse; "for the invisible things of God since the creation of the world are clearly seen, being perceived through the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead." It is fashionable in the present day to decry the argument from design, or, as it may perhaps be more aptly expressed, the argument to design, and to speak slightingly of the admirable contribution to apologetics bequeathed to us by Archdeacon Paley; but I confess—attribute the confession to weakness if you will—that, to me, every year's progress in discovery and invention only increases the force of this argument, and adds one appendix after another to the classical book on "Natural Theology."

Here, however, we must not omit to notice the supreme revelation of God which even throws into shade the magnificent revelation in nature. Glorious as the earlier revelation undoubtedly is, it hath no glory by reason of the glory that exalteth. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth forth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge." But—

> "God in the person of his Son
> Has all his mightiest works outdone."

The historic personality of Christ, which is the centre of Christianity, is also the impregnable stronghold of Christian evidence. And the two facts in the history on which faith reposes with the most profound peace and jubilant joy, are also the two facts which accredit it beyond question, the Divinity of our Lord. For these two facts, his death and resurrection, confirm all his claims, and attach the seal of heaven to every action He performed, and to every word which fell from his lips. By a divine call the historic certainty of these facts has been preserved during a period of eighteen centuries. By two monumental witnesses, one of which at least is never silent more than six days, God has borne testimony to his Son from the very evening of the day on which He raised Him from the dead. By the Lord's Supper and the Lord's Day, the one dating from the night before his death, and the other from the night on which He calmed the fears of his disciples when He had come forth from the tomb, having destroyed him that had the power of death—by these two unimpeachable witnesses the faith of the Church has been firmly attached to the essential historic facts. No honest and scholarly controversalist ventures now to challenge the good faith of the disciples. They are no longer branded as deceivers. The time from which these two witnesses began to speak leaves no interval in which legend or myth had time to grow, and proves beyond contradiction that the men who could best test and attest the reality of Jesus' death and resurrection believed in both with a faith which never doubted, and, in consequence, braved death with a courage which never quailed. To us also these witnesses continue to speak. Our last communion and our last Sabbath are connected with the two first, which were contemporaneous with the historic facts they commemorated, by a chain which crosses the whole eighteen Christian centuries, and in which there is not one missing or defective link.

I repeat, the death and resurrection of Christ are the very key of the whole Christian position. The historic truth of these two facts has been assailed and defended a thousand times, but the position has neither been turned nor taken up to the present hour. Legion after legion, fresh and fierce, and apparently full of force, has been dashed against this position, only to fall broken at its base, like the billow which assaults the rock-bound shore. When both armies claimed a victory, a wise general assigned it to the army which kept the field. We, too, can fearlessly claim to have been victorious for the same reason. We need neither blush with shame nor tremble with fear when we are asked to give a reason for the hope that is in us. . . .

Now, in the Man Christ Jesus God hath revealed Himself. With the agnostic, we say, "No man hath seen God at any time:" with us, we challenge him to say, or else to give sufficient reason for his refusal, "The only begotten Son which is in the bosom of the Father, He hath revealed Him." For here and now the revelation is complete. In the world around and in the worlds above we trace the finger of God; but in Jesus Christ we look into his heart. The universe unfolds wisdom and power; but these in themselves are impersonal and unsympathetic; but in the Word Incarnate God translates Himself into human nature, and makes Himself known to us in all the passion and compassion of a sinless man.

Next let us inquire what science can adduce in excuse for unbelief. The Exact and Experimental sciences are silent, and many successful students of these sciences are numbered among the defenders of the faith. It is only when we travel out of the region of precision and experiment, to enter upon the wide expanse in which imagination and speculation find free play, that boastful and sometimes bitter words of doubt and denial fill the air. Beyond historic time, which belongs to the calendar, we are told there is geologic time, for which, however, no one has hitherto been able to find a scale. Once and again we have been told of thousands of years which must have elapsed in the growth of deposits, or grooving of channels, or silting of soils; but, in many cases, unfortunate after-discoveries have proved the reckoning to have been altogether at fault. Take one case as typical. An enthusiastic geologist calculated the annual rate of mud deposit in the delta of the Nile. Taking this as his time-scale, he found a piece of baked crockery at a depth which it could only have reached by an existence dating at least twelve thousand years before the creation of Adam. The conclusion was easily reached which assigned the origin of man to a time of which Moses did not even dream. This was satisfactory enough, until on digging deeper some bricks were brought up unmistakably bearing a Roman imprint, and proving beyond question that Egypt was occupied by the Romans many thousands of years before Antony or Cleopatra had been born!

Perhaps, however, the most formidable objections have been urged in the interests of Evolution. This theory, which professes not only to trace the development of the earth with its continents, oceans, mountains, valleys, rivers and rocks from a homogeneous nebulous gas; but even to trace society, language, laws, customs, from the needs and habits of a primeval savage who ran wild in the woods, has a singular fascination for almost every student of nature. It suggests many probabilities which are readily mistaken for proofs. By aid of it classification becomes easy, and the memory itself seems to gain unusual strength. Many anomalies which have long proved puzzling and perplexing vanish before its spell, and many details of knowledge which at one time seemed distant enough, crystallise into a pleasing and picturesque unity. If we are content to receive it without reason and to maintain it without proof, no theory can make the endeavour to solve the mysteries of the universe less painful, or even more pleasant. I do not wonder it has proved so acceptable and agreeable to many. It is the grand secret of "becoming" revealed at once and for ever. Only admit the existence of the primeval gas with unlimited time, and by a series of easy gradations you can advance to the close of the nineteenth century, with all its sciences and appliances. Thoughtful men of an inquiring turn of mind ask, Whence came this wonderful gas-cloud with its amazing properties? The rustic stares when the conjurer finds the borrowed hat a capacious store-room; but we who are behind the scenes know full well that he cannot bring anything out which he does not first put in. Now all the contents of the whole solar system, not excluding mind and morals, were involved in that magnificent mist, else certainly they had never been evolved. For evolution implies involution, and the description of the one without any attempt to explain the other is, at best, a sorry process. Topsy, questioned as to her origin, replied, "'Specs I growed;" and the answer of evolution to the question of creation is no less natural and sensible.

Waiving, however, the unsatisfactoriness of this solution, let us ask for the evidence on which this theory of evolution rests. Given a homogeneous nebula of vast extent, how is this one substance (if anything so unsubstantial can be called substance) to diffentiate itself into some sixty or seventy chemical elements, each with its own exact and exquisitely adjusted specific gravity or weight? This is bar to progress, number one.

Then, even if this were passed, how is life to originate without germs or specific creation? Our masters in science tell us they have demonstrated that in no single case is life now developed except from life already existing. The hypothesis of spontaneous generation has been exploded. This is bar number two.

Then, even if life did exist in some extremely simple form, which Darwin himself suggests may have come from the Creator's hand, how are the different genera and species, with all their complex peculiarities, to grow from a single stem? There are, I admit, curious genealogical trees which are as trustworthy as the Welsh pedigree, with its ancestors before the Flood. It is possible to cross different species now, but their descendants are invariably infertile. The sterility of hybrids sternly forbids the branching out which evolution demands. This is bar number three.

Then we find man existing on the earth, with intelligence, language, heart, conscience; between whom and the noblest of the beasts of the field there is a great gulf fixed. How is this gulf to be bridged over. There is not the faintest trace of a simian ancestry? The oldest skulls known are of average European capacity. In presence of an illustrous assembly representing the science of Europe, Professor Virchow declared in the present year that there was not the slightest evidence to demonstrate the existence of any anthropoid form linking man with the ape. This is bar number four.

And each of these bars exists at the very point where evolutionists should find or build a bridge. I confidently ask the question, Is it not preposterous (I forbear stronger language), from unproved assumptions, such as the theory of evolution demands and uses, to raise objections against creation or the Bible? With the truth or falsehood of evolution I do not concern myself so long as it lacks proof. But so long as proof is absent, it has no right to enter the lists against faith. If it dare to do so, it is simply a pretender which ought to be stripped and disgraced.

At the present moment Materialism is being seriously discredited. The theory of double-faced matter, one side being material and the other mental, is not likely to survive much longer. Of course it is the nervous system which has been supposed to possess a twofold function. But the impossibility of distinguishing between nervous tissue which is associated with the fullest exercise of reason, and the inferior kind which is at best only entrusted with instinctive action, has given pause to speculations which were always more than doubtful.

The curious revival of Buddhism under the guise of pessimism is not the least significant movement of the present age. As a protest against an unreasonable optimism it is not without value. To certain minds it has no doubt a peculiar charm; and were it not for the Incarnation and Atonement of our Lord it might claim fair rank among philosophical theories. No thoughtful student can fail to perceive a striking resemblance between the helplessness and hopelessness of reason in the present day, and the growing despair which was settling down on inquiring minds at the time of our Lord's advent. For both there is one remedy, and only one—the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The influence of the speculations to which I have adverted is not limited to specialists in science and philosophy. By means of the periodical Press the wildest and most daring theories are made the common property of the multitude. Thus, many who have neither time nor ability to investigate these subjects for themselves adopt them at second-hand, on the authority of writers who, if not eminent, are at least pretentious. Fortified by such authority, there are thousands who profess to be honest doubters. I do not care to question their doubt; but unless they endeavour in a spirit of noble discontent to reach some certainty, I am bold enough to question their honesty. No one can remain placidly in a condition of uncertainty so long as there are any helps towards the resolving of doubts within his reach. And I venture again to affirm that the historical evidence of Christ's resurrection is of easy access, and when this is fairly examined, there is, in my opinion, no longer room for doubt. There is some ground for suspicion of honesty when this accessible proof is studiously ignored. Flippant writers against Christianity are almost invariably careful to give a wide berth to historical facts which have surely relevance no less than weight. Within the present century three noteworthy attempts have been made to eliminate the supernatural from the life of Christ, by Baur, Strauss, and Renan respectively, and it is no secret that all three have failed. What I have already called the key of the Christian position remains not only untaken, but untouched.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK.

By Mr. FOUNTAIN J. HARTLEY,
HON. SEC. OF LONDON SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION.

MORE than eighteen centuries have rolled away since our Saviour ascended to his Father, after charging his disciples to preach the Gospel to every creature; and we are often discouraged by the reflection that we are still so far behind the fulfilment of our Master's commission and the realisation of our ardent desires.

Amongst other reasons which might be alleged for this slow progress, it is worthy of attention whether we have not too much confined our operations to the adult population instead of beginning with the little ones, before their hearts are given to the world, or hardened by sin, and seeking to train them up in early life to know and love the Lord Jesus Christ. If every parent were a Christian, and every home a training-school for Christ, the world would soon be brought to the Messiah's feet. Among the varied means adopted by the Church for the attainment of this end, none have been so widely and successfully employed as the Sunday-school, which, both in England and America, has been all but universally established and abundantly blessed of God to the promotion of his kingdom.

In England and Wales, twenty per cent. of the population—i.e., one in every five—are Sunday scholars; in Scotland the proportion is fifteen per cent.; and in the United Kingdom fourteen per cent. The system, however, has, until quite recently, made but little progress on the continent of Europe. Sunday-schools have been established at Bordeaux, Hamburg, and Paris, and at the commencement these were assisted by the English Sunday School Union, which has sent me here on the present occasion. Some progress was made in France through the exertion of the French Sunday School Society, but very little was done in the other European nations prior to 1862, when Mr. Albert Woodruff, of Brooklyn, visited the Continent, and succeeded in giving an important stimulus to the movement. Since that period the English Sunday School Union, and the Foreign Sunday School Association of America, have contributed valuable assistance in the establishment of Sunday-schools in most of the countries of Europe, and have met with no small measure of success.

The Sunday-school Continental Mission helps to support no less than sixteen Sunday-school missionaries in various countries, and are ready to take still further action in this direction. The work, however, is still in its infancy among the Continental nations, and if the introduction of the subject at this important meeting should result in giving an impetus to the movement, especially in Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, a great and good work will have been accomplished. But the first thing to be done is to convince the Christian pastors and people that the Sunday-school system is one adapted to their needs and worthy of their encouragement and of their enthusiastic support. Perhaps the testimony of an Englishman who has had extensive opportunities for obtaining knowledge and experience of the working of the system in his own country may be useful in showing how much Sunday schools have done for England, and enabling the Christians of Northern Europe to judge how far they might be expected to be instrumental in effecting the same beneficial results among themselves.

SCRIPTURE KNOWLEDGE ADVANCED.

(1) In England Sunday-schools have done and are doing much for the promotion of Scripture knowledge. When Robert Raikes established his first Sunday-school in the city of Gloucester, the children of the poor were almost entirely uneducated, and for many years almost all that the "shilling a day teachers" could do was to tell their scholars some Bible story, to instruct them in their Catechism, and to give them some little help towards the acquisition of the art of reading. But gradually the extension of day-school education, the substitution of voluntary for paid teachers, and the recognition of the Sunday-school as the Bible-class of the Church, brought about a better state of things. The institution became less educational and more religious, until finally the spiritual aspects of the work assumed their due prominence, and the Sunday-school has now become a vast machinery for Bible study and religious instruction. Even to the children of Christian parents these additional opportunities, supplementing the home teaching which they receive, are of great value; but to those who would be otherwise entirely dependent upon the small modicum of religious instruction which the day-school supplies, such opportunities are of unspeakable value and importance.

The proceedings of the Sunday-school, too, are less formal and more interesting than those of the day-school, and herein lies one chief element of their value. The simple explanation of the Bible by those who love it, and who undertake the work for the Master's sake—striving with all their might to make their teaching both efficient and attractive—renders the hours spent in the Sabbath-school the happiest period of the week. That such is the case is abundantly proved by the fact that whereas the number of scholars in our day-schools, notwithstanding the power of compulsory attendance, is only about 4,000,000, our Sunday-schools, which are entirely dependent on the voluntary adhesion of the children and their parents, contain 5,000,000 scholars.

The schools are in most cases closely connected with the churches, though the instruction is usually rather evangelical than denominational, and the workers are all voluntary agents. It is not pretended that all our teachers are as well qualified for their work as could be desired. Many of them are far below the standard which might be hoped for, and nearly all of them are capable of improvement; but it is indisputable that the helps and opportunities now provided for them, and the examinations in Biblical knowledge, the evidences of Christianity, and the art of teaching to which many of them voluntarily submit themselves, are gradually raising the measure of their efficiency, while the scholars' annual examinations (in which many thousands now take part, and which are becoming more and more general year by year) supply ample proof of the growing efficiency of Sunday-school instruction.

THE MORAL VALUE OF SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

(2) Equal, if not superior, in importance to the scriptural knowledge which the Sunday-school imparts, is the moral influence which it brings to bear upon the children composing the several classes. The personal influence which the wise and loving teacher exerts is of incalculable value in seconding the efforts of the pastor, helping Christian parents in their home-training, and counteracting to a large extent the bad influence under which so many young people are placed, and which, if left unchecked, is very likely to effect their ruin.

When the instructions of the Sabbath-day are illustrated by the holy example of the teacher, and followed up as they should be by visits paid to the homes of the scholars, and endeavours to promote their well-being during the week, the instructor also becomes the friend and guide of his youthful charges, and gradually acquires over them an influence for good which is well-nigh irresistible.

SPIRITUAL RESULTS.

(3) Thanks to the gracious influence of the Holy Spirit, faithful teaching and loving care are not left without their appropriate reward, but many thousands of our scholars every year come forward to join the Christian Church with which their school is connected; and it is universally admitted that these youthful converts are among the most earnest and consistent followers of the Lord Jesus. It is, however, an undoubted fact that the number of these practical proofs of the utility of Sunday-school instruction are not so large as might reasonably have been expected if teachers were more earnest and more prayerful in their endeavours to lead their scholars into the fold of the Good Shepherd.

(4) But when this grand result is not attained, and scholars leave the school without having given their hearts to Jesus, it often turns out that they have received impressions in the class which ultimately, in some hour of affliction, or under the ministry of the Word, lead to their conversion and decision for God. Even if no other benefit is derived from the instructions of the Sunday-school teacher, the preparation which they impart for attendance on the means of grace, and the hymns and texts so indelibly fixed upon their memories, are advantages the value and importance of which only eternity can unfold. One of the most active infidel lecturers in England, who was many years ago converted to Christ, and now preaches the faith he once endeavoured to destroy, relates that he never could forget the hymns he had learned to sing in the Sunday-school, and that after one of his lectures he would often sit down at the fireside and sing with his wife one of the old Sunday-school songs.

A NURSERY FOR WORKERS.

(5) The Sunday-school has been very useful in furnishing a supply of diligent workers in the several departments of Christian activity. A large number of ministers and missionaries have received their first religious impressions and their earliest training in the Sunday-school; and nearly 90 per cent. of the present English teachers have come up from the ranks of the scholars, thus conclusively showing the wonderful reproductive power of the system, and the extent to which the Divine blessing has rested upon it.

(6) Besides these all-important spiritual results, some social and political benefits have followed the action of the Sunday-school teacher. In times of national trouble and political excitement it has greatly tended to quiet the minds of the people and infuse a spirit of patient submission to the powers that be. During the Cotton Famine and the American War, it is generally believed that their patience and quiet endurance under great privation and suffering, were mainly owing to the influence which the Sunday-school had exerted on the popular mind. The admixture of classes for which the Sunday-school provides such large opportunities has a considerable influence in the destruction of that class feeling which is one of the crying evils of the day, while the facilities which the Sunday-school presents for the promotion of Temperance by its Band of Hope, the stimulus which it gives to Sabbath observance, and the opportunities which it affords for the cultivation of charity to the poor, and liberality in the cause of Missions, are among the social advantages of the institution—advantages which, though of secondary importance, are well worthy of thoughtful recognition.

(7) But if none of these results had been achieved by the establishment of Sunday-schools, the fact that they have provided an opening for the employment of the energies and talents of God's people would of itself furnish an occasion for the gratitude of the Church. Lay agency in the propagation of Christianity had scarcely any opportunities for its exercise a hundred years ago. Another benefit is that teachers have been saved from the curse of inaction. These advantages are above description and beyond all price.

Similar results have been witnessed in the United States, in Canada, in the Australian colonies, and indeed wherever the Sunday-school has been established, so that there is good ground for believing in its universal adaptation as the ministry of the Gospel to the young.

With regard to the objection we sometimes hear raised, viz., "Since we are an educated people, and religion is taught in our day-schools, we have in our country no need of a Sunday-school," we certainly find in England that since education has been rendered national and compulsory, the number of our Sunday scholars has continued to increase, and the institution is as necessary and as important as ever. The best thing will be for general education and Sunday-school instruction to go hand in hand, so that by these united means the coming generation may be made better fitted than the past ones have been, both for this world and the world to come.

HINTS AND SUGGESTIONS.

I now offer a few hints and suggestions to those who are ready to afford help and encouragement in this good work.

(1) Let the great advantages of the Sunday-school system be made widely known. Let ministers and Christian people talk and write about it; establish Sunday-school Unions or societies to aid in the work; appoint missionary agents to scour the country, in order to persuade the people to make a beginning.

(2) Establish a Sunday-school in connection with every church and congregation.

(3) Let every school be a collection of classes, and each class under the care of a teacher, and not a gathering of children for a united religious service—a plan which has been adopted to some extent in France and Germany; but that is not the thing to be desired. Let ministers preach to the young, but teaching and training is the work of the Sunday-school, conducted best in groups of eight or ten. If enough men cannot be got to teach the boys, let women undertake the task; the men will follow. If possible, have school twice a day; in America it meets only once. Adopt whichever plan suits your circumstances, only make the best use of your time.

(4) Do not fall into the error which has had a baneful effect on our English schools, but happily avoided by our American friends, that of supposing that the Sunday-school is for the poor only, and those who have no religious instruction at home. Let the children of the church and congregation have their share in the benefits of the institution. The Sunday-school is the place for all—the children of the rich and the poor—the infants and the adults.

(5) Adopt the International Lessons system (unless there are special reasons for not doing so), as then the same blessed truth may be taught in various parts of the world at the same time. Let the pastor and teachers meet during the week, and study the lesson together. If the one uniform lesson system extends to schools of various denominations, as in America, and to a large extent in England, the tendency will be to allay the bitterness of—if it does not destroy entirely—that sectarian bigotry which too often disfigures and disgraces the Christian Church, and to spread that Christian unity for which our Master prayed, and which is one of the chief objects for which the Evangelical Alliance was established. Should this blessed result be promoted by the introduction of our subject to-day, and the impetus thereby given to the extension of Sunday-schools on the Continent of Europe, then this great and glorious meeting of the Alliance in the beautiful and renowned city of Copenhagen will not have been altogether in vain.

THE BAPTISM OF THE HOLY GHOST.

By Rev. Dr. CLEMANCE, London.

IT is not of ritual that we are about to speak. We have this week been meeting on one common platform as disciples of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. We have been looking round us to inquire what are the signs of the times. We have asked each other how we can best fulfil the work which our adorable Lord has put into our hands. And now ere we separate it cannot be unfitting for us to look upward to Him who has said "Occupy till I come." For the vigour and inspiration of our Christian work will depend very much on our perception of what our Lord is to us, and on what He is doing for us now that He is exalted to his throne.

The apostle Paul reminds us that if we are reconciled by a dying Saviour we are saved by a living one. "For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life." There is, however, one passage to which we would now more especially allude. We find that just before the Saviour began his public ministry He was heralded by John the Baptist, who pointed Him out as sustaining, or as about to sustain, two distinct and separate relationships to men. On the same day that he said of Jesus, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world," he also said, "This is He that baptizeth with the Holy Ghost." Now it is impossible for believers to think too much of Christ as the Lamb of God, but it is quite possible for them to think too little of Him as the Baptizer with the Holy Ghost. In fact, we venture to think that for every thought which believers have of their Lord under the second aspect they have had ten thoughts of Him under the first. We are very far from saying that the ten thoughts of Him under the first are too many, but we are sure that the one thought of Him under the second occurs very much too seldom.

THE TWO PILLARS OF OUR FAITH.

These two parts of our Lord's life-work are the two pillars of our faith. The atoning sacrifice is finished; it was completed on Calvary once for all, never to be renewed, never to be increased, and its efficacy never in any way to be added unto. "By one offering He hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified," and that work once done we have but to accept it as God's free gift to us. This atoning work is complete for ever. But the second part of Christ's work—the Baptism with the Holy Ghost—is going on perpetually. It had, indeed, one grand and memorable historic commencement in the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the Day of Pentecost. But that was only a commencement. The outpouring of the Holy Ghost is going on continually.

Our Saviour died to be the Atoner. He lives to be the Baptizer, and whereas the atoning sacrifice is completely finished the great baptizing work will never be completed until the last believer is safely home in glory. To carry on this work our Saviour lives and reigns as Head over all things to his Church.

If we were asked how we would define the Baptism with the Holy Ghost, we would express it thus: It is such a communication of the Spirit of God to the spirit of man as it is the prerogative of the Divine Being alone to impart, and such as, being given, enriches the individual so privileged with whatever grace or gift may be necessary to, and sufficient for, a noble life and a holy walk.

Here all believers are one. All agree to acknowledge a Divine Baptizer, even the Lord Jesus Christ. He in whom dwells "all the fulness of the Godhead bodily" gives out of his fulness to believers. The Father giveth not the Spirit by measure unto Him. Having received of the Father on our behalf, the promise of the Holy Ghost, He now sheds forth perpetually that gracious energy to quicken and to inspire. He who from the eternal throne, who with an energy never wasting, gives each year as much brightness and beauty to the spring-tide verdure as though it were the first outcome of his fulness, does continually send as richly the fulness of God into human souls, age after age, as when the first outpouring began. Who so fit to be the Administrator of this heavenly Baptism as He of whom John bare record that "He is the Son of God"?

It is, moreover, revealed to us throughout the Acts of the Apostles, and the Epistles, that this is our Saviour's distinctive work. Putting it generally: in the Gospels we have Him set before us as the Atoner; in the Acts we have his work as the Baptizer. The Gospels take us up to Calvary, where the foundations of the Church were laid in sorrow, tears, and blood; the Acts take us on from Calvary to witness the results of the Resurrection and Ascension, and show us the great baptizing work of our Redeemer, as the power whereby the first churches were built up and believers "added to the Lord."

If we pass on from the Acts of the Apostles, and go through the Epistles, we there find that every virtue and every grace is attributed to the Holy Ghost. Whether it is faith, or love, or joy, or peace, or whatever it be, it is owing to the life and power of the Holy Ghost first coming into the believer, and then radiating from him, making the Church brighter and the world poorer. And thus, this is the great privilege in which, as believers, we have to rejoice—that our Saviour lives and reigns above, in order to give us, at any moment, the plenitude of the Holy Ghost; not occasionally, but permanently; not fitfully and uncertainly, but constantly and surely. Yea, as surely as the Father is ready to give good things to them that ask Him, so surely is the Lord Jesus, as He who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost, ready to give us this—the one distinctive blessing of the great Christian age—that constant, that perpetual Baptism of Power of which the outpouring of the Holy Ghost, on the Day of Pentecost, was but the inaugural pledge.

THE EFFECTS OF THIS BAPTISM.

Let us now suppose that we were all receiving abundantly of the fulness of the Holy Ghost from our risen Lord, what would be the effect upon our own spiritual life? If we were filled with the Spirit, that life would rise and grow immeasurably in holiness and power, and our courage and vigour in the great battle with the sin and ignorance around us would be surprisingly augmented! Yea, we should be so empowered with divine might, that the sense of our own weakness would almost be forgotten, through the overpowering fulness and energy of the gift of the Holy Ghost. And then, if this Baptism of the Spirit were to come upon us fully and abidingly, as ministers and pastors, we should preach with new power, and our hearers would be inspired with new life; there would be new energy diffused through all our congregations, a new aspect would be put upon our Christian work, and many of those miserable barriers which divide Christian from Christian would be broken down. The hard words that Christians utter to and of each other would cease to be heard, and the saying of the early days of the Church would be repeated: "See how these Christians love one another." Another effect of this fuller Baptism of the Holy Ghost, and that by no means the least blessed, would be that by a more vivid realisation of the increase of power, which we may have at any moment, only through the contact of living faith with a living Lord, we should be inspired with a holy gladness, which would be a translation into life of the Apostle's words: "a joy unspeakable, and full of glory."

Shall we now start another question—"What encouragement have we to expect to receive this fulness of the Holy Ghost?" In reply we observe: Here is our Saviour announced at the very beginning of his ministry as "the Baptizer with the Holy Ghost" as well as "the Lamb of God," and we do not take in the whole of the Scripture testimony concerning Him unless we accept Him in the one aspect as well as in the other. Nor do we do justice to that testimony if we allow either part of it to put the other into the shade. We must accept Christ as the Baptizer with the Holy Ghost as fully as we accept Him as our atoning sacrifice. Besides, if Christ were merely the Atoner, and not the Baptizer, He would have laid a foundation, but there would have been nothing built upon it! Without the atonement there would have been no basis for the Church; without the gift of the Holy Ghost there would have been no Church built upon that basis.

Then we may not forget that the indwelling of the Holy Ghost—even his abiding in the disciples for ever—was the main promise with which our Lord cheered his disciples when they were anxious concerning his departure from them. He assured them that they would be even richer for his absence, for that when He was gone He would fill them with such a plenitude of power that the mighty works which should be wrought by them would surpass those which He Himself had performed. "Greater works than these shall ye do; because I go to my Father." Yea, more than this. It is only through the plenitude of the Holy Ghost that the new creation of God's grace can be completed. When and as the Spirit is poured out from on high, then, and then only, will "the wilderness be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be counted for a forest."

A NEEDLESS QUESTION.

After all, dear brethren, when we asked, "What encouragement have we to expect this Baptism with 'the Holy Ghost?'"—we purposely put it so, in order to meet a common phase of Christian thought; but we earnestly desire that we should all feel that that is not a proper question for us to ask. For to ask such a question seems to imply that we may possibly be more anxious to get the blessing than our Saviour may be to give it. We ought never to think thus of our Divine Lord. He saves as well as redeems. He saves by his life as well as redeems by his death. And it would be as sinful for us to doubt that our Saviour will give us this baptism, as it is for the sinner to doubt that his Saviour will give him pardon. It is as much our duty to receive the baptism of power by faith, as it is the penitent's duty to receive forgiveness by faith; and we never realise all that our Saviour is to us, unless we think of Him as living for this, governing for this, interceding for this: that He may supply us every day and at every hour with such a fulness of the Holy Ghost as shall fit us for every possible demand that can be made upon us in our personal Christian life. And we shall never know and feel the glory of our Divine Redeemer, until we learn the habit of living upon Him for all the power we need. By his royal prerogative He imparts to us pardon; by his administrative energy He endues us with power. And we confess, brethren, to having many a fear that we as believers have greatly dishonoured the Lord Jesus, and that we have been greatly lacking in spiritual force and in holy joy, through failing to see in our Lord, not only our atoning sacrifice but also our constant spring of power.

"GO AND TELL JESUS."

Some years ago a Christian lady came to me in great distress, and said, "Sir, I have such a burden on my heart. I am engaged in a boarding-school; there are many pupils, and I know I ought to tell them about the Saviour's love, but I cannot. It seems as if a padlock were on my lips; I cannot speak of Christ, and it is a burden on me every day."

I said, "Do I understand your case? You love Christ?" "Yes."

"You want to speak for Him?" "Indeed I do."

"You cannot?" "Cannot say a word."

"And is that a burden to you?" "Indeed it is."

"Well, now," said I, "do not tell another soul on earth what you have told me, but go and tell Jesus. Instead of asking help from man, go and cast the burden upon Him. He lives to baptize you with every power you want. Just go and tell Jesus what you feel, and leave the whole matter with Him."

I saw no more of her for some weeks, but the next time she came to see me, instead of the face looking as if she were weighed down with a burden, it was radiant with joy.

I asked her, "How is it with you now?"

"Oh," she said, "I did as you told me. Instead of speaking to man about it, I flung the burden on Christ, and it is gone! I can speak for Him now. My tongue is unloosed, and I can praise God."

Christian brethren, let us try this more and more. We think of Christ as an Atoner, and we cannot thus think of Him too much; but I fear many of us have all but forgotten Him as "He who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost." We want Him as the Baptizer as well as the Atoner. We want Him for pardon; let us live on Him also for power, and then we shall be full of strength and gladness; we shall move with swifter step and sing with lighter heart, and find in our Master's service a spring and an energy which we have as yet too little known.

Christian brethren, right joyous work has it been to meet each other as one in Him. We may not see each other again on earth. But though we may move in different spheres, speak different tongues, worship under different names, we seldom meet at home without breathing the prayer, "Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity." From England our hearts send up the prayer, "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all." Yes. The double grace; the grace which cancels all guilt; the grace which fills with all power. "Now unto Him that is able to keep us from falling, and to present us faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy; to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion, and power, both now and ever. Amen."

DISCORD AND CONCORD OF CHRISTENDOM.

By Rev. Dr. SCHAFF, New York.

UPON this topic Rev. Dr. Schaff read a paper embracing the Mission of the Evangelical Alliance.

The Christian world he divided into three parts—Greek, Roman, and Protestant; pointing out, as to numbers, that the Roman Church was the largest, and nearly equalled the other two combined; and the Greek Church was the smallest. As to age, that the oldest was the Greek, the youngest the Protestant. The Greek represented ancient Christianity in repose; the Roman Church, mediæval Christianity in conflict with modern progress; and Protestantism, modern Christianity in motion.

The various Protestant Churches had the unspeakable advantage of evangelical freedom, of direct access to the fountain of God's love and God's grace, and unobstructed personal union and communion with Christ of the general priesthood of believers, and the full enjoyment of the rights of nationality and individuality consistent with loyalty to Christ's kingdom.

Protestantism had emancipated a large portion of Christendom from the yoke of human traditions and spiritual tyranny, and had given it a mighty impulse in every department of intellectual and moral activity. It now controlled the strongest nations of Europe and the Northern half of the American continent. It carried the open Bible to all heathen lands; it was cultivating with increasing zeal exegetical, historical, systematic, and practical divinity; it favoured every legitimate progress in science, art, literature commerce, and the improvement of the condition of the masses, and was identified with the cause of civil and religious liberty throughout the world.

One of the greatest sins of which all churches and sects are more or less guilty, is pride, intolerance, and exclusiveness, which, in spite of Christianity, springs from the selfishness of fallen human nature. They vainly imagine that they possess the monopoly of truth and piety, and look down upon the others as heretical and schismatical sects, or even as synagogues of Satan. In their polemics they have exhausted the vocabulary of reproach and vituperation. They have persecuted each other by fire and sword, or by prescriptive legislation, worse than heathen Rome persecuted Christianity. We except from this charge a few modern churches which never had the power to persecute, and expressly repudiate the principle—as the Friends, the Moravians, Baptists, and Methodists. The persecution of heretics and dissenters, from the crucifixion to the burning of the last witch, is the darkest chapter in Church history.

We must look hopefully for a reunion of Christendom, and a feast of reconciliation of churches, but it must be preceded by an act of general humiliation: all must confess, "We have sinned and erred. God alone is pure and perfect."

But how is a reunion of Christendom to be brought about? Not by a crusade against denominations and sects. Such a crusade would be a mere waste of time.

The evil lies, not in denominationalism, but in sectarianism; not in variety, but in exclusiveness.

Sectarianism is extended selfishness; denominationalism grows out of the diversity of divine gifts, and may co-exist with true catholicity and large-hearted charity. Diversity in unity is the law in God's physical and moral universe, and the condition of all beauty and harmony. Variety is life: uniformity, death. "There are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. And there are diversities of ministrations, but the same Lord. And there are diversities of workings, but the same God who worketh all things in all. But to each one is given the manifestation of the Spirit to profit withal."

There is infinite variety in nature, still greater diversity in history; no two trees, no two persons are alike; and what is true of individuals is true of whole nations—they differ in language, manners, customs, laws, and institutions. None of these nationalities would be improved by being transformed into another; and if all nationalities were melted into one, we should lose all the beauty, charm, and wealth of life which spring from the variety and multiplicity of gifts. But for all that, the various nations belong to the same human family, and can, and ought to, respect each other for the very characteristic varieties of type which they respectively represent.

The same law holds good in regard to churches. Every church or denomination which holds to the Head has its special charisma and mission. There is abundant room and abundant labour for all. The cause of Christ would be marred and weakened if any one of these churches should be extinguished or be absorbed into another.

Experience teaches that those countries which recognise and tolerate but one organised form of Christianity are most backward in spiritual life and energy, while those in which all forms have fair play are most active and progressive. An honourable rivalry in good works is profitable to all.

Denominationalism or Confessionalism has, no doubt, its evils and dangers, and is apt to run into narrowness, bigotry, and uncharitableness; but the worst we can say of it is that in the present state of Christendom it is a necessary evil, and is overruled by God for the multiplication of regenerating and converting agencies. It is not the best state of the Church; but it is far better than a dead or tyrannical and monotonous uniformity.

Our present duty is to recognise, to maintain, and to promote Christian unity in the midst of ecclesiastical diversity. Unity of outward organisation is not absolutely necessary for the unity of the Church, which is essentially spiritual. Christian unity has not to be created; it already exists as to its basis. All Christians are one in Christ, and therefore one among each other. There is now, and always has been, an accord as well as discord. Christian union underlies all denominational diversity, and is consistent with it. This unity is felt just in proportion as Christians become personally acquainted, and work together and pray together.

As regards Church government, the Greek Church holds to a patriarchal oligarchy, the Roman to a papal monarchy; the Protestants are divided between episcopacy, presbytery, and independency. But Christ has not prescribed any particular form of government, and has left the Church free to adapt itself to circumstances. He has only instituted the Apostolate, and says nothing about patriarch, or pope, or bishop, or priest, or deacon.

If, then, Christian union exists as a most real and powerful fact beneath and behind all differences and varieties of doctrine, polity, and worship, why should it not be manifested and strengthened on every proper occasion?

The cultivation of fraternal fellowship is essential to the nature of Christianity as a religion of love, and a precious privilege as well as a sacred duty. The actual manifestation of Christian union is seriously hindered by differences of language, nationality, and customs; but still more by various forms of sectarian exclusiveness. Every church has the right and duty to defend its own faith and practice as the best, and everybody should belong to that denomination which he conscientiously prefers to any other, and in which he can do most good.

But this is quite consistent with the recognition of the rights of others.

But let us do what we can on a more humble and limited scale. We would not refuse the hand of fellowship to the lowliest disciple of Christ. We would extend our theology to the uttermost limits of truth, and make it as broad and deep as God's love. Genuine catholicity and liberality is not to be confounded with that negative liberalism which ignores or obliterates the distinction between truth and error, but it springs from the deep conviction of the infinite grandeur of truth, and the inability of any single mind or sect to grasp it in all its fulness and variety of aspects. If we love only those of our own sect or party, we do no more than the Gentiles, Jews, or Mahommedans. Love, instead of being weakened, is strengthened and deepened by expansion. He loves best who loves most.

Neither episcopacy nor presbytery, neither immersion nor pouring, neither Lutheranism nor Methodism, neither Calvinism nor Arminianism, neither Romanism nor Protestantism, nor any other -ism, "availeth anything, but a new creature. And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be upon them, and upon the Israel of God."

THE NEW TESTAMENT SCRIPTURES.

By Professor GODET.

THE following is a brief summary of the address delivered in French by Professor Godet, of Neuchatel, on "The Basis and Authority of the New Testament Scriptures":—

Christianity presents itself as a Divine revelation; that is to say, as a Divine fact accomplished at a certain period of history. Now, if this fact took place, and Christ has given authentic interpretation of the same, then there is an authority in the Church. To those who took the human point of view, He would say: You recognise the existence of evil. It is a power in us which should cease to exist. But how? Try by your own efforts to destroy it, and you will soon discover the truth of Paul's experience, "O wretched man that I am," &c. (Rom. vii.). This experience shows the need of a revelation.

Christianity, then, is the hand of God stretched out for the purpose of rescuing men from evil. Now, if Christ is really a Saviour, then He must have been conscious of his mission and his person. But Christ has gone, and cannot now instruct us by his spoken words. We must have a means of obtaining access to religious truth. In order that salvation may reach the heart it must pass through the mind, and Christ provided for this by choosing twelve disciples to be witnesses of his works and words. On the day of Pentecost He finished what He had begun by his daily teaching, and the Apostolic conscience became the reflection of the conscience of Christ. The Apostles are gone, but their testimony is found in writings of the New Testament, in twenty-seven books.

The question, therefore, to be considered is: Are those books genuine? If they are, then they are our authority. The question thus presented is one of fact—Are these books the work of the Apostles? This seems to put the Church in a dangerous position. It seems to be exposed to the fluctuations of criticism. Must the Church settle its faith in the New Testament when the critics have settled how many of the books are genuine? No. The decisions of criticism are not infallible; they, in fact, change every ten years or so. In this connection we may accept the confession of Strauss, who said that he was astonished that his colleagues could pretend to perfect impartiality in these important matters.

To confide to science a question so vital would be like entrusting the frontiers of one's country to a neighbouring power more often hostile than otherwise. No; there is a shorter method. Let us consider it. We begin with the Gospels. It is not a question of their exact harmony. We perceive a striking resemblance between them. Their apostolic origin is proved by their simplicity, especially if they are compared with the so-called Apocryphal Gospels. Luke, indeed, explains how the Gospels were written, and the source whence they were drawn. One of the four does not enter into this category. The Gospel of John contains his personal recollections, and the Church will never be brought to believe that this Gospel is the work of an impostor. With regard to thirteen Epistles of Paul, the Church will not be shaken in the conviction that works breathing such a spirit are genuine. With regard to the Hebrews, the Church will do well not to judge the question definitively. It evidently comes from the circle of Paul's friends; and, like Luther, we may place it in a sort of secondary canon. This is also the position it would be well to give to the Second and Third Epistles of John, and also the Second Epistle of Peter, and that of James, who was probably a brother of Christ, and therefore not one of the Twelve. It has been said that other books bear testimony to Christ, e.g., "Imitation of Christ," &c.; but take from them what they have borrowed from the New Testament, and what would be left?

M. Godet, referring to the sacred concert of the previous evening in the Cathedral at Roskilde, said that the writings of the New Testament form a glorious harmony in which we may take as the bass voices those of Matthew and James, in their development of the Mosaic law in the Christian sense; the soprano voice, celebrating the free salvation of Christ, Luke, and the Epistles of Paul; the alto, showing the union between the two—Mark and Peter; and lastly, the tenor, the silvery voice of John, singing of the Word made flesh. We will not choose between them. We will take them all together. In the earliest times of the Church some preferred Matthew, then the Docetists insisted on Mark. In the second century Marcion laid the stress on Luke and Paul, and then the Mystics preferred John. But all these have disappeared, and left little more than a name in history. The Church wants the whole Christ—quadruple, and yet one—and if the Christian Church is to grow up into the stature of Christ, it must have the New Testament in its totality.

In conclusion, Professor Godet in his own simple and heart-moving fashion urged each of his hearers to make the solemn resolve to read and meditate on some few words of the New Testament every day. "If ye abide in Me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what you will, and it shall be done unto you."

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPORT.

THE Conference assembled on Monday morning, Sept. 1, in Bethesda Mission-house, and was opened with an impressive liturgical choral service, lasting an hour. It was conducted by Pastor Tolstrup, in sonorous tones, characteristic of the North, the choir exhibiting a similar quality, but blending with it the musical culture of the West. A number of ladies and gentlemen in Copenhagen, who are members of the Evangelical Alliance, had constituted themselves a choir specially for these Conference services. Before the liturgy was commenced, there was in the assembly a general hum of conversation. A hint from the President, who emphasized it by ringing a little bell, instantly restored silence, and the service proceeded with becoming solemnity. Copies of the service, printed in three languages (the English and French suffered somewhat by translation from the Danish), were used by the members of the Conference. The cover of the book is striking in appearance, and bears appropriate emblems. The colour is entirely crimson, except where, on one side, the Cross is displayed, on a pure white ground, with a star over it, and upon the other, a dove, bearing the olive branch.

The hall was filled, but not crowded. While the choir sang, the congregation retained their seats, but rose when the minister, who had intoned the liturgy standing by the side of the singers in the gallery, came into the body of the hall, and offered an extempore prayer, imploring the Divine blessing upon the proceedings of the Conference.

The morning session, over which the venerable Dr. Kalkar presided, was chiefly occupied with the presentation and reading of reports on the religious condition of Denmark and Sweden. These statements, which had some interest for Englishmen, were translated at a sectional meeting of British and American delegates. Home Mission Agencies in the Kingdom of Denmark were (said Dean Vahl) developing, and adding corresponding strength in the several churches. The Society for Local Missions sent out fifty-seven lay preachers to hold meetings in churches, private houses, and the open-air throughout the land. The report contained one assertion which appears like irony: "The Society for Preaching the Gospel in Foreign Parts has three stations in England!" Outside the Established Church in Norway, many evangelical agencies were reported to be at work, and the people manifested a strong inclination to attend religious services and gatherings. Sweden (Pastor Ostberg presented the report) seemed to be in a state of transition. There was said to be a desire to break away from the Established Church, and "to take up with something new." In other words, a great and general revival was going on everywhere, which, it was remarked, called for the exercise of calm judgment and wise discretion.

In the course of a brief discussion that followed, the Rev. Dr. Underhill, as Secretary of the Baptist Missionary Society, invited all present to join in an expression of appreciation of the noble and generous conduct of a former King of Denmark with regard to Missions sent out to India from Great Britain. Missions in that Empire were first introduced by the Danes. They were established in Southern India, and their operations still continued under the direction of the Danish Society. Englishmen, however, experienced great difficulty in establishing a Mission in Northern India, owing to the intense opposition of the East India Company of the days, so that when the missionaries of the Baptist Society arrived there, and attempted to carry on their labours, they were in every way hindered, delayed, opposed, and persecuted by that Company. In their time of distress, the Danish monarch, Frederick IV., came forward and protected them. As Englishmen, those present in the meeting would, he felt sure, take the opportunity, while in the Danish capital, of passing a resolution embodying their grateful thanks to the Crown of Denmark for so valuable a service rendered by a former monarch to English missionaries under painful and distressing circumstances.

In the terms indicated by the mover, a resolution was then seconded by the Rev. Dr. Murray Mitchell, and carried with great cordiality and unanimity.

The public meeting held in the evening was crowded. The Lord Mayor of London, M.P. (a vice-president of the Evangelical Alliance), presided. We lived, said his lordship, in perilous times. Great efforts were being made by superstition on the one hand, and—more serious still—infidelity and rationalism on the other. Consequently, it behoved those who loved the same Lord and Master to strive more than ever to serve their generation according to the will of God, and to unite for the extension of the kingdom of Christ. Referring to England especially, he declared his firm conviction that if the Christian religion extended, his beloved land would prosper, with the blessing of God upon it; but if, instead, true religion were allowed to decline, and infidelity, with other forms of error, were permitted to make progress, the country would, beyond doubt, decline also, and the present perils increase.

An address on "Christian Life in relation to Domestic and Social Conduct" was read by the Rev. Mr. Nicholas, Limerick, on behalf of Rev. T. McCullagh, Ex-President of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference, England, who was prevented by indisposition from travelling to Copenhagen.

The topic was connected with a branch of practical Christianity, and had to deal with the Christian life, not in its passive state, but in its activities within a certain sphere. That sphere was a kind of double one—a circle within a circle; the narrow circle of the domestic within the wider sphere of the social, the first having relation to the home and the family, and the second to society generally and citizenship. Confining his observations to the domestic aspect of the subject, he pointed out that the first form which human society assumed was the domestic; the earliest, most sacred, and most indissoluble bond was that of marriage. Hence the family, of which the marriage was the foundation, was a more ancient form of society than kingdom, oligarchy, or republic. Parents governed before kings ruled, and children obeyed before subjects gave their allegiance to the representatives of authority and law.

The union of religion with domestic life dated from the time of the first family. Divine converse was held with Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden, both before and after the Fall. In post-diluvian times, family religion was found in the homesteads of the patriarchs. Job's care for his children was almost as remarkable as his patience. Abraham, leading his nomadic life in the Land of Promise, invariably associated the altar with the tent.

Religion in connection with domestic life was recognised in the Decalogue. The fifth commandment, and the first with promise, treated of the honour, with all that it included of affection and obedience, it was the duty of children to render, and the duty of parents to receive. Its position at the beginning of the second table, which contained our duty towards men, seemed to indicate that of all our social obligations, the domestic had the first claim upon us, and to imply that which Divine inspiration enjoined afterwards by the pen of St. Paul, "Let them learn first to show piety at home, and to requite their parents; for that is good and acceptable before God."

More fully than in the Decalogue, the relative duties of family life were laid down in other parts of Divine Revelation, and especially in the writings of St. Paul in his Epistles to the Colossians and Ephesians. These duties were all moral, and yet they were all connected by the Apostle with religious principles, motives, and sanctions. In the doctrines of revealed religion he found the root-principles, the adequate motives, and the eternal sanctions, of all true morality. Without saving grace, to look for the virtues in their perfection was like seeking grapes on thorns and figs on thistles. Domestic conduct, not only blameless but beneficial, was to be found best in the household where there was most of the Christian life. Then parental affection was lifted from amongst the rabble of animal instincts and feelings, and placed high amongst the moralities, and sanctified as a virtue.

When the whole family was influenced by the saving grace of God, peace and harmony would be unbroken by the voice of discord; infirmities there might be, but no domestic scandals. Damage might be done in the family to the interests of religion by those who profess the Christian life, but whose conduct is inconsistent with such profession. The young and inexperienced, who could only judge of religion by specimens of it presented to them at home, might be prejudiced for life against the Gospel of Christ. On the other hand, the genuine Christian life would be more admired the nearer and stricter the scrutiny. The old proverbs, "Familiarity breeds contempt," and "No man is a hero to his valet," did not apply to the saints. The better they were known the more they were admired and loved, and the greater was their influence for good.

In the absence of the Rev. Dr. W. F. Watkins (U.S.),

REV. DR. MOSES HOGE, OF RICHMOND,

Virginia, U.S., volunteered an extempore address. Quoting from an admirable sermon delivered on the previous day (Sunday) by the Rev. Prebendary Anderson, of Bath, he said it was perfectly true that men were not so much educated by books as by persons. They derived much knowledge from literature, but men, after all, were their teachers. It was by personal contact, by intercourse of mind with mind, and heart with heart, that character was moulded, giving and receiving impressions day by day; so that every man was as a sculptor, with 10,000 patient touches of his chisel forming the characters of those with whom he had associations, and giving them shape which, perchance, they might wear for ever. If they learned more from men than from books, then how forcibly does the remark apply to the influences exerted, not only in society at large, but in the family. No topic discussed in the Conference would be more vital, more practical, or one of more practical power than this in its influence on all the churches. The influence of a mother was beautifully expressed in the lines of Cowper on "My Mother's Picture:"—

"Oh, that those lips had language! Life has passed
With me but roughly since I saw thee last."

Nor have we forgotten the stanza in which he so gratefully embalms the memory of those to whom he owed a debt never to be repaid:—

"My boast is not that I derive my birth
From loins enthroned, or rulers of the earth;
But higher far my proud pretensions rise,
The child of parents passed into the skies."

Were he to give the call, he had no doubt that, in the audience that evening, 100 men would rise and repeat those lines. If they wanted a commentary on the beauty of family religion, they would find it in the "Cottar's Saturday Night." No matter the tune, the music of the family gathering for prayer and praise was in the heart. There was no end to the theme, nor ought there to be; because so long as there was a church in the house there would be a church in the State and a church in the world; but when the church in the house ceased to be, the church in the State would no longer exist, and by and by there would be no church in the world. If there was no pious person in the house but one, that pious person ought to be the mother; she it was who first began with the child, and her influence continued the longest. The prayer which the mother taught the child to say at her knee was a good prayer also for a man:—

"If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

God bless the influence and the memory of every Christian mother in that audience, in that land, and throughout the world.

The address, which was delivered with great earnestness and fervour, was listened to with intense interest, and its sentiments were repeatedly applauded.

THE POWER OF PRAYER

was the title of a paper read by the Rev. McCheyne Edgar, of Dublin, who said:—

"There is no unifying element in the world equal to prayer. It is when individuals in conscious weakness gather round the feet of Him who has everlasting strength, and supplicate his help, that they realise their unity. We see a whole church holding together by the exercise of prayer. These churches may embrace between them various schools of theological thought; they may contain doctrinal systems which are in some measure at least antagonistic, but the Book of Common Prayer holds them all together in a most instructive unity, and demonstrates what a unifying force prayer always is. And this Evangelical Alliance in all its various branches does no more important work than when it seeks to promote "concerts for prayer." The Week of Prayer promoted at the opening of the year, the Day of Prayer for Ireland, the Union urges upon Christians of every name, both in and beyond that unhappy country. The various united services fostered by this Alliance, of which prayer is the inspiring spirit, all tend more than anything else to promote the manifestation of our unity in Christ Jesus.

In trying to enforce the duty of prayer, let us establish its reasonableness. Certain students of nature have industriously circulated the idea that such a "reign of law" exists as leaves no room for efficacious prayer. The whole spirit of the age is in the direction of an appeal to nature. To these objections, I would say: "Have you appealed to nature? Unto nature shall you go." Our Lord has given us the cue of the whole subject. When the disciples asked Him for instruction in prayer, He gave them not only the perfect form and perfect model we usually style the Lord's Prayer, but He also furnished them with a suitable defence. Our Lord makes his appeal to nature. Human nature and human society constitute a most important part of the order of nature. He found prayer existing, and the answer coming to it according to the order of nature. A neighbour intercedes for bread to feed a perishing friend. He does not succeed in getting it at first, but importunity at length wins the day, and his prayer proves efficacious: all this is in the order of nature.

The Supreme Being who constructed Nature on the prayer plan, also left room for the analogous exercise of prayer as between his creatures and Himself. Moreover, when we look at the special answer which Jesus says we have a right to expect, we find that answer analogous to what is going on around us daily. The answer was in the form of an inspiration: "If ye, then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him?" It is the prayerless people who misinterpret the mystery of prayer. God can and will give the Holy Spirit unto them that ask Him; and when the Holy Spirit comes He intensifies our longings, so that we sometimes find them too deep and too profound for articulate utterance. Another characteristic of prayer is that God never misinterprets the meaning of any expression of the heart. It may be a flood of tears, a groan unutterable, some thought and feeling too deep for tears; but God never mistakes the problem the tried soul presents, for the reason Jesus gives, "Our Father knoweth what things we have need of before we ask Him." We lay all at the feet of God. While we realise that we add nothing to his knowledge, we do not even suggest any alteration in his plans, but believe that his plan is broad enough to include the petitions of his people and the answers those petitions really demand.

We must promote the practice of united prayer in Conferences like the present, where denominational differences sink into comparative insignificance before the Throne of the Eternal. We do not worship an Episcopalian, a Presbyterian, Congregationalist, Baptist, or a Methodist God. We dare not attach our "shibboleths" to Him who is above and beyond them all. By prayer we get into the atmosphere of uniting above the cloud-land, where denominational distinctions reign, and are prepared to manifest our unity on earth in some such way as we hope yet to do in heaven.

The language used in the morning was principally Danish, and the English addresses in the evening were interpreted into Danish by Dean Vahl, who, in that capacity, was actively employed throughout the Conference.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2.

Count Bernstoff presided in the morning over the Conference held in the large hall. After prayer, offered by Dean Vahl, a Report on the State of Religion in France was submitted by

PASTEUR RÉCOLIN, OF PARIS.

He read an interesting paper, mainly referring to Protestantism. Respecting the numerical position of Protestantism, M. Récolin remarked that it is surprising not that Protestantism should be so inferior in point of numbers, but that it should exist at all. It has been variously estimated that there are one million, and, again, 650,000 Protestants. But though still few, there has been much increase in Protestant organisations during this century. Instead of 150 pastors in 1804, there are now more than 800, and in some purely Catholic districts Protestant churches have sprung up of late years.

The moral position of Protestantism is a superior one, both in the literary, commercial, and political world. It is animated by a spirit of intelligence and initiative, and is respected by all sound thinkers; and if it were only to rise to the height of its mission it would play a great part in the destinies of the country.

Speaking of ecclesiastical matters, M. Récolin referred to the free churches of various denominations, and chiefly to the free churches properly so called, which represent some important principles, though they have not made much progress since the formation of their union in 1849, owing to the fact that division is repugnant to the French mind. The Lutheran Church, though a great loser by the separation of Alsace from France, has bravely held its ground, and is remarkable for its benevolent and educational agencies. In the Reformed Church there is, as among the Lutherans, a division of opinion on doctrine, and also (and in this it differs from the Lutheran) in ecclesiastical matters. The Liberals are opposed to the holding of synods, while the orthodox feel so strongly the necessity of united action, that, unable to secure the sanction of the Government for their synods, they have agreed to hold unofficial synods among themselves; and out of the 700 pastors of the Reformed Church, 434 gave in their adhesion to the synod recently held at Nantes. Much good is anticipated from these gatherings. They may tend to check the spirit of individualism, to promote the work of the Church, to increase the salaries of the pastors, and to prepare for the coming crisis when the Church must be separated from the State. It is hoped that the synod may eventually unite all the members of the Reformed family.

In conclusion, M. Récolin, unable for want of time to speak of the works of charity and evangelisation carried on in France, referred to the theological activity prevalent among the various sections of the Protestant Churches. It is not as great as it should be. Pastors when installed in their parishes do not carry on their theological studies. Nevertheless, some works of note have been published of late years, e.g., Professor Lichtenberger's "Encyclopædia of Theological Science," M. de Pressensé's Works, and others.

In reference to the religious life of French Protestantism, one's feelings are mingled. Many hopes have not been realised, yet much good is being done by conferences, and otherwise. But what is needed is a fresh outpouring of the Holy Spirit, greater earnestness in opposing the superstition and infidelity so prevalent. The question of salvation should occupy a more central place in the teachings of the pulpit; there should be more concentration in works of charity, more variety in evangelical operations, and a more decided theology.

Then followed a paper contributed by

REV. PROFESSOR SCHARLING,

on "The Scientific Training of the Clergy by the Universities of Scandinavia." He said:—

In the three Scandinavian kingdoms a little over 8,000,000 of inhabitants are found, of which a very large majority belong to the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Dissenters being in Denmark 9 per 1000, in Norway 4 per 1000, in Sweden 1½. The clergy are trained at one of the four Universities, and in Iceland a Seminary is provided for that purpose. The writer argued for the necessity of all ministers being trained theologically; or, if exception should be allowed to that rule, then there should be two classes—some trained theologically, and some only practically. He held that it was necessary for a minister to read the Scriptures in the original languages, to possess a sufficient knowledge of Latin, the greatest part of patristic and theological literature being worthless in this language. He should have a thorough knowledge of the history of the Church, to enable him to take his right place in the dogmatic discussions and disputes and the different Church entanglements of the present time. The systematic theology which embraced ethics and the philosophy of religion gave to the minister a firm standing-point when he preached the Gospel. The philosophy of religion especially gave him good weapons against the infidel tendencies of the times.

[A continuation of our report will be given in next week's issue.]

AMONG THE SWISS MOUNTAINS.

DEAR SIR,—Having need of a few days' rest and refreshment after the almost intolerable heat and all the work of the summer in Lyons, and being within four hours' rail of Switzerland, last week I passed into the mountains of the long defile of the Alps of Upper Savoy, and early one afternoon found myself on the southern shores of Lake Leman at Evian.

After visiting the Lake and Lausanne itself, I went into the mountains of the Jura, lying as a mighty frontier wall between Switzerland and France, to endeavour to assist in organising some evangelical work in the villages. Nothing had been pre-arranged; it was like the advance of the German Uhlans. Like them and most pioneers, we met with varying success in the declaration of our mission. The work attempted and performed was only as a feeble and a flickering beginning of what, by God's blessing, may be done in these mountain defiles.

The point d'appui was Romainmôtier, in the heart of the hills, but knowing we already possessed a certain amount of friendly interest and support, the first evening we pushed onwards and upwards, and it was almost twilight when our small party advanced upon Vaulion, a picturesque village, with its stacks of firewood and fumier along the highway in true Alpine fashion. Though no intimation of an intended meeting had been previously made, I suspect the project was generally known. The dancing-hall of one of the inns had been prepared, and it only remained to invite the people. By this time it was about 7.45, and the twilight darkening into night; but right up and down the village street we went, and hailing every man, woman, and child on the roadway, summoned them to the meeting far more effectually than could have been done by mountain bell or bugle. We certainly had a fourth of the whole population in that antique village guest-chamber—two hundred and fifty at the least. When the curtain was raised, as it were, and the light flashed on the screen, we imperceptibly glided into the Gospel. We had talked of their own mountains and of Scotland; we had talked of their freedom and of ours in the lands of our fathers, while yet there was no freedom of soul for us without pardon and freedom from sin. "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," now sounded the message; and "Except ye receive the kingdom of heaven as a little child, ye shall in no wise enter therein."

Then we sang the familiar, "Hold the fort." Before it was half through they were joining continuously, if a little timidly, in the chorus; and when we closed with prayer every head was bowed.

During the showing of the pictures, while Miss ——— was touchingly explaining in her sweet foreign tongue the meaning of the burden the "Pilgrim" bore, someone at the back of the audience feebly, but mockingly, laughed. It was for the second time. But the audience, with this sole exception was with us, and someone else, in three or four stinging words, silenced the inarticulate interloper. It turned out at the end of the meeting that our champion was a woman, and she asked me, with much animation, "if she had done right?" "It was a commis voyageur," she said, with infinite scorn in her voice, who had declared in her hearing more than once that he would interrupt the "Salvationists." But he found himself in a minority of one, and was glad to make his escape.

Several others also stayed to testify to the benefit they had received through the meeting and to the encouragement imparted. The pastor of the village had been previously carefully informed of our intention, and next morning when I called on him, after a few moments' reserve, he fairly expanded, and declared that knowing well, through the religious Press, the principles and accomplished work of the McAll Mission in France, he believed, for one, the Church now needed such aid to reach the hearts of the people, and that, for his part, he would welcome it. This was a notable declaration for a village pastor of the Jura.

Other incidents, some of them picturesque, and some even startling, occurred during the following days of our brief campaign. But these I wave, having the intention of prosecuting the enterprise during the month of September, when I may forward fresh details.—Yours faithfully,

A. S. D. Colquhoun.

172, Cours Lafayette, Lyons, Aug. 29.

THE EVANGELISATION OF EGYPT.

DEAR SIR,—Having visited Egypt many years ago, I have continued to feel an interest in its condition. Hence, a few days since, I questioned pretty closely a Christian gentleman resident in that country, but now on a visit to England, in reference to its religious prospects and the labours of evangelists within its borders.

His replies were very discouraging, considering his long acquaintance with Egypt and the large amount of public attention which that land has lately received from Europeans in general, and Englishmen in particular, in regard to its political and financial position. Surely its religious interests are of primary and incomparably superior importance. Yet my informant tells me that he is struck with the apathy and want of interest generally existing, both in this country and in Egypt, in reference to the diffusion of Christianity.

It is true that there are several missionary and ministerial establishments there; and there are also amongst these several points whence some rays of light are emanating, as, for example, from the efforts of Miss Whately and of some American missionaries. But, on the whole, the position of Christian effort in Egypt continues to be characterised by great feebleness, dimness, and a general absence of result. It is the very rarest thing for any real conversions from Mahommedanism to Christianity to be effected. It may be almost said that such conversions never take place. The Cross appears to be powerless as against the Crescent.

This very serious state of things may well claim grave consideration from British and American Christians. Are the powers of prayer and of evangelistic service to continue practically impotent, or absent, as to Egypt? If the accounts given by my friend as to that country are true (and I have every reason to rely to the utmost upon all that he says), then it is not to be wondered at that that land is such a source of perplexity and of discredit to our own Government and people. Amid the multiplicity of counsels, in regard to it, the "one thing needful" seems to have been strangely despised and neglected. The one and only foundation of the Gospel of our Redeemer has been virtually set at nought. Hence confusion has rested upon all interposition and statesmanship in reference to Egypt.

Possibly the insertion of these few lines may cause some hearts to be moved to both prayer and efforts, that the existing apathy and spiritual death in that country may not thus always continue. Londinensis.

SUNLIGHT ON THE SEA.

I GAZE across a Western sea,
Its hue a misty leaden-grey,
One changeless, calm monotony,
Save where the sunbeams play.

But there,—a sea of light! whose glow
In rippling waves of sparkling flame,
Shines with a changeful ebb and flow
That never seems the same.

And as, methought, my life might be
Transfigured by the Light above,
And mirror though but waveringly
The sunbeams of God's love.

Shine forth, O Sun of Righteousness,
And with thine all-enkindling rays
Illuminate my life, and bless
Its yet remaining days.

Shine o'er the calm but sombre gray,
Till it reflects thy glory bright,
And gleams into the far away
A path of shining light.

J. H. S.

CONFERENCE ON UNFULFILLED PROPHECY,

Avenue-road Church, Coldharbour-road, Shepherd's-bush, October 7, 8, 9.

BELOVED CHRISTIAN FRIENDS,

WE rejoice in the privilege of inviting you to our Third Annual Conference on Unfulfilled Prophecy. Our mutual counsel has been helpful in the past, and we look for increased blessing on our coming meetings. From the inspired Word we know that "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh;" but do we not, from many clear and unmistakable signs, see the day approaching? "Evil men and seducers wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived." Atheism and infidelity grow bolder in blasphemy and aggression. And just as at the first coming of the Lord, Sadduceeism and Pharisaism abounded, so do their counterparts Rationalism and Ritualism now abound. Many are turning away their ears from the truth, and as a consequence are given up to fables. Many are renouncing belief in the Word of God and in that only atonement for sin by which men can be saved.

Whether we look at the unrest and insecurity felt by nations, the growing efforts to supersede the truth of the Gospel by human inventions, or at the fixed and firm determination of many who oppose it, we have solemn warning that "the time is at hand, and the effect of every vision."

In the case of Israel, do we not see "the fig-tree putting forth leaves"? And this is the sign which the Lord gives us that the summer of the nations is nigh. (Matt. xxii. 32, 33.) At "the set time" to favour Zion, the Psalmist tells us, "the servants of God will take pleasure in her stones and favour the dust thereof." (Psalm cii. 13.) Was this sign ever so apparent as at the present hour?

In view of these, and signs too numerous to notice, it is ours, while we build ourselves up on our most holy faith, to lift up our heads because our redemption is nigh. As in our humble measure we are instrumental in increasing the purity and power of the Church, we at the same time promote those evangelistic efforts needful to gather in from Israel and the Gentiles those who will form the complement of the Bride and companion of Christ in his glory.

As heretofore, we desire to avoid all mere human theories and speculations, and to have an ear attent only to the inspired utterances of the divine oracles.—Yours in Christian bonds,

CHARLES GRAHAM, } Conveners.
JOHN H. TOPPING, }

Tuesday, Oct. 7.—3 p.m. Subject: 1 Thess. iv. 13; Mr. G. H. Pember, Rev. W. F. Gooch. 7 p.m. Subject: 2 Thess. ii.; Dr. Anderson, Rev. J. Stephens.

Wednesday, Oct. 8.—3 p.m. Subject: Isa. xi.; Revs. J. Skrine and J. Wilkinson. 7 p.m. Subject: Rev. xx.; Revs. J. Bennett and F. H. White.

Thursday, Oct. 9.—3 p.m. Subject: Rev. xxi.; Mr. J. E. Mathieson, Rev. W. F. Gooch, and Mr. C. R Hurditch. 7 p.m. Subject: Practical Lessons, Rev. J. E. Linnell and Mr. R. C. Morgan.

Other Christian gentlemen besides those mentioned are expected to be present and take part in the meetings.

Tea will be provided in the Lecture Hall of the Church at 6 o'clock. In the rooms of the adjoining Mission-house friends can sit and rest in the interim of the meetings.

VILLAGE SCHOOLS AT NAZARETH.

WHAT Christian does not love the name of Nazareth, for so many years the home of our Saviour when on earth? Beautiful for situation is Nazareth, nestling in its wide valley of many hills, up which its inhabitants are planting their square, flat-roofed houses as fast as they can.

The one most conspicuous object from all parts of the town is the Orphanage. Thanks be to God for planting such a house in this land and in this city, and for granting that when one worker is weary and needs rest, others are ready to hold the fort and carry on the work for Him.

Surely even now the early dew is beginning to descend upon the place, as the following incident proves: Taking up our evening lamp lately and walking through one of the four large dormitories where all were fast asleep, two girls were in one bed. On being asked how they came to be together, they confessed to having prayed together till it was late and then fallen asleep. A few nights later, lamp in hand, I again directed my steps to that part of the long room, remembering the praying girl. All was silence. I thought sleep reigned, but at either side of the same bed knelt a silent figure in prayer. I retreated, that they might be alone.

It is not in Nazareth alone that people are raising their eyes up to this house for help. The villages in the neighbourhood are crying, "Come over and help us also," and for such I would appeal to those who are able and willing to help. In several villages there is a catechist schoolmaster and school for the boys, but for the girls nothing is provided, and the nuns having schools everywhere get hold of our few Protestant girls. The Roman Catholics, or Latins as they are called in this country, are established in every village.

The Protestants are begging Mr. Huber, of the Church Missionary Society, to help them. He is unable, and turns to us. Will not friends make it possible for this house to send forth girls as they are educated to teach and evangelise in every village in the neighbourhood of this beloved spot. The work might be commenced by buying a small Arab house in one or two villages and altering them, making them fit for a school house and dwelling for the Syrian teacher; placing the girls' school near the schoolmaster's for protection, perhaps arranging for her to live with his family. Some one of the ladies from this institution could ride over and direct it, so that in time Nazareth Orphanage might become a centre of light. This orphanage has been nobly supported by the Christian public, and we doubt not will still continue to be so.

If anyone feels disposed to help in providing schools for the instruction of the village girls near Nazareth, they are requested to communicate with Miss Webb, 267, Vauxhall-bridge-road, London; or with Miss Campbell, Nazareth Orphanage, Nazareth, Syria.

SHADWELL SAILORS' INSTITUTE.—On Sunday, August 24, Mrs. Bradley, of Ealing, addressed the usual afternoon and evening meetings. These hard-working toilers of the deep deserve more general sympathy than is given to them. The funds of the Institute are in great need of increased gifts to meet the pressing cases constantly brought before the officers in these times of depression. Over 900 pledges have been taken at these regular Sunday services, and many have been led to accept the salvation offered to all through Christ.

THE McALL MISSION.—SIR,—Some time ago I made a brief tour through French and German Switzerland, and now it is proposed to send me back for two months to Savoy to labour on the mountains and in the valleys. Will your readers pray for the blessing of God on this difficult and delicate enterprise? Our meetings in Paris keep well up, and I sincerely trust most vigorous efforts may be made to sustain Mr. McAll by prayer and means of support to workers. There are openings everywhere for earnest souls, especially in Paris and Lyons. My address will be, during my absence, "Mrs. Watson, Pension, Rue Grenade, Geneva."—Yours faithfully, 70, Rue la Fontaine, ALEX. DONALDSON.

Auteuil, Paris.

AMONG THE FRENCH PORTS.

THE ports of Havre, Trouville, Dunkerque, Boulogne, and Calais have been visited in our Gospel ship Mystery. At each port very signal proofs of the Lord's approval have been given. Besides the meetings on board the vessel, villages, markets, ships of war, and merchant vessels, have been visited. Bibles, Testaments, Gospel books, &c., have been distributed. In nearly every port a tea-meeting has been held. These have been a great success.

Our meetings in the afternoon have been for children, when the cabin has often been filled to overflowing. Hymns and texts of Scripture have been taught the children, and the Gospel preached. Next have come the soldiers, from 6 to 7; then the meeting at 8 for all kinds of people, who have paid the very deepest attention.

Any friend who can speak the French language and preach the Gospel faithfully could render efficient service in this work. English and Foreign Bibles, Testaments, Gospel books, and little bags 8 in. by 7 in. are always in demand, and may be sent to me. HENRY COOK.

Seamen's Mission, Gosport, Hants.

A BUSY AND USEFUL LIFE.

A BRIEF sketch of the life and work of Eleanor Dundas Harford Battersby has been written by her sister-in-law, wife of the late Canon Battersby. The deceased lady only survived the death of the Canon, her brother, a few months. Readers of the memorial (which is published by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton, price 6d.) will find themselves to be more than repaid for the time expended in its perusal. The thread of her entire history, from her birth at Arno's Vale, near Bristol, on July 8, 1818, to the period when she passed away to the eternal rest in April last, is preserved with singular clearness, and presents a view of her character and work which is well fitted to secure the design of the author, viz., the interest and spiritual help of readers. Christian workers will not fail to get a fresh stimulus as they contemplate the career of one who realised the power, and knew the blessedness of a truly consecrated life; while others, it may be, will be stirred up to feel that they have scarce began to live at all, and henceforth to consecrate themselves to the Redeemer's service.

Winning golden opinions from her teachers in early life for her industry and cleverness, Miss Battersby "passed from childhood to girlhood, and from girlhood to maturity, always the same diligent, faithful, and painstaking seeker after knowledge of all kinds," thus laying the foundation for much of her future usefulness. Many conflicts and spiritual vicissitudes marked the period of her conversion, and many years passed away ere the full assurance of faith was uninterruptedly enjoyed. The Oxford and Brighton Conferences were seasons of rich blessing to her; some notes of these in the memoir will revive memories of the past in the minds of not a few who were privileged to attend them. Many readers will be amazed to find how prodigious were the labours of our departed sister. Temperance work, the Y.W.C.A., Mission work of various kinds, with conferences and committees to arrange for further projects, absorbed her time and energies; and, alas! overtaxed her mental powers, thus bringing on congestion of the brain and a speedy end.

The last entry in her journal was singularly beautiful and prophetic.

"Peace, perfect peace, the future all unknown;
Jesus I know, and He is on the throne."

An excellent photograph forms a frontispiece to this brief but useful memoir.

AGED CHRISTIAN BLIND WOMEN.—The new wing of Mr. Bright's Home for these afflicted sisters has been erected at a cost of £835; of this sum £100 has yet to be made up. There are 29 now in the Home, and vacancies for four more to fill as soon as funds permit. Should any friends feel inclined to help still further this much-needed work, will they kindly send for a report to Rev. Henry Bright, Honorary Superintendent, Mansion House, Hanley-road, Hornsey-rise, N.

MR. HENRY LAKIN, OF BURTON.

FIVE years ago I left Glasgow to reside at Burton-on-Trent. For the previous eighteen years I had, in Glasgow, organised an Annual New Year's Gospel Supper, at which 2300 of the deserving poor partook of a sumptuous repast, and listened, under the most favourable circumstances, to the glad tidings of a full and free salvation. I thought Burton-on-Trent ought to have a similar happy gathering and managed to get together about 500 of the poor in St. George's Hall, to plenty of roast beef, plum pudding, and "oceans of tea."

The roast beef and plum pudding was a simply-arranged matter in Burton-on-Trent, which kills the finest beef in England for Christmas Day; but the question, Who is the man in the town best fitted, clearly, powerfully, and in the Spirit, to present the Gospel to these poor people? was not so easily answered. There was Rev. Charles Guest, of Christ Church, "a man full of the Holy Ghost," whose influence in Burton was supreme with those who loved the Gospel. There was his curate, Rev. John Linnell, who was described to me by a working man as "the most tremendously earnest fellow he ever met in all his life," a man who had won hundreds of souls to Christ in Burton-on-Trent; "but," said several who knew well, "if you want a man whom the common people can understand, and who will make the Gospel very plain and distinct, get Henry Lakin, the converted publican." "If you get that man, I'll leave the committee," said a rector, but the committee said, "the best man must be got;" so out of the committee he marched, and Henry Lakin preached the Gospel to the poor. Thus began my acquaintance with this man, and a friendship of the warmest character.

He had served the devil most vigorously and faithfully for twenty-two years, as a Godless lad, a wicked youth, and a depraved man; a publican, a drunkard, a prize-fighter, and a leader in all wickedness. A notorious sinner, a vigorous propagator of evil, heartless, cruel, unscrupulous. But this man, to the glory of God, in his wonderful mercy was powerfully converted one Sunday morning by reading one of Bishop Ryle's tracts, and from that hour, twenty-two years ago, he has been a consistent Christian, a close Bible student, a faithful soul-winner in personal dealing, and a powerful preacher of the Gospel. He had the good sense to associate himself with the Evangelisation Society, and he is highly esteemed by Captain Smith, the Secretary.

I have worked with him in many Missions, and have had the privilege of dealing with large numbers of persons awakened through his instrumentality, many of whom are now true Christians and some earnest workers in the Gospel. His remarkable success arises from the wonderful clearness with which he lays before the people God's message of love and the simple plan of salvation.

I have just heard him deliver thirty addresses at the tent in Bromley, and in every one of them there has been a lucid explanation of sin, salvation, substitution, life through union with Christ, closing with fervent appeals as to the sinner's responsibility in neglecting so great salvation. All this has been made vivid by the most interesting illustrations drawn from his own experience, both as a sinner and as a saved man. Every night souls have been won for Christ. He came for one week, but the people would not let him go. He is a farmer, and when the people pleaded with him to stay he said he would do so, though his barley and oats were shed on the field. However, his wife and his manly sons got in the harvest without him, and the Lord gave him a great harvest of souls in Bromley.

I shall never while I live forget the 24th and 25th of August. The Holy Spirit came down in mighty power. Many "believers" publicly testified, some in the most touching and eloquent strains, to "the mighty blessing" they had received, lifting them up to a higher spiritual altitude, and sending them out to their work for God with a sense of power they had never before experienced.

All was most calm, real, and intense. No one could doubt that the Holy Ghost had been at work among these people. It has been my place to explain that they must beware not to live on their experience, but on Christ, "moment by moment." I ask the prayers of all your readers that the Lord may bless these dear people at Bromley, and, while they are partakers of all the fulness that is in Christ for them, guide them along that narrow pathway of power which has a feeble Christian life on the one side and a mystic sentimentalism on the other.

The poor people at an enthusiastic farewell tea-meeting on Monday week presented Henry Lakin with a "new sword" (a Bible), amid many prayers that the Lord would long spare him to wield it in his service. He acknowledged the gift in a solemn address on these words: "Cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood."

His friend and mine, and your late correspondent, Rev. John Linnell, began a Mission at the Bromley Tent on Monday, September 8, for which I ask your readers' prayers.

J. Wakefield MacGill.

GIBRALTAR SEAMEN'S MISSION.

DURING the last few months the work amongst the seamen frequenting Gibraltar Bay has met with considerable success. The number of steamers visited per week will average about forty-two, with crews numbering from 25 to 28 each. It is customary on boarding a vessel to ask for the captain or chief officer, that permission may be obtained to speak to the men, which at all times is granted, not unfrequently accompanied with an expression of satisfaction at finding so valuable a Mission at work on the Bay. Sometimes as many as three addresses are given on one steamer; but this depends much on the class of ship and how the men are employed On some occasions as many as twenty pledges have been taken in one day, and according to the Temperance register, 436 seamen, captains, and engineers have enrolled themselves as total abstainers within the past four months.

It is astonishing how gladly the sailors look forward from time to time to the visits of the missioner. They are kept well supplied with publications of a good solid Christian character, provided by Christian friends and societies in England, which are likely to leave good impressions.

On shore the civil hospital is visited, a service being held every Wednesday and Sunday afternoon; an extempore address being given to the sailors (for they are chiefly such). Much blessing has manifested itself there. On the departure of some of the inmates for home after recovery, letters have been received expressing how much the writers benefitted by the Mission work in the hospital, and what different lives they were living in consequence. The inmates of the women's ward are read to and prayed with, and a gradual spiritual growth has displayed itself. The civil prisons are also attended by the missioner. A great deal of the success of this Mission may be attributed to the cordial co-operation and kind advice of the Archdeacon of Gibraltar, who will be grateful to any who will supply the Mission with publications for distribution.

A ZEALOUS WORKER.—In a letter from Rome there occurs the following passage:—"About three thousand workmen pass before my little shop daily: if I could distribute books amongst them, surely some seeds of Gospel truth would fall on good ground, and bring forth fruit to the glory of Christ, our only Saviour." The writer served as an officer in the Sardinian contingent during the Crimean war. Two years ago, in the terrible earthquake at Ischia, he lost everything; he, his wife, and their two children escaped only with their lives. They were taken to Naples in one of the Government steamers. From Naples they walked to Rome. To help them to live, a few friends have opened a little book shop in the new quarter in Rome, where there are no shops at present. He is an excellent man, very highly educated, who works most zealously for the Reformed Church of Italy. He hopes to do Mission work among the masons and workmen during the dinner hour.

NORTH OF ENGLAND NOTES.

By GAWIN KIRKHAM.

AT Bradford I found my old London friend, George Hughes, in charge of the Y.M.C.A. as secretary; I trust he may be made a blessing to hundreds of the young men of that great commercial centre. At a lecture on my "Personal Recollections of an Open-air Preacher," Rev. C. A. Davis, another old London worker, presided. The noon prayer-meeting in the Association Rooms was but moderately attended. "Business" seemed to be written everywhere, from the tallest factory chimneys to the humblest operative plodding her homeward way with shawl-covered head at the close of the day's toil.

At Wray, a village some ten miles to the east of Lancaster, the vicar assisted at an open-air meeting held at the Cross one lovely summer's evening. Many were busy in the harvest field, but a number gathered to listen to the Word of life, the dear children being commendably attentive. Why should not open-air preachers, nay, why should not all preachers, break the bread in such wise as that some shall be suited to the capacity of a child?

How eagerly the men of Lancaster gather to listen to the Gospel preached in the open-air. The memory of that market-place meeting is a refreshment for a whole year. Mr. Friend, a Wesleyan minister, helped at four of these open-air meetings in two days. He takes a sensible view of this out-door proclamation, and believes it brings the people inside to worship That would doubtless be more fully verified if those who worship inside would first go outside, and compel the outsiders to come in. A dinner-hour service in one of the manufactories is also a noteworthy feature in this old town. In fine weather the men turn out on the green sward on the banks of the Lune, and there I spoke to them on the day of my visit.

While the visitors were drinking in health at Morecambe, an encouraging meeting was held on the beach. Here, as at Lancaster, I tested the new Gospel Hymns recently issued by the Religious Tract Society. The hymns are printed on one side of the sheet, while the other is occupied with a picture and select passages of scripture. I would recommend these sheets to open-air preachers who want to find lesson and text and hymns all ready to hand. The one used at Morecambe had two pictures, one of the sea and the other of the land, the scriptures being in harmony therewith, enabling the two preachers to interpret "The Voices of the Sea" and "Harvest Lessons" with good effect.

Will not the Children's Special Service Mission add Morecambe to their list another year?

At Kendal I found the Salvation Army and the Church Army at work, and the Y.M.C.A. occupying greatly enlarged premises. Open-air preaching is therefore continuously carried on; but neither of the armies was followed to their headquarters by many to whom they had spoken out of doors, on the evening of my visit.

The people of Milnthorpe were slow to gather at the Cross; but eventually there was a very good attendance, and in the still evening air the message was delivered which it is hoped may bear fruit unto eternal life.

Numerically, the crowning meetings were held in Preston at the close of this brief preaching tour. The invitation came from Rev. J. P. Shepperd, Vicar of St. Thomas', and an eight days' Mission was arranged, of which I took one half, and Mr. Wortley Waters, of Southport, the other. Here I saw the great value of organisation, and specially when done by the vicar of a parish. Mr. Shepperd is himself an open-air preacher of thirty years' experience, of which twenty have been spent in this parish. He has a hearty manner and a good voice, and has endeared himself to his parishioners by his faithful ministry. Upwards of 400 men, women, and children assembled in the churchyard on the first evening, and so they continued to come together day after day. Mid-day meetings were held to catch the working people. Special hymn-sheets were provided, and the meetings had about them a hearty and earnest tone. May the seed thus sown bear much fruit unto life eternal.

PROF. ANDRE'S TRAINING SCHOOLS.

THE Alpine Choir, under the able leadership of Professor André, is well known to many lovers of sacred music. Both in London and many provincial towns, musical ears have been charmed by its melodious strains and delightful harmony. And in so far as innocent and recreative entertainments may be resorted to as a means of raising funds for benevolent and religious purposes, or with a view to regale the ear with sweet sound, we are disposed to think that nothing more healthy or less questionable can be found than that which the Alpine Choir provides.

The deep interest, moreover, taken by Professor André in all that relates to the good cause of Gospel Temperance is equally well known and appreciated; his recent discovery that only six really destitute abstinence families were to be found in England, was hailed by the entire body of abstainers as a valuable argument in favour of their principles. As we read of several instances of undoubted and well-authenticated good, resulting from the Gospel singing of the renowned Choir, we think the Professor has abundant reason to be grateful for the success he has achieved, and may thank God and take courage.

The special work, however, which is now exciting a considerable amount of interest in Temperance circles is quite a new departure in the profession. It has been well said that "the canker-spot of intemperance, wherever it occurs, taints the mind, blots out its fairest virtues, and blights its best affections; it invades the family and social circles, and spreads woe and sorrow on all around; it breaks the father's heart, and bereaves the fond mother; it cuts down youth in its vigour, manhood in its strength, and old age in its weakness; that it extinguishes natural affection, and destroys conjugal love." To strike at the root of this far-reaching and devastating evil, it has occurred to the Professor that something more than is at present in operation may be done to establish young people in Temperance doctrines, and in training them for usefulness in Temperance advocacy. Hence the institution at his own residence, Earlswood House, King Edward's-road, Hackney, of "A School for the purpose of Training the Young to become Gospel-Temperance Teachers and Workers." Such are the terms of the circular which has reached us.

In addition to his own residence and the adjoining house, the Lecture Hall of Christ's Church, Victoria Park, has been lent by the vicar, Dr. Egan, for the promotion and development of this promising enterprise. No half measures are contemplated by the Professor in the project, already afloat and in working order. The theory he advances is that the theatres and music-halls and gin-palaces are made so attractive and alluring that no remedy will ever prove effectual in uprooting the strongholds of drink until superior attractions are provided at the Temperance Hall.

It is for this purpose, then, that the new schools are established, in connection with which various classes are formed for producing efficient bands of young people, whose work and mission shall be that of providing by means of entertainments, concerts, &c., a counter-attraction to the public-house and all other questionable places of amusement. For the labour and time spent by the professor and his staff of teachers in the work of training, no charge whatever is made. The only condition imposed on the pupils is that when deemed efficient for labour they will devote themselves to the full extent of their power, time, and opportunities, to the endeavour to impart their knowledge to others, and zealously advance the interests of the Temperance cause. Bearing this in mind, it is difficult to see any other motive than a philanthropic one in the novel scheme started by Professor André. Neither is it to be wondered at that Temperance journals are viewing it with universal satisfaction, and anticipating from it the most promising results. Many are already claiming it as the inauguration of a new era in social reform, both as to the means adopted and the disinterested motives by which it is prompted.

Classes for tuition in singing, instrumental music, including piano, guitar, harp, dulcimer, &c., are in good working order, as also for elocution, recitation, and other accomplishments necessary to fit the pupils for the coming crusade. Further designs upon the domain of drink are being formulated. Said the Professor, "Ere long we shall have more than a hundred young men who will be ready to go forth and fight the enemy drink, by holding attractive and entertaining Temperance meetings in the Metropolis, and winning people away from the drinking saloons. At Temperance fêtes, too, our work will be seen to great advantage, because we shall give instruction in our classes to the young people in cooking, waiting, coffee-brewing, &c., which will enable them to cater in a way that will outvie anything that has ever been attempted before. Our tutors also are all competent men, and only first-class persons will be employed to manage the different classes in the school."

COSTERMONGERS' COTTAGE MISSION.

THIS Mission is situate at Vinegar-ground, Old-street, City-road. The little colony in the midst of which the good work is carried on contains a population of 1500, all poor. It is here that Walter Penrose has been labouring during the past twelve years, among a class of persons comprising many bad and doubtful characters. Himself formerly a costermonger, he now seeks the welfare of others in the same line, by seeking to bring them into the possession of the salvation which came to him.

The last annual report shows the usual kind and character of work belonging to local Missions, including a regular Sabbath evening service, with meetings on most of the week evenings; comprising children's services, another for adults, mothers' meetings, sewing-classes, and band of hope. The work of visitation is also carried on among the cottages and homes of the poor, in the very centre of which the Mission-room stands. Possessing no outward attraction, the success of the work has depended on the earnest and persistent labours of Mr. Penrose; he and his wife devote themselves, with considerable tact and energy, to seeking the good of their immediate neighbours.

The report tells of good help rendered to the Mission by the Misses Belford, who regularly conduct the mothers' meetings, and recently invited the mothers to a tea and evening recreation at their home on Hampstead Heath. A lady kindly undertakes the support of the weekly sewing class; and several friends have sent clothing for the poor and toys for the little ones. Free teas are given to the needy, also breakfasts, after which a Gospel service is held. All the services are well attended, while the meetings for children twice a week are crowded. In addition to many hopeful cases, several instances of conversion are known to have taken place during the year.

Greatly appreciated are the summer excursions, two of which have recently taken place. It is in this way that people of that class are reached. When their goodwill is gained, the Gospel message finds greater acceptance. Bearing this in mind, soup suppers are provided for them in winter, which is deemed a precious boon. Habits of industry and frugality are also inculcated and encouraged, by paying the mothers for the work they do at the meetings, and by adding a percentage on all sums laid by.

At the present time the good brother who works the Mission is in much need of help. It must be remembered that the amount of benefit accomplished by the Mission is limited by the funds placed in the treasurer's hands, and might be considerably increased. A proposed enlargement of the room where the meetings are held would be a great advantage in every way, provided the tenancy could be placed on a secure footing. The treasurer is Mr. Wm. Owen, 22, St, George's-road, Tufnell-park, N,

"IT WAS ONLY A SIMPLE LEAFLET."

[A simple Gospel Leaflet, in his own language, riveted the attention and touched the heart of a Russian sailor in one of the ships visiting our shores. He had been twenty-seven years absent from his native land.]

IT was only a simple leaflet,
But it touched the sailor's heart;
What was it dimmed the letters?
A tear that fain would start.

In the old familiar language
He spoke at his mother's knee,
He reads that Jesus is seeking
The lost ones o'er land and sea.

Reads it with heart that is throbbing,
Till he hears no other sound;
He is back 'mid the old pine forests,
Where the snow lies white on the ground.

The winds of the north are upon his brow,
The touch of hands that are cold;
Ah! that home is past, and forever,
The home of those days of old.

Jesus has come to seek him,
He sees, though his eyes are dim,
There comes to his heart a vision
Of home, and of love for him.

The winds and the waves were silent,
The tempests of life told nought;
It was only a simple leaflet,
But the way to heaven it taught.

For it told how the blood of Jesus
Cleanseth from every sin;
It told how the heart of Jesus
The veriest sinner would win.

Long had the message tarried,
For heart and hands are slow;
But the hour and the angel waited,
And the sower went forth to sow.

O ye who sail for the haven,
Where never a storm shall be,
Scatter the message broadcast,
Over the deep blue sea.

Never returning empty,
Fulfilling the will of the Lord;
That will is to save the sinner,
And the means his holy Word. M. G.

DROME, FRANCE.—In a note dated Nyon, August 30, Miss Sarah R. Geldard says:—"We have the cholera round us in the villages, but so far Nyon has been kept; though it has been crowded with refugees from Marseilles. Pray that Christians in this town may glorify God by their courage and calmness. The pastor was on the point of taking his greatly needed holiday, but has decided to stay at his post because he thinks it probable that the disease may appear here. The Nyon doctors are attending the cases of cholera in the villages, so there is constant communication."

HOP-PICKERS AT ALTON.—Our marquees are largely attended with the class we endeavour to reach, sometimes they are full to overflowing. We rejoice in knowing that many of them who were once the servants of Satan are now the Lord's freemen. Eleven missionaries are visiting the gardens every day and holding services in the tents every night, where tea is served out to the weary, footsore, and hungry traveller. We are sadly in want of means to carry on our work. Applications for two more tents are made in districts where there are hundreds of people under the hedge, and we cannot do it for want of help.

Alton, Hants. S. CHINN.

"THE CHRISTIAN" IN CANADA.—Your notice some months ago asking friends to send to me for an address in Canada to which they might forward THE CHRISTIAN, has issued in great refreshment to many who otherwise have no such reading. While Mr. Thom is visiting among the children, he is frequently asked to convey sincere thanks. They send it not only around to their neighbours, but to their sons and daughters and grandchildren. I have 200 addresses of fresh homes, where our new children dwell, and will welcome more senders. ANNIE MACPHERSON.

60, Commercial-street, Spitalfields, E.

Letters to the Editor.

YOUNG WOMEN IN SHOPS.

Sir,—Having read some correspondence in The Christian of August 7, in reference to the supply of seats in shops for female assistants, and as one who has taken some part in getting them provided in the shops of my own neighbourhood, I would like to state what was the experience gained by my coadjutor and myself in the matter. We drew up a petition, obtained the signatures of almost all the residents, and then interviewed the masters of the shops. In every case our suit was listened to with patience and courtesy, and in nearly every case promise was given that seats should be provided, and the girls allowed to use them.

We rejoiced over our victory, but, alas! we soon found that we had failed to secure for the poor girls that which they really need. One and all gave their testimony that the seats were not a great boon. Business is too brisk for the brief rest the seats afford to be of much avail, and what the girls yearn for with intense longing is shorter hours of labour—early closing. Much has been done to gain this for them on one day in the week—all honour to "The Early Closing Association" for its struggle to this end—but what is still needed is, that ladies should awake to their duty in this matter, that they should refrain from shopping after five, or at the latest six o'clock, and not only so, but that they should arrange, even at some trouble to themselves, that their servants are able to do the same.

This would not wholly remove the evil, for there would still remain a large class, the toilers in our midst, who have no opportunity, save in the evening, to buy their clothes, but this difficulty would, I have no doubt, be met when a radical change had been made by the general customers. It cannot be expected that the shopkeepers will close their shops before the hour they know the trade will slacken. It is left for us, as individuals, to make that hour a reasonable one.—Yours faithfully, F. L. R.

MODERN PREACHING.

Sir,—I have long been convinced that the reason why people now so frequent Mission-halls and rooms where religious services are held is, because so very many ministers preach over the heads of the bulk of the people. A few hours ago I had another proof that it does not do to assume that respectable, decent people do not need to be addressed with great simplicity. I was reading on a bench in the open air, when a man came up, and with a sort of an apology induced me to close my book, and speak to him. I immediately led the subject, and began to speak on eternal realities.

He had lived probably half a century, and soon complacently mentioned that he had been a Sunday-school teacher since he was 18. His father had been a churchwarden. Yet I never met such an ignorant man. Self, feelings, his own goodness and good works, were all important in his estimation. He was one who truly needed to be told of the Bible way of salvation. This Sabbath-school teacher of so many years' standing could not explain what it was to be "born again," and was ignorant of the simple truths contained in the 3rd chapter of John.

Lately I met with another Sunday-school teacher, who calmly spoke to me of his having "another chance" after death. He pointed to his minister and the Sabbath scholars, who had come out to the country for a day's recreation. I am sorry to say this "sideman" and Sabbath-school teacher smelt of liquor and tobacco. I preached Christ to him. He was grateful, and shook my hand when we parted; but I could not help thinking, woe to the church with such a minister, and where such a man can be allowed to teach the young.

Some fifteen years ago I met a man trapping rats or moles in a field; he was clerk in a church, then in sight. For more than twenty years this poor man had been saying his "Amens" on the Lord's day; and how sad was it to find that he, too, was quite ignorant of God's way of salvation.

More and more do I see the need for the simple, evangelistic preaching and teaching of Mission-halls. Better still would it be if ministers would preach Christ only—just as did Philip the Evangelist to the Ethiopian. I can look back on many years in my own past life, when I too was utterly ignorant of the way of salvation. God the Holy Spirit opened my heart to receive Christ as my only hope, and now I am a humble Believer.

SALVATION ARMY TEACHING.

Dear Sir,—In reply to Dr. W. W. Smyth's statements in your last issue, I wish to say:—

(1) Gal. v. 24 runs: "They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts." This crucifixion clearly belongs to all those who have accepted Christ. The point to be settled is, When did it take place in Paul's experience? I answer, At his conversion. The aorist tense is used signifying that the crucifixion took place once and for all, in past time. If this be admitted, it must be still further asserted that this crucifixion of the flesh is not incompatible with the agonising cry of the seventh of Romans, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" Again, Gal. v. 19—21, cannot in any sense be spoken of converted men. The antithesis drawn between the "flesh" as unregenerate nature, and the spirit as a regenerative and leading power (16—18 verses), proves this beyond a doubt.

(2) As proofs for the statement that the "crucifying of the flesh" devolves upon believers as a present duty, Dr. Smyth refers me to Rom. viii. 13, Eph. iv. 22, Cor. vii. 1. Suffice it to say, in not one of these passages does the Greek work for "crucify" occur. In Rom. viii. 13, the word is "mortify," an act which presupposes crucifixion. Paul, in Rom. vi. 6, says: "Knowing this, that our old man is crucified (or rather co-crucified) with Him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin." What is the "old man" here spoken of? I answer, not sinfulness, but our old legal standing in the Adamic covenant. The Cross makes an end of that state, that we may become co-heirs with the Son in his glory; and in doing so it lays the foundation for personal holiness and the destruction of the body of sin. The cross gives sin the death-blow, in other words makes an end of it as regards its dominion, though not as regards its vexing or disturbing influence. If our old man is crucified, two results follow: (1) It can never bring us into condemnation; its condemning power is abolished for evermore. (2) The practical appeal comes now to us with a force that cannot be gainsaid: "Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth" (Col. iii. 5, see preceding verses as laying the ground for this mortification).

(3) Dr. Smyth says: "The priesthood of Christ is for our daily cleansing, in the sense of keeping his people clean according to the perfection of the new covenant." This is not in agreement with the Epistle to the Hebrews, which teaches us (to use the words of Dr. H. Bonar) that "the blood-shedding must be in constant requisition not—as some say—to keep the believer in a sinless state, but to cleanse him from his hourly sinfulness." Priesthood presupposes human sin, and the necessity for sin's expiation. The condition of fellowship with God in Light lies in the truth that the "blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." The blood-besprinkled mercy-seat in the heavens finds its counterpart in the blood-besprinkled conscience of the believer on the earth.

(4, 5) Dr. Smyth virtually agrees with me that the blood, primarily, has to do with the contraction of guilt. "The blood purchasing the Holy Spirit for us," is not a question in dispute. I regret that he does not fairly face the question, When does the Lord's prayer become obsolete in the mouth of a Christian? Should it not be his daily petition? Dr. Saphir, a most spiritual-minded writer, says well, "The true Gospel method is to combine a deep sense of sin, a joyous assurance of forgiveness, and a resolute and entire departure from all iniquity."

(6) To say that the "spiritual significance of the offering for our holy things under this old economy lies in the perfection of that great sacrifice, which takes them (the sacrifices) all away," is not an answer but an evasion. The question is not in reference to the taking away of the old Levitical sacrifices, but, To what element in the antitypical work of our High Priest does the offering referred to correspond? The answer is to be found in Rev. viii. 3. Our very petitions require the added incense of the Saviour's priestly intercession at God's right hand.

(7) There seems to be some confusion of thought in Dr. Smyth's mind, in not clearly distinguishing between what is objective and what is subjective. Christ objectively saves us; not merely brings us into a salvable condition, but bestows upon us "eternal salvation;" He subjectively sanctifies and cleanses us by his Spirit dwelling in us.

(8) Dr. Smyth overlooks the fact that in the change of relationship brought about by our regeneration and adoption, we are altogether raised above a mere governmental standing. Our right to the Father's House lies in the fact of our adoption; our eternal security in it is the inevitable consequence of that filial nature which has been given us by this Holy Ghost in regenerating us.—Yours faithfully, Samuel M'Comb, Sen.

London-street, Londonderry, Sept. 4.

Dear Sir,—May I correct two errors (for which I am responsible) in my letter of your last issue? Answer (1), lines 4 and 5, for "When it itself is intended to be representative of good," read "When the flesh itself is intended, or when it is representative of that which is good." Answer (4), line 3, for "purchased," read "procured."—Faithfully yours, W. Woods-Smyth.

Maidstone, Sept. 4.

HOSPITAL EXPERIMENTS UPON THE AFFLICTED POOR.

Sir,—I have read and re-read with astonishment the article under the above heading by Mr. Alfred S. Dyer in your number of August 28. The Lancet, from which he quotes, is a paper which the readers of The Christian do not generally read, and consequently they would be inclined to receive Mr. Dyer's statements as true without searching for themselves whether these things were so. I wish, therefore, to draw particular attention to his statements.

Immediately after giving his quotation, Mr. Dyer says:—"The Lancet article does not mention this drug as having been given to these poor people with any reference to curing them of their particular complaint." If anyone with an unbiassed mind will read the article and Dr. Murrell's subsequent letter (Lancet, 1883, vol. ii. pp. 766, 767, 880, 881), the following facts will be as clear as noonday:—

(1) That Dr. Murrell did use the drug with the particular object of curing certain patients of very particular diseases which he enumerates.

(2) That in prescribing the drug Mr. Murrell was certainly not experimenting. He rather speaks like a physician who is delighted to find that other people have lighted upon a useful remedy which happens to have escaped his own observation, and says, "I hastened to give them the benefit of the discovery."

(3) That Dr. Murrell was very careful with the drug. Not having used it himself before, he did not like to trust entirely to the authority of others, good as that authority might be; and so gave the drug in only half the usual dose.

(4) That no blame could be attributed to anyone. The untoward events which followed were a pure misfortune, and arose in this way: Dr. Murrell thought he was using a pure drug, and so he was. He also thought, and was justified in thinking, that others before him had been using the same pure drug; but it was not then pure, although everyone had thought it to be so. Consequently, Dr. Murrell naturally thought he was safe, and it was only after some patients showed toxic symptoms that it was discovered that the earlier samples were not pure.

(5) That no attempt was made, as Mr. Dyer says, "to explain away the gravity of the facts." A simple, straightforward, and thoroughly satisfactory explanation was given.

Mr. Dyer proceeds to say, "The abuse of hospital practice, for the information or otherwise of medical students, is closely allied to the habit of experimenting on the suffering poor." This either has no meaning at all, or else means that the ordinary use of hospital practice for teaching purposes constitutes an abuse. Where did Mr. Dyer pick up this extraordinary notion? Certainly hospital patients themselves differ in toto from Mr. Dyer. Push the idea to its logical conclusion and it comes to this: succeeding generations of suffering humanity are to have no doctors, and must be allowed to suffer!

Then there comes a story "of a young woman, afflicted with a dreadful form of dropsy, being elevated in bed and shaken, that a body of students might hear the motion of water." Mr. Dyer speaks of this form of dropsy as "a dreadful form," implying that it is more so than any other form of dropsy. My own experience is that it is very much less so. To show how little suffering this "dreadful form of dropsy" may sometimes produce, I may mention that the last patient I saw with it was a farm labourer, and he came to the hospital simply because, while engaged in his work, he heard a splashing noise going on inside and thought something must be wrong. Ignorant of the fact that this splashing sound is an important sign of the disease, and sometimes the only one, Mr. Dyer imagines that the patient was shaken to entertain the students, just in the same way as you might shake a penny rattle to amuse a baby!

Speaking about the recovery of patients being "postponed or imperilled by the distressing circumstances of exposure and bedside-lecturing," Mr. Dyer says this is "rarely, if ever, regarded." I have had ten and a-half years' hospital experience, including five of the largest metropolitan hospitals; and the result of my experience thus far is such that I believe I may say, without any fear of exaggeration, that if you ever feel disposed to place a whole number of THE CHRISTIAN at my disposal for the purpose, I could fill it from beginning to end with cases proving the falsehood of such an assertion, while I cannot at present recall one to support it.

"When does one of these teachers and guides of youth spare the shame-tortured woman at the cost of the medical students' disappointment?" Never; for the simple reason that "the shame-tortured woman" and "the medical students' disappointment" exist only in the imagination of Mr. Dyer.—Yours truly,

S. W. SUTTON, M.D.

59, Lambeth Palace-road, S.E.

[We have received a letter of similar import to the foregoing from Dr. T. Preston Lewis, 439, Brixton-road, S.W., referring especially to the explanation given by Dr. Murrell, as stated in detail in Dr. Sutton's letter. We are requested to state that in the Hospital for Women, Soho-square, no students "inspect the cases," and every possible regard is paid to the feelings of the patients].

MR. ALFRED S. DYER'S REPLY.

DEAR SIR,—I am much obliged to Dr. S. W. Sutton (an early proof of whose letter you have kindly shown to me), and to your anonymous "Medical Student" correspondent of last week, for criticising my article, as their criticisms give me an opportunity of further enforcing my statements.

Dr. Sutton quotes me as saying: "The Lancet article [jointly written by Drs. Ringer and Murrell] does not mention this drug as having been given to these poor people with any reference to curing them of their particular complaints;" and he then refers in disproof of my statement to "the article and Dr. Murrell's subsequent letter." But the part of the paragraph he has quoted refers to The Lancet article alone. If he had finished my paragraph, the first half of his communication, which is based upon the letter, would have had no point, for I said, "only after considerable public indignation had been expressed [in The Standard and elsewhere] was any attempt made by the writers to explain away the gravity of the facts."

Dr. Sutton says that: "hospital patients themselves differ in toto from Mr. Dyer" in regard to the practice of bedside-lecturing. It is very remarkable that patients should approve of having operations upon them interrupted and prolonged by an explanation of their cases to groups of young students. My information does not lead me to concur in Dr. Sutton's estimate of the patients' views on this matter. My article was partly based upon patients' own complaints and testimony, and since it appeared I have received confirmatory letters from poor people who have experienced the horrors of bed-side lecturing, thanking me for bringing the subject to the light. Some of the sentences in their letters burn with indignation, and form a striking contrast to Dr. Sutton's statement of the feelings of "the hospital patients themselves."

Dr. Sydney Ringer, the co-author with Dr. Murrell of The Lancet article, is also the author of a hand-book "especially intended for students and young practitioners" (Preface, 6th edition), in which are described many experiments upon men, women, and children, some by himself and some by others. On page 623 it is stated that "In conjunction with Mr. Bury, I have made some investigations concerning the action of salicine on the human body, using healthy children for our experiments, to whom we gave doses sufficient to produce toxic symptoms." "Our first set of experiments were made on a lad aged ten. . . . . He was admitted with belladonna poisoning, but our observations were not commenced till some days after his complete recovery." Under the tender mercies of his humane experimenters, he endured "severe frontal headache . . . . so severe that the lad shut his eyes and buried his head in his arm . . . . Though a very lively boy, he became very dull and stupid, lying with his eyes closed, and answering questions slowly. He complained of tingling like pins and needles in his right ankle, and suffered from very decided muscular weakness, soon accompanied by muscular twitchings and trembling of the legs and arms."

In commenting upon this case, Mr. Stanford Harris, M.R.C.S., naturally remarks on the "strange spectacle this poor boy would have been for the charitable supporters of a hospital to observe when they entered its walls. Would they have been informed of the cause of his sufferings when they leaned over him in pity?" And illustrative of the growing tendency to use hospitals for other purposes than their primary object, viz., the cure of the suffering poor, he quotes an address delivered by Dr. T. Gilbart Smith at Nottingham, that "the wards of hospitals are too often filled with cases useless for instruction to the students of medicine, and that if such cases were refused admission, 'the existing number of beds would be found to provide a far richer material for the purposes of clinical instruction." Under such favourable circumstances the medical student would soon learn to evince a greater interest in his work, and 'ward work would possess an attraction hitherto unknown.'" "In short," adds Mr. Stanford Harris, "we might consider the patients as suffering for the education of the students, rather than the students as educating themselves (by unattractive and uninteresting means) for the relief of the sufferings of the patients."

Your last week's correspondent, "A Medical Student," is indignant at the statement in my article that by the practice of bed-side lecturing "moral tortures of outraged modesty" are often added to the bodily anguish of poor women, and he quotes against that statement his experience at the hospital where he is studying, at which, he says, "it is only in the case of our poor fallen sisters, whose sense of shame must, in virtue of their mode of life, long ago have fallen to zero, that that care is at all relaxed, and then only to a slight, but necessary, degree."

He appears to think that the practice at his hospital is quite justifiable. But the late Mr. Daniel Cooper, secretary of the Rescue Society, a man able to speak with authority, informed me that a principal reason which led to the opening of a small lock hospital in connection with the Rescue Society's Homes was the treatment, adverse to reclamatory, to which suffering girls were subjected at general hospitals. He knew the evil results of the relaxation of care in the cases of which your correspondent speaks with such placidity. I have been brought somewhat into contact with fallen women both in this country and abroad, and I have never known one so lost to shame as some of the conventionally respectable doctors who have lectured upon them in hospital. In regard to any poor woman who has fallen to the lowest, rather than call her "our poor fallen sister," and then treat her as though all hope for her has gone out, I prefer to believe that—

> "Down in the human heart, crushed by the tempter,
> Feelings lie buried that grace can restore,
> Touched by a loving hand, wakened by kindness,
> Chords that were broken will vibrate once more."

I could say a great deal more, but I fear my letter is already too long. I must now leave your readers to judge whether unjustifiable experiments and treatment are, or are not, permitted at the physical expense of poor patients, who have little opportunity of making their grievances public. I have only to add that it is uncalled for to regard my action either as an attack upon hospitals or upon the medical profession, among whom I have highly esteemed personal friends. What I condemn are the abuses of hospital practice, and I consider that in bringing them to the light in the endeavour to obtain their removal, I am acting the part of a true friend to hospital charities.—I am, faithfully yours,

ALFRED S. DYER.

Amen-corner, Paternoster-row, London.

SEED-SOWING IN COLORADO.—DEAR SIR,—I beg to acknowledge through your columns many useful packets of little books, &c., in response to my letter in the issue of July 31. In thanking the numerous friends, I would say that my spiritual "seed basket" is being sustained by small packets by mail from England, and that simple Gospel truth is being in this way constantly placed before the people, making them, at least, responsible for the Gospel message. Much prayer is needed for this place, that the light of truth may disperse the gloomy shadows of scepticism and sin.—Yours truly,

WILLIAM D. J. STEVENSON.

Buena Vista, Chaffie County, Colorado, August 20.

Forthcoming Meetings.

COMING CONFERENCES.

DUNDEE.—September 16—18. Speakers: Mr. William Ferguson, Kinmundy, Major Mossman, Colonel Oldham, Dr. Elder Cumming, Dr. Laidlaw, Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, and others.

SALISBURY, Maundrel Hall, September 23—25.—Morning subjects: "The Believer Called to—(a) Sonship, its Privilege; (b) Saintship, its Separation; (c) Stewardship, its Responsibility." Evening subjects: (a) "Peace; (b) Power; (c) Perfection, at Christ's appearing."

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE, Queen's Rooms, Glasgow.—September 23 to 26, daily at 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. Revs. Hubert Brooke, Charles A. Fox, Charles Graham, D. B. Hankin, William Haslam, E. H. Hopkins, E. W. Moore, J. Hudson Taylor, Mr. Robert Wilson, and others are expected to take part.

CHURCH CONGRESS, Carlisle.—September 30 to October 3.

CLIFTON, Victoria Rooms.—October 7—9. Subjects: "Prophetical Signs of the Last Days;" "The Attitude of the Church with Reference to Them;" "The Glorious Hope of the Church." Inquiries of Rev. J. Ormiston, 14, Arlington-villas, Clifton, Bristol.

EVANGELISTIC.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street Strand, W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and Evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-square, S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec. Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHILDREN'S EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—Messrs. T. Eyres and Jeynes conduct Missions for children in any chapel, hall, or school of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Secretary, 253, Southampton-street, Camberwell, S.E.

MR. HENRY THORNE.—Till September 15, Carlisle; 20 to 29, Sheffield.

REV. W. HASLAM.—Glasgow, September 23; Plymouth, October 11; Ryde (I. of W.), 25th.

MR J. M. SCROGGIE.—September, Belfast; October, Bristol; November 2, Elgin, N.B.; November 15, Inverness; December, Paisley.

DR. THAIN DAVIDSON'S Monthly Sermon to Young Men, Sunday, September 14, at 6.30 p.m., Islington Presbyterian Church, Colebrooke-row, N.

STEPNEY MEETING HOUSE.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney preaches every Sunday at 3 p.m.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr F. C. Bland on Sunday, September 7, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. No meeting on Wednesday, September 10, at Burlington Hall, Savile-row.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—Bignold Hall, Forest-gate; Hammersmith services temporarily transferred to Blythe-lane, as under; Kilburn Hall (not Town Hall), Kilburn-gate; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill;—all, Sunday, 7 p.m. The Tent, Blythe-road, West Kensington, Sunday at 3 and 7, week nights (except Saturday) at 8; the Tent on the ground connected with Dalston Hall, opposite Dalston Junction, Sunday at 7, Tuesday and Thursday at 8.

Y.M.C.A. ASSOCIATIONS.

61, GRACECHURCH-STREET, E.C.—Daily prayer meeting 1.15 to 2 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Bible-readings in Isaiah each Tuesday, 6.15 p.m.

EXETER HALL.—Gospel meeting every night at 8 (Saturday excepted). Mid-day prayer-meeting 1 to 2 (Saturday excepted). Bible-reading, Saturday, at 8, by Colonel Puget. Gospel Male Choir practises every Friday, at 7.30. Musical Christian men cordially invited.

186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Central Noon Prayer Meeting, daily, 12 to 1 o'clock. Sunday, Bible-class, 3.15 p.m.; evangelistic meeting, 7 p.m. Monday, strangers' reception, 8 p.m. Tuesday, teachers' preparatory Bible-classes, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Thursday, foreign Mission prayer-meeting, 7 p.m.; devotional meeting and address, 8 p.m. Friday, Gospel meeting, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Workers' praise and prayer meeting, 7.30 p.m. Friday, September 12, Gospel meeting, 8 p.m., address by Mr. E. J. Kennedy.

MISCELLANEOUS.

UPPER NORWOOD, Stafford House, Tudor-road.—Drawing-room meeting, at 3 p.m., every Thursday. A young women's meeting on the same day at 8 p.m.

3, HIGHBURY-PLACE, N.—Meetings every Tuesday, 6 p.m., at Rev. W. E. Boardman's, from September 2. No afternoon meetings. Mrs. Boardman's Bible-class every Wednesday, 11 a.m.

BETHSHAN, Drayton-park, Highbury, N.—Meetings are now held as usual. Sundays, Bible reading, 3 o'clock; evening, 6.30. Wednesdays, holiness and faith-healing, 3 o'clock. Fridays, holiness meeting, 7 o'clock.

HOME OF INDUSTRY, 60, Commercial-street, Spitalfields.—Monthly meeting for Christian workers, Wednesday, September 17. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Mr. J. Hudson Taylor will give the address, and a band of eight missionaries, shortly leaving for China, will be present to take farewell.

FAITH-HEALING MEETINGS, conducted by the Rev. John Allen, Trinity Church, Triangle, Hackney, London, E. Sundays, 3 p.m.; Mondays, 7 p.m., addresses and testimonies; Tuesdays, 11.30 a.m., anointing service, Ranelagh Rooms, Ranelagh-road, Paddington; Fridays, at 7 p.m., Royal Oak Station.

CHINA INLAND MISSION.—Meetings in connection with the departure to China of the next party will be held as under: Monday, September 15, Metropolitan Tabernacle, 7 p.m.; Tuesday, 16th, Central Noon Prayer Meeting, Aldersgate-street; Wednesday, 17th, Home of Industry, Commercial-street, Spitalfields, 7 p.m. Thursday, 18th, Gospel Hall, Wood Green, 7 p.m. Friday, 19th, 186, Aldersgate-street, 8 p.m.

MISSION TO THE KABYLES.

IN a recently issued "Occasional Paper," we find the following particulars of the Mission to the Kabyles, of which Mr. E. H. Glenny, Linton-road, Barking, is Hon. Secretary:—

"Mr. E. Cuendet, a Swiss brother, who had spent some time under the care of Mr. and Mrs. Grattan Guinness, has now gone to join Mr. and Mrs. Lamb in their work at Djemaâ Sahridj. French being his native tongue, he will be able to work with felicity among the French people, while learning Kabyle. He hopes to begin a Sunday-school among the Colonists' children. A Christian sister is also going from Glasgow shortly to help Mrs. Lamb with her family.

"Turning four hundred miles further west, we come to Tlemcen, where Mr. J. Bureau is labouring. He is a Frenchman, and before joining our Mission had laboured with Mr. R. Saillens, in Marseilles, and among the French soldiers in Tunis. He went to Oran in Algeria rather more than a year ago, and, after evangelising with some success among the French, began work in January of this year among the natives at Tlemcen, once the capital of the Berber Empire. He has, in the absence of the young French pastor, conducted the services in the Reformed Church, and also in many other small towns and villages, in fact all the leading places in the province of Oran have been visited, and even the desert of Sahara has been penetrated to some distance. Since January our brother has been studying Arabic for seven hours a day, besides labouring in the Gospel.

"This month (August) the young French pastor returns, when Mr. Bureau will be relieved of his work, and devote himself more exclusively to the natives, many of whom, though Berbers in origin, speak Arabic. He will also visit the Riffian tribes of Berbers in the mountains, some of whom speak Arabic and some Riffian. Mr. G. Mercadier is now on his way to join Mr. Bureau; he is a Frenchman, and has a French diploma as a teacher, so that he will be able to commence a school there. He has been with Mr. and Mrs. Grattan Guinness for some months. These two brethren have taken a house in the native quarter of the town, so as to be right among the people, and in one of his last letters Mr. Bureau asks for £14 to furnish it. Some friends have given us £7 towards this object. Our hearts are full of thankfulness to God that our brother has been able to labour so energetically, and that he seems so full of hope for the future.

"Still further to the west, about 300 miles from Tlemcen, at Tangier, in Morocco, is our third station. Here we are not under French rule at present, and only about thirty miles from Gibraltar. This is the door of Morocco, and we heartily praise God that another country has been opened so that the light of the Gospel may be carried in.

"General Haig, one of our Council, went forth to Morocco, in May, to advise us further as to the best course to take in evangelising this vast field. He was deeply impressed, not only with the terrible spiritual needs, but also with the wretched misgovernment of the country; at the same time on every hand he heard of a marvellous willingness to hear the truth. So disgusted do the people seem with their present rulers that some have even expressed a wish that some European Power would take possession of the country and guarantee the security of property. He found there was an important opening for work among the Seus of Mogador, and recommends that two young men be sent there, as well as several labourers to Tangier. Mr. Lockhead, from Glasgow, who is now residing in our Mission House at Tangier, will shortly, God willing, be joined by several more workers when we have funds to send them. Four have already been accepted, and others are offering themselves. Mr. Lockhead writes a few days ago that the Moors say that the French worship the Virgin Mary, and they believe in Mohammed, but the English worship no one. They say this, because on Sundays English officers and soldiers come over from Gibraltar for excursions and amusement. May God help us to show them that there are other Englishmen who love and worship God and wish to make Him known to others

"Mr. Mackintosh, the valued agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, with his wife, continues his important work, which though beset with difficulties has much to encourage. He is very kind in advising us.

"We think that the encouraging information from all parts calls us to go forward in the work of making known the Gospel in North Africa, and with God's help we hope to do so. Our programme of work to be undertaken is, first, to complete the payment for our spacious premises at Tangier, for which we still need several hundred pounds, and to establish a strong staff of missionaries there, who shall by degrees go further inland; next to maintain, and perhaps strengthen the staff at Djemaâ Sahridj, and Tlemcen; and then to plant several new stations at various points, one being Mogador, and others, probably, in the province of Constantine, and the regency of Tunis. At present our funds are very low, and we have much to do to sustain our present staff, fulfil our engagements at home and abroad, and increase our efforts. We need £200 each month."

We have received a note from the Hon. Treasurer of the Kabyle Mission, Mr. W. Soltau Eccles, Lyndhurst, Church-road, Upper Norwood, S.E., in which he says: "Would you kindly put a short paragraph in THE CHRISTIAN regarding the great need of a medical missionary in Morocco? Mrs. Macintosh writes from Tangier: 'I scarcely ever go into the Moorish cottages without finding some sad sick case, and it would be such a help if we had a doctor to turn to, if it were only some one who would tell me what to advise. On Sunday (August 23) I saw a woman who had been ill for a year lying groaning on her bed. To-day a group of women begged me for medicine for a beautiful baby who had been ill for weeks.'"

CONTINENTAL EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

NOYON.—After waiting eleven months for a reply to his application, Pasteur Cadot of Chauny has received official authorisation to hold Protestant meetings at Noyon, Calvin's birthplace. The Geneva colporteur evangelist has been at work there for the last month. Assistance is needed to defray the necessary expenses.

MR. ANDERSON, whose work in connection with the McAll Mission at Cannes is prospering, took advantage of the general relaxation of the laws respecting public meetings on the national fête day to preach the Gospel very briefly, but on numerous occasions, in the street. He thereby attracted many to the réunion who had never heard of the word before.

PASTEUR LECOAT, of Tremel, Brittany, has translated five of Miss Skinner's "Friendly Letters." They are well-assorted for special use on that Mission station, and the Religious Tract Society has been at the expense of printing five thousand of them. To the recently-issued revision of the Breton New Testament, the Trinitarian Bible Society has issued a parallel page French and Breton edition.

PASTEUR CRETIA, of La Fère, Aisne, France, is experiencing gracious visitations of the Spirit. Five candidates asked for baptism, two of them being over seventy years of age, and another, a churchwarden, which office had been hereditary in his family. One soul, very happy in the Lord, exhibited a penchant for learning and singing hymns, some that he thus learned he did not know the tunes of, so he invented them and so managed to sing them.

ST. ETIENNE, FRANCE.—Dr. Burroughs writes most cheerfully, detailing the facts of a great revival which has followed the advent of Pasteur Vernier to the town. Advantage was taken of the national fête day to circulate cards bearing the tricolor, and upon which were placed verses of Scripture. The cholera afforded a welcome opportunity for usefulness. 2500 tracts bearing the simple words, "The Cholera," were circulated. The recipients asked "Is it a remedy for cholera?" The answer was "Yes, the best." As an evidence of the value of the work of the McAll Mission, it is noted that half of the members of the Free Church of that town, which is no inconsiderable one, are converts of the Mission. W. L. L.

Notices.

H. C.—If you will send us your name and address we will put you in communication with a lady who can supply the details you desire with respect to needlewomen in the East-end

MRS. K. YEOLAND, who is now resting, regaining strength for her evangelistic work, will be happy to receive communications from those who need her services. Address Mornington House, Clapham-road, London, S.W.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—M A G, E.P. F.O.R. Mrs. W. S.S. W.H.R. T P L. E.C. F.L.R. C L.A E.L. S.W.S A.P.C. P.P. K.D.G. S.R M G L.S. R.J.C J.H.S. F.J.C. H.B.W. E.H.G. E.M.B W.A E.H. A.McP. H.W. G.K A.J.S.M. S.P.G W.O. H.C. E.J.M. J.B. F.L. S.C. H.B. F.O.R. M. and G.T F.J. H.R. F.C.C. J.H. W.A. C.G. K.Y. A.F.O.W. A.W W.L.L. F.W. W.C. W.S.E. G.F. W.B. F.W A.G.M. W.W.S A.C. W.D.J.S. M.J.F. A.D. A.McD. E.M.H. C.M.C.P. M.C. G.W. S.J.C. J.S.W. E.B.H. A.F.W. G.R.K. J.M. S.A.R. J.W.M E.H. S.McC. M.O. C.C. E.A.C. G.J W.P.S. W.M.D. C.W.C. W.S. W.G. H.N. H.B.C. A.M.W. R.S. G.W.H. P.C.H. E.W.F C.S.J. H.D.S. T.L.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—F. Foster, The Elms Cottage, Market Harboro, Leicestershire; H. Mills, Foxton, Market Harboro, Leicestershire, G. Barker, Middle-street, Wickham Market, Suffolk; Mrs. A Wood, 7, Lower Cathedral-road, Cardiff; J. Wilson, 118, High Craighall-road. Glasgow; W. H Gilbert. 239, Saracen-street, Possilpark, Glasgow; Miss Brown, Southside, Carlton-road, Tufnell-park N.; Mrs. Clark, Grunoisburgh. Woodbridge; I. Adamson, jun, 85, Longly-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne; D May, 33, Hounsdon-road New Cross-road, S E: A E. Harris, 25, Barset-road. Nunhead; Mr. C. Bickle, evangelist, Delabole, Camelford; Mr. W. Pode, rope-maker, Launceston; W H Liddington, 85, Abbey-road, St. John's Wood, N W.; P. Hope, Success-cottages, Fence-houses, Durham; J. Armstrong, New Pit, New Herring on, Fence-houses, Durham; Miss Abbott, Tunstall Rectory, Ottringham, Hull; T. Leadbetter, High-street, Broseley, Shropshire.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most important that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away All applicants must send the name of one or more responsible referees.]

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, September 6, 1884.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the Missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Saturday Morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number

	£	s.	d.
Day in the Country Fund—A. J. R. 10s.; M. M. 1s.; M. L. P. 10s; Miss E. R. 5s.; G. D C. £1; A. H. L. M. K. 2s. 6d.	3	8	6
Boys' Refuge, Manchester (Mr. Alsop)—Mrs. B.	3	13	8
China Inland Mission—J. P. B. £50; E. I. 10s.; W. C. £1; V. W. 10s; A. M. J. P. 10s.	52	10	0
Anchorage Mission—C. E. P.	1	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—E. H. 8s.; A. H. L. £1; (Emigration Fund) C. E. P. £1	2	8	0
Work among Navvies, Hull—Z. £1; S. and F. 5s.; N. B. £1	2	5	0
Friendless and Fallen—W. M. £5; A. S. £2 12s. 6d.; A. H. L. £1	8	12	6
Working Men's Lord's Day Rest Association—M. E. O.	0	5	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—J. D.	1	0	0
Home of Industry—Keturah	1	1	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—Keturah	1	1	0
Soldiers' Home, Cairo (Miss A. Toda)—M. M.	0	2	0
Sufferers from Hailstorm in France—M. M.	0	1	0
Scriptures for the Blind (Dr. Moon)—F. B. 5s.; J. M. K. 5s.	0	10	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—A. S.	2	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—S. J. S.	0	2	0
Miss Best's Merchant Seamen's Mission—E. E. H.	0	2	0
A Lover of the Lord—Please send address.
Mission to Kabyles—V. W.	0	10	0
Miss Robinson's Work, Soldiers Abroad—C. E. P.	1	0	0
Distressed Jews in Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—H. C.	0	10	0
Soldiers' Institute, Gibraltar—S J. S.	0	4	0
North Camp Mission, Farnboro'-road—S. J. S.	0	4	0
THE CHRISTIAN Tract Fund—S. J. S.	0	2	0
Kaffir Mission (Mr. E. Clarke)—T. M. Y.	0	10	6
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—T. M. Y.	0	5	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—L. F. B.	0	5	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—B. M. £1; A Reader, 5s.; A. H. L £1	2	5	0
Mrs. Fisher's Work among Young Women—A Reader	0	5	0
Dublin Prison-gate Mission—A. H. L.	1	0	0
Children's Week in Country (Mr. Chorley)—G. M. and E. M. 5s.; Crieff, 2s. 6d.	0	7	6
	£67	9	6

[ADVERTISEMENT]

Dr. Moon's Society for the Blind—E. C. £1.

Rescue Work in Whitechapel—Mrs. J., Bath, £1; A. B. £1; Miss L., Woburn, £1; Mr. and Mrs. Saml. J. C. 10s.

DR. PENTECOST'S STORY, commencing on page 13 of our present number, will be printed in separate form as one of the series of his penny tracts, published by Morgan & Scott.

BACKBITING.—Pastor Krummacher relates the following:—One day, in the presence of a pious tanner, at Elberfield, some people were tearing their neighbours' characters to pieces. Diedrich the tanner was silent. "You say nothing," said they. "You see," replied he, "I am a little like a bankrupt. He may be engaged in the most animated conversation, but I have always remarked when the subject turns upon bankruptcy, he is suddenly dumb I, too, am a bankrupt; the defects you are just reproaching your neighbours with I find in myself, and that shuts my month."

Under the Patronage of H.R.H. the Princess Christian.

MRS. HILTON'S CRECHE, INFANT INFIRMARY, AND ORPHAN HOME,

12, 14, & 16, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, COMMERCIAL ROAD, E.,

AND

TRAINING AND CONVALESCENT HOME, THE LIMES, FELTHAM.

SPECIAL AND URGENT.

We are in great need of help for the above work, which is quite without Funds. There are several vacancies in the Home, which we should be very glad to fill if the means were forthcoming, as we have a long list of distressing cases waiting admission. We have also some heavy payments to meet before the end of the month.

Our Thirteenth Report is in the press, and can be forwarded on application.

Contributions to be forwarded to Mrs. HILTON, Langveld House, Burdett-road, E.

"Moon's" Society for Embossing the Scriptures and other Books for the Blind.

Dr. Moon's simplified type, suitable for all ages and capacities of the blind, is of universal application. It has been adapted by him to 250 languages and dialects. More than 150,000 volumes of the Word of God, and other books, have been supplied to the blind of numerous countries.

Subscriptions and donations are urgently needed to carry on this daily increasing work, and will be gratefully received by Dr. W. MOON, 104, Queen's-road, Brighton (Acting Trustee); also by the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND,

ESTABLISHED 1823.

President, The Rt. Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

OFFICES:
27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin
and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAS. KEARNEY WHITE, or by the Proprietors of this paper.

NOTE.—Subscriptions or Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

OUR LITTLE LADS.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM and SWANLEY.

FUNDS are still URGENTLY NEEDED to feed, clothe, and educate 220 homeless little ones in the Cottage Homes at Farningham, and to complete the new Homes for Orphans at Swanley.

Will each reader of this do something?

Bankers.
Messrs. SMITH, PAYNE, & SMITHS, 1, Lombard Street, E.C.
Offices: Ludgate Circus. A. O. CHARLES.

"THE BLUE."

Twelve Blue Ribbon Text Cards, in Blue and Gold and Blue and Silver, very chaste and pretty. Post free, Sixpence.

JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

BIBLE LIGHT

For Truth Seekers & Christian Workers.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."—Ps. cxix. 105.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light."—Ps. cxix. 130.

THE OBJECT of "BIBLE LIGHT" is to interest its readers in the written Word, and to lead them through the latter to the Living Word, for the salvation of the unsaved, and the strengthening of the believer's faith. Monthly, One Penny. Strongly recommended by the Press. The Vol. for 1883, price 1s. 6d.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & CO., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.
And of all Booksellers and Newsagents

Four hundred and twenty-ninth Edition, 1s. 6d.

BUTTER'S SPELLING.

BUTTER'S READING & SPELLING

IN EASY GRADATIONS, on an entirely Original Plan, making Words of two Syllables as easy as those of one. 78th Edition. 1s. 6d.

BUTTER'S GRADUAL PRIMER.

With Engravings, 6d.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL & Co. And all Booksellers.

Immanuel Church,

WEST BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

Minister: Rev. AUBREY CHARLES PRICE, B.A.

£1,000 REQUIRED to complete the Purchase of the Freehold of the Site for the Permanent Church on September 29 in the present year. Contributions will be thankfully received and all information afforded by W. PARRY JENNINGS, Esq., 6, Kingsdown-villas, Wandsworth-common, Surrey; or W. B. CAULFIELD, Esq., 73, Ferndale-road, Clapham, S.W.

Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN & Co., Lombard-street, E.C.

WOMEN'S MEDICAL MISSION HOUSE, 2, Mecklenburgh-street, W.C.

LADIES who desire to become MISSIONARY PHYSICIANS are received as resident STUDENTS, and their instruction provided at THE LONDON SCHOOL OF MEDICINE FOR WOMEN, and THE ROYAL FREE HOSPITAL, WITH ALL EXPENSES.

Term begins 1st of October next. Apply to Mrs. MEREDITH, Office of Women's Missionary Institute, Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W.

New Edition. Just out. Price 5s.; in Cloth Boards, 474 pages, or 6s. Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges.

The Tabernacle,

The Priesthood, and The Offerings.

BY

HENRY W. SOLTAU,

Author of "The Holy Vessels of the Tabernacle;" "The Soul and its Difficulties;" "The Scarlet Line;" Etc. Etc.

WITH FOUR BEAUTIFUL COLOURED ILLUSTRATIONS AND NUMEROUS SMALLER ENGRAVINGS.

Also to be completed in Twelve Fourpenny Parts. Part V. Now Ready.

THE TABERNACLE,

The Priesthood, and the Offerings.

By HENRY W. SOLTAU. With four beautiful Coloured Illustrations, and numerous smaller Engravings.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

In Neat Packet. Price Sixpence.

SMALL BOOKS

BY

ANNA SHIPTON.

AUTHOR OF

"THE SURE MERCIES OF DAVID;" "TELL JESUS;" "THE PROMISE AND THE PROMISER;" &c.

Contents.

"Love did it;" or, Caught at Last.
Naomi's Night Watch; or, What can a Child do?
Widow Gray and the Little Song Bird.
The New Sixpence; or, "God is Good, God is Love."
"Just Like Me."
God is as Good as His Word.
A Brief Memorial of a Ragged School Boy.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

A NEW EDITION OF

The Life of Richard Weaver,

THE CONVERTED COLLIER.

BY R. C. MORGAN.

Price 4d. (3 copies post-free for 1s.)

"We recommend a careful perusal of the volume b every Christian desiring to improve his own heart or to do good to others; it will point out a way to be useful, and stimulate, by the force of a good example, to greater efforts for the best of masters."

A LARGE PRINT Edition of the LIFE OF RICHARD WEAVER, with an Engraved Portrait, and bound in cloth covers, may also be had, price 1s. (post-free).

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY RICHARD WEAVER.

COME TO THE SAVIOUR. A Series of Addresses by RICHARD WEAVER. Tinted Covers, price 4d.

A VOICE FROM THE COAL PIT. A Series of Addresses. Tinted Covers, price 4d.

TO YOU. A Series of Addresses. Tinted Covers, 4d.

Also, SIX ASSORTED PENNY ADDRESSES will be sent, post free, 6d.

WEAVER'S LEAFLETS.

A Series of 64 Two-page Tracts neatly printed on coloured paper.

Price 6d. per packet of 96, post-free.

1,000 Copies of "RICHARD WEAVER'S LEAFLETS" may be had for 4s. on application, direct to the Publishers, not carriage paid.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Continued from page 3.

BRIGHTON, 116, Lansdowne-place.—Two or three Ladies received for Board and Residence, at the Misses ASHBY'S Preparatory Boys' School Reference permitted to the Rev. J. G Gregory, Incumbent of Emmanuel Church.

SOUTHSEA. — Solent House Boarding Establishment, South Parade. Large, well-furnished House, in the best position, facing sea and the Isle of Wight Smoking-room. Moderate winter terms.—The Misses BAKER

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — Board and residence for Ladies and Gentlemen in a private family. A few only received. R. C., 1, Grove-hill, Tunbridge Wells

BOURNEMOUTH. — Clairville, Covine-road.—Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs JACKSON. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

BOURNEMOUTH, Ivors, Old Christchurch-road, Boarding House — Cheerful central position, near Holy Trinity Church. Very comfortable house. Permanency or otherwise. Terms moderate

PARIS. — Boarding House. — A Gentleman recommends Mdlle. Chanet's, 30, Rue Poussin Auteuil Paris The house is in a well-kept garden and in a healthy, respectable locality, close to the Bois de Boulogne; and there are many advantages for anyone who may wish to speak and write French correctly.
Mdlle CHANET, as above.

PARIS.—Board and Residence en famille, with French Protestant Widow Lady, for two young Ladies, or brother and sister. Comfortable, elegant home, overlooking Jardin d'Acclimatation. Neuilly. Exceptional opportunity of acquiring French. Terms £10 monthly. References to French and English pastors. Particulars supplied by JEANNE, Selsgirth House, Highgate, London.

TO CHRISTIAN WORKERS wanting a Furnished House for the Winter.—A Gentleman will let his place at a very low rent in return for assistance in Mission work (unsectarian). Nine bed-rooms and outside rooms for man, stables, large kitchen garden, &c. South of London. References required. — G. H (letters only), Cannon-street Railway Hotel, E.C.

A COMFORTABLE HOME is offered to an elderly Christian Lady where there are no children. Terms very moderate.
A. C., 12, Kilburn-road, Highbury-park, N.

COMFORTABLE SEASIDE Residence offered to an invalid or elderly person in a Clergyman's family, where the utmost care and kindness would be given. Terms moderate.
CRAWFORD, 10, Princes-street, Rhyl.

A LADY HIGHLY recommends a respectable Christian person, who has two comfortably furnished cottage rooms to Let by the week. She can board an invalid, one or two females, or children, on small payment.—Miss SCOTT, 2, Medwyn-cottages, Chase Side, Southgate, N.

Miss REYNOLDS, grand-daughter of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Fry, wishes to Let half her well-furnished House for six months or longer to quiet tenants, giving attendance from her own servants; or the whole house, ten rooms furnished, without attendance. Terms for either, 3½ guineas per week. Good public garden at the back
Miss REYNOLDS, 74, Elgin-crescent, Notting-hill.

BLACKDOWN HILLS.—Furnished lodgings. Two sitting, three bed-rooms, with dressing-room. Splendid situation, near railway. Terms, £1 weekly.—Mrs. MAYNARD, Pencross. Hemyock, Cullompton.

UPPER NORWOOD.—Comfortable Board and Residence in Christian gentleman's family Every home comfort. Good position near Evangelical church and chapels. OAKDENE, Vermont-road, Central Hill. Upper Norwood, S E.

HOME OF REST, The Hollows, St. Albans.—Christian Workers needing rest can obtain prospectus of terms, &c., on application to LADY SUPERINTENDENT as above.

WESTGATE-ON-SEA.—Board and Residence offered to a Lady in a private family. Sixty pounds per annum.—Apply by letter, H. C., Mr. Verris. Station-road. Westgate. Kent.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortable Furnished Apartments to Let, near pine walks, and within easy distance of sea. South aspect. Piano. Home comforts. Terms very moderate, especially for permanency.
A. P., Brooklyn, Southcote-road.

DOUBLE - FRONTED detached Cottage to Let. Pleasantly situated in healthy village thirty miles from London. Seven rooms, washhouse, cellar, garden front and back. Rent £14.—J. JUDD, Puckeridge Herts

A CHRISTIAN LADY desires to Let part of her house, furnished, to any who would value a quiet home. Convenient for the City.
FAITH, 14, Kelvin-terrace, Highbury-park.

RESIDENT PATIENT. — South Coast.—Medical man, married, desires to receive, or charge of delicate children. Large house, facing common and sea. Carriages kept. MEDICUS, Fleming, 87, Palmeston-road, Southsea.

CHRISTIAN FAMILY (abstainers), having larger house than required, desire one or two Gentlemen to board with them, who would value a comfortable home with every convenience. Separate sitting if preferred.
S. T., Amhurst Library, Amhurst-road, N.

HOME OF REST.—Accommodation for five or six Christian people. Meeting for holiness and healing on Wednesday evenings. Board and lodging from 21s. to 30s. per week.—F. J. HOLDERNESS, Station-square, Saltburn-by-the-Sea, Yorkshire.

A LADY strongly recommends Apartments, Furnished, in the house of a Christian widow, as sitting-room and bed-room; or bed-room and use of breakfast parlour. Near tram and 'bus. No children. Good attendance. Terms moderate.—Mrs SCOTT, 5, Aldebert-terrace, Albert-square, Clapton, S.W.

APARTMENTS wanted, in October, by a family (without children) in a healthy and quiet part of Highgate or Highbury, where no other lodgers would be taken. Two sitting-rooms and four or five bed-rooms. If found comfortable, and terms moderate, might possibly remain the winter.
D. B., 16, Oldfield-road, Stoke Newington, N.

A LADY OF POSITION wishes to be the only Lady Boarder with a Christian family in Bayswater.—HOME William Whiteley (Banking Dept.), Westbourne-grove, W.

HOME COMFORTS offered to one or two Christian friends, who are engaged during the day. Reasonable charges.
Mrs. PROSSER, 338, Cold-harbour-lane, Brixton.

HARROGATE.—A Medical man can recommend a home for one or two Ladies. Board separate, or in family on reasonable terms.—Y. Z., Bodger, Bookseller, Harrogate.

HASTINGS, Shaftesbury Hotel.—This first-class Hotel or Boarding House, formerly a gentleman's mansion, has been re-decorated and handsomely furnished throughout, and is opened for the reception of Ladies and Gentlemen. Terms exceedingly moderate, from 6s. 6d. per day, or £2 2s. per week.
Miss ABLEWHITE, Manageress.

HASTINGS NEW HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT. — Charming residence for change and rest. An unequalled health resort. Purest air. Turkish baths, with sea-water plunge. Scientific baths of every description, with skilled attendants. One and a half hours from London. Moderate charges. Opened Wednesday, September 10. Rooms can now be secured. Early application desirable.—Apply to the SECRETARY.

HOME FOR A YOUNG LADY engaged in town, in a quiet family, where she would have the care and comforts of home. Pleasant part of West Brompton; short distance from railways. Terms moderate. Good references required and given.—J. S. B., Miss Bolton, Stationer, 453, Fulham-road.

APARTMENTS to Let, after Sept. 29, at Mr WILLIAMS 20, Duncan-terrace, Islington London. Beautifully situated, with garden-square in front. Two sitting-rooms, and three bed-rooms; together or separately. Highly recommended by a clergyman and his wife, who have occupied them for three years. Good cooking and attendance. Terms moderate.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS are again earnestly invited to write. Many have received blessing.
Rom. x. 20. EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W.

HARMONIUM.—Suit Mission or Home Circle. A very beautifully made full compass. Walnut case, eight stops, including the Expression and Cor-Anglais, new and perfect throughout, rich powerful organ tone, price only £7.—HARMONIUM, care of Whitman & Fox's Library, 13, Dartmouth-crescent, Dartmouth-park-hill, London, N.

NEEDLEWORK FOR LADIES, for Pleasure and Profit. All the New Art Work. Directions for lovely things in knitting and crochet. Useful articles and wearable things, saleable bazaar articles. How to Dispose of Work, and List of Work Societies. New and enlarged edition, price 1s. 7½., post free.
RINGROSE, Malvern Link.

FURNISH on NORMAN & STACEY'S Hire-Purchase System. Deposit not necessary. True economy on sound commercial principles. Strictly private. 1, 2, or 3 years. 60 wholesale firms. Ordinary selling prices.—Offices, 11, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

MISSIONARIES AND FOREIGN RESIDENTS should call or write to BYWATER, PERRY & Co., special agents for missionaries, &c. Outfits and goods at wholesale prices. Passages engaged. Shipments effected. 2000 references.—11, Queen Victoria-street, London, and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

GOOD STAINED OAK DESK, with strong platform for same, well suited for a Mission-room. Cost over £5, price £2.
RUMSEY, Merrow, Guildford.

DARTFORD.—Season Tickets for £10 per annum to London (35 minutes on S.E.R.), gives exceptional opportunity of residence in this healthy locality. Rents moderate. Endowed grammar school. Excellent train service.—Write, T. W. STIDOLPH, House and Estate Agent, stating requirements.

ENGLISH VERSIONS OF THE BIBLE.

A HANDBOOK.—With Copious Examples Illustrating the Ancestry and Relationship of the several Versions, and Comparative Tables. 508 pp. Crown 8vo. cloth, 6s.
By the Rev. J. I. MOMBERT, D.D.

This Volume, on which the Author has spent years of laborious research and study, presents an exhaustive view of the English Versions from Anglo-Saxon times to the Revision of 1881, brings together information not contained in any single work extant, and is an indispensable book of reference to all readers of the Bible.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

SUPERIOR EDITIONS
OF
SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,
SUITABLE FOR PRESENTS.

WORDS ONLY.

		s.	d.
3 C.	Medium type, morocco, gilt edges. Pocket size	2	6
4 C.	Morocco, flexible, kid lined. Small size for pocket	4	0
4 D.	Morocco, gilt edges. Small 8vo. edition	4	0
9 D.	Morocco, gilt edges. Special reduced size	4	0
4 E.	Morocco, gilt edges, extra large type	5	6
5 E.	Morocco, flexible, kid lined, extra large type	10	0
9 E.	Morocco, gilt edges, extra large type in small compass...	4	0
10 E.	Morocco, flexible, kid lined. Same type and size as 9 E. ...	6	6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

OLD NOTATION.

		s.	d.
5 F.	Demy 8vo., morocco, gilt edges	8	6
6 F.	Demy 8vo., morocco, gilt edges, flexible, kid lined	12	6
7 F.	Demy 8vo., morocco, gilt edges, seal yapped, kid lined, silk sewn, perfectly supple	21	0
4 H.	Crown 8vo. (size smaller than the F. edition), morocco, gilt edges	5	6
5 H.	Crown 8vo., morocco, gilt edges, flexible, kid lined	10	6

TONIC SOL-FA.

5 G.	Demy 8vo., morocco, gilt edges	8	6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

IN NEAT PACKET, PRICE SIXPENCE, POST FREE.

SMALL BOOKS
BY
DR. G. F. PENTECOST.

Suitable for Enclosing in Letters and for General Distribution.

CONTENTS.

"The Japanese Student."
"Peace for the Likes of Me."
"I Want to be Gooder."
"I Dreads de Process."
"Let me see that."
"Sons of God."

Any one of the six above mentioned can be obtained price 6d. per dozen, or 3s. 6d. per 100.

The Witness of the Spirit.
The Two Sisters.
The Precious Blood of Christ.

The above-mentioned books may also be had separately, price 1s. per dozen, or 7s. per 100.

The following Small Books are also ready:

"I am Trying to Believe!" 6d. per doz.; 3s. 6d. per 100.
Consecration; or, Practical Holiness. 6d. per doz.; 3s. 6d. per 100.
The Christian and the Modern Dance. Price 2d.; 2s. per 100.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Foxe's Book of Martyrs.

With twelve full-page Illustrations. A complete and authentic account of the Lives, Sufferings, and Triumphant Deaths of Primitive and Protestant Martyrs in all parts of the world. (MORGAN & SCOTT'S EDITION.) Handsomely bound, price 10s. 6d. May also be had in Sixteen parts at 6d. each.

"It is a cheap and complete Book of Martyrs, well printed and elegantly bound, and suitable for a Gift Book."—Record, August 17, 1884.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Publications.

Twelfth Edition. Post-free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.—SIMPKIN MARSHALL.

FLOWER MISSION CARDS.—New and convenient design, plain white, 8d., Crimson, 1s; Gold, 1s 2d. per 100, post free. Sample pack of 50 (assorted colours), 6d.
Only of F. V. HADLOW, Lithographer, Brighton.

MRS. GRIMKE having now printed 50 languages, wishes to send out one million Text Cards to Missionaries this year, cost about £500, proposing to double all gifts sent by Christians, whose aid she asks. Many varieties of English (some very beautiful), F. M. sheets, tracts, quilt texts on calico, &c., always on sale.—For list, send stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. GRIMKE, Prestwich, Manchester.

Terms for Advertisements
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words	3	0
,, 39 ,, ...	3	9
,, 48 ,, ...	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of THE CHRISTIAN they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning's first post.

Small Books and Leaflets.

Published by MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C.; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

A Series of Penny Addresses.

BY D. L. Moody

Crown 8vo. 16 pages each.

One Penny; 7s. 6d. per 100, either assorted or of any one number.

Good News.
"Where art Thou?"
"There is no Difference."
Christ seeking Sinners.
Let the Wicked Forsake his Way.
The Work of the Holy Spirit.
"Love that Passeth Knowledge."
Sowing and Reaping.
Lot.
Christ All and in All.
The Two Classes.
Repentance and Restitution.
"Dare to be a Daniel."
Plain Words on Conversion.
"Turn Ye!"
Counting the Cost.
John the Baptist.
Jacob.

 The above may also be had in small square size, suitable for enclosing in letters.
One Penny each; 7s. per 100.

Arrows Shot at a Venture.

A SERIES OF NARRATIVE TRACTS.

By GEORGE BEALBY, Author of "The Blackdown Tracts."

Price 6d. per Packet of 12 Tracts, assorted.

Each Tract consists of Sixteen pages, tastefully printed on tinted paper. The narratives are interesting, the application concise, and there are earnest and pointed appeals to unawakened souls.

CONTENTS.

1. The Bridge of Love.
2. A Life-belt for Sinking Souls.
3. Nanny and her Burden.
4. "Mighty to Save."
5. The Shipwreck.
6. Law and Mercy.
7. Taken at his Word.
8. The Christmas Dinner.
9. "The Door is open, Donald."
10. Old Maggie's Three Texts.
11. Received or Rejected?
12. Giving and Taking.

"Tracts that will be readily accepted, read through, and not forgotten. Can we give better recommendation? Only by adding, these tracts teach the truth as it is in Jesus."—Pemuel.

"Simple, pointed, and thoroughly interesting; these 'ARROWS' are sure to hit."
Sunday School World.

Life Scenes and Life Stories.

By Mrs. G. S. REANEY.

THREE NARRATIVE TRACTS, EACH CONTAINING SIXTEEN PAGES, WITH AN ILLUSTRATION ON THE FIRST PAGE.

Price One Penny each; 7s. 6d. per 100.

For Gratuitous Distribution, 1000 copies (assorted) will be supplied for £3, on application direct to the Publishers.

1. Prayed Home: A Mother's Story.
2. Timothy Kitt's Story.
3. She never Keeps her Servants.

"Mrs. Reaney has the art of writing tracts which are more than readable; they are charming in the simplicity of their style, and convey lessons on Temperance and other subjects which are well worth the attention of all."—The Good Templar.

"The Christian" Leaflets.

A NEW SERIES OF LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

Printed on Tinted Paper. In assorted Packets, 6d. and 1s.

Coming.
Through the Flood on Foot.
"The Gathering Home."
Letter to a Christian in Trouble.
The End is Near.
"What can I do for Jesus?"
"We see Jesus!"
Emblems of Christ.
"The Falling Asleep of our First-Born."
The Communion of the Holy Ghost.
The Child at Prayer.
The Song of a Tired Servant.
"Thou art in Me!"
At Jesus' Feet.
"Jesus Only!"
The Believer's Calling.
Redeemed by Blood.
Prayer.
The Exile's Vision.
The Suffering Servant.
Not Knowing.
"Glory dwelleth in Immanuel's Land."
"Talitha Cumi."
Little Annie in Canada.
The Song of the Street.
"And yet there is room."
O Sacred Union with the Perfect Mind.
The Great Teacher's Lesson.
Oh, to be Nothing!
Scatter Seeds of Kindness.
Renewed Consecration.
The Jubilee Year.
To-day.
"Every One."
Casting all on Jesus.

Leaflets for Letters.

By ANNA SHIPTON. Principally Selected from her Published Works.

Printed on Tinted Paper, and suitable for enclosing in letters.

6d. and 1s. per Packet of assorted Leaflets.

The Sheep-track.
He loveth me.
The Sympathy of Jesus.
The Starless Night.
The Conflict.
Isaac.
The Rightful King.
Unanswered Prayer.
The Place for Gold.
The Wayside Watcher.
Prayer.
Bread upon the Waters.
Barren Fig-tree.
The Mourning Soul.
Pathways.
Thoughts in Sickness.
Weep Not.
The Angel Messenger.
Parting Words.
Sitting at the Feet of Jesus.
The Sealed Book.
Praise.
Night Watches.
The Exceeding Riches.
The Shining Footprint.
Returning.
The Gift.
My Infirmity.
The Lark.
"Gone Before."
The Swelling of Jordan.
My Watch-Tower.
The Benediction.
God Knows Best.
The Stronghold.
The Heavenly Friend.
The Loving Cup.
The Dying Thief.
Who is Willing?
Sow Beside all Waters.
Without Money or Price.
The Fourth Watch.
The First Missionary.
A very present Help in Trouble.
Home, Light, Home!
Wait on the Lord.
The Lost Cherith.

"Choice Sayings" Leaflets, AND SMALL BOOKS.

By ROBERT C. CHAPMAN.

Extracted from "Choice Sayings." In assorted Packet, price 9d.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

Cares.
Character.
Chastisement.
Christ.
Christ and the Church.
Christian Communion.
Christian's Walk, The.
Christ's Example.
Church, The Calling of the.
Church Discipline.
Circumstances.
Coming of the Lord, The.
Communion with God.
Confession of Sin.
Conflict.
Conscience.
Cross of Christ, The.
Dangers and Temptations.
Day of Small Things, The.
Dealing with the Faults of others.
Deep and Silent Work.
Discipline.
Evil Passions.
Evil Speaking.
Experience.
Faith.
Faith, Trial of.
Forgiveness.
Form of Godliness, The.
Fruit.
God's Deeper Dealings.
God's Wise and Gracious Dealings.
Gospel, The.
Gratitude.
Happiness, Joy, Comfort, Peace.
Heart and its Deceitfulness, The.
Holiness.
Holy Spirit, The.
Human Nature.
Humility and Self-Abasement.
Justice and Judgment.
Law and Gospel.
Little Things.
Love.
Love of God, The.
Natural Man and his Religion, The.
New Creature, The.
Obedience.
Pleasing the Lord.
Poverty of Spirit.
Praise.
Prayer.
Prayer, Answers to.
Providences.
Salvation, Justification, Pardon.
Scriptures, The.
Secret Life and Daily Path, The.
Self-Knowledge and Self-Judgment.
Servants of the Lord, The.
Service.
Service to Christ.
Sin.
Sin of Believers, The.
Sound Man, A.
Spiritual Welfare.
Strength and Continuance.
Temptations and Falls.
Testimony, The Believer's.
Trial of the Servants of Christ.
Unbelief.
Watchfulness and Self-Denial.

Leaflets by John Bunyan.

SELECTED FROM THE WORKS OF JOHN BUNYAN.

In Packet of 300, assorted, 1s.; Packet of 96 assorted, on Tinted Paper, 6d.

Without Excuse.
Faith and its Effects.
The Book of God's Remembrance.
Known by their Fruits.
Art Thou born again?
Hope Thou in God.
Christ's Second Coming.
God's Way of Salvation.
God's Grace and Man's Sin.
The Law and the Sinner.
"Lord, Lord, open to us."
That I might know Him.
Depart.
Christ our All.
The Resurrection of the Wicked.
"To know the Love of Christ."

3s. 2d. per 1000, if ordered through a Bookseller.

For Gratuitous Distribution 4000 may be had for 10s., if ordered direct from the Publishers.

The Envelope Series of Small Books.

Specially designed for enclosing in Letters.

PENNY SERIES.

Each containing 32 pages, neatly printed on Tinted Paper, 1s. per dozen.

The White Fields of England. An Entreaty to Communicants. By Reginald Radcliffe.
A Real Christ. By C. H. Spurgeon.
Amusements. By Rev. Dr. Culross.
Tale-bearing. By Rev. R. W. Dale.
Salvation in Jesus from the Dominion of Sin. By Rev. A. M. W. Christopher.
Mission Address to District Visitors, &c. By T. M. Croome.
What Scripture says as to Indwelling Sin. By T. M. Croome.
The Living Christ. By the Author of the "Love we live by."
Why is God a Stranger in the Land? By Rev. R. H. Ireland.
Looking unto Jesus. By Theodore Monod.
"When ye Dwell in the Land." By S. A. Blackwood.
Battlements and Blood-guiltiness. By S. A. Blackwood.
The Present Distress. By S. A. Blackwood.
Counsels Concerning Marriage. Advice to Christians. By C. F. D
The Body in Relation to Christian Life and Service. By Rev. H. Sinclair Paterson, M.D.
Sin Self-Detective. By Rev. H. Sinclair Paterson, M.D.
Sound Mindedness. By Rev. H. Sinclair Paterson, M.D.
"Rejoice in thy Youth." By Rev. Dr. Culross.
Men of One Idea. By R. C. Morgan.

May also be had in two Assorted Packets of six books, 6d. each.

HALFPENNY SERIES.

Each containing 16 pages, neatly printed on Tinted Paper, 6d. per dozen.

By the Author of "How to enter into Rest."

How to enter into Rest.
The Government on His Shoulder.
I am with you alway.
Willing and Obedient.
A Desert Place.
"Is this You?"
Return!
Take!
Is it in Vain?

The Things that God uses. An Address to Christians. By D. L. Moody.
"Saved by His Life." By Rev. A. M. W. Christopher.
The Pledge: Reasons for Signing it. By Miss E. Gertrude Wilson. With Prefatory Note by Mrs. Hind Smith.
Trust in the Living Father. By Henry Varley.
The Startling Discovery. By Henry Varley.
Christ the Power of God. By L. J.
A Happy Marriage and a Happy Life.
Asking and Receiving. By R. C. Morgan.
Jonah and Paul. By L. D. F.
Job and his Friends. By R. C. Morgan.
Watchman, what of the Night? By G. Muller.
The Secret of Effectual Service to God. By George Muller.
Am I Alone?
"Be filled with the Spirit." By Mrs. Gordon.
The Starless Crown.
The Pilgrim Maiden. By the Author of "The Starless Crown."
The Love we Live by.
Look out for the Safest Path. By S. A. Blackwood.
"I never thought of it." By Mrs. Hind Smith.
Extract from Sermons. By Rev. C. Wadworth.

May also be had in two Assorted Packets of Twelve, 6d. each.

PRICE 2s. PER 100.

The Fear of Death. By D. L. Moody.
Texts for Anxious Inquirers. (A Card.) By D. L. Moody.
How Barzillai Served the King. By S. R. Geldard.
Spinning. By S. R. Geldard.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Booksellers.

SIXPENCE POST FREE.

LARGE EDITION, BOUND IN CLOTH, 1s. 3d.

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work

ON

CONSUMPTION

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

AND ALL

OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. May be had from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER-ROW, E.C., or from Mr. Congreve (the Author), COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

Eleventh Series of Weekly Cases.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

CASES of Miss M. C. and others at HASTINGS.

In the Autumn of last year I received particulars of this young lady's case (M. C.) from Miss M. NORTHEY, of 30, ROBERTSON-STREET, HASTINGS, with whom she then resided. The patient was of highly consumptive family, and naturally anxious. For six months there had been premonitory signs—acute pains in the side and chest, with burning heat, and palpitations, ticking sensation in the lungs, cough and expectoration at intervals. Had been under medical treatment, but was strongly advised to apply to me. She steadily persevered with the medicine.

Writing on 15th of April, from London, in a letter forwarded to me by Miss Northey, she says:—"I am pleased to tell you what great benefit I have derived from Mr. Congreve's treatment. The doctor who before examined me states there is a marvellous difference in the condition of my lungs, and he would be the last to influence me against the medicine." (The patient had had three large bottles, lasting her about four months.)

In a recent letter received from Miss Northey, writing me on behalf of two others, that lady says:

"It does one after another so much good that I am urged to help them by obtaining the medicine at a lower rate. To save life is such joy that I hope you will be willing to use me as the instrument. Mr. Morris will write you a letter of thanks, he is so overjoyed at the good done to Mrs. M."

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

In Neat White Enamelled Cover. Gilt edges. Sewn with silk cord.

Price Sixpence. Post free.

AN APPROPRIATE WEDDING GIFT.

BE LOVERS STILL.

Friendly Hints to a Bride and Bridegroom.

By Rev. G. PETTITT.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Price One Penny; 7s. 6d. per 100.

SOUL-WINNING:

QUALIFICATIONS FOR IT.

AN ADDRESS BY MAJOR WHITTLE.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Use Only
WRIGHT & BUTLER'S
PATENT PRIZE MEDAL
COOKING STOVES
PETROLEUM
THEY WILL DO ALL THE COOKING REQUIRED & BY A LARGE FAMILY EQUALLY AS WELL & MORE ECONOMICALLY THAN AN ORDINARY COAL FIRE
DO NOT BE DECEIVED BY UNTRIED NOVELTIES
ALL OUR STOVES ARE GUARANTEED TO BE THOROUGHLY EFFICIENT.
CAN BE HAD OF ALL IRONMONGERS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.
No 56.

GOLD MEDAL, CALCUTTA, 1884.

Fry's Cocoa

Guaranteed Pure. Extract

"There is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.

"Strictly pure."—W. W Stoddart, Analyst for Bristol

"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin

NINETEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

BOOKS FOR ENQUIRERS AND CONVERTS.

The Way of Life.

A Book for Enquirers. By Rev. ROBERT BOYD, D D. Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

"About fifteen years ago this little book attracted my notice. I read it with interest, and felt so much profited that I re-read it several times, and then circulated hundreds of copies among the soldiers during the American war. The number that then seemed blessed through reading the book has induced me to ask Messrs. Morgan & Scott to republish hoping it, that it may be the means of good in this country, as it has been in America." D L Moody

All About Jesus.

Thoughts and Reflections on the Person and Work of Christ. By ALEXANDER DICKSON. This book was printed at the express desire of Mr. D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s. 6d.

"The volume sets forth Jesus very much in Scriptural language, for we have counted over 1340 passages of Holy Writ, chastely and lovingly interwoven in the discourses. Throughout, Jesus is the subject of delightful meditation, affection, and adoration."
The Methodist.

Addresses to Young Men.

By Rev. DANIEL BAKER. With Preface by D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

"These discourses were designed to be of an awakening character. They were preached (in substance) in numerous revivals, and were blessed to the hopeful conversion of many precious souls, of whom some fifty or more have become ministers of the Gospel. May He who was pleased to bless these discourses when they came from the pulpit, bless them also now." AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s.

BIBLE READINGS ON THE GOSPEL OF MARK.

Suitable as a Handbook and Help for Bible Classes, Lay Preachers, and Evangelists.

BY

HENRY THORNE,

Travelling Secretary for the English National Committee of the Y.C.M.A.

With beautiful Map of Palestine, showing the localities referred to.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Tinted Paper, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 2s.

"BLACK, BUT COMELY;"

OR,

Glimpses of Aboriginal Life in Australia.

BY THE REV. J. B. GRIBBLE

(Founder of the Warangesda Mission).

All profits to be devoted to the Warangesda Training College.

"Its contents are of the most absorbing interest."
The Christian.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WITH LIFE-LIKE PORTRAIT.

Price 1s. per dozen; 7s. 6d. per 100.

THE LATE

CHARLES READE:

Author of "It is Never too Late to Mend," &c.

The Story of his Conversion.

BY HIS FRIEND AND PASTOR,

Rev. CHARLES GRAHAM,

Author of "Scriptural Holiness not Sinless Perfection," &c.

Reprinted from "The Christian."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ANNUAL SALE OF OVER HALF A MILLION.

Mc CALL'S

PAYSANDU OX TONGUES.

A DELICACY FOR BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, OR SUPPER,

TO BE HAD AT ALL GROCERS.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 12 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.

"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months, for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 764.] THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1884. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, ½d.

CONTENTS.

Modern Social Problems.
PROFESSOR REDFORD 5
Home Mission Sketches 6
Notes on Scripture 7
The Children's Portion 7
Religious Indifference in Germany.
PROFESSOR CHRISTLIEB 8
Poetry—"Behold the Man!" 8
Continental Notes 8
Among the Hampshire Hop-Pickers. 9
Perth Christian Conference 10
"In due season ye shall reap" 11
The Sailors' Rest at Hankow 11
Railway Work 11
Notes and Comments 12
Was it Right or Wrong? 13
Copenhagen Conference 14
The Mildmay Institutions.
MR. J. E. MATHIESON 16
Flowers for Invalids 16
Major Poole at Stafford 17
Gospel Progress in Germany 17
Poetry—At Poynings, Sussex 17
Orphan Homes of Scotland 18
Evangelistic Notes 18
Work in a Melbourne Suburb 19
Golden Lane Mission 19
The Coming London Mission 20

THE

CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

A Quarto Volume of Music & Words.

By IRA D. SANKEY and J. Mc GRANAHAN.

Tinted covers, 1*s.*; cloth limp, 1*s.* 6*d.*; cloth boards, 2*s.* 6*d.*

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions, when all the mists have rolled away."

Baptist Messenger.

This Volume, which is largely composed of NEW SACRED SONG DUETS, CHORUSES, and ANTHEMS, has been used alternately with "Songs and Solos," during the great London Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. Mr. Sankey and Mr. Mc Granahan are already well known by their hymns, which are sung all the world over; and the present collection, which is specially suitable for Gospel Choirs, will doubtless add to their reputation as true Gospel musicians.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE

GOSPEL MALE CHORUS BOOK.

A Collection of New Part Songs, Choruses and Anthems.

Written and Arranged expressly for Male Voices.

By JAMES Mc GRANAHAN.

Tinted Covers, 1*s.* 6*d.*; Cloth Limp, 2*s.*; Cloth Boards, 2*s.* 6*d.*

The Gospel Male Choir was, during the last five months of the London Mission, a special feature of the meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. There are, doubtless, many more who would wish to dedicate their voices to the service of the Master; and with the present volume (which is arranged for 1st and 2nd Tenor and 1st and 2nd Bass) in their hands, and the hearty co-operation of a few brethren like-minded, this wish can be easily gratified. Says Mr. Mc Granahan:—"Organize a quartet, a double quartet, or better still, a chorus of male voices; and prove the power for good in the harmony of male voices when consecrated to the glory and service of our divine Master."

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

C. F. CARPENTER'S HEALTH RESORT, BISHOP'S TEIGNTON, SOUTH DEVON.

Extract from Testimonials.

VICARAGE,
BISHOP'S TEIGNTON,
October 24, 1879.

As Vicar of the parish in which Mr. Carpenter's Health Resort is situated, I am able from personal knowledge to bear testimony to the high respectability and Christian character of its proprietor, and to the successful and satisfactory manner in which he has conducted the establishment from its commencement to the present time.

* * * * *

It gives me, therefore, much pleasure to recommend this establishment to all who are seeking either a pleasant and healthy place of séjour or a system of careful treatment for the recovery of health.

W. R. OGLE, M.A.

VIEW FROM THE TERRACE AND GROUNDS, LOOKING SOUTH.

Beautifully situated.

Sea and Moorland Air.

Boating and Fishing.

Delightful Drives.

Extensive Private Grounds.

Lawn Tennis Courts.

Home Comforts.

No Alcohol.

A FIRST-CLASS SUITE OF BATHS UNDER MEDICAL SUPERVISION. PROSPECTUS FORWARDED ON APPLICATION.

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION.

To Meet the Needs of the SICK POOR. "Preaching the Gospel and Healing."
Donations and clothing (new and old) thankfully received. Reports sent on application.
Hon. Director—Dr. G. SAUNDERS, C.B. Hon. Treasurer—Dr. W. R. BELL. 47, Endell-st., St. Giles'.

STAR VILLA ORPHAN HOME.

Will every reader kindly respond to the APPEAL in THE CHRISTIAN of August 28, and send as the Lord may enable them towards the needed help. Bankers—London and Provincial, Chatham. Hon. Superintendent, Mrs. WILLIS, Star Villa Orphan Home, Rainham-road, Chatham, Kent.

GREAT COLEMAN'S. — Gentlefolk of limited means needing change and rest, will find all advantages of a gentleman's country house. Drives given. For particulars apply to Mrs. GRIFFITH, 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, Paddington-green, is in urgent need of Funds. There are 25 beds now occupied, and the attendance of out patients is about 100 daily. This Hospital entirely depends on voluntary assistance. All parents, whether their children are in health or sickness must surely sympathise with this good work, for the sake of Him who loved little children. Treasurer, GEORGE HANBURY, 21, Portman-square, by whom any donations will be most thankfully received.

DAILY PRAYER MEETING at 12.0. at the House of Rest, Burlington-place, Eastbourne. Close to the Parade, near the Cavendish Hotel. Christian brethren and sisters re earnestly invited.

MISSION WORK AT NEATH, South Wales.—This Mission, conducted on strictly unsectarian principles, by two young men named Joshua, evangelists, has been the means of effecting great spiritual and temporal good, principally amongst the poorer classes, by means of open-air and tent services, &c. A plain but commodious Mission Hall is now in course of erection, and funds being urgently needed for its completion, an appeal is made for contributions to this good work.—Remittances may be made to the Treasurer, Mr John Rees, Currier, Neath; or to either of the following Trustees—Messrs. C. S. Price, Bryndewen, Neath; W. G. Hibbert, Neath F. J. Gibbins, Neath

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.—The Right Hon the Lord Mayor, M.P., Treasurer; J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman; Mr. Sheriff Clarence Smith, Hon. Secretary For ninety-nine years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 200 Christian men and women. Subscriptions and letters for Convalescent Homes re urgently needed. The Banking account is onsiderably overdrawn. The Committee will be hankful for the Society being remembered in the estamentary arrangements of the benevolent.—Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. B. H. GERRANS, Secretary.

ZENANA AND MEDICAL MISSION, School and Home, 58, St. George's-road, S.W. This Institution is undenominational. Christian ladies are admitted to be trained for Medical Mission Work in India, China, &c. The curriculum is for two years. All who have gone up for examination have passed and obtained diploma, as well as diploma in midwifery of Obstetrical Society. The year consists of three terms. The charge is fifty guineas per annum (including board, residence, and instruction fees), payable in advance, in three equal proportions of £17 10s. Ladies of limited means invited to apply, the committee sometimes having facilities for assisting such. Hon. Sec., Dr. GRIFFITH; Treasurer, G. J. GREEN, Esq., London and County Bank, Victoria-street, S.W.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College Avenue, Hackney.—The Annual Sale of Work will be held at the Home, on the 28th, 29th, and 30th of October. Articles for sale will be gratefully received by Miss S. RYE.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving a box of Flowers, Anonymous.

The Infant Day Nursery opens every morning at 7.30. Free Ragged Day Schools are conducted in the morning from 9 to 12, in the afternoon from 2 to 4.30. A Children's Service every Wednesday Evening at 6.30. Classes and Meetings for Elder Girls and Young Women, on Mondays and Thursdays at 8 p.m., on Sundays at 3 p.m., on Saturdays at 4 p.m. Mission Meeting for Inebriate Women on Thursdays at 3 p.m. Bible Classes for Men at 8 p.m., for Women at 8.30 on Fridays. Evangelistic Services on Sundays at 7 p.m.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

2000 FLORINS, OR 4000 SHILLINGS wanted.—The Incumbent of a poor parish, the united parish of Killeshkere and Maulagh, Virginia, Ireland, asks the Christian public to send him, or Messrs. Morgan & Scott, a small subscription to help him to rebuild a Schoolhouse, and repair the roof of the Parish Church, which have become dilapidated and injured by the hurricane of the 26th January last. About £100 has been collected, and as £203 must be collected for diocesan assessment, it is compulsory on us to appeal to the Christians outside our parish and country for monetary help.—Contributions will be gladly received and acknowledged by Rev. S. A. ROBINSON, M.A., Killenkere Rectory, Virginia, Co. Cavan, Ireland; or by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C.

BETHSHAN.—Faith Healing Home. 161, Islington, Liverpool. For particulars apply to Miss GIBBS.

GEE-STREET Christian Mission and Ragged School, Goswell-road, earnestly solicits donations to continue the good work of preaching, teaching the Gospel, temperance, and relieving deserving poor.—Bankers, BARCLAY & Co, 54, Lombard-street; Treasurer, ROBERT BAXTER, Esq., 6, Victoria-street, Westminster; Hon. Secretary, VIEWEG, 82, Wood-street, Cheapside.

BARBICAN EAST CENTRAL MISSION to the Jews.—A Sale of Useful and Fancy Articles will (D.V.) be held at Mr. and Mrs. Warschawski's house, 16, Farleigh-road, Stoke Newington, N., on Wednesday and Thursday, October 8 and 9, 1884. Open from 12 o'clock till 9 each day. The articles have been made and sent by kind friends, and are to be sold for the support of a Bible Woman in connection with the growing work. Saleable articles will still be gratefully received.

FAITH-HEALING Meetings, conducted by the Rev. JOHN ALLEN, Trinity Church, Triangle, Hackney, London, E. Sundays, 3 p.m. Mondays, 7 p.m., addresses and testimonies; Tuesdays, 11.30 a.m., anointing service. Ranelagh Rooms, Ranelagh-road, Paddington, Fridays at 7 p.m. Royal Oak-station.

Educational.

MORAVIAN EDUCATION.—Fulneck, near Leeds. Established 1750. Application to be made to Miss SHAWE for the Girls' School, and to Rev. W. T. TITTERINGTON for the Boys' School.

41, LEWISHAM HIGH-ROAD, S.E.—Mrs. and the Misses WILLMOT receive day pupils, and a few boarders. A thorough English education; usual accomplishments. Masters. Motherly care and Christian training.

D'URBAN HOUSE SCHOOL, BLACKHEATH.—This old-established School for the sons of Gentlemen is conducted by a Lady, assisted by trained governesses and qualified masters. Highest references.—Address the PRINCIPAL.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Boys, The Woodlands, Hitchin. Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Hitchin may be reached within an hour from King's Cross Station.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, Belgrave-place. Principals, Mrs. and Miss WILKIN.—High-class education for Girls. Pupils prepared for the Royal Academy (Music) and University Examinations. Healthy situation. Home comforts.—Prospectus and references on application.

LADIES' COLLEGE, Ilfracombe.—Principal, Mrs. HEALE. Thorough education, with careful individual Christian training. Charges moderate. Situation unsurpassed for health. Splendid sea and land views. Pupils accompanied to and from London.

OAK HOUSE SCHOOL, Bexleyheath, Kent (12 miles from London). Principal—GEORGE E. OXLEY, M.A., assisted by first-class Masters (Graduates). A thorough education, with every comfort and careful supervision. Five acres of meadow land for cricket, football, &c. Prospectuses on application. Next term will commence on September 10.

DIEZ-ON-THE-LAHN, near Ems.—Fräulein von Griesheim receives a few young Ladies. High-class finishing education. Christian training. Home comforts. Liberal table. Governess-pupil wanted. Prospectus and references on application.

ALBURY HEATH, near Guildford.—Miss BAKER receives six Young Ladies. Home comforts. Excellent education. Certificated governesses. Visiting professors. Healthy and beautiful situation. Indian children received. Highest testimonials. Pupil teacher required, premium £20.

BEDFORD. — Melrose House. — Principals, the Misses RAY, daughters of the late Rev. R. Ray. Pupils received for high-class education and board. Personal supervision, with Christian training and home comforts. Preparation for Cambridge and other Local Examinations when desired. The autumn term will begin (D.V.), on Friday, September 19.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Gentlemen's Daughters.—Miss PENN, and Fräulein ESSER receive twenty-five boarders. Efficient staff of professors. Christian influence. Home comforts. Large house and garden. Languages and music specialities. Fees from date of entrance.

Grove House, Upper Clapton, London, N.

ROTHESAY HOUSE, Alum Chine, Bournemouth.—Miss COLE (certificated in London University Examinations for Women), having for some years successfully conducted a large school for girls, now receives a few Pupils in her own home. Healthy position near sea. Thorough education, combined with comforts of refined Christian home. Lady boarder received.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Girls, conducted by the Misses ROBINSON, Rutland House, Blundellsands. A pleasant, healthy locality, on the coast between Southport and Liverpool. Excellent references. Moderate terms.

BRIGHTON, Inkermann House, Lansdowne-place.—Preparatory Boarding School for Boys, conducted by the Misses ASHBY. Very near the sea and fields. 40 or 45 guineas per annum. A visiting master.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE for Young Ladies, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon, and CLARENDON HOUSE, Topsham (for delicate girls requiring sea-air) Education of the highest order. Professors, English and foreign certificated governesses. Pupils successfully passed Edinburgh, Oxford, Trinity College, College of Preceptors. Honours, and special certificates. The Principal's aim is to secure a training that will ensure spiritual well-being; she engages as teachers ladies of decided piety only. Numerous references to parents in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and abroad. Pupils accompanied to and from London (journey of four hours). The term commences (D.V.) September 19.

LONDON.—First-class Education for the daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors; their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles.—DELTA, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

HIGHBURY HOUSE, St. Leonards-on-Sea. Boys prepared for Commerce, Public Schools, or the Universities. Upper, Middle, and Preparatory Departments. Seven resident Masters. The Junior Division taught by Ladies. Delicate boys requiring a mild climate receive every kindness and constant care.—For Prospectus, apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal. The Autumn Term will commence Sept. 20.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for Little Boys, near Brighton. Locality healthy. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Separate beds. Visiting masters. Twenty guineas. Sisters of the boys received at a distinct establishment.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Hamilton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE,
Principal: Dr. CRANAGE.
The school will re-open (D.V.) Thursday, Sept. 25.

SOUTHPORT.—First-class Girls' School. Conducted by members of the Society of Friends. Special educational advantages. Masters and Lecturers of acknowledged merit. Watchful care and home comforts. Situation particularly open and healthy.—Mrs. WALLIS, Brighthelmston, Birkdale, Southport.

MORLEY COLLEGE for Young Ladies.—Healthy neighbourhood. Careful training and special advantages for the study of languages, music, and painting. Next term will (D.V.) commence 18th September, when a Pupil Teacher will be required. For prospectus and references address the Misses TURNE & LYNN, 17, Wickham-road, Brockley, S.E.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen, Fair View, 89, Cazenove-road, Stamford-hill, London, N.—Miss BROWN and Miss GOOD (who for ten years conducted Mrs. Pennefather's Educational Institute at Clapton House) receive about 20 Resident Pupils. First-class education, with careful Christian training, and home comforts. Preparation for the University Examinations. Children from India and the Colonies received, and lovingly cared for. References kindly permitted to Mrs. Pennefather, J. E. Mathieson, Esq., and others. Prospectuses on application.

EDUCATION. — There are two vacancies in a happy home, with educational advantages, for two young Ladies, where their health, happiness, and progress are thoroughly studied by a Lady who has been established 25 years.—C. B., 45, Boundary-road, N.W.

VACANCIES will occur September 29, in an old-established School, in which Young Ladies have a thorough education, based upon Gospel principles, combined with the advantages of a happy home. Holidays only twice a year: Christmas and Midsummer. Terms moderate. Miss BIRCH, Florence House, Baschurch, Salop.

BONN. — Superior Home for a youth needing stay in Germany for purpose of study, in an excellent German family.—Madame CHRISTIE, Hill House, Belstead, Ipswich, will gladly give every information.

WIESBADEN.—High-class Ladies' School.—Fräulein BEYERHAUS, the Principal, is now in England, and will escort Pupils on the 22nd September.—For interview or prospectus address, THEOBALD'S, Waltham-cross, London, N.; or 12, Suffolk-terrace, Bournemouth.

36, AVENUE ET PAU-DES-PRINCES, près Paris.—Mdlle. VIENOT, dont la pension, uniquement Protestante et Evangélique, est très recommandée par Messieurs les pasteurs Bersecl et Th. Monod, Sera à Londres du 15 au 18 Septembre.—S'adresser au Rév. DU FONTET DE LA HARPE, French Parsonage, Bayswater.

TWO OR THREE Indian or Orphan Children would receive home comforts and careful Christian training in a small select School in South Devon, on moderate terms. PRINCIPAL, Milton House, Plympton.

A LADY, living in France, wishes to hear of one or two children to be educated with her only daughter. Resident governess and great advantages.
G. R., 159, Piccadilly, London.

TWENTY-ONE GUINEAS.—Boys received to Board and Educate for 21 guineas, between the ages of five and twelve years. Especially suitable for delicate children.—Please address COUNTRY, at Messrs. J. Boulton & Co., 4, Worship-street, Finsbury.

AN EXPERIENCED, decided Christian Nursery Governess (age 30 to 35) wanted, for four young children, who can thoroughly teach the ordinary branches of an English education, French, music. Must be fond of children and a good manager. Good needlework. Salary £20 to £25. Nursemaid kept. Good testimonials and references, and full particulars required.—A. A., Mr. Earl, Stationer, 5, Victoria-grove, Kensington, W.

GOVERNESS-PUPIL required, in high-class School for Girls. All accomplishments. Only twelve boarders received. Premium £25.—J. M., 41, Shepherd's Bush-road, West Kensington, London, W.

GOVERNESS PUPIL wanted in a high-class School. Preparation for University Examinations. Particular attention given to accomplishments. Premium required.
SIGMA, Messrs. Boulton's, 4, Worship-street, E.C.

A YOUNG LADY wanted (about 14) as Articled Pupil, to give one hour's assistance per day. Premium, including accomplishments, 18 guineas. Good references.
PRINCIPAL, Clifford, Chertsey-road, Clifton.

WANTED IN JAVA, for a little girl of 5 years, a Nursery Governess. Must be a sincere Christian and abstainer, good needlewoman.—For references, apply to Mrs. WILLINK, Heemstede, near Haarlem, Holland.

MRS. TATE, widow of a medical man, offers a happy home to children whose parents are abroad, and who need motherly care and education; or to any attending the High School. References:—Dr. Kidd, Col. Brooke, and others.—For terms, &c., address, Leigh's Villa, Bennett-park, Blackheath, London, S.E.

GOVERNESS.—Experienced and decided Christian wishes re-engagement to children under 12. Acquirements, English, French, music, drawing, and advanced arithmetic. Good references.
K. L. C., Rock Villa, Newton Abbot, Devon.

LADY (25) wishes for an engagement as Governess in a quiet family, or Assistant in a School; south coast (Torquay or Bournemouth preferred). Thorough musician. Experienced Church of England. Comfortable home more an object than salary. Good references.
S. N. S., 17, Plymouth-grove, Manchester.

GOVERNESS. — Re-engagement desired by a Young Lady, late Student of Queen's College, London. Acquirements, English, French, elementary Latin, music, painting. Experienced. Good testimonials.
A. B., Bockleton, Bromley, Kent.

DAILY GOVERNESS.—A Lady desires re-engagement. Thorough English, French, German, acquired by nearly two years' residence in Germany, drawing, and painting in water-colours and oils, music, and needlework. Salary £40 to £50.
A. B., Fisher's Library, Clapham, S.W.

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS wanted. — Decided Christian. Conversational French and German, music, Latin, good English, model drawing. Recommendation for good teaching ability necessary.—Mrs. WHITE, 85th Regt., Cambridge Barracks, Woolwich.

A CERTIFICATED, experienced Lady (26) teaches thorough English, advanced arithmetic, French, music, singing, drawing, painting, and needlework. Is accustomed to parish work.—H. R., Farmer's Library, Edwardes-terrace, Kensington, W.

A GERMAN LADY of long experience and best references (the last of seven years) wants re-engagement at once, or in a few months. Teaches, thoroughly, German, French, English, &c. Able to educate and keep house. Lowest salary £50.—FRÄULEIN, Stansfield House, Leyland-road, Lee, S.E.

AN EXPERIENCED RESIDENT GOVERNESS desires a re-engagement. Thorough English, German, French, Italian, music, and drawing. £100. No agents.—H. B., 1, Egbert-villas, Parchmore-road, New Thornton Heath, Croydon.

AS NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Wanted, by a young person, in a respectable family. Age 18. Has passed Cambridge Senior Examination.—For references and particulars address, J. H. R., 21, Rant-road, Hanover-park, Peckham, London.

NURSERY GOVERNESS or Useful Help.—Wanted, a situation, by a young person accustomed to the care and tuition of children, including music.
Norfolk House, Kew-road, Richmond, Surrey.

YOUNG LADY, Companion or Nursery Governess, wishes situation. Salary not essential. Chief object comfortable home. Would make herself generally useful. Highest references.
A. HAMILTON, 27, Goodge-street, W.

WANTED AT ONCE, a Master and Mistress, of decided Evangelical principles, for a mixed School, infants and elder children, in a small country town in Gloucestershire.
T. B. B., Salperton Park, Cheltenham.

FRENCH TUTOR, well qualified and highly recommended, offers for school or family, at a small remuneration.
Rev. M. GALLIENNE, Alderney, Channel Islands.

SOUTHDENE, Ramsgate.—Splendidly situated Home for delicate children requiring sea and country air, combined with educational advantages. Under the personal supervision of experienced Christian Lady. Prospectus on application. Terms moderate.

GOVERNESS. — Experienced and decided Christian wishes re-engagement. Charge of motherless children valued. English, French, music. Highest testimonials. Recommended by Rev. Wm. Haslam.—BETA, Mr. Howard's, Albion Printing Office, Upper Sydenham.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

SCRIPTURE READER desires re-engagement the end of this present month. Ten years' experience in Mission work. Organist and choirmaster, first-rate tenor voice. Highest references.—LAY READER, 20, Rosefield-street, Leamington, Warwickshire.

WANTED, by an earnest Christian young man (married), employment as Scripture Reader, or the charge of a Mission. Accustomed to public speaking. Good references.
HORACE HUNT, 15, Lett-road, Stratford, E.

SECRETARY OR ACCOUNTANT.—A Christian Gentleman desires full or partial employment as above. Verbatim shorthand writer, and well qualified for any position of trust.—P. M., 34, Perth-road, Stroud-green-road, London, N.

YOUNG MAN (27) seeks employment, any sphere Christian service. Experience in visiting, speaking to anxious inquirers, &c. Or would be glad of commercial employment, having eleven years' experience in City. Remainder of time could be devoted as above. No objection mission-hall keeper.—EBENEZER, 963, Sell's Advertising Offices, 167, Fleet-street.

A CLERGYMAN would be glad to hear of a situation for a Christian Young Man, as indoor Servant, or valet.
M. A., 3, Marlboro'-villas, Wealdstone, Harrow.

A GENTLEMAN, over middle-age, seeks an engagement. Has been in the wine trade; but prefers occupation not associated with it. Good accountant. A Christian.
P. L. T., 12, Jersey-place, Cheltenham.

A WELL-EDUCATED Christian married man, age 36, desires Secretaryship to a Christian institution, or any position of trust. High-class testimonials, references.—SECRETARY, 7, Kobe-terrace, Mutley, Plymouth.

FIRST FOOTMAN, VALET, or Indoor Servant where a boy is kept. Age 22, height 5ft. 10in. Good characters. Christian and abstainer.
A. B. C., 14, Sloane-terrace, London, S.W.

YOUNG MAN wants situation, daily. Frame maker, gilder, picture restorer; some knowledge electric engineering. Recommended.
J. P., Bails-grove Dairy, Goldhawk-road, W.

A CHRISTIAN WORKER requires evening engagements. Free after 4 p.m. Secretarial, Editorial, Choral, Accountancy, or organising work preferred. References given.
R. C., 16, Sydenham-park, S.E.

A LADY WISHES to recommend a Young Man as Second Footman. Age 20. Height 5 ft. 6 in.
W. H. W., Uffington House, Stamford.

BIBLE or Mission Work. — A Lady with 18 years' experience, desires an engagement, or to act as Matron in a Cottage Convalescen Home.
W., 1, Richmond-grove, Canonbury, N.

NO SALARY.—A domesticated Lady desires the position of Housekeeper, or Useful Companion to a lady.
L. R., 14, Sterne-street, Shepherd's Bush.

A LADY WISHES to recommend as Matron in a school, or Housekeeper to a single lady or gentleman, an experienced person, of good manners and appearance. Age about 30. Disengaged at once.—M. P., care of Miss Sieley, Rampant Horse-street, Norwich.

CAN ANY CHRISTIAN friend help a Christian man to a situation, as indoor servant, waiter, or any place of trust, where he could make himself useful? Town or country. Age 42. Not tall. Total abstainer. Good English and foreign references.—CHARLES BISHOP, Shaftesbury House, Y.M.C.A., Margate.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER, or Companion.—Re-engagement desired, by a Lady of experience (45). Good, careful manager. Educated. Travelled. Refined home sought. Good companion.—Mrs. C., Smith's Library, Crouch-end Station.

COMPANION AND AMANUENSIS.—Engagement wanted, by young lady willing to make herself useful in any way not menial. Good musician. Cheerful. Would not object to travel.—Apply, by letter, N. R G., care of A. Woodward, 8, Crown-terrace, Upper Holloway, N.

A LADY will be glad to recommend a respectable, trustworthy, God-fearing woman as Manager of Coffee Rooms or Workman's Rest in country or country town. Husband able to take part and be generally useful. Can be ready immediately.—Full particulars given by letter, E. A. N., Church House, Weston Turville, Tring, Bucks.

WANTED, a situation as good Plain Cook. Age 22. Excellent character from last situation. Christian privileges much valued.
EDITH DUNK, Benover, Yalding, Kent.

A LADY seeks a situation in a Christian home for a lad, 14. Accustomed to clean boots, &c., and look after pony and trap.
Miss WATTS, Wetherden, Haughley, Suffolk.

USEFUL COMPANION to Single Lady.—Well educated. Willing to travel and help in Christian work. Baptist. Total abstainer. Excellent references.
Y., Mr. Hunter, 15, Bank-street, Edinburgh.

AS COMPANION to an elderly Lady or an Invalid.—A Clergyman's daughter wishes to make herself useful. Good references.—H., Mr. Bell, 21, Porchester-road or Terrace, Bayswater.

A YOUNG WIDOW desires an engagement as Companion to a Lady. Would have no objection to travel.—H., 4, Percy-terrace, King's-road, East Sheen, S.W.

YOUNG LADY'S MAID.—Useful girl of 17. Excellent needlewoman. Strongly recommended by her present mistress.
Miss LOWDELL, 2, St. Michael's-place, Brighton.

A GENTLEMAN'S FAMILY desire to recommend a respectable, middle-aged woman as personal Attendant to a lady, her services being no longer required in consequence of the death of her late mistress.—Address, by letter only, E. P., Wilton House, Chepstow-rise, Croydon.

A LADY WISHES to recommend for some position of trust a Maid (age 36) who has been in her family for 14 years.
Mrs. SHANN, Petergate, York.

A LADY wishes to hear of a quiet situation, as Attendant upon elderly lady, and to do light housework, for a respectable person, whom she has known for many years, and can strongly recommend.
MRS. O'MALLEY, Holbrook Rectory, Ipswich.

A LADY DESIRES to recommend a young Lady as Companion and Housekeeper in a Christian home. Musical, bright disposition, good education.—Apply, stating salary, L. D., 86, Richmond-road, Dalston.

WILL ANY LADY take as Mother's Help or General Servant, a superior young woman who has been led astray, but now strives to retrieve the past? Clever needlewoman and plain cook. She wishes to have her little girl of 5 years old with her. Very small salary. Country preferred. Full particulars and references given.—Apply by letter, to K. W., Friend's Library, 77, Western-road, Brighton.

CHURCHES. — Rev. Thomas R. Donaldson, Congregational Minister, is open to supply vacant pulpits with a view, or to conduct Evangelistic Services in our country churches during the winter.—Ross, Hereford.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

SUB-MATRON wanted, for Home for Fallen Women. Must bear undoubted Christian character. Salary £30.—Apply, with copies of testimonials and satisfactory references, to Mr. FORBES MONCRIEFF, 15, Hill-street, Edinburgh.

COUNTRY SURGEON wants Indoor Pupil for the usual term, saves year in London. In sight of private, club, union, sanitary practice. Pony. Terms moderate.
SURGEON, Longtown, Abergavenny.

AN APPRENTICE wanted to the Millinery and Dressmaking for one year. Comfortable Christian home. Premium £30.
Mrs. MARSHALL, 9, Norfolk-street, Sunderland.

FOOTMAN WANTED. — The Advertiser will be obliged to any Lady recommending a thoroughly steady, active young man.—F., Howard's Printing Office, Sydenham, S.E.

CAN ANY ONE recommend me a thoroughly trustworthy and honest married couple without children? Man out of livery, to make himself generally useful, both indoor and in small garden and also drawing bath-chair. Wife as plain cook. Housemaid kept.—Z. A., at C. H. May & Co., 78, Gracechurch-street.

MATRON wanted, for Kitchen Department of a Boys' Home thirty miles from London. Good premises, 140 boys, 9 resident officers. Must understand plain cooking, have good health, and be competent to train and control boys in kitchen and housework. As it is a position in which good influence over boys must be exerted, a Christian and total abstainer is desired. Salary £25.—Apply, stating age, qualifications, previous employment, whether widow or otherwise, and enclosing copies of testimonials, addressed
A. H. C., Messrs. Street & Co., 30, Cornhill.

ATTENDANT, Cook, Parlour, and Housemaids.—Wanted in a small family at Folkestone, an ATTENDANT on an elderly Lady (to sleep in her room), to take charge of the house and f amily linen, and do needlework; must be a sensible and kind person. Also a good Plain COOK (no kitchen-maid kept). Also a PARLOUR-MAID. Also a HOUSEMAID, strong and in good health.—Apply, stating ages, to B., 24, Manor-road, Folkestone.

CAN ANY CLERGYMAN recommend to a young lady going out to the Cape early in October to reside there, a thoroughly respectable, middle-aged woman, who can cook and make herself generally useful? Liberal wages given.
Miss SMITH, Holmwood, Weston-super-Mare.

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted in a Gentleman's family, in Sussex. Wages £20. Age between 30 and 40 preferred. Must undertake a small dairy, and take pleasure in economy. Also a good HOUSE-PARLOUR-MAID. Wages £18 to £17.
Mrs. O., Yeldersley Hall, Derby.

A CHRISTIAN young man wanted, as Traveller. No former experience necessary. Good references. Abstainer. One with artistic tastes preferred. Photos returned. Salary and commission.
Artistic Offices, 3, Carthusian-street, E.C.

A THOROUGH HOUSE and Parlour-maid, not under 24 years of age wanted by a single Lady. Evangelical Churchwoman and abstainer preferred. Liberal wages to a competent person.—Miss LEWIS, Northendene, Streatham Common, London, S.W.

TWO EARNEST CHRISTIAN SERVANTS required. Good Cook and thorough Housemaid; Parlour-maid. Three in family, living in Upper Norwood.—Mrs. HIGSON, Wallsend Cottage, Bonchurch, Isle of Wight.

A YOUNG LADY wanted, to take charge of and teach four little children, youngest 3½ years. Must be a good needlewoma. Comfortable home.—Address, with all particulars, Mrs. MORRIS, 1, Carlton-terrace, Hoe-street, Walthamstow.

CHRISTIAN LADY, residing in Glasgow, may have a few hours weekly usefully occupied. Must be accurate, of business habits, ready writer. References required.
Miss LEE, 10, West Garden-street, Glasgow.

A DOMESTICATED, useful person wanted, who can assist in bookkeeping.
C. E., 30, Warwick-street, Worthing, Sussex.

A RESPECTABLE Young Woman wanted, to attend an invalid Lady; to take part in night attendance. State wages.
J. S., Ardcrony, Leatherhead, Surrey.

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID (good) wanted, in a Christian officer's family. Must be strong, active, and have good characters.—Apply by letter to D. J., Shorncliffe House, Sandgate, Kent.

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted, at Michaelmas. Small family; two other servants kept.—Apply, stating wages and other particulars, to Mrs. SPELMAN, South Dene Lodge, Great Yarmouth.

NURSE WANTED.—The Advertiser will be obliged to any lady who can recommend a conscientious, pleasant person, to take charge of two children, aged two and three.
N., Howard's Printing Office, Sydenham, S.E.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted 26th Sept. Wages £18 to £20.—Mrs. SINCLAIR PATERSON, 20, Bassett-road, Ladbroke Grove-road, Notting-hill.

REQUIRED, October 3rd, good Plain Cook, also House-Parlourmaid, in small family. Ages 20 to 25. Good personal characters indispensable. Abstainers preferred.
M., Morley's, London-road, Forest-hill, S.W.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted. Must be clean and neat. Wages £18, all found except beer.—78, King Edward's-road, South Hackney.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a thorough good plain Christian Cook, also an experienced House and Parlour-maid, for small family at Bournemouth, about 20th October? Abstainers, and from country, preferred. Good wages.
Mrs. RANDELL, 38, Leinster-square, Bayswater.

COOK WANTED, in a small quiet family, to assist in housework. Christian and abstainer. Another servant kept. Wages £16 to £18.—Apply, personally or by letter, to Mrs. S., Inverewe, North Finchley, N.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, not under 30. Must have good personal character, and understand dairy work. Also HOUSE-MAID, not under 20, clean and industrious.—Apply, stating all particulars, to Miss BALDERSON, Corner Hall, Hemel Hempstead, Herts.

WANTED FOR SEPT. 27, a good General Servant. Five in family. No children. Age 20 to 25.—Mrs. K., 25, Burghly-road, Highgate-road, N.W.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, of good character, in small Christian family. Age from 16 to 20. Clean, quick, industrious, early riser. Wages £8 to commence.
Mrs. C., 85, Mansel-street, Swansea.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, for large town, Somersetshire. Three in family. A quiet, Christian home offered, with good wages, to a really good servant.
Apply first to 12, Brownswood-road, Highbury.

A TRUSTWORTHY General Servant wanted, who understands plain cooking, for a clergyman's widow and daughter, who are taking a small house at Folkestone.—Mrs. HAMBLETON, St. Martin's Rectory, Birmingham.

HOUSEMAID (Under) wanted.—The Advertiser will be obliged to any lady who can recommend an active, cleanly young woman.
H., Howard's Printing Office, Sydenham, S.E.

CAN ANY CLERGYMAN or Lady recommend an orphan girl about 12, good parentage but none in distress. A Lady would take and train to assist her in housework. Good Christian home. No wages, but clothed. Good tempered.—ELMA, Mrs. Kent, 3, Bank-buildings, Shanklin, Isle of Wight.

CARETAKERS.—Man and Wife. Clergyman's house to Let on Commission, rent free. Some small services required for family, also some for young married couple.
REV., Bails Grove Dairy, Goldhawk-road, W.

A CONSCIENTIOUS Christian person wanted to assist in a Preventive Home, chiefly in the laundry, under two Matrons.
MRS. WALKER, 4, Spencer's Belle Vue, Bath.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted. Only two Ladies in family. About 30 years of age. Religious privileges. Wages £20, all found. No one with a short character need apply.—All answers to M. D. E., Bull & Son, Surbiton, Surrey.

EXPERIENCED ENGLISH NURSE wanted, Protestant, between 28 and 30 years of age, to Lady's first baby. Must be of cheerful disposition and an excellent needlewoman.—References must be sent with application to Baronne VAN ASBECK, Eusebius Singel 59, Arnhem, Holland.

AGENTS (male and female) required throughout England, Scotland, and Ireland to sell our pure Teas on commission varying from 7d. per lb. Our terms are the most liberal in the trade, enabling Agents to earn £2 weekly. Payment only required after sale. Special terms for cash. Free delivery. Write for samples (gratis) to the United Tea Growers' Association, 11½, Union court, E.C.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.

40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

This First-class Private Hotel is highly recommended by readers of THE CHRISTIAN from all parts of the world. The Bishop of Algoma writes: "The comfort, perfect order, and attendance at PERCY'S Hotel render it all that can be desired as a central place of sojourn in this great city." Beds from 1s. 6d. Tea, 1s. 3d. Tariff on application.

LONDON.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL,

97, 99, 101, 103, Southampton-row, Russell-sq. Highly recommended by Rev. John Cairns, D.D. Rev. Forbes E. Winslow, M.A., Rev. Canon Hopkins, B.D., Frederick Sherlock, Esq., Mrs. E. S. Ellis, and numerous readers of The Christian. Hot and cold baths. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Printed Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH

VISITORS TO LONDON will find a Christian home at Taverner's Temperance Hotel, 35 & 36, Hunter-street, Judd-street, Euston-road. Five minutes from G. N., Mid., and N. W Railways. Patronised by ministers and Christians of all denominations.

HUTCHINSON'S PRIVATE HOTEL, 24, Guilford-street, Russell-square, the most central position for all parts of London. Extensive patronised and strongly recommended. Home comforts. Terms moderate.

LONDON. — Mrs. GREATLEY'S Christian Boarding House is highly recommended for comfort, economy, and being convenient to all parts. References kindly permitted to the Rev. Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON. Terms from 2s. 6d. bed and breakfast.
17, Tyndale-place, Upper-street, Islington.

SOUTHSEA. — Solent House Boarding Establishment, South Parade. Large, well-furnished House, in the best position, facing sea and the Isle of Wight. Moderate winter terms.—The Misses BAKER.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Clairville, Chine-road.—Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. JACKSON. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

BRIGHTON.—Sussex House Boarding Establishment, pleasantly situated in the Old Steine, having a sea view, and the beautiful Steine Gardens in front. Near to Pavilion, Aquarium, and piers. Liberal table, with every home comfort.—Mr. & Mrs. BOX, 58, Old Steine.

HASTINGS NEW HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT.—Now open. Charming residence for change and rest. An unequalled health resort. Purest air. Turkish baths, with sea-water plunge. Scientific baths of every description, with skilled attendants. One and a half hours from London. Moderate charges.
Apply to the SECRETARY.

HASTINGS, Shaftesbury Hotel.—This first-class Hotel or Boarding House, formerly a gentleman's mansion, has been re-decorated and handsomely furnished throughout, and is opened for the reception of Ladies and Gentlemen. Terms exceedingly moderate, from 6s. 6d. per day, or £2 2s. per week.
Miss ABLEWHITE, Manageress.

UPPER NORWOOD.—Comfortable Board and Residence in Christian gentleman's family. Every home comfort. Good position near Evangelical church and chapels.—OAKDENE, Vermont-road, Central Hill, Upper Norwood, S.E.

MENTONE.—Home for Invalid Ladies of limited means. Open from the 1st November.—Application must be made to Mrs. DUDGEON, 30, Lancaster-gate, Hyde-park, London

WORTHING HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS. Close to sea. Arrangements made for winter residence. Terms from one to two guineas.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

CANONBURY.—To be Let or Sold, a most conveniently arranged Villa, semi-detached, and pleasantly situated. Containing four bed-rooms, three sitting-rooms, and usual domestic offices. Greenhouse, outhouse, and well matured garden. Within five minutes walk of Conference Hall. Rent £60. Price £800. Lease 62 years. Ground rent. No extras. Apply on the premises, 9, St. Paul's-road.

Continued on page 23.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND,

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President, The Rt. Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

OFFICES:
27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAS. KEARNEY WHITE, or by the Proprietors of this paper.

NOTE.—Subscriptions or Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

By HECTOR BETTEX. Translated by JOHN CHURCHILL

I. The Kingdom will be established by the Glorious and personal Coming of the Lord.
II. The Kingdom in the Present Dispensation as seen in the Seven Parables of Matthew xiii.
III. The Coming of the Lord, first to receive His Church, then to establish His Kingdom.
IV. Antichrist and his Destruction by the Lord, when He comes to establish His Kingdom.

London: JAMES E. HAWKINS, 36 Baker-street.

MR. MOODY'S MOTTO.

On Card, 7½ by 4½ inches, with Ribbon for hanging up. One Shilling the dozen, post free. The same words on a small Floral Card, Sixpence per dozen, post free.

JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, MILDMAY PARK, LONDON, N.

JUST PUBLISHED.
Tinted Paper, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 2s.

"BLACK, BUT COMELY;"
OR,
Glimpses of Aboriginal Life in Australia.

BY THE REV. J. B. GRIBBLE
(Founder of the Warangesda Mission).

All profits to be devoted to the Warangesda Training College.

"Its contents are of the most absorbing interest.'
The Christian.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

READY 1st OCTOBER, No. 1 OF

MORGAN & SCOTT'S COMPLETE EDITION OF

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE

TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

ILLUSTRATED WITH

THE FOLLOWING EXQUISITE STEEL PLATE ENGRAVINGS:

SAMARIA.	HEBRON.
ELISHA'S FOUNTAIN, JERICHO.	JERUSALEM FROM THE SOUTH.
REPHIDIM.	SHECHEM—SYCHAR.
DAMASCUS.	TIBERIAS.
MOUNT TABOR.	BETHANY.
TYRE.	ATHENS.

AND SIX BEAUTIFULLY COLOURED MAPS.

"I have never seen any engravings equal to these for the purposes of Biblical Illustration. True to existing nature, exact in outline, beautiful in execution, they leave nothing to be desired. Knowing the country so well, I am pleased to have my recollections refreshed by the minuteness of detail, in which engravings got up for illustration so frequently fall short."—Rev. H. B. TRISTRAM, LL.D., Canon of Durham, Author of "The Land of Israel," "Bible Places," &c., &c.

"I have examined with care the views for Biblical Illustration. . . . The engravings are very beautiful. In clearness, accuracy, and general effect, they surpass, I think, any I have seen. The places represented are all familiar to me; and I have been particularly struck by the fidelity with which your artist has reproduced Frith's admirable photographs. The views of Hebron, Shechem, Tabor, Tiberias, and Jerusalem, could scarcely be surpassed. . . . It would mark a new era in Biblical Illustration if the work were extended to all the scenes of Bible incidents; and if, instead of fancy pictures, which only misrepresent the East, engravings from photographs were introduced."—Rev. J. L. PORTER, D.D., Professor of Biblical Criticism, Author of "The Giant Cities of Bashan," and "Syria's Holy Places," &c., &c.

TO BE COMPLETED IN 18 MONTHLY PARTS, PRICE SIXPENCE EACH.

May also be had Complete in One Volume. Library Edition, Handsomely Bound, 10s. 6d.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT,

AND MAY BE ORDERED OF ANY BOOKSELLER.

"This is a powerful, brilliant, and thrilling work. Dr. Pentecost is not only a man of marked ability and scholarship, but he is a pulpit orator of the highest order. He at once arrests the attention, penetrates the heart, moves the affection, and directs the conduct."—Oldham Chronicle.

Tinted Covers, 2s.; Cloth Limp, 2s. 6d. On Toned Paper, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d. (SUITABLE FOR PRESENTATION.)

OUT OF EGYPT.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES and BIBLE READINGS on the EXODUS OF ISRAEL: and its SPIRITUAL LESSONS.

By Rev. Dr. G. F. PENTECOST, M.A.

"Dr. Pentecost's power as a teacher and expositor of the Word is anew displayed in these addresses, and we are not surprised to learn that there has been an earnest demand for their publication."—Word and Work.

"This is a capital book, and is especially appropriate and valuable to young Christians. There are sixteen chapters, some of them treating very effectively with the methods by which such difficulties as often meet the young and thoughtful reader may be overcome. The general treatment is marked by much originality, the style by much perspicuity, while the illustrations are apt and striking."—Methodist Recorder.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Limp, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

IN THE VOLUME OF THE BOOK;

Or, THE PROFIT AND PLEASURE OF BIBLE STUDY.

By Rev. Dr. PENTECOST. With Introductions by Revs. JOSEPH COOK and J. H. VINCENT, D.D.

Eighth Edition.

"We cannot too highly commend this little publication; plain, concise, thorough, and spiritual, it is a handbook differing from all others, inasmuch as it takes up the spiritual rather than the material aspect of the Word of God."
Preachers' Analyst.

New Edition now ready; 474 pages. Price 5s. in Cloth Boards, or 6s. Bevelled Boards. Gilt Edges. FOR PRESENTATION. Also to be completed in Twelve Fourpenny Parts.

The Tabernacle, The Priesthood,

AND THE OFFERINGS.

By HENRY W. SOLTAU. Author of "The Holy Vessels of the Tabernacle," "The Soul and its Difficulties," "The Scarlet Line," &c., &c.

WITH FOUR BEAUTIFUL COLOURED ILLUSTRATIONS AND NUMEROUS SMALLER ENGRAVINGS.

"The reading of this book has been to us a precious means of Grace, and to all those who love Truth sweetly told, we advise its study. It is full of Christ. The truths of the Gospel gleam on every page, and we feel that we shall be doing good work for any Christian brother whom we can induce to read it."
Baptist Messenger.

"Dr. Anderson's counsels and suggestions are most valuable; and the design of his work is one which will meet with ready acceptance from those who have learned that God's Word is a lamp to their feet and a light to their path."
Christian Week.

Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 3s. 6d. Second Edition,

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD.

ALSO SUGGESTIONS FOR BIBLE READING AND STUDY, AND A PLAN FOR CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING.

By Dr. ANDERSON.

"Whether viewed as an analysis of the whole Bible, or as a plan for its daily perusal, or as a directory to the spirit and intention with which it should be studied, it is equally judicious and complete. The one design of the whole Scriptures is kept in view throughout."—Sword and Trowel.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Christian.

MODERN SOCIAL PROBLEMS,

AND HOW TO DEAL WITH THEM.

A paper read at Copenhagen Conference,
By Professor REDFORD.

After an earnest introduction, in which he referred to various causes of the alienation of the masses from Christianity, and urged that believers should commend their faith to others by showing their fullest sympathy with them in all their legitimate aspirations and pursuits, the Professor proceeded :—

SOCIAL Problems may be classified for convenience under different heads :—

(1) There are those which may be described as Economical and Political, which have sprung from the inequalities and anomalies palpable in society. Many of such problems are peculiarly modern, because modern facts have lent them special point and force. The rapid growth of population is bearing with terrible pressure on the arrangements and relations of social life. The sources of production are more largely drawn upon, and the laws of the distribution of wealth are more anxiously studied. Problems of this character have been always more or less considered, but, of late, they have been multiplied, and they have been thrust on public attention by able men, with no little threatening of disturbed feeling.

(2) There are those problems which have a more distinctly Moral character, which have been claiming consideration by the waking up of the public conscience to the fearful moral state of our large population. Such as those which deal with the suppression of intemperance and other vices of a sensual kind, closely connected with which are many philanthropic movements, which have received fresh impetus during the past few years—movements for the better housing of the poorer classes, and the general improvement of their external condition.

(3) Then there are other problems, which I forbear to particularise, which are of a more speculative nature. They are not so much suggested by the pressure of social evils and the desire to remove them as by an ideal future, which it is supposed possible to realise by changes of a social and political kind. The air of the literary world is becoming filled with such speculation. Our magazine readers know well how often they are invited to deal with difficult intellectual questions, which it is thought necessary to discuss and decide in the upper sphere of philosophy on abstract principles, before there is any likelihood of their descending to the lower platform of practical life. Without referring to any instances of this social speculation, may I remind you that all such discussions have their influence in producing a certain restlessness of the public mind, and a craving for new schemes of action?

The Christian Church is summoned by a thousand voices, at this most critical juncture, to something like a new proclamation of the Kingdom of God in the world. We lose influence over mankind if we allow them, by the attitude we take up, to conclude that Christianity concerns itself only with the welfare of individual souls, in their relations to that which is superhuman and supereartbly.

There has been a wide-spread impression amongst the masses of people that religion is cut off by a great gulf from common life, that it is of no importance in the eyes of Christians what decisions were made on social problems, or whether no decisions at all were made, so long as the teaching of the Bible about God and Eternity is accepted and churches maintained. We are apt to think of those who concern themselves with such subjects as I have just now indicated as occupying a lower platform than religious men. Some of the most saintly and devout of our Christian ministers rigidly abstain from taking any part in public movements, except those which emanate from a distinctly Christian centre. They regard the province of religion as separate from others and above them.

Now in regard to their rule of conduct I do not wish to be their critic, but it may be asked may not such abstention promote the misunderstanding which still exists, which relegates Christianity to a remote sphere, where many of the people do not care to seek it?

On the other hand, there are some ministers of religion who have put themselves prominently at the head of social controversies and movements, and they have done so on the ground that they ought to express sympathy with the aspirations and agitations of the popular mind, and thus connect Christianity, publicly and prominently, with the conflicts waged and the victories achieved. Some Christian ministers think it their duty, and urge upon their brethren, to mingle social and political topics with their pulpit themes on the Lord's day, in order that they may convince men of the universal application of Christian principles.

On these and similar methods of action I refrain from speaking. It would be out of place to discuss them in a Conference such as this. Let every servant of Christ be fully persuaded in his own mind; let him stand or fall to his own Master. But if it be true that Christianity holds within itself as a divine revelation the solution of all problems of human life and destiny, then there must be a duty incumbent upon us, especially at such a time as this, to clear away all that would obscure the social aspect of Christian Truth and Christian Principles, to open to the view of the world the whole glorious fact, that godliness hath the promise of the life that now is, as well as of that which is to come; that the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand; that the things which are shaken and removed from time to time are taken out of the way, as things that are made, that those things which cannot be shaken may remain, the new heaven and new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness.

Now there are three elements in Christianity, which must give it a special advantage in the presence of every social problem. It is the Religion of Love; it is the Religion of Purity; it is the Religion of Promise. Let me follow out briefly this tide of vantage given us in moving, whether in the midst of, or alongside with, the social discussions of our time.

I have referred to problems arising out of social inequalities and anomalies. The danger which attends all excitements and changes which professedly aim at the rectification of the political and economical wrongs of society, is that men divide into parties, with party cries and party animosities, and that their minds are often clouded by the corruption which flows from such a source. But it is not difficult to show the world that there is no safe and firm foundation on which to build up social life but Love.

The Bible points to the true family as the root of the true society. The family is the embodiment of Love. "By this shall all men know," Jesus said, "that ye are my disciples if ye have love one to another." The questions of property and so-called "rights," the mutual relation of classes, the reciprocal operation of the different powers at work in the world, must furnish a thousand problems difficult to settle. But it is a grand result to obtain, if we can persuade men to look at all such questions in the light of the great revelation of Divine Love. We cannot of course expect that the principles of the Sermon on the Mount, the exhortations of the apostolic epistles, the spirit of the cross of Christ, should be at once adopted by those who are dealing with the abuses of the past, and seeking to bring about changes in human legislation. Yet we can point to the Christian standard and say, "You will never be right till you reach that." We can remonstrate in the name of Christ against whatever violates the law of Love. We can withhold our sanction as Christian men from any system, any policy, be it old or new, which ignores the real wants and necessaries of men, which lacks compassion and the tender consideration of the weak.

The great principle of Christianity is the identification of righteousness and love. Christ knows no law, as truly law, which cannot be in God's statute-book. He has taught us that God is infinitely just because He is infinitely benevolent. We shall help the people to a happier state by proclaiming the law of the Saviour's kingdom: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." History teaches us that human progress has been constantly opposed by arbitrary will, by the selfishness of individuality, or of classes. There is no power to overcome that resistance, effectually and permanently, but the power of love, which is the power of Christ. We are working with all social reformers and all true-hearted politicians when we promote the spirit of Christianity. We should let the world know that when they look coldly at the Christian Church they are neglecting their best friend, they are throwing away, often, the key, and the only key, to their problems, which God has put into the hands of his people.

There is a large class of social questions, again, which are so essentially moral that they are almost committed, for settlement, to the Christian portion of the community. No doubt there is philanthropy apart from faith; there is social enthusiasm which has not sprung from Christian motives; but anyone acquainted with the history of great movements (like that of temperance, or that which seeks to rescue the abandoned and vicious classes, and purge out the noxious influences which take so many different forms in society), will have observed that the real future of such movements is falling more and more into the hands of Christians. In our British Parliament there are names which have around them a very halo of national honour and universal reverence, because of their association with practical efforts of philanthropy, and it will be remembered by all that they are the names of men who are not ashamed to declare that their ruling motive is the love of Christ.

It is also a gratifying fact that there is an immense and growing social influence being exercised by institutions which are distinctly religious. Sunday-schools, town missions, visiting societies, and many other organisations, which have come out of the Christian Church, are sending forth a stream of activity, daily deepening and broadening, which goes down into the lowest strata of society, where it is wonderfully preparing the way for a higher and better life among the people. We often hear, it is true, bitter complaints of the neglect of religious services by the working classes, but it must not be forgotten that there are great obstacles to be overcome, the force of habit, the spell of ignorance, the fear of shame and ridicule, natural pride, which keeps many from changing their life lest they should seem fickle to their neighbours.

But those who know what is being accomplished among the dense populations of our great cities, know that there is a growing respect among them for religious people, and a silent approval of their efforts, which promises abundant fruit hereafter. There is marvellous power in the moral purity of the Gospel. Men may point the finger of scorn at inconsistent Christians, but they dare not deny that Christ is the teacher of a perfect morality. One advantage in the work of social reformation lies in our distinctive Christianity. We claim all who love the Lord Jesus Christ as fellow-labourers, because every good soldier bearing his name must hate all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, and fight against whatever degrades humanity, wastes the power of mind and body, scatters families, and imperils immortal souls. The only real purity is that which is not negative but positive, not a mere abstaining from all appearance of evil, but the putting on of the Lord Jesus Christ.

I must not conclude this paper without reminding my audience that the chief power of Christianity is that it combines the practical and the ideal in one. There have been ideals apart from the truth as it is in Jesus. There is no loftier conception of human aims than that which pervades some of the heathen philosophies, as e.g., the Republic of Plato. Beautiful sentiments have been discovered in the earliest sacred books of Paganism. From Zoroaster to Sakya Muni, from Confucius to M. Aurelius, the world has never lacked voices, uttering noble ideas.

But the great distinction of our Christianity is this, that it has connected the loftiest ideal of humanity with "exceeding great and precious promises." It mingles together the earthly and the heavenly. It points the hopes of man to a future which is assured by the faithfulness of God. The golden thread of grace runs through all time, coming forth into glorious brightness in the Gospel facts, going on into the everlasting future. The man fresh from the hands of his Maker stands at the beginning of Revelation; the paradise regained stands at the end of it, and the benediction of a gracious God fills the horizon of our prospect with the glow of sunrise, the coming in of an eternal day of rest.

Surely it is a great opportunity which is given us, now when men's minds are full of what a great writer has called "the enthusiasm of humanity," when some are even telling us that the height of self-sacrifice is that which foregoes the hope of personal immortality for the sake of the larger hope, the immortality of the race, when so many have dipped their pencils in the brighest colours of an imaginative philosophy to paint the outlines of the golden age, the paradise which is to be, when it may be said, in this sense, "our young men see visions, and our old men dream dreams,"—to us, I say, it is an opportunity such as was never before presented to the Christian Church, to invite our fellow-men to the summit of the Delectable Mountains, to put into their hands the perfection of faith, and bid them gaze upon that which God hath promised, "which eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive."

We point them not to Cloudland; we let them not "set their affection" on that which is the mere transformation of their own thoughts; it is our life which is "hid with Christ in God," and which is to be "revealed at his coming." We are "children of the light and of the day." That light held forth by us in the world will cast out all the darkness of the social chaos, and He whose Spirit moves and works over all and in all, shall say once more, "Behold, it is very good."

HOME MISSION SKETCHES.—3.

By A PRESBYTERIAN ELDER.

THERE were few amongst the inhabitants of the district who had any church connection, or paid any deference or outward respect to the claims of morality and religion. Into almost all the houses, however, the tract-distributors and visitors were generally made welcome, as they, whilst refusing to take any part in the gossip of the district, endeavoured to make themselves acquainted with the individual members of all the household, and took a lively interest in their temporal and spiritual concerns.

One Sabbath afternoon a visitor succeeded in obtaining an entrance into a house of notoriously bad repute, where, after introducing himself, he commenced to read a portion of God's Word, and to reason like one of old on Temperance, righteousness, and judgment to come. His friends, that evening, congratulated him on having escaped without bodily injury, as the fierce and lawless nature of some of the characters who frequented the house was well known. Subsequent visits were made, but with no apparent good results until a considerable time after the first visit, when, unexpectedly, a message was sent to the visitor's place of business, that the keeper of the house, familiarly known amongst her associates as Luckie C——, was exceedingly anxious to see him.

On calling shortly afterwards he found her in deep spiritual distress, the Divine Master having in a rather unexpected way lodged the arrows of conviction in her soul. It seemed in vain to tell her of the love of God in Christ, and the forgiveness of sin through Him. She was persuaded there was nothing in store for her but a fearful looking for of judgment, and of fiery indignation from the presence of the Lord. Having been induced to give up her sinful way of life, and to attend the indoor meetings held in the district, the light at last began to dawn upon her darkened and distressed mind, and she was enabled to surrender herself to the Saviour. Before her end came, which was a few years afterwards, she was enabled, although sometimes with fear and trembling, to witness a good confession for her Lord and Master.

As earnest men from many of the evangelical churches in town began to join the Society, it was soon found necessary to extend the sphere of its operations. Arrangements were therefore entered into for carrying on evangelistic services in the surrounding country districts, where many were then found living, within the sound of the church bells, in a state of practical home-heathenism. These meetings were conducted in barns, cottages, and schoolrooms, and during the summer months frequently in the open air. The simple, practical addresses and hearty singing drew the people in considerable numbers, there being often persons present that never entered a regular place of worship.

In one of the districts much valuable assistance was rendered by the parochial schoolmaster, who having been greatly benefited by the meetings, entered very heartily into the work. The use of his schoolroom could not, however, be obtained without the sanction of the parish minister, a learned doctor of divinity, whose Broad Church proclivites were well-known. After anxious deliberation two of the oldest members of the Society, possessed of considerable tact and temper, were deputed to wait on the Doctor. The interview was of a somewhat interesting character. After being carefully examined as to the subject-matter of their addresses, the length of time they had been in the work, and the reason why they devoted their spare time to it, the deputies had an opportunity of telling, in their own way, what great things the Lord had done for them. The Doctor listened with evident interest to their statements, and evinced some emotion as one of them told how that his conversion was brought about by the Lord, in his providence, removing a dear member of his family on whom his heart was very affectionately set. It only remains to be added that the use of the schoolroom, under certain conditions, was granted.

Along with the now enlarged and regular work of the Society it was deemed desirable to arrange from time to time for a series of nightly evangelistic services, which were usually preceded by a week of nightly meetings for prayer. Before commencing the indoor meetings, special services were held simultaneously in all the suitable alleys and closes of the district, the visitors meanwhile going from house to house endeavouring to get the people to attend. In connection with these services, assistance was generally received from clergymen belonging to the town, and friends from a distance; and I am not aware of any instance in which they were held without there being special manifestations of the divine blessing. A conversational or inquiry meeting was held at the close of every meeting, with, I have every reason to believe, the happiest results.

Cottage meetings were also now established on an extensive scale, and conducted with regularity and zeal, the younger members of the Society deriving through them such training and experience as soon enabled some of them to become very efficient speakers. The results of these meetings were in many respects very encouraging. Three brothers who lived in the district, and had wives and families depending on them for support, rented a large attic, and after putting it in thorough repair at their own expense, requested the writer and others to conduct in it a weekly prayer-meeting.

The following incident will show the kind of difficulty under which the workers occasionally laboured. An old sailor who had been converted a few years before, and whose wife was much addicted to the use of intoxicating drink, wished that a meeting should be held in his house. This was done, and for a considerable time things went on smoothly, but the woman having fallen under the power of her besetting sin refused to allow the meetings to be continued, and threatened the conductor with personal violence. Her husband, who was much distressed at what had happened, was very earnest in prayer on her behalf. Very late one Sunday night, some time afterwards, the writer was sent for, and found her in a very despondent and distracted state of mind, bitterly regreting what she had done. Some hours were spent in pointing out to her the guilt of sin, and the way of salvation through the merits of the Lord Jesus Christ. The meetings were resumed, and were attended with marked power, much spiritual blessing from on high being vouchsafed.

NOTES ON SCRIPTURE.—II.

"THE HEAVENLIES."

Dear Sir,—May I be permitted to refer Mr. P. H. Gosse and the readers of "Notes on Scripture" in your issue of September 11 to Cremer's article on the word ἐπουράνιος in his "Biblico-Theological Lexicon." The edition I have before me is a translation by Mr. Urwick, published by Clark, Edinburgh, in 1878, and the page referred to is 468. To a good Greek scholar this reference will appear quite unnecessary. He would know that ἐπί in such a compound as ἐπουράνιος does not signify "above," but simply "what belongs to, or is in or on." And without much scholarship the passage, John iii. 12, seems of itself to suggest that ἐπί in ἐπουράνιος has only the same force as in ἐπίγειος, which certainly does not mean things above the earth. Even had Mr. Gosse been correct in his translation of ἐπουράνιος, his rendering of Eph. vi. 12 must be amended by a transposition; for he has placed his word "superheavenlies" entirely out of the position which it occupies in the original, as well as in both our English versions, Received and Revised.

I am giving no opinion on Mr. Gosse's views; I only humbly protest against his basing them on that which cannot serve for a foundation. It is a practice too common, and which often tends to throw discredit on the statements of excellent and spiritually-minded writers and speakers.—I am, dear Sir, faithfully yours, Hay S. Escott.

Kilve Rectory, Bridgwater, September 11.

OUR ADVOCATE WITH THE FATHER.

To our note of July 17 and August 21, showing that Satan, who was the accuser of the brethren before atonement had been made, was necessarily cast down when Jesus entered into the holiest by his own blood, it has been replied that as we have an Advocate (1 John ii.) there must be an accuser, and, therefore, that Satan is now accusing us before God day and night. But the Apostle John does not say that we have an Advocate with God, but with the Father. And this makes a great difference. The advocacy of Jesus Christ the righteous is not that of a barrister before a judge, replying to the charges of an accuser, but that of our Great High Priest, who is not ashamed to call brethren the many sons whom God is bringing to glory. "We are all children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." An accuser's place is not within the family circle, but in the court of justice. But the saints under the new covenant have nothing to do with accusers and courts of justice, for "who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect?" Every one who has heard the words of Jesus, and believed on Him that sent Him, "hath everlasting life, and shall not come into judgment, but is passed from death into life." Our great High Priest has made us kings and priests to his God and Father: "Who is he that condemneth? Is it Christ that died—yea, rather, that is risen again; who is even at the right hand of God; who also maketh intercession for us?" The Apostle here sums up his denial of the possibility of any charge being laid against God's elect, with the assertion of the intercession of our Great High Priest—our Advocate—Jesus Christ the Righteous.

PERTH, W. AUSTRALIA.—Mr. Shearer begs to acknowledge with deep gratitude the receipt of a parcel of excellent Christian literature for distribution, including copies of The Herald of Mercy, Christian Herald, &c., posted June 19. Such a parcel is very valuable in West Australia, where there is but very little of such reading. Mr. Shearer also wishes to thank those friends who continue to send copies of The Christian. He is often asked for copies.

The Children's Portion.

LITTLE FOLKS AT THE CRÊCHE.

For the thirteenth time Mrs. Hilton has prepared and sent out an interesting account of her good work in caring for the poor and friendless children. We are sure our young readers will be glad to know how these little folks are getting on, and perhaps they will try to interest their parents and friends in the work. Copies of the Report, price 6d., may be had from the Crêche, 12, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

"During the year several of our little ones have left us. Sidney and Harry were removed by their father, who is now able to provide for them. Lilian left us because her mother had made a second marriage, and sent for her dear child to gladden her new home. Little Harry was removed by his mother, who had returned to the home she had previously deserted. Harry who came to us a pitiful-looking neglected child, not able to walk, although over two years old, went home a laughing healthy little boy, followed by our prayers that the poor mother might appreciate the forgiving love of her husband who had received her back after all her wanderings, and be led on to know the height and breadth of the love of Christ 'which passeth knowledge.' Mary, Louisa, and Alice, who were too old to remain with us, were provided for in other institutions.

"Poor little Willie, who lost his leg in a tramway car accident, was with us for one year. His father was determined to have him, and the lady who placed him in with us took legal advice, but found he could not be retained against his father's wish; we were therefore helpless. The father and mother came to the Crêche one night after Willie was in bed, and demanded to have him; the man was in a state of intoxication. The Matron tried to reason with him, but he was so abusive and violent, that the assistance of the police had to be obtained, and two constables were called in. These he assaulted, and it was with great difficulty that he was removed from the house. The constables thought the child had better be given up, so, as it was too late to send to our house, the Matron gave him to his mother.

"Willie was quite willing to go, as the excitement of going in and out of public-houses has charms for him. We can only hope that God will in some way deliver the poor child from the terrible life that seems before him.

"Most of the children, in whom our friends took such kind interest, have grown almost beyond the stage of childhood; of these I shall speak later on. We still have an interesting party in the schoolroom. Alice, Amber, Nellie, Ellen, and Florence, the elder girls, are progressing fairly well, and are real helpers in the schoolroom and nursery.

"Little Lizzie Kett had an attack of typhoid fever last year, which has left her very delicate, and 'Baby Rose' has been ailing for some time, and although they have both been to Feltham, their progress is not satisfactory. Linda, Marion, Bessie, Kitty, and Polly, and others too numerous to mention, are still with us, and we look forward to their future with hope. . . .

"We have been very thankful to find a loving sisterly feeling existing among our girls, and they also display great tenderness towards the younger children, each taking charge of a little one as her own brother or sister. . . .

"It will be interesting to our subscribers and friends to hear that many boys and girls who used to come to the Crêche some years ago are now filling situations with credit to themselves, and they frequently send us messages of respect and affection. Those of a more recent date sometimes bring prizes that they have gained at the School Board.

"Jessie, Annie, and Louisa were the first three girls we had in training; of these Jessie is second nurse in the Crêche, and Annie and Louisa are both in good situations, where they are much valued. Clara, Eliza, and Dorcas were the next; they are all in situations.

"Of the eight girls who went to Feltham, Lucy was the first to leave us. She has been in a situation for six months; her mistress speaks well of her, and says she is quite a favourite with the other servants. Rose is in a situation as nursemaid, and is doing well.

"We keep up a correspondence with all our girls who are in situations, and those who have no friends have always spent their monthly holidays at the Crêche, which we like them to consider as their home, and where all are glad to see them.

"Susie, our little Scotch girl, was placed by Mrs. Robert Barclay in a Training Home in Norfolk; and Emma I have, by the kindness of Mrs. Barclay, been able to place in the Princess Louise's Home, as she required protection; she has been there six months; the report of her progress is encouraging. We have still six other girls in training who will not be ready to leave the institution for at least two years.

BIBLE ACROSTIC.

The initials form the words of a woman of old in her affliction, which have ever since remained a comfort to those who love God, and a terror to those who do evil.

(1) A city sought to be reached by a rebellious prophet.
(2) A proud noble who received the punishment he intended for another.
(3) A Christian letter-carrier, formerly a slave.
(4) One of Paul's "helpers in Christ."
(5) The captain of an army who conquered not by force of number, but by God's help.
(6) One whose household was blessed by the presence of the Ark.
(7) A city, the birthplace of one of Abram's servants.
(8) One who shared Paul's imprisonment.
(9) A city where silversmiths abounded.
(10) One of David's brothers.
(11) One of the women who followed Jesus.
(12) The leader of an insurrection referred to by Gamaliel.
(13) The first wife of Israel's second king.
(14) Aaron's successor in the high priesthood.

We have received answers to the last Acrostic inserted, from George H. Gooch, Lower Norwood (aged 12), John H. Henderson, Edinburgh (aged 11), J. H. Haining, Hawick, Mabel Carter, Edinburgh (aged 11½), Jane Rist, Bromley-by-Bow M. E. and J. H. Gordon, Florence.

NATIONAL BIBLE SOCIETY OF SCOTLAND.—At the September meeting of directors, held in Glasgow, a native map of Japan was laid on the table, showing every town in the empire, with the stations occupied by the society's fifty-one native agents. Considerable interest had been excited by the colportage lately begun in Corea. A European agent in China had been doing good work among the villages near Wu hu. In the larger centres on population which have been often visited, his sales were small, but in places with only two or three houses he had sold in almost every house. In eleven days forty-nine New Testaments and 735 portions had been bought by the people. The directors made a new grant in aid of colportage in Brazil, and responded to a number of home applications.

RELIGIOUS INDIFFERENCE IN GERMANY.

By Professor CHRISTLIEB, of Bonn.

THERE are two ways of looking upon the indifference which prevails in Germany. It might be regarded from a too optimist point of view, so that the state of things would appear better than it really is; or it might be looked upon from a too pessimist stand-point. Neither could be maintained, but the picture is dark at the best. First, he examined the facts as to religious indifference; secondly, the causes of the evil; and thirdly, the remedies for it. With reference to the cause of the facts, he took church attendance as a test of indifference, because church attendance belonged essentially to religion, as where religion was a common principle it would bring the people to worship together. In Scotland there were 40,000 out of 250,000 people in Edinburgh who did not go to any place of worship; in Glasgow, about 200,000 out of a population of 700,000; in Boston, about one-fourth of the population; and in London there were 1,200,000 out of 4,000,000. Tested by the statistics of the last twenty years, it would appear that generally in those places where there was such a deficiency of attendance at places of worship, there had been an increase of crime. There was also prevalent not merely indifference, but something like blasphemy as well. In Paris, almost every workman was a free-thinker, and even "Robinson Crusoe" had been found to contain too much recognition of God, and was, therefore, not allowed in certain circles or reading-rooms. Along with that atheistic belief, there had been a kind of travestie or caricature of baptism. He believed there were now more atheists in Paris than in any other great city at any former time. Certain religious rites and ceremonies were also caricatured in America.

With regard to Germany (here the speaker's voice began to falter; he was so deeply moved that he could hardly proceed), he thought silence would be almost the best expression of his conviction. In no Christian country did he believe that things were so bad as in Germany. In Berlin, instances occurred where there was only one church to 50,000 of the population. In New York there were 200 places of worship for the whole population; in Berlin only fifty. Out of the whole population of Berlin—1,000,000—only 20,000, or 2 per cent., attended divine service; while in England the average was 29 per cent. In Hamburg, out of 300,000 or 400,000, divine service was attended only by 5000. The rule in Germany with those who did not attend service was to work on the Sunday morning and amuse themselves in the afternoon. In certain districts of North Germany there were suicides at the rate of thirty to forty a week.

The state of things in the rural districts was also bad. The worthy classes were so hard pressed during the week, and had to work at such small wages, that they thought they were bound to labour on the Lord's Day in order to increase their wages. In one case, occurring in Saxony, the congregation of the church consisted of five women and one man. It was the custom on the Sunday afternoon, instead of going to church, to meet in the public-house, and extracts were read to those present from Rénan's "Life of Jesus," and the whole conversation ended with an abuse of the clergy.

In the middle and upper classes a conspicuous feature was the influence of false science. The causes were the overthrow of faith in the Bible as a revelation, through negative criticism, which disheartened students of theology. Students had come to him, and said they had no heart any longer to study theology; and in other ways the universities had been the cradle of indifference. The majority of teachers in the "gymnasium" had probably for their highest ideal something that was pagan more than Christian. Extreme Darwinism and Pantheism contributed to the same result. In certain cases religion had been excluded from the public schools. Among further causes there was the want of family worship, and the egoism or selfishness of life, ending in despair; so that the whole result of the satiety of the German mind—the filling of the mind with mere culture—begat indifference to religion.

Among other causes were mentioned the bad example of influential people, as in disregarding the sanctity of the Lord's Day, of magistrates and persons of high station; also the hostile tone of the press, that never connected any public event with religion, and wrote in an opposite spirit.

In addition to those external causes, there were inward causes, in the Church itself, e.g., the want of places of worship. In the old provinces of Germany the provision was only one for 800 of the population; in Berlin, one in 8,000—a striking contrast with other countries like England and America.

Then there was the comparatively dead style of religious teaching and service; it was taken for granted that all were already Christians; the preaching of repentance was, to a large extent, neglected, and Christianity was resolved into education merely.

So much for the causes. There was no ground for despair. There were general and other missions, calculated in their operations to awaken religious life, but the chief means were still to be the ordinary ones employed by the Church, the preaching of the Word and pastoral care. One large means of redress was lay preaching, in addition to the regular ministry. No remedy was equal to the pure, ancient Gospel.

Professor Christlieb then made a passing reference to Mr. Moody's work in London, and to its success as indicated by the large numbers of persons that had attended his services. He also alluded to the Salvation Army, and this in a beautiful spirit. Cordially recognising the work they had done, he spoke of their defects in an undertone. The good they had accomplished he attributed to the elements of the Gospel that was in their preaching, and not in their sensational methods. His exhortation to them was against undue demonstrativeness, against the employment of women preachers, against the employment of people who had not been proved, who had had no experience, or next to none, and the encouragement of a method that involved absolute military obedience.

Giving a résumé of the qualities desired in evangelists, he said they required to be itinerant—not to labour long in the same place; nor must they at all try to outdo the regular ministry in preaching. The two fields of labour must be kept distinct. In other churches besides those in England lay preachers had been ordained. A bishop in the Danish Church had ordained twenty-seven laymen for that duty. We were approaching the anniversary of 1789—the period of the Revolution. Doubtless a great many revolutionary forces would break out, but Christians ought to make 1889 an anniversary of a different character; and he appealed most earnestly to them to contribute to the recovery of the masses from indifference in all the countries represented in the Conference of the Evangelical Alliance.

BOOKS FOR THE BLIND.—If any readers have books to give away for the use of the blind, either in Moon's Alstoris, or the Braille type, or any appliances for instruction, the Newcastle-on-Tyne Home Teaching for the Blind Association would most gratefully receive such. The superintendent is Miss S. A. Richardson, 4, Summerhill-grove, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

THE Y.W.C.A. EMPLOYMENT AGENCY, which has its office (open daily, Saturdays excepted, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.) at 17, Old Cavendish-street, W., does not confine its work to any special class, but seeks to aid all who need employment, though exercising the greatest care as to whom it recommends. We would ask ladies who are secretaries of our Association, or who have Servants' Bible-classes, to make known the agency to their members, as our registrar has many applications for good servants, and can supply situations to Y.W.C.A. members free of charge, and to other servants for a merely nominal fee.

A. M. Wingate,
Hon. Sec. Y.W.C.A.

"BEHOLD THE MAN!"

John xix. 5, 14.

"BEHOLD the Man!" Oh, the mighty thrill,
Which down through the ages hath rolled,
At these words of Pilate, the earthly judge
Of Him, whom each eye shall behold—
Exalted high, as Creation's Head;
Judging the living, and the dead.

"Behold the Man!" with that crown of thorns,
Pressing into his sacred brow;
Behold Him! behold, until thy heart
In outpouring homage bow—
Till thy heart is a captive, taken by love,
And thou pantest devotion to Him to prove.

"Behold the Man!"—from head to foot,
Wounded and bleeding for thee;
Look into those patient eyes—Can'st thou
Such love and such suffering see,
Yet fear to venture upon that love,
As though a hard Master He e'er could prove?

"Behold the Man!" and consider, oh heart,
The love that He beareth to thee—
None ever hath loved, none ever will love,
None ever can love thee, as He; [sight,
And wilt thou, nay, canst thou, with that love in
Be hindered from loving with all thy might?

"Behold the Man!"—with o'erwhelming power,
May it now come home to thy soul,
Whatever thy sorrow, whatever thy sin;
Pause—yield thee to his control.
"Behold your King!"—now take Him as such;
Having much forgiven, oh, love Him much.

"Behold the Man!"—oh, desponding soul,
He was dead, but He liveth again;
See Him burst the bonds of death and rise,
To a realm that knows no pain;
The power which "raised Him from the dead,"
Shall lift thee up, to walk with thy Head.

"Behold the Man!"—behold Him each hour,
Each step of thy pilgrim way;
Run thy race ever looking to Jesus, thy life,
And as thou dost look, hear Him say—
"Because I live ye shall live" with Me,
Through a bright and blissful eternity."

Elizabeth Handford.

FOREIGN NOTES.

The Worship of Saint Roch, the great preserver from cholera, has greatly increased. Much money has been received in those churches of Italy of which he is the patron saint. A single church in Rome received 700,000 francs in gifts.

Corea.—Rev. Mr. Ross, who is evangelising in the North of China, has succeeded, after much trouble, in discovering the Corean written character as well as the rudiments of their language. Six thousand copies of two of the Gospels translated into the Corean language have been distributed in the country, and one Chinese New Testament, the gift of three Christians, has reached even the Court.—Le Christianisme.

M. Coillard is bravely pushing on his way in spite of manifold difficulties to the Zambese. The last news received showed that he had left Shoshong and was well on his way northwards. From the Zambese tidings had reached M. Coillard that young Arnot was persevering with his school at the capital, and that the chief was longing for the arrival of Mr. Coillard. The Jesuits had been to see him, but he did not want them, and he had refused them permission to enter his territory.

French Priests Abroad.—The French Roman Catholic Missionary Societies now reckon: 2500 Franciscan monks and priests in China, Morocco, Egypt, and America; 1000 Capucines in the different countries of India and Islands of the Indian ocean; 1500 Jesuits in Bengal, English, Guiana, Madagascar, Armenia, America, &c.; 700 priests in Japan, Corea, &c.; 500 Dominicans in Mesopotamia, Central Tonquin, in the Phillippine Isles, &c.; and 500 missionaries of other orders in Ceylon, British Columbia, Natal, Abyssinia, Persia, &c.

NORTH LONDON CHOIR.—This choir will meet for practice on Saturday next at 7 p.m., in the Ladies' Room, Mildmay Conference Hall. Ladies and gentlemen willing to join and help in evangelistic work will be heartily welcomed. Information given by the Secretary, Mr. Robert Farie, 43, Highbury Quadrant, N. Conductor, Mr. J. W. Godfrey.

AMONG THE HAMPSHIRE HOP-PICKERS.

[BY A SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.]

IT is not every day that we find "the right man in the right place." This, however, is certainly the case at Alton, in Hants, where Mr. Samuel Chinn conducts and superintends a well-known Mission among the hop-pickers in the county. Begun twenty-five years ago, the work has gradually increased and extended year by year, until the services of no less than twelve duly qualified workers have become a necessity to meet the demands of the present season. All of these, besides several helpers, are busily working for the social and spiritual well-being of this nomadic portion of the community.

Always ready to interest ourselves and our readers in the details of a work that evidently bears the seal and impress of the Divine favour and approval, we gladly accepted the invitation of Mr. Chinn to visit the scene of his much-loved Mission. Mr. Chinn is possessed of that all-essential qualification for success—enthusiasm for the work; and is to be congratulated on having selected as his co-workers men who are one in spirit with their leader in seeking the desired end.

The hop-picking district of Hampshire is spread over a radius of six or seven miles; and into this radius are gathered during the month of September about five thousand men, women, and children, who hail from every part of England. Composed of gipsies, travelling tinkers, showmen, and others whose mode of life is of a similar kind, these people have no certain dwelling-place during eleven months out of the twelve, and are only able to look forward to a general rendezvous at their annual assemblage for picking hops. This, therefore, becomes the Christian workers' grand opportunity. It forms no part of our design in this brief sketch to exaggerate. We think it would be difficult to over-estimate the value of the efforts put forth, the benefit derived by the gipsies themselves while here, or the blessings they impart to others after leaving.

Mr. Chinn believes in presenting Christianity to them in an attractive light. So in addition to regular services, the magic lantern is called into requisition, which proves exceedingly helpful in getting the people together. A brief and unpretentious "Report" of last year shows that the lantern exhibitions are remembered by the young as well as the old. Mr. Chinn says: "Meeting a little gipsy-boy near the tent, I said to him, 'Are you coming to the magic lantern exhibition?' 'Ees, master, that I be.' 'You were here last year picking?' 'Ees, I were.' To my astonishment he began and described minutely the series of pictures he had seen the previous year, adding his own comments upon them, as viewed from a gipsy-boy's standpoint."

Coming to the question of practical work done, we may observe that the twelve workers are engaged all day in the hop-field seeking personal contact with the pickers, handing them tracts, speaking with them of Christ, and urging them to repentance and salvation. As we write they are so engaged. Two of the brethren whom we met in one of the fields yesterday told us they had that day given 1600 tracts among the people they had seen. These brethren were heart and soul in the work, and evidently just the men for buttonhole conversation. One of them said he had picked up no end of facts and illustrations ready for the evening meeting.

In the temporary hire and erection of tents, the best and most efficient means have unquestionably been found for evening work. Five tents now stand erected in different parts of the hop ground, and in these the pickers are invited to gather when the work of the day is over. As a means of getting them there tea is provided for them gratis every evening. Hither they come, direct from their work, whole families of them, to find not only a tea, but a home. "To see them after a day's work in the gardens, on a wet day, swarming into one of these tents, wet through and cold, finding a cup of good warm tea ready for them, and to witness their enjoyment, is a sight not easily to be forgotten." So says Mr. Chinn; he also tells us that "one cold, wet night a poor woman with her six shoeless children came in with their rags wet through and the mud oozing out between the toes of the little ones as they walked. When seated on the bench, and a cup of warm tea was put into the hands of one of the little boys, he turned to his small sister by his side, and looking up at the pictures which hung on the walls of the tent, said, 'Ain't it nice, Polly? Mother, this is a nice place.' 'Yes, my dear,' said the poor, battered mother, 'and God bless the gentleman that has done this for us!'"

From what we have seen, we venture to say that no more attentive or appreciative audiences are anywhere to be found than those which nightly fill the tents. And who shall estimate the amount of good accomplished in the minds and hearts of these poor gipsies with their wives and families, as the result of being thus brought under so gracious an influence daily and nightly without intermission for one month. We are not surprised to hear of one saying, "We look forward to coming here, sir." A service for children, moreover, on Saturdays, proves a means of sowing the seeds of kindness in the breast of many a little gipsy, that shall yet bring forth fruit.

It is encouraging to find that the local interest is deepening. As the work has gone on, the beneficial results have "told" in the surrounding places. Hence we have the testimony of a town official, affirming that crime has been lessened 75 per cent. through the salutary influence of the Mission. The testimony of a resident farmer is, that he used to dread the gipsies coming, but now he anticipates the time. Only during the past week a lady in the town bore her witness to the change that had been brought about. As a resident of many years' standing, she arose in the tent to bear her testimony that she had "never known the district to be in such a favourable condition as now." As further showing the appreciation of the change thus wrought, the number of resident ladies and others who are found willingly offering their services for tea-making, choir-singing, and various modes of help, is a fact that augurs well for the Mission, and reflects equal credit upon the inhabitants. No small amount of pleasure and profit are derived from the singing of Songs and Solos, which book an enthusiastic worker declared to be "one of God's precious gifts to us."

The magic lantern also proves an immense attraction to the pickers. We were present on two occasions when lectures were given—"John Ploughman" and "Little Eva," respectively, being the selected readings—the latter exhibition being given in the open air. With the white sheet hung up on a barn door, the motley group of pickers gathered around, the children lying on the grass of the meadow, the touching scenes in the unsophisticated little Topsy's early career dilated upon and improved amid the darkening shadows of the quiet, calm, and beautiful evening, a sight worthy of the artist's pencil was presented to our view. It may be observed that a set of magic lantern views (taken from life) of these people is in the hands of Mr. Chinn, who has already entertained an audience in the Alton Town Hall, and is prepared to do the same wherever desired. We venture to say that it would be no small treat to many a London congregation to be thus entertained, and would serve to enrich their store of knowledge in a department of things concerning which but little is known. These exhibitions afford an excellent channel for conveying Gospel truth, as well also as a means of ventilating some of the pithy sayings of "John Ploughman," who seems to be well known even among the hop-pickers.

The out and out salvation of the hoppers is, however, the grand aim of the Mission; and the fact of these men, with their wives and families, crowding the tents night after night to listen to the simple narrative of the "Old, Old Story," proves that the glorious Gospel of the blessed God still retains its charm and force. Were it not so, it certainly would fail to interest a class of people who, for the most part, seek only sensual gratification, and whose idea of the summum bonum of human life was stated by one of them to be "a pipe of bacca." Another poor gipsy promised to come to the tent meeting if the preacher could offer him any better terms of salvation than he had already met with at the Salvation Army, viz., by putting a penny in the plate. It need hardly be said that his humorous proposal was eagerly accepted by our zealous worker, who at the evening service adroitly seized the opportunity of proclaiming a salvation "without money and without price."

The tabulation of results is by no means a satisfactory method of arriving at the definite issues attained by a Mission of this kind. But as indicating the extent to which souls are being blest, we may observe that one worker told us that within the past few days he had rejoiced over five or six of these poor gipsies who had accepted Christ, while more than thirty had signed the pledge. In another tent we were told "A man found peace here last night, and stood up to testify." In another tent a man and wife said, "We'll have no more of this drink." They both signed the pledge, and resolved to enter upon a new life. Instances are ever coming to light in which seed long sown has sprung up. A young man said to Mr. Chinn: "The Bible you gave my father twenty years ago has been a blessing to all our family." It also comes to the knowledge of the workers that after being induced to come to the tent meetings during the hopping, some of the pickers find their way into Mission halls and other religious services after leaving.

We cannot close this brief sketch of work among the Hop pickers at Alton without a plea for more liberal support toward a Mission, the value of which has forced itself upon us during our short but pleasant stay. Two more tents at least will be required before another season, and with these the benefits already conferred would be greatly extended. Let any who have it in their power thus to help pay a visit and see and hear for themselves; they will be cordially welcomed by the worthy gentleman on whom the ever-increasing responsibility rests of carrying on the work. No less than £300 are needed to meet the expenses of the present season, and of this sum only a very small part has at present been received. Mr. Chinn knows nothing of ostentation, and has no wish either to parade his work or to glorify himself; he is content to labour under the eye of God, with the inward consciousness of the Master's approval and smile. We believe that in the day of the Saviour's appearing he will reap an abundant reward of his labours—one that will far exceed his highest anticipation.

"A YEAR'S MINISTRY," the first of a series of sermons by the Rev. Alexander Maclaren, D.D., will be published by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton, 27, Paternoster-row, E.C., on the 1st of October. The volume will contain twenty-six sermons, reprinted from the Commonwealth, in which journal Dr. Maclaren's current sermons appear weekly.

BRIGHTON.—The Young Women's Christian Institute, West Brighton, of which two memorial stones were laid on the 1st of May by Lady Cardross, of Holmes, and the Earl of Chichester, will be opened early in October. There is a library, a large reading and music-room, kitchen, dining-room, matron's room, &c.; also a lecture and class-room, capable of seating from 200 to 250 persons. There are also nine good bedrooms, intended chiefly for Christian workers requiring a week or two's rest and change. The work of the Institute was commenced nearly two years since by Mr. G. T. Congreve, in a temporary iron building. 160 members have been enrolled. The classes on Sunday afternoon have frequently exceeded 100 in attendance. The first report, containing extracts from letters, showing how greatly the work hitherto carried on has been blest, will be gladly forwarded post free by the Secretary, Mrs. Congreve, Stretton, Third Avenue, Brighton. Some £800 will be needed before the Institute can be placed in trust. Several ladies have given amounts to furnish bedrooms, which have been named by themselves, the "Cardross room," "Lily room," and "Barclay room." Two single rooms, and two double-bedded rooms remain. A donation of £12 or £20 each is needed to furnish them. Gifts of good pictures or engravings for the various rooms would be gladly welcomed.

PERTH CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

SEPTEMBER 9–12.

THE Perth Conference has now attained its twenty-second year, but the attendance on this occasion has been such as to show there are as yet no indications of the feebleness of age. It is still a centre of gathering to the surrounding districts, and the resort of strangers from more different parts of the country. This year the old place of meeting (the City Hall) was again had recourse to. The hall has undergone entire renovation, and increased comfort and capacity have been provided. The scene in former days of revival, it is hallowed in the memory of many as the birthplace of souls, and remembered, too, for "times of refreshing," through the ministry of the Word. We trust the place may prove a "Penuel" in future gatherings for the like purpose.

As the subject of Conference this year, there was chosen for us that precious portion of Scripture, Heb. x. 19—25, expressing so comprehensively the privilege and service of the "Sanctified in Christ Jesus." Entrance into the Holiest secured by the blood of Jesus and then in the strength of this heavenly communion, the walk and witness before the world, with mutual love among the members of the Church of Christ. The higher life of discipleship—in spirit now seated with Jesus in the heavenlies, and then letting that mind which was in Him shine forth before the world.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9.

Lord Polwarth presided. In an introductory address, breathing reverential love and delight in the Word of God, he invited attention to the portion of Scripture which was to occupy the thoughts of this and the successive meetings of the Conference. He spoke of the words being peculiarly appropriate for the opening of the Conference. Who calls us to draw near? he asked. It is Jesus who comes to us, and He says, "Let us draw near." He Himself is the first to draw near to God under the New Dispensation. He it is who throws open the door and passes right up into the presence of God—the great representative of humanity. By blood He draws near, for He did not draw near to the Father till He had given his own life's blood as an Atonement for us; then, and not till then, did He pass into the Father's presence. As we take these as our opening words this day, let us not hear the words of man, but of Christ Himself, the Lamb who is now in the midst of the throne.

Our subject is threefold—"having," with the corresponding duties, "let us." To-day we have the first note, "Let us draw near." How can we sinners draw near? God gives us the answer—"by the blood;" and we want a fresh sight and realisation of the blood of Jesus in order that we might draw nigh with boldness, that is, liberty or right of access into the Divine presence, and enjoy conscious fellowship with God.

Dr. A. A. Bonar gave the second address of the forenoon, and presented some precious thoughts in elucidating the portion of Scripture of the day. It is said that the dying believer never weeps; family and friends around his couch may be weeping, but his eyes are dry. He has a glimpse of the glory beyond the shadow of death, and the eternity of glory in the presence of his Lord. But that is not so certain as this—a dying believer need never have a fear; he has boldness to enter into the holiest. Then we honour God by the boldness with which we draw near, as by doubting we dishonour Him. The ground of our confidence is in the blood of Christ—not in looking for one moment on our character, our office, or our prayers, but looking on the blood, we may have unspeakable boldness and infinite confidence. There is no merit in faith. Faith just looks at the blood; and this is our privilege to-day, to draw near in filial confidence.

Another important thought. It is called "a new and living way." The word "new" is in the original a peculiar word; it means fresh.

"The merit fresh as though but newly slain."—Toplady.

"A living way," no withered leaf therein, no symptom of decay. This blood instead of sounding in our ears death, death, is always sounding life. Then the way is said to be "consecrated for us." Sinners of mankind, the very fact of being one of the human family gives you a right to this new way. As sinners we had no right to the air around us, but any sinner has a right to this consecrated way through the rent vail of his flesh into the presence and favour of God. The vail was not only composed of the fine linen—symbol of righteousness—but striped with blue, purple, and scarlet, denoting royalty as well as righteousness. All through the vail were wrought figures of cherubim—emblem of the redeemed Church. So this the Righteous and Royal One, bearing in his person his redeemed; and when it pleased the Father to bruise Him, they were crucified with Him. This union is not in incarnation, but in death. Incarnation only would have left us in a deplorable condition, showing us one in our nature keeping the law, and thus at every step only condemning us. It is not incarnation that saves us, but it is the Incarnate One crucified for us. Thus, then, with a true heart—a heart true to the one point of the blood—and sprinkled from an evil conscience—a conscience foreboding evil—"Let us draw near."

The afternoon meeting was given to free conversation, which was on the subjects of "Access to and communication with God," and "Meditation and study of his Word." Many of the brethren took part. In the evening was given a stirring address to Christians by Rev. Dr. Black, of Inverness; an address to young men by Mr. Oatts, of Glasgow; and an evangelistic address by Rev. Mr. Stalker, Kirkcaldy. There was a crowded gathering.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10.

This forenoon the Hon. Arthur Kinnaird presided, and after prayer by Rev. James Wilson, of Perth, he read the texts of Scripture given in the programme, and dwelt on the special words, "Having a great High Priest over the House of God, let us hold fast."

Dr. Monro Gibson, of London, took up the subjects of the day in an address of remarkable freshness, richness, and fervour. That the second provision for encouragement to "draw near" is "that we have an High (or rather Great) Priest over the House of God." That the same idea is referred to in Heb. viii. 1, where the Apostle says, "Now of the things which we have spoken this is the sum." More literally (v. 12) this is the "chief thing"—"that we have such a Great Priest set on the right hand of the throne of God." There is a question as to what is meant by the "house of God." Some say the Church; others say heaven. In chap. iii. 6, "Christ as a Son over his own house, whose house are we." It is evident the Church is intended; but it is plain that it is heaven which is meant in ix. 24. But is it necessary that it should be one of these meanings to the exclusion of the other? May it not rather embrace both? Proceeding in this sense of the term, "house of God," we had from the Rev. Doctor a most lucid address in exposition of that precious truth, the oneness of the family of God, part on earth and part in heaven. He used, by way of illustration, the Tabernacle, with its two chambers separated by the vail. Should that vail be removed, the two would become one. Such is the Church since the removal, by the rending, of the vail at the death of Christ. To the eye of faith it is one house, while to the eye of sense there still remain the two divisions, part of the family in heaven and part on earth.

Another striking illustration was drawn from the brethren of Joseph in Pharaoh's house—What must have been their feelings when ushered into the presence of, to them, such unaccustomed grandeur; but what confidence was inspired, and what a change must have come over them, when they found themselves in the presence of their own brother! So the Great Priest over the house of God is our brother-man, and though possessed of all power in heaven and in earth, He is not ashamed to call us "brethren." Thus we may well feel "at home" in the house of God. Then when Joseph made himself known to his brethren, they were troubled, as all their past sin rose up before them; but Joseph says, "Come near, be not angry with yourselves," and finally makes arrangements for them to leave all their poverty and to dwell with Him. Then he kisses them, and what a load would be lifted off their hearts. So with the Lord Jesus. He says come near, be not grieved; and then He unfolds the fulness of God's forgiving love. After this there may well follow all familiar intercourse from which all fear is banished. But after all, this story comes far short of the great reality, the love which found expression in the cross of Christ, and which flows from his heart every moment. We must take this and every other similar story and run them out into infinity, so as in any way to comprehend the love of God.

One other illustration the speaker used was imagining some lovely place, the very perfection of a home, with all the things which one could desire; still, however lovely, it may be no home for you—you are a stranger to the people who dwell there; but if the eldest son was to introduce you as his dearest friend, you are no stranger now; you have a welcome from all. But if even then, though you had a right to be there, you could not enter into their conversation and were not prepared to take part in their manner of life, there would be something wanting to make you feel at home. Now both difficulties are met by having a Great Priest. He will furnish all the fitness we require for rest in the presence of God.

The afternoon was again occupied by open conversation. The first subject was personal service in sympathy with the intercession of our Lord, when the responsibility for self-sacrifice on the part of Christians possessed of independent means was pointed out, in the way of going out themselves to the missionary field; and illustrations were given of this in the instances of known workers in the China Inland Mission, and the devoted party of lady workers associated with Miss de Broen in her Mission in the communistic district of Belleville, in Paris.

After this, in a long but most interesting address by Dr. Stirling, of Perth, this feature in Christian service was most impressively insisted upon. He cited an individual case of a young lady, daughter of a missionary, passing a most self-denying life among the Kaffirs of South Africa, with no other reward but the favour of her Lord and the burning desire to win their souls for Christ.

Professor Henry Drummond followed in a very interesting address, confirming from personal observation all that Dr. Stirling had brought out, and pleaded for Medical Missions as the most important of all missionary agency for influencing the degraded tribes of Africa.

Brief addresses were also made touching Anglo-Indian work, the McAll Missions in France, and the cause of Temperance.

In the evening, a very interesting address was given by Rev. J. G. Paton, a missionary from the New Hebrides, on the remarkable success of missionary work in that cluster of islands in the South Seas. Impressive evangelistic addresses followed by Mr. Jas. Balfour, W. S. and Rev. J. Smith, of Berwick. The hall was again densely crowded.

[The concluding portion of our report will appear next week.]

MR. W. FORBES closed his Gospel Temperance meetings in the North Riding of Yorkshire on Sunday last with two services in the Wesleyan Chapel and Friends' Meeting-house at Kirby Moorside. At the close of the meeting on Friday a man of position in the neighbourhood, who had for some time given way to intemperance, rose up, made an open confession, asked for the prayers of the audience, and then signed the pledge.

"IN DUE SEASON YE SHALL REAP."

ABOUT seven years ago some half a dozen Christians went to work in open-air meetings in a small village near London, given over to Sabbath-breaking, drunkenness, and blasphemy. Ridicule, jeers, opposition of various kinds met them at first, but by degrees calmed down to a certain extent. In the winter months a Sunday-school was started and some week evening meetings. Little or no impression was made apparently for some three years or so; then a few came forward and confessed the name of the Lord Jesus, amid the scorn and mockery of their neighbours.

A coffee-room was now built, through the kindness of a lady then residing in the neighbourhood, and a considerable advance was made in the work amongst the people. Several signed the pledge, sobriety became a little more popular, and at length the influence of the Gospel testimony, backed up by the consistency of the lives of the Christian converts, began to be felt.

The work of the Lord went forward until twelve months ago, when the little chapel that had done duty for a Mission hall became too small. Last autumn a series of meetings were held by these earnest people to stir up fresh interest in the Gospel work, and to raise funds for the purchase of a freehold site whereon to build a new and large Gospel hall. In the following spring the site was chosen and paid for, and a small balance was carried forward towards the building fund. But, better still, these meetings were the means of leading five or six to seek and find the Lord Jesus. We appealed in THE CHRISTIAN for help for this work, and in response to numerous private appeals sufficient funds were obtained to warrant the commencement of the building. Mr. R. H. Hill, of 9, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, was commissioned to erect for us a hall to hold 300, with a good-sized back room for the necessary tea-meeting appliances.

Last week this hall was sufficiently advanced to be opened for public worship. Accordingly, on Sunday, the 7th inst., the opening services were held, and on Tuesday, the 9th inst., the work of laying two memorial stones and of more formally opening the building with a Harvest Thanksgiving Service was proceeded with. A glad and wondrous sight met our eyes, and filled our hearts with joyful praise. The sowing time had passed, and the harvest thanksgiving had come, not only for the bountiful harvest of grain, but for the more glorious harvest of souls ripening for glory. Scarce any of the early workers were present. They have scattered, some to the country, one to Canada, one to the Congo Mission. Some have gone home to the eternal rest. But the fruit of their labour was there.

On the Tuesday afternoon many of the villagers gathered for the stone-laying. These stones were plain enough, bearing no names of donors, but the words of Scripture. On the one are the words, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away;" on the other: "God commandeth all men everywhere to repent." They were duly laid by Mrs. George Soltau, and Miss Coventry, of the Mildmay Deaconess House; and when the open-air meeting was over, and the doors were opened, a pleasant surprise was awaiting us. Loving hearts and willing hands had toiled for hours to decorate the hall with the appropriate harvest-thanksgiving trophies. From iron tie-rods hung beautiful clusters of plants in bloom, supplied by a florist, who is one of the converts of the winter meetings. Tables well spread for a good tea filled the hall, and in a few minutes every seat was taken; and when tea was over, and the seats re-arranged, numbers were passed into the bright and pretty hall.

And who were they? Row after row of rejoicing Christians, almost all gathered in during the last six years. Such singing, such hearty responses, such willing offerings of hard-earned money, such praise to God for the gift of salvation! Never had Barlingside seen such a festival, never before had we seen so beautifully illustrated the words: "In due season ye shall reap, if ye faint not."

Just on the eve of leaving England for a lengthened stay in Canada and the States, no sight could have been more cheering to our hearts or more stimulating to our faith. The days of ridicule and scorn had passed, the battle had been fought, and the many once under the power of drink, blasphemers, unholy, unthankful, were there, washed and sanctified, to rededicate themselves to the Master's service, and to unite for further efforts to push forward the work.

In conclusion, we would say that Mr. Hill has shown us how to build a substantial and pretty hall in brick, at the average cost of thirty shillings a setting, and, further, that we are needing £250 more to complete and fully equip our building. Mr. Hill will be glad to receive at 9, Clement's-lane, E.C., any further offerings for this work in our absence from England.

GEORGE SOLTAU.

THE SAILORS' REST AT HANKOW.

THE evening of Tuesday, July 8, witnessed the occurrence of an interesting event in Hankow. At certain seasons large bodies of those "who go down to the sea in ships, and occupy themselves in great waters," especially from tea-ships and national war vessels, gather in its harbour. When on shore they develop the peculiar characteristics of seamen, and too often indulge in vicious pastimes and the debasing use of alcoholic stimulants, till scenes of riot and disorder are witnesses of the malign effect of sensual gratification. Some place of resort with good surroundings has long been needed for them, since the ordinary resource of clubs, the only provision for public foreign enjoyment in China, is debarred them. Thus they have been forced to seek amusement and refreshment in the vilest dens of native caterers to brutal appetites, or wander at large in weariness and neglect.

This state of affairs enlisted the earnest services of Mrs. Griffith John, and she conceived the idea of erecting a sailors' home in an eligible location, where creature comforts could be enjoyed—always excluding intoxicating drinks—where intellectual provision should be made for those who wished it, and the blue-jackets could congregate at will. A place was desired where they could receive religious instruction at appropriate times, and where the recipients of its comforts could indulge in mutual conference and vocal music. Two years since, failing health forced her to America, and thence to England, where Mr. John was called to meet her, never expecting to see her return. The London Mission gave him important work to do among the churches of England, Scotland, and Wales, and Mrs. John became able to accompany him. While he gave himself to purely missionary work, she was not less zealous in presenting the claims of the sailors in the Far East, and her labours were rewarded by the collection of the sum of £233 3s. for the work. To this has been added $102. 80 from a few friends in Hankow, and the result is a completed structure, thoroughly equipped for its uses, and very attractive; the building itself is of graceful proportions and an ornament to its locality. To save expense of ground a lot was set off from the south-east corner of the London Mission compound.

The structure is of one storey, semi-cruciform in shape, with three gables, and Gothic windows with small diamond-shaped panes. The pediment over the front entrance has the title—"The Sailors' Rest" in raised gilt letters, and over it an anchor and cordage. In the western pediment is the sacred cypher, "I.H.S.," also gilded, and under it a trefoil window of stained glass. Within, there are three rooms, one for a service and song room, one for a library and reading-room, and one for a dining room. Should occasion require, folding doors allow all the rooms to be thrown into one. Without, under a separate roof, are a storeroom, kitchen, and office. The rooms are all sufficiently well furnished, with appropriate mottoes upon the walls, and a fine organ is in the service room. The sums above named have paid for all, and the attractions of the place can scarcely be surpassed. Its situation is very convenient.

Mrs. John had provided a supper on Tuesday for the company, and nearly forty sat down at the tables, while pleasant converse enlivened the repast. Of the number, more than half were from H.B.M.S. Fly, here in harbour. The religious and literary exercises commenced at about 8.30, and continued till fully ten o'clock. Rev. Griffith John presided, and Mrs. John conducted the music. The organ proved very fine and effective. Appropriate hymns were sung, and prayers were offered. Following the introduction, short addresses were made by Mr. John, Mr. Scarborough, and Mr. Hill, General Shepard, Captain A. E. Knights, Mr. Gillison, Mr. John Archibald, of the Scotch Bible Society, and Messrs. Cooper, Hawes, and Wilson, of the residents. The seamen also contributed their full share of entertainment, and addresses were made by Mr. Symore, first engineer of the Fly, Partridge, Roston, and Wayley, and one or two others. There were pithy and eloquent things said, and plaudits echoed out the pleasure that reigned. Mrs. John rose, upon being vociferously called for, and expressed her wish that the Home should be assumed as the joint possession of all the missionaries of whatever denomination for benevolent work among the blue jackets, that it might be in reality a home for all.

It is pertinent to note that much interest was manifested in the institution by the benevolent societies at home.

A very pleasing feature of the evening remains to be noted. At the close of Mr. Partridge's address, he produced and presented to the Home a very nice clock, on behalf of his associates on the Fly. It was a graceful act, gracefully performed, and the timekeeper was hung upon the wall, with an outburst of hearty applause. Thus had been established an institution in the very heart of China which is intended to be productive of great good. It is freely open to sailors of all nationalities, and we trust it may be to them in sober reality a place of the most attractive and sacred of home influences.—North China Daily News.

RAILWAY WORK.

THE work of the Gospel among railway men was never more appreciated or blessed than at the present time. There are scores of open doors in different parts of Great Britain. Appeals reach us from every quarter, pleading for meetings to be held among the men. Now is the time to grasp the precious opportunities; they may soon be gone.

We are anxious to see every large and small railway station in the Kingdom visited by downright earnest Christian workers, and shall be glad to hear from any ladies and gentlemen who desire to do so noble a work. Will such write to us at once? In many places a lady or gentleman conducts the work, in others the men themselves. Swansea, Sheffield, Derby, and Rugby have had special seasons of blessing lately. One lady writes:—

"It poured in torrents last Sunday, but over forty men came to the Bible-class." Another letter says: "They say that nearly all the porters at the —— station are converted, and they are so happy together; such a time has never been known on the line." Similar extracts might be given, but space forbids.

If your kind readers will pray for our work, join us in it as far as they can, and help us to provide funds for the ever-increasing demands, we shall be most thankful. Tracts and books also will be very acceptable. We shall be glad to send our monthly organ, The Railway Signal, to any who will send one penny stamp.

D. SPENCER, Secretary.

Railway Mission, 186, Aldersgate-st., E.C.

Notes and Comments.

In a letter just received from Mr. Moody he states that he is busy with the arrangements for his boys and girls' schools at Northfield. He hopes soon to have them in good working order, and will then be free to resume evangelistic work with Mr. Sankey. Our readers, we are sure, will not forget to plead earnestly with God that the labours of our brethren in their own land, during the coming winter and spring, may be richly blessed.

Mr. Moody is very anxious to have his Northfield seminaries thoroughly equipped with a library of useful books. We mentioned this about the time of his departure from our shores, and many friends sent parcels. Now that friends are returning from their holidays, others may be able to respond to Mr. Moody's wish. Mr. Robert Paton, 186, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C., has consented to receive parcels of books both for the Northfield schools and for the Y.M.C.A. that Mr. Sankey is promoting at Newcastle, Pa., his native town, and to forward them to America. Those who purpose contributing books for these objects are requested to forward them to Mr. Paton not later than the first week in October.

Mr. Henry Cook, of the Seamen's Mission, Gosport, writes that his schooner, on the 4th inst., was driven by a gale first upon the Dutch coast and afterwards upon the sands at Gunfleet. For three days they were in a very perilous position. The ship was providentially rescued by the lifeboat men of Clacton-on-Sea, but the charge for salvage and the cost of repairs will amount to a considerable sum, for which Mr. Cook is absolutely without funds. We hope his friends will help him liberally and speedily.

The Church Congress about to assemble at Carlisle, under the presidency of the Bishop of that diocese, has no lack of stirring topics for discussion set down in its programme. But the criticism is not without just ground, that so little room should have been found for distinctively spiritual themes. Ecclesiastical rights and controversial subjects of a semi-secular kind occupy nearly the whole of the space, while a marked absence of those things for which Christian churches are supposed to exist is noticeable.

Truth says:—

"Mr. Ellis Phillips, of 44, Warwick-road, Maida-vale, prosecuted Clara Govier for having followed him about all day, rung his bell at night, and hit him in the eye with a roll of paper. Clara Govier, who is twenty-three years of age, could only say in defence that the prosecutor was the father of her five children and would do nothing for them, upon which Sir James Ingham told her that she had no justification for persecuting the man all his life, and gave her two months' imprisonment with hard labour. I beg to differ from Sir James altogether. I should say that a girl of three-and-twenty who sees the father of her five children living at his ease is justified in 'persecuting' him until he does his duty to his offspring; and I protest that two months' hard labour is a monstrous punishment for giving such an individual a black eye."

We heartily endorse the protest. Some of the occupants of the judicial bench need to be instructed in morals and in humanity. Under any ordinary circumstances such a punishment for such an offence would be monstrous; under the actual circumstances it is inhuman, and ought by all means to be reversed.

The endeavour to form united centres of Christian fellowship and activity in the seaside resorts of our population is commendable in every way. Such a project is in view for Clacton-on-Sea, one of the rising watering-places on the East coast. That such an effort should be imperilled by attempts to thrust denominational interests to the front, would be an evil much to be deprecated. The multiplication of a number of small and rival religious interests in the midst of sparse communities, is already an obstacle in many places to Gospel progress. In the light of the urgent need that there is for co-operation among Christians, in order to cope with the growing evils of the time, it is strange that people are so slow to learn that our common Christianity is infinitely superior in its claims to that of any denominational shibboleth, whatever it may be.

The happiness of a monarch cannot be estimated by the extent of his territory, or the absoluteness of his power. He who reigns in the affections of his subjects, though they be few, is more really powerful and happier far than the autocrat of millions, who only obey through fear, and who lives in terror of his own subjects. These remarks find illustration in the noble and heroic conduct of Humbert, King of Italy, whose visits of condolence and good cheer to the cholera patients of Naples, in addition to his general good qualities, has just secured for him an enthusiastic reception, and a place in the hearts of his people, which forms a marked contrast to the position occupied by the great Czar of Russia in his entry to Warsaw. Never was a more pitiable spectacle of mock majesty presented to human view than that of the hapless Czar journeying from St. Petersburg to Poland. It may be, and doubtless is, more the fault of the government he represents than his own personal will; but better be the meanest subject of the realm, content and safe in the possession of one's little all, than the mightiest potentate on earth, guarded and barricaded round on every side, as the Russian monarch has to be. To be truly great, more is needful than mere might.

It is satisfactory to find that the Hospital Saturday Fund Collection shows this year an advance on previous years. The amounts received both from workshops and from the streets were in excess of last year, there being every reason to believe when all the sums are paid in, £2800, or £500 more than last year's contribution, will be realised.

The President of the Wesleyan Conference has done well in issuing a pastoral letter to the superintendents of circuits throughout the land, urging the propriety of special thanksgiving to God for the bountiful harvest just ingathered. The recognition of the Divine hand in the natural world is but too slight, even on the part of the Christian Church, so that such a step on the part of a great religious community like that over which Dr. Greeves presides, will be calculated to awaken thought on the fact that the seasons are ruled not by impersonal law, but by a wise and beneficent Creator, whose covenant purpose runs throughout the ages. The old promise still remains in force: "While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease." Sunday, September 21, is the day suggested for this general thanksgiving on the part of the Wesleyan Connexion.

A lady encloses an "awful" paragraph from The York Herald, and asks if we can blow a blast of the alarm-trumpet which may stir up some of the Mission preachers who go to Hull, as to the state of the place, adding that it ought to be spelt with an e. The paragraph states a case in which a man was summoned for an offence against the Licensing Act, but incidentally proved to have been guilty of much graver crimes:—

"Yesterday, before Mr. Twiss, the Hull stipendiary magistrate, Wm. Parkes was charged by warrant with selling intoxicating drink without a licence. Mr. Campbell (the chief constable) said the prisoner was originally summoned, but he failed to appear, and a warrant was issued for his apprehension. Nothing further was heard of him until the previous day, when the Sunderland police sent a telegram to the effect that they had arrested Parkes. Detective Pearcy thereupon went to Sunderland, and brought the defendant to Hull. The chief constable said that during the time Parkes resided in Hull he harboured girls of twelve to fourteen years of age. Frequently mothers had gone to his house and asked for their daughters, and he had assailed them with the most horrible abuse. He should feel it his duty therefore to press this case with the greatest severity. Inspector Elliot proved the case, and said that the defendant's house was commonly known as the 'Infants' School.' Witness, on one occasion, entered the house in search of a girl whose mother had been inquiring for her, and he found as many as fourteen girls, not one of whom was more than fifteen years of age. The chief constable said it was believed that some of these girls had been abducted. Inspector Elliot said a woman out of Barmston-street had asked him for her daughter on the date named, and he was determined to put a stop to the 'school' if he could. After the prisoner absconded the 'school' was broken up, and the premises were now turned into a joiner's shop.

"Mr. Twiss observed that the prisoner's offence was punishable with six months' imprisonment. Mr. Campbell: And I shall ask you, sir, to inflict that punishment. In 1881 the defendant was fined two sums of £25 and £50 respectively for offences against the Licensing Act; and in 1882 he was again before the Court, being on this occasion fined £75 and costs. Last year he absconded. Mr. Twiss ordered him to stand down, and said he would take time to consider how to deal with the case. Prisoner was subsequently fined £100, or to be committed for six months."

Now what strikes us in this decision is the incongruity between a fine of £100 and six months' imprisonment. The fine is comparatively no punishment at all to a ghoul like this, who fattens upon the moral and physical corruption of children. Money so obtained ought not to be received into the treasury of a Christian nation, and such a monster ought to be punished with the severest penalty of the law, which is, after all, utterly inadequate to his deserts. The Chief Constable and the Inspector deserve thanks and praise, but the police can scarcely be expected to act up to a higher standard of morals than is established by the magistrates and judges. These are fairly boasted of as being above bribery, but Christian opinion must force upon them an equally high sense of moral purity.

The Royal Albert Orphan Asylum at Bagshot has just celebrated its twentieth anniversary. It was founded in memory of the lamented Prince Consort, and has always been an object of deep interest to our Queen. 860 families, from among the poorest sections of the community, have been relieved by the agency of this institution, which pays no regard to creed or locality, only aiming at the relief of real need. 224 children are at present being trained within its walls, boys and girls being equally divided. Such institutions are among the features of our national life, which form the true glory of our land.

Can a man tread upon hot coals of fire and his feet not be burned? Can nations break the laws of God and ensure success? The London and China Telegraph says that their appreciation of the merits of the case has compelled Englishmen to sympathise with the Chinese and their allies in the quarrel thrust upon them by France. And yet (continues our contemporary) now that the crisis has come, we are driven by our material interests to wish success, and speedy success, to the aggressive Power. Because a real success in a European war would mean such a revival of Chinese obstructiveness that life would become as intolerable as in the old days at Canton; and the infliction of a crushing defeat by some on or by all of the Powers concerned would be necessary to make political and commercial relations again endurable. Whatever their opinion, therefore, of the merits of the quarrel, foreigners must now wish for the success and the speedy success of the French arms. Foreign interests require a speedier termination of the dispute than is implied in casual acts of destruction or aggression—however discretly the doomed spots may be selected. France must therefore undertake a great and costly expedition striking at Pekin, where the kernel of Chinese resistance is to be found, and where only terms of peace can be successfully imposed!

This is indeed a bare-faced advocacy of the good old plan that they may take who have the power, and they may keep who can. Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people. Admiral Hornby proposes a similar high-handed and violent course on the same lines as above, but is well answered in the columns where his letter appeared—in the Pall Mall Gazette.

In the same number of the journal quoted from above, is an article on Chinese State Deities, State Temples, and State Worship, in which the reverence and devotion of the Chinese are held up to admiration. The writer, after referring to their ready and thankful acknowledgment of any good they believe they have received from heaven, saying, "Thus we learn that the Chinese whom foreigners in general are accustomed to deride as an ungrateful race, are not unmindful on such occasions as these, at all events, of the debt of gratitude which they owe to Imperial Heaven for mercies received. It would perhaps be well if foreigners were to imitate the Chinese more closely in this as well as in many other respects I could mention." This is a noteworthy comment upon the atrocious opinions expressed in the former quotation.

Among the most important items of political news for the past week is that of the retirement of Lord Ripon from the Viceroyalty of India, and the appointment of Lord Dufferin in his place. The post is one of ever-growing responsibility and interest, rendering the character and ability of him who holds it a matter of serious concern. Time was when the collection of revenue was almost the only duty to be performed; but such has been the transformation wrought in Indian civilisation, that a governor of that vast country now finds himself in the midst of a native population as critical, and to a large extent as well informed, as that at home. Happily Lord Dufferin's past experience and proved ability in the administration of foreign affairs are such that there is every reason to believe he will efficiently discharge the duties of his new position.

Mr. W. Catlin is, we understand, about to take Sadlers' Wells Theatre for the coming season. He will be glad of help from those interested in Theatre Services.

We have received several letters, in addition to those that have already appeared, commenting adversely upon Mr. A. S. Dyer's criticism of "Hospital Experiments on the Poor." As they only reiterate the protests of Dr. Sutton and the "Medical Student," whose communications we have published, it does not seem necessary to continue the discussion. We think Mr. Dyer, while having sufficient grounds for his accusations, if applied to a partial and restricted extent, was too sweeping in their application. No profession, we suppose, is free from the disadvantage of having unworthy members in it. It may also be taken for granted that the very familiarity of medical men with disease and suffering inevitably tends to take the edge from their sensibilities in dealing with those who are at once patients and "subjects" for study and experiment. It is certain, at the same time, that the public is continually owing a vast debt to the medical profession for kindness shown and labour expended without fee or reward.

A good suggestion has been made by Mr. Clermont Ganneau, that a museum of Jewish antiquities should be established in London, having in connection with it an extensive and animated panorama of the Holy City and dioramic views of the principal localities and of characteristic scenes of popular life in Palestine. There are a goodly number of articles in the hands of the Palestine Exploration Fund Committee—sufficient at least to form a nucleus, and there can be no doubt, if attention were more specifically directed to it, a large number of important and interesting remains illustrative of Jewish life and history might soon be obtained. Mr. Ganneau advocates the idea that now the survey of Palestine, carried on by the "Exploration Fund," is completed, the same agency might be employed in making excavations under the supervision of trained and competent antiquarians. Surely the time has come for Zion "when the peoples take pleasure in her stones, and favour the dust thereof."

It is a cause for deep regret that so invaluable an institution as Dr. Barnardo's Homes for Destitute Children should suffer for lack of funds. No agency established in our midst has better proved its claim to be regarded with generous favour, and sustained with utmost liberality. It meets an ever-increasing need in a way which must commend itself to all who really know its methods and results. Just now, in the absence of the Director, we commend these excellent institutions to the remembrance of our readers.

The autumnal session of the Baptist Union will be held this year at Bradford, at the same time that the Congregationalists are assembling in London. The subjects to which prominence is to be given are Sunday-school work, to be introduced by Rev. Dr. S. Green, the Vice-president; Juvenile Discipleship, by the Rev. J. R. Wood, of Holloway; the Progress of the Denomination during the past twenty years, by Dr. Angus; and the Progress of the Church of Christ during the same period in our own country, by the Rev. C. Williams, of Accrington. Foreign Mission work will, as usual, occupy the first day.

WAS IT RIGHT OR WRONG?

A CORRESPONDENT, for whom we have the greatest regard, writes the following note concerning the shipwrecked crew of the Mignonette:—

"It is happily rare that a question involving such deep moral casuistry as that raised by the terrible tale of Captain Dudley and his companions comes before us. Human life is so sacred a thing that to apologise for its sacrifice by human hands under any circumstances seems repulsive to the moral sense; but there are times when it is impossible to apply ordinary rules of judgment to human conduct, and when it is the part of earthly tribunals to suspend judgment, and leave issues in the hand of Him who alone can weigh evenly all the events of life. Surely in the case of the unfortunate crew of the ill-fated Mignonette, those who have never known the bitter anguish of maddening hunger and tormenting thirst may well suspend their verdict of harsh denunciation, and throw a veil over an incident which, like that connected with the late Greely expedition, should be buried in the silence, if not oblivion, of pitiful compassion."

We go all the way with our friend in pitiful compassion for the men who were placed in such terrible circumstances, in their open boat, without food, upon the barren and stormy sea. Any harsh denunciation is very far from us. Neither would we dare to boast what we would do or not do if placed in the same appalling circumstances. But right and wrong are not dependent on circumstances. And it is a very dangerous principle to lay down that "there are times when it is impossible to apply ordinary rules of judgment to human conduct." It is in extraordinary cases that ordinary rules of judgment are tested. It is in difficult cases that lawyers consult their authorities most diligently. It will never do to say that we have not, in the word of God, an infallible guide for every possible event in human life. "Thou shalt do no murder" is true, and always true, at sea as well as on land.

If this maritime country were to lay down the principle that to kill and eat a fellow-creature under even the most terrible privation is justifiable homicide, where should we stop? In the Greely expedition the death was natural; in the Mignonette the boy was not dead, though dying. Let the deed be justified, and the next case will be that though not dying, the weakest was killed to feed the stronger. The women and children of a burning or foundering emigrant vessel might well prefer to perish in the waves or flames, rather than escape in a boat with the knowledge that it was an accepted principle that the weaker, under extreme circumstances, were to be food for the stronger.

Chivalry, humanity, and how much more Christianity, accepts and adopts the Divine principle, that "we that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please [nor save] ourselves." Most pitifully would we judge the survivors of the Mignonette, most freely would we set them free; they have suffered and will suffer terribly enough; but by no means dare we justify their deed (if indeed their confession should be judicially received as true), for that would be cruelty and unrighteousness towards the weak and helpless. Perhaps there is never a day in which some boat-load of shipwrecked sufferers is not tempted to solve the same fearful problem in the same awful way. "Self-preservation is the first law of nature," but self-sacrifice is the first law of God.

THE HOME FOR DRESSMAKERS and Milliners at Leamington will be carried on by Miss Bagster, during the absence for rest of the superintendent, Miss Taylor. Address, 14, Regent-st, Leamington.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE COPENHAGEN CONFERENCE.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2.

IN one of the minor halls a German section assembled in the morning, with Dr. SCHAFF as chairman.

Dr. BAUMANN said that since the report on the state of religion was made at the Bâle meeting of the Alliance the watchword had been to make Christianity practical, not by any force of the Church authorities, but to revive the flame that was under the ashes, and to fan it into a deep glow. The number of powerful writers and preachers was on the increase, and even the popular literature was more allied to Christianity. The work of the Inner Mission was making progress in many directions, while the shadows were still very dark. The attendance on the Evangelical Alliance Week of Prayer showed a decided increase, and also there had been more interest taken in conferences. The power of the voluntary principle was on the increase.

Professor OETLI presented a Report on the Religious Condition of Switzerland. He described the last five years from 1878 to 1883 under the head of the three parties in Switzerland. The first was the Reform party. Even in that party there was a struggle to recover faith in God, in sin, and in the Atonement. Then there was the Orthodox party, with whom it was to be regretted that there was a want of a recognition of fresh science, while there was agreement of active and earnest work. Next came the Middle party: they undervalued doctrine, but had so far done well in keeping other extreme parties together, and in hindering a too violent separation. With regard to organisation, the school teaching had, in many cases, by political action, been deprived of a religious character, but under the law many voluntary schools, still in harmony with the law, taught religion, and whatever attacks had been made upon them by the Radical party, with a view to prevent the voluntary introduction of religion into National schools had generally failed. The State Church, through its own proper organisation, had shown great weakness in all these struggles. Great masses had turned the public-house into a church. Temperance societies were urgently required. Temperance efforts, including the coffee-house, had great success. Special evangelical efforts in imitation of those of Messrs. Moody and Sankey had been tried in Bâle, and to a certain extent they had succeeded. But there were also shadows in the work, such as over-exaltation of special means, and employment also of female preachers, as well as a disposition generally to hasty testimony of converts; but some of these were abated.

The pastor next touched on the delicate question of the Salvation Army, the history of which he narrated. Most of the people, he said, were unfavourable to their practice, and in the Church opinions were hostile. At the same time, it was necessary to condemn the persecution to which they had been subjected. The difficulty of the friends of the Evangelical Alliance in this whole matter had been very great, as, on the one hand, they had to pronounce in favour of religious liberty, and to do so without committing themselves to the undoubted excesses of the Salvation Army. The branch of the Alliance in Switzerland had taken this course in remonstrating against the severities inflicted, and had deeply lamented the weakness of the authorities, as well as the hatred of Evangelical religion that had come to light in this passage of their history.

Time is precious at these international conferences, and there is rarely an opportunity for anyone to take part in discussions, except those speakers who have been previously selected, and whose names appear accordingly on the programme. But it so happened that time was left for open conversation on the subject of the Reports that had been presented; and the Chairman accordingly invited observations. In the course of this discussion

Professor GODET agreed with Professor Oetli with regard to the Salvation Army, although he thought more might be said for them. Professor Oetli had laid too much stress upon the duty of remaining in the State Churches, because what were students of divinity to do when the Professors were taught Rationalism. When they could not be educated in the doctrines of the Gospel, what could they do but come out and separate themselves? That had been so in the University of Zurich.

Professor OETLI denied that such men had been wanting.

At this stage, "Colonel" CLIBBORN, of the Salvation Army, rose and complained of the misrepresentation, by Professor Oetli, of the procedure of the Salvationists. He asked the learned professor whether he had himself been to any of the meetings of the Salvation Army. (Professor Oetli made no reply.) In England they had reclaimed more than 50,000 drunkards, and wished only to recover the souls of men whose salvation was admitted on all hands to be greatly neglected. He came simply as a Christian entitled to speak at the Conference of the Evangelical Alliance, and did not want to do more than to correct the imperfect statements that had been made.

Dr. CAIRNS spoke of the progress, which he had himself witnessed, of Evangelical truth in Germany since the time when he was a student in that country forty years ago. He could well remember the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance in Berlin in 1857, and had been present two years ago at the Jubilee of the Gustaf Adolvereine in Leipsig. Between those periods he had noticed great progress. He did not mean to deny that there were great advances yet to be made, but the recent Luther Celebration in Germany had filled him with hope, as such an event would have been impossible at any of the earlier periods of his knowledge of Germany. He was not prepared to subscribe to everything he found even in German theology, but acknowledged the great services that had been rendered by it to Christian literature.

AFTERNOON.

In an afternoon meeting reports on the state of religion were read from Greece, by Rev. Dr. KALOPOTHAKES, of Athens. After a cursory historical review, he said that notwithstanding the opposition of the clergy, the Protestants of England and America had during the past half-century made considerable efforts for the spiritual enlightenment and elevation of the Greek people. It was estimated that within the past twenty-five years over 100,000 copies of the Word of God had been circulated in Greece, besides many thousands among Greeks resident in Turkey. The Government permit the free dissemination of the Scriptures, and afford protection to the colporteurs against the opposition of the clerics in the Greek Church. The four Gospels are used as a reading-book in the highest classes of the primary schools throughout Greece. It is expected that the present minister of education will introduce the New Testament into the higher schools. Gospel preaching is as yet on a limited scale, owing to the lack of qualified preachers. There is much encouragement in the work of distributing religious tracts, books, and papers, while there is not much that can be asserted as to the results of evangelical preaching. A marked improvement is observable in the attitude of the people generally towards the Gospel.

Pastor ANET, of Brussels, also submitted a report on the state of religion in Belgium.

A ROYAL VISIT.

The evening meeting was a remarkable one. The announcement had been made at previous sittings of the Conference that the members of the Royal Family intended to be present, and consequently the capacious hall was crowded. The Royal party on entering the building were received by the local committee entrusted with the Conference arrangements. Then, conducted by these gentlemen, the King and Queen, the Crown Prince and Princess of Denmark, the King and Queen of Greece, Prince Waldemar, and other members of the Royal Family, with their suite, walked down the centre of the hall and took the seats (easy chairs covered in crimson and gold) which had been in readiness for them from, and even before, the opening of the Conference.

Sir W. MCARTHUR, M.P., of London, presided. After prayer and praise, in which the members of the Royal party heartily joined, Dr. KALKAR briefly offered a cordial welcome to the Royal visitors.

The CHAIRMAN, in appropriate terms, accentuated not only the sentiments of loyalty and affection manifested in Denmark, but the deep interest felt by Englishmen in all that concerned the welfare of that kingdom. There were many ties, he said, which bound together the two countries. The commercial relations were extensive and satisfactory, but no bond was more powerful than that which allied the two Royal families together. Referring to the alteration of the place of meeting of the Conference from Stockholm to Copenhagen, the Chairman said he was sorry for Sweden, but glad for Denmark; because, wherever the Alliance went, it left a blessing behind, and produced a beneficial influence upon the churches of all denominations.

"The Mission of the Evangelical Alliance; or, The Discord and the Concord of Christendom," was then discussed in an able paper by the Rev. Dr. Schaff, of New York; a condensed report of this address appeared in our last issue.

Pasteur THEODORE MONOD, of Paris, next gave an address, entitled, "Our Dangers, our Duties, and our Hopes."

Before quitting the hall, the Royal party exchanged very hearty courtesies with Sir W. McArthur, as chairman; with Dr. Schaff and Pasteur Monod, as the speakers of the evening.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3.

On Wednesday there was only one sitting, the afternoon and evening being reserved for an excursion to Roskilde. The Conference reassembled in the morning, under the presidency of Colonel de Buren. A paper was contributed by Professor CHRISTLIEB, of Bonn, on "The Religious Indifference existing among various classes, and the best means of meeting it." An outline of the paper will be found on a preceding page. An able paper on the same subject, by Rev. Dr. MARSHALL LANG, of Glasgow, was not read for want of time, but we were enabled, through the kindness of the writer, to give our readers the benefit of it in our special issue of last week.

On "Christian Methods of dealing with Modern Social Problems," the Rev. Professor Redford, M.A., London, read a paper, which in its main points we have reproduced elsewhere.

THE EXCURSION TO ROSKILDE

on Wednesday was most successful and very enjoyable. No fewer than 1000 members and friends of the Alliance were conveyed by special train; and on their arrival they found the town en fête, gay with banners and bunting, and the streets lined with the people of the place. The cathedral, a fine structure, full of historic interest and filled with works of art, had its doors wide open in an inviting way. Every seat was soon occupied, and when the music had ceased, the Venerable Archdeacon, in well-chosen words, earnest and true, spoke of the blessedness of Christian union, and warmly commended the principle of the Alliance. The congregation was then conducted in parties, and shown the many objects of attraction within the cathedral, not the least of which are the tombs of the Danish kings, whose remains rest in the several chapels. Beautiful statuary and magnificent paintings also adorned the sacred place.

These interesting sights absorbed the attention until the signal was given to retire for a repast spread in a public garden close by, where the variety of provisions vied with the quantity. Nor was this all. A meeting in the open air was improvised, and Pastor TOLSTRUP—to whom is due much of the credit for the admirable arrangements—gave a brief address of welcome to the Alliance members. For the Danes, Dr. Kalkar responded; for the British delegates and friends, Mr. Arnold, secretary of the Alliance; for the French, M. de Pressensé, and for the other nationalities, their respective representatives. The spectators, too, had their share in the demonstration, if such it might be termed. Addresses of an evangelistic character were delivered to them; and once more, as the day was fast declining, the whole company returned to the cathedral, were a sacred concert was given, consisting of music of a high order, the choral parts being exquisitely rendered.

The party returned to the railway station along streets thronged with the inhabitants, many of whom with simple-hearted kindliness had resorted to domestic luminants for the means of lighting the passage of the procession. The whole party got safely back to the capital, after having enjoyed one of the most delightful excursions.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4.

The Crown Prince and Princess, accompanied by the Chamberlain of the Household of the Lady-in-Waiting, attended the Conference on Thursday. In the morning they were present in the large hall while Professor Godet, of Neuchâtel, was speaking on "The Basis and Authority of the New Testament Scriptures;" and later on the Royal party passed into the lower hall, in order to listen to the reading of an admirable paper which the Crown Princess had specially signified her desire to hear from Dr. Sinclair Paterson, of London, to whom H.R.H. was pleased to express her thanks personally. The Conference was also honoured with the presence of the Crown Prince and Princess at the evening meeting; on both occasions they evinced considerable interest in the valuable and instructive addresses which were given.

The addresses by Professor Godet and Dr. Paterson were reported in our last week's number, as well as those of Rev. Wm. Arthur, Professor MacVicar, Prebendary Anderson, and Mr. F. Hartley, all delivered on the same day.

Interesting and useful exhortations were given at the morning session by Rev. Dr. Fabri, Barmen and Rev. Professor Myrburg, Upsala, on the need of returning to Christian simplicity, as an essential condition of the revival of true religion in our time. One of the afternoon addresses was by Dr. Eustace Conder, Leeds, on "The Harmony of Science and Revelation." This paper will appear, so we understand, in an early number of Mr. Guinness Rogers' magazine (The Congregationalist), published by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton.

Pastor Skon presided at the public meeting in the evening. The Crown Prince and Princess of Denmark and suite were present. An address was given by Pastor MUNCH, who still maintains a position of separation from the State Church in Christiania. He spoke with great feeling and earnestness on "Christian Courage and Consistency in Daily Life." Mr. James Croil, of Montreal, Canada, spoke on Sunday-school work.

The same evening, Pasteur Theodore Monod delivered a stirring speech on "Evolution," and drew together a considerable audience in the Lower Hall.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.

Christianity and philanthropy formed the general subjects discussed on Friday, when the attendance, though a little thin at times, showed no serious diminution, and the interest in the proceedings of the Conference was evidently well sustained throughout the whole day. A not inconsiderable number had left the Danish capital for their distant homes, but the vast majority of foreign members remained, attracted in some measure, no doubt, by the presence of Royalty at the Conference, and encouraged to stay in this fine old city by the continuance of favourable weather. The few showers that had fallen during the week had served to cool the atmosphere, and to make the air refreshing.

Dr. Marshall Lang, of Glasgow, presided in the large hall, and at the opening of the day's proceedings made an earnest and practical speech.

A paper on "The duty of Liberal Giving in support of work for the Lord" was then read by the

REV. R. S. ASHTON,

of London. The following is a summary:—This was a branch of Christian obligation, he said, but little considered, and scarcely recognised, by vast numbers of the professed followers of Christ. If there was an age when counsel and warning were needed on this point, it was the present age, with its gigantic enterprises and hazardous speculations, undertaken by men hastening to be rich. That religion and business, church and politics, were distinct spheres, each with rules and maxims of its own, was an old fallacy, utterly opposed to the spirit of the Gospel, and must therefore be abandoned for ever. This evil, and especially as it bore upon the undue love of money and eager pursuit of wealth, should be pointed out by our preachers, who should urge with greater plainness and frequency the privilege, no less than the duty, not only of giving themselves to the Lord, but of consecrating a proportion of their substance to his service.

As to the exact proportion, Scripture was silent, and so should we. The tithes required of the Jews rather pointed to a principle of giving than to a law binding upon us. One-tenth of our yearly or weekly income might be regarded as a fair proportion, but in some cases it might be too much, while in many more it was certainly far too little. Let the Church seek to reduce its giving to a system. For want of system much money was wasted, and very much more was not raised. He recommended a weekly offering system as worthy of the consideration of the whole Church of Christ, as it worked wonders wherever it had been properly tried and efficiently worked. Let every member of the Church, rich and poor alike, pledge himself to give so much every week. This system presented obvious advantages: whereas a weekly collection yielded an uncertain amount, a weekly offering was a known quantity, and might be relied on. In the absence of system, many givers imagined that they gave more than they really did contribute. Viewed in all its aspects, financially, economically, educationally, and spiritually, the system was worthy of adoption. It was easy and practical.

Dr. CAIENS gave an interesting account of the "Sabbath Morning Breakfast Movement in Edinburgh." "Charitable Work in Holland" was the topic of a contribution by of which the following is a translated summary:—

REV. DR. VAN WYK,

Referring to the good effects of Christian work, he spoke of the happy influence of men well known in connection with the Evangelical Alliance. In Holland, in spite of the prevailing frivolity, many works on Christian faith were now appearing. There had been a general awakening, which had divided itself into two parts. One portion had left the State Church—the Separatist Dutch Church, which had about 150,000 adherents, 378 congregations, and 280 ministers. Besides there was a great awakening within the State Church, and among them had been division. One party wanted to keep more to the existing organisation, and the other to create something new. Here the saying of the President of the Synod of Dort in 1618 had been fulfilled—that, when God's people began to work, Satan divided them. They had been principally divided on the question of education. A favourite idea was to have one Church for the whole population, and accordingly no distinct teaching was possible, because there was a large Romish population, also Jews, Remonstrants, and Irvingites. As the Church, however, woke, it was impossible to maintain this character of conformity without divesting religion of all distinctiveness on the one side, or inflicting great injustice on the rest of the population. Hence an effort had been made to find an escape from the difficulty by voluntary education, and the great work had been begun of the late Groen van Prinsterer. They had fallen upon this idea of voluntary education in order to restore religious education in its fulness.

In this way the Dutch people had proved themselves true to what was greatest in its natural history, which was as full of sacrifices as any other history in Christendom. There had been a change in the State system of education in 1878, but only to make it still more humanitarian. The free system was every year on the increase. At present they had 410 schools, 905 schoolmasters (supported at the annual expense of 178,000 marks), with a corresponding number of scholars. The lowest classes took part in supporting these schools. The whole Protestant population of Holland was 2,000,000.

The second subject was the Inner Mission, in which the Dutch had begun to take a wide interest. They had always had a philanthropic character, but their works of kindness during the period of Rationalism took more of a humanitarian character. The revival had elevated this in different ways. He then referred to hospitals and similar institutions of a charitable character. A large orphan house had also been founded, which had at present received 640 inmates. There were also efforts to improve the means of religious instruction, such as Sabbath-schools, and young men's societies, lodging-houses for apprentices, also missions among soldiers and sailors. There were training schools for evangelists, and they had also begun to hold meetings in the open air. Efforts had been made to diminish intoxication, and these were attended with the creation of coffee-houses, while steps had also been taken to diminish prostitution. In regard to the latter, he mentioned the honoured name of Pastor Feirsen, whose work resembled that of Mrs. Josephine Butler, of England. A great Conference had been held at the Hague last year with this object. An institution called "Talitha Cumi," had been established, and similar means of protection afforded. Upon the whole the text might be applied to Holland, that whereas fifty years ago the people walked in darkness they had received light. In conclusion, he made an earnest appeal for prayer and help.

On "Charitable Work in North Germany, contributed a paper, in the course of which he gave a favourable report of Protestantism in the Austrian Empire. The Edict of Toleration granted a century ago by Joseph II. had prepared for the evangelistic labours of the present day, and now the hindrances to Christian work were comparatively limited. There was now no difficulty in holding the Week of Prayer in Vienna, which he had attended this year; and the Emperor had lately spoken favourably of the character of his Protestant subjects. He gave some details as to works of Christian philanthropy in the Reform Church, and mentioned that among the disciples of Martin Bos who had preserved their existence, a Christian congregation had at length been formed.

PASTOR KOTSCHY

On "Christian Responsibility in regard to Prevailing Immorality," papers were read by Pastor Holch and the Rev. Dr. Dalton (of St. Petersburg), both of whom were opposed to the state regulation of vice. Pastor Holck dwelt particularly upon three points: (1) The allowance in Christian countries of open vice; (2) the difference in public opinion about the morality standard for men and for women; and (3) the immoral literature of the age. Dr. Dalton instanced some striking examples showing that the vice was becoming worse and worse in its character.

There was no ordinary meeting of the Conference in the afternoon, but a considerable number of members assembled in the Lower Hall to hear addresses on "The Deepening of Spiritual Life." Lord Radstock commented on the 1st chapter in the Epistle to the Ephesians, the Rev. J. B. Figgis on Rom. vi. 14, and General Field on a portion of 2 Tim. ii. Prayer and praise occupied the rest of the meeting.

(To be concluded in our next.)

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.—Mr. John Burnham's address will be Blenheim Villa, Windmill-road Brentford, until further notice.

THE MILDMAY INSTITUTIONS.

By Mr. JAMES E. MATHIESON.

READERS of William Howitt's "Northern Heights of London" are familiar with the suburb of Stoke Newington, on the banks of the New River, a favourite habitat of members of the Society of Friends. The fields which separated it from the great parish of Islington have all been built over, and part of these constitute the district of St. Jude's, Mildmay Park. Hither, as first incumbent of the newly-built church, William Pennefather migrated from Barnet in the year 1864, and here he lived and laboured till his life's close in 1873. The iron room in which at Barnet he ventured upon the experiment of a first Christian Conference in 1856 was removed to Mildmay, and the faith and courage which had overleaped the advice and remonstrance of friends and brethren were abundantly rewarded when in 1870 the new Conference Hall was completed, and received its first audience. This building, reared through the liberality of Christians of various branches of the Church of Christ, has perhaps the best auditorium of its size in London, and accommodates over 2500 people.

Yearly, at midsummer, numbers gather here from all parts of the country and from other lands for three days' Conferences on spiritual topics. The far-reaching influences of these annual Conferences I need not stay to dwell upon; the printed record of them is widely circulated; and the multiplication of conferences of a similiar character is a marked development of the Christian life of England at this day.

In the Conference Hall there is Gospel preaching every Lord's Day, conducted by a variety of evangelists; and many meetings of a missionary character are held throughout the year, the building being granted free of charge for such purposes.

In the rear of the Conference Hall stands the commodious dwelling occupied by the Mildmay Protestant deaconesses. I say "Protestant" deaconesses advisedly. Ours is not a High Church sisterhood, and vows are not imposed upon the ladies who join our company; nevertheless they constitute a band of consecrated women, who have given themselves and their all to the Lord, and find his work a joyful service. The beginnings of this deaconess enterprise were at Barnet; the numbers have now increased to one hundred, occupying some twenty-five Mission centres in the worst districts of north-east and south London. I name some of these. We have two Missions in Hoxton, two in Caledonian-road, and a large and varied work in Bethnal-green, three Missions in Walworth, two in Old Kent-road, and two in Lambeth; and for the convenience of our south-side workers a deaconess-house was opened four years ago in Brixton. In Bermondsey. West Ham, Brighton, and Northampton are resident deaconesses. All this work is under the direction of Mrs. Pennefather, one of the nobly-gifted women of our time, the true help-meet of the founder of these institutions

The deaconess work is of the most varied character; besides systematic visitation of the poor in their homes, they hold mothers' meetings, conduct sewing-classes, night schools for men, for boys, and for girls, and organise Gospel meetings in the schoolrooms or halls placed at their disposal by the parochial clergy, or otherwise secured; and the Temperance movement goes hand in hand with the Gospel in raising numbers of the poor and degraded to habits of honesty and sobriety, and into the knowledge of the love of God. The poor are not slow to perceive the reality of that religion which leads ladies of education and culture to live and labour among them for no earthly reward; and however valuable other agencies may be, we unhesitatingly claim for this that it is the most influential for good that has hitherto been devised; the numbers and strength of the workers being the only limit to their success under God in reclaiming men and women who have sunk low in sin and wretchedness.

To show the influence of Christian women over rough men, we can point to our night school held in the large rooms under the Conference Hall, where on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings from October to April inclusive 400 and 500 working men may be seen quietly studying under the guidance of some forty to fifty ladies. A multiplication of such classes would vastly diminish the dangers which beset modern society.

Mildmay is scriptural in the methods it pursues, and finds our Lord's ways of working the best ways. His invariable practice of healing the sick, and his unrepealed command to his disciples—"Preach the kingdom of God and heal the sick" (Luke ix. 2, x. 9)—are neglected truths very partially revived in our own generation. In our two Mission hospitals—in Bethnal-green and at Mildmay—we have had blessed experience of the value of the combination of gospelling and healing. The visits of deaconesses to squalid homes of the poor discover many forms of disease and sickness which only the constant tending of hospital physicians and nurses can cope with, and the simple message of God's love and salvation has been gladly received in these two houses of healing by many humble souls, to whom the bright and cheerful words and the tender sympathy of the nursing deaconesses have revealed new thoughts of human kindness and possibilities that God has not forsaken them utterly. One of these Mission hospitals is the gift of a beloved lady, and our convalescent home at Barnet has been provided by the thoughtfulness of a nobleman and his wife.

It remains to be said here that a self-supporting branch of our work is that of the nursing institution, nearly one hundred Christian nurses being attached to our nursing home, from whence they go out to private cases, their value being recognised by a large and increasing circle. Is it out of place if I here call attention to the practical divorce in these days of the work of preaching the Gospel from the work of healing the sick? The Founder of Christianity placed these two great branches of his work side by side and not apart; He was concerned for the bodies as well as for the spirits of men. In no country is there more Gospel preaching than in our own; in no other country are there more numerous or better equipped hospitals; but the preaching is often ineffectual because unaccompanied by any effort to reach bodily misery; the healing is comparatively a small blessing when the soul is left in darkness concerning the Great Healer.

One of the prominent texts in our Conference Hall runs thus, "Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity," or, as the revised version gives it, "in uncorruptness" (Eph. vi. 24). The thought in the heart of Mr. Pennefather was to gather there again and again those who answer to the above description; and while his love to the brethren was unfeigned and wide-spreading, he was faithful to Evangelical truth. Sometimes we are called ultra-Evangelical; we admit the fact, and with God's help we mean to continue in the same mind.

And here it would be fitting to notice another of the favourite texts which meet the gaze of the audience in the Conference Hall. High above the capacious platform are these words, "Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus" (Rev. xxii. 20). The doctrine of the speedy return and personal pre-millennial reign upon the earth of our Lord and Saviour is a cherished belief at Mildmay, not only among the workers, but, I feel warranted in saying, among the great majority of those who habitually attend our great gatherings. In a leading magazine a few years ago the public was informed by a well-known Socinian minister that this belief had died out of the Church. The contrary is the fact; the revival of this doctrine in our own and the last generation has gathered a multitude of adherents, larger than ever before or since the Reformation, and now embraces the Evangelical portion of the Church of England, the whole of the so-called Plymouth Brethren, and a select few among Scotch Presbyterians; if it is neglected by Sacerdotalists and the bulk of Nonconformists we lament the loss they thereby sustain.

Last, but not least, the Jews are not forgotten at Mildmay. The bulk of our work is in the home Mission department; but we have a share in foreign Missions, for our training home is now preparing ladies for work in the zenanas of India; our Mission hospital at Jaffa and our nursing Mission to our soldiers at Malta, though out of sight, are much upon our hearts. But no Christian organisation can be complete which leaves out of account that wonderful people who are now coming prominently to the front in all the lands of their dispersion—the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. While concentrating efforts for the conversion of the Jews in East London, through medical Mission and other agencies, our brother Mr. Wilkinson's aim is to offer the Gospel to every Jew in England; and this is gradually being accomplished through his itinerant Mission.

For the support of all this work a large sum of money is required. The Jewish Mission is a separate fund; the other outlays of Mildmay require a total of £25,000 per annum. For several years past about one-half of our income has been derived from two sources—nurses' and other earnings and contributions of many of the workers. When in need of money, and that is very frequently, we have recourse to prayer; and our Heavenly Father is not unmindful of us, and has put it into the hearts of many of his children to supply our recurring needs.

In my desire to be brief I have not attempted to explain the arrangements for preparing our workers, first in the probation house and then in the training home; and I can but enumerate several other branches of the work—an extensive flower Mission, which reaches many hospitals and infirmaries; an orphanage for little girls; an invalid ladies' home; an extensive work among railway men, carried on at five centres in and near London; a promising movement among the North London police; and a vigorous branch of the Open-air Mission, which is nourished by Bible-classes on Lord's Day, morning and afternoon. The Association of Female Workers, with a membership of 1600 in various quarters of the world, of which Mrs. Pennefather is president, and Mildmay the headquarters, has proved a source of strength and comfort to home and foreign missionary labourers for a long series of years. Service for the King, published monthly by J. F. Shaw & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, gives fuller details of the work of Mildmay.—Pall Mall Gazette.

FLOWERS FOR INVALIDS.

IN connection with the Girls' Friendly Society we have a "Flower Mission" for the sick. As it is found impossible to keep up a supply of flowers during the winter months for our invalids, we have decided to send them dried flowers and leaves mounted on cards with some well chosen words of comfort inscribed upon them. These cards, when tastefully arranged, can be made very attractive, and the pleasure of my walks during my stay in Switzerland has been wonderfully enhanced by collecting flowers and leaves for this purpose. I found many kind friends to help me, and I am returning to England laden with a capital supply of lovely cards for the sick girls belonging to our society.

My object in writing is to induce some of your readers to do as we have done, and to lay in a store of autumn leaves, grasses, mosses, ferns, and such flowers as can still be obtained, and which are likely to press well. They should be placed between blotting-paper under a heavy weight, and firmly pasted or gummed on to the cards, on which some comforting words should be plainly written or printed. Lastly, a piece of silver paper should be attached to the card to preserve them from injury. Many of your readers are doubtless visitors in hospitals and workhouse infirmaries, but if those who are unconnected with such institutions would kindly send the flower-cards to me I will undertake that during the ensuing winter they shall be given to patients in London hospitals and infirmaries. The parcels should be directed to The Lady Brabazon, care of Miss Bellson, 12, Montague-villas, Richmond, Surrey.

Lucerne, Switzerland. M. J. Brabazon.

MAJOR POOLE AT STAFFORD.

A VERY successful ten days' Temperance Mission has been held at Stafford by Major and Mrs. Evered Poole, supported by the Earl of Lichfield, the Mayor of Stafford, and other eminent persons. Advantage was taken of the occasion to formally inaugurate a Young Men's Club and Café at Stafford, which Temperance workers have been labouring to establish in the corner premises adjoining those of the Stafford Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association. On one occasion the Earl of Lichfield in a telling address said that five or six years ago he was very seriously ill, and he could never thank God sufficiently for having laid him on a bed of sickness and given him an opportunity of thinking more seriously than ever before.

For some time he was very ill indeed, and consulted a good many doctors; amongst other things the question of Temperance turned up. He had never drunk much wine, but still he had always had his three or four glasses at dinner, and his doctors strongly recommended him under no circumstances to give it up. As he got no better, however, he took the matter into his own hands, and, having given attention to the Temperance movement, he determined in spite of the doctors to try total abstinence. It was three years ago that he gave up everything containing alcohol, and he had never touched it since. For the first three months he often thought the doctors were right, but having made up his mind to the thing, he determined that so long as he could hold out he would try it. Then, at the end of three months, he found the benefit of it, and from that time he had continued to improve. Sir Andrew Clarke, who was attending him at the time of his illness, was one who recommended him to go on with the wine. About nine months after he gave it up he met Sir Andrew Clarke, and explained how he had disobeyed his recommendation, and the results. Dr. Andrew Clarke expressed his delight, and said he was convinced his lordship was right in what he had done. No one in the profession was more anxious now to advance the Temperance movement than Sir Andrew Clarke, or more ready to admit that he was wrong when he had recommended people to go on with wine and had found they could do without it.

But his lordship had another reason for giving up his wine. He was chairman of the Quarter Sessions here for a long time, and he knew the drinking evil was a fearful one. He had thought about it a great deal and spoken about it occasionally, but he always considered the subject a difficult one. He was much impressed with what he saw while chairman of the Quarter Sessions, and he was always very anxious to see his way to something like an effectual remedy to the state of things which he saw in the course of his duties and in visiting—as he did pretty regularly—that gaol with its 600 or 700 residents, and 600 or 700 temporary occupants every year, and the lunatic asylum. He was strongly impressed with the conviction that a large proportion of those who found their way to those institutions had been brought there through drink, and the question weighed upon his mind as to whether it would not be right for him, as an example, to give it up entirely. The question whether it was right or wrong in a Christian to set the example of total abstinence was simply a question of conscience. He having become a total abstainer, found it difficult to understand how a person's conscience could tell him that it was right not to abstain. He was quite sure there were many whose consciences did not tell them that, although they were as anxious as some of the abstainers to advance the cause of Temperance. Unless a man's conscience pointed clearly to its being right to become a total abstainer, they could not blame that man if he did not become so, but they desired to do all they could to persuade him that it was right. They hoped before the end of the Mission that many in the town of Stafford would be brought to see it in that light.

The share in the work taken by Mrs. Poole, who is only partially recovered in health, was confined to singing a few solos.

Prayer-meetings have been held every day, which have been attended with increasing numbers and interest, and pledge-taking has been prosecuted with vigour.

GOSPEL PROGRESS IN GERMANY.

THE readers of The Christian will be glad to hear that the work of the Lord is beginning to change the hearts of many in Germany. From many people I have learned that the labours of Dr. Ziemann have been largely blessed, and a desire expressed that he may come again.

Many opportunities have been afforded to me, during my short stay on the Continent, to speak about the one thing needful. In the town of Kelbra (an agricultural town), the people flocked together after a day's hard work in the field at eight o'clock, and listened most attentively. Many had come to hear the Word who had not been to hear God's Word for many years. In another place the people crowded together on Sunday afternoon, and many of the hearers were affected to tears.

On Sunday, September 7, I went to the Cathedral of Berlin, and the Court preacher, Pastor Stocker, preached to a crowded congregation the true Gospel. I never saw so large a congregation more attentive, and I am sure his words were like arrows. In the afternoon the City Mission celebrated its annual festival. As Paster Stocker and Herr Von. Schlümbach were announced as speakers, I went, although it was about ten miles from Berlin. I was not a little surprised when we reached the place to find at least 3000 people, principally from the working classes, assembled, and this in a pouring rain.

Mr. Von Schlümbach spoke from the words, "Rejoice in the Lord." The people listened most attentively to a thorough Gospel address, and one could see in the countenances of the people that they drank in the Word, which cannot be doubted will lead many to Christ. After I had spoken from the two last verses of Isa. xii., the Court preacher, Pastor Stocker, followed with a most solemn Gospel address in the plainest language. Many, I believe, surrendered themselves to the Saviour. Many who used to be numbered among the Socialists are now true believers and followers of Christ.

What Germany needs is true evangelists to support Stocker; he is willing to give the right-hand of fellowship to such. The Court preacher is loved by the people. He speaks the truth in love to the rich and poor. Pray that God may send the true labourers into the fields of Germany, which is ready for the harvest.

Yours in Christ, M. Laseron.

Berlin.

REV. E. VANORDEN writes from Rio Grande do Sul:—"In a few months the Southern Brazil Railroad Company will open its line from this port to Bagé, far into the interior, and being very anxious to resume colportage, I request very earnestly the friends of the Lord's cause to help me defray the expenses for one year—£100. One of my Sunday-school teachers is a direct result of colportage, and it has proved a great help to my work."

GRAYS, ESSEX.—About eighteen months ago a Workman's Institute was opened in Grays, Essex. Although much labour and expense have been bestowed upon the place to make it successful as an institute, for some time it has been a failure financially. The committee, therefore, have handed the place over to the Rector of East Thurrock, who, relying on the assistance of friends, has engaged as missionary Mr. Veryard, who has had considerable experience in Christian work, having laboured for several years with Miss MacPherson and Rev. R. C. Billing of Spitalfields. Many conversions have already taken place. The readers of The Christian are asked for their prayers and practical sympathy. Help will be thankfully received by Miss Smalley, East Thurrock Rectory, Grays. G. Simons.

AT POYNINGS, SUSSEX.

AN ancient church, low, cruciform,
Weathered by centuries of storm.

Surrounded by "God's acre," gay
With flowers this sweet autumn day.

Bending beneath the wind's faint breath,
In seeming reverence to death.

Blue harebells, and proud poppies red,
Amid the lines of lowly dead.

I lingered at the oaken gate,
As those who at the King's door wait.

From up the sunlit stretching weald,
With all its lovely wood and field,

Came sounds of harvest-time, the cry
Of children as the wains went by,

Laden with sheaves of golden grain
Ripened by summer sun and rain.

But I was sad: a shadow's fall
Darkened my soul, as with a pall.

A cloud-shade o'er a little mound
Of newly-upturned, grassless ground.

And dreaming of the death in life,
My heart was filled with doubt and strife;

And in the downs and chalky combes
I saw but nature's mighty tombs,

Although their green and blossomed sod
Was formed and sloped and smoothed by God.

"All life," I said, "is short and vain,
The whole creation groans in pain."

But as I mused I sudden heard
An anthem from a tiny bird,

That, perched above, sang loud and long,
Spending its little life in song,

And then a whisper came, "If now,
Puzzled by thoughts of sorrow, thou

Would'st solve the mystery of loss,
Gaze at the church's form, the cross."

I turned: mine eyes with tears were dim:
From out the church an old world hymn

Swept softly, as if he who played
Feared to disturb the dead low laid.

In prayer my head I lowly bent,
From off my heart the shadow went,

And sunlight, like a breaking wave,
Gleamed o'er the little flower-decked grave.

James Bowker.

Requests for Prayer.

THAT God will bless Richard Weaver, junior, in preaching the Gospel and refuting infidelity every Lord's day morning near Battersea Park.——For the poor people at Madagascar, whose land is being so cruelly invaded.——That God would prosper the efforts to obtain an Act of Parliament for the stopping of the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday throughout the whole of England.——For blessing on evangelistic meetings at Barking from Sunday, Sept. 21, to Sunday, Sept. 28, to be conducted by James J. Scroggie.——For Cheddar and its neighbourhood, that the Lord may awaken sinners and lead them to confess Christ.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for the ensuing week:—Sept. 21, Zech. viii. 13—23; Sept. 22, Zech. ix. 9—17; Sept. 23, Zech. xi. 1—14; Sept. 24, Zech. xii. 1—10; Sept. 25, Zech. xiii 1—9; Sept. 26, Zech. xiv. 1—11; Sept. 27, Zech. xiv. 12—21.

POOR CHILDREN IN ST. PANCRAS.—Mr. Thos. Clutterbuck, of the London City Mission, who is superintendent of the Ragged School and Band of Hope at 196, Seymour-street, Oakley-square, writes:—"The work of gathering these children together from the courts of this great parish of St. Pancras was commenced at the beginning of this year, and the effort has been crowned and blessed of God. I have started a clothing fund to clothe the poorest of them, and would feel grateful for any gifts of men's, women's, and children's left-off clothing, hats, or boots."

ORPHAN HOMES OF SCOTLAND.

TUESDAY, September 9, was another notable day in the history of these institutions. Four new buildings were being added to the group, making seventeen in all, and Mr. Quarrier, the honoured founder of these Homes, very appropriately arranged to hold a thanksgiving and dedicatory service in connection therewith. He felt, as all must feel, that it is a good thing to give thanks. Whoso offereth praise glorifieth God, and the way to get more is to be thankful for what we have got.

Two o'clock was the hour fixed for the service, and by that time about 500 friends were on the grounds, many of them clergymen of all denominations, and merchants, who had left their occupation for the day, to be present on the occasion. Everybody seemed delighted to see the wonderful progress that had been made during the last seven years in the erection of such suitable homes for the destitute little ones; for now there are buildings capable of accommodating several hundred children, at a cost of upwards of £40,000. And there are more to follow, from intimations given, making this institution indeed one of the brightest expressions in Scotland of the Christian philanthropy of the present century, while they stand as a testimony to God's faithfulness in answering prayer.

For the sake of our English readers, we may state that these homes are situated some fifteen miles from Glasgow, near Bridge of Weir, on an old estate, purchased for the purpose, and the buildings, while plain, are exceedingly neat and substantial, as if intended to do good service for many a long day to come. Each cottage or villa cost about £1500, and they are all so arranged as to give the whole group quite a village appearance. No common charity dress is worn by the children, but the family principle is observed as much as possible, each house having so many boys or girls, presided over by one or more experienced Christians who fill the place of parents.

Going up the avenue you see on the left the houses set apart for the girls, and one larger looking building, called "Bethesda," for the sick ones; and then on the right you see the houses set apart for the boys, who, besides receiving a good English education, are taught different trades, and trained with the view of their becoming useful, Christian men. Then at the end or head of the group, you see a magnificent central building, in which there is a hall capable of holding 500 people, bright and cheery, with flower pots on the window sills, and texts of Scripture on the walls, and a large arrow at either end, with these words inscribed below—Look up. And this they all seemed disposed to do on this occasion, to look up and thank God for all his marvellous goodness.

The hall was crowded. Mr. A. Cameron Corbett, of Moxhall Hall, Warwickshire, took the chair, and opened the proceedings by asking the friends assembled to rise and sing the first four verses of Psalm ciii. Rev. Dr. Hutton, of Paisley, Moderator of the U. P. Synod, offered prayer, after which apologies were read by Mr. Hunter from a large number of friends who were unable to be present.

Mr. Corbett then referred to the fact that it was four years since the last thanksgiving service was held, and that during the year four new houses had been added to the group; and as Mr. Quarrier carried on his work in ever complete dependence on the Divine care, it was very appropriate that they should meet together to give God thanks. To him it was one of the strongest possible evidences in favour of Christianity, that without adopting the ordinary means of securing subscriptions, the wants of so many children were daily supplied in answer to prayer, yet we were all called upon to take a share in this great work, and when £16 a year provided for the wants of a destitute child, how many might by a little self-denial give such a sum. We cannot escape our responsibility by passing by on the other side. Victor Hugo beautifully remarked that the responsibility which arising from the brotherhood of man, implies responsibility for the fatherhood of children, and so these little neglected ones in our large towns are a charge upon all who have Christian hearts, and have the means of helping them.

Mr. James Campbell, of Tilliechewan Castle, said that for many years it had been one of the studies of his life to do what he could for the neglected young. As chairman of the Industrial Schools, thousands had passed under their care, who might have been waifs till the day of their death. If people in this great country were to have extended privileges, they must have knowledge; and it was a joy to think that the discipline of these homes not only made the children educated, but fitted them to be creditable members of the body politic, and to be citizens of the heavenly country.

After a few remarks from ex-Provost Campbell, of Greenock, in which he expressed a hope that a dairy would be added to the training appliances, the Rev. Dr. Elder Cumming, of Glasgow, offered prayer for blessing on two of the new houses recently added—the Cessnock and Mizpah Homes. Thereafter,

Mr. J. Campbell White, of Overtoun, said that they had come, not so much to thank Mr. Quarrier, who did not wish thanks, but God, from whom all blessings come. And they had much reason to give thanks when they saw the bright faces of the little ones in their Homes. Yet what had been done was only to be an incentive to aim at greater things. It was said that a great German teacher used to take off his hat to the boys when he entered the classroom, because he didn't know what possibilities for good there lay concealed in their young bosoms; and so they might feel in regard to many of the little ones around them. Let us help as we can, and let us remember the old saying: "If thou forbear to deliver them that are drawn unto death, and those that are ready to be slain; if thou sayest, Behold, we knew it not, doth not He that pondereth the heart consider it?"

Rev. Mr. Salmond, of Glasgow, offered prayer for blessing on the Leven Home and the Gatehouse Home, after which

Mr. Quarrier said that he was glad to have in the chair the son of the man who was the first donor to the Orphan Homes of Scotland. It was Mr. Corbett's father who was led to give the first £2000 in answer to prayer, for he did not know what my resolutions were, nor did he know what this was to grow to. It was twenty years next November since he (Mr. Quarrier) first mustered courage to come to the public in the way of public work. It was on September 13, thirteen years ago, that he decided to trust God for everything. The opening day of the Homes was September 17, six years ago. The second thanksgiving day was September 5, four years ago, and the third thanksgiving day was September 9, 1884; and as he was born in September he had naturally a very special liking for that month. On the opening day they had the central building in which they were gathered, and three cottages. Then four years thereafter three were added, and two years thereafter two were added. Now we have other four put to the number, and only yesterday a friend said, "I am ready to build another." Thus they come one by one. At present there are 300 in the Homes, every house being full. Yet we have only touched the borders of the orphans of the land. There are thousands still to be reclaimed from the poorhouse and from the slums. Destitution and houselessness are the titles of entrance to the homes, and they are received as long as the beds last. And there is no favouritism—first come, first served. During the last two years, his aim had been to rescue one child a day, and that he had accomplished. Now the number is to be doubled; and, in place of one, two are to be rescued every day; and for this he hoped and prayed that the number of his helpers would be increased. He didn't think that many of the Lord's stewards in Scotland, and especially in Glasgow, gave as their might. He had 500 mouths to fill, and by the end of the year he expected to have 700, needing tons of meat and bread, and who was to have the privilege of sending in the supplies, God only knew. He believed everything needful would come in the future, as in the past.

Miss Annie Macpherson, of London, was then introduced, and in the course of a very interesting address said, that there was a building being reared in connection with this work that no eye saw. Souls were being saved, and some were already home, watching and waiting at the golden gate. After referring to the case of one of the boys, who had become a student in America, and was looking forward to medical mission work, she expressed a hope that now there was a scare on the Continent many Christian friends would go across to Canada, and see for themselves the good that was being done among the children.

The Doxology was sung, and a most interesting and spirit-stirring meeting was closed with the Benediction.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Glasgow.—Evangelistic work in the New City-road district has been carried on for many years with much zeal by Mr. D. J. Findlay and a band of hearty and devoted workers. During the summer season the services are held in a tent, and this year a time of much blessing has been experienced, and many have been led to the Saviour. Mr. Thomson Cockenzie was the evangelist for August, and every night anxious ones remained for prayer or conversation.

The Bible and Gospel Van is again at Buxton, where such a happy time was spent in the fall of last year; many who received blessing then have come up and bid us God-speed in the good work. Since leaving St. Helen's we have visited Chester and Rhyl with most encouraging results. At Rhyl meetings were held every afternoon for children, who dug up and prepared the sandy seats with their little spades and buckets, and then sat down to sing the songs of Zion, and hear something between about Jesus.

Wharton and Weaver.

Country Villages.—Messrs. Edward Hurditch and F. C. Spurr are about to commence a series of Gospel Missions in the larger country villages and towns of Wiltshire, in connection with the London Evangelistic Mission. The idea is to utilise local effort in reaching, by special means, the unconverted. The Missions will be entirely unsectarian, and it is hoped that various chapels and buildings will be thrown open for this purpose. Will Christians in this county who could organise or unite in such effort, or who can supply any information about various places, kindly communicate with Mr. C. R. Hurditch, 164, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W. Would any friend give an American organ to be used for the work?

Children on Lytham Sands.—From August 23 to 31, Lytham sands were more than usually alive with children wielding toy spades and buckets. The little labourers might have been counted by hundreds, and, busy as bees, they built "Cathedrals." They were in their way complete. Seats, round ring upon ring, and pulpit in the centre. When service was going on, the children sat upon the seats and sang hymns. Mr. Kirlew and Mr. Ackroyd, both of Manchester, discoursed simple wisdom and plain Scriptural truths from "the pulpit." Children were not the only listeners. Anyone standing on the promenade could overlook the cathedrals and the worshippers within them, and on mornings and evenings a lengthened line—three or four deep—of people heard and saw all the proceedings, and were interested. When the weather was rainy or very boisterous, the preachers and congregation took refuge in the Baths Assembly-room or the Institute until Mr. Horsley, of the Clifton Arms, kindly threw open the Skating-rink for their accommodation. On two Sundays there were services in the Bath Assembly-room, which was crowded to excess, and many scores of people, wishing to obtain admission, had to turn away disappointed. Much interest was manifested.—Lytham Times.

SOLDIERS IN GIBRALTAR.—God willing, I am going to Gibraltar towards the end of next month to conduct a ten days' Mission amongst the soldiers there, holding Purity, Temperance, and Gospel meetings. If any of the readers of The Christian would like to intrust me with New Testaments, Bibles, or any religious literature suitable for men, for free distribution amongst them, I shall be glad to receive the same. James B. Wookey.

7, Lea-road, Luton, Beds.

WORK IN A MELBOURNE SUBURB.

DEAR SIR,—The work to which the following extracts from letters refer was begun four and a-half years ago. The meetings were held first in a small coffee-house; and, secondly, in a hay and corn store. As the work grew, a new and larger place was built early in this year; and it is a great source of thankfulness to all interested with myself in this quiet little work for the lapsed and outsiders in one of the Melbourne suburbs, that the Lord continues to own and bless it.

As one of the best indications of blessing that can be adduced, I may state that six or eight of the lads who are referred to began of their own accord last year a similar work about two miles beyond Kew, near to the place where some of them worked as woodcutters. They paid eight shillings per week for the hire of a room; and they have succeeded in gathering in a number of neglected people, amongst whom they hold simple meetings for bible-reading, exhortation, and prayer.

From my short visit of a few months to this my native land, and notwithstanding all the glorious and varied work done (some of which I have been privileged to share a little in), I can still see abundance of scope for Christian people "occupying" until He comes.

I pray that believers everywhere may be stirred up to do more for others, to the glory of Him who owns the little that is done so graciously and so wonderfully that one is ashamed at the comparatively few and fitful efforts put forth.—I remain, &c., DAVID BEATH.

114, Fore-street, London, E.C.

Kew, May 29.—We have been having quite a stirring up at Prospect Hill. The fortnight's Mission will be up to-morrow evening, and the new hall has had a good warming. It has been full every evening, and sometimes crowded. There have been some anxious ones nearly every evening. Mr. Harrison's addresses have been splendid. We are to have a tea-meeting for those who have received blessing, and expect Mrs. Baeyertz to address them. The Christian lads (previous converts) have been working and praying very earnestly, especially Johnson, one of the last brought in, who has become quite a good speaker and is most anxious about the unsaved. All our lads are anxious about those still outside, and their pleading with them during the meetings ought to have melted them all; however, we must hope on. All the Christians express themselves as having received great blessing.

June 10.—Mrs. Baeyertz had a splendid meeting at the hall last Friday. It was crowded, and there was a large after-meeting, to which many anxious ones remained, and some professed to have found peace. This was decidedly the best of all the meetings. Mrs. Baeyertz has not lost any of her old power. She is a wonderful little woman, and excels with the anxious. You will be glad to hear that Mr. G. manages the meetings very well indeed, and all the lads respect him. He and dear Mrs. G. have quite thrown themselves into the work.

June 25.—Last Sunday the hall was full with just the audience you would have been pleased to see—all (with few exceptions) non-church-goers, and a very large proportion of young men and lads. The hall has thus quite realised the object for which it was built. The Gospel is preached, and it is a blessed thought that the results do not rest with us. Our Christian lads are in high glee. Old B.'s face is a treat to look at.

June 30.—Mrs. Baeyertz was out again, and gave a very solemn address on Saturday evening to men and lads only. The hall was filled with a most attentive audience, and about thirty stayed to the after-meeting. Two young men, who professed decision, were present on Sunday evening, looking happy. You will see a great difference in the meetings when you return; and I am sure that you will find that all the Christian lads have grown in grace and knowledge of the Lord

Our Friday women's meeting has increased. We have now twenty to thirty every week. Mrs.—— has commenced another women's meeting on Mondays.

July 14.—We had a splendid meeting last night. Mr. Clarke was here, and spoke better than I ever heard him before on "How shall we escape." The hall was quite full. The new hall makes the lads more particular about their appearance, and does not hinder any from coming. Indeed, I think they feel proud of it, and it has raised their self-respect. The Christian lads are the door-keepers as before.

July 28.—There was an after-meeting last Sunday evening, at which forty—all men—were present, and dear Mrs. G—— addressed them most earnestly from 2 Tim. ii. 26. All were most attentive, and two remained to thank her after the meeting. You will find some new fine young men, recent converts, when you return, and all are most anxious about their fellows. The old ones often give a word of testimony. On the other hand, many of the undecided old lads keep coming, but are apparently no nearer decision.

GOLDEN LANE MISSION.

MR. ORSMAN has just published the twenty-second report of his well-known Mission to the costers of Golden-lane and Hoxton. Much thankfulness is felt for the spiritual prosperity enjoyed during the past year, and for the wiping off of the old debt, so as to be able to begin the new year quite free from previous liabilities. The Mission class-rooms have been completely furnished, the ventilation of the large hall has been improved, a club-room has been added for the Hoxton street-traders, and a waiting-room for the teachers, &c. Large audiences have been gathered regularly week by week, without any sensational attractions; and altogether 1125 meetings have been held.

The Open-air Services are numerous and effective, says Mr. Orsman, and of this an instance is recorded. "In September last a ticket-of-leave burglar and his mate (a female) formed part of one of our audiences. The man was convinced of sin, and of judgment to come; he followed the crowd into the Mission Hall, and at the close of the meeting asked to see 'the cove wot give out' the hymn in the street, 'The dying thief rejoiced to see,' &c. The 'cove' soon made his appearance, and to him the poor fellow confessed his position, emptied his pockets of skeleton keys and housebreaking implements, and was brought that night to his knees, seeking forgiveness of the Lord. In a short time he found peace in Christ, and came out boldly and confessed Him before his old companions. We bought a wedding ring for the 'mate,' and saw them properly married. A home was provided for him, a means of living found, and he became, and continues to be, a regular attendant at the Mission. His autobiography is a remarkable document, and perhaps may one day be published."

The Gospel services, Bible-classes, and prayer-meetings, &c., are as full of activity and spiritual life as ever, the Thursday Bible-reading being attended by 200 adults. Quite 1000 of the poorest children are under religious training in the Sunday-school and juvenile services, many of whom bid fair to become decided, useful Christians. The report closes with many thanks to kind helpers; and adds, "If they will encourage us by their help, as in former years, we promise them, in the name of the Lord, to intensify and quicken our evangelistic efforts among the poorest of the poor of this mighty London. We are still in H.M. Civil Service, earning our livelihood, and are thus privileged to give our leisure time freely to the delightful service of the King of Kings."

SURREY CHAPEL, LONDON.—A very good work is going on at this old place. A welcome was given on Sunday to twenty-five new members in the church, and new pledges are taken every week at the Temperance meetings. The best freehold site in the Blackfriars-road has been secured for the new Surrey chapel and schools, and over £2400 has been promised towards the fund. We shall be glad to acknowledge any donations for this worthy object.

ON YARMOUTH SANDS.

FOR fourteen nights we were enabled to hold services on these sands during the week, near the Jetty, and on Sunday on the concert stand, which we hired for the occasion. Having with me my wife and about a dozen of our Hyde Park Hall Choir, we were well supplied with workers, and the harmony of the new hymns from The Christian Choir soon attracted a goodly congregation. At one of the meetings five or six expressed a desire that then and there they might find "pardon, peace, and power." An elderly person—a nurse in a gentleman's family—was the first who gave thanks for the gift of God, and the next evening she was accompanied by one of the young ladies who at the closing service at the Corn Hall also found Christ. Among others who were converted were several smacks' boys, who testified to the power of the Gospel having reached their hearts.

Two years ago, in company with John Hambleton and others, I was here with a Bible Carriage, when great blessing was seen, and now many came to us and told us of their being blessed on that occasion. None of the churches of Yarmouth ever send any one to preach on the sands here, and unless the work were done by visitors like ourselves, away for a fortnight's holiday, there would be nothing done for the thousands who annually flock here. Many a watering-place I know is crowded with preachers and workers, but all confess to the lack of systematic aggressive work in Yarmouth.

I purpose now paying a short visit to some French and possibly Italian prisons, and would ask the prayers of your readers that God's lessing may rest on the word spoken and distributed. CHAS. COOK.

HOMES FOR WORKING GIRLS IN LONDON.

THE above Homes, as our readers know, were established for the benefit of girls and young women who are employed in the factories and workshops of London. An encouraging report for the past year has just been published, special note being made of the goodness of God in having granted much spiritual blessing, and in providing Christian women to conduct the superintendence of the Homes, through whose gentle and paternal influence many of the girls have been led to seek and find the Saviour. Further extensions of the work are also in contemplation in the addition of two more Homes to the already existing seven. For one of these projects the Countess of Aberdeen has received £700 from the readers of The Girls' Own Paper, towards the £1000 required. It is also observed that good health has almost invariably been enjoyed by the young people, whose best interests, at the most critical period of their lives, are sought.

An illustration of how these Homes meet a real and pressing need is seen in the case which is recorded of a young governess, living in a family at Clapham, who was dismissed through no fault of her own at a moment's notice. She went immediately to one of the Homes—it being ten o'clock at night—and after telling her story with tears, and pleading for a shelter, because she had no friends in London, was received and sheltered until she found further employment. Also the case of a young girl of seventeen who, in consequence of her father marrying a second time, had to "turn out" to seek a home elsewhere. She was received, and is deeply grateful. Another sought shelter in the Garfield Home who had escaped from a convent where she had been brought up. In another case a mother's heart was made to sing for joy through the recovery of her long-lost daughter by means of the Home. Interesting details of the progress of the work in each of the Homes are given, and earnest appeals for more funds are made. Friends are cordially invited to pay a visit between the hours of three and five, and "thus see for themselves to what extent the home-life arrangements are carried out, and also judge of the benefits accruing therefrom." The Report may be obtained from the Secretary, Mr. John Shrimpton, 38, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C., who just now is asking for at least £1000 to meet the claims of the institution.

Letters to the Editor.

THE POOR IN HOSPITALS.

Sir,—As one who is a woman and has nursed in hospital among women, will you allow me to offer my testimony from that standpoint to the kindness, honour, and consideration bestowed upon the poor by their doctors? The patients easily confide in their nurses, and the confidences of which I have been the recipient, concerning different eminent surgeons, are of the following nature, of which I quote two verbatim:—

"He treats the meanest woman like a queen."

"The very sight of his face in the wards makes us better."

There may, perhaps, be exceptions, but in the normal condition of hospital practice the student learns manners as well as physics, should he not already possess them. I enclose my card, and remain, yours faithfully, Justice.

SALVATION ARMY TEACHING.

Dear Sir,—I would beg leave to say a few words in answer to two of Dr. Smyth's statements of doctrine in your number for September 4. Speaking of cleansing by the blood of Christ, he says that it signifies deliverance both from the guilt and from the power of sin—the latter, because it "purchased for us that spirit of life by which we are cleansed and renewed." That Christ's blood-shedding obtained for us the gift of the Holy Spirit is quite true; but this is not an adequate reason for speaking of that which is done for us by the Spirit, as done by the blood of Christ. The Holy Spirit takes of the things of Christ, and shows them to the children of God. He helps their infirmities; He leads them in the paths of righteousness. It would evidently tend to great confusion of language and thought if we were to speak of all these things as done for us by the blood of Christ. And I cannot but fear that when 1 John i. 7 is repeatedly quoted among ill-instructed Christians as referring to the purification of the heart, the tendency is to obscure, more or less, the two cardinal truths, of atonement by the blood of Christ and purification by the power of the Holy Ghost.

To the question, whether it is possible for a "fully saved" Christian to become a reprobate, Dr. Smyth replies that "it must ever be possible for a free agent, under a moral government, to do or become anything in the way of righteousness or sin." But by this answer he seems to set aside (not of course wilfully) the precious promise that God "will keep the feet of his saints." The fall of Adam shows that the fall of a perfect being, when exposed to temptation, is possible in itself; but the covenant of grace contains promises which Adam, when first created, did not possess.

A perfect man, if such a one were to be found on earth, would never neglect to watch and to pray; and so long as Christ's people watch and pray, they have the promise that they shall be kept even from a temporary fall. How, then, could the fall of a perfect man be accounted for? But Dr. Smyth appears to hold that it is possible for a perfect man to become at last a castaway, whereas Christ says of his people, including even the weakest: "My sheep shall never perish, neither shalt any man pluck them out of my hand." Dr. Smyth would perhaps reply, "If they wish this promise to be fulfilled, they must themselves be faithful to the end." Doubtless they must; but the question is, Have they any ground for certainty that they will be faithful to the end? and if so, what is that ground? If Christ's words, already quoted, are absolutely true, if their faithfulness is secured by his faithfulness, so that there is no room for contingency in the matter, then, indeed, each true believer may say with Paul, "I am persuaded that neither life nor death, nor things present, nor things to come, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." But if all the promised keeping of God's saints is contingent on their own faithfulness, then, since the strength of a chain is measured by that of its weakest link, the believer's confidence of final salvation must be according to his confidence in his own constancy. And under these circumstances, the possibility "of becoming anything in the way of sin," of which Dr. Smyth speaks, would be a terrible possibility indeed.

But would there be any such thing as final salvation if Dr. Smyth's statement were true? Even the saints in glory will be "free agents under a moral government," and if it must "ever be possible" for such to fall how can even they be secure?

Paul prays for his fellow-Christians that they might be "filled with joy and peace in believing." Many sincere followers of Christ come short of this, because they are troubled with doubts as to their present interest in his grace. But how can any one attain to it if, when he is assured that he is now accepted in the beloved One, he has no security against becoming a reprobate at last?—Truly yours, H. Noel.

Woking, Surrey.

Dear Sir,—I am not surprised that the brief mode I adopted in answering the questions of Mr. Samuel McComb has occasioned the lengthy criticism which appears in your last. I have the privilege to offer you a brief reply.

(1) That Gal. v. 24 took place in St. Paul at his conversion rests only upon Mr. McComb's assertion; because St. Paul inquires of the Roman converts if they know these things (Rom. v. 3—6), and calls upon them to realise that death of which Christ's crucifixion is the image; so also St. Peter (1 Pet. iv. 1—3), conversion or regeneration relates to the Spirit, and at first may, or may not, according as the believer has learned Christ, accomplish the crucifixion of the passions and lusts of which the soul is the seat; hence the variety in the experience of converts. Again, the Scriptures teach a real crucifixion, Mr. McComb a fictitious one. His convert still cries: "O wretched man," &c.; he is, therefore, still "Carnal, sold under sin." The true and obedient convert is not carnal, but spiritual; the Son has made him free, and he is free indeed.

Next, Mr. McComb's treatment of Gal. v. 19—21, is a perilous evasion of a solemn warning of God addressed to converts. Further down, Mr. McComb declares, in the words of Dr. Bonar, a converted man's "hourly sinfulness;" it is a dangerous sophism not to place such a one in the category of these verses.

(2) The plea as to the absence of the word "crucify," from Rom. viii. 13, Eph. iv. 22, 2 Cor. vii. 1, is not to the point. It is things we are dealing with, not verbal symbols. To crucify is to make dead, and we make dead the deeds of the body which is flesh by faith in the crucifixion of Christ. Through his work for us, we also put off the old man, and cleanse ourselves.

(3) See No. 6.

(4) Whether the blood has to do with our cleansing from depravity was a point raised. I have shown it has, by procuring for us that spirit which inwardly baptizes or washes us.

(5) I am speaking in regard to Salvation Army teaching. They wisely leave the use of the Lord's prayer to the soul's own relationship to its God. Since it is in the plural, any believer may use it at any time; but the obedient child of God does not, for himself, make it his daily petition.

(6) Mr. McComb here charges me with "evasion," based, I regret, upon his own misrepresentation of my words. I made no specific reference to the taking away of the old Levitical sacrifices; I spoke not of the types but of the things themselves, viz., the taking away of sins whether of holy things or otherwise. This touches the very kernel of the great question before us. Mr. McComb regards the new covenant as differing from the old, only in the fact that it affords an ever so much easier way of getting pardoned and cleansed. The "hourly sinfulness" was a permanent feature in the Jew under the old covenant, and was met by a cumbersome ritual. Mr. McComb makes hourly sinfulness a permanent feature in the Christian under the new covenant, only it is met in a more facile way. The Hebrews upon this very point contrasts the new with the old covenant, and declares the perfection of the former to lie in taking away sins, in perfection, in making us perfect to do God's will. It is manifest from numbers 1 to 5 of Mr. McComb's letter, that he regards the Gospel, not as a system to save us from sin and sinning, but as a great system of indulgences—a vast accommodation to take off fear and condemnation, and yet leave us in hourly sinfulness. The soul in the light 1 John i. 7 cannot require cleansing in the sense intended by Mr. McComb. Sin is darkness; this soul walks in the light with God, but sin from without assails his senses and the spirit by the Blood of Christ cleanses in the sense of keeping clean.

(7) I am not conscious of the confusion of mind imputed.

(8) The nearer relationships to God do not disturb the wider relationships; we are ever fundamentally accountable as free moral agents to the moral government of God.—Faithfully yours,

Maidstone, Sept. 11. Wm. Woods Smyth.

[This correspondence must now close, as far as our columns are concerned.]

MODERN PREACHING.

Sir,—I have just seen in to-day's issue a letter signed "Believer," on "Modern Preaching." It is awfully true that sermons to rustic congregations might almost as well be preached in a foreign language, so little are they understood, as delivered by many of our clergy.

Unconverted people are so accustomed to the mere sound of the daily prayers that they do not try to realise what they mean, and the wandering, abstracted thoughts are not recalled by the sermon, unless it is very striking, very simple, and slowly and impressively delivered.

Take one example. We held some evangelistic meetings in our own house, which were well attended by the villagers. A middle aged married woman often came. She was a good reader, her voice often leading the hymns. In childhood she had attended a Sunday-school, and she was a frequent, but not regular, attendant at church.

One evening our subject was "The Thief on the Cross," which affected her to tears. Calling at her cottage soon after, she said, "Oh, I did enjoy that address on Sunday. I understand that picture now, and it seems to do me good to look at it." She pointed to a picture of the Crucifixion. "But," said I, "did you not understand it before?" She replied, "I knew the middle was Jesus Christ dying for our sins, but I thought the other two were the Father and the Holy Ghost." "But," I urged, "when the lessons were read on Good Friday, &c., did you not hear about the thieves?" "Oh," said she, "I never listen to the Lessons; they are read so fast I cannot understand them."

It needs a simple Gospel to penetrate the dulled minds and hearts of the rural poor.

E. T. A.

THE COMING LONDON MISSION.

In the September circular of the Church Parochial Mission Society (21, John-street, Adelphi, W.C.) there is the following statement with reference to the coming Evangelistic Mission among the Episcopal churches in the East-end of London:—

"We are now drawing near the time of the approaching London Mission, and we earnestly hope that those who take an interest in the work of our Society will make this great undertaking a subject of special and very earnest intercessory prayer. The vast area that has to be covered by this Mission effort renders it exceedingly difficult to find suitable Mission preachers for all the many parishes that will be joining, and never was there more need to 'pray,' as our Divine Master has taught us, 'the Lord of the harvest to thrust forth labourers into his harvest.' All our available labourers will be toiling in this great harvest field, and we ask for special prayer for them.

"An appeal has been made on behalf of poorer parishes that cannot bear the burden of Mission expenses, and if any of our readers feel disposed to help, we will gladly receive contributions for this purpose, and open a special Fund at our office out of which to make grants to such parishes towards meeting such expenses. There may be amongst our readers a good many earnest lay workers, residing in other parts of London or in the suburbs, who would feel disposed to help in East-end parishes during the Mission wherein help may be desired, either in the after-meetings or in working amongst the people outside to induce them to attend the services. If any such are without openings for this work, and were to apply to our Society, offering satisfactory references, we might be able to assist in introducing them to clergy who would be glad of their aid. Any communications upon this subject should be addressed to the Secretary."

ITALIAN CONVICT PRISONS.—In these prisons there are no fewer than 5363 persons condemned to penal servitude for life. In the yearly Budget thirty-three million francs are set aside for the expenses of these establishments, while only twenty-two million francs are spent upon education. In the face of these facts it is not altogether surprising that the lower orders in Italian towns are so sunk in ignorance and superstition that they firmly believe that the authorities are trying to spread the cholera, instead of arresting it, and that the doctors are banded together to poison them.—Truth.

"Dr. Barnardo's Homes for Destitute Children."

Stepney, Limehouse, and Bow, E.; Ilford, Essex; Hawkhurst, Kent; Gorey, Jersey; and Ontario, Canada.

The Committee regret to have to announce a very large deficit in the funds of these Institutions.

During the absence of Dr. Barnardo, who, as the Readers of The Christian will remember, is at the present time in the Dominion of Canada, seeking to consolidate and extend the proposed scheme of Emigration of destitute young children by means of these Institutions,

THE WANT OF FUNDS IS MOST KEENLY FELT.

The Committee, therefore, appeal very earnestly and hopefully to all the Readers of The Christian for help to carry on the work of these "Homes," and to enable them to continue to receive any and every friendless and homeless child who applies at the "Home," for admission.

Contributions will be gratefully received and acknowledged, if addressed to the Treasurer, Wm. FOWLER, Esq., M.P., or to Dr. Barnardo at the Offices of the Institutions, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

P.O. Orders should be made payable at the G.P.O., and crossed, as well as Cheques, "London and South Western Bank."

Under the Patronage of H.R.H. the Princess Christian.

MRS. HILTON'S CRECHE, INFANT INFIRMARY, AND ORPHAN HOME,

12, 14, & 16, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, COMMERCIAL ROAD, E.,

AND

TRAINING AND CONVALESCENT HOME, THE LIMES, FELTHAM.

SPECIAL AND URGENT.

We are in great need of help for the above work, which is quite without Funds. There are several vacancies in the Home, which we should be very glad to fill if the means were forthcoming, as we have a long list of distressing cases waiting admission. We have also some heavy payments to meet before the end of the month.

Our Thirteenth Report is in the press, and can be forwarded on application.

Contributions to be forwarded to Mrs. HILTON, Langveld House, Burdett-road, E

BIBLE LIGHT

For Truth Seekers & Christian Workers.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."—Ps. cxix. 105.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light."—Ps. cxix. 130.

THE OBJECT of "BIBLE LIGHT" is to interest its readers in the written Word, and to lead them through the latter to the Living Word, for the salvation of the unsaved, and the strengthening of the believer's faith. Monthly, One Penny. Strongly recommended by the Press. The Vol. for 1883, price 1s. 6d.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & CO., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.
And of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

OUR LITTLE LADS.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM and SWANLEY.

FUNDS are still URGENTLY NEEDED to feed, clothe, and educate 230 homeless little ones in the Cottage Homes at Farningham, and to complete the new Homes for Orphans at Swanley.

Will each reader of this do something?

Bankers.

MESSRS. SMITH, PAYNE, & SMITHS, 1, Lombard Street, E.C.

Offices: Ludgate Circus. A. O. CHARLES.

WOMEN'S MEDICAL MISSION HOUSE, 2, Mecklenburgh-street, W.C.

LADIES who desire to become MISSIONARY PHYSICIANS are received as resident STUDENTS, and their instruction provided at THE LONDON SCHOOL OF MEDICINE FOR WOMEN, and THE ROYAL FREE HOSPITAL, WITH ALL EXPENSES.

Term begins 1st of October next. Apply to Mrs. MEREDITH, Office of Women's Missionary Institute, Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W.

To Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, Young Men's Societies, &c., in London and Provincial Towns.

ENTERTAINMENTS of a very superior character, consisting of Lectures illustrated by Dissolving Views, Costumes, &c., are provided by the Committee of the Sunday-school Union.

THE DISSOLVING VIEWS are exhibited by powerful Trinopticon Lanterns, illuminated with the Oxy-Hydrogen Lime Light. The slides have been most carefully prepared by first-class artists, and can be hired in complete sets by Schools and Societies having lanterns of their own.

For full particulars apply to the Secretary of Lectures Committee, Sunday School Union, 56, Old Bailey, London, E.C.

"Moon's" Society for Embossing the Scriptures and other Books for the Blind.

Dr. MOON'S simplified type, suitable for all ages and capacities of the blind, is of universal application. It has been adapted by him to 250 languages and dialects. More than 150,000 volumes of the Word of God, and other books, have been supplied to the blind of numerous countries.

Subscriptions and donations are urgently needed to carry on this daily increasing work, and will be gratefully received by Dr. W. MOON, 104, Queen's-road, Brighton (Acting Trustee); also by the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN.

Notices of Books, &c.

GOLDEN LINKS. By CHARLOTTE BICKERSTETH WHEELER. Elliot Stock. A small but comprehensive treatise on prayer and kindred matters, with topics for each day of the month. Meditations and thoughts from selected writers are also pressed into the service.

FIFTY SERMONS. By the Rev. AUBREY C. PRICE, B.A., of Immanuel Church, West Brixton. Vol i. Hamilton, Adams & Co. These sermons are characterised by brevity, point, earnestness of spirit, and soundness of Gospel teaching. They are calculated to be useful both to saint and sinner.

Messrs. Cassell & Co. have begun the issue in serial form of LONGFELLOW'S POETICAL WORKS. Part 1 is well illustrated, is typographically beautiful, and has for frontispiece a fine steel engraving of the illustrious poet. Many of his admirers will be glad to possess themselves of this handsome edition.

BRAHMOISM; or, History of Reformed Hinduism. By RAM CHANDRA BOSE, M.A., of Lucknow. F. Bordon Hunt, Fleet-street. The author of this interesting and timely book is a Christian missionary, and writes with a view to show that such theories and beliefs as those held by the Brahmo Somaj, or New Dispensation, are anti-Christian, and really stand in the way of Gospel progress.

CHURCH AUTHORITY. 6d. W. Ridgway. A prize essay, written by the Rev. EDWARD PARNELL, LL.B. It ably shows what a baseless assumption the idea of authority in the church as claimed by the Papacy is, and how truly it is but "a phantom, a mere idea floating in the minds of one particular section of Christians." It is likely to be of good service in the cause of Protestant truth.

BY WHAT AUTHORITY? or, Scripture on the Sacraments. By A. BEREAN. 1s. Nisbet & Co. A masterly and exhaustive treatise directed against the Romish errors of Baptismal Regeneration and Transubstantiation; proving also the scripturalness of Baptism by Immersion. A lengthy preface, by Rev. Hely Smith, in which sarcasm and convincing logic are alternately pressed into the argument, forms a valuable introduction.

THE VITAL STATISTICS OF TOTAL ABSTINENCE. By Rev. DAWSON BURNS, D.D. Another argument for Abstinence, based on the statistics of insurance societies, showing the increased longevity of abstainers. THE SCRIPTURE FOOTHOLD OF ABSTINENCE. By THOMAS DICK. The doctrine that the principle of abstinence from alcohol is in strict accordance with Bible teaching, is urged by the writer of this excellent little tract. Both pamphlets are published by the National Temperance Depot, 337, Strand, W.C. 1d. each

HARBOUR LIGHTS; or, How to Help our Seamen. This is a prize essay by the Rev. CHAS. E. FRY, B.A., written on behalf of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, Shadwell, London, from whom the volume may be obtained, as also from Messrs. Partridge & Co. The directors hope by its publication to secure for the Society increased support. The essayist is to be congratulated on the success of his work, its thoroughly Christian tone being of a far higher order than the general run of prize essays. The price is 1s. 6d.; a reduction is made if 12 copies are taken.

A MANUAL OF CONGREGATIONAL PRINCIPLES. By R. W. DALE, D.D. Hodder & Stoughton. 1s. 6d. As a handbook of Church polity, we should think all Congregationalists would regard this volume as marked by a completeness and fidelity to principle impossible to surpass. To general readers it will prove of much interest, dealing as it does most ably with questions deeply affecting social and individual Christian responsibility. Of course much that is controversial and provocative of wide divergencies of thought is met with, but it may be read with advantage by all searchers after truth.

THE MYSTERY OF THE KINGDOM, TRACED THROUGH THE FOUR BOOKS OF KINGS. By ANDREW JUKES. Longmans, Green & Co. This is a most suggestive and helpful book for all thoughtful readers of God's Word. The author first treats of the existence and principle of a mystic sense, a underlying all the records of inspiration; he then applies the fact to the history of Israel's first king, as contained in the first book of Samuel. His method of treating the subject is deeply spiritual, and stimulating every way to Christian life. After reading this first volume, it is impossible not to earnestly hope the writer may be able to complete his design, and at no distant date issue further instalments of his really valuable exposition. The present condition of the church militant renders such teaching as this book contains, specially seasonable and practical.

THE AUTHORSHIP OF THE FOURTH GOSPEL. By F. GODET, D.D. PRESENT STATE OF THE CHRISTIAN ARGUMENT FROM PROPHECY. By the Rev. Principal CAIRNS, D.D. Religious Tract Society. These two little books constitute the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh of the Present Day Tracts. The first quoted is invaluable. Dr. Godet, who ranks among the first Continental theologians, has done the highest service in presenting in this portable form the substance of his dissertation on the subject in his "Origin of the Four Gospels." The argument is made complete, and while brief, is clear, and convincing. The battle of Rationalism and unbelief has, for obvious reasons, raged around St. John's Gospel, and the evidence of its authenticity in so brief and forceful a form is a very great boon to all classes of readers. The second tract, mentioned above, is one of the Cunningham Lectures. It goes without saying, that a treatise from the pen of Dr. Cairns must be of value. We, nevertheless, scarcely feel that the title of the "Present State" of the argument is met. Lines of proof from recent investigations and facts are not adequately followed. So far as it goes, however, the "Argument from Prophecy" is at once able and scholarly. It abundantly sustains the reputation of the series.

Forthcoming Meetings.

COMING CONFERENCES.

SALISBURY, Maundrel Hall, September 23—25.—Morning subjects: "The Believer Called to—(a) Sonship, its Privilege; (b) Saintship, its Separation; (c) Stewardship, its Responsibility." Evening subjects: (a) "Peace; (b) Power; (c) Perfection, at Christ's appearing."

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE, Queen's Rooms, Glasgow.—September 23 to 26, daily at 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. Revs. Hubert Brooke, Charles A. Fox, Charles Graham, D. B. Hankin, William Haslam, E. H. Hopkins, E. W. Moore, J. Hudson Taylor, Mr. Robert Wilson, and others are expected to take part.

CHURCH CONGRESS, Carlisle.—September 30 to October 3.

CLIFTON, Victoria Rooms.—October 7—9. Subjects: "Prophetical Signs of the Last Days;" "The Attitude of the Church with Reference to Them;" "The Glorious Hope of the Church." Inquiries of Rev. J. Ormiston, 14, Arlington-villas, Clifton, Bristol.

EVANGELISTIC.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and Evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-square, S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

MR. HENRY THORNE.—September 20—29, Sheffield; October 4—21, Birmingham; 22, 23, Derby; November 1—10, Doncaster; 15—24, Shrewsbury; 29 to December 8, Halifax; 13—22, Driffield.

REV. W. HASLAM.—Glasgow, September 23; Plymouth, October 11; Ryde (I. of W.), 25th.

MR J. M. SCROGGIE.—October, Bristol; November 2, Elgin, N.B.; November 15, Inverness; December, Paisley.

REV. W. HAY AITKEN.—September to October 6, All Saints', Hoole, Chester; October 12, St. Andrew's Parish Church, Plymouth; November 16 to 30, St. John's, Bethnal Green, E.; November 30 to December 15 (or longer), All Saints, South Lambeth.

STEPNEY MEETING HOUSE.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney gives an address every Sunday at 3 p.m.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Sunday, September 21, Rev. Geo. H. White, 3.30 p.m.; Mr. Elvin and a soloist, at 7 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, September 21, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; and 7 p.m., Mr. Charles Inglis.

Y.M.C. ASSOCIATIONS.

61, GRACECHURCH-STREET, E.C.—Daily prayer meeting 1.15 to 2 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Bible-readings in Isaiah each Tuesday, 6.15 p.m.

EXETER HALL.—Gospel meeting every night at 8 (Saturday excepted). Mid-day prayer-meeting 1 to 2 (Saturday excepted). Bible-reading, Saturday, at 8, by Colonel Puget. Gospel Male Choir practises every Friday, at 7.30. Musical Christian men cordially invited.

186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Central Noon Prayer Meeting, daily, 12 to 1 o'clock. Sunday, Bible-class, 3.15 p.m.; evangelistic meeting, 7 p.m. Monday, strangers' reception, 8 p.m. Tuesday, teachers' preparatory Bible-classes, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Thursday, foreign Mission prayer-meeting, 7 p.m.; devotional meeting and address, 8 p.m. Friday, Gospel meeting, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Workers' praise and prayer meeting, 7.30 p.m.

BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W.—Opening of Burlington Hall after repairs. Thursday, September 18, young men's meeting, at 8.45 p.m. Sunday, 21st, Bible class for young men, at 3.15 p.m., "The Straight Gate."

THE PRIORY, 198, Upper-street, Islington, N.—Thursday, September 18, at 8.30 p.m., address by Rev. J. Pearson. Sunday, 21st, at 3.15 p.m., farewell meeting to Mr. Herbert Parry, who is leaving as a medical missionary for China; Mr. George Williams will preside. Wednesday, 6 to 10 p.m., anxious inquirers and strangers.

MISCELLANEOUS.

UPPER NORWOOD, Stafford House, Tudor-road.—Drawing-room meeting, at 3 p.m., every Thursday. A young women's meeting on the same day at 8 p.m.

3, HIGHBURY-PLACE, N.—Meetings every Tuesday, 6 p.m., at Rev. W. E. Boardman's, from September 2. No afternoon meetings. Mrs. Boardman's Bible-class every Wednesday, 11 a.m.

BETHSHAN, Drayton-park, Highbury, N.—Meetings are now held as usual. Sundays, Bible reading, 3 o'clock; evening, 6.30. Wednesdays, holiness and faith-healing, 3 o'clock. Fridays, holiness meeting, 7 o'clock.

HOME OF INDUSTRY, 60, Commercial-street, Spitalfields.—Monthly meeting for Christian workers. Wednesday, September 17. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Mr. J. Hudson Taylor will give the address, and a band of eight missionaries, shortly leaving for China, will be present to take farewell.

FAITH-HEALING MEETINGS, conducted by the Rev. John Allen, Trinity Church, Triangle, Hackney, London, E. Sundays, 3 p.m.; Mondays, 7 p.m., addresses and testimonies; Tuesdays, 11.30 a.m., anointing service, Ranelagh Rooms, Ranelagh-road, Paddington; Fridays, at 7 p.m., Royal Oak Station.

CHINA INLAND MISSION.—Meetings in connection with the departure to China of the next party will be held as under: Wednesday, September 17, Home of Industry, Commercial-street, Spitalfields, 7 p.m. Thursday, 18th, Gospel Hall, Wood Green, 7 p.m. Friday, 19th, 186, Aldersgate-street, 8 p.m. Sunday, 21st, Conference Hall, Mildmay, 7 p.m. Monday, 22nd, Trinity Presbyterian Church, Notting-hill, 7.30 p.m.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—G.J.H. G.J. C.N.B.M. W.L. A.P. G.C. M.K.K. M.L. E.O'H. R.P. F.E.W. W.M.C. F.A. W.H.A. F.W. M.E.G. M.J.B. C.R.H. E.G. F.C. R.J.C. R.H.H. J.O. T.M.W. J.B.W. J.S. C.T. H.E. W.W.S. G.W. G.S. H.S.E. E.T.A. H.G. J.M. H.R. Galdus. S.G. A.B. W.S.V. Th.M. B.H.W. W.S. D.McK. R.H.H. E.W. A.S. H.N. E.R.B. A.F.H. A.F. W.F. H.T.F. F.W.M. A.W.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—J. Rogers, 44, Macfarlane-road, Shepherd's Bush, W.; H. J. Page, 12, Clarence-square, Cheltenham; Mr. F. Pontin, 89, Camden-street, Camden Town, N.W.; Mr. O. Jones, 5, Bank-buildings, Wandsworth, S.W.; Miss Ellen Wassett, Home for Invalids, Queen's-road-villas, Battersea Park, S.E.; Miss Charriere, 1, Stanley-street, Queen's-road, Battersea Park; H. Murch, 3, Frides-wide-place, Islip-street, Kentish Town, N.W.; J. Harrogate, 43, Cromwell-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne; G. J. Absolon, 8, Christ Church-terrace, Chelsea, S.W.; G. E. Pearce, Free Library, Camelford, Cornwall; Mrs. A. Worth, district visitor, St. Tudy, Bodmin; T. Hill, 44, Coventry-road, Birmingham.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, September 13, 1884.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps. Cheques to be drawn in favour of Morgan and Scott, and crossed City Bank; P.O.O.'s payable to Morgan and Scott, at G.P.O.

	£ s. d.
Day in the Country Fund—J. F. 10s.; A. R. B. 5s.; Friend, £1	1 15 0
Work among Navvies, Hull—L. L. 1s. 6d.; C. P., Clifton, £1	1 1 6
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street—E. B.	0 10 0
Indigent Blind Visiting Society (Women)—E. B.	0 10 0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—C. P., Clifton, £1; M. J. E. £1; S. P. 15s. 3d.; R. W. G. £2; (Girls' Home, Ilford) E. T. £1	5 16 3
Home of Industry—C. P., Clifton, £1; (Widows) M. J. E. £1	2 0 0
Congo Mission (Rev. H. G. Guinness)—C. P., Clifton	1 0 0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—C. P., Clifton	0 5 0
Salvation Army—C. P., Clifton	0 5 0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—C. P., Clifton, 10s.; R. W. G. £1	1 10 0
Clergy Rest House, Bournemouth—M. J. E. £2; Elliita, 5s.	2 5 0
Scriptures for the Blind (Dr. Moon)—M. J. E. £1; Miss T. £1	2 0 0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission—Elitta	0 5 0
Miss Whately's Mission in Cairo—A. M.	0 10 0
Soldiers' Institute, Gibraltar—E. T.	1 0 0
Home for Aged Blind Christian Women—E. T.	0 10 0
Miss Weston's Work in Royal Navy—E. T.	0 10 0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—E. T.	0 10 0
Jewish Refugees Aid Society (Jerusalem)—Lover of Israel, £3; L. D. 2s. 6d.	3 2 6
Band of Hope Union—M. and S.	1 1 0
Drury-lane Christian Mission—Miss T.	0 10 0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—Miss T. £1 10s.; L. D. 5s.	1 15 0
Chowberi Mission—Miss T.	0 10 0
Mr. E. Wright's Work—Miss T.	0 10 0
Children's Hospital, Jerusalem—Miss T.	1 0 0
English Soldiers in Egypt (Miss Robinson)—E. T.	0 10 0
Dublin Prison-gate Mission—G. C. B.	5 0 0
Distressed Jews in Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—M. J. S.	0 5 0
Blackdown Hills Mission—W. E.	5 0 0
Mr. Pascoe's Work in Mexico—W. E.	5 0 0
Free Distribution of the Scriptures—L. D.	0 5 0
Blue Ribbon Gospel Movement—L. D.	0 4 0
Work among Cholera Sufferers (Miss De Broen)—M. S. J. and A. M. S. J.	0 6 0
Mrs. Fisher's Work (Rest for Needlewomen)—M. D., South Africa	2 0 0
Sadler's Wells Theatre Services (Mr. W. Cattle)—M. and S.	10 0 0
London City Mission—R. W. G.	2 0 0
Friendless and Fallen—Mrs. F.	0 10 0
Bristol Orphan Houses—C. L. M. T. £1; (Missions) C. L. M. T. £1	2 0 0
Miss Leigh's Work, Paris—C. L. M. T.	1 0 0
China Inland Mission—Mr. and Mrs. Penrose, £1; several small contributions, per M. E. S. 2s. 6d.	1 2 6
	£70 12

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

"Who will Respond?"—£5 from L. B. F.

Dr. Moon's Society for the Blind—A Thankoffering, £1.

Home of Industry—E. E. B., £1 10s. for Emigration.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes for Destitute Children—M. L. S. (Birkenhead), 5s.

Evangelistic Mission—Per C. B. H.: Anon., for Tent Work, 10s.

MISS WHATELEY'S CAIRO MISSION.—Mrs MacDermott, the Hon. Sec. to this Mission, has removed from Triangle-road, Streatham. Her address is now 8, Disraeli-road, Ealing, W.

Continued from page 3.

BOURNEMOUTH.—A Printed List of Furnished Houses to be Let, in this favourite winter resort, forwarded free by post, by Mr. JAMES B. JENKINS, House and Estate Agent, Bournemouth.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Wanted, Board for a Gentleman in a private Christian family. A sitting-room desired.—Terms to be sent to Mrs. STEWART, Craig-Arch, Perth, N.B.

BOURNEMOUTH. — First-class Boarding House Pleasant and healthy position, two minutes' walk from the sea and pine woods. Good table. Terms moderate and inclusive
Ben Wyvis, West Cliff-gardens.

BUXTON, Derbyshire. — Alpine Boarding House. Terms from 30s. Proprietor, MISS PALMER A comfortable home is offered to a few ladies for the winter months, on very moderate terms.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—A Christian Lady living in the vicinity of the Common, churches, and station, wishes to meet with one or two ladies to lodge with her for the winter or permanently. Reasonable terms. References exchanged.—8, Dudley-road.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—To Let, for winter or longer, small Furnished House. Good situation. Fine sea view. Three sitting-rooms, six bed-rooms. South aspect. Garden.
HIVER, 47, West-hill.

ACCOMMODATION FOR GENTLEMEN.—A comfortable Sitting-room, with one or two furnished Bed-rooms, in Blackheath. Three minutes' walk from station. Partial board if desired.—ALLAN & HIDER, Blackheath.

FURNISHED ROOMS to Let, in a pleasant village on Great Northern Railway, eight miles from Cambridge. Suitable for Lady and child. References given and required.
Mrs. FLITTON, Shepreth, near Royston.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS.—A large double or single bedded room and sitting-room to Let, in a Christian family. Within ten minutes of tram, 'bus, and rail. Terms moderate.—L. P., 44, Lauriston-road, South Hackney.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS, with Board, offered to Ladies who might wish for a happy, quiet home-life. Opportunities to continue some branches of study, or to be trained in housekeeping after having left school.—FERNLEA, 8, Stamford-grove West, Stamford hill, N.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—Comfortable Christian home for Young Ladies, students or otherwise engaged, on reasonable terms.—Mrs. GEORGE OWEN, Archibald House, Dalmeny-road, Tufnell-park.

A LADY strongly recommends Apartments, Furnished, in the house of a Christian widow, as sitting-room and bed-room; or bed-room and use of breakfast parlour. Near tram and 'bus. No children. Good attendance. Terms moderate.—Mrs SCOTT, 5, Aldebert-terrace, Albert-square, Clapham, S.W.

BOARDING HOUSES. — Please send details of such. Warm climate, genial society. Weekly terms must be moderate. For lady and maid or two ladies.
B., 20, Uresigny-park, Denmark-hill, London.

HOME FOR INVALIDS or others in the house of a Doctor (M.D. Cantab), living in a beautiful village near a well-known Kentish health resort. Terms moderate.—Box 963, Sell's Advertising Offices, 167, Fleet-street, E.C.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENTS, House young married couple. Drawing-room floor, 15s. a week. Perfect drainage. House newly done up. Five rail routes, tram, 'bus. West Kensington. Bed-rooms, if preferred, furnished.
"SOHO," Bail-grove Dairy, Goldhawk-road, W.

HOME WANTED for an invalid Young Lady. Age about 25. Care and quiet. For a permanency. Terms must be moderate. Country preferred. No medical attendance required.—Apply, personally or by letter, with full particulars, to C. E., 10, Metropolitan-chambers, New Broad-street, London, E.C.

A MARRIED COUPLE having taken a house in the best part of Putney, close to Railway, have front Sitting-room and Bed-room to Let, unfurnished, with attendance. Terms 15s. per week. Lady preferred.—Address, letter only, to W. B., 7, Woodford-villas, East-hill, Wandsworth.

CAN ANY FRIEND kindly recommend in dry, sheltered village on railway, within easy reach of London, with Evangelical Church, comfortable apartments for winter? Two sitting, two bed-rooms, with good cooking and attendance.
Miss ROBERT, Post-office, Southborough, Kent.

SOUTH COAST. — Furnished Apartments to Let, one sitting and two bed-rooms in a private residence with large garden. Good cooking. Home comforts, and every convenience. Terms moderate.—Mr. J. B. Jenkins, Estate Agent, Bournemouth and Christchurch.

TO LET, 12-roomed House, with large garden, formerly a boarding school, in a healthy village. Also a Coffee House. Suit persons with small income.
W. BONNEY, Sherborne, Basingstoke.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS are again earnestly invited to write. Many have received blessing.
Rom. x. 10. EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W.

ENGLISH VERSIONS OF THE BIBLE.

A HANDBOOK.—With Copious Examples Illustrating the Ancestry and Relationship of the several Versions, and Comparative Tables. 508 pp. Crown 8vo. cloth, 6s.
By the Rev. J. I. MOMBERT, D.D.

This Volume, on which the Author has spent years of laborious research and study, presents an exhaustive view of the English Versions from Anglo-Saxon times to the Revision of 1881, brings together information not contained in any single work extant, and is an indispensable book of reference to all readers of the Bible.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY. ONE HALFPENNY.

The Herald of Mercy:

AN ILLUSTRATED MESSENGER FOR HUMBLE HOMES.

ORIGINATED BY THE LATE DUNCAN MATHESON.

"It is a true 'messenger' for all homes, whether humble or high. The pictures will make the children's eyes sparkle with delight; the pretty stories, short papers, poetry, and telling illustrations of life, will help many a weary heart; and, indeed, no one can read without both pleasure and profit."
Irish Congregational Magazine.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS,

TRACT DISTRIBUTORS,

ARE INVITED TO AND CHRISTIAN PARENTS

Send to the Publishers for a Specimen Copy, which will be forwarded post free.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

NEW WORK BY MAJOR WHITTLE.

Life, Warfare, & Victory.

In Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"It is a thoroughly characteristic little book by a man who is evidently on fire with a holy enthusiasm, and it may be helpful to many whom a more cultured style of teaching would fail to reach."—Christian Leader.

Divinity Brown Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 5s.

Conversion, Service, and Glory.

BY D. L. MOODY.

To adapt Mr. Moody's Addresses for the Library, it has been thought well to put together in one Volume (suitably bound) the three works entitled "The Way to God," "Power from on High," and "Heaven," under the above title. There are doubtless many who will gladly find a place for this Volume upon their shelves.

Uniform with the above, 5s.

Grace, Prayer, and Work.

The following three works ("SOVEREIGN GRACE," "PREVAILING PRAYER," and "TO THE WORK!") are here brought together, and bound in Library form, as a Companion Volume to "CONVERSION, SERVICE, AND GLORY."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Terms for Advertisements

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words	3	0
" 39 "	3	6
" 48 "	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of THE CHRISTIAN they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning's first post.

Just Published. Price One Penny, 7s. per 100.

HOW TO FEED UPON THE WORD.

An Address to Young Christians.

BY JOHN MONRO GIBSON, D.D.

"Thy words were found, and I did eat them." JER. XV. 16.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any bookseller.

Just Published. Price One Penny, 1s. per dozen.

A GLANCE AT THE GREAT WORK.

An Incident of Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Meetings in London.

BY LADY HOPE.

Reprinted from THE CHRISTIAN.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any bookseller.

DEATH. — ROOKE. — Sept. 5, at Bycullah Park, Enfield, the residence of her sister, Mrs. Whitley, after a short illness, aged 44, ELLEN, third daughter of the late Thomas James Rooke, of 3, Highbury-hill, London. Friends will kindly accept this, the only intimation. No cards.

NEEDLEWORK FOR LADIES, for Pleasure and Profit. All the New Art Work Directions for lovely things in knitting and crochet. Useful articles and wearable things, saleable bazaar articles. How to Dispose of Work, and List of Work Societies. New and enlarged edition, price 1s. 7½., post free.
RINGROSE, Malvern Link.

FURNISH on NORMAN & STACEY'S Hire-Purchase System. Deposit not necessary. True economy on sound commercial principles. Strictly private. 1, 2, or 3 years. 60 wholesale firms. Ordinary selling prices.—Offices, 11, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

MISSIONARIES AND FOREIGN RESIDENTS should call or write to BYWATER, PERRY & Co., special agents for missionaries, &c. Outfits and goods at wholesale prices. Passages engaged. Shipments effected. 2000 references.—11, Queen Victoria-street, London, and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

FIRST APPLICATION.—December Election, 1884, to the Governors and Subscribers to the Commercial Travellers' School, Pinner. The favour of your Votes and Interest is respectfully solicited on behalf of FREDERICK GEORGE JOSLIN, aged 7 years. The father, GEORGE JOSLIN, has been afflicted for several years. There are six children, the eldest 22, and the youngest 4½ years. Three are unprovided for. One is in the School. The father travelled eighteen years for various firms, who recommend the case. Being nominated by Messrs. R. W. Starkey & Sons, 27, New Bridge-street, and recommended by the following gentlemen: Messrs. James Wrigley & Sons, 21, Budge-row; Messrs. Spicer Brothers, 19, New Bridge-street; Messrs. Fourdrinier, Hunt, & Co., Ludgate-square; Messrs. James & Pike, 59, Gresham-street; E. F. Storr, Esq., 55, Gresham-street; Mr. R. C. Morgan, 12, Paternoster-buildings; by all of whom proxies will be thankfully received.

DOOR-MATS to be Sold for 3s. 6d. and 5s., the work of a very poor blind man. Christian friends earnestly entreated to order some.—Mrs. URQUHART, Cromarty, Bournemouth.

BUSINESS PREMISES. — Can a Christian recommend a small shop, suitable for grocery trade? In or near London preferred.—Apply by letter to W. COCKBILL, 92, Alderney-street, Pimlico, London.

IMPORTED. — To secure good Bulbs order early. Hyacinths, good, 4s. 6d., Roman, 3s. 2d.; Narcissus Paperwhite, 2s. 9d.; Tulips, La Candeur, 10d., Rex Bulborum, 1s. dozen. Hundred good miscellaneous plants given with £1, thirty with 10s orders. Twelve Perennials, Herbaceous plants, good old sorts, 3s. Free.—SIMCOX, 158, Severn-road, Cardiff.

Publications.

Twelfth Edition. Post-free, 1s.

DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.—SIMPKIN MARSHALL.

FLOWER MISSION CARDS.—New and convenient design, plain white, 6d., Crimson, 1s.; Gold, 1s. 2d. per 100, post free. Sample pack of 50 (assorted colours), 6d.
Only of F. V. HADLOW, Lithographer, Brighton.

MRS. GRIMKE having now printed 50 languages, wishes to send out one million Text Cards to Missionaries this year, cost about £500, proposing to double all gifts sent by Christians, whose aid she asks. Many varieties of English (some very beautiful), F. M. sheets, tracts, quilt texts on calico, &c., always on sale.—For list, send stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. GRIMKE, Prestwich, Manchester.

TRACINGS ON THE TRACK OF TRUTH. 12mo., cloth, 1s. 6d.—"We could wish this little work to be freely used by Sunday-school teachers and all students of the New Testament."—Literary World.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

Just Published, price One Penny.

A SEARCH AFTER TRUTH. An attempt to find the exact meaning of the word "Baptize," as used by our Lord (Matt. xxviii. 19).
FLETCHER & SON, Norwich.

Little Pilgrim Series Tracts

Of which over 1,000,000 copies have been issued.

1. Little Pilgrim.
2. My Trip to Scotland.
3. The Strayed Boy.
4. Spiritual Railway.
5. Nothing to Pay.
6. God's Way is Perfect.
7. The Place to Spend a Happy Day.
8. How are you?
9. The Dutchman's Family.
10. Threefold Salvation.
11. The Happy Man.

50 Copies, 6d.; 100 Copies, 1s., Post Free.

5s. worth for 2s. 6d.

SOLD BY

J. Rennie, Colporteur, Hitchin, Herts.

A Specimen Packet sent Post Free on receipt of Two Stamps.

The "Little Pilgrim" series of tracts are clear, simple, and pointed, and well adapted for general distribution.—The Reaper.

SIXPENCE POST FREE.

LARGE EDITION, BOUND IN CLOTH, 1s. 3d.

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work ON

CONSUMPTION

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

AND ALL

OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. May be had from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER-ROW, E.C., or from Mr. Congreve (the Author), COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

Eleventh Series of Weekly Cases.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE of Mr. JAMES WILSON, MANAGER of FAIRLOAM QUARRY, HAWICK, N.B.

This patient wrote me last year. He had been troubled for several years with successive colds, which had begun now seriously to tell upon him. He had a troublesome cough, with dark expectoration, throat affected, pains in the chest and between the shoulders. Was induced to apply to me by an article in the Christian Herald referring to my treatment.

My treatment was followed at intervals during the year, the result being, as he testifies, "a complete cure." During that time Mr. Wilson obtained medicine for several others, saying: "I am recommending it to all my friends."

I made inquiry recently, and received the following letter, dated May 14: "I am glad to say I have enjoyed good health ever since I recovered under your treatment. I always keep your medicine in the house, and when I get a little cold, take it four times a day, which soon puts me right."

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

AN ATTRACTIVE WEDDING GIFT.

Marriage and Home.

A Volume of Kindly Counsels to the Newly-Married. Beautifully bound in White and Gold, 2s. 6d.

"One of the daintiest little volumes we have seen for a long time; done up in white, crimson, and gold, most tastefully printed, and full of wise counsel and Christian teaching."—Freeman.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth, 6d.

THE ENQUIRY ROOM.

Hints for Dealing with the Anxious. By GEORGE SOLTAU.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ENORMOUS SALE OF HEARTHRUGS

AS SUPPLIED TO THE QUEEN'S PALACE AT WINDSOR.

S. NELSEY & CO., the well-known Stockport Firm have now to hand another parcel of 24,000 DOZEN beautifully designed HEARTHRUGS, which have gained a world-wide favourable reputation, owing to their Cheapness and Beauty, and, coming direct from the Manufacturers, the public will save all intermediate profits.

They are 6 feet long by 3 feet wide. Each Rug is handsomely blended in six or seven of the newest and richest colours May be had in shades to match any colour of carpet or suite. The designs are exquisite, including Grapes, Ferns, Oak Leaves, Flowers, Masonry, &c. They are suitable for drawing-room, bed-room, dining-room, or kitchen.

Three of these beautiful Rugs were supplied to Her Majesty's Palace at Windsor, which gave so much satisfaction that we received an order for three more, thus making six that are now in use in the "Royal Home." In addition to this, we receive constantly renewed orders and Testimonials from all parts.

Since the establishment of the Parcels Post, no place can be too distant for us to send to.

In order that every home in the land may possess one or more of these beautiful Rugs, we will send them (carriage paid) at the following prices: One for 3s. 6d., two for 6s. 3d., three for 8s. 9d., six for 16s. 6d., twelve for 32s. 6d. If stamps, 1d. extra with each order.

To ensure safe delivery, the "order form" below should be enclosed with remittance and full name and address.

ORDER FORM.

Messrs. S. NELSEY & CO.,—Please supply me with ..... of your Hearthrugs, for which I enclose P.O.O. for £ s. d.

Name .....

Address .....

Town .....

All P.O.O.'s to be made payable at Heaton-lane Post Office to

S. NELSEY & CO.,

7, COMMERCIAL BUILDINGS,

HEATON LANE, STOCKPORT.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s.

BIBLE READINGS ON THE GOSPEL OF MARK.

Suitable as a Handbook and Help for Bible Classes, Lay Preachers, and Evangelists.

BY

HENRY THORNE,

Travelling Secretary for the English National Committee of the Y.C.M.A.

With beautiful Map of Palestine, showing the localities referred to.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOLD MEDAL, CALCUTTA, 1884.

Fry's Cocoa

Guaranteed Pure. Extract

"There is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.

"Strictly pure."—W. W. Stoddart, Analyst for Bristol.

"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin

NINETEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

ANNUAL SALE OF OVER HALF A MILLION.

Mc CALL'S

PAYSANDU OX TONGUES.

A DELICACY FOR BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, OR SUPPER,

TO BE HAD AT ALL GROCERS.

WORKS BY D. L. MOODY.

PREVAILING PRAYER. A Series of Addresses on Prayer. In tinted covers, 1s. limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (Just Published.)

"This book shows partly in what Mr. Moody's power lies—his clearness, earnestness, simplicity, and faith. Would that we had a thousand such preachers! Surely they would move the world!"—Watchman.

SOVEREIGN GRACE: Its Source, its Nature, and its Effects. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (6th Thousand.)

"Will be welcome to multitudes. Has the directness, the illustrative power, the righteousness, the earnestness, and the nervous English, that have made Mr. Moody so effective a preacher of the Gospel of the Grace of God.—Christian Treasury.

ADDRESSES BY D. L. MOODY. Delivered in Great Britain in 1874-75. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (110th Thousand.)

"Will be read by thousands with the memorable interest attaching to the words which God used in first awakening them to spiritual life."—Children's Record.

THE WAY TO GOD. A Series of Addresses on the Way of Salvation. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (43rd Thousand.)

"Full of the point and pathos, the fire and force, of this great evangelist.—The Outlook.

THE FAITHFUL SAYING. A Series of Addresses. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (14th Thousand.)

"Full of the Gospel; well illustrated; thoroughly alive."—Sword and Trowel.

HEAVEN: Its Hope, Its Inhabitants, Its Riches, Its Rewards. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (42nd Thousand.)

"Simple, direct, anecdotal, and earnest."—Freeman.

STAND UP FOR JESUS! FIVE ADDRESSES TO CHRISTIAN WORKERS. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth limp, 8d.; cloth boards, 1s.

The Prophet Daniel.	Be Strong!
Personal Effort for Christ.	How to Study the Bible.
On Prayer.

SALVATION FOR ALL. SIX ADDRESSES. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth limp, 8d.; cloth boards, 1s.

Salvation for all.	The Book of Memory.
The Promises of Christ.	"Be sure your sin will find you out."
"What think ye of Christ?"	Seeking and Saving.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST. Limp cloth, 6d. (33rd Thousand.)

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per dozen.

THE FULL ASSURANCE OF FAITH: Some Thoughts on Christian Confidence. Limp cloth, 6d. (5th Thousand.)

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per dozen.

"A wise little book by Mr. Moody that believers troubled with doubts and fears would do well to read and act upon."—Christian Treasury.

POWER FROM ON HIGH: or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (25th Thousand.)

"This series of earnest and solemn addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 12 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.

"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months, for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 765.] THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1884. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

Village Life and Village Needs 5	Perth Conference 9	Dundee Christian Conference 14	Poetry—Isaiah xlviii. 18 17
Treatment of Habitual Criminals... 5	Poetry—My King 9	"The Mountain Evangelist" 15	Requests for Prayer 17
On Ministering to the Saints 6	Mission Work in Germany 9	Y.M.C.A, Brighton 15	Indian Notes 18
Notes on Scripture 7	Copenhagen Conference 10	"The World" on Human Nature ...16	Evangelistic Notes 18
Rev. Dennis Osborne 7	Mr. George C. Needham 11	Music-Hall Services 16	Letters to the Editor 19
The Children's Portion 8	Medical Missions in New York 11	Gospel Temperance at Hoxton Hall..16	Notice of Books 19
"Does it Last?" 8	Notes and Comments 12	More Missionaries for China 17	Defending the Faith 20

OUR OWN GAZETTE, ILLUSTRATED, 16 PAGES, 1D.

OUR New Paper has exceeded all expectations, and is now finding its way into homes all over the world, with a steady monthly increase. The hearty reception it has received is shown by its circulation, already 50,000

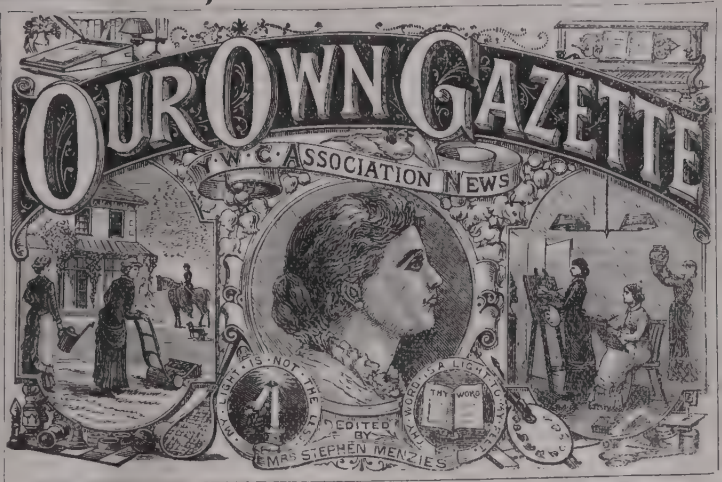
Its Articles treat of all subjects of interest to Young Women in every position: Christian Work, Intellectual Culture, Cookery, Dress, Gardening, Sick Nursing, &c., &c. A portion of the Paper is devoted to Recreation Hours, and how to employ them.

Space between the more substantial Articles is brightened with Illustrations, Poetry, Pithy Paragraphs, &c.; and our artists do justice to the Engravings, which are numerous.

The papers on Natural History have been appreciated, and lovers of Nature have enjoyed our "Bits on Botany;" whilst Serial Stories are added each month, from the pen of well-known writers.

A special Supplement, on tinted paper, has recently been added, called the "WORKERS' COPY" (1d.), for questions, suggestions, and plans for Christian effort of every kind.



LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.] MONTHLY. [One Penny.

Sunday hours are well spent over Bible Jottings, illustrated by "Pen and Ink Bible Marking," so widely used by Mr. Moody and others.

A novel and most interesting Bible Study, with Engraving, appears in the October Number of OUR OWN GAZETTE. The

4 PRIZES

Offered by

LORD SHAFTESBURY.
THE LORD MAYOR.
LORD KINNAIRD, and the BISHOP OF ROCHESTER,

will, we are sure, be largely competed for. Every Bible Student or Teacher should send for the October Number and the large Coloured Chart, to be filled up with Texts in Pen and Ink.

On our colours are the four letters, "Y.W.C.A;" but our Paper is the property of ALL Young Women, whether connected with the "Young Women's Christian Association" or not. Each month we give reports and details of interest, both to Secretaries and Members.

The Hon. E. Kinnaird supplies information from our London friends; Miss Moor, of Clifton, from the Provinces.

Letters for the Editor to be addressed, "Office of OUR OWN GAZETTE, 18, Paternoster-sq., London, E.C."

The following well-known names will sufficiently indicate our principles and aim:—

CONTRIBUTORS:

Dr. Andrew Bonar.	The Hon. F. Dillon.	Rev. Wm. Haslam.	D. L. Moody.	Mrs. G. S. Reaney.	Mrs. A. R. Simpson.
Rev. Henry Brooke.	Lady Liston Foulis.	Lady Hope.	Mrs. Pennefather.	Mrs. Robertson (Callander).	Mrs. C. H. Spurgeon.
Dr. Elder Cumming.	Rev. Chas. Garrett.	J. R. Macduff, D.D.	Dr. Sinclair Paterson.	Anna Shipton.	Rev. C. H. Wright, D.D.

C. F. CARPENTER'S HEALTH RESORT, BISHOP'S TEIGNTON, SOUTH DEVON.

Extract from Testimonials.

VICARAGE,
BISHOP'S TEIGNTON,
October 24, 1879.

As Vicar of the parish in which Mr. Carpenter's Health Resort is situated, I am able from personal knowledge to bear testimony to the high respectability and Christian character of its proprietor, and to the successful and satisfactory manner in which he has conducted the establishment from its commencement to the present time.

* * * * *

It gives me, therefore, much pleasure to recommend this establishment to all who are seeking either a pleasant and healthy place of séjour or a system of careful treatment for the recovery of health.

W. R. OGLE, M.A.

VIEW FROM THE TERRACE AND GROUNDS, LOOKING SOUTH.

Beautifully situated.

Sea and Moorland Air.

Boating and Fishing.

Delightful Drives.

Extensive Private Grounds.

Lawn Tennis Courts.

Home Comforts.

No Alcohol.

A FIRST-CLASS SUITE OF BATHS UNDER MEDICAL SUPERVISION. PROSPECTUS FORWARDED ON APPLICATION.

GREAT COLEMAN'S. — Gentlefolk of limited means needing change and rest, will find all advantages of a gentleman's country house. Drives given. For particulars apply to Mrs. GRIFFITH, 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, Paddington-green, is in urgent need of Funds. There are 25 beds now occupied, and the attendance of out patients is about 100 daily. This Hospital entirely depends on voluntary assistance. All parents, whether their children are in health or sickness must surely sympathise with this good work, for the sake of Him who loved little children. Treasurer, GEORGE HANBURY, 21, Portman-square, by whom any donations will be most thankfully received.

DAILY PRAYER MEETING at 2.0, at the House of Rest, Burlington-place, Eastbourne. Close to the Parade, near the Cavendish Hotel. Christian brethren and sisters are earnestly invited.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.—The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, M.P., Treasurer; J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman; Mr. Sheriff Clarence Smith, Hon. Secretary. For ninety-nine years his Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 250 Christian men and women. Subscriptions and letters for Convalescent Homes re urgently needed. The Banking account is considerably overdrawn. The Committee will be hankful for the Society being remembered in the estamentary arrangements of the benevolent.—Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. E. H. GERRANS, Secretary.

PRIVATE HOME-HOSPITAL, 9, Lupus-street, St. George's-square, South Belgravia, for Ladies and Children (medical, surgical, and obstetrical cases). Situation most healthful, being open back and front, and adjoining the square. Applicants are requested to send in their names, as the beds are filled up in order of application, unless in cases of urgency. There are vacancies for three lady probationers Terms, including board, residence, and instruction, one guinea per week. — For terms apply to the LADY SUPERINTENDENT at the Hospital, enclosing stamped directed envelope.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with thanks, a parcel of cast-off Clothing, Anonymous.

The Infant Day Nursery opens every morning at 7.30. The Free Ragged Day Schools commence in the morning at 9, in the afternoon at 2. Evening work amongst Children, on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays at 6.30. Sunday Schools, Morning, Afternoon, and Evening. Evening Classes and Meetings for Elder Girls and Young Women Mutual Industrial Classes for Big Boys. Bible Classes. Evangelistic Services. Room to Room Visitation, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 56, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

GEE-STREET Christian Mission and Ragged School, Goswell-road, earnestly solicits donations to continue the good work of preaching, teaching the Gospel, temperance, and relieving deserving poor.—Bankers, BARCLAY & Co., 54, Lombard-street; Treasurer, ROBERT BAXTER, Esq., 6, Victoria-street, Westminster; Hon. Secretary, RUDGLEY, 82, Wood-street, Cheapside.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College Avenue, Hackney.—The Annual Sale of Work will be held at the Home, on the 28th, 29th, and 30th of October. Articles for sale will be gratefully received by Miss S. RYE.

BRISTOL BIBLICAL INSTITUTE. For Young Men desirous of being trained as Candidates for the Ministry or Town Missionaries.—Send a stamped envelope to Rev. P. PRESCOTT, Coronation-road, Bristol.

BETHSHAN.—Faith Healing Home. 161, Islington, Liverpool. For particulars apply to Miss GIBBS.

YOUNG WORKWOMEN IN THE CITY.—Lady readers in warehouses most acceptable in dinner and tea hours. Not absent three or four months, and who could meet monthly for fellowship and prayer at 2 o'clock 1st Wednesday monthly, at 186, Aldersgate-street. If needful, travelling expenses paid. — Mrs. FISHER, 186, Aldersgate-street. Kindly call any day, 1 o'clock.

Educational.

MORAVIAN EDUCATION.—Fulneck, near Leeds. Established 1750. Application to be made to Miss SHAWE for the Girls' School, and to Rev. W. T. TITTERINGTON for the Boys' School.

41, LEWISHAM HIGH-ROAD, S.E.—Mrs. and the Misses WILLMOT receive day pupils, and a few boarders. A thorough English education; usual accomplishments. Masters. Motherly care and Christian training.

D'URBAN HOUSE SCHOOL, BLACKHEATH.—This old-established School for the sons of Gentlemen is conducted by a Lady, assisted by trained governesses and qualified masters. Highest references.—Address the PRINCIPAL.

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION.

To Meet the Needs of the SICK POOR. "Preaching the Gospel and Healing."
Donations and clothing (new and old) thankfully received. Reports sent on application.
Hon. Director—Dr. G. SAUNDERS, C.B. Hon. Treasurer—Dr. W. B. BELL. 47, Endell-st., St. Giles'.

STAR VILLA ORPHAN HOME.

Will every reader kindly respond to the APPEAL in THE CHRISTIAN of August 28, and send as the Lord may enable them towards the needed help. Bankers—London and Provincial, Chatham. Hon. Superintendent, Mrs. WILLIS, Star Villa Orphan Home, Rainham-road, Chatham, Kent.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Boys, The Woodlands, Hitchin. Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Hitchin may be reached within an hour from King's Cross Station.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, Belgrave-place. Principals, Mrs. and Miss WILKIN.—High-class education for Girls. Pupils prepared for the Royal Academy (Music) and University Examinations. Healthy situation. Home comforts.—Prospectus and references on application.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Gentlemen's Daughters.—Miss PENN, and Fräulein ESSER receive twenty-five boarders. Efficient staff of professors. Christian influence. Home comforts. Large house and garden. Languages and music specialities. Fees from date of entrance.
Grove House, Upper Clapton, London, N.

ROTHESAY HOUSE, Alum Chine, Bournemouth.—Miss COLE (certificated in London University Examinations for Women), having for some years successfully conducted a large school for girls, now receives a few Pupils in her own home. Healthy position near sea. Thorough education, combined with comforts of refined Christian home. Lady boarder received.

DIEZ-ON-THE-LAHN, near Ems. —Fräulein von Griesheim receives a few young Ladies. High-class finishing education. Christian training. Home comforts. Liberal table. Governess-pupil wanted. Prospectus and references on application.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE for Young Ladies, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon, and CLARENDON HOUSE, Topsham (for delicate girls requiring sea-air). Education of the highest order. Professors, English and foreign certificated governesses. Pupils successfully passed Edinburgh, Oxford, Trinity College, College of Preceptors. Honours, and special certificates. The Principal's aim is to secure a training that will ensure spiritual well-being; she engages as teachers ladies of decided piety only. Numerous references to parents in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and abroad. Pupils accompanied to and from London (journey of four hours). The term commences (D.V.) September 19.

LONDON.—First-class Education for the daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors; their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles. — DELTA, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

HIGHBURY HOUSE, St. Leonards-on-Sea. Boys prepared for Commerce, Public Schools, or the Universities. Upper, Middle, and Preparatory Departments. Seven resident Masters. The Junior Division taught by Ladies. Delicate boys requiring a mild climate receive every kindness and constant care.—For Prospectus, apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal. The Autumn Term will commence Sept. 20.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE,
Principal: DR. CRANAGE.
The school will re-open (D.V.) Thursday, Sept. 25.

SOUTHPORT.—First-class Girls' School. Conducted by members of the Society of Friends. Special educational advantages. Masters and Lecturers of acknowledged merit. Watchful care and home comforts. Situation particularly open and healthy.—Mrs. WALLIS, Brighthelmston, Birkdale, Southport.

VACANCIES will occur September 29, in an old-established School, in which Young Ladies have a thorough education, based upon Gospel principles, combined with the advantages of a happy home. Holidays only twice a year: Christmas and Midsummer. Terms moderate.
Miss BIRCH, Florence House, Baschurch, Salop.

TWO OR THREE Indian or Orphan Children would receive home comforts and careful Christian training in a small select School in South Devon, on moderate terms.
PRINCIPAL, Milton House, Plympton.

MRS. TATE, widow of a medical man, offers a happy home to children whose parents are abroad, and who need motherly care and education; or to any attending the High School. References:—Dr. Kidd, Col. Brooke, and others.—For terms, &c., address, Leigh's Villa, Bennett-park, Blackheath, London, S.E.

TWENTY-ONE GUINEAS.—Boys received to Board and Educate for 21 guineas, between the ages of five and twelve years. Especially suitable for delicate children.—Please address COUNTRY, at Messrs. J. Boulton & Co., 4, Worship-street, Finsbury.

DAUGHTERS of Gentlemen received at very reduced terms to fill vacancies in good school, either as companion pupil or governess student. London suburb.
H., 336, New Cross-road, S.E.

SOUTHDENE, Ramsgate.—Splendidly situated Home for delicate children requiring sea and country air, combined with educational advantages. Under the personal supervision of experienced Christian Lady. Prospectus on application. Terms moderate.

EDUCATION.—The Misses WILKINSON receive a limited number of Boarders as well as Day-pupils. References are kindly permitted to several clergymen and parents of pupils, who are willing to testify to the evangelical teaching and loving care bestowed, as well as to the sound education imparted.—Prospectuses on application to 55, Highbury-park, N.

CLACTON-ON-SEA. — Christian Home, with or without tuition, for children needing special care. Excellent references. Lady Boarder also received. 19s. per week. Two sharing bed-room. 16s. 6d. each. — PRINCIPAL, Westbourne-villa, Clacton-on-Sea, Essex.

THE PRINCIPAL of a select day-school, who has one boarder, wishes to obtain two little Girls to educate with her. Careful Christian training. References from parents, &c. PRINCIPAL, 75, Farleigh-road, Stoke Newington, N.

NERAC. — A French Protestant Lady receives English Ladies in her educational establishment. Religious supervision. A Lady could be received for the winter, on moderate terms. An English musical Governess required, "au pair."—Baroness CELLI, 19, Kennet-road, W., or, La Directrice, Pensionnat Protestant, Nérac, Lot et Garonne.

HIGH BARNET, N.—Special Preparation for Matriculation, Civil Service, &c., training of backward boys Great success. Highest references. Two vacancies Reduced fees. For prospectus, address REV., Fernlea, Ravenscroft park.

HANOVER.—A Gentleman or Boy wishing to learn German, will find comfortable home, in good family: no other English there. Terms very moderate. Best references.
Miss MIELECKA, Shugborough, Stafford.

INSTRUCTION by Correspondence given to Ladies preparing for University Examinations, or to others, by Mrs. MODY, L.L.A., Tavistock, Devon.

A CHRISTIAN LADY (certificated), who wishes to open a Middle-class Day School on the High School system, would be obliged if any Lady would inform her of a locality where a want for the same is felt. She would like to hear from anyone wishing to dispose of a school.
H., 214, High-street, Brentford, W.

TUTOR. — A young Gentleman seeks an engagement as above. An excellent classical scholar. No objection to travel.—R. R., care of Rev. T. Mainnery, Adamine Rectory, Gorey, Co. Wexford, Ireland.

KINDERGARTEN. — Re-engagement wanted immediately by first-class certificated Mistress. Excellent testimonials English, music, and French, if required. — K. G. M., Penryn House, North-park, Eltham, Kent.

FEMALE TEACHER wanted, for Girls' Orphanage in London. Age not under 23. Salary £16. Elementary knowledge, and needlework required.—Mrs. MCDONALD 25, Oakley-crescent, Manor-street, Chelsea, S.W.

A YOUNG LADY wanted, to take charge of and teach two little girls, aged 7 and 5. Willing to make herself generally useful, and a good needlewoman. Nursemaid kept. Moderate salary.
Mrs. NEVILL, 10, Compton-road, Canonbury, N.

GOVERNESS COMPANION to a young girl of 12 required. Thorough English, French, and classical music indispensable.—Apply, enclosing photo and copies of testimonials, to Mrs. EDMUND ASHBY, Glenburnie, Southampton.

A CLERGYMAN'S DAUGHTER desires re engagement as Governess to young children, or as Companion. English, French, music, sewing, and junior drawing. Willing to go abroad. Good references.
K., Morrishill, Oban, Scotland.

NORTH-GERMAN GOVERNESS (decided Christian), certificated, desires re-engagement; daily or resident. Acquirements, German, conversational French, English, music, rudimentary Latin and Italian. Understands Kindergarten.
AIMÉE, 16, Powis terrace, Westbourne-park.

AS GOVERNESS to girls under 12.—A young Lady (25) desires a re-engagement. English, French, elementary Latin, good music. Nearly four years' experience. Good references. Clergyman's family, in the country preferred.—A. B., Corporation Chambers, Guildhall-yard, London.

GOVERNESS.—Experienced and decided Christian wishes re-engagement. Charge of motherless children valued. English, French, music. Highest testimonials. Recommended by Rev. Wm. Haslam.—BETA, Mr. Howard's, Albion Printing Office, Upper Sydenham.

LADIES WITH LIMITED INCOME find a pleasant home in a School at the seaside. A Lady willing to devote four hours weekly to teaching French and drawing would be received upon half terms.—FLORENCE, Mr. Bishopp, Stationer, West-hill, Hastings.

A CLERGYMAN'S WIDOW, living in South Devon, offers a very happy home to three or four, or more, Indian or Orphan children, with education. References exchanged. A. R., Parker Brothers, Builders, Newton Abbot.

A GERMAN LADY (decided Christian), desires re-engagement in school or family. Diplomée, and prepares for examinations. German, French (11 years in France), and drawing.
F. G., 16, Powis-terrace, Westbourne-park, W.

WANTED, by the Advertiser, for a young Lady, a situation as Nursery Governess in a Christian family Acquirements: English (good), rudiments of French, music, needlework.
Miss DOUGLAS, East Holme, Wareham.

GOVERNESS to young children (18).—A Lady wishes to place a young friend, Gentleman's daughter. Abstainer. Church of England. Also OFFICE BOY (13). Intelligent.—Miss GREENE, 25, Palace-gardens, London.

GERMAN GOVERNESS wanted, for two girls, 9 and 13, in Clergyman's family in Edinburgh. State terms, references, &c.—C. Y. F., Elliot, Bookseller, Princes-street, Edinburgh.

A NORTH-GERMAN GOVERNESS (diplomée) requires re-engagement. German, French, English, good music, singing, drawing. Long experience. Good references.
L. E., 16, Powis-terrace, Bayswater, W.

GRANGE CANAL, Geneva.—Rev. J. P. DARBIER can receive in his house two young Gentlemen wishing to learn French.

£30 AND SERVICES.—A widow Lady, with one little boy, will pay thirty pounds, and teach young children in a school, or family, for comfortable board and residence.
Mrs. H., 8, Nelson-place, Ryde, Isle of Wight.

A SWISS LADY seeks re-engagement. Fluent French, German (Paris, Hanover), thorough English, good music, drawing. Can finish her pupils. No objection to younger ones.
M., 54, Cornwall-road, Bayswater.

AS NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Wanted, in a Christian family, a young Lady as Nursery Governess and Mother's Help. Able to teach music. Abstainer.—M. G., 2, Oakfield-villas, St. James's-road, Tunbridge Wells.

RE-ENGAGEMENT desired by experienced, Christian Governess to young pupils in a family; or would teach junior classes and assist in housekeeping in a school.
A., Myrtle Villa, Bourn-road, Stamford.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

EVANGELIST, or Missionary.—One experienced in conducting services in Mission Halls and Open air, visiting, &c., desires engagement. Highly recommended.
Y., Register-office, 127, High-street, Ryde, I.W.

TO ESTATE OWNERS.—A Bricklayer, a first-class hand, desires permanent employment to do repairs, &c., &c. Abstainer; married, no children. (This is inserted by a friend, who suggests to any landlord desirous of employing a man able to exert Christian influence, to reply to it.)—W. ALLRIGHT, 22, Grafton-terrace, Kentish Town, N.W.

AN EARNEST Christian Young Man (accustomed to business) seeks employment in any Christian work. Otherwise, any light occupation with Christian people. Moderate salary required.
H. GREEN, Long-green, Tewkesbury, Glos.

A GENTLEMAN who has been Hon. Secretary to Missions and kindred work, desires to meet with an engagement as paid Secretary or Superintendent to a London Mission, or large Home for children, or Institution. Has been a merchant, and is in the prime of life, and very anxious to get into thoroughly hearty work.—F. L., care of W. F. Greig, Esq., Solicitor, 15, Fenchurch-street, E.C.

HEAD GARDENER, where one or more are kept.—Understands gardening in all its branches. Competent to take charge of a gentleman's estate, and pasture, and stock. Christian and abstainer FIELD, Westfield, Crowley, Sussex.

AS GARDENER, where another is kept; or good single-handed. Experienced in all branches. Fourteen months in present place; four years in the one before. Age 27. Single. Christian and abstainer.
J. L., care of W. Long, Ridge, Barnet, Herts.

A LADY WISHES to recommend a man and his wife, highly respectable and trustworthy, either to take charge of a Coffee Palace, or as servants in a private family. The wife is a good cook, and the husband can keep accounts, and understands gardening. — Mrs. CAUSTON, Powyscourt, Park-hill, Croydon; also, the Rev. J. BARTON, East Leigh, Havant, Hants.

COACHMAN AND GROOM (thorough) where a pony or more horses are kept.—A Christian, abstainer, is seeking a situation where confidence is required. Married, age 35. Good character.
A. B., 12, High-street, Worcester.

EMPLOYMENT wanted, by a Christian man, age 40, as messenger, porter, charge of offices, or any place of trust. Town or country. Has lived in present situation 10 years, as butler. Abstainer. Excellent references.
W.L., Barker's, 1, Cattle-court, Birchin-lane, E.C.

A LADY is anxious to recommend a reliable, trustworthy. Christian man for any place of trust; willing to make himself useful. Total abstainer. Two years' character.—Y. Z., Mission House, Arthur-street, Old Kent-road.

CAN ANY CHRISTIAN friend help a trustworthy Christian married man to a situation in any capacity of trust, as messenger, caretaker, timekeeper, or collector, or as warehouse porter, coachman, or otherwise? Highest reference. Total abstainer. Age 35.
R. J., 83, Highbury-hill, London, N.

WILL ANYONE GIVE respectable employment to a young Christian man, aged 26, who is useful and industrious, of good character, an abstainer, and thoroughly reliable, but wants Sundays free to devote to the Giver?—H. D., 11, Lifford-street, Coopers' Arms-lane, High-street, Putney.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER wanted, by an educated, domesticated person, either in private house or business. Experienced, and good references.—BETA, 102, Queen's-road, Dalston, E.

LADY-HOUSEKEEPER or Companion.—Engagement desired by a Lady of education and refinement. Experienced in housekeeping and training of young people. Willing to go abroad. Highest references to clergymen and others.
M., Miss L., 96, Canning-street, Liverpool.

MR. CHEYNE BRADY will be obliged by information of an opening in business or otherwise for a Christian lad, son of a clergyman, and who can be recommended.
CHEYNE BRADY, West Bromwich.

A GENTLEMAN can highly recommend a Lady who has had supervision of his household, to widower or bachelor as Housekeeper where one or more servants are kept.
R. LLOYD, Esq., Post-office, Ruabon, W. Wales.

A LADY (24) seeks engagement as Companion to Clergyman's wife. Would like parish work, or travelling Companion. Salary no object. Highest references.
K. SEMOUR, General Post Office, Leicester.

WANTED, situation for quiet, steady Lad (18) to work in garden, attend to pony, or to assist in the house. Three years' good character.—Miss GARRETT, Cavendish, Suffolk.

A YOUNG LADY (25) desires an engagement as Companion to a Lady, or Governess to children under 11. English and music. Good needlewoman; domesticated. Used to children. Salary £18. Good references given.
C., Post-office, Camerton, Bath.

AS MOTHER'S HELP, or Attendant Companion to an invalid lady.—Situation wanted, by a young person, who has had some little experience in nursing; with good references.
C. L., The Bury, Pavenham, near Bedford.

SHOP ASSISTANT. — A Lady desires to find an opening in a small shop in London, for a young woman about 32. She has a sad story, but is strictly honest. Would help in light housework. 10s. a week offered for first three months.—A. F., 40, Montagu-square.

A YOUNG LADY, daughter of a professional man, desires an engagement as useful Companion to an elderly Lady. Accustomed to housekeeping. Satisfactory references.
M. H., Scane's, Cathedral-yard, Exeter.

AS NURSE, age 21.— Two years' good character, in a clergyman's family. — M. A. D., 39, Downham-road, Kingsland-road, London.

WANTED, by two respectable tradesman's daughters, situations in good families (small and quiet). Parlour-maid where Housemaid is kept; other as Housemaid. In or near Brighton.
M. C., Stirling House, Porthall-road, Brighton.

A GENTLEMAN'S FAMILY desire to recommend a respectable, middle-aged woman as personal Attendant to a lady, her services being no longer required in consequence of the death of her late mistress.—Address, by letter only, E. P., Wilton House, Chepstow-rise, Croydon.

GENERAL SERVANT (17) under working Mistress, or good upper Servant. In a small family. Washing put out. Abstainer. Also OFFICE BOY (13) Intelligent.
Miss GREENE, 25, Palace-gardens, London.

WILL ANY LADY take as Mother's Help or General Servant, a superior young woman who has been led astray, but now strives to retrieve the past? Clever needlewoman and plain cook. She wishes to have her little girl of 5 years old with her. Very small salary. Country preferred. Full particulars and references given.—Apply by letter, to K. W., Friend's Library, 77, Western-road, Brighton.

CHURCHES. — Rev. Thomas R. Donaldson, Congregational Minister, is open to supply vacant pulpits with a view, or to conduct Evangelistic Services in our country churches during the winter.—Ross, Hereford.

A LADY has pleasure in recommending her Monthly Nurse, who is open to an engagement after May.—Mrs. G., care of Mrs. Scott, Birchwood, Dedham, Colechester.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

CURATE WANTED, Southwell Diocese.—An uncompromising Evangelical. A converted man of a missionary and unsectarian spirit. Eph. vi. 24. Stipend £150 for presbyter.
F., Keswick, Cumberland.

A CHRISTIAN young man wanted, as Clerk. Age under 30; of good business habits.—Apply by letter only, stating references and salary required, to the SECRETARY, Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

WANTED, a good Solo Singer and several Christian young men, who will dedicate their talents and evenings to the Lord at Missions.—HON. SEC., Children's Evangelistic Mission, 253, Southampton-street, S E.

BUTLER wanted, in a Gentleman's family in the country, where one footman is kept. A member of the Church of England. A total abstainer preferred.
GEORGE C. COURTHOPE, Whiligh, Hawkhurst.

USEFUL MANSERVANT wanted, single-handed, near London. State wages and particulars. Apartments or cottage provided. Abstainer preferred.—Address, by letter, H. A., May's Advertising Offices, 159, Piccadilly, London, W.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS wanted, for the St. James's Gospel Mission.—Apply to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. W. E. COOPER, 17, Prince's-square, S.E.

MARRIED COUPLE wanted.—Wife to act as cook and attend to small dairy; husband to make himself generally useful. Abstainers. Parlour-maid and housemaid kept.
R. G., Corston House, Ryde, I.W.

HOUSEKEEPER-SECRETARY required at once. Must have practical experience in both capacities. Good needlewoman, Christian, and abstainer. No reply to unsuitable applicants.
Mrs. POOLE, Post-office, Dawlish, Devon.

RESPECTABLE YOUTH wanted, as Apprentice to the bookselling, stationery, and accountant's business, with an opportunity of learning postal and telegraph work. Indoors. Premium required.—Corfield's Library, Post-office, Mount Ephraim, Tunbridge Wells.

NURSE WANTED, immediately, to take baby from month. One little boy. Good character indispensable. Good needlewoman. Christian and abstainer. Help given. Age 25 to 30. Wages £16 to £18, all found.—Mrs. JOSEPH HANNINGTON, 15, Clarendon-villas, West Brighton.

NURSE.—Wanted, a good and conscientious Nurse for several children in a clergyman's family. Nursemaid employed, and daily governess.—Mrs. HOWELL SMITH, 33, Mount Sion, Tunbridge Wells.

NURSE.—Wanted at once, an experienced Nurse, also Nurse-girl, to take oversight of five children.—Mrs. O., Albert Villa, Granville-road, Southfields, Wandsworth, S.W.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a thoroughly trustworthy Christian Nurse, age about 24. Must be really fond of children, good-tempered and obliging, refined in manner, and correct in speaking. One who has been under-nurse might suit, as Lady superintends her nursery.—Apply, by letter, to Mrs. J. G. A., Westbury Lodge, Wellington-road, Eltham, Kent.

A THOROUGHLY competent Nursemaid wanted, to take charge of two children under 3 years. Good character. Abstainer preferred. Wages £14.
Mrs. S., 17, Larkfield-road, Richmond, Surrey.

EXPERIENCED ENGLISH NURSE wanted, Protestant, between 26 and 30 years of age, to Lady's first baby. Must be of cheerful disposition and an excellent needlewoman.—References must be sent with application to Baronne VAN ASBECK, Eusebius Singel 59, Arnhem, Holland.

PARLOUR-MAID wanted. Age 25 to 30. Good personal character. Wages £21; all found but beer.—Apply, by letter, Mrs. F., 1, Vanbrugh-park-road East, Blackheath.

BRIGHT, ACTIVE GIRL wanted, about 16, as Under Nurse. Two children. Must be strong, and a good needlewoman. Dissenter.—Mrs. SMITH, Grove End Lodge, Highgate-road, N.W.

KITCHEN-MAID wanted (single-handed). Must be strong, industrious, obliging, and understand her work. Recommended by lady. Good character indispensable. State wages.
Miss B., Broadwaterbury, Tunbridge Wells.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, to assist in housework, for clergyman's family in Liverpool. Good character indispensable. Early riser; Churchwoman and abstainer. Age about 30.—Mrs. B., 14, Crossbeck-road, Ilkley.

A LADY, residing at Worthing, requires two Servants. One as General Servant; other as House and Parlour-maid. Situation comfortable. Christians appreciated. Wages to commence with, £16 and £14, with all found.—A. M., Clarence House, 59, London-road, Tunbridge Wells.

CAFÉ MANAGERESS.—Wanted, a Lady of experience in above, to take charge of a Y.M.C.A. café and dining-rooms.—Apply by letter, enclosing copies of testimonials, to SECRETARY, Y.M.C.A., 14, Wellington-place, Belfast.

AN ENERGETIC Matron-Housekeeper wanted, in a small Home for nurses in S.E. London. A good plain cook and total abstainer desired. Salary £30.—62, New Bond-street, W.

FANCY STATIONERY. — Indoor apprentice. A Christian girl willing to make herself useful. Two in family, treated as one of them. No premium.
Mrs. GRAHAM, 118, Holloway-road, N.

HEAD GARDENER, where two are kept. Must thoroughly understand gardening, cows, pigs, and poultry. Ten miles from London. State age and family.
W., 35, Lincoln's Inn-fields.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a trustworthy married couple, as coachman and good plain cook, to live in the house?—Mrs. ROLLESTON, Stanford Rivers Rectory, Romford.

CAN ANY LADY recommend the Advertiser a strong, willing girl, aged about 16 years, as General Servant, where she would be well treated and cared for?
N. B., Sandford Cottage, Hornsey, N.

WANTED, in Christian family, a good Plain Cook, about 30 years of age. Wages £20. A Dissenter preferred.—Apply, personally or by letter,
Bathurst House, The Grove, Highgate-road, N.W.

WANTED, about middle of October, for country vicarage, small family, a trustworthy General Servant, who understands plain cooking. Widow not objected to. Help given.
Mrs. MARRIOTT, Walton Vicarage, Ipswich.

COOK (good plain) wanted, in small, quiet family. Wages £16 to £18. Christian and abstainer. Willing to assist another servant in housework.
Mrs. S., Inverewe, North Finchley, N.

A PERSON REQUIRED, daily, or for part of the day, for needlework, fine ironing, and to attend to the front door. An abstainer preferred.—Address, by letter only, X Y., at May's Advertising Offices, 159, Piccadilly, London.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, in small family, who can cook well. Two other servants kept. Wages £18 or £20.—Apply any evening to Mrs. B., 35, Addison-gardens N., Kensington.

GENERAL SERVANT required at once in small, quiet family. Must be clean, industrious, and able to do plain cooking. Nurse kept. Wages £14.
Mrs. S., 13, Hammersmith-terrace, London, W.

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Small family. No children. Wages £14.
Mrs. HICKOX, 2, Lion-terrace, Finsbury-park, N.

WILL A LADY kindly recommend to Advertiser an active, honest girl, about 18 to 20, willing to be taught housework? Nursemaid kept. A pleasant Christian home.
Mrs. C., 10, Hanley-road, Finsbury-park, N.

A GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Age 18.—HISCOCKS, 69, King's-road, Chelsea.

A CONSCIENTIOUS Christian person wanted to assist in a Preventive Home, chiefly in the laundry, under two Matrons.
Mrs. WALKER, 4, Spencer's Belle Vue, Bath.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a superior Christian person as thoroughly experienced Housemaid? Must be strong, active, good worker, early riser; used to large household. Age about 30. Parlour-maid kept.
Mrs. OSWALD, New Place House, Southampton.

NURSEMAID wanted, for two children. Must be healthy, active, and willing.—Mrs. DAINTREE, Glenhyrst, Dingwall-road, Croydon.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, for family of two, one who is strongly recommended, and would appreciate a comfortable, Christian home. Only moderate wages.
S., 48, Bickerton-road, Upper Holloway, N.

USEFUL MAID, can any Lady recommend? Conscientious, pleasant, healthy, for a delicate Lady. Accustomed to illness. Age 36. Wages £18 to £20. Highest references necessary.—W., 73, London-street, Reading.

AGENTS (male and female) required throughout England, Scotland, and Ireland to sell our pure Teas on commission varying from 7d. per lb. Our terms are the most liberal in the trade, enabling Agents to earn £2 weekly. Payment only required after sale. Special terms for cash. Free delivery. Write for samples (gratis) to the United Tea Growers' Association, 114, Union court, E.C.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

SYDENHAM.—Board and Residence, lovely neighbourhood, offered in the handsomely furnished House of a Lady, with real home comforts. Only a select few received. Suitable for a married couple of friends. Two good servants. A good Evangelical church near. Near three stations. References.
G., 59, Longton-grove, Sydenham.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.

40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

This First-class Private Hotel is highly recommended by readers of THE CHRISTIAN from all parts of the world. The Bishop of Algoma writes: "The comfort, perfect order, and attendance at PERCY'S Hotel, render it all that can be desired as a central place of sojourn in this great city." Beds from 1s. 6d. Tea, 1s. 3d. Tariff on application.

LONDON.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL,

97, 99, 101, 103, Southampton-row, Russell-sq. Highly recommended by John Cairns, D.D. Rev. Forbes E. Winslow, M.A., Rev. Canon Hopkins, B.D., Frederick Sherlock, Esq., Mrs. E. S. Ellis, and numerous readers of The Christian. Hot and cold baths. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Printed Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH

VISITORS TO LONDON will find a Christian home at Taverner's Temperance Hotel, 35 & 36, Hunter-street, Judd-street, Euston-road. Five minutes from G. N., Mid., and N. W. Railways. Patronised by ministers and Christians of all denominations.

HUTCHINSON'S PRIVATE HOTEL, 24, Guilford-street, Russell-square, the most central position for all parts of London. Extensive patronised and strongly recommended. Home comforts. Terms moderate.

BRIGHTON.—Sussex House Boarding Establishment, pleasantly situated in the Old Steine, having a sea view, and the beautiful Steine Gardens in front. Near to Pavilion, Aquarium, and piers. Liberal table, with every home comfort.—Mr. & Mrs. Box, 58, Old Steine.

HASTINGS NEW HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT.—Now open. Charming residence for change and rest. An unequalled health resort. Purest air. Turkish baths, with sea-water plunge. Scientific baths of every description, with skilled attendants. One and a half hours from London. Moderate charges.
Apply to the SECRETARY.

HASTINGS, Shaftesbury Hotel.—This first-class Hotel or Boarding House, formerly a gentleman's mansion, has been re-decorated and handsomely furnished throughout, and is opened for the reception of Ladies and Gentlemen. Terms exceedingly moderate, from 6s. 6d. per day, or £2 2s. per week.
Miss ABLEWHITE, Manageress.

LONDON. — Insull's Temperance Hotel, 20, 21, Burton-crescent, Tavistock-square, W.C.—Five minutes' walk or 1s. cab fare from Euston, St. Pancras, King's Cross Railways; easily reached from other stations. Patronised by readers of THE CHRISTIAN.

HOME OF REST, The Hollows, St. Albans.—Christian Workers needing rest can obtain prospectus of terms, &c., on application to LADY SUPERINTENDENT as above.

BOURNEMOUTH, Ivors, Old Christchurch-road, Boarding House. — Cheerful central position, near Holy Trinity Church. Very comfortable house. Permanency or otherwise. Terms moderate.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortable winter Apartments, board if required, close to pleasure gardens, few minutes' walk from sea; in centre of the Pines. Home comforts, good cooking. Terms moderate.
CHELTENHAM, Crescent-road, Bournemouth.

EASTBOURNE.—Boarding Establishment for the winter months. Terms from 30s. Sea view, not opposite. A handsome lawn in front. Every home comfort.—Mrs. WAGGELL, Strathmore House, Howard-square.

SOUTH DEVON.—To Let, furnished, with attendance, for the winter, sitting-room, two bed-rooms, facing south. Suitable for ladies, or lady and gentleman. Every attention and convenience.
F. S., Post-office, Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth.

SWANAGE.—Detached furnished House to Let. Large garden. One to the sea. Three sitting-rooms, eight bed-rooms, dressing-room, bath-room, good kitchen offices, coach-house, stable. Very moderate rent from middle of November till April.
S., 10, Grove-hill, Tunbridge Wells.

SOUTH-EAST COAST, DEVON.—In a favourite watering-place. Comfortable house to Let, furnished. Three sitting rooms, five bedrooms, with offices. Small garden. Three guineas a week.—Address, by letter only, R. C., care of P. Hughes, Esq., War-office, Pall Mall.

ISLE OF WIGHT.—Comfortable Board and Residence, four guineas per month. Roomy furnished house. Rent very moderate. Also detached secluded 4-roomed cottage, furnished. £12 six months
PROPRIETOR, Havelock House, Sandown.

EALING. — A Christian young Lady living in above neighbourhood, is desirous of meeting with a Lady as permanent boarder in her quiet home.—T. G., 12, The Grove, Ealing.

IN HEALTHY VILLAGE, near London. A Lady desires to Let large bed-room, sitting-room, and box-room, to gentleman or lady seeking a well-ordered, comfortable home. Terms moderate.—For particulars apply, by letter only, to Miss WARD, Clare Lodge, Southall.

DIPSOMANIA. — A successfully established private Home at the seaside for six, suffering from excess of morphia, chloral, absinthe, stimulants, or Nervous Debility. Christian care and influence. Judicious supervision and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

Continued on page 22.

NATURE'S METHOD OF HEALING.

MAGNETISM is one of nature's most energising and tonic restoratives, which strengthens the vital force of every organ, inducing buoyant and healthy action; and we contend that the sustaining influence of Odic force on the nervous system, although imperceptible, is nevertheless as much a matter of fact as the assimilation of food is in the physical economy. If it be supposed that Odo-Magnetic treatment is in any sense a stimulating or artificial process, we have only to reply that, according to our present knowledge, it is impossible to make use of a more natural means of recuperation. If, after the crops have failed from drought, we avert fruitless harvests by irrigation, is that unnatural? If, when it is almost impossible for a delicate patient to encounter our London fogs, he decides to sojourn in a more southern clime during winter, does he adopt an unnatural course, or in any sense stimulate his vital force unduly? By employing Odo-Magnetic influence externally we do not go out of our way to obtain anything, or set aside the ordinary course of daily life to seek health, for although complete rest and a bracing atmosphere may doubtless do much towards effecting a restoration, yet, in an enfeebled bodily condition, there is a necessity for the employment of some more energetic and radical, but not less natural, means of invigoration—namely, to surround the patient with the Magnetic or Electric Atmosphere in such a gentle form that it shall be appropriated by the system with the same freedom as pure air, and produce that functional action of the organism which is absolutely necessary in order to restore perfect health. Such an ally, with the recuperative force, we have in the Magnetic aura or atmosphere evolved by our Odo-Magnetic garments.

From Mr. E. BANDEY, Goldington-green, Bedford.

February 25, 1884.

"I am pleased to be able to inform you, after a good trial, that I have derived great benefit from your treatment. My back is much stronger, and I can do a heavy day's work without feeling fatigue, and I don't think I have had a cold to hurt me since I commenced to wear your appliances. I should be very sorry to have to do my work without them, they are such a comfort."

Writing on Sept. 6th, in reference to his mother's case, this gentleman says:—

"I am glad to tell you that my mother has derived marvellous benefit from the appliances you supplied. Before I wrote to you for advice for her, it was a perfect misery to see her go about, the back being so weak and painful, but the first day of wearing your appliance she could walk about with ease, and has continued to do so ever since. If she gets very tired her back sometimes aches during the night, but as soon as she rises in the morning and puts on the appliances the pain ceases. She has worn them regularly since she had them.

"Your appliances have been, and still are, very beneficial to myself, but the effect on my mother has been wonderful. I shall be very pleased to recommend your treatment to all I come in contact with."

Letters commendatory of Mr. Garratt's treatment by Magneto-Electricity have been received from hundreds of persons, in all classes of society. A private list of 950 names as referees can be had on application. Consultation free, personally, or by letter. B. COPSON GARRATT, Medical Electrician, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

PART I. NOW READY, PRICE 6d., of

MORGAN & SCOTT'S ILLUSTRATED EDITION OF

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE

(COMPLETE)

TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

ILLUSTRATED WITH

THE FOLLOWING EXQUISITE STEEL PLATE ENGRAVINGS:

SAMARIA.
ELISHA'S FOUNTAIN, JERICHO.
REPHIDIM.
DAMASCUS.
MOUNT TABOR.
TYRE.
HEBRON.
JERUSALEM FROM THE SOUTH.
SHECHEM—SYCHAR.
TIBERIAS.
BETHANY.
ATHENS.

AND SIX BEAUTIFULLY COLOURED MAPS.

"I have never seen any engravings equal to these for the purposes of Biblical Illustration. True to existing nature, exact in outline, beautiful in execution, they leave nothing to be desired. Knowing the country so well, I am pleased to have my recollections refreshed by the minuteness of detail, in which engravings got up for illustration so frequently fall short."—REV. H. B. TRISTRAM, LL.D., Canon of Durham, Author of "The Land of Israel," "Bible Places," &c., &c.

"I have examined with care the views for Biblical Illustration. . . . The engravings are very beautiful. In clearness, accuracy, and general effect, they surpass, I think, any I have seen. The places represented are all familiar to me; and I have been particularly struck by the fidelity with which your artist has reproduced Frith's admirable photographs. The views of Hebron, Shechem, Tabor, Tiberias, and Jerusalem, could scarcely be surpassed. . . . It would mark a new era in Biblical Illustration if the work were extended to all the scenes of Bible incidents; and if, instead of fancy pictures, which only misrepresent the East, engravings from photographs were introduced."—REV. J. L. PORTER, D.D., Professor of Biblical Criticism, Author of "The Giant Cities of Bashan," and "Syria's Holy Places," &c., &c.

TO BE COMPLETED IN 18 MONTHLY PARTS, PRICE SIXPENCE EACH.

May also be had Complete in One Volume. Library Edition, Handsomely Bound, 10s. 6d.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

GREAT SPECIAL

Holiness Convention

FOR MEN ONLY,

On Wednesday, October 1, at 8 p.m., in the ST. ANDREW'S HALL, Newman-street, Oxford-street, W. (seven minutes' walk from Portland-road Station), conducted by MR. W. BRAMWELL BOOTH and MR. HERBERT BOOTH.

Assisted by Staff-Captains Pigott, Oliphant, Sampson, Musgrave Brown, and many other Officers.

Admission by Ticket only, which may be had free, on application to Headquarters, 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., either personally or on receipt of stamped addressed envelope.

"Moon's" Society for Embossing the Scriptures and other Books for the Blind.

Dr. Moon's simplified type, suitable for all ages and capacities of the blind, is of universal application. It has been adapted by him to 250 languages and dialects. More than 150,000 volumes of the Word of God, and other books, have been supplied to the blind of numerous countries.

Subscriptions and donations are urgently needed to carry on this daily increasing work, and will be gratefully received by Dr. W. MOON, 104, Queen's-road, Brighton (Acting Trustee); also by the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN.

OUR LITTLE LADS.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM and SWANLEY.

FUNDS are still URGENTLY NEEDED to feed, clothe, and educate 320 homeless little ones in the Cottage Homes at Farningham, and to complete the new Homes for Orphans at Swanley.

Will each reader of this do something?

Bankers.

Messrs. SMITH, PAYNE, & SMITHS, 1, Lombard Street, E.C.

Offices: Ludgate Circus. A. O. CHARLES.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND,

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President, The Rt. Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

OFFICES:

27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin; and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAS. KEARNEY WHITE, or by the Proprietors of this paper.

NOTE.—Subscriptions or Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE

OF THE

CHRISTIAN WOMEN'S UNION

WILL (D.V.) BE HELD AT

GLASGOW, November 12, 13, 14.

A PRELIMINARY MEETING

will be held at the Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W., on the 2nd of October. (All Day.)

PRAYER MEETING (Members only) ..... 10 a.m.
CONFERENCES ..... 11 a.m., 3 and 5 p.m.

Subjects:

Womanhood in Christ ..... Miss Ellice Hopkins.
Women's Services on Public Boards .. Mrs. Haycroft.
Women's Work among the Jews .... Mrs Wilkinson.
Temperance Work .... Mrs. Stuart and Mrs. Casson.
Deaconess Orders, Sisterhoods, and Associations } ..... Several ladies.

EVENING MEETING..Spiritual Life..Mrs. Armitage..7 p.m.

Tickets of Admission may be had by either enclosing stamp; or at Office, Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W.

Easy access to the Conference Hall by tram from Westminster or Blackfriars Bridges, or from Victoria to Clapham-road Station.

MR. MOODY'S MOTTO.

On Card, 7½ by 4½ inches, with Ribbon for hanging up. One Shilling the dozen, post free. The same words on a small Floral Card, Sixpence per dozen, post free.

JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, MILDMAY PARK, LONDON, N.

The Christian.

VILLAGE LIFE AND VILLAGE NEEDS.

THE complaint of the village is beginning to make itself heard almost as loudly as the bitter cry of outcast London. The letters appearing in The Daily News of late, on the grievances of our rural population, reveal a state of things demanding serious attention from philanthropists and politicians. Mentally and materially, village-life is sadly at a discount, so far as the poor are concerned. Wages are frightfully small, twelve or fourteen shillings a week, and even less, having, in many cases, to suffice for a family of nine or ten children, all dependent on the father's earnings. The public-house, as a rule, is the only place where any form of social life can be obtained. Ignorance, dulness, and hardship combine to produce discontent, and lead oftentimes to drunkenness and other evils on the part of old and young.

In this matter, as well as in many others, it is easier to point out the evil than to provide the remedy, but nothing is gained by shutting the eyes to things which require to be seen and dealt with. Great landowners especially would do well to grapple with this phase of our national difficulties. They derive much of their wealth from tillers of the soil. Villagers are, or ought to be, their peculiar charge, and they could do much to make the life of agricultural labourers less monotonous, more remunerative, more worthy of energy, and more intelligent and bright. Cottage hospitals, well-conducted village reading-rooms, cheerful Mission-halls where earnest and attractive religious endeavour is put forth, are among the social requirements called for, while higher wages, cheaper food, and suitable dwellings, are among the material advantages which are not merely desirable, but essential.

Referring in terms of high praise to the lately-issued report of Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, and other works of usefulness, The Daily News makes a valuable suggestion to the effect that a similar system might be applied with advantage to village life. Grinding poverty drives many mothers to toil in the fields and in other ways, to the neglect of home and the little ones too young to care for themselves, the result being their exposure to danger, both morally and physically. Untrained, uncared for, such children —and there are many of them in our villages—are a prey to numerous ills, and form a class sadly calling for pity and help. Benevolent ladies in rural districts who desire to find suitable spheres for work can scarcely do a more commendable thing, or one more needed, than follow Mrs. Hilton's example. It is an admirable method of coping with real difficulties, and practically meeting a deeply-felt need.

Since writing the foregoing remarks we have received the letter annexed:—

Sir,—An experience of many years, combined with much going about in different parts of England, has convinced me that there are no parts of England so dead in spiritual things as our small country towns. Spiritual agencies of all descriptions are concentrated and brought to bear in a focus on our large towns, but how is it that comparatively nothing has been hitherto done for our rural towns?

It would be invidious for me to mention names, but at the present time several of these towns are before me where spiritual life is at its lowest ebb. I am sure that a great work has yet to be done for the country towns and districts, for the towns I have before me are only representatives of a class. There is no doubt of great openings here for usefulness, and I commend this thought to your readers.—Yours faithfully, J. R. M.

THE TREATMENT OF HABITUAL CRIMINALS.

A LITTLE brochure lately written by Mr. A. McDougall, Jun., with respect to pauperism in Manchester, containing generalisations based on a large series of carefully-conducted inquiries into the nature and cause of pauperism in a great city, is at the present time of special interest to all who are anxious to stem the waves of vice and irreligion which are gradually destroying the virtues of the English race in populous cities. Manchester, perhaps, is somewhat exceptional in its social conditions. In former days the factory employer and the tradesman lived in the midst of their employés, and in many cases, where Christianity was present in their households, they were probably a great and powerful support to the efforts of ministerial or philanthropic workers amongst the poor who lived around them.

But all is changed now. There are large parishes in Manchester where the ministers of religion are the only persons of education and refinement. The hiatus between employer and employed is immense—the merchant, the manufacturer, the prosperous tradesman, even the better class of commercial servants, live out of the world of poverty and distress, and see and hear so little of what is so sad to those whose duties bring them special knowledge of the miseries of the poor. Such persons have no means of sympathising with the terrible evils that exist, and only know of them when the extreme cases lead to violent crimes, and become matters for newspaper publication.

It is, therefore, interesting to learn what Mr. McDougall has to tell us about Manchester pauperism in his little book. He is a practical man, and the carefulness of his observations may be relied upon. His three general conclusions are:—

(1) That there is no hereditary pauperism in Manchester worthy of account. This statement at once removes the popular difficulty of dealing with pauperism on the assumed ground that "beggars beget beggars, and so on ad infinitum."

(2) That one-half of the existing pauperism is due to providential circumstances which must occur in all large communities, and is therefore a social burden which must be borne.

(3) That the remaining half of the existing pauperism is due to drink, and vice, and crime.

Here, then, we are face to face with the real problem—the reduction of pauperism by the diminution of the number of paupers by one-half. What are the causes of this special source of preventable pauperism? Amongst the most depressed section of the poor, there is a large floating class of habitual criminals, whose existence acts as a cancer in districts where extreme poverty and trial expose the suffering poor to special temptation to drink, theft, and immorality. The habitual drunkard, the habitual beggar, the habitual thief, the habitual rowdy, the habitual prostitute, the habitual brothel-keeper, who, when removed from one address seeks another, the habitual burglar, the habitual despiser of the sacredness of the matrimonial bond — the habitual neglecter of his wife, or of his or her children as to their health and education, these, and others who could be enumerated, are the chief promoters of preventable pauperism. They cause by their villainy and evil influence one-half of the large sum annually expended out of the rates for this purpose.

Then look at the honest poor. The sight of public money being supplied for the maintenance of the immoral and thriftless, whilst they have to toil and fast, must act injuriously on their sense of independence and uprightness.

Manifestly there is something wanting in our home legislation, and it is to that missing provision of law that it is the object of the writer to direct the attention of his readers. Punishment is a necessity. It derives authority from the Divine law; no State can be safe without it. Punishment, however, has its limits and its incidences. Upon the young, or the occasional sinner, punishment may have its desired effect, if truly spiritual work is done during the period of punishment for the enlightenment of the offender, whose sin is probably the result of ignorance of spiritual things. But punishment has no effect on the hardened and habitual sinner. The gaol has no terror for the habitual occupant of its dreary cells.

The cost of keeping such characters in gaol for longer or shorter periods of time is simply a waste of public money, as they return, after each incarceration, to the social hell from which they have been temporarily rescued. This cost, added to the cost of the resulting pauperism, might be ultimately saved to the public.

What, then, is the remedy? The remedy is twofold. (1) The establishment of adult industrial reformatories for the reception of habitual criminals under magisterial or judicial sentence, not for a definite term of years, but during the pleasure of the committing court.

(2) The careful discharge of the committed criminals for the purpose of their emigration to some foreign or colonial destination on the application of the governor or managers of the "Adult Industrial Reformatory" to the committing court, showing that A. B. has been committed there for such a reason, that he or she has been detained for such a period of time, that he or she has shown satisfactory signs of reformation, and is desirous of emigrating to such a country or place.

Two subsidiary provisions would be required. First, in regard to the emigration of reformed criminals, it must be clearly laid down that no idea of transportation is intended, that the preference of the destination shall be given to the proposing emigrant; that a sufficient allowance shall be made out of the parochial funds for the cost of his or her transit and first settlement in the place and occupation of his or her choice; and that any return to Great Britain or Ireland of the emigrant shall render him or her liable to be recommitted to an adult industrial reformatory.

Secondly, it should be laid down as a maxim of law that any parent who has been so committed to an Adult Industrial Reformatory shall lose all parental rights with respect to the disposal of any of his or her children under the age of fourteen years. Such parental rights should be vested in the other parent, if alive and well-conducted, otherwise in the parochial authority, who should have power to arrange for the emigration of any such child if home surroundings are of an immoral or injurious character, without the consent of the criminal parent.

Provision would have to be made for industrial and active manual labour to be imposed on all the able-bodied inmates of an Adult Industrial Reformatory, with option to the governor or managers to allow any inmates, whom they can trust, to work out of the institution under employers who are willing to take them into their service. The co-operation of the public in this department would much help reform.

The cost of these institutions to the parochial rates would be largely diminished if a wise and thorough system of industrial employment were prescribed in an uniform code by the Home Office, and the practical management of them should be vested uniformly with the parochial authorities with frequent supervision on the part of the Government.

There is but one point left. These suggestions must be accepted generally for their merit, if they have any. The question of details and of cost will be easily considered if the general principles the writer has laid down are accepted; but it must be borne in mind that little or no good will result from the operation of this scheme unless God-fearing and earnest men of missionary zeal are appointed to teach the inmates the Gospel of Christ, the joy of a Christian life, the mercy of a forgiving Father, and the hope of future happiness to the awakened soul both here and hereafter.

CHINESE GORDON.—Describing an interview with General Gordon during his last visit to China, a correspondent of the New York Independent says:—"He could not have talked with more feeling and interest if he had been giving counsel for securing the welfare of his own nation. His earnestness was almost pathetic. It was understood that the Viceroy was deeply impressed by his advice. The General was quartered in a temple in the city. It was currently reported that he preferred not to be called on for business before ten o'clock in the morning, as he gave the early hours of the day to prayer and meditation. It was said that, in these hours of communion with God, he believed he received clear illumination upon the grave questions of public concern which were engaging his attention at this time. The sincerity, the simplicity, the unselfishness, the devotedness of the man impressed me not less than his knowledge of Chinese affairs. I have always thought of him since that interview as a singular combination of the best type of mediæval monk, the born leader of Oriental peoples, and the accomplished modern engineer and soldier."

"The Christian" Pulpit.

ON MINISTERING TO THE SAINTS.

By Pastor FUNCKE, Bremen.

TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN.

THE early Christian Church was a community of love, and this love was the secret of its power. At that time the purse was converted as well as its owner, and to be permitted to give was deemed an honour and a part of God's service. On the Lord's Day money, food, and clothes were generally brought to the Lord's house. Thus there was always enough and to spare, though comparatively few rich people were members of the Christian Church.

But what are we to say of the Lord's Day offerings in our Christian communities of the present day? God have mercy on us! Is it not a fact that the majority of church-goers pick out the smallest coin they have in their purse, reserving the big ones for themselves and their dear children, or for some opportunity when it may be seen in printed letters how much Mr. So-and-so has given away to benevolent purposes? The givers of those aforementioned small coins will even presume to comfort themselves with the story of "the widow's mite"! which was so highly commended by our Lord. Her mite was not, however, a great offering because of its smallness, but because her giving it was a real sacrifice and an outcome of grateful love. The precious mite in the poor widow's hand becomes in the rich man's hand an insult to God.

We are not to offer Him that which is of no value to ourselves. Our offerings ought to be willing and grateful sacrifices, thank-offerings by which we praise God for his unspeakable gift. Hence we are above all to give cheerfully. I have met with people who were in the habit of giving away large sums to religious purposes, but they candidly acknowledged: "We feel no joy in giving. We certainly do not give out of a desire to be praised by men, but we do it from a sense of duty and from fear of God." This is deplorable. To be sure, it shows that a work of grace has begun in the heart when a man cannot rest satisfied with spending everything on himself, but he ought not to leave off praying for the true joy in giving. And this joy will come in proportion as we learn to rejoice in God's unspeakable gift.

This humble, grateful, and joyful spirit breathes through the prayers of the Church in byegone times. One of them runs thus: "Let it please Thee, O Lord, to accept the offerings brought unto Thee to-day, even as Thou didst accept the righteous Abel's sacrifice, our father Abraham's sacrifice, Zachariah's incense, the alms of Cornelius, and the widow's mite. Accept our thank-offering, and give us heavenly and eternal gifts in return for our earthly and temporal ones." It is an exchange which takes place. God's children give Him of their earthly possessions because they have received of Him that which is heavenly. And God accepts it as a sacrifice, because it savours of love, and because it is a proof that the heart has already been given unto Him. But observe that they do not ask Him to reward them with temporal blessings. To be sure, no man has ever become poorer through judicious munificence; the reverse has been the case a thousand times. But this matter is left to the Lord. What we ask is only to receive eternal things for the temporal ones.

Another Church prayer is composed in the same spirit, "for those who give secretly, and those who give openly; for those who give much, and those who give little; also for those who are willing to give, but have not the power." This is very beautiful. It shows a truly liberal and Christian mind to judge the gift not by the value of the metal, but by the disposition of the giver. God grant that we may learn to examine ourselves honestly, and see if we do what we can, and if we do it joyfully.

It is true that the claims on the purse of a Christian at present are very large, and are ever becoming larger. Especially in the great cities the population is increasing to such a degree that numberless new wants are constantly springing up, and have to be supplied. New churches have to be built, for one thing; and it is of great importance to find means to make the greater part of the seats, if not all, free. The Gospel is no longer preached to the poor, because the poor do not come to the church; and they do not come because the rich have wielded the power of the purse even in the house of the Lord.

In the writer's church in Bremen all seats are free, and yet we have not lacked anything. God has moved the hearts of the rich to give spontaneously that which in other churches is collected by making the congregation pay for their seats. On the walls of the lovely church at Bonchurch, Isle of Wight, I read that one member of the congregation had given £200 towards free seats for the poor. May he have many imitators! What is the use of groaning over the spiritual indifference of the poor when we in a certain sense show them out of the church, or at least only suffer them to stand within its walls?

Then there is the wide field of missionary work at home and abroad. Such vast sums are required here that our willingness to give is sorely tried again and again. It is a sad thing to say, and yet is only too often true, that collectors of money for such ends are regarded as beggars, nay, as vampires and robbers, who fall upon one for the purpose of plunder. It goes without saying that "the beggars" on their rounds see but little of the Christian graces that ought to adorn the disciples of Christ.

He who writes this once went about collecting money for the building of a church for his flock, which was then but a small and a poor one. The weeks spent in the fulfilment of this duty were the most trying in all my life. In those four weeks I saw as many troubled and frowning faces, heard as many unfriendly, snappish words, and as much evasive, confused talk, as I have otherwise seen and heard in the course of four years. To be sure, there were many sweet green spots in the desert, but they were only spots. And yet in my own mind I could not but "justify" those people who were so cross to me, for though I might not as a Christian minister have appeared cross to those who in their turn had applied to me for money, I had often felt so in my heart, and though I might sometimes have given joyfully, yet at other times I had been very glad when the collectors had not found me at home!

I have pondered much on this matter. An unwilling gift is a valueless gift. The giver's conscience is not at peace, and he who receives the gift is not gladdened by it. Gifts not offered in love and with joy are like flowers without scent and colour.

But how is one to become a cheerful giver? I think God's Word will show us the right way even in this. The apostle Paul writes: "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" (1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2). We will not here enter into details, but this much is evident, that the apostle is speaking of a tax which God has laid on his children. Now we are not to say, "Alas for us, poor wretches! The Government grows ever more exacting. We have taxes and rates without number to pay already. There is the ground-rate, the water-rate, the poor-rate, the school-rate, and many other rates besides. And now the Lord God is even coming down upon us with taxes!" No, it is not like this. He who thinks thus has nothing to do with this matter. But the true Christian will take himself to task, saying, "When I, willingly or unwillingly, give so much towards the welfare of an earthly kingdom, ought I not joyfully to give something to the eternal kingdom of God? Truly we are to render unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's, but also unto God the things that are God's." But if this tax is not considered an honour and a joy it does not exist at all.

The apostle furthermore proposes that something be laid by regularly. There must be regularity and order in everything. He who does not wash himself at fixed times but leaves it till he may chance to feel particularly inclined to do so will get into habits of uncleanliness though he fully intends to be cleanly. He who does not eat and drink at fixed hours will be badly nourished though the food may be of the very best kind. It is even thus in the spiritual life. We must have fixed hours for meditation on God's Word, fixed hours for regular prayer. And this will equally bear on the question of giving. Because we are frail men who again and again are attacked by selfishness, avarice, and all sorts of carnal doubts and hesitations, we must not let our offerings depend either on chance or on special emotions.

Not but that there are extraordinary occasions on which one may feel specially constrained to give. Thus, when we hear of some horrible distress that requires help on a large scale—will it not then seem a natural thing to practise a little self-denial that one may give more abundantly? Will not he who had intended giving a grand party then content himself with giving one in quite a small way, that he may offer a larger sum towards the relief of his suffering fellowmen? And he who loses a dear child, and thus will have one less to feed and clothe, let him not sigh and groan over the sad bereavement, but put what is thus mournfully saved into the Lord's hands.

A dying little girl asked her father, "Dear papa, how much do I cost you a year?" Her father did not seem much edified by this (to his thinking) prosaic and unchildlike question, and tried to lead the child away from it. "Never mind that, my dear girl," he said, "you know that I most willingly pay for what you want." But the little girl would not be thus silenced, and insisted upon knowing how much her father had spent on her every year. "Well," he said at last, "I suppose that your food, clothing, education, &c., would come to about £30 a year." Then the child said, "Dear papa, when I am dead, and do not cost you anything more, I pray that you will give that £30 every year to the poor orphans, that they may be well taught and cared for, and at last go to heaven."

Her father was rather taken aback at first, but finally he promised, with tearful eyes, to fulfil his dying darling's wishes. Thus he made death sweet to the child, and the yearly offering did not make him any poorer; whereas, his heart grew lighter and happier. And a time will come when he will know the full meaning of the words, "He who receiveth one of these little ones in the name of Jesus, receiveth Himself."

We may learn a great deal from this simple little story. Let me add another about grown-up people. It is of a different kind, but not less instructive. The writer once called on a friend in order to ask for money towards a certain great work. The said friend happened to be in a very bad humour, and greeted me with an abrupt, "Well, what do you want this time?" "Nothing," I replied, turned round on my heels, and went away. He ran after me, asking, in a somewhat gentler tone of voice, why I had come if I did not want anything? I answered, "I came to see a man whose heart is ruled by Christ. I wanted this man to do something for Christ's cause; but I found a man who for the moment is possessed by an evil spirit, and from him I want nothing."

Then my friend laughingly replied, "Well, come into my room, and tell me about your plans. I will listen with a favourable ear now, just to spite the evil spirit." So he did, and I had every reason to be more than satisfied with the result of my visit. But I had also learnt from this good man that when you feel that an evil spirit is getting hold of you (whether it be the spirit of despondency, of pride, or of avarice, or the evil spirit called "nervous sufferings"), you are to rouse yourself, and say, "Well, I will try to deal the old Adam a real blow, play him a cunning trick, and do something unusually good to-day in order to vex him."

From all this, the reader will have perceived that there are many opportunities of responding to the claims of charity, which are independent of the regular tribute to the Lord's cause. I never meant to say that this regular tax was to suffice once for all, but only to advise that it should never be omitted. A certain part of our income ought always to be placed at the service of charity. There is no mention of tithes, nor of any other law, in the New Testament. But of free love we are to make laws unto ourselves, if we still like to give them the name of laws. It is an excellent practice to set up a money-box to the Lord which undisputably belongs to Him once for all. The contents of it may be one pound or £10,000, but they no more belong to you than the money in your neighbour's purse. "The money in the Lord's box is sacred," you will say. "It is laid aside to be spent in the service of love, and it is my privilege to do this, on sensible principles."

Then you will get to look quite differently on collectors and subscription-lists. The troublesome tax-gatherers and vampires will be transformed into dear friends, helping you to change the "mammon of unrighteousness" into a tree of life, the "paltry money" into the seed of an eternal joy. I speak from experience when I say that since I have set up a box unto the Lord in my house, the giving away of money has become a joy and a happiness to me, as it always ought to be, on reasonable and Christian grounds.

Let whoever will deny it, it is a fact that the purse is generally lying on the heart with the weight of a mountain, hindering the free breath of the soul and the prayerful life. The last enemy of our peace is not unfrequently the unconverted state of the purse. When this enemy has been overcome, the old note of triumph will be heard from our lips: "Our soul is escaped as a bird out of the snare of the fowlers: the snare is broken, and we are escaped."

MR. W. MORTLOCK has held some very successful services in a tent at Tenbury. The Gospel is listened to night after night with all eagerness by the hop-pickers.

NOTES ON SCRIPTURE.—12.

"And again the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel." (2 Sam. xxiv. 1.)

THIS sentence is the heading of the whole chapter, which goes on to describe the sin which kindled this anger, viz., the numbering of the people (1 Chron. xxi. 7, 8; xxvii. 2); the punishment, viz., the pestilence (compare Num. xvi. 46; xxv. 3); and the removal of the guilt, viz., by sacrifice (2 Sam. xxiv. 18—25).

This chapter coheres closely with xxi. 1—14, and the narrative ends (verse 25) with the identical words of xxi. 14, "so the Lord was intreated for the land." There is no note of time, except that the word "again" shows that these events happened after those of chapter xxi.

"And he moved David." In 1 Chron. xxi. 1 the statement is, "And an adversary (not Satan, as A.V., since there is no article prefixed, as in Job i. 6, 7, 8, &c; ii. 1, 2, &c.) stood up against Israel and moved David," just as in 1 Kings xi. 14, 23, 25, first Hadad, and then Rezon, is said to have been an adversary (Satan) to Solomon, and to Israel. Hence our text should be rendered, "For one moved David against them." We are not told whose advice it was, but some one, who proved himself an enemy to the best interests of David and Israel, urged the king to number the people.

[We give the above extract from the Speaker's Commentary, as the text is referred to in our article on "The Mountain Evangelist."]

REV. DENNIS OSBORNE.

DEAR FRIENDS,—I have great pleasure in announcing to you that the Rev. Dennis Osborne, of Mussoorie, India, sails for Liverpool in The Aurania on the 17th inst. He will probably arrive in England within a week thereafter.

He was the ministerial delegate of the South India Conference to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church recently held in Philadelphia. I have had delightful personal intercourse with him since May last, and have been greatly inspired by his public addresses. Born and reared in India, he presents her past and present condition as one only could who is perfectly familiar with every detail of Hindoo life and every sphere of Hindoo belief.

He has travelled over the States, filling many of our most important pulpits, of all denominations, and been enthusiastically received wherever he has spoken.

He is a man of rare gifts, intensely filled with his great theme—the evangelisation of India. This shows itself in his truly thrilling addresses, imparting to them a fervid eloquence which I have never seen surpassed. You may place him in any pulpit or on any platform with perfect confidence.

I am very anxious he should be heard in Great Britain during his very brief stay, and send this letter that he may not pass through England without the opportunity of lifting up his powerful voice on behalf of the heathen millions in the Indian Empire.

He was to have sailed for home two weeks ago, but I had so many applications for his services that I prevailed upon him to remain until next week. Next Sabbath will be his last in the country, when he will occupy the pulpits of Rev. Dr. John Hall (Presbyterian), New York, and Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Brooklyn. Don't fail to let your people have the opportunity of hearing this honoured servant of Christ.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9. GEO. H. STUART.

SIR WM. FOX, late Premier of New Zealand, and now on a visit to this country, states that the Salvation Army is doing excellent work in various parts of that distant colony.

For the Young.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES AT HASTINGS.

Sir,—I beg to enclose extracts from a letter sent to me by a poor woman who attends our Mission services. She was staying at Hastings for her child's health, and the account of the Seaside Mission is so genuine that I hope you will insert it in The Christian, for the encouraging testimony it bears to the good work. As a worker I know how precious these little testimonies are.—Yours faithfully, A. B.

Dear Miss B——,—I must indeed send you one more line of my interesting visit to Hastings. We have been at some glorious Gospel meetings, twice daily—on the beach when fine, and in a church schoolroom when wet. Such numbers of people attended them, mostly of the upper class. They were children's services.

To-night we had a meeting by lamplight. Seventy Chinese lanterns were carried by the children, all shapes and sizes. We all met at Warrior-square, and marched to Bo-peep; had a short service on the beach, and marched back with the lighted lanterns, each child carrying its own. Really the children conducted themselves beautifully. Mr. Seagrove said he had prayed that all might go right, and it did, for it was splendid!

We return home, all being well, on Saturday, both so much better for the change. You will hardly know us. We have bathed in the sea, and seen a good deal of pleasure, but none has made me feel so happy as these dear Gospel meetings. How I thank the dear Lord Jesus for all his goodness to us. Please let me have some books ready for Sunday's visiting. I shall have to work very hard to make up for all this grand treat.—Yours obediently, E. L. A.

FIVE WEEKS AT EASTBOURNE.

"Then are these young (Cambridge) men really 'pious?'" asks a lady, with an incredulous air, having listened to her afternoon visitor's account of the Children's Services.

"Whatever makes you take up this sort of thing?" asks another as he comes up to see if the said young men are really in their sober senses.

Take your stand any bright morning about 11.30 a.m. on the lower parade, and you will overhear many such remarks, but your eyes and ears will soon be busy with other things, for now the gathering throngs clear aside and our church walls of stump and rope rapidly extend in a huge ring. Then in at the doorway presses the two or three hundred boys and girls; and those queer-looking things under their arms—what are they? Your question is soon answered, for hymn No. 1 is given out; then all these portfolios open, and "Jesus loves the little children," begins the service.

A short prayer follows, in which all join with bowed head or uplifted cap. More singing—boys only; girls only; all together. Chorus again, then a story to illustrate its meaning before we sing the last verse. Now come the notices, which we all repeat so that we can't possibly forget; the "athletic sports" to-morrow afternoon, or the service in St. Paul's this evening, or the lantern service next Monday evening.

"Hands up those who belong to the Scripture Union." A growing forest each week. Then an invitation for others to join. Reports of the Mission after the service for the older people, and picture leaflets for the younger. After that we settle down to hear what Mr. Ranger has to tell us this morning, "The great General and the Little Servant Girl." We soon guess who they are, but like to hear the story of Naaman again.

A moment's break as we sing, "Are you washed in the blood of the Lamb?" Then in the quiet stillness, with only a gentle splash from the waves at our feet, we listen again to the story of Jesu's love, and the "fountain opened," on Calvary's Cross; then that listening throng of young and old disperse, and our morning's service is over.

Time and space would fail were we to tell of the bright afternoons spent in the cricket field, the intense interest felt in the match over there, or the tennis in the corner; whilst an opportunity is found for a stroll and a "little talk" with the "next man in," whilst waiting for the next wicket to fall.

St. Paul's Church is lent to us by the kindness of the Rev. W. A. Bathurst, vicar of Holy Trinity Church. So three nights a week, at 7.30 p.m., an ever-increasing number of young people find their way there.

Mr. Wane is going to speak to-night on on "the Broad Way." Many in Eartbourne are walking therein, but, thank God, some will find "the Way" before they leave the church. A second after-meeting follows the first, and then a few anxious ones stay for personal conversation. So day by day the work goes on. Miss —— decided last night; her father occupies a good position in society, and she will have to face much opposition for the Master's sake. Another such will tell you, "I don't know much about the Bible yet; I've only just learned to know Jesus." But she can and does tell others about Him.

"You all seem to know and feel the reality of what you say; it is so different from anything I ever heard before," says a young fellow, from a large public school, as we took a stroll that last night of the services. Hitherto he has only laughed at his little brothers and sisters for coming, but now he too has learned to become a little child, and so to enter the kingdom of heaven.

"We found Mr. Wane's Bible readings so helpful, and the children do miss the services," writes the mother of two boys who gave their hearts to Jesus, and this from one who at first was greatly opposed to the work. Many there are who must look back, with thoughtful hearts, to those quiet times in the Holy Trinity schools, as we met each morning at 10.30 for prayer and Bible reading.

Meetings for boys only at Handel House, Saturdays at 8, Sundays at 7, and grand times they were; we ended with an extra one by special request from the boys themselves. One evening, when most of those present were Christians, we all stood up and sang, "O Jesus, I have promised to serve Thee to the end;" as we each determined, by God's help, to be "out and out" for Him. On another meeting fourteen quietly rose as anxious to come to Christ.

We must end with a few words about Sunday. What happy afternoons at St. Paul's, with a collection of 800 bright faces one Sunday, and a collection of £25 for the Mission; the next the largest sum ever contributed at one service in that church. Then in the evening, after our boys' meeting, we all went down to the beach for an open-air service, and there, in the deepening twilight, and under the stars of heaven, was told the old, old story of God's great love. Who can tell the full results of those earnest burning words, spoken to that great crowd of motionless listeners? Many we know can say of them with the preacher—

"I came to Jesus as I was,
Weary, and worn, and sad,
I found in Him a resting-place,
And He has made me glad."

ANSWER TO BIBLE ACROSTIC.

Tarshish ..... Jonah i. 2.
Haman ..... Esther vii. 10.
Onesimus ..... Phil. i. 10.
Urbane ..... Rom. xvii. 9

Gideon ..... Judges vi. 10, 14.
O-bed-edom ..... 2 Sam. 6, 12.
Damascus ..... Gen. xv. 2.

Silas ..... Acts xvi. 23.
Ephesus ..... Acts xix. 1.
Eliab ..... 1 Sam. xvi. 5, 6.
Salome ..... Mark xv. 40.
Theudas ..... Acts v. 36.

Michael ..... 1 Sam. xviii. 27.
Eleazar ..... Numb. xx. 28.

"Thou God Seest Me."—Gen. xvi. 13.

We have also received replies from Mabel Carter, T. H. Henderson, M. E. Henderson, E. Henderson, J. W. Stratbearn, J. H. Haining, Mary Burns, Ethel M. March, G. T. Winslow Donovan, and Annie L. Trendell.

"DOES IT LAST?"

AN ANSWER FROM PLYMOUTH.

DEAR SIR,—Among the fruits of the late Mission of God's honoured servants, Messrs. Moody and Sankey, to this country may be included the evangelistic services at St. Andrew's Hall, Plymouth. This hall is capacious, and is situate in the very centre of the town; it is admirably adapted for evangelistic work among the teeming and varied population of a town like Plymouth, with its mercantile, naval, and military elements; crowds of loungers move up and down in its immediate vicinity.

The meetings are attended almost entirely by those who frequent no place of worship, and who are attracted by the singing of Mr. Sankey's hymns outside the Hall, which is started as soon as the church and chapel services have commenced. The Hall was recently offered for sale, which caused some anxiety and much pleading with God by the band of workers, upon whom the responsibility in connection with the services has chiefly rested, but a Christian gentleman interested in the work has, at considerable cost, purchased the property, and by a further expenditure rendered the place most comfortable and attractive. This has been regarded as an unmistakable answer to prayer.

The services are strictly undenominational and have been carried on without any break for nearly two years with abundant blessing, and very many have, we trust, been "born again." It has rarely happened that a meeting has been held without some one soul professing to be converted. It has also become the sphere of Christian work for many of those who date their conversion from the Moody and Sankey Mission. A band of workers called the "Blissful Brothers"—Mr. Bliss having been much blessed in calling many of them from the bondage of drunkenness and vice into the glorious liberty of children of God—have rendered much assistance in gathering in the people from the streets, in singing the Gospel, and bearing joyous testimony to "what a Saviour they have found."

We regard this work in Plymouth as a very distinct answer to the question so often asked by those who have not been intimately associated with the Moody and Sankey Mission, "Does it last?"

It is desired not only to maintain, but if funds are forthcoming to extend the work; the little band of workers, who in their happy union form a true evangelical alliance, feel they may appeal to their brethren and sisters throughout the Christian world, especially those who feel it a privilege to foster the work resulting from the earnest and loving labour of Messrs. Moody and Sankey, to assist this work. The Treasurer is Mr. E. R. Hingston, Bank-street, Plymouth.

George Moon
Henry Charles Fox.
Charles Wood.

PERTH CONFERENCE.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11.

THE last day of the Conference was not the least. Lord Polwarth again presided, and introduced the subject of the day in a few appropriate remarks. It was then taken up in a very exhaustive address by the Rev. J. Smith, of Berwick, founding on the words

"HEARTS SPRINKLED—BODIES WASHED."

"Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good work." He spoke of the connection between the privilege of abiding in the holy place and the manifestation of a corresponding character in the outward walk of life. Conscience is a man's knowledge of himself in connection with the law of God. When in our deepest heart we assent to the will of God, we know we have fitness for the presence of God. How is it that this change has taken place? not because of anything in me but of something which has come upon me; the sprinkling of the blood of Christ, and the change effected by faith in its efficacy to meet the guilt of sin. The distinction between human sin and diabolic sin must be kept in view. Diabolic sin is entire antagonism to the will of God; well expressed by the poet, "better to reign in hell than serve in heaven." It is not so with man; he has been seduced by another spirit to withdraw his allegiance from God; to find something outside of God as his highest good.

Human sin in its guilt is provided for in the Cross of Christ. I come to the Cross and there confess my sin, and then I find that God reaches down to me a salvation, and lifts me out of the horrible pit, and I, poor human being, find my good in God and not outside of God. The Cross cuts at the root of human enmity to God. Man has not gone so far as Satan, and the enmity is removed by the view of the love of God in the Cross. This is the first stage in man's restoration.

It is a mysterious fact that my belief in the work of another should bring me peace of conscience; but such is God's provision and the human heart's experience, and this by faith. What is faith but trusting God, falling in with God about everything; a practical recognition of God as a moral Governor? Faith is the beginning of acknowledged righteousnesss in God, and the strength of man's future hope of the enjoyment of God. In Romans x. we have the transfer from the law element to the life element of the Gospel. You have died to sin, therefore you renounce sin as a law of life, and give yourself up to God as your Master. Our position is a position of surrender to God, a fleeing out of self to God. Consecration is faith acted fully out. Confession of my utter need, and that Christ must act through me. This is the secret of all true service.

In the second address, by the Rev. Dr. Black, of Inverness, there was brought out, what did not come into view with the other speakers, the connection of the Lord's Second Coming with practical duty, and he dwelt upon the summary of Christian life given us in 1 Peter iv. 7—9, enforcing the respective features of Christian testimony which the Apostle presents to the Church.

THE COMMUNION SERVICE

which followed was held in St. Leonard's Established Church. In the absence of Rev. Professor Charteris, of the University of Edinburgh, who was to have taken the chair, and was prevented by illness, Rev. Dr. Elder Cumming, of Glasgow, presided. He took for a short address the words of the Scripture of the day, "Let us draw near," and pointed out the encouragement for believers to come into the very "holiest," because the provision by Divine grace was so rich as to remove all ground for slavish fear, and to render inexcusable all doubts of the Lord's love; so that the soul might enjoy the riches of Divine love provided for the "sanctified in Christ Jesus."

When the quiet and solemn moment for the "breaking of bread" was over, of London, gave a closing and instructive word on one special feature in the intercession of our Lord, as found in his prayer in chapter vii. of St. John's Gospel: "The glory thou hast given me I have given them." The word glory as used by our Lord not signifying magnificence, splendour; also this promised glory to his disciples never made during the early part of his ministry, but waited till He had wrought it out in his own life. It is not the glory with the Father before the world was, but the glory on earth as the Head and High Priest of his Church. The great glory of the life of Christ was that He could say, "I and my Father are one." It was because God dwelt in Him, and was manifested in his human life, which was the glory on which his eye rested. Now this glory of Christ in his oneness with the Father corresponds with the glory which He anticipates in the oneness of his disciples with Himself, and in a common unity as his body. This glory belongs to all his disciples, and should be manifested in our daily lives—"I in them" the glory of their life, as "Thou in Me" was the glory of my life.

REV. DR. MONRO GIBSON,

While thus meditating the glory, the Lord had the cross full in view. "Father, the hour is come, glorify thy Son," was in his mind always connected with the cross—the cross directing the way to the crown. The disciples' idea of glory was grandeur, position, greatness. In Christ's mind it called forth the vision of the cross, "except a corn of wheat be cast into the ground and die," there is no glorious harvest; so the glory in the Lord's mind, "If I be lifted up will draw all men unto Me," the fruit of the travail of his soul in his hour of suffering, and in subjection to the will of the Father.

So we retired from the table of the Lord with this blessed thought resting on our mind, union with Himself in this common glory to return to the duties of life in the deeper experience of the dignity and responsibility of discipleship—the "not I but Christ in me."

At the last evening of the Conference the hall was densely crowded, every inch of standing-room occupied, and to upwards of three thousand people addresses were given by Mr. Quarrier, of the Orphan Homes of Scotland, on "Christian Work and the Power of Prayer;" and by Dr. Cranage, of Wellington, Salop, on "The Pureness of the Christian Life."

The concluding address was the powerful Gospel call, "Come," by Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, of Auckland. At the after-meeting numbers remained for conversation, who were met by evangelists and others.

[Some notes of the ladies' meetings are reserved for our next issue.]

THE SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.—Many who heard of, but were unable to attend, the London meeting of this Society in connection with the late anniversary, will learn with pleasure that Captain James Kearney White has issued, in neat pamphlet form, a full report of the addresses then delivered; not only at the Mansion House, but at the meetings in Mildmay Conference Hall. The sermon preached by the Rev. Canon Fleming also appears. The friends of Bible reading in Ireland will render good service by widely circulating this valuable testimony to the good which has been achieved by the Divine blessing resting upon the labours of the Scripture readers. Copies may be had of Mr. Leng, 337, Strand, W.C.

A SWISS HOME FOR INVALIDS.—Sir,—Your readers may have heard of Davos, in Switzerland, as a winter health resort. If so, they may feel interested to learn that a Home for invalid ladies has been opened in Davos-Dörfli, within half an hour's walk of Davos Platz. It is intended for those invalids who have every reason to hope that they are likely to derive real benefit from a temporary sojourn there. The climate is a peculiar one, and therefore those who wish for admission to the Home should first consult their physician as to whether an Alpine winter is likely to prove beneficial to them. There are many that are debarred from enjoying its advantages by the expenses of a long residence in an hotel or pension, and it is for such that this Home is being opened. Ladies desirous of entering the Home should apply to the lady superintendent, In der Wiese, Davos-Dörfli, Switzerland; or to Dr. Crothers, Warrior-terrace, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

MY KING.

KING of kings, supremely high,
Lord of heaven, and earth, and sky,
In my heart I would enthrone Thee,
In my actions I would own Thee:
As Thou gav'st Thyself to me,
Give my ransomed self to Thee!

Son of God, as mortal born,
Meekly wearing crown of thorn,
Truest homage I would give Thee,
I would serve Thee, love Thee, live Thee:
Thou didst bear the Cross for me,
All things shall be loss for Thee!

Take, O Master, glorious King,
All the love my heart can bring!
Take the spikenard, precious token,
And the vase so sweetly broken;
Thy heart felt the spear for me,
Mine shall only beat for Thee!

Angels fly on tireless wing
In thy service, wond'rous King!
But the angels fly no faster
Than my heart, O gracious Master!
If my feet make slower speed
Take my will, and not my deed.

'Tis my joy thy "slave" to be,
'Tis my hope thy face to see;
Wholly Thine, O Saviour, take me!
What Thou wouldest, Saviour, make me!
Since Thou callest me thine own,
I will live for Thee alone!

High Beech, Acton, W. Henry Burton.

MISSION WORK IN GERMANY.

SINCE our last notice of the Mission at Branderoda in your number of June 5, the twin evangelists referred to have entered upon their labours. They have met with a most hearty reception by the people, whilst the clergy are, one and all, opposed to them, and do all in their power to lay hindrances in their way. Notwithstanding all difficulties, doors are opening to them on all sides.

The tracts they distribute are accepted with eagerness, and a grant of Bibles and New Testaments, received through the kindness of Mrs. Robertson, of Hampstead, enables them to scatter the seed of the Word far and wide. Almost every evening through the week they gather a few people for a short Bible-reading, prayer, and singing, and they are just starting a Young Men's Christian Association. Their gift of song is particularly used by the Lord in attracting their hearers, who are often moved to tears when listening to them.

A landowner, who at the same time is at the head of all police matters in Branderoda, gave me the choice between three days' imprisonment or paying a fine, because of my allowing Dr. Ziemann to hold a meeting in my house last May two hours earlier than the time appointed by the police order, and now again he has got up a similar case against me because of my distributing tracts to some of his labourers. My evangelists are daily expecting the same summons, and as we cannot afford a continuation of fines, they are determined to let the prison walls resound with their hymns.

Thus the work is spreading, though amid conflicts and hardships, and the earnest desire of those engaged in it is to be able to enlarge the little Mission-house, so as to have more room, not only for children, but for evangelists and other helpers. A. De Weling.

September 12.

MR. MOODY'S MOVEMENTS.—A personal letter, says the Chicago Evangelistic Record, just received from Mr. Moody in regard to his movements during the fall and winter, states that at present no definite plans have been made, but that probably he will conduct meetings and attend some conventions in New England, possibly until after the Presidential election. From that time on there are no plans whatever, and all announcements of meetings in any other states are totally unauthorised.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE COPENHAGEN CONFERENCE.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.

EVENING MEETING.

THE Chairman, Dr. Cairns, of Edinburgh, who spoke in Danish, said that as he was a Scotsman, and the Alliance had its origin in Scotland, he might recall something of its history. In July, 1843, there was held in Edinburgh a commemoration of the Bi-centenary of the Westminster Assembly. Amongst other speakers, his own teacher in theology and predecessor in the ministry, Rev. Dr. Robert Balmer, of Berwick-on-Tweed, spoke on Christian union. He remembered the occasion, as he was himself present. The address of Dr. Balmer made a great impression on John Henderson, of Glasgow, a well-known Christian merchant, who conceived the idea of offering a prize for an essay on Christian union. He mentioned the subject to his friend and minister, Rev. Dr. David King, of the same city, who advised him rather to get various writers to unite in one volume, as this would give more visible appearance of unity. This was done, and in one of the essays a suggestion was made that a great world-wide society should be formed for the promotion of Christian union. John Henderson and David King laboured together to realise the idea, the latter writing the appeal to hold the first meeting in Liverpool, in 1845, and travelling over Scotland and England to awaken interest in the subject. Leading men of all the churches in the Old World and in the New attended, and in London, in 1846, the Alliance was definitely formed. Such was the beginning of a great work, which, like most other great works in the Kingdom of God, went even beyond the hopes of its first promoters.

The Alliance had two ends, the defence of truth and the promotion of union. These were summed up with equal force and beauty in the Bible words, especially as translated in Danish: "He that is not with Me is against Me;" "He that is not against us is on our part." Nor had the Alliance confined itself to witnessing for Christian doctrine, but had, in all its meetings, promoted practical morality. He would attest this in regard to the general meetings in London, Paris, Berlin, and Geneva, all of which he had attended; and it was equally true of those in Amsterdam, New York, and Bâle, at which he had not been able to be present. Hence, this evening, they would take up the subject of Intemperance, which no one could deny to be of a truly practical character. Some might not agree with him; but he had been a total abstainer for twenty years. He could not conclude without thanking the people of Copenhagen for their truly Christian hospitality. He prayed that God might bless Denmark, the Royal Family, and the whole body of the people, and that all, from the highest to the lowest, who had been at these meetings might experience the fulfilment of the Divine promise—"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

Pastor Rindfleisch, Dantzic, read a paper on "Intemperance." Upon the same subject, of Copenhagen, contributed a paper, in which he gave these interesting facts:—

PASTOR DALHOFF,

It was somewhat painful to speak about things in one's own country that filled the heart with sorrow. It was in Denmark as in North Germany; ardent spirits being cheaper there than in other countries, more was drunk in comparison. Therefore, most suicides were found in Saxony and in Denmark, and in the latter country half of the suicides could be traced to brandy. Delirium tremens was so prevalent that one-eighth of the deaths amongst men were caused thereby. But it was difficult to show how much evil had its origin from drink. As to Denmark, an official return was given in the Report of the Statistical Bureau. Every fourth divorce, every third crime, three-fourths of all incarcerated, had their origin in intemperance. Amongst the men in the workhouses, two-fifths, in the lunatic hospital one-fifth were intemperate; amongst the women very few were.

What had been done by way of prevention or cure? Of late years especially public attention has been directed to the subject. About 1840 Temperance societies were started, but died out not very long afterwards. Now, the magistrates were making efforts to lessen the number of the brandy shops, which had been very numerous, 10,000 in the whole country, while Sweden had 1000. In Copenhagen the number had risen from 600 to 2000 in the course of twenty years, more than both Norway and Sweden. Efforts had been made to establish coffee-houses in Copenhagen where no brandy was sold. Temperance societies had been revived. There were 4000 Good Templars, and the Danish Temperance societies had now 18,000 members in 350 societies, all formed within the last five years. The clergymen had not yet taken much part in this Temperance movement. The writer of the paper concluded with the prayer that God would bless the undertaking in order that it might accomplish greater results in the near future.

PASTOR STORJOHAN,

a leading member of the State Church in Christiania, gave interesting notices in regard to a Seamen's Mission among the Scandinavian nations. He had learned, when himself a sailor's missionary in Scotland, to feel deep sympathy with this field of the Inner Mission. He had been led to enter upon this work by a visit to Newcastle, where he met the late venerable George Scott, of the Methodist Church, whose labours in connection with the revival of religion in Sweden succeeding the efforts of Rosenius and others were well known. He gave statistics of the progress of the Mission among sailors in all the Scandinavian ports, and showed how important the work was, as the sailors of the Scandinavian nations understand each other. At a meeting lately held in Bergen, in the west of Norway, the most interesting results were shown to have resulted from the Norwegian Mission among sailors. There was an increase of chapels in all the Northern ports. The work was important, as bearing upon Roman Catholic sailors, who might well present a field for such labour, where the missionary was not sufficiently employed among seamen of the Protestant faith. As indicating the immense importance of the field as a whole among sailors it was calculated that there were 358,000 German sailors, and the other nations in proportion. He awakened great interest by saying that he had specially come to bear testimony to the frightful evils of the crimping system. Strenuous efforts to grapple with this evil had in America diminished it by one-half; but he earnestly pleaded for the creation of an international law, and was willing for that purpose to go, if he could find it possible, either to England or America. He did not consider that any subject had come before the Alliance that was of more practical importance.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6.

The diminished attendance on the closing day contrasted strongly with the large assemblages on the former sittings. After praise and prayer, which every day ushered in the proceedings of the Conference, Dr. Kalkar (whose remarks Dean Vahl interpreted) recorded the gratifying fact that throughout the whole Conference there had prevailed a beautiful spirit of harmony and love.

In the course of his address, he remarked that all the Conferences of the Evangelical Alliance, though held in various countries, had clearly proved that the love of Christ was a power which united the hearts of men in one common bond. The Alliance did not rest in mere words, or on mere sentiment, but its foundations were deeper. At the inaugural meeting of the society, there were present some of the best men the world had ever seen: they deplored the separation between the members of different sections of the Church of Christ, and longed for union. Nearly all the originators of the Alliance had now passed away, and a new generation had come. Was there among the latter the same sorrow at separation, and the same desire for union? If ever there was an age when unity amongst Christians was desirable, it was in these days, when satanic forces were employed by those who professed a desire to reform the world, and amongst whose instruments was the destructive agent of dynamite. These were not times in which members of the national churches should make complaint against the dissenters who had left them, nor in which dissenters should attach blame to the Church from which they had separated themselves. The Evangelical Alliance aimed at bringing prominently before the Christian community the fact that the unity of hearts was greater than the diversity of views, when evangelical Christians, acknowledging one Head, united together to attain one common end. The existence of such a union was as real now as it had been forty years ago.

With regard to Sweden, Sunday difficulties had hindered, or the Conference would have been held in the capital of that country. There were in Sweden many who longed to receive the Alliance in their midst. The Evangelical Alliance had greatly contributed towards the maintenance of religious freedom, as notably shown in their action with regard to the case of the Madiai in Florence, Matamoros and his fellow-Protestants, and Julian Vargas in Spain, besides many more who had suffered for conscience sake. In Denmark they also loved religious liberty. Their late Queen, Caroline Amalie, wrote, for the liberation of Matamoros, to Queen Isabella of Spain. [This letter, at Dr. Kalkar's request, was read to the Conference by Professor Jean Monod.] Thank God, they in Denmark never heard of any suppression of the exercise of the right of conscience in any portion of the kingdom; indeed, it was gratifying to know that the same liberty was now allowed in almost every country; and for the enjoyment of the privilege much credit was due to the Evangelical Alliance.

The Rev. Prebendary Anderson, of Bath, on behalf of the British Council and on his own, expressed heartfelt gratitude towards their Danish friends for the exceptional kindness which they, in Denmark, had shown to the delegates from Great Britain. There was an English proverb which said: Although the man who confers a benefit may occasionally forget it, the man who has received a benefit should never forget it. He was very sure that the English friends were quite prepared to act upon the second part of that proverb. One could not walk through the streets of the beautiful city of Copenhagen without being continually reminded of the strong ties of early kindred which united Denmark with England. Many of the works of art valued in England had been copied from the originals which he and his friends had seen in Thorwaldsen's Museum at Copenhagen. For the future, therefore, having seen the originals, the copies would seem to be invested with new beauty. One had in the inspiration of great artists the common source of all that was good in art. One also had common sources of inspiration in classical and in sacred history. Englishmen were in Denmark seeking out all the sources of their greatness. Whatever was best, noblest, purest, bravest in England had been derived from the men who more than a thousand years ago occupied the country in which the Danes had now the honour and happiness to live. Three times had England been conquered by Northmen who lived in times past. They had been the greatest kings that ever swayed the English sceptre—Canute, King of Denmark, William the Norman, and William the Stadtholder of Holland. Every time something was left behind better than was brought. Without these names English history would not be what it is.

One scene in the Latin epic of Virgil had been constantly present to his mind. The ancestor of the Cæsars was supposed to be doubting whither to steer his ship; and the answer was given—

"Antiquam exquirite matrem."

Long might the bond of unity between the two nations be strengthened! There was a fourth conquest—and this had occurred in our own time—when the daughter of Denmark came over and won all English hearts. Great as had been their civilisation and attainments of genius, the Danish people had not forgotten, but were distinguished by, the grace of hospitality, which had even survived the commercial struggles of this material age; for, like their other great qualities, it flowed directly from the heart.

The Special Committee on the subject of religious liberty, appointed by the Conference on Monday morning, presented their report, Dean Vahl stating that the Committee had held several protracted meetings, and had fully discussed the questions submitted to them. With regard to the Salvation Army in Switzerland, the following resolution was put to the Conference, and carried with two dissentients: "That the Evangelical Alliance, while reserving its opinion regarding the methods adopted by the Salvation Army in promoting their evangelistic work, protests against the violation of religious liberty, which has taken place on the occasion of certain meetings of the Salvation Army in Switzerland." It was decided to send a copy of the resolution to the President of the Swiss Confederation, accompanied by a letter from the President of this Conference.

Another matter which had occupied the attention of the Committee had reference to Schleswig, Dean Vahl stating that there were several painful restrictions from which Danish pastors suffered in that country. This subject it was resolved to remit to the Committee of the German Branch to deal with. In regard to the position of Christian missionaries in Madagascar, it was resolved to remit that subject to the French and English branches for consideration. It was resolved that the resolution of the Bâle Conference in 1879 against the opium traffic should be adopted by this Conference, and transmitted to the British Government through the British branch of the Alliance.

On the suggestion of the Swiss Committee, an International Committee was appointed, consisting of the presidents and secretaries of the various branches that should meet every two years for the consideration of matters affecting the interests of the whole Alliance. The subject of the next General Conference was remitted for consideration to the International Committee.

A paper was then read by the Rev. Dr. Murray Mitchell, on "The Duty of the Christian Church in relation to Foreign and Home Missions," an abstract of which we hope to give in our next. Then followed of London, with a paper on "Christian Literature as a Missionary Agency." We give a brief summary:—

REV. DR. L. B. WHITE,

The importance of evangelical literature, in addition to the circulation of the Scriptures in a missionary agency, was allowed by the common consent of all engaged in the work of home and foreign Missions. The records of every missionary report told how Christian tracts and books had aroused attention; how, when left behind, and when the preacher had ceased to speak, they had deepened the impression made. The circumstances of the day make it more important than ever; the spread of education and the consequent increase of the number of intelligent readers gave it greater power. The enemy was never more active in the use of the Press. There is much of this evil Missionary agency both at home and in the foreign Mission-field. The Committee of the Religious Tract Society have specially in hand at the present time a plan for endeavouring by the Press to counteract the effects of the distribution of infidel literature among the educated natives of India and Japan. Coming to practical suggestions, Mr. White said that the foreign missionary societies ought to give more attention to this as part of their work—to realise that the missionary must preach for the eye as well as for the ear. It should be more generally felt that missionaries with special qualifications for literary work are as really preachers of the Gospel, even if their whole time were given to it, as their brethren who itinerate. The production and distribution of Christian literature is an object on which missionary funds must be more largely expended. Christian literature, in order to be an effective missionary agency, must be quickened by the power of the Holy Ghost. Hence the need for prayer that the writers may be guided into truth, and that hearts may be open to receive it.

On "The Lord's Day: Its Place and Power," two papers were read. The first was contributed by the Rev. Dr. Gritton, of London, and, in his absence, read by the Rev. J. H. Wilson; and the second was read by Dr. Hahn, of Geneva, for Pasteur Deluz. In the latter, the writer made an important statement, viz., that a desire to recover the complete rest of the Lord's Day was the only point which the Christian Church had in common with Socialists: they wanted that day's repose. As an example of the frightful excesses to which otherwise Socialism had led in Geneva, he quoted from a red-coloured book, called "The Hymn Book of the Socialist Democrats," of which a seventh edition was published last year in Zurich, giving caricatures and parodies of Luther's well-known hymn, and others. These parodies were filled with blasphemy and defiance of social order. In one of the parodies, which the speaker quoted, the Socialist League was, in place of God, made the fortress of humanity. In another hymn of the same collection the efforts of Governments to prohibit the dancing assemblies of the Socialists were satirised as ending in the dance of the latter over the ruins alike of the family, the Church, and the throne.

In the Lower Hall, papers were read to a large audience on "Missions," the first, "to the Jews," and the second, "in the Dutch Colonies." The contributor of the first paper, Pastor De Leroi, was formerly a missionary to the Jews in Breslau, and is now Minister at Barmen on the Rhine. He gave encouraging statistics of the success of the various Jewish Missionary Societies. The recent keen interest in the Jewish question in Germany and elsewhere would be overruled, in spite of temporary excitement, so as to promote Jewish Missions. In conclusion, the writer referred to the number in the German universities of students of Jewish birth, and he dwelt upon the certainty, inferred from Scripture, of universal Jewish conversion.

The second paper was read by the Rev. Dr. Van Ryn, who gave an interesting account of Dutch Missions, especially in the Indian Archipelago. He had personally travelled to inspect these in 1875. The greatness of the influence of Holland upon her colonies to this day was not sufficiently appreciated. In the Dutch colonies, out of a population of 60,000, there were 10,000 Christian negroes. In the Indian Archipelago the work of Christian Missions had also been prosecuted with success. It was calculated that the population of these islands, as a whole, was not less than 30,000,000, of whom there were 60,000 Jews. For the last ten years there had been a growth of missionary activity. The Barmen Mission had laboured in Borneo, and in Java various missionaries. In these islands there were sixty-two congregations, partly supported by the colonial authorities, and the Utrecht Mission had laboured there. Of these Missions one had particularly impressed him, viz., that in the northern Celebes, where the people had been Christianised. These belonged to the most delightful recollections in his life, and as contrasted with the heathenism which he had passed through elsewhere, it presented an El Dorado. A Dutch professor, previously indifferent or hostile to Christianity, had been converted simply by that spectacle. The difficulties of the work in all those islands was great. A large mass of the people were Mohammedans. Even the authorities were indifferent, though he had received nothing but kindness at their hands.

The concluding public meeting, and the last of the Conference, took place on Saturday evening. Two papers were read. The Rev. Dr. Clemance contributed an important one on "The Baptism of the Holy Ghost," which we were able to give in our last issue. The second, an earnest address on this subject, was given by Pastor Tophel, of Geneva. The final address on the programme, as was the first, Dr. Kalkar delivered, and that on a theme accentuated in the course of the conference, viz., "The Evangelical Alliance—its influence in promoting Christian union and religious liberty." Prayer, praise, hand-shakings, and reiterated farewells, brought to a close the Scandinavian Conference of the Evangelical Alliance for 1884.

Although on most of the days there were three sittings of the Conference, a large number of members met for prayer early every morning, the devotions being conducted in the languages of the different nationalities represented at the Conference.

On the Sunday following the last day of the Conference there was a united communion service in the afternoon at the French Church. The attendance of members was very considerable. One of the sermons associated with the visit of the Evangelical Alliance was preached in the morning by the Bishop of the Diocese (Dr. Fogg) in the Free Kirke.

In the course of the week, several of the prominent members of the Alliance received invitations to meet members of the Royal Family. Among the guests of the Palace were the Lord Mayor of London, M.P., Sir W. MacArthur, M.P. (both of whom were also invited to meet the British Ambassador and a member of the Danish Government), the Rev. Dr. Sinclair Paterson, and the Secretaries of the Alliance, General Field and Mr. A. J. Arnold.

MR. GEORGE C. NEEDHAM.

DEAR SIR,—Kindly permit me, through the columns of The Christian, to inform my friends in Great Britain of my change of address. I am about to enter a new field of labour which entails oversight and organisation, in addition to missionary and evangelistic work.

I shall be glad to receive sound evangelical books, magazines, &c., at any time from persons who may wish me to place them in the hands of needy students, young pastors, and others who are engaged in preaching. We cannot do too much towards counteracting the heretical literature just now teeming from the printing presses of the country. Good books are a priceless boon; we wish we could distribute thousands among our poorer brethren.—Ever in best bonds,

Geo. C. Needham.

Wilmington, Delaware, U.S.A.

MEDICAL MISSIONS IN NEW YORK.

IN forwarding to us a copy of last year's report of the New York Medical Mission, Dr. Dowkontt writes:—

I desire to bespeak the prayerful sympathy of the people of God, especially in England, my native land. The Lord has given great blessing to the work; ten thousand cases have been treated since we began this entirely new agency in this city in June, 1881. Many very remarkable cases of conversion have taken place, to the rejoicing of our hearts.

Recently I was led to take a large house for myself and family, at 306, East Broadway, and have set apart one floor to accommodate six students. Three are already forthcoming, one being a young American, who prefers the life of a medical missionary to that of a merchant, his parents meeting all his expenses; the second a Waldensian, who has been labouring for the past year among the Italians in this city; and the third, a native of Switzerland, whose heart has long been set upon Mission work, especially in Madagascar. Others are under consideration; and one lady has offered to meet the present expenses of a Chinese student.

I desire to ask the prayers of your readers that God will send to us the right men, and keep from us the wrong ones, and that we may be guided by Him in whose service we are engaged, in all that pertains to the men, means, and work of this Mission.

Notes and Comments.

It is a matter for satisfaction that the habit of using foul and profane language in the streets is exciting special magisterial attention, and calling forth the well-deserved censure and punishment of offenders. This bad habit has increased of late, especially among boys, who seem to think it a manly practice, and an indication of superiority on their part. Moral influences are at work to counteract such evils, and from them the chief remedial power is to be sought; but it is right that they should be supported by the strong hand of law, as it is administered in our courts of justice.

The Western Temperance League, which includes in its field of operations no less than eleven counties, besides a part of South Wales, has lately held its annual conference at Salisbury, three hundred and eighty-eight affiliated societies being represented. The proceedings were mainly directed to the political aspects of Temperance work, resolutions urging speedy Government action in reference to the licensing laws, Sunday closing and other moot points, being warmly discussed and carried. One speaker, referring to the opposition Temperance legislation met with in the House of Commons, said hat if teetotalers only knew the forces which the publicans were employing to defeat their object they would be faint at heart. Even bribery was resorted to by them, for he knew members of Parliament who were paid for using their influence in stopping legislation. The report which was presented urged that moral suasion could not be relied on as sufficient in itself to cope with the determined action of the publicans, and must be accompanied with vigorous action for political reform.

In addressing the students of Hackney College at the inaugural meeting of the present session, Dr. Macfadyen spoke strongly and wisely on the decline of pastoral work on the part of the modern ministry, stating that it had become almost a lost art among Nonconformist ministers. As a means of usefulness ministers lose much by failing to cultivate the spirit of kind and sympathetic friendship with their people; while, by conveying suggestions for their sermons, and bringing encouragement to their own hearts, pastoral work would often prove a means of grace to themselves. Dr. Macfadyen, in dealing with this subject, touched one of the most pressing and vital needs of the times in relation to church life and ministerial duty, neglect of which cannot be compensated by any amount of zeal and vigour in other directions.

Dr. Macfadyen's words are of great value also in reference to the duty of ministers to the youth of their congregation, and will repay most earnest consideration:—

"A ministry that did not contemplate the service of childhood and youth was not such a ministry as that of the Lord. Let them make the acquaintance of children, study their ways, acquire their confidence, and be known as their friend—assemble them in classes, preach to them in the pulpit, and never forget their presence in the church. The minister should make himself felt in the Sunday-school, and there was no branch of his work that would better repay him. The children would teach them many a lesson, and suggest many an illustration. Secure their confidence, and they would be the pith of their power in their later years. The young people of their families were the hope of the church, and if they could secure intelligent piety amongst their boys and girls, youths and maidens, they would be its strength in future years."

Dr. Richardson has conferred a favous on the whole community by the issue of hir book entitled "The Guild of Good Life," published by the Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge. It treats on the best means of promoting health and happiness among all classes, and proposes remedies, at once simple and within the reach of all, for many of the ills which attend human life. Our Temperance readers will read with pleasure the Doctor's dictum on alcoholic drinks as aids to health and happiness. He says:—

"Wines, spirits, beers, and all forms of what are called strong drinks, are bad for happiness. The alcohol in these drinks stimulates. It relaxes the blood vessels of the body; it causes the blood to flow rapidly through the brain and nerves; it seems to make people happy, and for a short time the effect it produces is, to many persons, pleasant. But the pleasure is as a restless dream, and the after effect is sorrow. In time the very delight that is courted by alcohol is so often courted that it ceases to please; and then comes the mad craving, the incessant desire, the persistent unhappiness, the degradation, the shame. I want to state that no drop of such drink is any good. There is ever present to those who drink alcohol this great danger, that the drink begets a desire for itself. It makes those who take it feel it to be a necessity for them and their lives. And just in proportion as it makes them feel it, it sells them body and soul, and kills them body and soul."

An indignant protest is called for from every lover of the Word of God against the action of the Council of Management for the Health Exhibition in prohibiting the sale of Bibles within its precincts. While novels, playing cards, and many other things by no means pertaining to health of body or mind, are freely bought and sold, it is worthy of severest censure in a land like ours that the Bible should be prohibited, and dishonour thus done to the book to which England owes her greatness more than to any other cause. The British and Foreign Bible Society is a national institution, entitled on every ground to respectful appreciation and cordial reception on the part of those concerned in the management of such public places of resort as the Healtheries, and refusal for them to sell their publications, is an insult to the Christian feeling of all sections of the Church by which that noble society is supported.

Our friend Richard Weaver has so far regained strength that he was able to conduct an evangelistic service at Sale on the evening of Sunday week. A large congregation listened to his earnest appeals, and on some a deep impression was made. He conducted a second service in the same place last Sunday evening.

Many of our readers will be interested to know that Mr. Weaver's sons are following in his footsteps, in active Christian service. His second son Reginald is just entering on the ministry of the Gospel in connection with the Methodist body.

It is somewhat remarkable that we should have received at the same time the two letters from British North America which we publish this week (page 19). We can hardly imagine that the correspondent from Nova Scotia has not overstated the case. We know there are good men and true in the Episcopal Church, and out of it, in those lands. The name of Canon Baldwin we have always regarded as a synonym for evangelical truth and evangelistic faithfulness. We shall, however, be interested to hear from other correspondents, to what extent the dark picture presented to us is accurately drawn.

A Conference of members of the different branches of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held in Dublin on October 17, to take into consideration the whole condition of that growing institution. The morning and afternoon sessions will be occupied with devotional exercises and business, and the evening meeting to addresses. A large attendance is expected.

The arrival of King Tawhaio in his own dominions is awaited with eager interest by some of his subjects, in reference to religious changes which will be affected by it. During his absence two native clergymen, sent as a deputation from the native Church, have been in communication with his principal chiefs at Kihikihi, where they were assembled, with a view to secure their co-operation in an effort to overthrow the influence of Hauhauism, as the old fanatical superstition of the Maoris is termed, by favouring a Christian Mission in native territory. The reply of the chiefs, while favourable in its tone, was to the effect that the action taken must depend on the views entertained by Tawhiaio himself, and that on his return a special council should be held to obtain from him his decision on the matter.

At a meeting in Walworth last week, the proposal was mooted to start a Gospel Mission specially with the view of evangelising farm labourers in the agricultural districts. One of the speakers, himself a clergyman, in dwelling on the need of such a Mission, referred to the obstacles thrown in the way of Gospel effort by the unconverted portion of the rural clergy. In these circumstances it seems to us that more clamant even than the spiritual necessities of the farm-labourers is the need for some agency that will reach and influence these "unconverted clergy." If they were true Christian pastors they would surely make all requisite provision for the evangelisation of those committed to their charge. It is not for us to suggest the remedy, but surely any system which permits unconverted men to have the spiritual oversight of the people stands self-condemned.

In another column is a somewhat remarkable extract from The World. We know not whether the writer would accept the doctrine of the depravity of man as theologically stated, but it is not often more plainly taught than in this painful picture of civilised society.

In a letter from Liberia, dated Aug. 10, Mrs. Amanda Smith reports a greatly awakened interest in religious matters in the district where she has for some time resided. The work has taken a deep hold, she states, among those who have been professed Christians, and they have been led to more thorough consecration of heart and life. She asks us to say that her future address in Liberia will be, care of Mr. Gabriel Moore, Monrovia, West Coast of Africa.

During the present week Mr. Reginald Radcliffe is addressing a series of meetings in Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Perth, Ayr, and Berwick-on-Tweed, chiefly with the view of arousing a deeper interest in foreign Missions among the young men of Scotland. The meetings have been arranged by Mr. Robert Burn, Secretary of the Aldersgate-street Y.M.C.A., who accompanies Mr. Radclife, as also does his son, Mr. Heber Radcliffe.

Mr. Stanley's address to the London Chamber of Commerce places things in a very clear light as to the present condition and future prospects of the Congo. A fair field presents itself for every kind of good and useful employment, and if only a peaceful spirit is perpetuated in relation to the government of the newly-developed part of the continent, there can be no doubt that a future of a glorious character is at hand. Mr. Stanley's repudiation of Portuguese right to hold the mouth of the Congo, or to interfere in any way with the present position of affairs, was strong and complete. The treaty of which so much has been said was shown to be really worthless; indeed, at the recent Anti-Slavery Jubilee, Lord Granville incidentally referred to it as defunct. There is good reason to rejoice that it is so. According to Mr. Stanley, Portuguese civilisation, look at it from whatever side you may, is like a withered tree—bearing no fruit, and having no shade. Protestant Missions on the Congo would indeed have a dismal outlook if Portugal had possession of the mouth of that river.

If current report be true concerning the moral and sanitary—or perhaps we ought to say the immoral and insanitary—condition of Naples, there is little wonder that it has had such a terrible and fatal visitation of cholera. Christian workers in the city state that instead of taking to heart the lesson of the hour, the people, led by the priests, are only plunging deeper into idolatry. Earnest prayer is asked by our correspondents that God will bless their efforts to spread the word of truth among the residents of this physically fair, but morally foul, spot on the shores of the Mediterranean.

The most thrifty and economical housewife might be pardoned for inability to answer the question how it is possible to provide a good wholesome dinner at the cost of one penny per head. Yet difficult as it may appear, the problem has been solved and the possibility proved. A movement for providing penny dinners for poor children is rapidly spreading, and is likely to become a general means of meeting the social needs of one class of our dependent poor. Sir Henry Peck has had the scheme in operation for some months, in connection with the Rousdon school, and since then Gateshead National Schools have adopted it. In the latter case in a given period 1092 penny dinners have been provided at a cost of 855 pence for materials, leaving 19s. 9d. balance for labour and fuel. The food provided has consisted of rice and stewed fruit, fig-pudding, bacon, and various meat and vegetable soups.

Such a work is well worthy of the attention of workers among the poor. It comes within the range of practical philanthropy, and that is more than can be said of many of the schemes that have been proposed for dealing with the necessitous millions around us. It may seem small in its nature, but, like many other things little to the outward eye, answers an important end. To feed the mind and starve the body is by no means a worthy or wise procedure, although in many of our Board and National Schools the mental provision made for the children forms a great contrast as to quantity to that made for their physical need. It is a happy thought to combine the two, and a happy expedient to hit upon if the latter can be made self-supporting, as it is said it can.

The National Association for the promotion of Social Science has just held its twenty-eighth annual session at Birmingham. The President for the year is the Right Hon. G. Shaw-Lefevre, M.P., First Commissioner of Works. His inaugural address consisted of a comprehensive review of the work of the Society from the commencement, tracing more particularly its general effects on the relation of the State to the individual. The spirit of political optimism prevailed throughout the address, the President expressing his belief that facts bore remarkable testimony to the general success and beneficial influence of the legislation of the last fifteen years. In urging practical attention to the subjects to come before the Congress, Mr. Shaw-Lefevre closed with the suggestive assertion that sympathy with all classes of our countrymen is a sine qua non on the part of social reformers, for unless the heart is in perfect accord with the head, the comprehension and solution of social questions must elude the grasp of the ablest and the wisest.

On another page we print a communication from Mr. Russell Hurditch, with respect to the Sunday evening services held during the winter months at the Oxford Music Hall. It seems to us it would be a great calamity if this important effort were to be given up. We trust, therefore, many friends of Gospel work, in the centre of the great metropolis, will come to the help of our brother, and enable him to carry on the campaign in this stronghold of the enemy.

The work of the American Bible Society is a truly noble one, and vies with that done by our own British and Foreign Society. The two together form an agency of incalculable worth and power for spreading the light of Divine truth throughout the world. The American Society has been in existence some seventy years, and in that time has circulated no fewer than forty-four millions of copies of the Scriptures. Last year the number printed or purchased was 2,115,765, more than half a million of which were circulated in foreign lands. During the year, 150,067 families in the States were found on visitation to be without a Bible, and were supplied with one. It is interesting to find, from the report of work abroad, that the Society has been greatly encouraged in some parts where hitherto opposition has been most fierce. In Cuba, for example, and in Turkey, the demand for the Scriptures is constantly increasing, and the way for Gospel work widely opening up.

The work undertaken by the Reformatory and Refuge Union, 32, Charing-cross, is one worthy of hearty commendation and support. The passing of the 1880 Industrial Schools Act Amendment Act marked a new era in endeavours to rescue children from the fearful dangers of the streets and of immoral homes, and by its means the Society is able to do no little service in this supremely important direction. Up to the first of April last fifty-three children had been placed by it in certified industrial schools; sixteen have been placed, by order of the magistrates, under the care of respectable relatives; and ten in voluntary homes. Two rescue officers, formerly detectives, are engaged in connection with the Society, and information concerning cases that the Act ought to reach will be gladly received and promptly investigated. Funds ought not to be lacking for a purpose so divine in its spirit and so beneficent in its results.

Our facetious contemporary Punch sometimes paraphrases, in a few pointed, pungent words, the passing or social political topics of the day. Here is a paragraph from last week's issue:—

"Redistribution of Seats" (much needed).—Giving them to all the shop-girls and young women behind the counter who are on their legs from morning to night. This will modify Female Sufferage, and do away entirely with a standing grievance.

However horrible may be the degradation in which multitudes of our fellow-countrymen are sunk, those who have had experience of heathenism in heathen lands protest earnestly against the term "home heathen." A highly esteemed and experienced correspondent writes:—

"The expression 'home heathen' gives a very false impression. In heathen lands the greatest sins are committed in honour of their gods. In England those who commit such sins do know that they are contrary to the laws of God and man. It seems to me wonderful that the indirect influence of Christianity is not realised in this land—the power that it has even over those who do not believe in it. If they have not witnessed heathenism it is so hard to make them believe the state, or rather absence, of feeling among heathen and Mussulmen.

"In Siam the king marries all his own half-sisters, because there is no man of sufficient rank in the country to marry them. On one day in India, as Dr. Valentine has expressed it, 'It is a sin not to commit sin,' this day being set apart in honour of one of their gods. When I have been telling friends of all I know of the prisons of Morocco, and that Sir John Hey gives a ration of bread daily to the poor prisoners of Tangier, much astonishment has been expressed that prisoners should be left to starve by their own Government, just as if heathen or Mussulmen cared for their prisoners.

"In China, my nephew tells me that if the prisons are too full 'the gaoler cuts off a few heads.' I think we lose half the force and beauty of the promises made in Scripture to prisoners, because we do not realise what a prison means in heathen or Mussulman lands. Prisoners cast in without trial, and left forgotten in hopeless misery."

Our friend still further enforces this dark view of heathenism by the following reflections of Dr. Livingstone written after a sojourn at Linyanti:—

"I had been, during a nine weeks' tour, in closer contact with heathenism than I had ever been before, and though all, including the chief, were as kind and attentive to me as possible, and there was no want of food (oxen being slaughtered daily, sometimes ten at a time, more than sufficient for the wants of all), yet to endure the dancing, roaring, and singing, the jesting, anecdotes, grumbling, quarrelling, and murdering of these children of nature, seemed more like a severe penance than anything I had before met with in the course of my missionary duties. I took thence a more intense disgust at heathenism than I had before, and formed a greatly elevated opinion of the latent effects of Missions in the south, among tribes which are reported to have been as savage as the Makololo. The indirect benefits, which to a casual observer lie beneath the surface and are inappreciable, in reference to the probable wide diffusion of Christianity at some future time, are worth all the money and labour that have been expended to produce them."

It is greatly to the credit of M. Cambon the French Prefect of the Nord, that he has published a decree forbidding the exhibition of fat or deformed children at Paris and other public places. He rightly deems it a mischievous practice, as tempting some to develop these infirmities for the sake of gain, and as demoralising in its tendency. It would be a good thing if similar restrictions could be put upon such exhibitions in our own country. The disposition to trade upon the misfortunes of humanity, and to feed upon a prurient curiosity for monstrosities or the opposite, is far too common in some circles.

DUNDEE CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

(By a Special Correspondent.)

THE annual Christian Conference at Dundee, for the quickening and building up of believers, and for the salvation of those without God, was held in the Kinnaird Hall last week. This Conference brings together earnest Christians of all denominations, is invariably a time of refreshing to such, and also a time when souls are gathered into the kingdom. At the present time there are indications of revived interest in the Lord's work. The number of requests for prayer has been unusually large, and a spirit of expectation of blessing has been repeatedly expressed. Will God's remembrancers earnestly pray that our district may be visited with a rich outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

The subject of Conference was the Gospel Message, the Gospel Messengers, and Those to whom the Gospel is sent.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16.

Mr. William Ferguson, Kinmundy, Aberdeenshire, presided, and in a few well chosen sentences opened the Conference. He said the highest glory of God was the revelation of peace to men. The world in ancient and modern times had sought satisfaction independently of God, but had failed. "Their oracles were dumb." The glad tidings for sinful men are a revelation from heaven, and they come with all the directness and authority of a message from the Most High.

Rev. J. T. C. Gullan, Glasgow, then gave a very thoughtful address on the Gospel in its relation to the Law. The great question here is one of righteousness. God is just, and He loves his creature man. How, then, can He righteously justify the sinner? Many thoughtlessly shut their eyes to the question of what is right and just and ask: Why should not God extend mercy to every sinner? The answer is: God is righteous and cannot, even to show mercy, swerve from the perfect line of righteousness. The Gospel is the solution of this problem. Christ as our substitute has made satisfaction for sin. Therefore in the Gospel (Rom. iii. 25, 26; iv. 5) God declares his righteousness, i.e., that He is doing a righteous thing in justifying the ungodly who believe on Jesus. The Gospel as the solution of this problem is indeed "Glad tidings of great joy."

Dr. Elder Cumming, Glasgow, spoke of the many-sidedness of the Gospel, pointing out that it deals with every spiritual question which is vital to man, satisfying his intellect, his conscience, and his heart. Man tends to make the least of the law. In the Old Testament we have striking representations of the majesty of the law in the history of God's dealings with the Antediluvians and with the Jews, and also in the promulgation of the law at Sinai. But in the Sermon on the Mount, Christ gave a new and surprising discovery of the breadth and spirituality of the law, and having done so He fully satisfied all its claims. The Gospel brings redemption, pardon, reconciliation, deliverance from all impurity, grace and glory.

At 2 p.m., the subject of the

CONVERSATIONAL MEETING

was the "Power of the Gospel and Hindrances to its Progress."

Rev. T. S. Dickson, Dundee, referred to the lunatic child in regard to whom Jesus said, "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting." The neglect of prayer and indulgence in luxuries by Christian people are two mighty hindrances to the spread of the Gospel. Surely the conscience of the nation ought to be awakened (e.g.) by consideration of the humiliating fact that only a little over one million pounds is devoted to Foreign Missions, whereas 136 millions are annually spent on strong drink.

Mr. Hill, evangelist, said it is noteworthy that when the New Testament speaks of the power of God, the reference is not to the works of creation and scarcely at all to miracles, but to the mighty change wrought in the heart and life of the sinner.

Mr. Paton, missionary to the New Hebrides, gave a striking illustration of the power of the Gospel in staying a native chief from repeated attempts to take his life, in changing the heart of that chief in answer to prayer, and in making him and his wife powerful instruments in aiding the cause of Christ in their native isle.

Mr. Ross, Glasgow, made a peculiarly encouraging statement regarding Gospel and Temperance work as it came under his own observation. Of 380 members added to his own congregation in the course of the last year, he said that 100 had been formerly helpless drunkards. Two gentlemen in Glasgow, one a merchant and the other a Professor of Divinity, had been led to become total abstainers from the conviction irresistibly forced upon them as they were engaged in dealing with anxious souls, that it was inconsistent to urge the victims of strong drink to abstain while they continued to take drink in moderation.

In the evening the hall was filled, when fervent, searching evangelistic addresses were delivered by the Chairman, Mr. Gullan, Mr. Hill, and Mr. Ross. An inquiry-meeting was held at the close, when several anxious souls were dealt with, some professing to receive Christ for salvation.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17.

Tho attendance at the meetings to-day was largely increased. Mr. Hugh Mosman, Auchtyfardle, presided, and in speaking to the subject, "The Gospel Messengers," said we must not narrow down these to signify only ministers and missionaries; all who have received the glad tidings ought to make them known to their fellow-men.

Professor Laidlaw, Edinburgh, spoke on the commission of the Gospel Messengers, which, he said, is the grandest conceivable, namely, to "go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." Considering that this commission was given nearly nineteen centuries ago, it is humiliating that so little has been done by the Church to obey it. He said the point is to make the glorious breadth of the Gospel to be felt practically by the individual sinner. We must not put a theological statement instead of the Gospel offer in the language of Scripture. God's words are best. It is not that God loved the elect, but that He so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. The seal of the commission is that God hath reconciled the messengers. Paul says, "I obtained mercy." Further, the messengers must apprehend the power. It was well that the Jews took knowledge of the disciples that they had been with Jesus. It is better still when men are constrained to acknowledge that Jesus is with us.

Principal Brown, Aberdeen, spoke of the qualifications needed by the Gospel Messengers. He said the meaning of the Church putting its imprimatur upon a man is that he is believed to be already called by heaven to discharge the duties of the sacred office. The Messenger requires three things, as did the Prophet Isaiah (chap. vi.). (1) A sense of his own utter unfitness for the work by reason of sin; (2) A sense of sin pardoned and purged through the atoning sacrifice of Christ; (3) Eagerness to go as God's messenger—"Here am I; send me."

CONVERSATIONAL MEETING

at 2 p.m. Subject: "Strength for the Work; How to be gained, kept, and used."

Rev. John McPherson, in opening, referred to three particulars: (1) Physical strength; (2) Intellectual; (3) Strength of character; (4) Spiritual strength from a pure conscience, and a heart and will totally surrendered to Christ, from faith in Christ and his Word, love to Christ, assurance and absolute dependence on the Spirit. This strength is to be gained, kept, and used (1) by minding our salvation. John Owen said, "There is not a surer way to hell than for a man to be occupied with spiritual things while he neglects his own soul's welfare." (2) Prayer; (3) Consecration; (4) Concentration; (5) Hard work; (6) Cross-bearing. One of the earliest Wesleyan missionaries sent to India exemplified the true spirit of the servant of God. As the ship which conveyed him sped away from the shore some of his friends were fondly gazing on the land as it became more and more indistinct. When his attention was called to this circumstance, he replied, "I am dead now to everything but India."

In the evening the Kinnaird Hall was filled to its utmost extent, when peculiarly solemn and faithful evangelistic addresses were delivered by the Chairman, the Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, New Zealand, and Col. Oldham.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18.

Colonel Oldham presided, and in opening the subject—"Those to whom the Gospel is sent"—mentioned the following particulars as the warrant. Our common humanity and God's universal beneficence. Man's universal depravity and need, God's willingness to save, God's world-wide love, and the all-sufficiency of the Atonement, the coming Judgment, the great commission, our indebtedness to Christ, and the All-power which Christ has.

Rev. T. Spurgeon said: I rejoice to preach the Gospel in all its freeness, fulness, and richness. It is sent to all. None are excluded but those who exclude themselves. The self-righteous exclude themselves. And very solemn is the warning which Jesus addressed to such—"I came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance." Some happy illustrations were used. Some say they have found Jesus. There may be truth in the saying, yet they ought rather to say Jesus has found them. Here is the illustration. A gentleman says to friends visiting him: "There is a bed of roses in my garden you must see," and directs them where to find it. They roam about, but can't see the roses. At length one of the party says, "We must be near these roses; don't you feel their sweet odour." Soon they behold them in all their blushing beauty. In one sense, they found the roses; but, more correctly, the roses found them. So Jesus finds poor sinners.

Rev. G. L. Carstairs, speaking of the Gospel as sent to doubting and dejected believers, said nothing is more unprofitable for such than trying to make out a past saintship. Let them, as poor sinners, come afresh to Christ. He is the balm for every wound. A young believer from Ireland, in deep dejection of spirit, visited Glasgow. Kind words were spoken to administer comfort, but without success. Looking away from the window in the Y.M.C.A. hall, the two friends had been gazing at their shadows on the floor, caused by the bright sun in June. Suddenly turning the young man round to the sun, Mr. Carstairs asked him if he saw any shadow. "No," said the young man, "I see nothing but light;" and at the same moment he made the happy discovery that the cause of his spiritual trouble was that he had been walking in his own shadow.

The afternoon of Thursday was as usual devoted to FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The addresses delivered were in a high degree encouraging, and so thrilling in interest that the sympathies of the large audience were warmly evoked.

Mr. Small said that Poona, in which he has been labouring several years, is a miniature India, containing all the different castes and grades, both of the native and European populations. Hindooism, he said, is perhaps the mightest world power arrayed against the kingdom of Christ. Yet the foundations of that system are beginning to give way, and hundreds of thousands of the people of India are already trophies of the power of the Cross.

Mr. Paton touched the hearts of his hearers in an unusual degree, as he told how all his brother missionaries had been murdered by the native savages in the New Hebrides. Making a narrow escape with his life, he showed a truly apostolic spirit by returning to this country, and having obtained eight missionaries, he went again to the same islands, when the respect and confidence of the natives was won, and the glorious Gospel was introduced amongst them. When he visited these islands 26 years ago there were only two or three Christians there. Now there are 8000 natives under Christian instruction, and in addition to these, 70,000, not merely waiting, but in the intensity of their desire weeping for the Gospel.

Mr. STEVENSON, Bahmo, spoke of Mission work in China, which is larger and more populous than Europe. Were the Chinese brought to the feet of Jesus, considering their remarkable energy and their disposition to migrate, they might in time to come carry the Gospel with them to all parts of the world.

Mr. SPURGEON gave interesting particulars regarding New Zealand, mentioning the dangers which the pioneers of the Gospel had braved in that land, and the splendid success which after a time crowned their labours.

Mr. CARSTAIRS, Glasgow, gave the impression produced on his mind by a visit to the Mission stations in South Africa. The change effected upon the heathen in respect of civilisation by their reception of Christianity is truly marvellous. And the interest they take in the cause of Christ is eminently fitted to humble Christians in this country.

In the evening Mr. PATON gave a further statement of his experience as a missionary to the New Hebrides to a very large and highly sympathetic audience.

Then Mr. CARSTAIRS very suitably gave the concluding address in ringing out the silver bells of the everlasting Gospel. He very forcibly stated the various difficulties which sinners experience, and showed how the Saviour in the Scripture sweeps these all away.

Our meetings of Conference in past years have borne rich fruit in many gifts for the spread of the Gospel, in some consecrating their lives to Mission work at home and abroad, and also in the salvation of souls. Mr. Stevenson, Bahmo, stated that one result of an address he gave at Dundee in 1874 was that one of our townsmen gave himself to Mission work, and to-day he is holding up the banner of the Cross in a district in China containing twenty-two millions of people.

Mr. Paton said he needed £5000 at the present time to send out a steamship to be a means of communication between the different islands in the New Hebrides. One gentleman present gave £100, and other gifts followed.

We have had a time of great refreshing from the presence of the Lord, and as one consecrated heart said, "It has been the best Conference we have ever had."

Y.W.C.A. IN IRELAND.—Col. and Mrs. Noble, of Dublin, have lately conducted successful meetings in connection with the Y.W.C.A. at Queenstown, Cork, Cahir, Clonmel, Charleville, Tralee, Limerick, and Waterford.

THE WYCLIF QUINCENTENARY Committee are carrying forward their campaign in the country towns where lectures and meetings in connection with the Wyclif Quincentenary are much desired. In many boroughs corporate action is being taken at the suggestion of the respective Mayors, prompted by the Committee.

GOSPEL MISSION TO FARM LABOURERS.—A meeting was held on Tuesday evening last week, at the St. Paul's Mission Hall, Walworth, with the view of inaugurating a Mission to agricultural labourers and others employed on farms, by individual visitation, and where practicable, holding meetings at convenient places in the farming districts. Mr. Goldfinch explained that this matter had been laid as a burden on his heart, and he could not shake it off. Some suitable men had been met with, and these were about to go forth in dependence on God for help and blessing. After some sympathetic remarks by Mr. D. M. Cameron, Evangelist, Clapham, the Rev. H. B. Chapman, Curate-in-charge, St. Paul's Church, most warmly commended the new effort to the sympathy of the meeting. He dilated upon the need of such a work being undertaken among the poor of the rural districts, dealing most unsparingly with the unconverted rural clergy, who were only too frequently to be found.

"THE MOUNTAIN EVANGELIST."

THE two daughters of Mr. G. O. Barnes, "The Kentucky Mountain Evangelist," have been singing at some of the warehouses in the City, greatly to the delight of those concerned, on account of the marked benefit to the employés, who highly appreciate the singing and the songs.

Mr. Barnes himself has, with his daughters, recently held five weeks' services in a tent at Wood-green. It has there been demonstrated that in one of the hardest suburbs of London, not only those who have, but also those who have not, been accustomed to attending a place of worship may be attracted night after night by the preaching of the Gospel in a language and style which suit their everyday habits and modes of thought. Experienced Christians declare that they have especially profited by the clear and forcible way in which Mr. Barnes has set forth God's love to men, and has inculcated and encouraged the spirit of praise in them. Others protest that they have never heard the Gospel so clearly preached before. But the principal part of Mr. Barnes' preaching is precisely what we, and those whom we represent, preach and teach, though to some it may have come with new force and freshness from his lips.

One of Mr. Barnes's peculiarities, however, is that in every sermon, so far as we ourselves or our informants have heard him, he has introduced some new interpretation or some old and exploded interpretation revived, of more or less familiar passages of Scripture; and with this confes ed result in his admirers, that they are now beginning to read the Bible with the view of finding some new and strange meaning in the old familiar words. If the new or revived interpretations were sound we should rejoice in them; but in our judgment this is not the case. Thus Mr. Barnes, referring to Gen. iii. 22, said that he had had a revelation that afternoon, viz., this: that when God said, "The man is become as one of Us, to know good and evil," He did not refer to the trinity in unity of the Divine nature, but to Himself and Satan. Again, in Matt. x. 28, "Fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell," refers to Satan, and not to God. James iv. 12 sufficiently refutes this view.

The central error of Mr. Barnes seems to be the idea that God is love, and only love, which is like saying that light is white, and only white; whereas we know that light is composed of all the colours; just as God's love comprehends all his attributes. This idea leads Mr. Barnes to attribute to Satan all those actings in which the severity of God is manifested; to assign him an independent power which he certainly does not possess; and to make statements about God and Satan which must lead the thoughtful ones among his disciples to explain artificially, or to explain away altogether, some of the plainest passages of the Word of God; or else to see that serious error was mingled with the truth they had received.

There is an undertone of antagonism running through all Mr. Barnes's preaching, which may really be against some form of hyper-Calvinism that he was taught in his youth; but it has the appearance of being against preachers and preaching in general.

Mr. Barnes has evidently an erratic mind, and jumps to conclusions without sufficient consideration, and thus he says things at one time which he virtually unsays at another. He has materially shifted his ground even since he came to England. When he was at Wood-green before he endeavoured to induce the people to put up their hands to be prayed for; now he denounces this, and the inquiry-room, and every other means of individualising the anxious ones in the congregation. Then there was no anointing; now he anoints with oil, and prays over as many as come forward at the close of each meeting by his invitation for that purpose. Probably some exercise faith and receive benefit; but to many ignorant people this anointing must be mere superstition. One was heard to say, "Well, if he can cure this pain in my stomach, he can do anything." Moreover, it is not evident why, if it is wrong to ask those who desire to be healed in soul to make it manifest in public, it is right to ask those who desire to be healed in body to do so.

But notwithstanding eccentricities and inconsistencies and errors, perhaps even on account of them, Mr. Barnes undoubtedly succeeds in gaining the ear of the people; but, if he would lay aside these specialties, he might do much more and better work than he is doing now. It would be well for him, and those interested in him pro and con, to confer together, that the length and breadth of his divergence from what is commonly regarded as evangelical truth might be ascertained, the causes of antagonism put away, and he and they become helpers, and not hinderers, one of another in the work of the Lord.

Mr. Barnes's key-text in this direction is 2 Sam. xxiv. 1—"And again the anger of the Lord was moved against Israel, and he [Satan, margin] moved David against them to say, Go number Israel and Judah." [See "Notes on Scripture," p. 7.] The assumption that the pronoun here means Satan becomes a skeleton key in Mr. Barnes's hands, by which he picks the lock of many other passages, and notably of this: "Whom the Lord loveth he [Satan] chasteneth;" for it is a pet idea with Mr. Barnes that God does nothing that is disagreeable or inconvenient.

Y.M.C.A., BRIGHTON.

A SOCIAL Conference took place at the rooms of the above Association, 55, Old-steine, last week, for the consideration of the steps that should be taken in reference to the work of the institution during the autumn session. The chair was taken by Mr. Marriage Wallis, J.P., the President of the Association; who remarked that the large gathering was a good augury for their future meetings. The social feeling should be carried right through in all the meetings of the Association. He spoke of three matters they would consider. They wanted—first, a few workers for the week-night services; second, a good male choir; third, more help for the Educational Committee in forming the classes.

Mr. A. WIFFEN, the General Secretary, remarked that there had not been so much personal speaking from heart to heart in the Association as there might have been. Though the work of the Association might appear so varied, embracing all the advantages of the best secular clubs in the town, the first means of good relied upon was the character and testimony of the members in their daily calling. He expressed a wish that the members would have an all-absorbing desire for the salvation of every young man with whom they came in contact, and that they would remember that by all the various agencies of the Association they must work with that object in view. They wanted everyone to make themselves at home in the Association house.

Mr. BUCHEL said that they wanted "all-round Christians," whose Christianity was the ruling principle of the whole of their lives. Mr. Stringer recommended that the subjects of the Sunday afternoon Bible-class should be placarded about the town; he was followed by a visitor, who spoke of the need of Christian work among youths of 15 and 20. Mr. MOULTON, the Assistant Secretary, recommended the development of the four sides of the institution—the physical, mental, social, and, above all, the religious. The Chairman summed up the principal suggestions that had been made, after which Mr. DAVIS intimated the advisability for members studying grammatical accuracy, especially those engaging in open-air speaking. Mr. ANDERSON spoke in terms of hearty appreciation of the reception he, as a visitor, had received at the Institution.

GOSPEL TENT, POPLAR.—Much good has been done during the past few months at this tent, recently closed. Not a few, it is believed, have been won to Christ Special services are now being held in various halls and chapels in the East-end for the working classes. The office of the East London Tract Society is now removed to 47, Dee-street, Poplar, E. Mr. G. Fuller is Superintendent.

"THE WORLD" ON HUMAN NATURE.

A VERY remarkable article appeared in last week's World, entitled "Backward to Barbarism." After commenting on the hideous tale told by the survivors of the Mignonette, the writer proceeds :—

"If the grim accessories which are the traditional accompaniments of cannibalism committed by civilised human beings are left out of account, the tragedy enacted has little more terrible about it than many others which are perpetually in progress around us. Roughly, it may be said that Dudley and Stephens only illustrated, in however brutal a fashion, the scientific law of 'the survival of the fittest.' Day after day this doctrine is being exemplified with every circumstance of cruelty and woe. The pressure of modern competition is so severe that rivals kill rivals as surely, if not as literally, as Stephens killed Parker. That this never-ending struggle for existence is marked by no overt acts, no visible signs of actual assassination, is simply because, in the majority of cases, there is no need to go to such lengths. Now and again a case of secret poisoning comes to light, or a suspicious death occurs. But, as a rule, competition contrives to dispense with physical violence. Nor is there anything in the devouring by the starving wretches, under an open sky and on an illimitable sea, of human flesh and blood, which does not find a parallel in the events of which we may read any morning in the newspapers.

"Casual instances of cannibalism remind us, in a hideously emphatic way, that human nature is divided by the thinnest partition from the nature of the beasts that perish; that there is innate in man a brutality and a savagery in comparison with which a lion is merciful and a tiger kind; that if the man is once pricked, the animal of prey is found, and that if the veneer of civilisation is removed, there is left a stratum of passions and appetites which human nature shares in common with the caged occupants of Regent's-park. When the friend of Whitfield saw a felon on his way to the gallows, he exclaimed, 'There, but for the grace of God, goes John Wesley;'* and when respectable and well-to-do members of society pronounce their anathemas on sins against human nature, they should remember that they have as yet escaped the temptation to prove of what human nature can be capable.

"For human society, human civilisation, and even what we speak of as human nature, are in reality the most artificial products in the world —the creatures of fear and discipline, of awe and constraint, of tradition and coercion. The machinery for the repression of what is inborn in men and women is, in the long-run, effective; but periodically the ferocious impulses assert themselves, and the bonds forged by habit or by statute are snapped asunder. Human society, fairly and decently regulated as it seems to be, exhibits a recurrent tendency to resolve itself into its primitive atoms, just as human nature, when confronted by some paralysing peril or overpowering temptation, reveals its identity with the nature of the beasts. There is as much to admonish us of what human nature is—of that instinctive capacity for infinite debasement and degradation which is its characteristic—in the reports of police-court cases and in many of the letters which appear in the daily journals, as in the latest story of cannibalism on the high seas. A London magistrate or doctor or lawyer sees in the course of every year a good deal calculated to give him even a lower opinion of the stuff of which his fellow-creatures are made.

"London is just now visited by a species of sporadic ruffianism. Under such headings as 'Street Anarchy' and 'Highway Violence,' we read of incidents occurring in the very heart of the resources of civilisation, which proclaim the isolated ascendency of barbarism, and which shows us that if a few of the checks and constraints that now insure a certain discipline and orderliness for life were dispensed with, society would be at the mercy of the cut-throats and robbers out of whom it grew.

"As there is nothing so cruel and calculating as man, so there is nothing so 'unnatural' as human nature; and this truth the phenomena of every-day existence impress upon us just as powerfully as the story of the delirious wretches who strove to appease their hunger by gnawing the flesh of their shipmate. The scandals which from time to time agitate the surface of society, the elopements in high life, and many other of the revelations made in Mr. Justice Hannen's court, are unconscious protests, on the part of the protagonists in the little drama, against the artificial constraints subject to which they live—reminders that men and women will occasionally break loose, and show themselves in their true colours. We are always living on the brink of a volcano, because we are living under a system of the most highly elaborate sort. Society, civilisation, nature, are organised to a rare point of perfection; but the risk of their reduction to their original parts must be always imminent. Five centuries of labour and invention, of the triumphs of science, industry, and art, separate us from the dark ages; but what human nature was in those ages it is now, and if the precautions prescribed by custom or dictated by law are ever relaxed, the fact is immediately brought home to us. Human nature is shown to be not good, but evil; not human, but brutal."

* The memory of the writer is at fault here; it was not John Wesley, but John Bradford, a martyr-confessor of the seventeenth century, who uttered this memorable sentence.

MUSIC-HALL SERVICES.

DEAR SIR,—The "Oxford" Music Hall has been occupied on Sunday evenings for many years past for the preaching of the Gospel, with varying attendances. The hall has sometimes been crowded to its utmost capacity with the very class it is most important to reach with the Gospel, chiefly young men of the pleasure-seeking kind. Numerous instances are before us at the present time in which those converted there are earnestly labouring for the Lord in different parts of the world; and the "great day" will alone declare the full result of these important services.

The time has arrived for arranging for winter services there; but the state of our finances is such as to demand an immediate pause before resuming the responsibilities of a winter campaign, though a band of earnest workers are ready to co-operate as before. I dare not, however, proceed with these services unless the exchequer of the Mission is refurnished; and we earnestly appeal to Christian stewards possessing means to "come to the help of the Lord against the mighty," and not suffer this important door for the Gospel to be closed, as it must be, unless funds for this special purpose are immediately provided. But we are reluctant to close this important sphere of Gospel work without first appealing to fellow-Christians for the needed help.—Yours truly, C. RUSSELL HURDITCH.

Evangelistic Mission, 164, Alexandria-road, St. John's-wood, N.W., Sept. 20.

ROMISH PRIESTS IN FRANCE.—I one day heard Père Hyacinthe declare, writes the Paris correspondent of The Record, that there were among the Roman Catholic clergy of France more than ten thousand priests who groaned under the burden of a charge in which their heart and conviction had no part. "If," added the celebrated preacher, "an opportunity were given them, they would without hesitation abandon the Roman Catholic Church." That declaration has become for Protestant Christians a subject of preoccupation and of earnest prayer, and M. Reveillaud, after considering the matter, has proposed in the Signal to erect a house in which such priests might be received, and be prepared, either for the ministry of the Protestant Church or for any other profession for which they might be qualified. More than one priest has already been received into a Christian home as a trial of the proposed system. Certainly we shall follow with much sympathy everything that tends to enfranchise our population and the Roman Catholic clergy from the bondage under which they suffer. It is an acknowledged fact that the Roman Catholic clergy in France are of a rather high moral standard.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE AT HOXTON HALL.

ON Monday, Sept. 15, a meeting of a somewhat novel character was held at Hoxton Hall. A free tea was given to men and women, who having signed the Total Abstinence Pledge at the Hall had kept it for over twelve months. After the tea a vast number of people gathered in the large Hall to listen to the prayer, praise, and testimony of the rescued ones. Mr. William Noble, the esteemed leader, presided over the meeting, and the Drysdale Open-air Choir sang several times during the evening.

A meeting of a more stimulating character it would be impossible to imagine. I could only wish that all Temperance workers who were growing cold in the fight against "England's Enemy" could have been present, for undoubtedly they would have been—even as I was—encouraged and re-fired with desire to work for God and Temperance, as they heard of the joys and blessings that had come into the homes and lives of the people when the drink was banished. As one after another testified that it was in response to the kindly, loving invitation of one or other of the Hoxton Hall workers that they had been induced to give up the drink, I felt more than ever before the truth that

"Down in the human heart, crushed by the tempter,
Feelings lie buried that grace can restore,
Touched by a loving hand, wakened by kindness,
Chords that were broken will vibrate once more."

How "crushed!" we could faintly imagine by a glance into the faces of some from whom the result of past sin and misery had not vanished, and the pressure of the "loving hand" had evidently been felt by one woman who said, "Mr. Hawes was always at me, and at last he got me, and through him I now have a happy Temperance home;" and she had found the Saviour too.

Another woman said, "Hoxton Hall is the birthplace of my soul, and by the power of God I am kept from my besetting sin; I am now a member of the Workers' Union, and I do ask you women present to join us in our work of rescuing our fallen sisters."

A working man from the middle of the hall said, "I signed Teetotal because my children belonged to the Band of Hope; me and my wife used to have ale and our children had water; I thought that wasn't right, I ought to be an example to my children, and so my wife and I gave it up."

A woman who had indeed been fearfully cursed with the drink, strongly urged her hearers to "give Total Abstinence one month's trial in your home, and you'll never want the cursed stuff there again." A stentorian voice from the platform, where the choir were sitting, said, "I've hailed the breeze, and braved the storm as an abstainer; I've a family of nine children, and they are all teetotalers." A friend of the cause from Staffordshire said he had never suffered from the drink, because he had never touched it; the drink had personally done him no harm, but God had done him good, and concluded by touchingly appealing to those who as yet had not given themselves to Christ, and by singing the solo :—

"Will you go to that Beautiful Land with me?
Will you go? Will you go?"

Many other testimonies followed, all proving that the homes, the lives, and the hearts of the people were made brighter and purer by total abstinence.

During the evening a slight disturbance took place in the lower hall, occasioned by the presence of a drunken woman; but as from my position on the platform I could look at the faces of the people in the body of the hall, I am quite sure that the unexpressed, though deeply-felt feeling for her was "May God help her!" Sorrow, pity, and prayer followed that poor, drunken, besotted woman that night, and it may be that He who willeth not the death of a sinner may, in answer to Hoxton Hall prayers, let his spirit strive yet more mightily with this woman.

Just before the close of the meeting Mr. J. Christie Mackenzie, Secretary of the Help-Myself Society, made a most impassioned appeal to any who, after listening to the testimonies that evening, felt themselves almost persuaded to give up the drink.

The meeting closed with a sacred song from the Drysdale Open-air Choir, and I came away cheered, strengthened, and encouraged for future work, but pained to hear that the workers at Hoxton are cramped and harrassed in their work for the want of funds. If any reader of this account has the smallest amount of spare cash, it would be gratefully received and duly forwarded to Hoxton by NELLIE E. MACKENZIE.

69, Malvern-road, Dalston, E.

MORE MISSIONARIES FOR CHINA.

VALEDICTORY MEETINGS.

OUR readers will remember that not very long ago, when Mr. Hudson Taylor was on the eve of returning from China to England, he and other friends were led to lay a definite petition before God that He would speedily send forth seventy additional labourers to that vast and needy field. This prayer has now been more than answered; reckoning the various parties whose departures are fixed for within the next few weeks, more than seventy men and women will have gone forth since the petition was first presented, to proclaim in different parts of China the Gospel of God's grace. Among many such infallible tokens granted to the conductors of this Mission, we have here one more sign that God's ear is not heavy that He cannot hear, and that He is ever ready to respond to the Spirit-prompted desires of his faithful and obedient servants.

The valedictory services being held this autumn in connection with the Inland Mission, are perhaps the most interesting they have ever been enabled to arrange. The outgoing parties, on an average, are larger than usual, and they are following each other in quicker succession. The second party, numbering nine—seven ladies and two gentlemen—sailed yesterday (Wednesday) by P. and O. steamer Chusan. Their names are Misses Mary Black, Annie R. Taylor, Ellen M. Barclay, Bertha Broman, Maria Byron, Caroline Matthewson, and A. Gertrude Broomhall; Messrs. Herbert Parry and A. Hudson Broomhall. They are accompanied by Miss Henrietta Green, the first agent of the Friends' Foreign Missionary Society, who will also work in association with the Inland Mission at Chen-tu-fu, the capital of the province of Si-chuen.

During the past fortnight this party (which is the second of the season) has been present at a number of valedictory meetings held in various parts of London and suburbs. All these meetings have been of great value, not only in securing for the departing friends an intelligent interest in the prayers of Christians at home, but in spreading a knowledge of the deep spiritual necessities of China, and in fanning the fire of missionary zeal in the hearts of those who were present on the various occasions.

Not the least interesting of the series, we should judge, was the meeting at 186, Aldersgate-street, last Friday evening, when a large company of friends, mostly young men and women, gathered in the lecture hall of the Y.M.C.A. to commend the young missionaries to God's keeping, and hear their brief addresses. Mr. R. C. MORGAN, who presided in the early part of the evening, said the question that such an occasion must suggest to every Christian heart was not, Ought I to go to China? but, Ought I to restrain myself from going? That question ought to be asked and answered as in the presence of God.

This point was strongly emphasised by Mr. BROOMHALL, the Secretary of the Mission, when he in a few sentences pointed out the comparative scarcity of workers among the immense populations of China. Take, for instance, the province of Kan-suh, containing three millions of people, where at present there are only three Protestant missionaries. Shen-si has seven millions and ten missionaries. Shan-si has nine millions and eighteen missionaries. Si-chuen has some twenty millions and only thirteen missionaries. Those are simple facts, as Mr. Broomhall truly said, that speak more loudly than any rhetorical appeals, and they ought to speak very loudly indeed in the ears of the Christian workers who are crowding and jostling each other in many parts of the British Empire. These facts, and many others equally weighty and startling, are set in order in Mr. Hudson Taylor's book, "China's Spiritual Need and Claims," to which we have more than once referred of late.

When Mr. Broomhall went on to touch on more personal matters, in referring to the departure of his daughter and son, who form two of this party, he spoke with an emotion and feeling that must have come home to every Christian parent who heard him. Although he could not tell what it cost him to part with his loved children, he rejoiced that it was in their hearts to go, and he had unspeakable comfort in the assurance that in far-off China many would hear the Word of life from their lips.

All the young missionaries in turn presented themselves, and in brief but fitting terms told how they had been constrained to lay themselves on the altar of service for Mission work in China. Miss BLACK, the first to speak, is the fourth sister, out of a family in the north of Ireland, who has lately given herself to this blessed work, and a fifth sister is soon to follow the others to the field. Several of the young women have had more or less medical training at home, which will much enhance their usefulness among their sisters in China. Mr. HERBERT PARRY, who goes out as a qualified medical practitioner, awakened no little interest as he told how he had been brought to a saving knowledge of Christ at the Priory (Islington) Y.M.C.A., and how he had received his first impulse towards China in that very room at a similar meeting six years ago. We trust, in the years to come, it may be found that the meeting of last week has yielded still greater results.

At the commencement of the meeting very earnest prayer was offered for the departing friends by Rev. THORNLEY SMITH; in the present political condition of affairs in China the need of God's guidance and sustaining grace could not but be specially recognised. Warm words of cheer were spoken by Messrs. ARMSTRONG and PRICE, two American missionary friends who were present. Mr. R. SCOTT said he had just come from the grave-side of a relative who had preached on the previous Sunday morning, and passed away in the evening. His medical man had told him that if he continued preaching it was as much as his life was worth. The good man replied that if he could not preach Christ, his life was not worth anything to him; so he died at his post. Surely no better message could have been given to these youthful candidates for the service of the King in China. Those who are ready and willing, if need be, to die at their posts, are the sort of servants that God is likely to take hold of and to use in the advancement of his kingdom.

A BABYLONIAN EXPEDITION.—Dr. Ward, editor of the New York Independent, and several Oriental scholars, have just left America on an expedition to the lower valley of the Euphrates for purposes of exploration. The whole expense of this expedition to Babylonia is being borne by a lady named Wolfe, whose name the expedition bears, and the object is to discover some records of a people who were contemporary with Abraham.

RAILWAY MEN AT BRISTOL.—The work at Bristol is still going on. At the Midland locomotive shed a prayer-meeting is conducted by the men at the breakfast hour. Addresses are given twice a week by ministers and others. There is a Mission-room in the point station, kindly lent and furnished with seats and lights by the G.W.R. and M.R. Companies. Here evangelistic services are held every Friday evening with hearty singing, A Gospel-temperance meeting is held every month, and a Bible-class every Sunday afternoon. Mr. J. M. Scroggie, who preached at the Drill-hall in conjunction with Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Mission to Bristol, is about to hold services in the new hall of the Y.M.C.A., and by the kindness of the Committee he will conduct a service for railway men on Monday night, October 6, at the Mission-room in Temple Parish. Earnest prayer is asked for this effort.

ISAIAH XLVIII. 18.

MY peace is like a river,
For Jesus is my peace,
O'erflowing, ever flowing,
With joy that cannot cease.

Like waves of mighty ocean,
Concealing all from sight,
My righteousness is Jesus,
Whose blood has washed me white.

Not like to brooklet babbling
Upon an April day,
But in the heat of summer,
All vanished away.

Not like a mighty cataract,
Which rushes madly by;
Woe to the hardy boatman
Who dares to venture nigh.

No fountain intermittent,
Failing in time of need,
No! Jesus faileth never,
A river full indeed.

A river making fruitful
The banks on either side;
A river on whose bosom
The frailest bark may ride.

He bears us ever onward
To his bright home above,
For ever there to rest upon
The ocean of God's love.

C. E. J.

Requests for Prayer.

FOR blessing on Gospel work in the Sussex villages.——For blessing on Gospel services in Sadlers Wells Theatre during the winter, under the direction of William Catlin.——For blessing on Gospel meetings at Y.M.C.A., Bradford, by Mr. H. Maxwell Wright.——For Gospel meetings in the village of Deanburnhaugh.——For meetings in Circus, Newcastle-on-Tyne, conducted by Mr. G. Hefford.——A correspondent writes: On Oct. 27 Sir Moses Montefiore, if spared, will celebrate his one hundredth birthday. Will not Christians join in a devout prayer to the Almighty that the venerable baronet may, even at the "eleventh hour," rejoice in Christ?

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for the ensuing week:—Sept. 28, Psalms cxxxviii. 1—8; Sept. 29, Psalms cxxxix. 1—16; Sept. 30, Psalms cxxxix. 17—24; Oct. 1, Acts xiii. 1—13; Oct. 2, Acts xiii. 14—25; Oct. 3, Acts xiii. 26—41; Oct. 4, Acts xiii. 42—52.

REV. HUGH PRICE HUGHES, on leaving Oxford for Brixton, was presented with an illuminated address from the young men of the Wesleyan Societies in Oxford, expressing appreciation of "your work, and the high standard of Christian duty that you have set up amongst them, during the three years that you have been superintendent of this circuit. Your example and precept have stimulated them to more complete consecration to the service of Christ, and to more earnest work for the salvation of the souls of their fellow-men." Judging from his remarkable discourse at Brixton-hill on Sunday week, reported in The Christian World Pulpit, the same results are likely to follow in his new sphere of labour.

Y.M.C.A. CONFERENCE AT WIGTON.—The annual conference of the North-Western District Union of Young Men's Christian Associations has recently been held at Wigton. Delegates were present from Ambleside, Barrow-in-Furness, Carlisle, Kendal, Lancaster, Penrith, and Wigton. Reports of an encouraging nature were given by the delegates present, and the Committee and officers were elected for the ensuing year. In the afternoon Mr. John Fleming, of Ambleside, opened a conversation on "The Y.M.C.A. and the Churches," and Mr. Henry Thorne, travelling secretary of the Y.M.C.A., read a paper on "Our Lord's Method of Handling the Word of God." There was a high tone throughout the whole Conference, and there can be no doubt that the work of the Association in the North of England will be greatly helped by it.

INDIAN NOTES.

(From the Calcutta Indian Witness.)

THE Indian War Cry continues to publish sensational telegrams from Gujerat. The following is a specimen of the kind of despatches sent:—

"The great campaign in Gujerat. All officers present. Midnight attack on Gomri, fifty strong, brass band to the front. Silent march into the village, people all sleeping. At given signal fifty voices set up a loud shout, while two cornets blast forth. People amazed, tremendous crowds. Mighty Holy Ghost power. Big strapping men crying for mercy. Meeting closed after midnight with eleven souls in the Fountain."

We can well believe that the people were "amazed." We wait patiently to see what shape this work will take. We do not believe we are captious or unbelieving, but some things about these proceedings make us doubtful.

At a large public meeting in Colombo, Major Tucker reported, apparently with great delight, that they had introduced the "war dance" into the Gujerati meetings. Placing a flag in the centre, "many of the natives danced and sang around it to the accompaniment of a drum." To those who have seen the lower classes of natives dancing and posturing around the standard of Salar, or some other saint, this account of the so-called war dance is anything but hopeful. The work, thus far, solves no problem, while it suggests some grave fears. It has not yet touched, or more than touched, the caste problem. It ignores baptism, does not insist on the Sabbath, and thus avoids those difficulties which have hitherto been found so formidable. Major Tucker claims 2000 converts, with 1200 enrolled "soldiers."

It so happens that at the present time the question of effectually evangelising India is undergoing much discussion, and several opinions have been expressed in the Indian Witness about it. We believe the preaching of the Gospel is effectual only when "the power of the Lord is present to heal," and as our readers know, we distrust attempts to force the Holy Ghost by peculiar methods of dressing and living. The fact seems to us of much significance, that every great prophet and preacher mentioned in the Bible was unexpectedly called to his work. We think that being at all times ready for the call, while obeying the general commission to preach the Gospel, is the best thing that a servant of God can do to be signally useful in the Master's work. But there is one other condition of effectual work which we have not seen mentioned in the late discussion: that is, prayer for the work. Most, or all those, who have been blessed in "turning many to righteousness" have cried to God long and with great earnestness for the conversion of souls, whether by their instrumentality or that of others. And this idea is in accordance with the promise in Ps. xxxvii., "Delight thyself also in the Lord, and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart."

At a Church of England Conference on Foreign Missions, recently held at Ely, the Rev. T. P. Hughes, of Peshawur, drew attention to the marvellous change that has come about in the disposition of the natives toward missionaries. "At one time," he said, "it would not have been safe for a Christian missionary in Peshawur to leave his house." He also made an urgent appeal for a great extension of the work among the Mahomedans, fifty millions of whom, he said, were subjects of the Queen. "It might not be generally known that the missionaries of Islam were active to-day, and that whole villages were being turned to the false prophet. Great efforts were therefore needed to counteract this movement." He therefore urged great zeal in Christian aggressive work.

The first sure sign of a general and permanent opening among the Mahomedans must be the setting free of their women from the ignorance and seclusion in which they are kept; and here is the principal difference between their present condition of enlightenment and that of the Hindoos. The day of hopeless seclusion of the Hindoo women is past forever, and every year sees a door to their education and enlightenment opened wider. But although very small signs of a change in this respect are yet visible among the Mahomedans, it must encourage missionaries to remember that a little more than fifty years ago, faith in the promises of God was the only thing that gave ground for the slightest hope that two generations would see Hindoo women competing successfully for University honours. A similar prospect there assuredly is before the inmates of Mahomedan zenanas, and then the opening of "a wide door and effectual" for the reception, by that race, of the Gospel, will not long be deferred.

Two Mahomedan families were baptized last week in the village near Pakour station, on the loop line mentioned by us in a recent editorial. Some little hostility exists in the neighbourhood, but on the whole the friendliness of the people toward the converts is surprising. We are persuaded that a very wide field is ready for the Gospel reaper in rural Bengal, and would counsel all our missionery societies to push out active evangelists among the villagers.

We learn with pleasure that during the present week three Mahomedans and two Hindoos have, in a quiet and decided way, professed to find salvation through Jesus Christ at the Salvation Army services in this city.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr. Charles Inglis has been holding most successful meetings in Dublin during the past ten weeks, both in the Mission-hall and in a large marquee. The meetings held in the tent have been crowded nightly by all classes and many precious souls have professed to trust in the Lord Jesus Christ. Not a few backsliders have been restored, while many Roman Catholics have been spoken with personally in the after-meetings.

Mr. George Maddison, of Evenwood, for fourteen years an evangelist in connection with the Gainford District (Darlington) Congregational Church, with its eight Mission stations, l ed August 23rd. He has left a wife and eight children, five of whom are quite young. An effort is being made to raise a sum sufficiently large to help his widow to tide over present difficulties, and enter upon some way of earning a living. Rev. A. G. Bowman, Assistant Minister, Gainford, will thankfully acknowledge communications.

Victoria.—The Melbourne Spectator of July 11 contains "joyful news" of revivals at different points in Victoria. Mrs. Hampson was still prosecuting her Mission with great success at Ballarat, Sandhurst, &c. Speaking of a place called Ecucha, the Spectator says:—"A glorious revival has visited the churches in this town. It commenced in connection with the visit of one of our evangelistic bands from Sandhurst. Fifteen young men went up on Saturday evening, 28th June, and commenced the services on the following morning. The work still continues."

Mr. Henry Thorne at Carlisle.—Mr. Thorne concluded, on the 16th inst., a successful nine days' Mission at Carlisle, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. The meetings, which were held in the drill hall, were attended by large audiences averaging 1200 persons, who manifested a deep interest in the addresses given. The afternoon Bible-readings in the Young Men's Hall were well attended, and were very useful in strengthening and building up Christians. At the evening meetings the services of a large choir, composed of members from the various choirs in the city, sang several Gospel songs. The Mission was ably supported by ministers of all denominations, and has been of great use in awakening the unconverted, establishing believers, and increasing union among Christians of various denominations. The work is to be followed for six weeks by weekly addresses on "The Christian Life," given by ministers who have helped in the Mission.

Huddersfield.—Messrs. Mateer and Parker have just concluded a successful fourteen days' Mission at Lindley, a part of Huddersfield. They are now at Airdrie, near Glasgow.

Presbyterian Home Missions.—"As the result of our missionary work last year," says the American Presbyterian Home Missionary, "6216 persons united with the churches on profession of faith—a number large in itself, and for which we greatly rejoice. There were many revivals of religion cheering the hearts of the missionaries, and greatly strengthening many churches. But when we remember that there were 1458 missionaries, and that the churches they served were more than 2000, we see that the average additions were only three to a church, and a trifle less than five to a missionary. The picture becomes still less satisfactory when we find on examination of the reports that 400 of our missionaries report no additions to their churches on profession during the whole year."

The Evangelisation of India.—Now that the attempt to induce Mr. Moody to come to India has failed, we would venture to suggest to our Christian friends in various parts of the empire that they attempt an evangelistic campaign on their own account. The great revival of 1857-8, in its incipiency at least, was a layman's revival, and the chief agency employed in carrying it on was prayer. A dozen praying men in any of our larger stations might very easily begin and carry on a blessed work of salvation. In all Northern India the cold season will soon be at hand, and plans for special meetings should be formed at once. God has not sent Mr. Moody to us, but a Greater than Moody is for ever with us, and in his holy name mighty works of saving grace may be wrought.—Indian Witness.

Rio de Janeiro.—The Committee of the Rio de Janeiro Seamen's Mission are appealing for help towards a "Mission-ship" fund. The most important work of the Mission is done afloat, and although much can be done by ship to ship visitation, far more good could be accomplished by means of a vessel moored in the midst of the shipping and flying the Mission flag. The cost of purchase and outfit of the Mission-ship is estimated at £800, towards which there is at present only about £175 in hand. Mr. Robert Norton, 12, Pancras-lane, E.C., will receive subscriptions. Rio de Janeiro, the capital of Brazil, is the largest city in South America, with a population of about 35,000, and a large and continually changing maritime population, the majority of whom are English speaking. The British residents in Rio have always been most ready to support the various institutions there tending to the general welfare, and subscribe liberally to the general fund of the Rio de Janeiro Sailors' Mission.

REDRUTH, CORNWALL.—Some ladies in this place are busy at the work of house-to-house visitation, preparatory to the holding of Temperance meetings. They would be glad of a supply of good Gospel Temperance tracts and papers, so as to interest the people in the movement. These may be forwarded to Mrs. Edwards, Sunnyside, Redruth, Cornwall.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE WORK.—Major Poole continued his Mission at Stafford up to Wednesday last week, with growing success; the number of pledges taken was between 400 and 500.—Recent reports from Tasmania show that Mr. Matthew Burnett is busily engaged in the work of Gospel Temperance, and is meeting with a large amount of success.—Mr. Francis Murphy and his son Edward are actively carrying on the campaign in their native land. Reports received from Evanston (Ill.) and St. Paul's (Ma.) give glowing accounts of the work. At the former place our brethren had the valuable assistance of Miss Frances Willard.

GLASGOW SEAMEN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.—A very interesting meeting was held on Wednesday, 17th inst., in the Seamen's Chapel, Brown-street, to bid welcome to Mr. William M'Kenzie, who two months ago came from Nairn to take charge of the work among the sailors on the north side of the river. During the evening the meeting was addressed by Messrs. G. Macfarlane, R. H. Hunter, Rev. D. Hay, Captains Smith and Hatfield and others. The speakers referred to the work carried on for the last sixty years in the chapel, and stated that it had proved an important factor in improving the social and religious condition of the sailors coming to Glasgow.

Letters to the Editor.

"RIGHT, OR WRONG?"

DEAR SIR,—Circumstances cannot make a wrong thing right. I am glad of your article in last number of THE CHRISTIAN. It is a sad case, and I quite agree with the conclusion drawn by you.

But I want to draw a parallel, and see where the difference is between cannibalism and killing wholesale at the bidding of the State, when the parties killing each other have not any personal reason, and have willingly placed themselves in the position in which they are required to take life. Each life is the same; each has its immortal soul, for which an account will have to be given.

Read these newspaper extracts:—

"FIGHTING IN THE SOUDAN.

"DEFEAT OF REBELS BY GORDON.

[Times Special.]

"Wady Halfa, Sept. 17.—The Mudir of Dongola wires a long list of names of rebel sheikhs who have been killed by his army, and says that he pursued the rebels as far as Assli, taking many prisoners. The Mudir is now at Ambukol. He also says that the messenger from General Gordon who arrived on the 15th reports that General Gordon has met and defeated the rebels at Halfayeh, between Khartoum and Shendy, and that the rebels suffered severe loss, two chiefs being among the killed. General Gordon's troops had occupied Halfayeh when the messenger started."

"The hired transport Aston Hall left Woolwich yesterday with sixty-nine boats for the Nile expedition, also 10,000 gallons of rum for troops and sailors."

Pardon me if I am hard upon you in associating General Gordon with thousands of slain and ten thousand gallons of rum! All I say is, in the words of the Book, "Come out from among them, and be ye separate," "Dare to be a Daniel," and put these "fighting Christians" in their right place. If I wrote an article on the subject, I fear you would not put it in your paper, so I must pen a line privately, making my voice heard when I can. You know my sentiments and sincerity.—Yours very sincerely, HARRISON PENNEY.

Darlington, Ninth month, 19.

SPIRITUAL DESTITUTION IN CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—While people in England have been enjoying for many months past unusual spiritual blessings through the earnest ministrations of Mr. Moody, Dr. Pentecost, and others, people on this side of the Atlantic—in Canada and Nova Scotia—have not been so fortunate. We came across the title of a tract lately, called "How to preach so as to convert nobody." When we say that the churches out here seem to have taken that as their motto, people in England can imagine how destitute we are spiritually. Never, never, have we come across such deadness, such indifference, such startling apathy, and were we dying to-morrow, there is not a minister or clergyman whom we should think it worth while sending for. We refer especially to Halifax and Ottawa, but we believe from what we have heard that Montreal is very much in a similar condition. The Episcopal Church is in a deplorable condition. We have been just a year in Canada, and we have never heard anything approaching to a Gospel sermon from one of its many ministers out here in all these months. We cannot help thinking that a day of reckoning must surely come for those who, Sunday after Sunday, preach such fearful trash as the sermons to which we have been forced to listen. Neither do we allude only to the Church of England; all the churches seem alike—dead, asleep, indifferent. To go more than once a day is a penance, and that once a painful farce, no one can be blamed for staying at home; there is nothing to hear—absolutely nothing.

Infidelity is in earnest enough, and Roman Catholicism, which has such a hold on the country; yet our own Church and other Protestant denominations sleep contentedly on. The same sickening quarrels over crosses and candles and eastward positions are taking place as in England, but the Gospel is absolutely ignored, and we could mention numbers of sermons without an allusion to Christ. We have heard a Gospel sermon in the Roman Catholic Cathedral and in the Plymouth Brethren meeting, but not in the Church of England, and it is hard that one should be obliged to go to other churches for spiritual food which one might surely expect in one's own. S. M.

Halifax, Nova Scotia.

A RIGHT THING IN THE WRONG PLACE.

SIR,—The idolatry of music as an element of worship has assumed such prominence in our churches of all denominations here, and with the apparent endorsement of those whom I believe to be true children of God, that I am very much at a loss to know how far a choral service by trained hirelings, or the usual anthem as sung by a choir, independent of the congregation, can be called worship, even from the lowest Protestant standpoint. To my mind it appears the shallowest kind of mockery. Divine worship I have supposed to be the overflow of a grateful heart, finding expression in thanksgiving, adoration and praise, from the creature to a heart-searching Creator, quite incompatible with the ornate performance which our ministers have introduced, to the exclusion of the spiritual worshippers, whom the Father seeks to worship Him (John iv. 23), "who glory in Christ Jesus, having no confidence in the (religious) flesh" (Phil. iii. 3).

The subject, I confess, assumes very great importance to me, and I have yet failed to see much intelligent discussion of it in print. My object in writing is to elicit the views of enlightened Christians, in the hope that those who tolerate and endorse the evil may be awakened to its God dishonouring results, sapping the very life-blood of our faith, and bringing its sublime and holiest expression of sanctified praise down to the level of a sensuous, mercenary performance. No wonder we have to lament the decadence of vital religion and the waning of Church influence.

Montreal, Sept. 1. A LOVER OF MUSIC.

"BOW-STREET" JUSTICE.

SIR,—The account you copied from Truth in your last issue of the oppression of poor Clara Govier is enough to make one blush for English justice. Is there no one in the neighbourhood, with leisure, either lady or gentleman, who will search out the case, and, if true, see what can be done for the starving children, and the release of the victim from gaol? If there be an avenging Providence, the case calls for a heavy reckoning.

I shall be happy to join in a subscription and in any appeal to the Home Secretary.

I enclose my card. C. H. B.

3, Kidbrook-terrace, Blackheath, S.E.

A HINT TO THE HOME FRIENDS OF MISSIONS.

DEAR SIR,—Many of your readers send papers and periodicals to missionaries in China. For these the recipients, myself included, are very grateful. May I, through your paper, ask these friends to see that the proper amount of stamps are affixed to their postal packets. For example, last week I received a printed appeal from London, begging for funds. On this appeal, which was in a sealed envelope, I had to pay a fine of 5d., it being 2½d. short in postage. In addition to this I had to pay 2d., the usual postage from the open ports to this inland city. As we see constant appeals for money in your paper, there is no occasion to send special begging letters to us by post. Fivepence placed on a letter takes it to an open port; extra postage has to be paid to the Chinese postman for carriage into the interior.—Yours sincerely,

A MISSIONARY IN HANGCHOW.

P.S.—I know that many of my brethren in the interior would wish this subject mentioned.

MR. SYDNEY GIBSON, whom many of our readers will remember as a zealous and faithful witness for Christ, has opened an educational establishment at Eburer House, Westhouse-road, Penarth, Cardiff.

MESSRS. FULLERTON AND SMITH have recently been holding evangelistic services at Galashiels, N.B., and they have been much blessed. The meeting with those who received blessing at a former Mission held four years since was very encouraging. Last week services, which excited much interest, were held at Falkirk.

THE UPPER ZAMBESI.—DEAR SIR,—Many of your readers will be glad to hear that indirect information has been received to-day from the Barotsi valley, to the effect that my son, F. S. Arnot, was alive and well in the month of February, 1884.—Yours faithfully, 54, York-street, Glasgow, WM. ARNOT.

Sept. 17.

Notices of Books, &c.

BIBLE LILIES. 1s. J. Hawkins. A very daintily and artistically got up little book, giving selected texts of Scripture for a month's morning and evening meditation.

Another addition to the same class of literature is DAILY FOOD (Religious Tract Society), which furnishes a choice text and a verse of suitable poetry for each day in the year.

"GO, WORK." A Book for Girls, by ANNIE FRANCES PERRAM. T. Woolmer. This book is one which we can heartily recommend to every girl who is endeavouring to lead a Christ-like life. The story is well told, while much loving counsel is given to show that the greatest work we can do for the Saviour is to exhibit Him in daily life.

PENNY BIOGRAPHIES FOR THE PEOPLE. Religious Tract Society. These cheap and valuable memoirs should be obtained and read by thousands, who would find fresh stimulus for renewed energy and zealous endeavour. The latest issues of the series are Luther, Calvin, Melancthon, John Wesley, Knox, Rollock, Samuel Johnson, Wm. Farel, and Albert Dürer.

FERN GLEN FARM. By HELEN PINKERTON REDDEN. 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. A fresh and breezy tale of country scenes, country folks, and country life generally. There is a villain in the story, showing that the natural human heart is the same in the country as in the town, but of course he gets his deserts, and all ends happily for the leading characters depicted. The clever author is also an artist, and furnishes some very creditable illustrative sketches.

No kind of literature is more interesting and profitable than the records, well told, of lives well lived. Such a book is POET TOILERS IN MANY FIELDS, by Mrs. ROBERT R. WATSON (T. Woolmer). In twelve short chapters she sketches in outline the histories of as many men and women of recent times whose lives were conformed to high and noble ideals. Young readers, to whom all the grand possibilities of life are beginning to unfold themselves, will find much in these pages to admire and to imitate.

OUR OWN GAZETTE. Partridge & Co. 1d. monthly. This serial, edited with great taste and spirit by Mrs. Stephen Menzies, is beyond doubt the best paper of its kind published in these islands. Its contents are of a thoroughly practical, varied, and readable kind. It does not altogether eschew the aid of fictitious narrative, but care is evidently taken to eliminate all that is fairly open to objection. The illustrations are of a high order, and the general get-up is attractive. We most emphatically commend it to young women as a helpful periodical.

THE PROPHETS OF CHRISTENDOM. By THE BISHOP OF RIPON. 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. The elevation to the bishopric of the highly esteemed author of these able "sketches of eminent preachers" has, we presume, induced the publishers to issue this new and cheap edition. The bishop himself holds no mean place among the eminent preachers of the day, and here he proves himself well qualified to record the pulpit exploits of some of his most famous predecessors. Chapter I. is a brief exposition of the public utterances of Him who "spake as never man spake." Then we have in succession Chrysostom, Basil, Gregory, Ambrose, Augustine, Jerome, Tauler (of Strasbourg), Luther, Herdep, Bossuet, Bourdaloue, Massillon, Jeremy Taylor, Chalmers, and Dean Kirwan. Each chapter is a model of condensation and research.

Mr. F. E. Longley, 39, Warwick-lane, E.C., has completed arrangements with the Willard Tract Repository, New York, by which all their books will be kept on sale at his office, which will be their sole depot in Europe.

Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co.'s announcements for the forthcoming season include two new stories by Miss Annie S. Swan, author of "Aldersyde," entitled "Mark Desborough's Vow" and "The Better Part;" a work entitled "Emmanuel; or, Leaves from the Life and Notes on the Work of Jesus Christ," by the Rev. J. B. Figgis, of Brighton; "Aidan, the Apostle of the North," by A. C. Fryer, M.A., F.R.H.S., author of "Cuthbert of Lindisfarne;" "The Great Day: Notes and Comments on the Book of Revelation," by the Rev. T. Graham, M.A., Vicar of St. Paul's, Canonbury; "Clovie and Madge," a tale by Mrs. G. S. Reaney, author of "Our Daughters," &c.; "The Gipsey Queen" and "Marion and Augusta," by Mrs. Emma Leslie; "Jemmy Lawson: a Story of a Village Lad," by Miss E. C. Kenyon; "John Harris, the Cornish Poet," by his son, J. Howard Harris; "Joseph Livesey: the Story of his Life," by James Weston; and many other illustrated books, in addition to the annual issues of their various illustrated serials.

DEFENDING THE FAITH.

Dear Christian Friend,

RESPONDING to thy wish to have a little notice of the meetings that have been carried on for more than two months near the Ball's Pond Secular Hall, I may say that the existence of that hall, so near Mildmay Conference Hall, and the dwellings of many Christians in this vicinity, has been felt as a serious burden; and it was a matter of deep concern to many hearts that the blessed Redeemer and his truth were assailed there every Lord's-day—his Bible mocked and his name dishonoured. Shallow and weak as were the discourses delivered there, we knew the ignorant and the uninstructed were drawn into this vortex of infidelity and ungodliness, to the great peril of their souls. And the serious question was raised, in some hearts. by the existence of such a place in this locality, how we could wisely do anything to stand for Christ and his truth, and to withstand this agency of Satan?

We felt the need of Divine guidance and wisdom from above. The first effort made was for five Christians to go together into the hall itself, and there we heard for ourselves how feeble were the attacks by the sp aker there on Divine truth, to an ignorant audience. An opportunity was given for reply, or objection, to what was said; and one valued brother in our little band of five believers, ably and easily answered and withstood, the attack on Bible truth that had been made.

It then occurred to one or two Christians here to call to our help the able and experienced men, who are well qualified to meet the infidels, and who are sent forth by that most valuable agency, "The Christian Evidence Society." In various localities they have so effectually withstood the infidel speakers, both in their "Hall of Science" and in the open-air meetings, that they have been driven away from some places where they tried to gather audiences; and in others the infidel teaching has been made of none effect. We highly esteem the Christian Evidence speakers as true servants of Christ; they are men of understanding of these perilous times—workmen that have no cause to be ashamed, and who are enabled "rightly to divide the word of truth." They are practised soldiers of Christ, in this sphere of Christian warfare; and both in the "Hall of Science" and in the open-air services they have been helped by their Divine Lord so to meet the adversaries of his truth, that the infidels seem to shrink from being brought personally into contact with these faithful and able soldiers of our blessed Saviour.

The meetings held near the Secular Hall at Ball's Pond have been well attended by numbers, who have listened to the Christian evidence speakers with marked attention. The meetings have been solemn and quiet; very little opposition has been offered to the truth spoken, even when the chairman (who has presided admirably at these meetings) has given an opportunity for remarks, or questions, on what has been heard. On several occasions the objections were fully answered to the satisfaction of those present. On a recent occasion no objection was offered, though the chairman gave the opportunity as usual.

We hope these meetings will continue to the end of the present month; and if it seem right then to continue them, we must seek for guidance from the Lord as to what steps it may be wise to take in this matter.

Some of us desire much that all those who have at heart the interests of Christ's truth and honour may seriously consider what are the duties and responsibilities of living members of the Church, in reference to the open blasphemy and subtle infidelity of these perilous times, and, in believing prayer, cry to the Great Head of the Church, "What wouldst Thou have me to do?"—Thy sincere friend,

Alicia S. Ashworth.

Prestbury Villas, 42, Canonbury-park North, London, N.

[696]

Notices.

Querist, Liverpool.—The address of Rev. J. B. Gribble of the Mission to Australian Aborigines, is 7, Marquess-grove, Canonbury, London, N.

Communications Received with Thanks.—G.C.N. H.C. S.E.H.M. S.H. A.W. H.W. T.R. A.E.L. C.M.S.L. W.O.B. E.G.F. F.E.L. J.B. D.J.E. A.G.B. G.D.D. E.P.H. H.N. H.W. G.F. F.R. W.H.N. A.F.T. C.M. H.T. W.H.B. A.M.C. H.T.F. D.H.B.A. C.J.C. R.A. S.B. W.P. Miss C. A.D. R.B. S.R. W.A. G.H. G.K. W.V. P.P. P.A. H.E.S. H.H. R.H.B. A.D.S. W.L. W.J.E. R.T. H.T. M.B. M.K. F.G.B. R.L.T. A.W. A.S.D.C. J.R.M.. J.W.S. P.A.D. J.M.P. T.A.E.H. C.I. J.H.H. E.R. L.B.D. J.H. H.E.C. E.M.M. E.J.P. J.N.T. A.D.F. A.E. A.M.M. C.H.B. T.R. F.T. J.T.R. J.T. C.R.H. E.E. J.G.C. A.S.W. T.S. L.C. N.F.D. E.B. A.L.T. A.G. W.C. R.M. J.W.S.

Applicants for Tracts.—S. Wolstencroft, 6, Ryder-street, off Prince-street, Heywood; A. Allen, Dell Cottage, Wooburn, Beaconsfield; F. Ruddle, 28, Crozier-street, Lambeth, S.E.; Captain J. H. Payne, C.A., 5, Reeves-street, Lowestoft, Suffolk; A. Dixon, High-street, Salisbury; T. Walker, Dukinfield, Ashton-under-Lyne.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most important that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away. All applicants must send the name of one or more responsible referees.]

Forthcoming Meetings.

COMING CONFERENCES.

Salvation Army.—Holiness Convention, for men only, St. Andrew's Hall, Newman-street, W., October 1, at 8 p.m.

Christian Women's Union.—Preliminary conference, Thursday, October 2, Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W. Prayer and conference, 10 and 11 a.m., and 3, 5, and 7 p.m.

Conference on Prophecy, Avenue-road Church, Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's Bush, W., October 7, 8, and 9, at 3 and 7 p.m. For particulars see The Christian of September 11.

Clifton, Victoria Rooms.—October 7—9. Subjects: "Prophetical Signs of the Last Days;" "The Attitude of the Church with Reference to Them;" "The Glorious Hope of the Church." Inquiries of Rev. J. Ormiston, 14, Arlington-villas, Clifton, Bristol.

Dublin.—Young Women's Christian Associations of Ireland, Friday, October 17. Secretary, Miss Marrable, 49, Waterloo road, Dublin.

EVANGELISTIC.

The Evangelisation Society will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send lay preachers and Evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Sec, 30, Surrey-square, S.E.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Children's Evangelistic Mission.—Messrs. T. Eyres and Jeynes conduct Missions for children in any chapel, hall, or school of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Secretary, 253, Southampton-street, Camberwell, S.E.

Rev. W. Haslam.—Plymouth, October 11; Ryde (I. of W.), 25th.

Messrs. Fullerton and Smith.—Hawick, to October 2; Belfast, October 5, and onwards.

Mr J. M. Scroggie.—October, Bristol; November 2, Elgin, N.B.; November 15, Inverness; December, Paisley.

Mr. Henry Thorne.—October 4—20, Birmingham; 21, Derby; November 1—10; Doncaster; 15—24, Shrewsbury; 29 to December 8, Halifax; 12, Derby; 13—22, Duffield.

Rev. W. Hay Aitken.—September to October 6, All Saints', Hoole, Chester; October 12, St. Andrew's Parish Church, Plymouth; November 16 to 30, St. John's, Bethnal Green, E; November 30 to December 15 (or longer), All Saints, South Lambeth.

Stepney Meeting House.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney gives an address every Sunday at 3 p.m.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, September 28, at 3.30 p.m., sermon to servants by Mr. Gawin Kirkham.

North Evangelistic Choir.—Meeting for practice at Mildmay Conference Hall (ladies' room) on Saturday next, at 7 p.m. Christian singers invited.

Children's Special Service Mission.—Mr. Lidstone at Hornsey, October 27—30; Mr. W. L. Seyler, "Our Room," Clapham, October 1—3, at 7 o'clock; Mr W. F. Seagrove, Whitefield Tabernacle, Whitfield-street, October 1—3, at 7 o'clock.

Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W. (near Victoria Station).—Evangelistic meetings, by Captain Baring and others. Sundays at 3.45 and 7 p.m.; Thursdays at 8 p.m. Meetings of Christians for prayer and instruction, Tuesdays at 11.30 a.m.; Fridays at 8 p.m.

Y.M.C. ASSOCIATIONS.

61, Gracechurch-street, E.C.—Daily prayer meeting 1.15 to 2 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Bible-readings in Isaiah each Tuesday, 6.15 p.m.

Exeter Hall.—Gospel meeting every night at 8 (Saturday excepted). Mid-day prayer-meeting 1 to 2 (Saturday excepted). Bible-reading, Saturday, at 8, by Colonel Puget. Gospel Male Choir practises every Friday, at 7.30. Musical Christian men cordially invited.

186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.—Central Noon Prayer Meeting, daily, 12 to 1 o'clock. Sunday. Bible-class, 3.15 p.m.; evangelistic meeting, 7 p.m. Monday, strangers' reception, 8 p.m. Tuesday, teachers' preparatory Bible-classes, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Thursday, foreign Mission prayer-meeting, 7 p.m.; devotional meeting and address, 8 p.m. Friday, Gospel meeting, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Workers' praise and prayer meeting, 7.30 p.m.

The Priory, 108, Upper-street, Islington, N.—Thursday, September 25, at 8.30 p.m., address by Rev. W. E. Haigh, M.A.; Sunday, 28th, at 8 a.m., Breakfast; 9, Address by Rev. A. J. Bridgman, M.A.; Wednesday, 6 to 10 p.m., anxious inquirers and strangers.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, September 20, 1884.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps. Cheques to be drawn in favour of Morgan and Scott, and crossed City Bank; P.O.O.'s payable to Morgan and Scott, at G.P.O.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the Missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Saturday Morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

	£	s.	d.
China Inland Mission—Mr. and Mrs. A. T. D. N. £5; B. M. W. £1; G. T. G. 5s.	6	5	0
Scriptures for the Blind (Dr. Moon)—Mr. and Mrs. A. T. D. N.	2	0	0
Sailors' Rest, Naples—Mr. and Mrs. A. T. D. N.	2	0	0
Blackdown Hills Mission—A. O. B. £1; J. W. and K. A. £4	5	0	0
Mission to Kabyles—E. M., Dundee, 5s.; G. T. G. 5s.	0	10	0
Home for Little Boys, Farningham—G. E. and W. H. N. £1; G. T. G. 2s. 6d.	1	2	6
"Chichester" and "Arethusa" Training Ships—G. E. and W. H. N.	1	0	0
Field-lane Refuges—G. E. and W. H. N.	1	0	0
Rev. Mc All's Work in Paris—G. E. and W. H. N. £2; Amicus, 2s 6d.; (and France) T. N. J. £1	3	2	6
Miss Weston's Work in Royal Navy—G. E. and W. H. N.	1	0	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—G. E. and W. H. N. £1; B. M. 5s.; Miss G., Limerick, per W. O. £2; Mrs. D. £1; G. T. G. 2s. 6d.	4	7	6
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—G. E. and W. H. N. £1; L. 2s. 6d.; M. C. 2s. 6d.	1	5	0
Day in the Country Fund—C. J. C. 5s.; M. B. 2s..	0	5	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—B. M. 5s.; E. H. 2s. 6d.; M. C. O. £5; E. W. £3; (Emigration Fund) Mrs. D. £1	9	7	6
Dock Labourers' Mission [Free Meals]—B. B.	1	0	0
Mr. Archibald Brown's Visiting Work—Mrs. D.	1	0	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—Mrs. D. £1; G. T. G. 2s. 6d.	1	2	6
Home of Industry—Mrs. D. £1; G. T. G. 2s. 6d.; M. C. O., £5	6	2	6
Gratuitous Circulation of The Christian—T. N. J.	0	0	6
Work among Navvies, Hull—M. R. 1s.; F. V. M. £1	1	1	0
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street—T. N. J. 10s.; J. W. and K. A. £3	3	10	0
Orphanage at Nazareth—G. T. G.	0	5	0
Homes for Working Boys, London—G. T. G. 2s. 6d; J. W. and K. A. £5	5	2	6
Dr. Laseron's Work, Tottenham—J. W. and K. A..	6	0	0
Shipwrecked Mariners' Society—J. W. and K. A. ..	4	0	0
French Vaudois—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Foreign Aid Society—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Foreign Evangelical Society—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Children's Special Service Mission—J. W. and K. A.	5	0	0
Indigent Blind Visiting Society—J. W. and K. A.	5	0	0
Sailors' Welcome Home (Miss Child)—J. W. and K. A.	5	0	0
London Medical Mission—J. W. and K. A. £5; F. C. £1	6	0	0
Marylebone Medical Mission—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Whitecross-street Mission—J. W. and K. A. £3; (Medical Mission) J. W. and K. A. £3	6	0	0
Miss Sharman's Orphan Home—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Miss Mason's House of Rest—J. W. and K. A. £3; J. S. £2	5	0	0
Miss Mittendorff's Home—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Miss Lee's Home, Eastbourne—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Distressed Jews in Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—Mrs. S. L. 10s.; J. S. 10s.	1	0	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison-gate Mission—J. W. and K. A. £3; M. C. 1s.; (Medical Female Students Home) J. W. and K. A. £5	14	1	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—J. S. 10s.; G. E. and W. H. N. £2; (Medical Mission) J. W. and K. A. £5	8	10	0
Ladies' Society for Paralysed and Epileptic—(Unsuccessful Candidates) J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Home for Aged Blind Christian Women—J. W. and K. A. £3; M. C. 1s. 6d.	3	1	6
Bristol Orphan Houses—R. A...	1	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—M. £3; (Ladies' Branch) M. £2	5	0	0
George-yard Ragged School—M. C. O.	5	0	0
Sea Air for Cripples (Miss E. Emes)—F. V. M.	1	0	0
Clergy House Rest, Bournemouth—F. V. M..	1	0	0
Mr. Roll's Work, Port Said—F. C...	1	0	0
Mr. Pascoe's Work in Mexico—F. C.	1	0	0
Jewish Refugees Aid Society—J. S..	1	0	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—J. S.	1	0	0
Railway Mission—Friend	10	0	0
Livingstone Inland Mission—M. C..	0	2	6
	£180	4	0

[Advertisements.]

A. G. Brown's Sea-side Home—W. E. L. L. 10s.

Sadler's Wells Theatre Services (Mr. Catlin)—Miss H. £5; Rev. W. B. £2; G. W. £1 1s.; Miss T. £1.

SOUTHAMPTON Y.M.C.A.—During the last two months, says a correspondent, 200 new members and subscribers have joined this association. The Sunday evening services at the rooms are so crowded with young men that many have to be turned away at the doors, unable to get in.

TEXTS IN TRAMCARS.—Referring to a letter that appeared some time since in this paper, giving an account of the work of the Scripture Text Association of South London, Mr. H. Chatterton, secretary of the South Hornsey Christian Workers' Association, calls attention to a similar work in North London by the members of that association. About sixty cars of the North Metropolitan Tramway Company have now a text placed in them, each one costing about five shillings per annum. The only object is to bring the Word of God before the public, believing that it shall not return unto Him void.

"Dr. Barnardo's Homes for Destitute Children."

Stepney, Limehouse, and Bow, E.; Ilford, Essex; Hawkhurst, Kent; Gorey, Jersey; and Ontario, Canada.

The Committee regret to have to announce a very large deficit in the funds of these Institutions.

During the absence of Dr. Barnardo, who, as the Readers of The Christian will remember, is at the present time in the Dominion of Canada, seeking to consolidate and extend the proposed scheme of Emigration of destitute young children by means of these Institutions,

THE WANT OF FUNDS IS MOST KEENLY FELT.

The Committee, therefore, appeal very earnestly and hopefully to all the Readers of The Christian for help to carry on the work of these "Homes," and to enable them to continue to receive any and every friendless and homeless child who applies at the "Home," for admission.

Contributions will be gratefully received and acknowledged, if addressed to the Treasurer, Wm. FOWLER, Esq., M.P., or to Dr. Barnardo at the Offices of the Institutions, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

P.O. Orders should be made payable at the G.P.O., and crossed, as well as Cheques, "London and South Western Bank."

Under the Patronage of H.R.H. the Princess Christian.

MRS. HILTON'S CRECHE, INFANT INFIRMARY, AND ORPHAN HOME,

12, 14, & 16, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, COMMERCIAL ROAD, E.,

AND

TRAINING AND CONVALESCENT HOME, THE LIMES, FELTHAM.

SPECIAL AND URGENT.

We are in great need of help for the above work, which is quite without Funds. There are several vacancies in the Home, which we should be very glad to fill if the means were forthcoming, as we have a long list of distressing cases waiting admission. We have also some heavy payments to meet before the end of the month.

Our Thirteenth Report is in the press, and can be forwarded on application.

Contributions to be forwarded to Mrs. HILTON, Langveld House, Burdett-road, E.

JUST PUBLISHED. Price 1d.; 7s. 6d. per 100.

THE GOSPEL:

AS VARIOUSLY VIEWED

By New Testament Writers.

By G. F. TRENCH.

Reprinted from "The Christian."

"The Gospel is preached variously. It is sung by angels; it is lived by the Lord; it is exhibited in miracles of healing and resurrection; it is plainly published by the burning words of Peter and Paul, and of the others who had felt its life-giving joy in themselves. Sometimes it is a tale of love, of mercy, and of life; sometimes a command; sometimes a warning; sometimes an entreaty."—Extract from Introduction.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WOMEN'S MEDICAL MISSION HOUSE, 2, Mecklenburgh-street, W.C.

LADIES who desire to become MISSIONARY PHYSICIANS are received as resident STUDENTS, and their instruction provided at THE LONDON SCHOOL OF MEDICINE FOR WOMEN, and THE ROYAL FREE HOSPITAL, WITH ALL EXPENSES.

Term begins 1st of October next. Apply to Mrs. MEREDITH, Office of Women's Missionary Institute, Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W.

NEW WORKING LADS' INSTITUTE,

WHITECHAPEL, E.

The Memorial Stones will (D.V.) be laid on WEDNESDAY, Oct. 15, at 4 p.m. The Right Hon. the LORD MAYOR will preside. Refreshments at 6. Public Meeting at 7. Tickets for Ceremony and Refreshments, 2s. 6d.; for Tea only, 1s.

Contributions earnestly solicited. F. A. BEVAN, Treasurer, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; HENRY HILL, Jun., Hon. Secretary, 38, Bow-lane, E.C.

Continued from page 3.

SOUTHSEA. — Solent House Boarding Establishment, South Parade. Large, well-furnished House, in the best position, facing sea and the Isle of Wight.
Moderate winter terms.—The Misses BAKER.

COMFORTABLE HOME for delicate children of any age. Every attention would be given to an invalid or elderly Lady or Gentleman.—Miss HEATH, 2, Springfield-terrace, London-road, St. Leonards-on-Sea

REQUIRED in October, near London, a really comfortable House (not lodgings) with companionable Christian widow or single lady. — State full particulars, terms strictly reasonable, no extras, ALMA, Newbery, Stationer, Reading.

A REFINED, happy Christian home, where every consideration would be shown, is offered to a gentlewoman, invalid, or otherwise, or children, in the best part of Surrey, by a Gentleman's widow. Evangelical ministry.
MATER, Dunster House, Mincing-lane, London.

WIDOW LADY having large, well-furnished house, offers a comfortable Home for Gentlemen of quiet habits. Good clerical references. Terms moderate. Four minutes to railway station for City.
A. B., 37, Petherton-road, Highbury New Park.

WIDOW OF AN OFFICER, residing at Helensburgh, N.B., wishes to meet with young Lady as boarder. Healthy situation, home comforts, motherly care. Excellent educational establishments in neighbourhood Terms moderate. References exchanged.—HOPE, Blairnairn, Montrose-street, Helensburgh, N.B.

COMFORTABLE HOME offered to middle-aged Gentleman and wife, who would superintend the establishment and care for an elderly Gentleman, member of Society of Friends.—R., Beechview, Reigate.

RESIDENCE and partial Board offered to one Gentleman, or two friends, in a small Christian family. Terms from 21s. each. Reference permitted Rev. W. Fuller-Gooch.
T., 6, Auckland-hill, Lower Norwood, S.E.

TWO UNFURNISHED Rooms to Let, and use of kitchen, with man and wife. No children. Every convenience; attendance if required. Close to station.
T. P., 47, Balham-grove, Balham, Surrey.

A CHRISTIAN LADY desires to Let part of her house, furnished, to any who would value a quiet home. Convenient for the City.—FAITH, 14, Kelvin-terrace, Highbury-park.

HOME for two motherless children wanted, with decided Christian family. Boy 6½, girl 3½. Both well trained. State terms. Must be moderate.—EVANGELIST, Marlboro', Hydropathic, Ilkley, Yorkshire.

HOME WANTED (country), for invalid young Lady, with Christian widow or sisters. Sea air or other inmates objected to (permanency).—10, Metropolitan Chambers, New Broad-street, London, E.C.

A WIDOW LADY wishes to Let a sitting-room, with one or two bed-rooms, for winter months. Close to sea. Terms moderate. References exchanged.
Mrs. D., General Post office, Weston-super-Mare.

A QUIET HOME required for an invalid Gentleman, about 59, where care and attention would be given. Terms must be moderate.—P. R. C., 44, Paternoster-row, E.C.

REIGATE. — Apartments, Furnished, with attendance.
Mrs. EARL, London-road, Reigate.

APARTMENTS, Furnished, for a Christian Lady desiring bed and sitting-room, with attendance. Use of bath-room and piano. House pleasantly situated. Terms moderate.
4, Lynton-road, Crouch End, N.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Wanted, Board for a Gentleman in a private Christian family. A sitting-room desired.—Terms to be sent to Mrs. STEWART, Craig-Arch, Perth, N.B.

ACCOMMODATION FOR GENTLEMEN.—A comfortable Sitting-room, with one or two furnished Bed-rooms, in Blackheath. Three minutes' walk from station. Partial board if desired.—ALLAN & HIDER, Blackheath.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS, with Board, offered to Ladies who might wish for a happy, quiet home-life. Opportunities to continue some branches of study, or to be trained in housekeeping after having left school.—FERNLEA, 8, Stamford-grove West, Stamford-hill, N.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—Comfortable Christian home for Young Ladies, students or otherwise engaged, on reasonable terms.—Mrs. GEORGE OWEN, Archibald House, Dalmeny-road, Tufnell-park.

HOME FOR INVALIDS or others in the house of a Doctor (M.D. Cantab), living in a beautiful village near a well-known Kentish health resort. Terms moderate.—Box 968, Sell's Advertising Offices, 167, Fleet-street, E.C.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS are again earnestly invited to write. Many have received blessing.
Rom. x. 20. EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.

Extra flexible, silk sewed, in best Bagster morocco, kid-lined, elastic band. With full helps. Prices from 20s.
In French morocco, projecting edges, elastic band. From 4s.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

THE
CHRISTIAN CHOIR.
A Quarto Volume of Music & Words.
By IRA D. SANKEY and J. McGRANAHAN.

Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions, when all the mists have rolled away."
Baptist Messenger

This Volume, which is largely composed of NEW SACRED SONGS, DUETS, CHORUSES, and ANTHEMS, has been used alternately with "Songs and Solos," during the great London Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. Mr. Sankey and Mr. Mc Granahan are already well known by their hymns, which are sung all the world over; and the present collection, which is specially suitable for Gospel Choirs, will doubtless add to their reputation as true Gospel musicians.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE
GOSPEL MALE CHORUS BOOK.
A Collection of New Part Songs, Choruses and Anthems.
Written and Arranged expressly for Male Voices.
By JAMES McGRANAHAN.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Limp, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

The Gospel Male Choir was, during the last five months of the London Mission, a special feature of the meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey There are, doubtless, many more who would wish to dedicate their voices to the service of the Master; and with the present volume (which is arranged for 1st and 2nd Tenor and 1st and 2nd Bass) in their hands, and the hearty co-operation of a few brethren like-minded, this wish can be easily gratified. Says Mr. Mc Granahan:—"Organize a quartet, a double quartet, or better still, a chorus of male voices; and prove the power for good in the harmony of male voices when consecrated to the glory and service of our divine Master."

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Terms for Advertisements
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words		3	0
,, 39 ,, ...		3	9
,, 48 ,, ...		4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

FLOWER MISSION CARDS.—New and convenient design, plain white, 8d., Crimson, 1s.; Gold, 1s. 2d. per 100, post free. Sample pack of 50 (assorted colours), 6d. Only of F. V. HADLOW, Lithographer, Brighton.

Price One Penny.
THE NEAR RETURN OF THE LORD JESUS CHRIST. By CHEYNE BRADY. 17th Thousand.
London: PARTRIDGE & Co., Paternoster-row.

Price Sixpence.
THE TEACHING of Analogy upon Future Punishment. By the Rev. G. ROGERS. "Mr. Rogers has already done excellent service to the cause of truth upon this subject. He has in this pamphlet written well."—Sword and Trowel. JOHN SNOW & Co., 2, Ivy-lane.

DEATH. — ROOKE. — Sept. 5, at Byculiah Park, Enfield, the residence of her sister, Mrs. Whitley, after a short illness, aged 44, EILEEN, third daughter of the late Thomas James Rooke, of 3, Highbury-hill, London. Friends will kindly accept this, the only intimation. No cards.

FURNISH on NORMAN & STACEY'S Hire-Purchase System. Deposit not necessary. True economy on sound commercial principles. Strictly private. 1, 2, or 3 years. 60 wholesale firms. Ordinary selling prices.—Offices, 11, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

MISSIONARIES AND FOREIGN RESIDENTS should call or write to BYWATER, PERRY & Co., special agents for missionaries, &c. Outfits and goods at wholesale prices. Passages engaged. Shipments effected. 3000 references.—11, Queen Victoria-street, London, and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

TEMPERANCE SHIP.—Can any reader assist Advertiser, who desires to hear of a vessel about to go a long voyage, carrying no intoxicants, in which a passage could be taken? Not necessarily a regular passenger ship.—TRAVELLER, care of Steel & Jones, Advertising Agents, Spring-gardens, S.W.

AMERICAN ORGAN, New.—Handsome walnut case, thirteen stops, rich, full tone, knee swells. Cash £13 13s., bench included. —J., 10, The Crescent, Leighton-grove, Kentish Town, London, N.W.

IMPORTED. — Hyacinths, ditto Roman, Narcissus Paper-white, Lilium, Tulips, three of each; Scilla, Jonquils double, Sparaxis, six of each, 6s. 6d. Tulips, 72 in seven choice named varieties, 4s. 9d. Anemones, 65, including Fulgens, French, double, &c., 3s. Eighteen dozen, eleven good varieties, 8s. 6d., half 4s. 6d. Free. 38, Box, Sowerby-bridge.

VIOLIN FOR SALE (Solo), rare. Antique looking. "Stradivarius Cremona, A.D. 1721," is written inside. Full size, but short fingering, suit lady. Only 30s., with bow and case. Sent on approval any distance.—CLARA, 12, St. Michael's-terrace, Wood Green, London.

Publications.

Twelfth Edition. Post-free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.—SIMPKIN MARSHALL.

MRS. GRIMKE having now printed 50 languages, wishes to send out one million Text Cards to Missionaries this year, cost about £500, proposing to double all gifts sent by Christians, whose aid she asks. Many varieties of English (some very beautiful), F. M. sheets, tracts, quilt texts on calico, &c., always on sale.—For list, send stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. GRIMKÉ, Prestwich, Manchester.

"The Christian."
SUBSCRIPTION FOR 1885.

DURING the ensuing year (1885) there will be fifty-three Thursdays in the twelve months, and consequently there will be an additional week's issue of THE CHRISTIAN. This necessitates a slight alteration in the subscription for the year. The particulars are given below:—

ENGLISH.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	0	7	0
2 Copies ,,	1d.	0	14	0
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	1	1	0
4 ,, ,,	2d.	1	8	0

FOREIGN (POSTAGE ½d.)

Austria.	Holland.
Belgium.	Italy.
California.	Madeira.
Canada.	Malta
Canary Islands.	Norway.
Cyprus.	Persia, viâ Russia.
Denmark (including Faroe Islands and Iceland).	Portugal.
Egypt.	Russia.
France.	Spain.
Germany.	Sweden.
Gibraltar.	Switzerland.
Greece.	Turkey.
	United States.
	Vancouver's Island.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	0	7	2
2 Copies ,,	1d.	0	14	4
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	1	1	6
4 ,, ,,	2d.	1	8	8

FOREIGN (POSTAGE 1d.)

Africa.	Mexico.
Australia.	Natal.
Cape de Verd Islands.	New Zealand.
Demerara.	South America.
Fiji Islands.	Tasmania.
Hawaiian Islands.	Transvaal.
Madagascar (St. Mary's only).	West Indies.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	1d.	0	9	2
2 Copies ,,	2d.	0	18	4
3 ,, ,,	3d.	1	7	6
4 ,, ,,	4d.	1	16	8

FOREIGN (POSTAGE 1½d.)

Aden.	Japan.
Borneo.	Java.
British Burmah.	Philippine Islands.
Ceylon.	Singapore.
China.	Straits Settlements.
India.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	1½d.	0	11	5
2 Copies ,,	3d.	1	2	10
3 ,, ,,	4½d.	1	14	3
4 ,, ,,	6d.	2	5	8

A List of the Various Editions of

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS.

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, consisting of 441 Hymns.)

Compiled by IRA D. SANKEY.

The Book, as now extended and enlarged, forms a specially cheap and comprehensive collection, well adapted for

SUNDAY SCHOOLS,

MISSION SERVICES,

AND EVANGELISTIC WORK.

IT GIVES NO LESS THAN

441 HYMNS FOR ONE PENNY. MUSIC AND WORDS, 1s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

			s.	d.
1A.	SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION.	Sewed	0	1
2A.	Ditto	Printed Cloth	0	2
1B.	NONPAREIL 16mo EDITION.	Tinted Covers	0	3
2B.	Ditto	Printed Cloth	0	4
1C.	MEDIUM TYPE.	Limp Cloth	0	6
2C.	Ditto	Cloth Boards	1	0
3C.	Ditto	Morocco, Gilt Edges	2	6
4C.	Ditto	Morocco flexible, kid-lined	4	6
1D.	SMALL 8vo EDITION.	Tinted Covers	1	0
2D.	Ditto	Limp Cloth	1	6
3D.	Ditto	Cloth Boards	2	0
4D.	Ditto	Morocco, Gilt Edges	4	6

			s.	d.
7D.	SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION. (Reduced size)	Blocked Cloth	0	9
9D.	LARGE TYPE.	Morocco, Gilt Edges	4	0
1E.	EXTRA LARGE TYPE.	Tinted Covers	1	6
2E.	Ditto	Limp Cloth	2	0
3E.	Ditto	Cloth Boards	2	6
4E.	Ditto	Morocco, Gilt Edges	5	6
5E.	Ditto	Morocco flexible, kid-lined	8	6
7E.	SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION. (Reduced size)	Tinted Covers	1	0
8E.	Ditto	ditto Blocked Cloth	1	6
9E.	Ditto	Morocco, Gilt Edges	4	6
10E.	Ditto	Morocco flexible, kid-lined	6	6

The PENNY EDITION is admirably adapted for use in SABBATH SCHOOLS and MISSION HALLS. It gives a variety, in Words and Music, of between four and five hundred Hymns, nearly the whole of which are ever acceptable with Children and Adults.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

OLD NOTATION.

			s.	d.
1F.	Tinted Covers		2	6
2F.	Limp Cloth		3	6
3F.	Cloth Boards		4	6
4F.	Ditto Gilt Edges		5	0
5F.	Morocco, Gilt Edges		8	6
6F.	Ditto flexible, kid-lined		12	6
7F.	Seal yapped, kid-lined, silk sewn; perfectly supple		21	0

TONIC SOL-FA.

			s.	d.
1G.	Tinted Covers		2	6
2G.	Limp Cloth		3	6
3G.	Cloth Boards		4	6
4G.	Ditto Gilt Edges		5	0
5G.	Morocco, Gilt Edges		8	6

CHEAP EDITION. OLD NOTATION.

			s.	d.
1H.	Tinted Covers		1	6
2H.	Limp Cloth		2	0
3H.	Cloth Boards		2	6
4H.	Morocco, Gilt Edges		5	6
5H.	Ditto ditto flexible, kid-lined		8	6

QUARTO EDITION. OLD NOTATION. For Piano, Organ, or Harmonium.

IN ONE VOLUME.

Handsomely Bound in Cloth Extra, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 16*s.* 6*d.* | In Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 30*s.* 0*d.*

May also be had in Two Volumes.

			s.	d.
Vol. I. Containing Nos. 1 to 271.	Cloth Extra, Gilt Edges		10	6
Ditto	Ditto	Morocco, Gilt Edges	17	6
Vol. II. Containing Nos. 272 to 441.	Cloth Extra, Gilt Edges		7	6
Ditto	Ditto	Morocco, Gilt Edges	14	6

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS. No. 2.

CONTAINING Nos. 272 TO 441.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

				s.	d.
1J.	OLD NOTATION.	Tinted Covers		1	0
2J.	Ditto	Limp Cloth		1	6
3J.	Ditto	Cloth Boards		2	0
1K.	TONIC SOL-FA.	Tinted Covers		1	0
2K.	Ditto	Limp Cloth		1	6
3K.	Ditto	Cloth Boards		2	0

				s.	d.
1L.	CHEAP EDITION.	OLD NOTATION.	Tinted Covers	0	6
2L.	Ditto	Ditto	Limp Cloth	1	0
1M.	QUARTO EDITION.	Ditto	Cloth Extra, Gilt Edges	7	6
2M.	Ditto	Ditto	Morocco, Gilt Edges	14	6

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER-BUILDINGS; and may be ordered of any Bookseller or Music Seller.

SIXPENCE POST FREE.

LARGE EDITION, BOUND IN CLOTH, 1s. 3d.

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work

ON

CONSUMPTION

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

AND ALL

OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. May be had from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER-ROW, E.C., or from Mr. Congreve (the Author), COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

Eleventh Series of Weekly Cases.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

CASE of a LADY at COVENTRY.

Miss WALKER (now Mrs. ASHLEY), Coventry, at the time of commencing my treatment, was suffering with a severe and obstinate cough, sleepless nights, and failing strength, and was altogether in a critical state, without prospect of relief, and the danger of falling a prey to consumption was imminent.

The good she derived by my treatment is summed up in a brief extract of a letter from her husband: "I have very great pleasure in informing you that from the time my wife commenced to take the second bottle of your Balsam she began to improve in health, until her cough entirely left her. When at the worst, her cough was so very bad that she was unable to obtain any rest at night, and her appetite was such that she was unable to take sufficient food to keep up her strength, but she is now quite hearty, and gaining strength every day. We have every confidence in your treatment of consumptives, and heartily wish you the success your good work deserves.—J. ASHLEY, Fern Cottage, FOLESHILL, COVENTRY."

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

GOLD MEDAL, CALCUTTA, 1884.

Fry's Cocoa

Guaranteed Pure. Extract

"There is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.

"Strictly pure."—W. Stoddart, Analyst for Bristol.

"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin

NINETEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s.

BIBLE READINGS ON THE GOSPEL OF MARK.

Suitable as a Handbook and Help for Bible Classes, Lay Preachers, and Evangelists.

BY

HENRY THORNE,

Travelling Secretary for the English National Committee of the Y.C.M.A.

With beautiful Map of Palestine, showing the localities referred to.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

IN THE PRESS, AND WILL BE READY SHORTLY.

Price One Penny. 7s. 6d. per 100.

Twelve copies and upwards sent post free.

The Christian Sheet Almanac for 1885.

Attractively printed in Red and Black, on a large sheet,

20 in. by 30 in.

Containing carefully selected Scripture Texts for every day in the year, Postal Information, Changes of the Moon, &c.

AND

EIGHT EXCELLENT ILLUSTRATIONS.

"The Christian" Sheet Almanac is admirably suited for the walls of the Cottage or the Mission Hall. Quantities of not less than 500 copies, with special matter, may be had for localization, terms for which will be forwarded on application to the Publishers.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER-BUILDINGS; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Just Ready, Crown 8vo., Cloth, 2s. 6d.

LIFE AND HOLINESS.

BY WILLIAM WOODS SMYTH,

Fellow of the Medical Society.

London: ELLIOT STOCK, 62, Paternoster-row.

BIBLE LIGHT

For Truth Seekers & Christian Workers.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."—Ps. cxix. 105.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light."—Ps. cxix. 130.

THE OBJECT of "BIBLE LIGHT" is to interest its readers in the written Word, and to lead them through the latter to the Living Word, for the salvation of the unsaved, and the strengthening of the believer's faith. Monthly, One Penny. Strongly recommended by the Press. The Vol. for 1883, price 1s. 6d.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C. And of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Tinted Paper, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 2s.

"BLACK, BUT COMELY;"

OR,

Glimpses of Aboriginal Life in Australia.

BY THE REV. J. B. GRIBBLE

(Founder of the Warangesda Mission).

All profits to be devoted to the Warangesda Training College.

"Its contents are of the most absorbing interest." The Christian.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

AN ATTRACTIVE WEDDING GIFT.

Marriage and Home.

A Volume of Kindly Counsels to the Newly-Married. Beautifully bound in White and Gold, 2s. 6d.

"One of the daintiest little volumes we have seen for a long time; done up in white, crimson, and gold, most tastefully printed, and full of wise counsel and Christian teaching."—Freeman.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

BOOKS FOR ENQUIRERS AND CONVERTS.

The Way of Life.

A Book for Enquirers. By Rev. ROBERT BOYD, D D. Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

"About fifteen years ago this little book attracted my notice. I read it with interest, and felt so much profited that I re-read it several times, and then circulated hundreds of copies among the soldiers during the American war. The number that then seemed blessed through reading the book has induced me to ask Messrs. Morgan & Scott to republish hoping it, that it may be the means of good in this country, as it has been in America." D. L. Moody

All About Jesus.

Thoughts and Reflections on the Person and Work of Christ. By ALEXANDER DICKSON. This book was printed at the express desire of Mr. D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s. 6d.

"The volume sets forth Jesus very much in Scriptural language, for we have counted over 1340 passages of Holy Writ, chastely and lovingly interwoven in the discourses. Throughout, Jesus is the subject of delightful meditation, affection, and adoration." The Methodist.

Addresses to Young Men.

By Rev. DANIEL BAKER. With Preface by D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

"These discourses were designed to be of an awakening character. They were preached (in substance) in numerous revivals, and were blessed to the hopeful conversion of many precious souls, of whom some fifty or more have become ministers of the Gospel. May He who was pleased to bless these discourses when they came from the pulpit, bless them also now." AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth, 6d.

THE ENQUIRY ROOM.

Hints for Dealing with the Anxious.

By GEORGE SOLTAU.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ANNUAL SALE OF OVER HALF A MILLION.

Mc CALL'S

PAYSANDU OX TONGUES.

A DELICACY FOR BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, OR SUPPER,

TO BE HAD AT ALL GROCERS.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 12 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.

"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months, for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 766.] THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1884. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

The Men for America 5
"They know not what they do." ... 5
Workers for Jesus Wanted..... 6
Christian Work in Billingsgate 6
Notes on Scripture 7
London Waifs in Prairie Homes ... 7
For the Young 8
Open-Air Mission..... 8
Among the Hop-Pickers 9
Edinburgh Medical Missionary Society 9
Christian Women in Council 10
Good Rulers Only 11
Mission Work in Basutoland 11
Poetry—The Noonday Breeze 11
Evangelistic Work in Belfast 11
Notes and Comments 12
Polmont Christian Convention 14
Trips and Touring 14
Mr. Toye and the Orphans 14
Seamen and Soldiers in Bombay ...15
Algeria and Eastern Kabylia 15
Portsmouth Soldiers' Institute 15
Echo of Copenhagen Conference ...16
A Mission for the Savoyards 16
Some English Exports to China.....17
Poetry—The Tract 17
At Tea with the Guards 18

C. F. CARPENTER'S HEALTH RESORT, BISHOP'S TEIGNTON, SOUTH DEVON.

Extract from Testimonials.

VICARAGE,
BISHOP'S TEIGNTON,
October 24, 1879.

As Vicar of the parish in which Mr. Carpenter's Health Resort is situated, I am able from personal knowledge to bear testimony to the high respectability and Christian character of its proprietor, and to the successful and satisfactory manner in which he has conducted the establishment from its commencement to the present time.

* * * * *

It gives me, therefore, much pleasure to recommend this establishment to all who are seeking either a pleasant and healthy place of séjour or a system of careful treatment for the recovery of health.

W. R. OGLE, M.A.

VIEW FROM THE TERRACE AND GROUNDS, LOOKING SOUTH.

Beautifully situated.

Sea and Moorland Air.

Boating and Fishing.

Delightful Drives.

Extensive Private Grounds.

Lawn Tennis Courts.

Home Comforts.

No Alcohol.

A FIRST-CLASS SUITE OF BATHS UNDER MEDICAL SUPERVISION. PROSPECTUS FORWARDED ON APPLICATION.

THE

GOSPEL MALE CHORUS BOOK.

A Collection of New Part Songs, Choruses and Anthems.

Written and Arranged expressly for Male Voices.

By JAMES McGRANAHAN.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Limp, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

The Gospel Male Choir was, during the last five months of the London Mission, a special feature of the meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey There are, doubtless, many more who would wish to dedicate their voices to the service of the Master; and with the present volume (which is arranged for 1st and 2nd Tenor and 1st and 2nd Bass) in their hands, and the hearty co-operation of a few brethren like-minded, this wish can be easily gratified. Says Mr. Mc Granahan:—"Organize a quartet, a double quartet, or better still, a chorus of male voices; and prove the power for good in the harmony of male voices when consecrated to the glory and service of our divine Master."

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE

CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

A Quarto Volume of Music & Words.

By IRA D. SANKEY and J. McGRANAHAN.

Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions, when all the mists have rolled away."
Baptist Messenger

This Volume, which is largely composed of NEW SACRED SONGS, DUETS, CHORUSES, and ANTHEMS, has been used alternately with "Songs and Solos," during the great London Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. Mr. Sankey and Mr. Mc Granahan are already well known by their hymns, which are sung all the world over; and the present collection, which is specially suitable for Gospel Choirs, will doubtless add to their reputation as true Gospel musicians.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

HULL DISTRESS FUND.

List of Acknowledgments.—Captain Tupman, R.N., 10s; L. M. R. 2s. 6d.; M. B. K., 10s.; Mrs. E. C. Edmondstone, £5; Mrs. James Barnett, £5; Mrs. A. M. Gladstone £10 15s.; G. E. S., 3s 6d.; G. Bruddey, Esq., £1 10s; Mrs Collins Turner, £3; Mrs. C. J. Hadfield, £1; Matt. xxv. 35, £2 10s.; F. W. R. N., 10s.; Miss Fuller, 5s.; A Lady, 10s; Lt.-Col. Hare, 5s.; A Reader, £1; M. H., £2; A Reader, 2s. 6d; Miss Annie B Green, £2; Mrs W. R. Morris, £7 15s.; M. J., 5s.; Miss C Keating, £9 10s.; B. M. E., £1; Callender, £1; Mrs. Eliz Farrant, 5s.; Mrs. A. Gusterson, 5s; H. K., North Wales, 5s.; Mrs. Margaret Elmsley, 5s.; A Reader of The Christian, 2s 1d.; P. Gray, Esq., 10s.; Mrs. M. C. Baldwin, £2 2s.; Wm. Moss, Esq., 5s; M. W., £1 10s; Mrs. Robert Garnett, 10s; Mrs R. Lee, 5s.; Miss L. Harris, 7s. 6d.; Miss M. E. Cobb, £1; E. S. W., £1; M. G., 10s.; M. S. T. E., 5s.; N. A., Cornwall, 2s 6d.; Miss Clabon, 10s.; Mrs. Caroline E. Collins, 5s; M. A. P., 5s.; P. A. T., £1; Rev. T. S. Raine, £1; Rev. Charles R. Wood, £1 1s. Per Mrs. Sleight—Alpha (Gold eye glasses); H. Burton, Esq., £1; R. H. W., £3; Miss Letchworth, £1; Mrs. Butterworth, 10s; Miss Knight Davies, 5s.; Miss M. E. Walters, £5; Mrs. Tapley, £3; Mrs. Stanes £3 3s 8d.; For Christ's Sake, £5; E. W. F., 1s.; Miss Knight, £2 10s.; Miss Whitron and Friends, £3; Messrs. Morgan & Scott, from Readers of Christian, £4 15s.; Gibraltar, 10s. Total, £102 14s. 3d.

Captain Tupman (Hon. Treasurer),
South Grange, Ripon.

HOME FOR FEMALE ORPHANS,

Grove-road, St. John's Wood.—This Institution maintains about 70 Orphan Girls who have lost both parents They are received at the age of 6 to 11, and are retained until 16 to 17. They are boarded, clothed, and educated free of all expense. The majority on leaving enter service, and for them suitable situations are provided. They are elected in January and July, by the votes of the subscribers. In urgent cases arrangement can be made for immediate admission, on a small payment pending election. An annual subscription of half a guinea, or a donation of five guineas, constitutes a Governor, with the privilege of one vote at each election. Candidates can now be received for the January election. It is very seldom that a candidate unsuccessful at the first election does not succeed at the second. For forms of nomination and further information, apply by letter to the Honorary Secretary, at the Home. President, the Right Hon. the Earl of Aberdeen. Honorary Secretary, Ed. B. Randall.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with many thanks from F. B., £2; a Lady, 10s

The Infant Day Nursery, Schools, Classes and Meetings for Children Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women. Mutual Industrial Classes for Lads. Temperance Meetings Bible Classes. Mission to inebriate Women. Open Air and Lodging House Services. Evangelistic Meetings. Room to Room Visitation. Mothers' Meetings, &c.

Friends desirous of working for the Master, will find ample scope for every talent they possess at George Yard.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at G.P.O. High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to George Holland, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street Whitechapel, London, E.

NEWRY SAILORS' HOME.—

Would those interested in the spiritual and temporal welfare of Sailors, kindly help to support this Institution? Now in need of £60, for rent, &c. References permitted to James Barton, Esq., Dundalk.—N. Thomson, Hon Sec and Treasurer, Downshire House, Newry, Ireland.

THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL,

Paddington-green, is in urgent need of Funds There are 25 beds now occupied, and the attendance of out patients is about 100 daily. This Hospital entirely depends on voluntary assistance. All parents, whether their children are in health or sickness must surely sympathise with this good work, for the sake of Him who loved little children. Treasurer, George Hanbury, 21, Portman-square, by whom any donations will be most thankfully received.

DAILY PRAYER MEETING at

2.0, at the House of Rest, Burlington-place, Eastbourne. Close to the Parade, near the Cavendish Hotel. Christian brethren and sisters are earnestly invited.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.—The Right Hon the Lord Mayor, M.P., Treasurer; J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman; Mr. Sheriff Clarence Smith, Hon. Secretary For ninety-nine years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 200 Christian men and women. Subscriptions and letters for Convalescent Homes are urgently needed. The Banking account is considerably overdrawn. The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.—Office of the Society, 32, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. B. H. Germans, Secretary.

GEE-STREET Christian Mission

and Ragged School, Goswell-road, earnestly solicits donations to continue the good work of preaching, teaching the Gospel, temperance, and relieving deserving poor.—Bankers, Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard-street; Treasurer, Robert Baxter, Esq., 6, Victoria-street, Westminster; Hon. Secretary, Rundley, 86, Wood-street, Cheapside.

FAITH-HEALING Meetings, conducted by the Rev. John Allen, Trinity Church, Triangle, Hackney, London, E. Sundays, 3 p.m. Mondays, 7 p.m., addresses and testimonies; Tuesdays, 11.30 a.m., anointing service. Ranelagh Rooms, Ranelagh road, Paddington, Fridays at 7 p.m. Royal Oak station. Special all night prayer meeting at Trinity Church, Hackney, Thursday, October 9th, commencing at 11 p.m.

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION.

To Meet the Needs of the SICK POOR. "Preaching the Gospel and Healing."
Donations and clothing (new and old) thankfully received. Reports sent on application.
Hon Director—Dr. G. Saunders, C.B. Hon. Treasurer—Dr W. R. Bell. 47, Endell-st., St. Giles'.

STAR VILLA ORPHAN HOME.

Will every reader kindly respond to the APPEAL in The Christian of August 28, and send as the Lord may enable them towards the needed help. Bankers—London and Provincial, Chatham. Hon. Superintendent, Mrs. Willis, Star Villa Orphan Home, Rainham-road, Chatham, Kent.

MRS. PARSONS' ORPHAN HOME, WALTHAMSTOW.

We shall (D.V.) hold our usual ANNUAL SALE in aid of the Orphan Home in December next, and contributions of all kinds for this object are very earnestly solicited. Will kind friends make a special effort to help us in this way?

Cumberland House, Walthamstow, Essex.

GREAT COLEMAN'S. — Gentle-

folk of limited means needing change and rest, will find all advantages of a gentleman's country house. Drives given. For particulars apply to Mrs. Griffith, 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

ZENANA AND MEDICAL MIS-

SION, School and Home, 58, St. George's-road, S.W. This Institution is undenominational. Christian ladies are admitted to be trained for Medical Mission Work in India, China, &c. The curriculum is for two years. All who have gone up for examination have passed and obtained diploma, as well as diploma in midwifery of Obstetrical Society. The year consists of three terms. The charge is fifty guineas per annum (including board, residence, and instruction fees), payable in advance, in three equal proportions of £17 10s. Ladies of limited means invited to apply, the committee sometimes having facilities for assisting such. Hon. Sec., Dr. Griffith; Treasurer, G. J. Green, Esq., London and County Bank, Victoria-street, S.W.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies'

Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN,

College Avenue, Hackney.—The Annual Sale of Work will be held at the Home, on the 28th, 29th and 30th of October. Articles for sale will be gratefully received by Miss S Rye.

BRISTOL BIBLICAL INSTITUTE.

For Young Men desirous of being trained as Candidates for the Ministry or Town Missionaries.—Send a stamped envelope to Rev. P. Prescott, Coronation-road, Bristol.

BETHSHAN.—Faith Healing

Home 161, Islington, Liverpool. For particulars apply to Miss Gibbs.

Educational.

MORAVIAN EDUCATION.—Ful-

neck, near Leeds. Established 1750. Application to be made to Miss Shawe for the Girls' School, and to Rev. W. T. Titterington for the Boys' School

41, LEWISHAM HIGH-ROAD, S.E.

—Mrs and the Misses Willmot receive day pupils, and a few boarders. A thorough English education; usual accomplishments. Masters. Motherly care and Christian training.

D'URBAN HOUSE SCHOOL,

BLACKHEATH.—This old-established School for the sons of Gentlemen is conducted by a Lady, assisted by trained governesses and qualified masters. Highest references.—Address the Principal.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Boys,

The Woodlands, Hitchin. Principal. Isaac Sharp, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Hitchin may be reached within an hour from King's Cross Station.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, Belgraveplace. Principals Mrs. and Miss Wilkin.—High-class education for Girls. Pupils prepared for the Royal Academy (Music) and University Examinations. Healthy situation. Home comforts.—Prospectus and references on application.

ROTHESAY HOUSE, Alum Chine,

Bournemouth.—Miss Cole (certificated in London University Examinations for Women), having for some years successfully conducted a large school for girls, now receives a few Pupils in her own home Healthy position near sea. Thorough education, combined with comforts of refined Christian home. Lady boarder received.

MRS. TATE, widow of a medica man, offers a happy home to children whose parents are abroad, and who need motherly care and education; or to any attending the High School. References:—Dr. Kidd, Col. Brooke, and others.—For terms, &c. address, Leigh's Villa, Bennett-park, Blackheath, London, S.E.

ALBURY HEATH, near Guildford.

—Miss Baker receives six Young Ladies. Home comforts. Excellent education. Certificated governesses. Visiting professors. Healthy and beautiful situation. Indian children received. Highest testimonials. Pupil Teacher required, premium £20

CAMBRIDGE TRAINING for

Holy Orders at Theological College Rates.—Full use of inter-collegiate system. Fee for board, lodging, tuition, and all University and College charges, £25 a term. Theological course, Six Terms; B.A. course, Nine Terms. For particulars apply,

Principal, Ayerst's Hostel, Cambridge.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE for

Young Ladies, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon, and CLARENDON HOUSE, Topsham (for delicate girls requiring sea-air). Education of the highest order. Professors, English and foreign certificated governesses. Pupils successfully passed Edinburgh, Oxford, Trinity College, College of Preceptors. Honours, and special certificates. The Principal's aim is to secure a training that will ensure spiritual well-being; she engages as teachers ladies of decided piety only. Numerous references to parents in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and abroad. Pupils accompanied to and from London (journey of four hours).

LONDON.—First-class Education for the daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors; their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles — Delta, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,

WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE,

Principal: Dr. Cranage.

SOUTHPORT.—First-class Girls'

School. Conducted by members of the Society of Friends. Special educational advantages. Masters and Lecturers of acknowledged merit Watchful care and home comforts Situation particularly open and healthy.—Mrs. Wallis, Brighthelmston, Birkdale, Southport.

VACANCIES will occur September

29, in an old-established School, in which Young Ladies have a thorough education based upon Gospel principles, combined with the advantages of a happy home. Holidays only twice a year: Christmas and Midsummer Terms moderate. Miss Birch, Florence House, Baschurch, Salop

SOUTHDENE, Ramsgate.—Splendidly situated Home for delicate children requiring sea and country air combined with educational advantages. Under the personal supervision of experienced Christian Lady. Prospectus on application. Terms moderate.

EDUCATION.—The Misses Wilkinson receive a limited number of Boarders as well as Day-pupils. References are kindly permitted to several clergymen and parents of pupils, who are willing to testify to the evangelical teaching and loving care bestowed, as well as to the sound education imparted.—Prospectuses on application to 55, Highbury-park, N.

BELLE VUE, Ambleside.—Good

School for Girls.—Having increased accommodation, Mrs Fleming can now receive six additional Pupils. House well and healthily situated, with large rooms, garden, tennis ground. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Distinguished success in Cambridge Examinations, which are optional. Resident foreign and English governesses. Visiting masters. 50 to 60 guineas.

SOUTHSEA. Home School for Girls.—Highest references. Terms moderate. Vacancy for lady boarder or delicate girl wishing to winter in the South.—F., 2, St. Andrews-road.

HOLLAND HOUSE, Clarence-

parade, Southsea.—School for the daughters of gentlemen. Special educational advantages, with home comforts and care Indian charges received. References kindly permitted to the parents of present and former pupils. Prospectus on application to the Principal.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.

—Peculiar advantages offered to one or two young ladies wishing to study French and German, in the house of a Christian widow Lady, with one daughter, who has lately returned from France. Resident German governess. Conscientious care and every home comfort Highest references given and required.—Immediate application may be made to Rev. A. N. Mackray, M.A., The Manse, Torquay.

NO SALARY.—A Lady, middle-aged, would assist the Principal of a School in housekeeping, and a little teaching, in return for a comfortable home, and laundress. Experienced Highly recommended.

H. F., Victoria Library, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

BOARDERS WANTED, for Kingston-on-Thames Middle-Class Boys' School. Unlimited diet. Home comforts. Thorough Christian influence. Healthily situated, near two parks, and river. From 20 guineas.

William Dixon, Master.

HASTINGS.—Wellington College

for Ladies, 4, Wellington-square. Head Mistress, Miss De la Mare. Honours in the L.L.A. Examination for women. Science and other certificates. Pupils prepared for the local and higher examinations Kindergarten department for young children. Vacancies for two boarders.—Prospectus on application to the Secretary, Rev. F. Leaver.

WANTED IN A LADIES' SCHOOL

in South Devon, a Christian girl as Student Governess to help with juniors Must be musical. Her own requirements met, and home comforts guaranteed.—Address, in first instance, with references, L. E., care of Mrs. Slater, 7, Josephine-avenue, Brixton, London.

PRIVATE TUITION.—The Rev.

Henry T. J. Coggin, M.A. Cantab., and Mr. H. G. Harris, B.A. London, receive a few resident pupils. Terms, 100 guineas; under 14, 80 guineas.—St. John's House, Finchley, Middlesex.

DAILY OR RESIDENT.—An experienced Christian Governess, accustomed to good families, seeks an engagement. English, advanced arithmetic, French, Latin, music, and drawing.

Miss T., Silverdale, Werter-road, Putney.

KINDERGARTEN.—Wanted immediately, re-engagement by first-class certificated Mistress. English music, and French, if required. Excellent testimonials.—K. G. M., Penryn House, North-park, Eltham, Kent.

YOUNG LADY seeks re-engagement as Resident Governess to young children. Music to older pupils: pianoforte, singing, harmony. Certificated Trinity College theory. Moderate salary.—Miss Young, Post Office, Newington Green-road, N.

A CLERGYMAN'S WIFE warmly recommends an experienced, kind, Christian Governess. Would take entire charge and instruct children under 9, in English, music, French, and drawing.

Mrs. Heywood, Southwick Rectory, Brighton.

JUNIOR GOVERNESS required

at once. Good pianist, with a knowledge of French, preferred. State experience, age, and salary.—Mrs. Victoria Batchelor, Sunnyside School, North street, Worthing.

A YOUNG NORTH GERMAN

Lady, diplomée, good musician, wants situation as Governess or Companion in a Christian family. Fräulein Böhm, 647, Bau-str., Wesel, Germany.

GOVERNESS (daily) desires re-engagement in Christian family. Teaches English (generally), music, French, drawing, painting. Excellent testimonials.—Beta, 3 Blandford-place, Clarence-gate, Regent's park, N.W.

A GERMAN LADY (27) desires engagement in Christian family, small Boarding School; or as Companion to Lady. Fluent English and French, singing. Salary less an object than comfortable home References permitted to Dr. Ziemann, Lerne Villas, Margate.

F. N., 31, St. Mary's road, Canonbury, N.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

AS GROOM AND COACHMAN, or

Groom and Gardener. A Christian young man and abstainer. Age 26. Single; can have good character from last place.

T. Cook, Eversholt Woburn.

AS COACHMAN (single-handed preferred), by a Christian young man (26) in a quiet family. Well experienced. Left last place through family going away.

William Read, Wootton-bridge, Isle of Wight.

MISS ELLIOTT (Evangelist),

assisted by Miss Murray, is open to conduct Evangelistic Services in any Church or Mission during the winter. Highest references.

River terrace, East Greenwich, London, S.E.

A YOUNG LADY, who has had some experience in Christian work in the East End, seeks an engagement to help a Clergyman's wife or other Lady in parish work. Evangelical. Good references.—Miss Taylor, Elvaston, 1, Westcliff, Bournemouth.

COACHMAN AND GROOM (thorough) where a pair or more horses are kept.—A Christian, abstainer, is seeking a situation where confidence is required. Married, age 35. Good character.

A. B., 12, High-street, Worcester.

A CHRISTIAN WORKER requires

evening engagements. Free after 4 p.m. Secretarial, Editorial, Choral, Accountancy, or organising work preferred. References given.

R. C., 16 Sydenham-park, S.E.

WILL ANY CHRISTIAN help one who desires to make restitution to obtain his living. Has occupied the positions of Cashier and Secretary, but has been insane.

W. R., 49, Warwick-road, Earl's Court, S.W.

AS FOOTMAN under a Butler, or Indoor Servant in a small, quiet family. Age 24 Christian. An abstainer.—D. H., care of Henry Clark, Stationer, 16, Bromell's-road, Clapham.

COFFEE TAVERN, British Workman, and Village Nurse.—A Lady can highly recommend a respectable couple Wife, a first-class certificated Hospital Nurse in all branches. Superior.—W., 73, London-street, Reading.

A GENTLEMAN, member of the Society of Friends, desires to meet with responsible appointment as Manager, or Secretary to a bonâ fide concern, where first-class references as to character would be valued.
M., 11 Ampton-road, Birmingham.

REQUIRED by a Young Person, a re-engagement as Sub-Matron in a Reformatory or Home for Girls.
S. E. A., 14, Fitzroy-street, London, W.

AN ELDERLY LADY, whose home is broken up through death, desires some sphere of usefulness. Is an experienced housekeeper and manager. Small salary if comfortable home. —Beta, 4, Linden-villas, Benhill-street, Sutton, Surrey.

COMPANION or Housekeeper.—A Lady of education, who is competent, good reader, musical, abstainer, desires Christian home. Would combine Christian work.—R., 7, Kingsford-terrace Seven Sisters'-road, N.

A LADY WISHES to recommend a middle aged person as Attendant on an old Lady; or Housekeeper to a Gentleman; or in any place of trust.—Pilly, Chigwell, Essex

LADY-HELP or Companion to invalid.—A Lady, aged 38, desires situation in Christian family. Many years' experience in housekeeping. Highest references. Moderate salary.—Enquirer, 87, Milton-street, E.C.

TWO SISTERS are anxious to meet with a situation, together, in a quiet Christian family, as good Plain Cook and Housemaid or House and Parlour-maid. Both understand their duties. Can have good characters. Sunday privileges much valued.—M. G., Mrs. Norton, Luton House, High street, Hounslow.

AS NURSE to one or two little girls, wanted by a young person, age 31, to go to India. Has lived in South India 5½ years. E. B., 43, Park-crescent, Park-road, Clapham, S.W.

AS GOOD COOK in small Christian family in the country. Age 30.
J. H., 6, Broad-street, Canterbury.

WANTED, in or near Maidenhead, at once, a situation as Housemaid in a quiet Christian family. Two years six months' character. Age 19.
Mate, West Town, near Maidenhead, Berks.

WANTED, in a quiet Christian family, a situation as Useful Maid to one Lady. Churchwoman. Abstainer. Age 30. Three years' character.—S. E., Mr Rowley, Bookseller, Gloucester-road, South Kensington.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

CURATE WANTED, Southwell Diocese.—An uncompromising Evangelical. A converted man of a missionary and unsectarian spirit. Eph. vi. 24. Stipend £150 for presbyter.
F., Keswick, Cumberland.

WANTED, a good Solo Singer and several Christian young men, who will dedicate their talents and evenings to the Lord at Missions. Hon. Sec., Children's Evangelistic Mission, 253, Southampton-street, S.E.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS wanted, for the St James's Gospel Mission.—Apply to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. W. E. Cooper, 17, Prince's-square, S.E.

MAN AND WIFE wanted, without family, of good business habits, who have had experience in the management of a Coffee Palace, the wife to be a good cook. Applicants must be Christian people, who can give good references as to character and previous experience.—Applications to be addressed, in the first instance, to Mr. J. Wilton Parker, 72, Mark-lane, London, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READER.—Wanted immediately, in a pleasant seaport town in south-west of England, a Scripture Reader, of Evangelical views, who will devote his whole energies to the work. Salary £70.—Apply, stating age, experience, and testimonials, to Rev. J. H Scott, Rectory, Weymouth.

SECOND SCRIPTURE READER for town parish, Yorkshire. Evangelical, zealous visitor. Working class population. Able to superintend schools, Bible classes, cottage meetings, &c. Stipend £70.—Box M., "Rock" Office, Southampton street, Strand, W.C.

WANTED, as Odd Man, an abstainer, to milk, and help in the stable garden, and house. Wages 18s., with cottage and garden.
G., C of rd House, Godalming

WANTED, FOR NEEDLEWORK and to answer the door, a very respectable person, daily or for the afternoon, near London. Travelling expenses allowed or lodging provided near. A. B G, care of May's Advertising Offices, 159, Piccadilly, London, W.

LAUNDRESS required, for a Girls' Home, near London. Christian and abstainer. State salary required, and other particulars, with reference to Secretary, 85, Queen street, Cheapside, London, E.C.

CHEERFUL, EFFICIENT Christian Woman wanted, as Matron in a small Training Home for Friendless Girls. She must understand teaching laundry work, and have the power of controlling unruly girls.
Miss Hopkins, 51, North Marine-road, Scarboro'.

WANTED, for a family in the neighbourhood of Sydenham, a thorough good PLAIN COOK. A good personal character indispensable. Wages from £16 to £18, all found. Early dinner and comfortable home. Wanted, also, good NURSE for three little boys under ten. She must be a good needlewoman, and be willing to walk out with a Lady, who is sometimes an invalid. Wages £18 to £20, all found. Apply personally, on Monday, the 6th October, between 11 and 4, at 17, Charlotte-street, Bedford-square, W.C.

CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted at the Lock Hospital as Head Nurse. Also an Assistant. All found except uniform. Salary £28 and £18. Not positively essential they should be trained. Age from 25 to 35
Matron, Lock Hospital, Harrow-road, London.

AN UNDER NURSE wanted, for 23rd October. Must be a good needlewoman and mender, and able to wash flannel well. Age 18. Wages £10 to £12, and all found except beer.
Mrs. Little, 18, Thurlow-road, Hampstead.

THOROUGHLY COMPETENT NURSE wanted.—Can any Lady recommend a Christian woman, about 30 years, experienced, reliable, quite strong, healthy, good needlewoman? Under-nurse kept.
Mrs. Oswald, New-place House, Southampton.

GOOD LAUNDRY MATRON wanted, for Home for Discharged Prisoners and others Must have good references.—Mrs. R., Somerset House, Alexandra-park, Manchester.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a thoroughly trustworthy Nurse or Mother's Help, for three children? Nursery-maid kept. A quiet country home. A Christian much desired.
Mrs. W. Ridley, Hartford End, Chelmsford.

MOTHER'S HELP wanted at once. One who would value Christian home. Fond of young children. Active and obliging.—Apply, letter or personally, 35, Bassett-road, North Kensington, W.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, for Oct. 1. £20, all found. Boots and knives; no washing. Five in family. Four servants kept. —Apply by letter to Mrs. Robarts, Rosebrae, Woodford.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted (from Oct. 20), who thoroughly understands her business. Good personal character. Church of England. State wages Also, HOUSEMAID. Thorough parlour-maid kept. From country preferred.—Apply by letter, or otherwise, Miss Mortimer, 19, Warrior-gardens, St. Leonards-on-Sea THOROUGHLY GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, used to dairy. Must be dependable and trustworthy. Also a HOUSEMAID. Apply, stating age, wages, and length of character, to Mrs. Morris Ashby, Northlands, Virginia Water, Staines.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, in small, quiet family in the country, to assist in housework. Good character indispensable. Total abstainer. Age 35. Wages £20.
Mrs. Hall, Foxcott Manor, Buckingham.

RESPECTABLE trustworthy person wanted, about 40, to do Plain Cooking and Housework. Private family of two Comfortable home. Personal character necessary.
Essington, Beckenham-road, Beckenham, Kent.

A RESPECTABLE, trustworthy Person wanted, as General Servant in the country. Two in family. No washing Must be well recommended.—Mrs. Cassin, The Firs, Tilford, Farnham, Surrey.

COOK (good Plain) wanted. Must have a good personal character. An abstainer preferred. Apply, stating all particulars, Mrs. Farmer, Thames Bank House, Mortlake, S.W.

A PARLOUR-MAID wanted, for 28th October. Wages £18 to £20, and all found except beer.
Mrs. Little, 18, Thurlow-road, Hampstead.

HOUSE-PARLOUR-MAID wanted in a family at Forest-hill. Must have an unexceptionable character, and be a total abstainer. Wages £16 a year, and 1s a week for laundry, all found.—Mrs. Salter, Roslyn, Westwood-park, Forest-hill, S.E.

HOUSE-PARLOUR MAID wanted, for family of five; also UNDER HOUSEMAID. Both with good personal characters and abstainers. Christians valued.—M. A., Elm Dene, Eltham.

A HOUSEMAID wanted, for 20th October Must be a good needlewoman. Will be required to clean gentlemen's boots. All found except beer Wages £16.
Mrs Little, 18, Thurlow-road, Hampstead.

HOUSEMAID wanted, over 21 (general servant not objected to). Two other servants kept. No washing. Wages £16. All found but beer.—Kenmure, 7, Netherhall-terrace, Hampstead, N.W.

CAN ANY LADY recommend young Christian girl, about 16, who can wash well? Other household work taught her. Particulars given by letter. — Mrs. Nicholls, 7, Empton-road, Didsbury, near Manchester.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY, General Servant, or domesticated Mother's Help, in Christian family. Must be fond of children. Most comfortable home, light place. Christian valued. — State wages, F., 4d, Shirlock-road, Gospel Oak

WANTED NEAR LONDON, a Footman under a butler. No boy kept. Good plate cleaner. A Christian servant valued.—Apply any morning, or write to Mrs. Stuart, 8, York-terrace, Regent's park, N.W.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted in October. Reliable person from 25 to 30. Very good reference Quiet place Early dinners Wages £18.—Mrs. Angel, 6, Gatestone-park, Central-hill, Upper Norwood.

WANTED, by Oct. 17, in a Christian family, a respectable, willing Girl to train as House Parlourmaid. Not under 16
Mrs. T., 18, Grange Park-gardens, Ealing, W.

GENERAL SERVANT, with good character wanted. Three in family. Good plain cooking required. Washing put out. Liberal wages given.—Apply, after 6 p m., Mrs. Faram, 216 Goldhawk-road, Shepherds-bush, W.

AGENTS (male and female) required throughout England, Scotland, and Ireland to sell our pure Teas on commission varying from 7d. per lb. Our terms are the most liberal in the trade, enabling Agents to earn £2 weekly. Payment only required after sale. Special terms for cash. Free delivery. Write for samples (gratis) to the United Tea Growers' Association 114, Union court, E.C.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

This First class Private Hotel is highly recommended by readers of The Christian from all parts of the world. The Bishop of Algoma writes: "The comfort, perfect order, and attendance at Percy's Hotel, render it all that can be desired as a central place of sojourn in this great city." Beds from 1s. 6d. Tea, 1s. 3d. Tariff on application.

LONDON.
WEST CENTRAL HOTEL,
97, 99, 101, 103, Southampton-row, Russell-sq. Highly recommended by Rev. John Cairns, D.D. Rev. Forbes E. Winslow, M.A., Rev. Canon Hopkins, B.D. Frederick Sherlock Esq., Mrs. E. S. Ellis, and numerous readers of The Christian. Hot and cold baths Plain Breakfast or Tea 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d to 2s. 6d. Printed Tariff on application to Frederic Smith

VISITORS TO LONDON will find a Christian home at Taverner's Temperance Hotel, 35 & 36, Hunter-street, Judd-street, Euston-road. Five minutes from G. N., Mid., and N. W Railways. Patronised by ministers and Christians of all denominations.

LONDON. — Mrs. Greatley's Christian Boarding House is highly recommended for comfort, economy and being convenient to all parts. References kindly permitted to the Rev. Dr. Thain Davidson. Terms from 2s. 6d. bed and breakfast.
17, Tyndale place, Upper-street, Islington.

HUTCHINSON'S PRIVATE HOTEL, 24, Guilford street, Russell-square, the most central position for all parts of London. Extensive patronised and strongly recommended. Home comforts Terms moderate.

LONDON. — Insull's Temperance Hotel, 20, 21, Burton-crescent, Tavistock-square, W.C.—Five minutes' walk or 1s. cab fare from Euston, St Pancras, King's Cross Railways; easily reached from other stations. Patronised by readers of The Christian.

BRIGHTON.—Sussex House Boarding Establishment, pleasantly situated in the Old Steine, having a sea view, and the beautiful Steine Gardens in front. Near to Pavilion, Aquarium, and piers. Liberal table, with every home comfort.—Mr. & Mrs Box, 58, Old Steine.

BRIGHTON, 116, Lansdowne-place.—One or two Ladies received for Board and Residence, at a Preparatory Boys' School. References permitted to the Rev. J. G. Gregory, Incumbent of Emmanuel Church
Apply to the Misses Ashby, at above address.

BRIGHTON. — Board and Residence. Convenient central locality. Few minutes from West Pier. Two vacancies in comfortable house. Near good ministry. Terms moderate. Small room 25s.—P., 6, Clarence-square.

FOLKESTONE.—Pembroke House, —Sea-side Home for young Christian men. Prospectus upon receipt of stamp Y.M.C.A.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA Boarding Establishment. The home of a Minister's daughter. Established 11 years. Mansion replete with every comfort. Fine sea view.—Miss Newbury, Cavendish House, Warrior-square

SOUTHSEA. — Solent House Boarding Establishment. Sunny, cheerful, and most comfortable winter residence. Due south, facing sea and Isle of Wight. Late dinner. Terms 25s. to 35s.—Misses Baker, South Parade.

LEAMINGTON.—To be Sold or Let, furnished, a well built detached Villa (on grave.), pleasantly and conveniently situated, containing three commodious sitting rooms, four best and four secondary bed rooms Good domestic offices on ground floor; excellent cellarage, garden, conservatory.—For further particulars, address, Miss Taylor, Holmesdale, Leamington

WANTED, TO LET, for six months, a comfortable well-furnished House in the south of England. A well-accredited evangelist who would work a neighbouring Mission Hall, would be accepted as tenant at half rent.—viz., 3 guineas per week. Prepaid monthly.—For particulars, address, Alpha, 121, Shirley-road, Southampton.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE, Ventnor.—Convenient situation near sea, church, and town. Comfortable winter home. Moderate terms. Good piano. Late dinner. Cheerful society.—Ella Rayson House.

INVALID AND CONVALESCENT Gentlewomen's Home. Terms moderate, including medical attendance and nursing. A few vacancies for the winter.—Apply to the Lady Superintendent, 67, Dyke-road, Brighton.

SEA-SIDE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT. First-class, quiet, and comfortable, close to baths, reading-room, post-office, and gardens. Liberal table. Full sea view.—Proprietress, Hertford House, Marina, St. Leonards on-Sea.

COMFORTABLE HOME, South coast, offered to one or two ladies, by a young single lady who receives a few daily pupils. Pleasant locality, near churches and station. Inclusive terms, one guinea weekly.
C. B., 54, Fleet-street, London.

ORPHAN FAMILY desire to Let Sitting and Bed-room, on moderate terms, to Lady and daughter, or two sisters. Bracing air (sheltered), near sea, good bathing. Excellent ministry. Also market. References exchanged. —Q. W., care of — Cushtry, Esq., 40, St. Brannock's-terrace, Ilfracombe, N. Devon.

EAST CLIFF, Bournemouth.—Very comfortable Apartments to be Let, south aspect A clergyman and his wife living in the house can highly recommend them.
Mr. Morris, Beverley, Bournemouth.

A QUIET, REFINED HOME, with a Gentleman's family, living at the West-end, is offered to the sons of Gentlemen, while pursuing their studies in London.—S. G., Plummer's Library, 84, Norfolk-terrace, Bayswater, W.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE.—A Lady wishes to meet with another Lady to share Apartments with her. Companionship desired. Place not fixed on. References exchanged.
E. L., 22, High street, Lowestoft.

TO CHRISTIAN WORKERS wanting Mission Work for the winter. A Gentleman will Let his furnished country House at a low rent, in return for assistance in Mission Work. South of London. References required. Replies to the above were by mistake returned to the post-office; address now to G. H., care of T. Eyres, 3, Cauthusian-street, near Aldersgate-street Station

FARMHOUSE APARTMENTS to Let, Furnished, eleven miles from city. Frequent trains. Christians preferred. Terms moderate. Good cooking, with every home comfort. Beautiful scenery and most healthy situation.
J. Rendle, Chaselands, Enfield, N.

A LADY HAVING a larger house than she requires, wishes to meet with one or two ladies to occupy her spare rooms (Furnished). Terms moderate.
Theodore, Thompson's, Stationer, Burgess-hill.

APARTMENTS FURNISHED.—Bed and sitting-room for Gentleman; or part of house for married couple. Terms moderate. Highly recommended. Convenient for town.—Miss Wildbeer, May Villa, Oakleigh-road, Whetstone, N.

A QUIET CHRISTIAN HOME offered, to lady or gentleman, invalid or otherwise, in clergyman's family. No objection to mental case.—A. B. C., care of Miss Webb, 39, Western-road, St. Leonards on-Sea

A GENTLEMAN would find a comfortable Home in a Clergyman's family Must be a decided Christian. Opportunities for work for God in the parish, and help in Theology if needed Terms moderate.
G., care of Mr. Marten, Sudbury, Suffolk.

A HOME is offered to a Lady of quiet habits. Moderate terms. Object, Christian companionship; or a child not strong enough for school.—Miss Bere, Sidmouth, Devon.

A CHRISTIAN FAMILY (abstainers) desire one or two young Gentlemen to Board with them. To whom a refined home, with every comfort, would be appreciated. Separate sitting-room if desired.—S. T., Amhurst Library, Amhurst road Stoke Newington, N.

LODGINGS WANTED, with or without Board, with a quiet family, within easy reach of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Smithfield.
Address, stating terms, Student, Deal.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE wanted, for a young Gentleman engaged in the City all day, in a quiet Christian family, with easy access to the City. Terms must be moderate. —State full particulars to B. S., Shubden House, Cannon-place, Brighton.

SOUTH DEVON.—To Let, furnished, with attendance, for the winter, sitting-room, two bed-rooms, facing south Suitable for ladies, or lady and gentleman. Every attention and convenience
F. S., Post office, Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth.

DIPSOMANIA. — A successfully established private Home at the seaside for six, suffering from excess of morphia, chloral, absinthe, stimulants, or Nervous Debility, Christian care and influence. Judicious supervision and home comforts.
Medicus, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

Continued on page 23.

JUST PUBLISHED. Price 1d.; 7s. 6d. per 100.

THE GOSPEL:

AS VARIOUSLY VIEWED

By New Testament Writers.

By G. F. TRENCH.

Reprinted from "The Christian."

"The Gospel is preached variously. It is sung by angels; it is lived by the Lord; it is exhibited in miracles of healing and resurrection; it is plainly published by the burning words of Peter and Paul, and of the others who had felt its life-giving joy in themselves. Sometimes it is a tale of love, of mercy, and of life; sometimes a command; sometimes a warning; sometimes an entreaty."—Extract from Introduction.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12; Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

MR. MOODY'S MOTTO.

On Card, 7¼ by 4¾ inches, with Ribbon for hanging up. One Shilling the dozen, post free. The same words on a small Floral Card, Sixpence per dozen, post free.

John G. Wheeler, 88, Mildmay Park, London, N.

In Neat Packet. Price Sixpence.

SMALL BOOKS

BY

ANNA SHIPTON.

AUTHOR OF

"The Sure Mercies of David;" "Tell Jesus;" "The Promise and the Promiser;" &c.

Contents.

"Love did it;" or, Caught at Last.
Naomi's Night Watch; or, What can a Child do?
Widow Gray and the Little Song Bird.
The New Sixpence; or, "God is Good, God is Love."
"Just Like Me."
God is as Good as His Word.
A Brief Memorial of a Ragged School Boy.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

NOW READY.

A YEAR'S MINISTRY

(FIRST SERIES)

By Rev. ALEXANDER MACLAREN, D.D.

360 pages, Crown 8vo., beautifully printed and bound in cloth. Price 5s.

Republished from the "CHRISTIAN COMMONWEALTH," in which Journal Dr. Maclaren's current Sermons appear weekly.

Published at Office of "Christian Commonwealth," 73, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth, 6d.

THE ENQUIRY ROOM.

Hints for Dealing with the Anxious.

By GEORGE SOLTAU.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THIRD THOUSAND.

By GEORGIANA M. TAYLOR,

Author of the Hymn,

"Oh to be nothing, nothing!
Only to lie at His feet
A broken and emptied vessel,
For the Master's use made meet."

LAYS OF LOWLY SERVICE.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. Handsomely bound in Morocco, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.

"These lays are the outcome of an earnest, practical piety, and a warm, loving faith, and, employed in religious service, they will, we can believe, kindle and quicken devotions."—Edinburgh Daily Review.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PART I. NOW READY, PRICE 6d., of

MORGAN & SCOTT'S ILLUSTRATED EDITION OF

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE

(COMPLETE)

TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

ILLUSTRATED WITH

THE FOLLOWING EXQUISITE STEEL PLATE ENGRAVINGS:

SAMARIA.	HEBRON.
ELISHA'S FOUNTAIN, JERICHO.	JERUSALEM FROM THE SOUTH.
REPHIDIM.	SHECHEM—SYCHAR.
DAMASCUS.	TIBERIAS.
MOUNT TABOR.	BETHANY.
TYRE.	ATHENS.

AND SIX BEAUTIFULLY COLOURED MAPS.

"I have never seen any engravings equal to these for the purposes of Biblical Illustration. True to existing nature, exact in outline, beautiful in execution, they leave nothing to be desired. Knowing the country so well, I am pleased to have my recollections refreshed by the minuteness of detail, in which engravings got up for illustration so frequently fall short."—Rev. H. B. TRISTRAM, LL.D., Canon of Durham, Author of "The Land of Israel," "Bible Places," &c., &c.

"I have examined with care the views for Biblical Illustration. . . . The engravings are very beautiful. In clearness, accuracy, and general effect, they surpass, I think, any I have seen. The places represented are all familiar to me; and I have been particularly struck by the fidelity with which your artist has reproduced Frith's admirable photographs. The views of Hebron, Shechem, Tabor, Tiberias, and Jerusalem, could scarcely be surpassed. . . . It would mark a new era in Biblical Illustration if the work were extended to all the scenes of Bible incidents; and if, instead of fancy pictures, which only misrepresent the East, engravings from photographs were introduced."—Rev. J. L. PORTER, D.D., Professor of Biblical Criticism, Author of "The Giant Cities of Bashan," and "Syria's Holy Places," &c., &c.

TO BE COMPLETED IN 18 MONTHLY PARTS, PRICE SIXPENCE EACH.

May also be had Complete in One Volume. Library Edition, Handsomely Bound, 10s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

IN THE PRESS, AND WILL BE READY SHORTLY.

Price One Penny. 7s. 6d. per 100.

Twelve copies and upwards sent post free.

The Christian Sheet Almanac for 1885.

Attractively printed in Red and Black, on a large sheet,

20 in. by 30 in.

Containing carefully selected Scripture Texts for every day in the year, Postal Information, Changes of the Moon, &c.

AND

EIGHT EXCELLENT ILLUSTRATIONS.

"The Christian" Sheet Almanac is admirably suited for the walls of the Cottage or the Mission Hall. Quantities of not less than 500 copies, with special matter, may be had for localization, terms for which will be forwarded on application to the Publishers.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

AN ATTRACTIVE WEDDING GIFT.

Marriage and Home.

A Volume of Kindly Counsels to the Newly-Married.

Beautifully bound in White and Gold, 2s. 6d.

"One of the daintiest little volumes we have seen for a long time; done up in white, crimson, and gold, most tastefully printed, and full of wise counsel and Christian teaching."—Freeman.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

In Neat White Enamelled Cover. Gilt edges. Sewn with silk cord.

Price Sixpence. Post free.

AN APPROPRIATE WEDDING GIFT.

BE LOVERS STILL.

Friendly Hints to a Bride and Bridegroom.

By Rev. G. PETTITT.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Christian.

THE MEN FOR AMERICA.

[The following is from an experienced American pastor residing in the West, in answer to some questions of a young English evangelist; it may help to show who are the men best fitted to go as preachers to this land of the future]

LET me confess to a liking for the good brethren from England, because of their fondness for Biblical and expository preaching. I believe a man as a minister should be a competent and interesting teacher of the Bible—so full as to pour out wisdom from its pages, so enthusiastic as to attract the listless, so much in advance of the people that they will gladly sit at his feet, and so much imbued with the spirit of the Word that they will become, under his teaching, spiritual Christians. I confess, however, that some who have come to me of late, while excellent men in their way, are not the competent men I could wish. They need more training, and more ability to continue to interest intelligent people. Their range seems narrow. I speak frankly, but wish I could speak face to face.

Many things about our field I shall not commend; many things I do not boast of. I speak of facts, as they are what you wish to know. We might wish them otherwise.

First, there is very little opportunity for open-air preaching. It might be useful; of that I will not speak. It is done more or less by the Y.M.C.A. I spoke myself last Sunday for them; but it is not received with marked favour, and cannot be counted on as a means of evangelisation to be extensively used. There are few or none who would do anything for a man to keep him at work in that way. If a man has other means of livelihood he might upon occasion do something at it.

Second, there is comparatively little call for independent evangelism. Now and then a pastor, well known and with an established reputation, seems called out to move from place to place holding meetings—helping churches in a series of meetings—but I would not advise any man to come from England thinking to rely upon that from the first. The best method is to seek a pastorate, gain success, win confidence in that, and from that as a centre help in his immediate neighbourhood, first in an evangelistic way as the call might come, then to go to the work of evangelising, as and when the way might open, if it should. The great need of our churches is competent pastors; men who can widely, wisely, with a competent learning in Divine things, preach the Gospel to intelligent congregations, and have steady work in their own churches; while, of course, upon occasions, preaching in their own neighbourhood or elsewhere, as evangelists, as Dr. Pentecost does.

[After speaking of the exaggerated statement which has gained currency in England of the number of places west of the Mississippi without preachers, the writer proceeds:]—

They already have several farmer preachers or mining preachers, or broken-down Methodist preachers, or men who think they ought to have a hearing, but cannot get it; men who have little or no training, and little appreciation of what the Gospel ministry has a right to demand of a man who enters it. We have men enough in America who are would-be preachers—men who, in some sort, have the title attached to their names. Every pulpit that can pay a respectable salary will have applicants in great abundance. The demand is for men who can do the work. To bring lay preachers, men of slim education and of no more than ordinary ability to America, is like carrying coals to Newcastle. But there is a real famine—always has been, always is likely to be here (I suppose it is so in England)—of men who are efficient, well-trained workers, who have pluck, who are builders, who can make their way, who can preach to wide-awake committees.

It must be remembered that we have no such masses of population yet as, in England, demand the Evangelistic Mission. We are getting them; some larger cities have them, and we must be prepared to meet them. But, somehow—account for it as we may—the problem of reaching the masses here is a different one from what it is in your country. We can do but little for them with purely Mission halls. We can do little for them by lay work. We must have the best of ability for it—trained, consecrated ability. The preachers must be of first-class ability to succeed; and just here, and here alone, is there a real demand. The multitude in the city or in the country, in the East, and much more in the West—most of all in the Far West — will not listen to commonplace preaching. One man lately from England began with thirty, and in a few weeks had but half a dozen. It may not have been his fault. I am sure he gave them good Gospel, but he did not know how. It was not because he came from England; he may have success in another place. This is the worst possible place for inefficient men to come to. They are sure to be disappointed.

I ought to say that here, as everywhere, there is a temptation to worldliness even in the ministry — I mean to tone down, to preach a Gospel that is no real Gospel at all. The minister will be likely to think he must do this in order to please; but it is the greatest of mistakes. In the long run, nothing wins like the Word. But let a man not preach that in a humdrum, commonplace, stupid way.

I ought also to say that in a new country much more must be done in the way of organisation and building than when things are more settled, and one of the indispensable things about a minister must be that he must take things as he finds them, and build. He must not expect to find others ready to go ahead; he must lead. He must be a "builder," sometimes with his own hands, but better in getting others to work.

Some come to us from the Eastern States and from England, and seem perfectly helpless. They lie down on you; they can do nothing for themselves; they can bring nothing to pass. The fact is, such men would fail in any business they undertook. They would bankrupt any firm that might employ them. If they become ministers, they are a burden to all who have anything to do with them. If a man is not a leader, he cannot expect to succeed in the ministry. . . . For a quiet, timid, shrinking, gentle, mild-mannered man, the old country will be immensely more attractive and promising. The same may be said of the East as compared with the West.

"THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO."

WHEN the Saviour of mankind was dying on the Cross, He said, in reference to his murderers, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Christians are often called upon to use the same prayer concerning those who seem to be crucifying the Son of God afresh. Only in such a spirit can they, as true Christians, meet those who appear to be doing all they can to promote the interests of Satan's kingdom.

An incident has occurred during the present licensing session which ought to stir up Christians in all parts of the kingdom to pray and work, work and pray, with greatly increased diligence in the great cause of purity and Gospel Temperance. It matters little where the event happened, but it affects Christian Temperance men and women everywhere. In a large and fashionable watering-place, where sin of various kinds daily flaunts itself when the shadows of darkness approach, there is a most objectionable music-hall, frequented mainly by the young of both sexes, and forming a fearful snare for youths and maidens of the working and lower middle classes.

For eighteen years the magistrates have refused the spirit license so much desired by the proprietor. Now, in the face of that blaze of light which has been brought to bear upon the moral, physical, social, and religious aspects of the drink question, the license has been granted, and for a season (may it be a very short season!) the interests of morality are seriously retarded.

The city of Sodom would have been saved had there been found in her ten righteous men. This modern city would have been saved from this disgrace, and from some other evils, had there been found seven magistrates who knew what they were doing. Alas! that there were only found six who, setting aside all personal considerations, were anxious only for the good of the community, especially having on their hearts the well-being of the rising generation. Such men are a great need of our time—of all time—men who are above influences which are ever seeking to draw those in power to promote evil for the sake of great trade interests. All honour to those six men who were willing to bear obloquy and reproach in striving to maintain the right. May they stay themselves upon God in this hour of their defeat, knowing that the Judge of all the earth will yet arise, for the crying of the innumerable hearts and homes broken and wrecked from the effects of that demoniacal spirit which we call alcohol.

AN ON-LOOKER.

WORKERS FOR JESUS WANTED.—4.

By Rev. E. BALLEY.

BE IN EARNEST.

HE who has called you into his Church has appointed a work for you to do, and He requires you to do it earnestly, with all your might. He says, "Go and work for Me. Go and seek the wandering and the outcast. Go and feed the hungry, clothe the naked, and instruct the ignorant in all useful knowledge, but especially in the knowledge of Me."

Multitudes are living without religion. Satan is triumphing in his success; the world is captivating its thousands; men are dying; sinners are perishing; and hell is being peopled with lost souls. Go and seek to draw them off from the unfruitful works of darkness. Go and tell them, "Time is short, and eternity is advancing." Tell them of their danger; of the love of God to them as a Father; of Jesus as a Saviour, who is able and willing to save them. Tell them to repent of their sins, to put away the evil of their doings, to fly to the outstretched arms of mercy, to believe in Jesus, and they shall be saved.

Tell them till your own heart melts into tenderness, and they feel that you mean what you say. How much need is there in all Christian hearts of a longing, yearning, earnest desire to do good. How few feel the burden of the Lord, and travail in birth for souls as they should. The holiest and the best among men are but half awake. If all Christians were but truly in earnest, how many sinners might be won to the Saviour who are now walking in darkness.

But with death in view, eternity at hand, and sinners dying, we find it hard to be in earnest; we need the soul-constraining love of Jesus to move us. Without this we are lukewarm, cold, and inconstant in all our efforts to do good. No consideration of the shortness of time and the near approach of eternity will ever move us to action, unless the love of Jesus be shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost given unto us. This we must have if we would earnestly do the work of Him who gave Himself for us. "It is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing." Listen to the voice of Jesus, which, as a bell in the high tower of his Church, is ever ringing through the earth, "Behold, I come quickly, and My reward is with Me to give to every man according as his work shall be."

Live near to God, and ever bear in mind that there is a moral influence going out from the life of every man which operates upon the minds of others either for good or evil, the effects of which will remain after he is dead. A look, a word, the tone of the voice, an action, may leave an impression upon the mind which, like sound, will vibrate and run on through eternity, and each vibration be a fresh memorial of the original that gave the impulse. The mother influences the mind of her child, and that influence will by him be made to operate on the minds of others yet unborn. The master influences the mind of his apprentice; the friend influences the mind of his companion. Everyone is influencing the mind of someone else.

Such a view of life makes it a serious thing to live, and shows how needful it is that every Christian should live near to God, cultivate the garden of his own soul, keep his own vineyard well, that he may be able to influence other minds for good. Jesus said to his disciples: "Ye are the light of the world;" "Ye are the salt of the earth." The highest and noblest end of man is to be conformed to Jesus in thought, in word, and in deed, and, like Him, to be ever going about doing good.

The exhibition of exalted piety in the professors of religion has a power which nothing can withstand. It is truth embodied. It is the power of the Gospel burning in the heart, beaming in the eye, bursting from the lips, and preaching in the life. It speaks to all, and shows the power of the constraining love of Jesus in tones of tenderness, benevolence, and zeal. Did all Christians live near to God, in habitual intercourse with Him, how would they feel for souls, pray for their salvation, and speak to them out of the fulness of a loving heart! God would then use them for his glory. His blessing would follow their efforts and holy example, quickening into spiritual life the seeds sown by them, and causing the fragrant myrtle and the fir-tree to bless the place where thorns, thistles, and briers once grew. Then men would see the reality of religion, and be persuaded that believers have a source of joy that the world knows not of.

> "So let our lips and lives express
> The holy Gospel we profess,
> Then shall we best proclaim abroad
> The honours of our Saviour God."

Watch for opportunities; if you do this you will not watch in vain, Every day you may make some life brighter by your loving ministrations. Every day you may speak some comforting word, some cheering portion of Scripture, which shall help lighten the burden of some weary heart. Every day you may seek to win some soul to Christ, and pray for the coming of his kingdom. None is so desolate but there are some within the reach of his influence. None is so feeble but he may use that most powerful of all weapons—prayer. None so obscure but he may plead with the King of kings for the multitudes who are rushing headlong to ruin.

Watch for opportunities of usefulness as those who watch for the morning. Watch with consistency of character, that men may see that you mean what you say; that you are in earnest in what you do; and that they may be led to Jesus by your loving and holy example.

A Christian, an eminently holy man, was very much owned by God in the conversion of souls by improving time and in casual conversation on good things. He was asked how it was that his efforts were so much blessed. He replied, "I am always upon the look-out for opportunities to speak a word for my Master, and then seek faithfully to improve them when they offer themselves." He who desires to do good will never be long without an opportunity to do it. Every opportunity is a fresh call from God to renewed effort, and should be received with thankfulness, embraced with eagerness, and improved with diligence, for there is no time to be lost, and "the King's business requireth haste." No man can be so vile as to lose all claim to Christian effort; for if a man be neglected and left without rebuke or instruction, how can it be expected that he will repent and believe?

Who can tell how much may be done by a single word? If the heart be filled with the love of God, what is there we shall not be willing to do to lead those who are straying amidst the allurements of the world, vainly striving to quench their thirst at broken cisterns that can hold no water, to find that peace in Jesus which He alone can give? To every one there comes some time, some opportunity, of doing good to some erring neighbour or friend. Out of the fulness of a loving heart we should bear our faithful testimony to them.

This is our privilege as well as our duty. As Christians we have been called to a high station, that others through our mercy may find mercy. "As ye go, preach." "Let him that heareth say, Come." As Andrew told Peter, Philip told Nathanael, and the woman of Samaria told her neighbours, where they had found the Messiah, so should we, who have found Jesus, go and bear good tidings to the lost. For if we hold our peace mischief may befall us.

To postpone the duty from the expectation of some more favourable opportunity of doing it, involves the awful possibility of not doing it at all. The plea may be, "Another time will do as well as the present;" but you may be removed from those whom you intended to benefit; or Death, who never waits for anyone when he receives the commission, may step in between you and the object of your solicitude, and the opportunity of doing him good may be gone for ever. Then how painful the reflection, that you once had the occasion of usefulness, but you let it go. Delay not till to-morrow what you may do to-day. A good work may now be in your power; make haste and do it, lest the time be gone, and others by your example be discouraged, and hindered from what they intended to do.

Tunbridge Wells.

CHRISTIAN WORK IN BILLINGSGATE.

FOR the past ten years Mr. Vicary has laboured as City Missionary in the well-known district of Billingsgate. He was lately presented by some friends with a practical expression of the esteem in which, for his work's sake, he is held. At the presentation meeting the rise and progress of the work was described by the treasurer, Mr. Newman. For some time the effort found a working centre in a room in his house, but ultimately the present building, an old house opposite the market, was secured, where the work is now being carried on. Testimony was borne to the benefit already brought about by the labours of Mr. Vicary, who is evidently regarded by the committee as being specially fitted for the post he occupies, and by whose influence "the district is no longer the pandemonium it used to be."

Mr. Vicary, in returning thanks, reviewed the history of his ten years' labours. When he first began he was greatly discouraged by the ribaldry, the infidelity, and the Judaism that prevailed. But he went on, trusting in God. They set to reforming the drunkards, and got 2000 persons to sign the pledge. They also instituted coffee-stalls. Being anxious to do something more, free breakfasts were established. He had known as many as fifty men come into the room, saying they were starving because they could get no work. He hoped ere long they would see in place of the present building a British Workmen's Coffee Tavern, where they could establish for the destitute a thorough good "House of Refuge." Fully 80 per cent. of those who came to this city breakfast had no place at night to cover their heads. They were also surrounded by all classes of men, including clerks, mechanics, seamen, labourers, and sailors fresh from their ships. One of the latter recently came to him, having been robbed of £80.

NORWICH.—A most praiseworthy endeavour has been made here to provide a place of pleasant and profitable evening resort for the young working women of the town. Good premises were secured nine months ago in Middle-street, and the attendance is already almost beyond the accommodation. Some outside help is needed in order to defray the original cost of the institution, and any contributions towards this will be gladly received by the Secretary, Rev. Robert Hobson, Old Meeting House, Norwich.

NOTES ON SCRIPTURE.—13.

THE ENEMY AND THE AVENGER.

Psalms viii. 2, xliv. 16.

IN the extract which we made last week from The Speaker's Commentary respecting 2 Sam. xxiv. 1, it was argued that not Satan but a human adversary moved David to number Israel. It may indeed have been a man, but behind the human instrument there was surely the great adversary. When we learn from prophecy to what an extent evil will be limited on earth, during the thousand years when Satan is shut up in the bottomless pit, we cannot fail to attribute to his direct and baleful agency the chief part of all the overt evil which has been wrought during the ages in which he has been going to and fro in the earth, and walking up and down in it. "Every man is tempted," says the Apostle James, "when he is drawn away of his own lust and enticed." But from the beginning it has been the evil employment of Satan to incite and influence the lusts of the flesh and the desires of the mind. The god of this world, who is a liar and a murderer from the beginning, ever seeks to ruin souls by the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, which are not of the Father, but are of the world.

In Psalm xliv. 15, 16, the Psalmist says:—

"My confusion is continually before me, and the shame of my face hath covered me, for the voice of him that reproacheth and blaspheneth; by reason of the enemy and avenger."

But in Psalm viii. David, in the Spirit, had already said:—

"Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast Thou ordained strength because of Thine enemies, that Thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger."

Here, as elsewhere, after mention of the adversaries, one special enemy is singled out. It is scarcely possible to avoid applying the text to the arch-enemy, who lay in the background instigating those other foes. The same Divine power which gave man dominion over the beasts, will enable the lowly and meek to triumph over Satan. When he used the serpent as the organ by which his malignity was to counterwork God's goodness, he sealed his own doom. He adopted a symbol of defeat, a badge of eternal degradation. The "seed of the woman" would crush his head. See "Dr. Kay on the Psalms."

In Matt. xi. 25, when Jesus thanks his Father that He has revealed these things unto babes (referring to Ps. viii.), He immediately adds, "All things are delivered unto Me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father save the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal Him." And then He speaks of Himself as the Meek and Lowly in heart, in contrast to the proud in heart—the devil—who fell by pride, and who had said, in the temptation, that all the kingdoms and glory of the world were delivered to him.

When the seventy returned with joy, saying, "Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through Thy name," He replied, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." And then He rejoiced in the Spirit, and said, again quoting the eighth Psalm, "I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes."

In Matt. xxi. 16, when He was entering Jerusalem to die, and through death to destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil, the children cried, "Hosanna to the son of David!" and in reply to the Pharisees, who were sore displeased, Jesus again quoted David's Psalm, "Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings Thou hast perfected praise." Had He continued the quotation He would have added, "that Thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger."

It is evident that behind all human adversaries God sees his and our adversary, the devil, who goeth about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour.

LONDON WAIFS IN PRAIRIE HOMES.

By Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN.

ON landing at Montreal with my party of fifty boys, the agent of the Dominion Government at once took us under his care, gave the boys "a square meal," and provided us with railway passes to Toronto, as well as provisions for the way. A princely friend was raised up to welcome us at Toronto in the person of Mr. Wm. Gooderham, known throughout Canada as a leading man in city life, whose praise is in all the churches, not only for his munificence but for his personal loyalty to Christ and earnestness in soul-winning. Through his instrumentality the Boys' Home in Toronto had just been enlarged, and it so happened there were beds for all our boys. The Committee fell in with Mr. Gooderham's wishes, and for four days we were all his guests.

Leaving seven younger boys to be placed in Ontario, I pushed on with the remaining forty-three by the new Lake route to Manitoba—more than 1000 miles further west. The sail (about 500 miles) through Lakes Huron and Superior—the latter so large that all England could be put into it and yet leave room for men-of-war to sail round it—was very lovely. At Port Arthur (a busy harbour of recent growth) we entered again upon our railway journey in one of the new emigrant sleeping cars, introduced by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Only those who have travelled day and night, swaying to and fro and bumping up and down, in an emigrant carriage for four or five days, can realise the misery and weariness of such a journey. These new cars are, however, like Pullman cars, except that the emigrants carry their own beds, rugs, &c.

On reaching Winnepeg we were kindly cared for by the emigration officials. In the evening I took the boys out in the open air in Main-street, and we soon had several hundreds gathered around us. The wistfulness with which the people listened, the murmured sympathy for "the boys from the old country," the emotion with which, so far away, they sang at their last meeting together, the pathos of the Gospel told out by mere lads with simple, pleading naturalness, touched chords in many hearts.

Fifteen years ago there was only a fort on the prairie where Winnipeg now stands, with municipal, ecclesiastical, and collegiate buildings creditable to any city in the world, 45,000 inhabitants, electric light, street railways, fire brigade, &c. &c.

Leaving six lads in Winnipeg, I started with the rest for stations further along the C.P.R., and in a few days had placed them all out. I wished to visit them all again later on after they had been two or three weeks in their places, so I filled up the interval by a trip to the Rocky Mountains, 1200 miles further west, and little explorations in the North-west Territory. Compared with Manitoba, very much of the land was poor, but there are large sections which promise ere long to be flourishing settlements.

I saw some hundreds of Indians (Cree, Sioux, &c.), and their half-nakedness, indolence, ignorance, and squalor, filled me with pity. The settlers seem very kind and charitable to them, and speak of them as honest, inoffensive folks. The squaws are often employed as a makeshift where it is impossible to get a domestic servant.

In a country where the Lord's Day is so well observed it was a shock to find about 5000 men employed in the Rocky Mountains in the construction works of the C.P.R., labouring day by day without any rest, the payment of an extra dollar in wages being the only distinction between Sundays and the other days of the week. No church, chapel, clergyman, or missionary—a large canvas hospital, with men in it dying from accidents in blasting rocks, fevers, &c.—and no one to speak a word of Gospel consolation to their troubled hearts. "Two nuns from British Columbia collecting money from the men at pay-time is all the religion I have seen here for two years," was the grim reply of a foreman to whom I spoke on this matter.

It may interest some to know that in the North-West territory strong drink is strictly prohibited. It cannot be bought or sold or brought into the country or kept in private houses. In cases of illness a permit for a certain quantity must be got from the governor, and when that is used another permit must be obtained for a further supply. The respectable portion of the community heartily approve of this.

Anyone emigrating adult Londoners with their families to the Far West, incurs very grave responsibilities. In my thirteen years' experience of London poor I have not known many who had the energy, resource, adaptability, and thrift necessary for pioneer agriculture. At least the most scrupulous discernment must be exercised, and anything like wholesale exportation of city denizens for prairie-farming must entail cruel hardships upon the poor victims.

On the other hand, a youth, healthy and enterprising, cannot take his muscle and intelligence to a better market. Without any capital but his sinews and industry he can before long be the owner of his own homestead, and his prosperity, with ordinary prudence, will be in exact proportion to his industry and economy. He cannot complain that the avenues to success are blocked, or that he has no prospects for lack of influence. There is an open field, and sure reward for his toil.

If even a middle-class youth can dissociate his mind from paltry prejudices against manual labour, content himself with rude plenty in the matter of food, and forego for a while the society and comforts of an English home, I am quite sure he will be far better off in ten years' time than if he started in the world as clerk in a bank or a merchant's office.

Let me put English readers on their guard against all agencies which undertake for a premium to place a youth with a farmer as pupil. There is no such thing as what we understand by this term in the North-west. The premium is so much money wasted. Any fit youth can find a respectable farmer by inquiring from any minister of the Gospel, who will employ him at once, with good wages, and he will fare exactly the same and learn just as much as a "pupil."

After visiting all the boys in their new homes and finding that they were all delighted with their new mode of life, and were cordially praised by masters, ministers, &c., I started with a thankful heart on my way home, to prepare (if the Lord will) a large party for next spring. It will be quite impossible to supply a tithe of the demand for boys, with good homes and high wages waiting for them the day they arrive but I hope many hearts will be moved to strengthen our hands in this work of rescuing those ready to perish, and planting "the solitary in families."

While I was absent, my friend Mr. Austin spared as much time as he could from his business engagements, and watched over all the interests of the work so devotedly that my return has been a time of joy and comfort, except the sad news of the passing away so suddenly of our Secretary.

I am arranging to visit a few towns for public meetings, drawing-room gatherings, lectures to Y.M.C. and other Associations, this autumn, to give account of our work amongst the waifs and strays of this great city, and will be pleased to hear from any who can arrange to give me such opportunities of widening our circle of friends.

95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

For the Young.

BIBLE ACROSTIC.

The initials form the name of a man who was a noted governor of Judah.

(1) The name of a wilderness to which a young man fled from a royal persecutor.

(2) A man who prophesied in the camp of Israel in the time of Moses.

(3) An animal sacrificed for a life spared.

(4) A man slain in order to forward the wicked desires of another.

(5) A son beloved by an old father.

(6) A precious stone spoken of in Revelation.

(7) A race of tall men who gave great trouble to Israel.

(8) A pool of water of great note.

(9) A town wherein dwelt a spiritist.

(10) A dreadful malady sent to a man for telling a lie to his master. J. H. G.

Answers to Last Acrostic.—In addition to those acknowledged last week we have received answers from the following: Helen B. (Biarritz), Florence Higgins (Gloucester), James P. Burkitt (Killybegs), Gwenie, Winnie, and Eva (Budleigh Salterton), Winnifred E. White (Highweek), Jeannie Ewing (Chathill), Benjamin Hodge (Edinburgh), Helen E. Cooper (London), Mary Bird (Battersea), E. A. Lucas-Sherrington, Florence Newell (Greenock), Jessy E. Steer (Slapton), Isabel Stewart (Brighton), Tom Perkins (Ross), Edith Campbell (Milngavie), J. H. Gordon (Florence).

THE BABY'S DAY.

By Mrs. SUSAN T. PERRY.

The day is done for the baby,
And in her cradle-bed
Now rests on the soft white pillow
Her tired golden head;
Not one in the whole home-circle
Can half so weary be:
For who of the busy household
Has worked so hard as she?

We look upon the baby's world
As very small indeed—
To its many cares and trials
Give only little heed;
But to the wee young dweller
Its boundaries are wide—
Mountains and oceans lie between
This and the other side.

And baby with uncertain step
Tries all the heights to gain,
Sails off in unsafe craft to cross
The deep and treach'rous main;
And so defeats, repeated oft,
Fill up the baby's day,
While well-laid plans and schemes for her
Gang very oft agley.

The pretty bubbles from her hand
Soar up and burst in air;
With tearful eyes she sees them go
Into the great nowhere;
And knowing not why this should be,
She lifts her baby face
For mother's kiss, and trustingly
Rests in her loved embrace.

What wonder that at set of sun
The wee fringed curtains fall,
And baby dear is glad to say
Her sweet "good night" to all:
For who could guess how many trades
Those little hands have plied—
How many miles those tiny feet
Have wandered far and wide!

Had we such faith as baby has,
Unburdened, unoppressed,
We might like tired children go
At evening time to rest,
Resigning with a perfect trust
Into the Father's hand
The things which in our daily lives
We cannot understand.

—New York Evangelist.

HELP LAID ON ONE MIGHTY.

(Psalm lxxxix. 19.)

NOTES OF AN ADDRESS

By Lady CONSTANCE KENNEDY.

Teaching once in a Sunday-school, I heard a teacher say to a little child—"Do good, and you will go to heaven." This is how many go wrong. It is not by doing good, or by doing the best we can, that we will get to heaven. In meeting lately with Dr. Pentecost, I heard him say that the idea of doing the best we can is open to two objections. First, our best is not up to God's requirements; and, second, what we call our best is far from being our best. Jesus said—"Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, that leadeth unto life." We must enter in by this strait gate. We must be converted. There must be a turning right round. Jesus says—"I am the door, by Me if any man enter in he shall be saved." His compassions fail not; but if we haven't turned from our sins we do not know his love. We may know some who are happy in his love, but what of that if we know not Him.

I have been asked to speak of myself. I don't care to do so. But I may say that it was Jesus brought me to Himself. I used to try hard to be good; I tried to do right; I wanted to be holy and to do good: but all my trying was a failure. I read over and over again the word "Repent," until I got weary of it. I would say—What is the good of trying it? Though I am sorry for sin I shall only do it over again.

One day while I was in Wales, I heard a man preaching to children on the seashore. While speaking, he took out a pencil, and holding it up said, "How much do you think I gave for that?" One boy said, "Ten shillings." "No," said the preacher, "my father gave it to me." Then he spoke about God's free gift. One night when I was leaving, and going away from the children's meeting, I heard the speaker say, "It isn't your repentance that will save you, but you must see that it was your sins that nailed Jesus to the tree." In a moment the Lord showed me that Christ had died for me. I always knew that He had died for the sins of the world, but I never saw it before that He had died for my sins. I could then say, "He loved me and gave Himself for me." There were some things in the world that I didn't give up then, which I have given up since, but on that night I accepted Jesus, and knew that my sins were taken away.—The Reaper.

A CHILD KNOWN BY HIS DOINGS.

By Dr. CHARLES S. ROBINSON.

Nobody can tell anything about a boy by just seeing what sort of a face he has, or by examining his coat or his shoes or his hatband. Not long since, I was walking up one of the avenues of the city where I live, and I noticed twenty children coming home from school, girls and boys together, stopping on the corner to whip with sticks a poor, dying horse, the owners of which had drawn him off from the cart-rack and laid him down by the kerb-stone. He was panting in his last agony, and, indeed, it was a very painful thing to see. But these school-children seemed to think it great fun to switch the dumb beast, and see how he twitched in his limbs. But some of the boys, and girls too, hastened by, and looked quite pitiful, and, I am sure, were very sorry.

Just then there came up two lads, dressed with more than usually fine garments, appearing to be from homes of plenty and ease. I thought to myself, "There! those gentlemanly fellows will cry out to the others to stop that." But when they saw exactly what they were at, they, too, picked up sticks, whittled a point on each with their knives, so as to make them sharp; then they went up close to the wretched animal, and kept sticking them into his open eyes! He was almost insensible, but that roused him up enough to make him writhe again, and they laughed at the success of their cruelty, and tried it once more.

There, within thirty feet of these rascals, sat half a dozen men, taking no more notice of this outrageous sport than if it had been harmless, and even beautiful. I need not say how I put myself forward to scatter the scamps as soon as I could. What I want to make clear is that I knew them, and nobody would say that it was by their dress or their looks; they were known by their "doings," as Solomon declared they ought to be. Thoughtful men and women are becoming acquainted with a great many boys in this way. The reason why roughs and rowdies are brutal is found in the fact that they were brutal when they were boys, and their parents sat still and let them grow up to be bullies and bruisers.

Everybody has a perfect right to judge each boy and girl by what he understands that boy or girl is in the habit of doing. So if it happens to be of advantage to young people to be well thought of, they must be careful how they behave. Conduct is of the greatest importance; God judges the heart, but we have to be satisfied with what we see in the outward life.

A good child will be known by truth and amiability, courtesy, and obedience, keeping the Sabbath, helping the poor, doing duty faithfully, and respecting others. If anyone asks for a rule, I can give one in a very few words. I once put the question to a Bible-class: "What is it to live like a Christian?" I passed it around, and got many replies. Finally, one small, gentle maiden, scarcely twelve years old, lifted up her hand to say she had an answer. I beckoned her to speak, and she said, with indescribable naïvete and pathos: "It must be to behave just as Jesus Christ would if He were a little girl and lived at our house!"—Sunday-school Times.

OPEN-AIR MISSIONS.

OPEN-AIR preaching must be in a flourishing condition in North London, judging by the large attendance at the annual meeting of the Mildmay and North London Auxiliary, held in the Conference Hall on September 23. Over 350 assembled for tea, and this number was considerably increased at the public meeting, at which a cheering report was read by Mr. Charles Young, the secretary. An average attendance at a Sunday morning Bible-class of sixty young men is a promising sign for the future preachers of this locality. There had been more opposition on the one hand from infidels, &c., and more encouragement on the other.

Mr. James E. Mathieson, who presided, drew some parallels between Old Testament characters and workers in these times. The workmen amid the dust and din of the quarries were as truly builders of the Temple as were those who placed the stones in the structure. So the open-air preacher was as truly helping on the work of God as was the regular pastor. Nehemiah and his helpers fought with one hand and worked with the other. So the open-air preacher must defend the truth as well as state it.

During the evening addresses were delivered by Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Mr. John E. Jack, Mr. Henry Hutchinson, Mr. P. S. Badenoch, and the Rev. D. B. Hankin, all of whom had a word in season relating to the work. Mr. James B. Pain, who has acted as secretary to the North London Auxiliary for nearly five years, was presented with Scott's Commentary by the Chairman on behalf of the Committee.

AMONG THE HOP-PICKERS.

WORCESTERSHIRE.

FOR a third year it has been the privilege of the Village Mission, under the direction of Mr. T. S. Heley, to visit the hop-fields of Worcester and Hereford. As on previous occasions, the party started from Wing, Leighton Buzzard, working the villages en route through Bucks, Oxon, and Gloucester, and after a stay of a week among the pickers, returning vid Warwickshire to the Leighton headquarters. In this way nearly a hundred villages were evangelised, and a visit paid to between sixty and seventy hop-yards, where, with very few exceptions, we were heartily welcomed, many of the poor people recognising their former visitors with glad good will.

Perhaps the most interesting way of conveying an idea of this work will be to sketch a few word pictures of the most striking scenes.

(1) Saturday, Sept. 6.—Rain falling heavily; roads and hop-yards rich in good strong mud (the soil in which hops grow best is excellent in its heavy qualities when duly moistened); two missionaries with dripping waterproofs and hats, crossing the fields to a company of pickers, who, under ancient and crooked umbrellas, continue at their work, picking their eight bushels to gain a well-earned shilling. If the country folk did not think their visitors in earnest they must have been very prejudiced, considering the circumstances.

(2) A barn to which sundry of the younger members had been sent to dry themselves before huge wood fires. The appearance of a strange gentleman was the signal to gather round, perhaps a little too closely, eager to get a small picture-book provided for such juveniles. A little story soon brought order, and all united in learning the text, "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners," one knowing gipsy boy repeating it over and over between his grinning teeth, as if determined never to forget it.

(3) Sunday, 11 o'clock.—An open hovel: shawls, &c., hanging across one end drying; three or four fires on the bare earth, with pots scientifically hung above. A "Punch and Judy" show at the back, revealing the usual business of the sojourners. Such was the kitchen. The cooks were numerous; but did not wear snow-white aprons, nor understand the professional French art. The viands cooking consisted of potatoes, turnips, &c., and, of course, bacon. A huge apple pudding was building in one corner of the establishment, while a pot of apples were boiling in their skins over one of the fires. Notwithstanding these domestic preparations we were welcome, and a hymn and exhortation were well received.

(4) A large farmyard. The hop-pickers in a group, evidently discussing some important subject: "We'll start away at six o'clock to-morrow, and work no more for such pay." The whole gang were evidently "on strike." Without saying a word, we started a hymn just beside them. They turned, then gathered round, apparently forgot their troubles, and listened to the story of Him who, though rich, yet for our sakes became poor. A short prayer followed, and I heard not a word about their grievances.

(5) An old granary, up a number of stone steps dark, dismal, and dirty; three sides littered down with straw. Here were old and young, male and female. It was tea-time when we visited this scene; but some were asleep, and were unceremoniously awakened by the more lively members. We started

"My Jesus, I love Thee, I know Thou art mine," to the tune in Sankey's book. "Please, sir, we don't know it to that tune." "Well, then, strike up your tune." Their tune proved to be that of—

"To the work, to the work," &c., with the chorus slightly altered:

"Toiling on! toiling on!
Let us watch and pray,
And never run away,
But labour till the Master comes."

The hymn seemed to be a favourite one, as they knew the words, and sang it right well.

(6) A fire brightly blazing; a ring composed of what appears to be an entire family sitting round; darkness everywhere beyond that weird circle; one man, apparently the master of the ceremonies, ever and anon stirring the embers, as he leads in a clear voice the hymn:—

"Pull for the shore, sailor."

We joined the circle; but the song stayed not until the last verse was reached. Twelve months before we had seen this same party at the same spot, sitting beside a similar fire.

Such are a few pictures of a work full of interest, and we believe full of blessing. "Come and see us again before we go" was the cry of many hearts; but we had to leave them with only one visit, and in many cases had to leave whole districts untouched. It has been suggested that more might be done another year if the party working could obtain accommodation and help from local farmers and private individuals who are interested in this work. As it is, when a town is made the centre, much time is wasted going out and coming in day by day over the same ground. Are there not some of the Lord's children who could find a bed for us in or near the villages where the picking is most done? If so, will they kindly communicate with Mr. T. S. Heley, Wing, Leighton Buzzard.

WILLIAM LUFF.

KENT.

It has been my privilege to labour for the last three weeks among the op-pickers in Kent. Rev. J. J. Kendon, of Bethany House, Goudhurst, by whom I was invited, has for twenty-five years taken an interest in the temporal and spiritual welfare of the pickers who frequent his neighbourhood. This year, having obtained the help of two missionaries from the London City Mission, and several evangelists from other parts, a very blessed work was done at Goudhurst and Yalding.

After spending a week at Goudhurst, Mr. Goozee, of the London City Mission, and I, went to Yalding, where we found a large field for labour, there being not less than 10,000 men, women, and children employed. Here we went forth daily into the hop-gardens well supplied with small books, Gospel portions, tracts, and other suitable reading. A very few refused to accept what was offered. We met with some who had been converted at Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Mission in London. Some had accepted salvation in the mission halls of some of the city missionaries. One evening, while holding a meeting at one of the camps, I found many of them were familiar with Mr. Sankey's hymns. I asked some of them where they had heard them, and they said at George Hatton's Mission. I found some in this group who are trusting in Jesus. One woman said, "You ought to hear some of the children here sing." I said we should be delighted to hear them. A little girl was asked to sing alone, and with a sweet voice sang the hymn,

"I heard the voice of Jesus say,
Come unto Me and rest."

Our camp meetings on Sunday were very interesting. In each camp we found from 300 to 400 men, women, and children.

Every evening open-air meetings were held in the following villages: Morden, Goudhurst, Horsmonden, Staplehurst, Kilndow, and Lamberhurst. Many of the villagers are going about as sheep having no shepherd; they look forward to hop-picking time with much pleasure, as they say it is a time when they get a lift towards heaven.—Yours faithfully, JOHN KIPLING.

Hazelrigge-road, Clapham, S.W.

EDINBURGH MEDICAL MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

IN the last quarterly paper of this society, the general progress of the work is recorded in Nazareth, Smyrna, Kashmir, Madagascar, and China. Dr. Main, writing from Hangchow, says: "We have all sorts and conditions of men seeking relief; the lame, the halt, the blind, the withered, those who have suffered many things of many physicians, spent all they had and are nothing better, but rather worse, the young and old, the learned and illiterate, high and low, rich and poor, meet together in one common waiting-room. As they assemble they are confronted by some one who is able to make known to them the way of salvation through Jesus Christ. In the consulting room, while prescribing for their bodies, we forget not to tell them of the great Physician of souls." Patients coming from all parts of the country and of the city are thus reached; tracts are given them, the holy Scriptures are sold to them, while death through sin and life through Christ is made known to them without money and without price.

It seems also that much care is needed in prescribing and dispensing, on account of the mistaken notions they entertain as to the action of medicines. "I recently had a case," says Dr. Main, "where a patient of mine took the first bottleful of medicine according to instructions, and in four days returned to get it renewed; on reaching home he quietly emptied the bottle at one draught, and had to send a messenger to me in great distress."

There is also the case of an opium smoker's conversion recorded. He had long felt that Christianity and the opium vice were utterly incompatible. Repairing to the hospital he was cured of the vice to which he had been addicted from the age of nineteen, and accepted with his heart the salvation of God. The value set upon the Mission by the natives is seen in the distance from which they will come, one man having walked fifty miles each way.

A separate and deeply interesting report has been issued relative to the work at Kashmir. It is well worth reading on account of the information thus gained as to the persecution and suffering endured by many of the natives when they embrace Christianity. "Itineration," says Dr. Neve, "has been a very interesting feature of this year's work. Preaching and the healing art have, hand in hand, visited many of the small towns in the district. In the Wizier Garden at Islamabad, under the Chenar groves at Bijbehara and Pampoor, by the broad placid river at Sopir, in the visitor's bungalow at Baramulla, the busy portal of the Happy Valley, in the stately pleasure-gardens at Vernag and Atchibal, by the sacred tank at Bawun, below the great mosque at Eishmakam, among the walnut trees and orchards of sequestered mountain villages, have the message of Divine love, and the ministry of living care been brought to the sick and to the ignorant. The rock has been our pulpit, the over-arching boughs our groined roof, the shaded lawn our consulting-room and church, the turf our operating table, and heathen pilgrim houses our hospital wards."

An instance of gratitude is related. A little boy had been attacked by a bear and left for dead. For several days he hovered between life and death, so terrible were his injuries. He was, however, brought to the Medical Mission in the district, and after due care and treatment recovered. As the result the parents of the child were completely overcome with gratitude, became eager listeners to the Gospel message, and soon after, at a thanksgiving service held in the Mission church, were to be seen in the foreground of the assembly praising God for having restored their child to health.

PENNY DINNERS FOR POOR CHILDREN.—The Committee of the Ham Yard Soup Kitchen and Hospice intend providing "penny dinners for poor school children" during the coming winter.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for the ensuing week:—Oct. 5, Acts xiv. 1—18; Oct. 6, Acts xiv. 19—28; Oct. 7, Acts xvi 1—13; Oct. 8, Acts xvi. 14—24; Oct. 9, Acts xvi. 25—40; Oct. 10, Acts xvii. 1—15; Oct. 11, Acts xvii. 16—54.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN IN COUNCIL.

PERTH CONFERENCE.

REPORTS OF WORK.

AT the tea-meeting on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Barbour, of Bonskeid, presided, and read several requests for prayer for work abroad, making special reference to the cholera and to the war between France and China. She gave Rev. iii. 7, 8, as a word of encouragement. Some years ago the great need was workers in the foreign fields. Now we have the workers, but we require the means to send them. Christ can open the hearts of those who have money to give us what we need.

Mrs. Small, of the Free Church Mission at Poona, appealed to the women at home to take a more personal interest in the work in India, and gave one or two incidents of conversion.

Miss Jourdan spoke on behalf of Miss Whately's work in Egypt, and appealed for £500 to enlarge the schools. Miss Whately has access to every house; the people welcome her, saying, "God bless thee, bless thy hands, and bless thy feet." More than 2000 patients have passed through the dispensary during seven months.

Mrs. McCormick, from Brighton, said a few words to those who are disheartened because they have no special Christian work. After speaking of former effort among shop women in connection with the Y.W.C.A., she concluded with Judge Payne's lines—

"Do what you can, being what you are,
Shine like a glowworm, if you cannot like a star;
Work like a pulley, if you cannot like a crane;
Be a wheel-greaser, if you cannot drive a train."

Mrs. Oatts, from Glasgow, mentioned that 5000 had joined a Total Abstinence Society in Geneva during the past six years. 1500 of these were reclaimed drunkards. She also spoke of the work of the Y.M.C.A. on the Continent. The Association at Berlin is only 18 months old, but has already 1400 members.

Miss Sturrock, from Cape Colony, said when she began to work out there twenty years ago, the parents had to be coaxed and even paid for sending their children to school, and the girls had to be scrubbed and clothed when they came. Now the parents pay for the lesson-books and a little for the teaching of their children, and instead of having to receive the pupils thankfully whenever they chose to come, the difficulty is to induce them to go when it is time for them to leave school. In the day-school there is a prayer-meeting once a week, taken by the girls themselves; all are allowed to attend, there is no need to compel any. If a girl has not conducted herself well, the others do not allow her to take part. On Sundays the girls go out two and two to give tracts and persuade the people to come to church. One got hold of a red-painted woman from the interior, dressed her in her own clothes, and took her to church. The girls also have a sewing-meeting once a week, their work is sold, and the proceeds—four or five pounds a year—are sent home for the expenses of the Society.

At the tea meeting on Wednesday, Miss West, from Constantinople, spoke of the good work done at the Strangers' Rest at Smyrna, and mentioned that the ladies who superintend it are now going to take charge also of the Rest at Constantinople. This will leave her free to help the native Christians to open coffee-rooms in different parts of Turkey. A Christian lodging-house for young men coming from the country to Constantinople is much needed, and would require £200 to start it. Medical Mission ladies are also required to reach the Moslem women. There are openings for six in Constantinople alone.

Miss Heriot Maitland gave a little account of her work among young women at Corstorphine, near Edinburgh.

Miss Mackenzie, from Edinburgh, read a letter from Miss De Broen, Paris, appealing for helpers. The work, especially in the Medical Mission, is increasing rapidly.

Miss Mudie, from Montrose, confirmed what Miss Mackenzie had said of Miss De Broen's work, and gave a short account of her own work with Miss Geldard in the South of France. Their plan has been to choose one village as a centre, and visit all the villages within walking distance. They are well received, and invited to hold meetings among the women.

INTEMPERANCE.

Miss Thompson read a paper on "Intemperance," dealing with the question, How to gain the children. It is not enough to enrol them in Bands of Hope. They must understand intelligently why they are abstainers. Children might be instructed in the Bible principles of total abstinence at home; when possible at school, but the time for that has not yet come; at Band of Hope meetings, though these only reach those who are already abstainers; and in our Sunday-schools, which is sometimes the only way.

Mrs. Oatts said: We talk lightly about intemperance, because we are so accustomed to it. What induced me to take the pledge was getting my eyes opened to the state of things among the poor. At the Sabbath-morning free breakfasts in Glasgow I was brought face to face with old women with bare feet and uncombed hair, and mothers with wizened babies in their arms, giving their last morsel for a glass of whiskey. The question was not, Is it wrong to touch it? but, How could I touch it? To use a Scotch expression, a "sounner" [disgust] rose in our minds against drink. If you have not seen this, is it not still a fact, and can you not feel there is some excuse for those who speak strongly?

There is a wonderful advance in popular feeling on the subject. When Mr. Moody started his Mizpah Band, Christians saw that drunkards could be reformed. If you go to the Christian Institute in Glasgow any Saturday afternoon, you will find 300 men practising hymns for the meetings on Sunday. They sing and give testimony, and are treated with such respect it is almost forgotten that their name used to be a reproach. But what about the women? It has been said it is almost impossible to reclaim a drunken woman. This remark was once made before a good old woman in Glasgow, Margaret McLauchlan. She had been rescued many years before in Belfast, through Mrs. McCosh. She sent for my father (Dr. Andrew Bonar) and said, "I am so sorry you think a woman can't stand, because I have been kept all these long years, and I hope I won't go back now." Let us try and get the women when they are only moderate drinkers, for they do not become drunkards in one day. And do ask medical men not to recommend strong drink. A woman came to see me one day, to tell me her sad story. Her mother had been a Christian woman, who had brought up her family well. Fifteen years ago she was thought to be dying, and the doctor urged her to take some brandy. She refused for some time, being an abstainer, but he pressed it on her for the sake of her family, and at last she consented. Since then she has become a drunkard, and nothing can stop her. A year ago she stopped for ten months, but began again. She was sewing for a lady, who, seeing she was not well, gave her a glass of wine. She was not strong enough to resist. The poor daughter said to me, "It used to drive me to Christ, but now it just seems to harden me." Surely we ought all to do something, if it is nothing more than abstaining ourselves as an example.

WORK AMONG YOUNG WOMEN.

On Wednesday morning there was a breakfast for the secretaries and referees of the Scotch Branch of the Y.W.C.A. and Temperance Union, to which all were invited. Mrs. Malcolm, of Burnfoot, presided, and after a few words on power (1 Thess. i. 5; Luke xxiv. 49; Acts i. 8, iv. 24—33), she read a message from Mrs. Gordon, of Parkhill, of warm greeting, and sending Ruth iii 18 (Boaz, a type of Christ), with John vi. 6, to the members of the Y.W.C.A. The thought for associated workers is the need of each having this individual dealing with Jesus Himself.

Miss Murray, Gartshore, said that in Scotland ten new branches and referees had been added this year. Mrs. Cupples gave some account of the work of the Servants' Registry in Edinburgh, and spoke of the need of a Servants' Home there similar to that in Glasgow.

Mrs. Van Buren gave some account of her work among the women employed in the herring fisheries. Many are very ignorant, but are willing, as a rule, to be taught. There are opportunities of speaking to them as they are assembled waiting for the boats to come in. Women of education and refinement should take up this work. They would have much influence in visiting and speaking to the women.

Mrs. Oatts mentioned that a Home for mill-girls had been opened two years ago in the east end of Glasgow, and was now very successful. A Bible reading is held every week at the request of the girls themselves.

Miss Kinnaird, Rossie Priory, told of work among young women in Perthshire, and also in London, in connection with Mr. Moody's visit.

Mrs. Bain, from Pitcaple, and Mrs. Gibson, from Lochgoilhead, spoke strongly against worldliness and intemperance.

EDUCATION.

Mrs. Stuart Gray, of Kinfauns, presided over the meeting in connection with the "Christian Women's Education Union" on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Bannerman, of Perth, read the report of the Scotch branch of the Union.

Miss Petrie spoke of the two ideas—education wholly secular and education wholly religious. The first has never been attempted; the second has never been fully carried out. Moses "was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians." Paul "sat at the feet of Gamaliel." Luther and Wesley were both scholars. The question now is—Shall the Church stand aloof from the intellectual advance of the day, or shall she guide it? Higher education among women has made great progress since the days when Defoe suggested a college for ladies; still many people think it is a useless appendage, and unfits them for their duties as wives and mothers. But many women never marry, and unless some of these invent occupations for themselves, they have very little place in the world. They are looked upon as failures, and consider themselves as such. No woman ever knows that she may not have to earn her own bread, and how helpless she will be without proper education. The study of such subjects as physiology (the laws of health), psychology (the laws of mind), and political economy will be found most useful to wives and mothers. There is an idea that study spoils a woman for domestic duties, but this is not really the case. She will probably be found to do them more thoroughly than others. Higher education brings to our minds the conviction of our own ignorance; it teaches method, order, and organisation; it makes domestic duties easier, and it is a great help in religious work. Much good work might be much better done. Many jars and bickerings, for instance, might be avoided if our intellects were trained to understand the due proportion of things. There is a maxim among business men, the reverse of which often holds good among women: "Call on a man of business at his place of business in business hours; do your business, and go about your business." Almost every woman at some time of her life has the training of young minds given to her. How much influence for good she loses if she is not thoroughly educated herself. Miss Petrie read the rules of the Students' Branch of the C.W.E.U. (which may be obtained from her at Hanover Lodge, Kensington-park, London, W.), and concludes with a few extracts from grateful letters received from the students.

After a few words from Mrs. Shairp, of St. Andrew's, Miss Jourdan, and Miss West, the meeting was closed with prayer.

WORLD-WIDE PRAYER UNION.—In an Occasional Paper, Mr. Melville Pym, Rector of Cherry Burton, Hull, gives details of the operations of this Union for the last year and a-half. The object of the Union is prayer for holiness, the Second Advent, and the success of all evangelistic effort.

GOOD RULERS ONLY.

(From the New York "Independent.")

WE now believe, considering all the important interests involved, that both James G. Blaine and Grover Cleveland should at once withdraw, or be withdrawn, from the Presidential canvass. It is quite certain that they are not really wanted, either of them, by the respectable and conscientious voters of this country. The best men, of both parties, are, at heart, opposed to them, and will not vote for them. That question, we judge, from good evidence, from all quarters, is now settled. Blaine and Cleveland are not the sort of men now wanted in the White House. They are not wanted to administer the laws of the United States Government. They are not wanted to help and support a resolute people in suppressing the stenchful rottenness of Utah, nor as leaders in the social circles in Washington. The young, of both sexes, will not be benefited or properly educated in morality by mingling with such men. Good men of all parties will hang their heads with shame if either of the candidates named should be successful. Politicians and office-seekers may cry aloud in favour of such men; but we declare the truth when we say that a conscientious Christian man cannot heartily and without hesitation do so. Will the twenty-five thousand ministers of the Gospel in this country uncover their heads in their pulpits on the Sabbath-day and ask God to help the people in securing the election of such Presidential candidates? Will they then turn to their congregations and plead with God's professed followers, asking their help and their prayers and their contributions in securing the election of such rulers? We think not. No; the good men in this nation, in pulpit or pew, never can honestly and heartily engage in any such task.

Gen. Benjamin F. Butler is not by any means our Presidential candidate, and we do not expect to vote for him. We could name a thousand men and more that we would much prefer to him. But better far his election than that of a man either dishonest or of immoral character; and, in view of late revelations and present political movements and combinations, we think General Butler is likely to damage Cleveland's prospects to a far greater extent than has been supposed. If political leaders and political conventions will not name good and reputable men for office, the people will take the matter into their own hands, regardless of conventions, rings, bosses, or political usages. General Butler will, doubtless, push ahead; and if he can only secure the defeat of Grover Cleveland, that, of itself, will be a magnificent victory.

Ex-Governor St. John is not the man we would select above all others in the nation for the office of President. But better far, ten thousand times better, it would be to have him as our Chief Magistrate than James G. Blaine. Governor St. John is a sound, intelligent, conscientious, patriotic citizen. He is a man who can be trusted, and is the kind of timber now specially wanted in a national ruler. He would fearlessly administer the laws in New York, California, or Utah, and would be a terror to evil-doers everywhere. Such a man very likely might not suit the wire-pullers and secret managers of any party, but he would surely "turn the rascals out" of office, and try to put good men in their places. In view of these facts, and other reasons which might be stated, we say plainly that, if the Republican Party shall neglect or refuse to withdraw the name of James G. Blaine and substitute another, by all means then let the people organize and work for, and, in November, vote for Ex-Governor St. John, of Kansas, for President.

In the name of all that is pure in the family, just and honest in politics, and of good report among the nations, we call upon good men now and everywhere to do their duty to the country in the fear of God and not of men. The door to success seems to be opening wider and wider daily. God's hand seems to be in it, while the counsels of the wicked seem to be coming to naught. If men of principle refuse or neglect now to work, to be consistent their mouth should be shut and sealed as against all unrighteousness and impurity. But such must not be the case. Let the people now have a chance to work as they feel and to vote as they pray: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

MISSION WORK IN BASUTOLAND.

I HAVE truly great reason for songs of praise to our gracious God for his tender love and mercy towards my dear wife and myself. We are still permitted to remain in the Mission field, and although advanced in years (nearly the three score years and ten), and therefore unable to do much active work, still, it is our privilege to be allowed to remain here as witnesses for our beloved Lord and Master and to strengthen the hands of our dear son and his wife. Further it is our joy to see many of our Basutos brought into the fold of the Good Shepherd.

We have many difficulties to contend with; these mostly arise from political complications. One great perplexity is the withdrawal of all Government grants from our training institutions and from our numerous day schools. I laid before you some details bearing on this subject in a letter that I wrote to you a year since. The Colonial Government some months ago transferred all its claims to rule over this tribe, to the Imperial Government, which as yet exercises anything but a vigorous superintendence over the Basutos, fearful it would seem to incur expense. By this poor policy encouragement is given to Boers and others to plot and scheme with a view to create rebellion, which will lead to the Home Government confessing its inability to hold any part of interior South Africa. We formerly received about £2000 for educational purposes. We are now promised that should the natives pay taxes sufficient to cover all charges of Government, and leaving a balance, our schools will be remembered when dealing with the surplus.

This is but poor encouragement for us, as all depends upon the goodwill of the people themselves as to paying taxes. Looking to the Lord our God, who has done such great things for us in past years, we will do our utmost to keep every branch of the work in activity, for to allow the schools to be closed would be most detrimental to the advance of civilisation and the evangelisation, not only of the Basutos, but of many thousands of natives in the Interior. Most of our native schoolmasters have determined to hold to their posts as long as possible, some who were receiving £30 to £40 now getting only £10 a year. We have about forty-five day-schools at our out stations.

I am happy to say we have received good accounts from our missionary expedition to the Zambesi, under M. M. Coillard and Janmairet, all the members of the caravan were well and full of courage, they had not as yet reached the great river.—Yours sincerely, in the bonds of Jesus, HAMILTON MOORE DYKE.

Moriga, Basutoland, Aug. 6.

REV. DENNIS OSBORNE preached in the Lower Exeter Hall on Sunday evening last. The hall was well filled with an attentive audience. The rev. gentleman took for his text Isaiah lxi. 3. In bringing out the truth of the text, he referred in eloquent terms to the present condition of the vast population of the Indian Empire. He also gave a very interesting and encouraging account of the work already accomplished in connection with the different Missions there. Mr. Osborne, who is leaving for India, with his family, in a few days, commends the work in which he is engaged to the prayers of God's people.

LITERATURE FOR OUR SOLDIERS.—The Thames Church Mission has, on all occasions when troops have been sent out, been allowed, by special permission of the Admiralty, to proceed on board the transports to hand to every soldier a copy of the New Testament (the gift of the British and Foreign Bible Society) and a packet of illustrated pamphlets (the gift of the Religious Tract Society). The troops who have recently sailed from the Thames have all been supplied, and last Friday morning one of the Society's chaplains, who went specially down to Portsmouth accompanied by two lay agents, distributed 1500 Testaments and general literature among the men of the Camel Corps.

THE NOONDAY BREEZE.

A SWEET SAVOUR OF THE SALISBURY CONFERENCE

(Ez. xxxvii. 9; Cant. iv. 16.)

HOW fresh the breath of morning,
That stirs the glistening leaves;
How sweet the evening zephyrs,
That fan the sunburnt sheaves.
But in our Father's treasury sleeps
A choicer gift than these,
Its source the heart of perfect love,
Its name the noonday breeze.

It cheers the traveller on the heights,
The toiler at the plough;
Its kisses hush the sufferer's groans,
And cool the warrior's brow.
Perchance the prophet felt it
Blow soft o'er Carmel's trees;
When angels came to Abram,
They brought the noonday breeze.

When sinners' hearts are withered,
When saints are sinking low,
When Satan's darts are burning,
God bids the Spirit blow.
Some psalm or song of Sion,
Some friend gives sudden ease;
We care not whence it cometh,
But hail the noonday breeze.

It cooled the well of Jacob,
It clung to Calvary's cross;
And still it calms the scorned ones,
In suff'ring, shame, and loss.
Oh! brother, hast thou felt it?
Come, stay not on thy knees;
Go forth 'mid fainting thousands—
Thyself a noonday breeze.

ALFRED J. BEGBIE.

Framsden Vicarage.

EVANGELISTIC WORK IN BELFAST.

ON Sunday last Mr. John M. Scroggie concluded a three weeks' series of meetings held by him in Hermon Hall, Belfast. Only a year ago he preached in the same building for a month. Considerable interest was excited by his former visit, and many who received spiritual benefit through his addresses then expressed an earnest wish for his return.

The meetings on the present occasion were full of interest. Many of those who were blessed of God a year ago prayed for the worker and the work, and there were at all the meetings numbers of interested inquirers. This was particularly the case with some careless young men, who came to the meetings, became impressed by the Spirit of God, and professed to yield themselves to the Saviour.

Mr. Scroggie's closing meeting was solemn and searching. The large building was densely packed, and many were unable to get in. There must have remained to the second meeting over 1000 people. Amongst these were many inquirers, and the workers were all kept very busy for more than an hour in pointing seekers and backsliders to the Lord Jesus. On Monday evening, just before going to the steamer, the evangelist delivered an address to young Christians, at which nearly 1500 people were present.

Under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. in Belfast, Messrs. Fullerton and Smith are about to begin a Mission. The date is fixed for Sunday, October 5. Their meetings will also be held in Hermon Hall. A good deal of interest is being manifested in their visit, as this is almost, if not altogether, their first Gospel campaign on Irish soil. HENRY MONTGOMERY.

Belfast, Sept. 27.

SANTHAL MISSIONS.—Rev. J. Tunbridge, C.M.S. Missionary to the Santals, who is about returning to his post in North India, desires to take with him a magic-lantern and American organ for use in itineraut Gospel work. For these objects some £50 will be needed, and he appeals to friends at home for help. His address is Church Mission House, Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, E.C.

Notes and Comments.

A WORK which is announced for immediate publication, by Fischbacher, Paris, will not fail to attract attention. Its title will be "Adolphe Monod: Souvenirs of his life, and extracts from his correspondence." It has been edited by Mdlle. Sarah Monod in the name of the family.

The public revenue of Italy derives one of its chief supports from the lotto, which is justly spoken of as even more deleterious in its results than the roulette and trente et quarante of Monaco. The income of the Italian Government from this source was in 1862 thirty-five million francs; in 1882 it had risen to no less than seventy-five millions. There is no village without its lotto office, where stakes are accepted as low as one penny. The result is that the poorest of the people are drawn into the net, and a large proportion of their earnings is squandered every week in this baneful habit. It is the most fruitful source of demoralisation and poverty to be found in the land. It is only as a means of national revenue that statesmen can for a moment tolerate it, and to do evil on this ground is not only unrighteous and criminal, but politically suicidal.

Gambling at bazaars for religious objects has reached its height, in the case of a Congregational Church in Birmingham, which has recently held, in connection with a bazaar for its funds, a raffle for five-pound notes. The fact is so startling that the Birmingham Watch Committee has been led to discuss the question of suppressing all raffles at bazaars, and has appointed a special committee to take steps to that end. Yet glaring though this particular case may be, it is no worse in principle than many similar plans adopted by hundreds of churches, in raising money for religious objects.

There is no room for wonder that gambling grows apace among the young people of to-day, while examples of this kind are set by the professed churches of Christ. On all sides the habit of betting and card playing is increasing. Railway carriages are sometimes turned into gambling saloons, where card-sharpers glut their purses at the expense of foolish passengers. Ocean steamers are pestered with the same nuisance, and voyagers who object are rudely shunned, or compelled to betake themselves to other quarters than those they have the right to enjoy unmolested. Under such circumstances consistent Christians ought surely to clear themselves of all complicity with what is ruinous to the present and eternal interests of multitudes.

One of the most reprehensible and repulsive features of modern stage practices is that of adopting language pertaining to sacred themes as titles for plays. One of the latest comedies introduced is entitled "Saints and Sinners," and numerous illustrations of the same sort are to be found on almost every advertisement hoarding. The same tendency is to be seen in modern novelists, who take as titles for their works phrases and words peculiar to Bible and theological spheres. Thus we have "Unspotted from the World," in a three-volume novel; "Tempted of the Devil," and others. The practice is one demoralising in its influence, and is a sign of the irreverence and unbelief which mark our age.

An article in the National Philanthropist for September calls attention to what are termed fashionable barbarities. Among these is mentioned the cruel practice of docking the tails of horses, which is again come into vogue; as also the use of the bearing rein, so common in aristocratic equipages. The former custom has been abolished in the army, the Duke of Cambridge, with commendable humanity, refusing to allow any officer to bring a charger so disfigured on parade. The sin of indifference to the natural instincts and comfort of dumb animals, to say nothing of actual cruelty to them, is far from being recognised as it ought to be. Surely the Creator who has placed the lower creation under our control for our assistance, will not fail to take account of their wrongs, and to require it at the hands of those who are careless concerning them.

We hear so much of crime, and see so many signs of the prevalence of vice in our midst, that we are apt to think things are even worse than they are, and to take a too pessimistic view of our national condition. It is, therefore, gratifying to learn from the annual report of the Directors of our Convict Prisons that the number of sentences of penal servitude passed by ordinary courts in 1883 was lower than in any previous year, with one exception. This may surely be taken as an indication that, to some extent at least, crime is lessening amongst us. In 1874 the number of prisoners undergoing penal servitude was 10,867; in 1884 it is 9574, showing a decrease for the decade of 1293. Remembering also that the number of common prisons has been considerably reduced, there is ground for hope that the vigorous efforts made of late by our evangelistic and Temperance organisations have not been without their desired effect.

In the closing address of Mr. Shaw Lefevre, M.P., as President of the Social Science Congress at Birmingham, last week, he incidentally stated that he had just received figures from London showing that out of 82,000 deaths in the metropolis during 1882, 9000 were in the workhouses and 6000 in the hospitals, making altogether 15,000, or a proportion of 1 out of 5. This startling fact shows unmistakably the need there is for earnest attention to social subjects affecting the health and general condition of the poor. There are causes at work producing results of this kind which are as yet unreached. Attention has been loudly called to some of them by the bitter cry which has been lifted up, but the effect will be but transitory unless still further and more organised action is taken to meet the case.

The idea of improving the morals of men by mesmerism would seem to be far too wild and foolish to have really occupied the thoughts of men of light and leading. And yet a subject which received long and serious attention and discussion at the latest meeting of the French Association for the Advancement of Science was, to use the French phrase, "Moralisation by Hyponotism," a word which signifies a species of somnambulism artificially induced. The scheme was propounded, illustrated, and advocated, by M. Voisin, a physician of no mean repute. By means of dazzling lights and mirrors he claims to be able to make vicious subjects pure and moral—their ways "sociable and amenable" to right ideas. It is but another illustration of the old saying, "The world by wisdom knew not God."

Mrs. Kendal's paper on "The Drama," read in the Art Section of the Social Science Congress, will not do much, in our opinion, to uphold the stage and its accessories. Her significant admissions as to the true state of things in the theatrical world are worth noting. While claiming that in some respects a change for the better has come over players and playhouses, Mrs. Kendal says the drama of the present day is certainly deteriorated, and unless a speedy change is made, likely still further to deteriorate:—

"What in reality can be a more painful spectacle than that of an innocent and unsuspecting wife being hoodwinked and deceived by her graceless and profligate husband? Years ago it would have formed the ground-work of a very pathetic play if not of a tragedy; but now it is a never-failing source of delight to the lover of elongated farces; and the greater the innocence of the wife, and the more outrageous the misconduct of the husband, the louder are the shrieks of laughter with which their misunderstandings are received. For this, alas! we have to thank our French friends; and the 'suggestiveness' which pervades the dialogue of too many modern plays is another foreign importation that might very well be spared."

One other quotation from the paper, designed to uphold and vindicate theatrical life, may be read with advantage by those who plead for theatre-going:—

"A complaint is constantly being made that the moral condition of the drama of the present day is not so high as it undoubtedly should be; but for this playgoers are to blame, for they run after notoriety, and notoriety alone. This may seem a strong accusation, but is it not true? When men and women have done wrong, and taken to the stage, is it not a fact that, provided the wrong-doing has been made sufficiently public, brisk business may be expected at the booking-office? This I maintain never was in the old days, and proves to-day the degradation of our stage."

The Council of the Evangelical Alliance has already issued its annual invitation for the Week of United and Universal Prayer at the commencement of the year. The invitation is couched in singularly felicitous and appropriate terms, and will, we trust, receive a response wider and heartier than has ever before been given. To this end, all who desire the unity and co-operation of believers in prayerful effort for the advancement of the cause of Christ, should at once use their individual influence to awaken interest in the movement.

We have reason to know that our dear friend Miss Mittendorff is now, and has been for some time, in deep need of help. We trust that the knowledge of this fact will induce our readers to render prompt and generous aid to the institution over which our sister presides.

Mr. Jos. Tritton, the esteemed treasurer of the Baptist Missionary Society, has rendered important service to that institution by the publication of his timely sketch of the Rise and Progress of the Work on the Congo River. The story is replete with indications of Divine wisdom and grace, in setting before the Church of Christ this open door; it should be read by every lover of souls, and of efforts to evangelise the world. As a thankoffering for restoration from long and severe illness, the author has performed this labour of love, and generously placed 2000 copies at the disposal of the Society he has so long and faithfully served. The book is profusely illustrated, and may be had of Messrs. Alexander and Shepheard, Castle-street, Holborn, price 1s. 6d.

The price of bread is a question vitally affecting the interests of the community, notably those of the poorer classes. At a time when the price of corn is specially low, and the supply unlimited, it is a shame for the price of bread to be kept up as it is, simply by a trade monopoly. Wages are in many districts miserably small, many are out of work, and poverty stalks through the land, fastening its grip on thousands of old and young. Plentiful harvests such as we have just had are among God's free gifts to men, and are intended specially to benefit those whose needs are pressing and whose means are small. To withhold cheap bread from the poor is a detestable crime. One class of trade has no right to fatten on that which is beneficently intended to ensure the general prosperity of all.

A friend sends the following extract from old notes on prayer-meetings:—"If there is frequent private prayer and meditation on the Word and self-denying service, then the prayers of persons so living will be fresh and helpful to others who unite in them. Otherwise there will be barrenness, the old common, the old furze bushes, the old ponds, the soil drinking in the rain that cometh oft upon it, yet unprofitable and rather dreary."

Quite a furore of excitement seems to have been created in a large section of the English press by the recent "startling revelation" in the Pall Mall Gazette as to the degenerate condition of our navy. Officialdom, from admirals downwards, has joined the hue and cry that England is no longer "mistress of the seas." In the midst of this hubbub we welcome the calm and soothing notes of our Quaker friend William Tallack who, in a letter to our evening contemporary, sets the matter in its true light. Quoting the old Puritan motto, "Trust in God, and keep your powder dry," he urges that the first and major half of the saying should not be lost sight of. Who that believes in God as the ruler of nations can doubt the truth and wisdom of Mr. Tallack's words:—

"Surely it is well for our countrymen to remember that they possess solid ground for much confidence, and hope that our nation, notwithstanding many shortcomings, will continue to be blessed with effectual protection in the future, as in the past, mainly through the moral power and influence over the world derived from its efforts, under God's blessing, to extend home and foreign evangelisation in a special degree, and earnestly to promote the best social and philanthropic reforms. While England is thus enabled to witness sincerely for God in the world she is warranted in expecting his powerful protection. . . . The nations around us are amenable to a policy of justice and conciliation, when backed up by example and the avoidance of ambitious aggressions. Whatever may be our opinions as to the navy, let us remember that it is not our main defence, but that we have also in the immaterial realms of Divine trust, prayer and obedience, vast resources of protective power which are mighty to control all material forces of opposition or of danger."

The article from the New York Independent (p. 11) is one of many of a similar kind which have appeared in the religious Press of America, and doubtless will continue to appear until the new President has been elected. It is a remarkable and cheering sign of the times that so high a standard of character should be set up for the ruler of the United States. Nothing is more evident in modern history than the reaction of American ideas upon the mother country; and it is not possible that England will be content in the future with a moral standard for her Kings which is indignantly repudiated by America for her Presidents.

We find by personal inquiry that the case of Clara Govier was not correctly stated in the paragraph we quoted from Truth a fortnight since. She has had five children, but four of them are dead, and the remaining one is well provided for. Her violent conduct appears to have been the cause of the severe sentence of two months with hard labour.

The clever, if somewhat curious, sketch from the Pall Mall Gazette, entitled "Some English Exports to China," which we reprint elsewhere, is interesting as representing the view of a sympathetic, but rather cynical man of the world. Those who are able to read between the lines will probably conclude that the "French" veneer of the article is of the thinnest description. No one who is but slightly acquainted with the personnel of the little band of missionaries who left for China last week, will fail to recognise in the closing paragraph the portrait of Mr. Hudson Broomhall, son of the much-respected secretary of the China Inland Mission.

The twenty millions sterling paid by the British nation for the abolition of slavery in her colonies appears to have been spent very much in vain. The Times of Monday contains a letter from Rev. Henry Clarke, rector of Westmoreland, Jamaica, who has come to England to expose and, if possible, put a stop to, the atrocious system of coolie immigration to that island. He asserts that it is but slavery under another name. The three last paragraphs of Mr. Clarke's letter are as follows:—

"When the truth is realised that there are at this moment thousands of helpless strangers in Jamaica who can be sent to imprisonment with hard labour, for refusing to work for another man when it has ceased to be their wish or their interest to work for him, I feel sure the law which legalises the wrong will be abolished.

"Jamaica has now been for more than two centuries under the absolute control of England; during the greater part of this period it was a pandemonium, in which every principle of religion, of justice, and of humanity was violated, and vice, cruelty, and bloodshed were the essentials of its Government. At this day the wealth, the morals, and the happiness of its 600,000 inhabitants are sacrificed, and slavery under a false name is being maintained, in order that a few wealthy gentlemen in England may be able to compel some 30,000 of its people to grow sugar and rum for them at the wages of 1s. a day.

"The Christians of England cannot free themselves of their responsibility for the wrongs done by their Government in the Colonies or elsewhere, since their Government represents them. I believe that there is a God who judgeth the earth, and when the day of reckoning comes the penalty will fall where the guilt lies."

The Romish Church is making great advances in Switzerland, where in bygone times some of the sternest battles of Protestantism have been fought, and some of its noblest victories won. By a convention just entered into between the Federal Council and the Pope, the episcopal seat of Bâle is to be restored, and a new Roman Catholic Bishop installed. The Canton of Tessin, which is largely populated by papists, is now to be placed under the spiritual administration of a prelate, who is to be styled "Administrator Apostolic of the Canton of Tessin." The efforts, therefore, which have been made in the past by the Reformed Church to establish Protestant truth will practically cease, and the Papal power be supreme. These changes are said to be due to the mission of an eminent cardinal, who has been sent from Rome to Berne with such ends in view, and whose success has been so marked that, as one of our leading journals remarks, it is safe to predict that the Church of Rome will once more become a power in Switzerland.

We clip the following paragraph from an Indian contemporary, and reprint it with our endorsement:—

"Contributors who send articles for publication in our columns should always notify us, in case they purpose to send duplicate copies to other journals. As a general rule no journalist cares to print as original an article which has already appeared in another paper."

We learn that Mr. Henry Varley will accompany Dr. Brookes on his return to St. Louis, United States, toward the end of October. He will spend the winter in various cities of the Union, teaching and preaching the Gospel.

The Boston (U.S.) Young Men's Christian Association has invited Mr. Moody, the city pastors concurring, to preside over a convention of Christian workers of the New England States, to be convened in Tremont Temple, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, October 15, 16, and 17. Mr. Sankey will have charge of the music. Addresses on practical topics will be delivered by eminent men.

We read in the Morocco Times that a man residing in Tetuan, who maltreated his wife so that she died, was arrested and thrashed through the town with a cat-o'-nine tails; at intervals a halt was made, and the man was made to call out: "Thus shall it be done to the man who kills his wife." He was then shut up in jail. We daresay Moorish customs are not in many respects very worthy of imitation, but our judicial authorities might do worse than to adopt this drastic method of dealing with wifebeaters and abusers.

The Evening Standard recently commented on the fact that owing to missionary efforts in Fiji, the natives are becoming more and more civilised in their social habits and pursuits. They have taken to cricket, and play with the greatest energy; but what has struck the writer of the article referred to is, that religion is with them so paramount that they are accustomed to open and conclude their matches with prayer. That recreation should be a subject of prayerful interest, as well as the more solid and sober pursuits of life, is unfortunately so rare that it is not to be wondered at that this latest illustration of it should cause surprise to some beholders. Our contemporary concludes his reflections on the subject by saying:—

"No doubt in time the Fijians will take to horse-racing and other sports, and in that case their racecourses are likely to present a very strong and not unfavourable contrast to our own, for it would certainly be vastly preferable that prayer should be offered up by the assembled multitude before proceeding to amuse itself, than that, as with us, the air of the racecourse should throughout the day be thick with blasphemy and foul language."

There are few of the earlier historic records of our country more worthy of commemoration than that which relates to the landing of Augustin and his companions on the shores of Kent, in the year 597. To that event must be attributed the origin of that entrance of Christianity into England which has led to our becoming, in God's good providence, known the world over as a centre of Christian influence. Earl Granville is therefore doing a proper thing in erecting an obelisk on his estate, near Pegwell Bay, to commemorate the landing there of the little missionary band which pioneered the highest interests of our national life by aiming a vigorous and successful blow at the paganism of our forefathers.

POLMONT CHRISTIAN CONVENTION,

PARK HALL, POLMONT, STIRLINGSHIRE.

(From a Correspondent.)

THIS is the third year of holding this quiet, but profitable, gathering. In this age of "many running to and fro," such meetings of the children of God are no longer confined to the great centres, but are being held in villages, and even in private dwellings. Here the first meeting, summoned by Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone Learmouth, was held in a tent in August, 1882. One stormy night, however, it was blown down, and the subsequent meetings that year adjourned to a large barn in the farm on the estate, where they have since been held. It is a commodious place, very comfortable, decorated with texts of Scripture, and ornamented with plants and flowers.

This subject of the life of Jesus—the Saviour from sin's power as from sin's guilt—manifested in those who believe in Him, is growing in interest and power all over the land. It is, as the careful students of God's Word well know, but a revival of old truths once familiar to the saints, and the mistakes and blunders which some are making in relation to it only prove its importance. Its fitness to raise Christians out of the dust, to give a higher tone to life, and to present a bolder testimony for Christ to the world around, is manifest But so much requires to be done. Prejudices have to be got rid of, misapprehensions of the doctrines taught to be removed, latent unwillingness to submit the whole life to Christ—these and many such hindrances stand in the way. Yet let us take courage and go forward. Such conventions as this at Polmont are a significant sign and a great help. Let them increase and multiply, and the Word of God will prevail to the laying hold of the hearts of the people greatly.

No subjects were set beforehand for this little Convention. As at Keswick, and elsewhere, these few years past, it was deemed better—since one great theme was to be the subject—to leave the speakers free; when this has been done, both chairman and speakers have found that the Spirit of God has directed the counsels of the conveners, the details of the arrangements, and the choice of the Scriptures handled.

It has often been remarked how each speaker, though ignorant of the special subject of thought in the minds of others, has been led almost uniformly to follow on from the opening remarks of the chairman or of the first speaker. Thus, the great theme being one, a concentration of teachings has been the result, which, for the instruction given and the impression made, has been most blessed and useful.

At Polmont, the number of direct helpers was small. Mr. H. Bowker presided, as he had done at the previous Conventions, and Mr. Hopkins, of Richmond, assisted, always ready when his laborious duties permit, with that clear mind and loving heart of his, to help in this holy cause. Many a soul has almost leaped into liberty at these gatherings from hearing his lucid interpretations of the Word, enforced both by apt illustrations, and testimonies to the experience of himself and others.

Mr. Robert Wilson, of Broughton, and Mr. McNab, of the Scottish Free Church—both men of long experience in the ways and works of Christ—rendered their valuable help, as did also Mr. Henry Edmonds, Mr. Wm. Swan, and Mr. Wm. J. Govan, of Glasgow. These last three are young men, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost. Miss McGrath led the singing with that wonderful voice of hers; and Mr. and Mrs. Learmouth were there to plan for the comfort of all who attended—sending carriages far and wide for the visitors, and providing for their refreshment at their own expense all the days.

This account must not close without mention of another and kindred work carried on by Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone Learmouth. They have a Mission-hall in a hamlet near by, and on the Lord's-day, and many other days besides, the latter goes round the neighbourhood, gathering the ignorant, the idlers, and the outcasts to that and other rooms, accompanied by a number of young men and women whose hearts the Lord has touched, with a very effective band of music, and then gives them the Gospel. On the Sunday evening preceding, and that which followed the little Convention, the place of meeting was the barn, in which the Christians met, and the writer of this little notice can testify that seldom has he seen a sight more cheering than that of both these meetings. As he witnessed the procession, accompanied by the band, winding its way from the surrounding hamlets, he was reminded indeed of the command of the Great Provider of the Divine Supper, "Go into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled."

TRIPS AND TOURING.

UNDER this heading a little appeal was made last year for those tired and exhausted shop girls in London who could not afford even a week in fresh air when utterly unable to work longer, and very kindly was the appeal responded to. The sum collected was given to some young friends of mine who had taken a cottage on the borders of Epping Forest in which to nurse and comfort as many as possible of the class referred to. With much pleasure I now send a few details of the work, taken from my friends' little report, and shall gratefully accept any sum, however small; or articles of clothing and useful trifles for the little sale proposed for November. Sophia May.

Bruce-grove, Tottenham.

EXTRACTS.

"It was to provide a place of rest for these weary toilers that I and my sisters opened our Cottage Home on the borders of Epping Forest in the autumn of 1882, and our hearts are full of thankfulness to God for the wonderful way He has prospered the work, and for the happy letters and testimonies from those who have stayed in the cottage, telling of restored health, and in many cases of spiritual blessings received during the quiet days spent there. We have every reason to believe that the rest and change when they were so needed have been the means of saving many young women from serious illness and nervous debility, which so often ends in their becoming confirmed invalids.

"Our Home has six beds, and as we have had no less than 145 inmates since 1st July, 1883, it proves how seldom any are empty, and how numerous the applications are from those in real need of rest and change. No charge whatever has been made to the young women, so we have been wholly indebted to many kind friends for their maintenance. The gratitude expressed by the young women themselves has been most touching.

"We still continue the Bible Reading and Prayer early each morning, and this daily and personal intercourse has been the means of winning the love and confidence of many a thoughtless girl, whom it would have been almost impossible to know or reach in ordinary Mission work, and we trust in many cases has led them to a real surrender of their hearts to Christ. It has also often opened to us personal histories, proving how friendless and exposed to temptation hundreds of these young workwomen are.

"Among the many ways of helping this work, I will mention the following: Gifts of milk, eggs, food, or vegetables. Cast-off clothing. Gifts for the poultry-yard, either in livestock or food. We hope to have a Sale of Work at the end of November at the "Welcome," 3, Jewin-street, E.C., among the young workwomen, the profits to be given to the Home. Plain underclothing, bright petticoats, fancy aprons, stockings, and children's warm frocks (high necks and long sleeves), and dark woollen squares, are the articles principally in demand, and such gifts will be most thankfully received.

"Communications of any kind, subscriptions and gifts, to be sent to Miss Kate Reynolds, Epping New-road, Buckhurst Hill, Essex."

MR. TOYE AND THE ORPHANS.

IT is sixteen years ago since Mr. Henry Toye, whilst at work in aid of the destitute in the Isle of Dogs, had it laid to his heart to take under his care a number of destitute little children. As many of our readers know, he has ever continued faithful in the work. His little family has largely increased, and at present he has no fewer than one hundred and twenty boys and girls under his care in the home for the fatherless, Lewisham-road, Greenwich.

It is his custom to call his friends together every autumn to report as to the condition of the Home, and to testify to the goodness and faithfulness of the Lord during the year gone by. The testimony of Mr. Toye in this respect is of such a remarkable nature that we were not surprised to find last Thursday evening all the accommodation he could provide fully taken advantage of by the friends of the institution. There was none of the annual meeting formality to be endured, for certain features regarding accounts, and calls for continued support, find no place in this good man's economy.

Mr. Toye said he was not going to make speech at all; he was simply going to recount to his friends how good God had been to him and his children during the past year. In some respects it had been the most trying year of all, as four girls and two boys had been removed by death within a period of eight weeks, as many indeed as had died in five or six years before. But the sting of death had been removed, and the parting with the little ones had been a very precious time. Proceeding to tell the story of the year, he said it was a life of daily dependence on God. "Our prayer is, 'Give us this day our daily bread.' Last Saturday I had not the means of purchasing the Sunday dinner, and I never ask for credit. Before the day closed a letter came from Woolwich, and a second letter also. These brought just the help that was required, and just at the right time. Not long ago, our syrup and sugar cans were empty, and the way to get them filled was not very clear to me, but just then I received a letter from a dear friend, saying, 'I have given an order to Mr. Budgett to send you a puncheon of syrup and a hogshead of sugar.' Not small lots; I assure you, we had to empty them in the street. Many a Monday morning we have only a couple of shillings to begin the week with. We have had to wait for breakfast until it was purchased; but I can tell you this, we have never gone without it. These cupboards you see there are, I am thankful to say, filled with warm clothing. This room in which we are has had its walls concreted and all lined with boarding, by my own hands and with the help of the boys, and we are not a penny in debt to anybody. The needs of each day, the money for taxes and rent, are all supplied without any solicitation whatever, and I estimate that our average expenditure is £35 a week."

This is but a small part of the information imparted by Mr. Toye on this occasion. Those who wish further details would do well to write to him for his report, which will be ready shortly.

Among the friends who took part in the meeting were Rev. George Elder, Rev. Mr. Gray, Dr. Pringle, Dr. Maberly, Mr. Jordan, and Mr. Southall, all of whom acknowledged how rejoiced in heart they were by the account they had heard of the goodness of the Lord. The children sang hymns and anthems, and altogether such an evening was spent as will not soon be forgotten by those who had the privilege of being present.

OBITUARY.—Many of our readers will regret to hear that another well-known Christian worker in Ireland has been removed from the Church militant, in the person of Mr. William Bewley, of Killiney, co. Dublin, brother of the late Mr. Henry Bewley, whose memory is still had in affectionate remembrance by thousands. While not so much to the front in Christian work as his late brother, his influence was most genial and fruitful to very many.

HARVEST TIME—OVINGDEAN.

BELOW the Down the leafy village lies,
Gleaming in light from blue and cloudless skies;
Its little Norman church amid the trees
Lifting the cross above the grassy graves.
Up through the dene there sighs a sweet salt-breeze
From off the labouring sea, whose restless waves
Break 'gainst the bulwark of the chalk in swirls,
And die in music that is faintly borne
To this still spot. In stretching fields of corn
There is the laughter of the sun-browned girls
And children, gleaning 'mid the golden sheaves;
But here is one hushed nook beneath the leaves,
With "Holiness unto the Lord" carved deep
Upon the lich-gate, where the dead do sleep.

JAMES BOWKER.

SEAMEN AND SOLDIERS IN BOMBAY.

A LARGE and very interesting part of the floating population of Bombay to-day is made up of British seamen and soldiers. The number of the former is increasing yearly. The question who shall entertain and influence these very impressible men, is one not of the least importance to the Christian public. Bombay ably sustains its position among the great sea-board cities of the world for inducements as vicious as they are strong in leading seamen astray; for agencies as malignant as they are successful in their work of ruining men. Myriads of grogshops and dens of nameless vice invite them, from the city's shores to its centre. Hundreds of runners for these institutions ply their trade with remarkable enterprise and alarming success.

Two Christian gentlemen not long since led on one night sixteen young seamen out of a street in our city wholly given up to vice. Some say, "Jack will go to such places." "Jack must have drink." Jack is but a man of like passions with the rest of men, and is just as susceptible to good impressions as other men. Counter inducements should be offered him when he steps ashore with heart open and pockets full. A quiet work with this in view, and more—his reformation—has been carried on in Bombay by a number of Christian ladies since the beginning of the year. Gospel tea-meetings are held every Thursday evening in Dean Lane Hall, Fort.

Up to this date thirty-three teas have been given. An average of one hundred seamen a week have sat around their tables, joined in their hymns, and listened to the Gospel addresses, which are a special feature of each evening's work. An aggregate of thirty-three hundred men have attended these teas during the time covered by this report. Nearly five hundred have taken the total abstinence pledge, and about a hundred have publicly asked for prayers. Many hundreds of little bags and parcels full of tracts, books, and magazines have been given away. The ladies offer to give each man, when leaving port, a little neatly made and mottoed bag full of good reading. Large numbers of Bibles have been distributed. A young man visits the shipping regularly each week, to invite the men to the teas.

The results of the work are certainly gratifying. But what is this one little effort among so many counter ones put forth by the enemy of men? What is one tea-meeting or the noble efforts put forth by our friends of the Y.M.C.A. with such odds against us in the shape of groggeries and hells of vice? We can only say that these, under God, are steps in the right direction. We hope soon to do more, that we may reach and save seamen even as they now are reaching them in Calcutta. — Bombay Guardian.

REV. W. HASLAM has removed from 19, King's-road, Brownswood-park, N., to 66, Marina, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

MR. WILLIAM CHORLEY, of the North-East London Gospel Mission, wishes us to state that his address is now 2, Marquess-grove, Canonbury, N., where communications for the Mission should in future be addressed.

TEMPERANCE ITEMS.

PUBLIC-HOUSES are closed in Guernsey at 10 o'clock on Saturday night, and remain closed during the whole of Sunday.—The population of Paris has increased 50 per cent. during the last half century. During the same period the consumption of intoxicants has increased 400 per cent. —Mr. William Gilbert is engaged in a new Temperance work which is expected to cause important controversy.—The State of Maine has, by a large majority, passed a Constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicants. A Melbourne correspondent describes that city as the worst, morally, he has ever known.—The International Conference at the Hague on the North Sea "Coopers" will take place this month. —The publicans at Ballarat are feeling the effects of the Blue Ribbon movement in their midst.—Mr. W. Forbes closed a week's Mission at Burslem on Sunday last, and is now at Barton-on-Humber.

ALGERIA AND EASTERN KABYLIA.

DEAR BROTHER,—I send you this letter from the Editor of Le Signal, addressed to myself, from the mountains where we are exploring and evangelising. In addition to this delegation from the Paris Missionary Society, the Methodists are sending M. Wesley Leliévre to explore the country likewise. We ask for much prayer for ourselves, and for every effort now making and that shall be made for the Kabyles and Arabs of this North Africa.

Yours affectionately in Christ,

Sept. 19. GEORGE PEARSE.

LETTER FROM MONS. E. REVEILLAUD.

Yes, it is quite true that the Paris Missionary Society has decided to send to Algeria, on a voyage of inquiry and research, one of its missionaries, M. Herman Kruger, lately returned from Lessouto. I know nothing further about this journey, and what may result from it; but one can certainly infer from this community of effort brought to bear upon Algeria, a proof that the hour of God has come for this country, and you have had the honour there, as in the furthest East, of being the precursor, the John Baptist of the Mission.

I have communicated to the readers of Le Signal the news contained in your letter, and I am sure they will, with me, be rejoiced to see that the Lord has put into the heart of many Christians to interest themselves in the poor Kabyles and Arabs of Algeria. Let us hope that the Lord will prepare a great people in this country, formerly Christian, and let us pray that He will hasten the hour of his fresh visitation to this people, now enveloped in such thick darkness.

I thank you much for your offer regarding the tracts of series B (Religious Tract Society), and I will not fail to make use of it, for I have exhausted the supply which I had.

I much approve these little tracts (of four pages, chiefly written by ourselves, edited by Miss Levat, of Nimes), which have the great merit of having a title which draws attention, of not alarming the reader by their length, of going straight to the point, and containing the marrow of the Gospel. I think that, in their present form, one cannot push their circulation too much, and that they are designed to do much good in our country. Yours devotedly in the Lord, EUG. REVEILLAUD.

GOSPEL WORK IN PLUMSTEAD.—DEAR SIR,—Kindly allow me to appeal to my fellow-believers for their help on behalf of the Cage-lane Mission in the lower part of Plumstead. We have during the past year lost by death some of our most substantial helpers, and at the present time we are quite aground for funds. The population of this neighbourhood is increasing rapidly, so that the need of more earnest and special efforts to reach the people is becoming greater; but the next few months will be most trying to us unless financial help be given. The expenses of the Mission work last year amounted to over £200. During the nine months of the present year only £96 13s. has been received.—Yours faithfully, KATE RUSSELL.

Cage-lane Mission Hall, Plumstead.

PORTSMOUTH SOLDIERS' INSTITUTE.

WE have received from Miss Robinson the tenth annual report of this institution. Friends who are interested in the work may obtain a copy on application. As the present pamphlet contains a condensed but complete history of the rise and progress of the work from its earliest beginning, our readers would do well to procure it. They would thus be furnished with fresh ground for praise to God for the marvellous prosperity which He has granted to an undertaking the commencement of which was so small and insignificant. Its present importance is acknowledged by high authorities, amongst them General Sir G. Willis, who, from the chair of a meeting of the institute, spoke in the highest terms of the manner in which the whole thing was conducted, and wished that similar institutions were to be found in every garrison and camp, believing that nothing could be more conducive to the welfare of the army than work of this kind.

The past year has been one of constant labour, says the report, and also one of extension. An additional coffee-tavern has been opened on the Camber for the fisherfolk and watermen; this was greatly needed, and is much prized. But the great undertakings of the year have been outside the scope of the Soldiers' Institute. To the "Sailors' Welcome" at Portsea additional dormitories with sixty-eight more beds have recently been added. The number of sleepers during the year has been upwards of 34,000. A new hall has also been built, where Mission work will now be carried on similar to that at the Soldiers' Institute. A separate report is published by Miss Robinson of this branch of her work, including balance-sheet, which shows the need of further aid toward clearing off what remains of the building debt. Friends who would like to give a name to a cabin or a cot are invited to do so with their donations, the sums necessary being £20 and £12 respectively. The little book written last May by Miss Van Sommer, giving a full description of this branch of the work, Miss Robinson will gladly send to anyone applying to her.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Institute at Alexandria, Egypt, is however deemed by far the most important item marking the progress of the past year. The sad accounts that reached Miss Robinson of the condition of our soldiers in Egypt determined her to make an effort to meet the pressing need. In this fresh enterprise valuable assistance has been rendered by the Admiralty, who, in conveying building materials free of cost, have shown their appreciation of the endeavour. The old Brompton Oratory was purchased and sent to Alexandria, and will shortly be reconstructed as an institute. The Duke of Cambridge cordially approves of the project, and has commanded all needed assistance to be given for its furtherance. In this new undertaking Miss Robinson confidently hopes that the English people will support her, and that the necessary funds will be provided. She trusts also that some ladies with means of their own will come forward and give their willing service either at Portsmouth or Alexandria.

On Sundays there are meetings at Portsmouth, to which any friends would be welcomed who could preach the Gospel.

In addition to the above institutions, or, rather, connected with them, are the Officers' House and Private Hotel, also the Coffee Shed, both at Portsmouth, and the Mission Room at Eastney. "More money, more workers, more earnestness, and more self-denial is the present demand, and much yet requires to be done." The last notice in the Report is the following: "On August 1, 1884, Miss Robinson founded a 'Children's Society' for young people of the upper classes, under sixteen years of age, called, 'Little friends of Soldiers and Sailors,' who promise to pray and help."

A GOOD EXAMPLE.—A Sunday or two ago a Congregational minister in a Lancashire town took charge of the entire Sunday-school one afternoon, while the teachers in number sallied forth into the streets and courts to bring in neglected children.

AN ECHO OF THE COPENHAGEN CONFERENCE.

BY A NORWEGIAN DELEGATE.

AMONGST the friends belonging to different denominations outside the Established Church I heard but one opinion, and that was very gratifying. They all believed that the Conference had done much in promoting more liberal views amongst the clergy of the Established Danish Church, although the Baptists at Copenhagen felt somewhat offended that their denomination was entirely ignored in the introductory address by Dr. Kalkar.

It was also noticed that not a single minister outside the Established Church, of any of the Scandinavian countries, was given any place or time to speak, although there were present, both from Norway and Sweden, ministers of the Methodist, Baptist, and Free Lutheran Churches. It seemed to be a strange coincidence that the one clergyman from Norway who spoke about Christian courage and consistency in Christian life should be the very one who, a few years ago, for conscience sake left the Established Church and after a very short while joined her again!

There were many who felt that the meetings were by far too stiff and formal, and the papers read in general too long. The belief was that much more and better fruit might have come both to those present and others if the word of utterance had been more free.

As there was scarcely anything said about the state of religion in Norway, I send you this brief report of the different agencies outside the Established Church.

Before the year 1845, no other denomination, Christian or Jew, was tolerated besides the Established Lutheran Church in Norway. That year this restriction was done away, and a law was enacted giving both Jews and Christians liberty, within certain limits, to worship according to their own conscience. This law was not made use of until ten years after its enactment, when a highly gifted clergyman of the Establishment left its pale, and organised a number of Free Churches at most of the towns, going as far north as Trawsö.

This was the first religious movement outside the State Church, and the beginning of a new era in Norway. A great wave of revival swept over the whole country; many souls were saved, and a religious life, both inside and outside the Established Church begun, which has been going on to this hour. These Free Churches seemed to bid fair from the beginning; but, to their great regret, their leader, after a very brief period, left them again and went back to the Established Church once more, and got a larger pension from the State as a retired clergyman than he could get in support from the Free Church. He tried to get an office in the Establishment again, but it was never granted him.

About the same time the Methodists began their labours in Norway, supported by their friends in the United States. At their last Conference it was reported that they have in Norway 3265 members in full fellowship, 603 on trial; 29 chapels collected during the year £4200; 40 Sunday-schools, with 3380 children and 400 teachers. They are most numerous at the southern part around the capital, but have also churches at most of the towns as far north as Trondhiem.

The Baptists began their labours a few years later, and have been helped, but to a far smaller extent, by their friends in England. They have 15 churches with 13 chapels (the most of them very lately erected), and 10 ordained ministers. Their largest and best missionary work has been done in the far north above the arctic circle, where they have two churches and three chapels. At their last Conference some of the delegates had to travel more than 1000 miles to attend. At the Conference a net increase for the past year of 20 per cent. was reported. In full membership there were 1100; 10 Sunday-schools, with about 1000 scholars and 100 teachers; collected during the year about £1100.

About ten years ago a Lutheran Free Church was organised by Rev. P. Wettergreen, who left the Established Church about the same time as the clergyman to whom I have referred. Pastor Wettergreen is a very warm-hearted Christian, and one of the most popular preachers in Norway. He resides at Arendal, where he administers to a large and influential Free Lutheran Church, organised similarly to the Presbyterian Free Churches of Scotland, with which they seem to have some connection. From it he goes round visiting those sister churches that have sprung up through his labours, nine in number, with about 800 members.

Last year another movement was started by Mr. Fransan, a Swedish evangelist, in connection with those Free Churches started thirty years ago. These have not been able to keep their ground, but from the time their leader left them they have dwindled gradually down, so that a few members scattered here and there are left. Mr. Fransan began his labours amongst them at Christiania, and from there he went all over the country, visiting almost every town. A great revival followed him, and many souls were converted and saved. These he gathered together with the members of those Free Churches, and gave them the name of Missionary Unions, without any defined creed or doctrines. These Unions have had much success at Christiania and Bergen, where they have erected large chapels.

The various organisations outside the Established Church, full of life and activity, have had a great influence in awakening and keeping up spiritual life inside the State Church also. Sunday-schools and other work, unknown before the Dissenters began their labours, have sprung up, and in some towns they have flourishing Sunday-schools. Nevertheless, there are still parishes in Norway without a single believer, and much ground still unoccupied. The Dissenting law spoken about is considered to be not in accordance with our times, and it forbids any persons who have been confirmed to leave the State Church before they have attained nineteen years of age. This is now to be altered, and the age reduced to fifteen. As we have now got a very liberal Government, it is hoped that this new law will soon be enacted.

SOUTH NORWOOD GOSPEL HALL AND COFFEE PALACE.—Dear Sir,—In the early summer I asked throughout your columns for £200 to enable us to go forward for the coming year. In response to that appeal, I have so far received £157 17s., and would most gratefully thank all the kind donors. A sum of about £50 is needed to carry us through the winter months, after which the coffee palace promises to be, to a large extent, self-supporting.—Yours faithfully, Algernon C. P. Coote.

12, Lancaster-road, South Norwood-park, S.E.

AN APPEAL TO THE LUMBER ROOM.—Dear Sir,—I have held for more than four years in my own house a Bible-class for young women every Sunday afternoon. During that time there have been in attendance more than 150 young women, whose ages are between 17 and 27; most of them engaged in shops or dress-making houses during the week. The average attendance quarter by quarter has been from 60 to 40. There has grown out of this class "a thrift society," many of the girls having become "capitalists" by means of the Post Office Savings Bank; "a Dorcas class," which meets every Tuesday evening, to work for those who are poorer than ourselves; and a lending library. I am now in a little difficulty, because I can no longer find them a room large enough for their meetings. I have therefore taken a little cottage, close by, which has one very large room with three bedrooms over. I want to furnish the large room as their class-room, with a table and chairs, and a bookshelf for their library; and I want to furnish the bedrooms also, so that any young woman of respectability needing a temporary lodging may make use of them. Some of your readers may have in their lumber-rooms just the kind of articles required. I shall be most glad to send fuller particulars and references to any kind friend who may be willing to help me in any way. Address, Mrs. Williams, General Post Office, Cheltenham.

A MISSION FOR THE SAVOYARDS.

SINCE September 9 I have been occupied each day, in the midst of charming weather, among the mountains and valleys of Savoy. I have been very much encouraged. For the 100,000 people who are supposed to form the population, so far as I can at present ascertain, there are only two Protestant pastors of the Eglise Reformée, and a few churches of the Eglise Libre of Lausanne. I shall never forget my welcome to Evian by old Pastor Hebmann. He has struggled and prayed there for sixteen years, and he looked on my visit as morning light for benighted Savoy. He has a son at Thonon, no less devoted, who must preach in a private room, partly for want of funds and also for the priestly determination to deter all holders of property from letting to Protestants.

I have penetrated to the other side by the valley of the Arve to Vallosin, a curious village on the road to Martigny; everywhere I have been well received, having distributed 500 Gospels chiefly in homes, or to householders, besides a vast quantity of tracts. The illustrated tracts of the Children's Special Service Mission have been a right hand to me, and opened many a door.

I have decided to open a Savoy Mission. What I propose to do first is to hire a room at Annemasse, a rising place, being the terminus for Geneva, and have a colporteur evangelist to operate on the south bank of the Lake of Geneva as far as Evian, helping young Pastor Hebmann in his work. Then at Chamonix, at the foot of Mont Blanc, I wish to have a room before the season begins when all nations send their daily freight to the snow mountain and the glaciers. The friends at Geneva have been most kind and considerate, and will give their aid in carrying out the Mission.

To found the Mission and keep the colporteur going for one year will cost £400. I shall be glad if Christian friends will send help to Mr. Dardier, Société Evangélique, 7, Rue Tabazan, Geneva. My work lies in Paris, but having opened the cause, I shall endeavour to direct it to the best of my ability. A French missionary just returned from Montreal, and able to speak both English and French, has offered his services, and they will be accepted as soon as the means are provided. To-morrow I resume my journey in another part of Savoy.

Alex. Donaldson.

Geneva, September 22.

"MOSES AND GEOLOGY."—The Queen has been pleased to accept a copy of the seventh edition of Dr. Samuel Kinns' work, "Moses and Geology," and Sir Henry Ponsonby has laid before Her Majesty copies of the letters from the eminent scientists who have re-examined this work, and testified to its accuracy and value.

BRANDON, MANITOBA.—A lady residing in this young city in the North-west states that some friends in connection with the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union which opened a Temperance Coffee and Reading-room where strangers can rest, read, and write home letters. She says that if any of our readers would send them good illustrated papers, magazines, J. B. Gough Tracts, &c., they would be conferring a great boon on the institution, which is the only counter-attraction in the place to the drinking and gaming saloons. We hope there will be a hearty response to our earnest correspondent's appeal. Address to W. C. T. U. Reading-room, Brandon, Manitoba, Canada.

A WINTER ATTRACTION.—A correspondent writes that magic-lantern exhibitions are found to be a most valuable agency for attracting the masses to hear the Gospel. An effort is being made to extend this work. A gentleman has kindly lent the whole of his valuable collection of slides. These have been arranged into sets, and are supplied to various places, the set being changed for another as often as needed. The winter season is again commencing, and there are many applications which it is impossible to meet. It may be that some of our readers have slides which are lying idly by which might be profitably used. Fuller particulars and references can be furnished on application to the honorary secretary, Miss M. E. Cheshire, 4, Campden Hill-terrace, Kensington. W.

SOME ENGLISH EXPORTS TO CHINA.

FROM A FRENCH POINT OF VIEW.

WHAT an odd people are these English! In the afternoon I read in the République Française that they have just commissioned the Agamemnon to the Chinese station, and at night I assisted at a meeting in the city where some dozen young men and women said their adieux before starting to preach the Gospel of Jesus in the heart of China. That is English all over. Ironclads, crammed with powder, shot, shell, torpedoes for the coast, and at the same time for the interior, missionaries with medicine and tracts, the Gospel and the bandage. For they are doctors or nurses, most of these young people, and they hope to convince the Chinese that they have a soul by showing that missionaries, in spite of their hymn-books and preachings, do at least know how to care for the body. In the last famine they told me they had kept I do not know how many Chinese alive, feeding them with food bought by English charity. As if there were not too many Chinese already in the world, for English people to spend money in keeping some hundreds out of their graves for a few years longer!

The leave-taking in the city was a curious ceremony. There were two or three hundred men and women of all classes, shop-girls and clerks and working people for the most part, English of the most English type—pious, commonplace, just like others who are commonplace but not pious, whom you see every day in the shops and counting-houses of the city. Yet these simple creatures, to whom your own philosophers would not listen, and whose dialect your literati deride as the antiquated shibboleth of an effete superstition, are sending a dozen of their own number thousands of miles across sea and land to lead an assault upon a civilisation that was hoary when your Alfred was not yet born, and upon a religion that was venerable centuries before their Jesus was crucified by the Romans. The Chinese can understand the thunder of your ironclads—yes, and perhaps succumb to the seduction of your opium; but do you think that a philosophy that has sufficed 200 millions of men for twenty centuries will be overcome by the texts and the pills of these young apostles?

It was pathetic, that meeting. To see these young girls stand up and in low whispers confide the secret of their souls to all the people. There was one—an Irish lady, I believe—who has already three sisters trying to convert the Chinese, and another sister is soon to follow. That family at least has done its duty and something more to the Chinese. It was strange to hear these girls telling quite simply, as other girls would tell of their first ball, or a love affair, how they experienced a mystic change of heart, and how they had heard the voice of the Invisible and Infinite, and how they were going to China to live, and perhaps to die, lone units in the midst of unknown millions of heathens, in obedience to this inaudible call. Poor things, they know not the language, they realise nothing of the fears, the privations, the atmosphere solid with unbelief. What is all that to them? They are illuminées, these girls; Joans of Arc of the nineteenth century. God has spoken to them. They have not the stigmata; they live in the busy world, but they are as exaltées as any visionary disciple of St. Theresa. Their talk is in the phrases of the Testament; they have heard the call to China. Why not? Did not Paul hear the cry to Macedonia? and are not all the English potential Pauls? The English think so. Nor is your Gordon so peculiar in his hallucinations as some say.

One after another of the girls rose and explained how it came to pass they were leaving friends, and home, and country for toil in a country where they are not welcome, and where it is possible enough, thanks to our policy of reprisals, that the Chinese mob may retort by massacring all the foreign devils within reach. It was all the same. They had heard a Voice. They had stumbled against a text, or some preacher had roused a restless craving to go and lose themselves in the myriad Orient. How odd it all seemed. Just outside was the Bank, the great temple where is enshrined the only god you really worship. A little further down the street was the Post-office, with the telegraph wires pulsating with news from all countries. Over the way was the office of the Times, the daily scripture of the Englishman: and here were these enthusiasts justifying in the jargon of the Puritans the exploits of Don Quixote.

One of the young people going out interested me much, and indeed it was he that attracted me to the place of this strange experience. Young he was and fair, with the frank, fearless, open face of an English boy. Years ago I had met him in the Avenue de l'Opera, at Paris, and few were the corners of our gay city that we did not visit together. How full of spirits he was, the young Englishman, young "Spectacle," as we used to call him, from the sensation he produced by his bicycling costume, then a novelty in our streets. A bright, laughing lad, full of glee and kindly mirth, how came he to abandon the bicycle which he adored, the home which he loved, his friends who were all proud of him, on this madcap errand? He was then in a stock-broker's office, an attendant of your Bourse. Afterwards he went to Oxford for study, and I heard no more of him until I saw the printed notice of his early departure, and I came to say farewell. There he was, as bright as ever, with the same laughing smile in his eyes, but behind it all a subdued earnestness alone that was new. And when he spoke it was the same Spectacle—frank, fearless, unreserved. He told us all how he also—that young stock-broker—had heard the voice of the Invisible calling him to work for Him and the souls perishing for lack of Him. And he told how he had asked for guidance as to where he should go and work, and how, like all his kind, he turned to the pages written by old Jews two thousand years ago, and found there, as in a kind of spiritual Bradshaw, directions where he had to go. And finding these directions written plain, he went; and yesterday he sailed with his sister and a dozen more to bury himself amid the heathen hordes of far Cathay. And why? "To free his soul from blood-guiltiness," he said. And yet he had not made the opium war! Ah, well, let us hope that the Chinese will appreciate so much unsought enthusiasm for their poor souls, which they do not even believe they possess!—Pall Mall Gazette.

BRITISH SYRIAN SCHOOLS.—Writing from Beyrout, Syria, Mrs. Mentor Mott informs us of the death, within one month, of two valued helpers in the work—Mualim Esau, teacher in the school for the blind, and Mualima Sauda Chouri, a Bible woman. The latter leaves six children, the eldest of whom is in the training institution of the Mission. Mrs. Mott asks if any friend will adopt the second girl, and earnestly commends the work of the Mission to the sympathies of our readers at this time.

CITY BIBLE FLOWER MISSION.—During the last month, when so many of the workers were absent, the work went on steadily, and the Lord divided the spoil among those who tarried at home. Besides our ordinary work, we have been called upon for help in visiting the hop-pickers, and 500 texts have been just despatched to a City Missionary who is already on the ground. The return of autumn reminds us that new friends may be glad to know how they can best help as flowers become scarce. Everlasting flowers, made up with evergreen or dried grasses and leaves, are almost as welcome as the fresh flowers. Lavender bags, pin cushions, and fancy cards, ornamented with scraps, dried flowers, or sea-weeds, always leaving room for a whole text; also painted cards, &c., &c. (specimens of which may be had on application to the Hon. Secretary, at the Depôt), are good winter stock. Berries, mosses, acorns, autumn leaves, carrot tops, and the feathery foliage of the asparagus, are at the present season most acceptable.—Yours faithfully,

ANNE DOVE, Hon. Supt.

110, Cannon-street, E.C.

THE TRACT.

"In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand, for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good."—ECCL. xi. 6.

A HAPPY Christian sowed one day
Seedlings for souls on life's highway.
One reached a woman worn with sin—
A wreck without, a wreck within;
Deep branded with the mark of shame,
And dying, as she slowly came
Where lay the tract. An angel voice
Had surely whispered: "Look; rejoice,
Good news for sinners, help for thee;
The Saviour cries, Come unto Me."

She stooped to take the missive, read
With streaming tears and aching head.
"This Man lost sinners doth receive,
This Christ will pardon; stop, believe;
Still open stands the mercy-gate,
Enter thou lost one, ere too late."

"For me! for me!" she murmured low,
Pressing her thin hands to her brow;
"The world has long cast out my name,
A target for its scorn and blame
I long have been. Is God so kind?
Will Christ give light to eyes so blind
With sin and evil? Lord, I come!"
She cried: "I have no earthly home,
I come to Thee, for I had thought
To die uncared for and unsought;
But since Thou callest me, I'll rest
This worn head on Thy loving breast."

That act of faith for her sufficed,
Straight gathered to the heart of Christ,
Sin was forgiven, her soul made white
Through one small tract, in one hour's flight.

The happy Christian dreamed that night
A soul all luminous and bright
With God's own glory, stood beside
Her couch, and spoke of One who died
For sinners; adding, "By and by
A crown, whose lustre dims the eye
Of mortals, thou shalt surely wear;
And midst its gems of lustre rare
A jewel shines, but lately placed
By Him thy spirit hath embraced;
My soul received in heaven to-day,
Through thy seed sown on life's highway."

LAURA BACKLES.

CORRECTION.—A correspondent in Denmark writes: "Permit me to correct a misstatement in your report of the Conference at Copenhagen, p. 28, col. 3, line 24, 25, in your issue of Sept. 11. It was not said 'the Society for Preaching the Gospel in Foreign Parts,' but 'the Society for Preaching the Gospel to Danish Sailors in Foreign Ports,' which is quite a different thing. 'Norway,' line 26, should be 'Denmark.'"

SOUTHSEA MISSION, PORTSMOUTH.—Having secured a new tent that will seat about 400 people, for Gospel services on Southsea Common, we commenced on May 16 last, and continued until September 16, during which time 175 meetings were held. Often from 300 to 400 would be gathered, listening attentively to the good news of salvation. The Lord has given blessing in the conversion of precious souls, the restoration of backsliders, and a blessing to many of his own people. We have now returned in full earnest to our halls for the winter work. JOHN DENNING.

Ebenezer Cottage, Inglis-road, Haverlock-park, Southsea.

PUBLIC-HOUSE VISITATION.—The missionary employed in visiting Bath public-houses is in great need of tracts for free distribution. The success that this Mission has attained is really wonderful. Several open-air services have been held at the request of the landlords themselves, and they have sent out chairs, and stood by to hear the Gospel preached. On one occasion from two to three hundred people were collected together under the shadow of the public-house! Some of the landlords also have now given up the business altogether, but even when they have not done this, and are favourable to the missionary, it makes the work much easier for him, and the people will generally gladly take tracts if they see the landlord does so. V. M. SKINNER.

5, St. James'-square, Bath.

AT TEA WITH THE GUARDS.

WITHOUT raising any questions as to the lawfulness of war or the consistency of Christians becoming soldiers, we may take it for granted that there can be no possible objection to turning soldiers into Christians. Whether they afterwards remain in the army or feel constrained to get out of it, does not affect the duty of the Church to evangelise them. Everybody knows hat in time of peace soldiers, from the necessities of their position, are open to special and exceptional temptations; in time of war they are exposed to special dangers. All the more need for bringing to bear on them the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Readers of the daily papers are now familiar with the fact that a certain proportion of the regiments composing "the Guards" have been drafted for service in Egypt as a "Camel Corps." Having received an invitation to be present at a "Farewell tea-meeting for the Guards," at 327, Vauxhall Bridge-road, on Tuesday evening last week, our representative was glad to respond. By the time he reached the place of meeting, the red-coats had begun to assemble in the back room, which does duty as a Mission-hall for Ex-Staff-Sergeant Masters, who superintends the work. We noticed that among the stalwart fellows sitting on the forms there were some white coats. On asking the reason for this distinction, we were told that in their case the regimental uniform had already been packed ready for the long journey to Egypt, and they were therefore obliged to appear in undress. When the last straggler had come in, the number of soldiers present did not exceed forty, we should think. That did not seem many out of the 4000 Guardsmen always resident in the various London barracks, but on the eve of a foreign campaign there must have been many calls upon their time. Some were, doubtless, well occupied, and others very much the contrary. We noticed in the papers that one of the departing Camel Corps had been arrested that same night, if we recollect rightly, for robbing two young women, while another had jumped into the Serpentine and saved a man's life.

Not a great deal can be said about the little meeting itself. Plenty of time was given to the consumption of tea, bread and butter, and cake. We were glad to observe that the men had excellent appetites, and enjoyed the hospitality of the kind lady at whose invitation they were there, and who was herself the leading spirit of the interesting occasion. We are sorry we are not permitted to mention her name. The soldiers also seemed to enjoy and appreciate the Gospel address that followed from a ministerial friend, who, in a brotherly way, and with tremendous earnestness, discoursed on the new birth and the simplicity of saving faith. At the close there was a good deal of serious personal conversation, and we may cherish the hope that real, influential work was done.

A remarkable circumstance was mentioned by Mr. Masters in the course of the evening. A similar meeting was held, he said, at the commencement of the last Egyptian campaign. They prayed to God that no hurt might befall any of those present. When the campaign ended it was found that not a single man out of those who had ever attended the Mission-hall had been touched by the bullets of the enemy. Presuming that many of these good fellows were Christians, and therefore better prepared for death than their ungodly comrades, we did not feel quite sure about the propriety of their praying for special protection; anyhow, it seemed the prayer was fully answered.

This Mission in Vauxhall-bridge-road to the London soldiers is a very important one, and we should like to take this opportunity of commending it to the notice and hearty sympathy of our readers. Sergeant Masters, who is at the head of it, left the service of the Queen some two and a half years ago, at considerable pecuniary sacrifice, in order to devote himself to Gospel work among his old comrades. He has been fortunate in securing the co-operation of several Christian ladies, who give much time and personal effort, as well as money, to the furtherance of the work. Many of the men were induced to attend Messrs. Moody and Sankey's meetings in different parts of London. Towards the end of last year Sergeant Pullinger (himself a Christian soldier of many years' standing) was appointed as missionary, and carries on, with official sanction, a valuable work of daily visitation in the London barracks. A lady interested in the work has just become responsible for the maintenance of a third worker, who, in addition to his other duties, may look after the men when at Aldershot, &c., in the summer months.

We cannot better close this brief notice than by quoting the words of a correspondent with respect to the Mission:—"The blessing of the Lord has attended it in a very marked manner, as I am able to testify from a close personal acquaintance with the work. If its very self-denying and real character were known, I think Christian people would be glad to come forward and support it. Sergeant Masters is often much crippled for want of funds, and I am sorry to say this is the case just now. The openings are immense, and with the needed means much more might be done."

SAINTS IN THE SANCTUARY.

SEEDS GATHERED

AT THE SALISBURY CONFERENCE

BY A BIRD OF PASSAGE.

THE tenth Conference at Salisbury has come and gone. It lasted but three days, Sept. 23—26, or, more strictly, seven or eight hours in each day. Yet who knows how far its echoes will reverberate, how long its dainties will feed souls, how many may trace to it their everlasting salvation, or the moulding of their life-work?

I am commissioned to give a bird's-eye view of what I saw, and, if I may invent the phrase, a bird's-ear report of what I heard. Such a view and report must necessarily be partial and imperfect.

Our place of meeting is full of interest. No visitor can help admiring the wide and busy market-place, the quaint old houses, the noble Cathedral, and the picturesque mound of Old Sarum. That ancient book—the Sarum Missal—perhaps occurred to many minds, though I feel sure that the Bishop of souls looks with far greater pleasure on the simple records of ten Salisbury Conferences.

Of sanctuaries we had more than one. On Monday night the key-note of the Conference, "Christ our Saviour and Sanctifier," was struck in Fisherton Church by Rev. Talbot Greaves. The general meetings were held at Maundrel Hall, which, like the Ark, is lighted from above, and richly bordered with the words of life. The early prayer-meetings were held in the Y.W.C.A. sitting-room; the social mid-day meals took place in "a large upper room," blessedly reminding us of Christ and his early Church.

The general plan of the Conference may be summed up in four words—simplicity, variety, liberty, unity. No time was wasted in introducing speakers. A Christian brother spoke, and as brothers and sisters in Christ we listened. What variety we had! Every community that loves and honours Christ crucified was there represented, and not a few of earth's races. Watchful eyes could see amongst us "devout Jews and dwellers in Mesopotamia." Christian workers of all ranks, and in manifold ways, were there. Men and women who, for the Gospel's sake, had "hazarded their lives" in the uttermost parts of the earth.

On the first day the subject was "Sonship: its Privileges." Very clear and weighty were the words of Rev. Talbot Greaves. Very telling was the illustration from photography by Rev. Lindsay Young. Very comforting were the few words of the venerable Earl of Cavan. But when Bishop Hannington ended his simple and touching picture of what the believer's child-life might, and ought to be, there was hardly a dry eye in the hall.

In the afternoon, good George Holland rejoiced our hearts with bright stories of his work among the wretched, the drunkard, and the fatherless; and Mr. R. C. Morgan gave some valuable thoughts on "Satan, as the Prince of this World."

In the evening, Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton, happily connected the believer's peace in heaven through Christ, with the peace on earth that may be enjoyed; while Mr. Lindsay Young warned all against that "peace of the devil" which rests only an circumstances.

The second day the subject was, "Saintship: its Separation." None will easily forget Capt. West's comparison between the Romish saint canonised fifty years after death by man, and the Christian saint sanctified for ever by the Holy Ghost at the moment of conversion. Very searching, too, were his comments on Paul's unanswerable questions in 2 Cor. vi. 14 to 16: What fellowship, what part, what agreement, what concord, hath the temple of God with idols?

Rev. J. J. Luce, of Gloucester, vividly repainted the well-remembered Academy picture, "Christ or Diana?" Did not every blood-sprinkled saint of God cry silently but resolutely, "Christ for me! Christ for me!"

During the afternoon Mr. Figgis gave a valuable Bible reading on "The Clean Heart." After Rev. J. Hudson Taylor had manfully and movingly pleaded for China's millions, Mr. Stanley Smith seconded the appeal with the forcible argument, "I have given myself."

In the evening, the subject of "Power" was vigorously set before us in connection with the written Word, by Rev. E. Frith; as proceedings from the Holy Ghost, by Pastor F. White; as manifested in believers, by Messrs. Bradbury and Figgis.

The third day's subject was "Stewardship: its Responsibility." Different as were the styles of our brethren, Lord Monteagle, Rev. J. Ormiston, Rev. Graham Thwaites, and Pastor Frank White, the Spirit led them to one solemn conclusion—that all believers are stewards, and that God requires in the matter of their stewardship fidelity; in the manner, diligence; in the motive, purity.

In the afternoon Rev. J. Wilkinson gave a deeply-interesting account of the late Jewish movement in South Russia, which was referred to in The Christian of September 4.

In the evening the subject was "Perfection at the appearing of Jesus Christ." Taking advantage of the last four words, Mr. Wilkinson placed before us the Lord's return as the day of perfection. Rev. F. Baldey reminded us that at the Cross perfection must begin, and Mr. Luce entreated all to "perfect holiness in the fear of God."

One word about the mid-day meals. They were like those of the pilgrims at the Interpreter's House, or with "Gaius, mine host." After dinner, during dessert, our president would call on brothers or sisters to give a short account of special work to which the Lord had called them. None might speak for more than ten minutes; some were limited to five. In this pleasant way, however, we picked up much interesting information about Miss Lloyd's work among female prisoners, Miss Mason's Rest for Christian Workers, Captain West's Bible-carriage, Mrs. Fyffe's Monthly Letters to Soldiers, Mr. Wilkinson's School for Jewish Children, and many other agencies of equal interest.

At last, on Friday, 26th, came the Praise-meeting. Our hearts were uplifted by a few stirring words on 2 Chron. xx. 24—30, and such hyms as "I feel like singing all the time." Then came individual thanksgivings. One praised the Lord in a verse of Scripture, another in his own words, a third in the lines of a hymn. Deacon Abraham sang the praises of our Lord in the very tongue He spoke while on earth. Some humbly confessed their shortcomings, and several dedicated themselves as "thank-offerings" to special branches of the Master's work.

Letters to the Editor.

INQUIRIES.

Dear Sir,—Can any of your readers inform me if Napoleon Roussel's Tracts on Romanism are still to be had, and if so where? If my memory serves me right, they are pointed, pungent, and attractive, and might be circulated now-a-days with advantage. T.

Sir,—In the published report of the addresses delivered at the late Mildmay Conference, page 96, the chairman (Mr. S. A. Blackwood) is said to have opened the proceedings on Friday morning, June 27, by reminding the assembly of three "verses," the second of which is thus given: "The words of the wise are heard in quietness." Will you, or any of your readers, kindly inform me where this verse is to be found? I do not remember having read it in the Bible, and the Concordance gives no help in the search. R.

[Our correspondent will find the passage in Eccl. ix. 17. The report of the Conference does not appear to give the exact words of the verse, which runs thus: "The words of wise men are heard in quiet, more than the cry of him that ruleth among fools."]

NAVVIES AT HULL.

Sir,—You kindly inserted a letter from Mrs. Garnett last month, pleading for the starving navvies thrown out of work by the stoppage of the Hull and Barnsley Rail. On behalf of the Dean of Ripon, Mrs. Garnett, Mrs. Sleight, and the Rev. C. F. Ockford, it is my pleasing duty to thank you for throwing open your columns, and the many subscribers who have so generously responded.

The total amount received up to the present time is £1226 11s. 1d. During the distress, which unfortunately still continues, there has been distributed 2240lbs. of beef, 2480lbs. of bacon, 4290lbs. cheese, 8296 loaves, 1840 grocery tickets, at a shilling each. Free teas have been given to 3960 adults, and free dinners to 4970 children, and relief has been given to many special sick cases. Forty-seven men have been assisted to getting employment, at a cost of £18 1s. 4d. The sum of £18 19s. 7d. has been expended on meat for soup, and £4 7s. 3d. for vegetables.

The relief still continues to be given as before, Mrs. Sleight seeing that the most needy get most help. I cannot close this letter without expressing the deep sense of gratitude that the navvies feel towards their unknown benefactors.—Faithfully yours,

Arthur Tupman,
Hon. Treasurer Navvy Mission Society.

South Grange, Ripon, Sept. 22.

VILLAGE NEEDS.

Dear Sir,—Your article in last week's Christian about "village work" is quite true. I fear, with respect to a vast number of my brethren in the ministry, the statements cannot be refuted. In this parish, though there is much to discourage, there are a few gleams of sunshine. Here we have a parish six miles long and three miles broad, with no village, but two hamlets, and the rest of the population (1500 in all) all scattered. The bulk of the inhabitants are agricultural, and feel the hard times.

The parish church meets the needs of the good walkers, &c.; schoolroom services help the weaker ones who cannot walk some two miles; but Partridge Green, where our largest hamlet is situated, is two miles from the church and three quarters of a mile from the school. We have just had an iron Mission-room offered, and we are anxious to secure it, and place it in the midst of this hamlet. It holds 100 persons comfortably. Our wish is to have it open every day as a Mission-room for evangelistic and Temperance purposes; also to use it for the working-men, to help to draw them from the public-house. The majority of people from Partridge Green attend the schoolroom service on Sunday evening, but many elderly and infirm have not been able to join us at all. It is not intended to supersede the schoolroom service, but to use this room more especially during the week. We are anxious to avail ourselves of the winter evenings now approaching, to remove the room at once. It is supposed that some £60 will cover the cost of purchase and erection.—Yours sincerely,

Geo. S. Brewer, Curate.

Partridge Green, Sussex.

SPIRITUAL DESTITUTION IN CANADA.

Dear Sir,—I read with considerable surprise the letter of your correspondent, "S. M.," in your last issue, from Halifax, Nova Scotia. My experience, arising from a residence in that city for upwards of half a century, by no means corroborates the conclusions "S. M." has arrived at. I cannot speak so confidently of the state of Montreal and Ottawa, having only visited those cities occasionally. But with respect to Halifax, I think my long residence there qualifies me to speak with at least as much authority as one year's stay qualifies "S. M." to express an opinion.

"Were we dying to-morrow," says your correspondent, "there is not a minister or clergyman whom we should think it worth while sending for. We refer especially to Halifax and Ottawa." This is a terrible indictment if true. A community of which so startling a statement could be truthfully affirmed would certainly be characterised by its utter abandonment to vice and wickedness. I can only say that my experience entirely conflicts with that of your correspondent. I could put my hand on more than a dozen clergymen and ministers who faithfully and earnestly preach the Gospel, not only in the Episcopal Church, but in the Presbyterian, Wesleyan, and Baptist churches, whose names could easily be given, but it would be invidious to do so.

That their ministrations are distinguished by "deadness, indifference, and startling apathy" may be best judged by the results, as certainly as a tree may be known by its fruits. I have no hesitation in saying that I know no community in this or any other country which, in proportion to its size, maintains so many charitable and religious institutions as Halifax. There is an admirable Asylum for the Blind; an equally good one for the Deaf and Dumb; a Boys' Industrial School; a Girls' Industrial Home; an Orphan Asylum; a Home for Aged Females; a Sailors' Home; a Religious Tract and Book Colportage Society; a harbour missionary, who boards every vessel entering the port; several city missionaries; a Young Men's Christian Association in a very flourishing condition, and others which I cannot at this moment recall. But these are sufficient to show that the Christianity of Halifax is not of so utterly dead and worthless a nature as your correspondent would have us believe.

I should add that the population of Halifax is about 40,000, of whom, by the last census, one-half are Roman Catholics; so that all he above-named evidences of the reality of their faith are due to a population of but 20,000 Protestants. I have not expressed my own opinion of the vitality of the religion of that population, as it would be merely my judgment opposed to that of your correspondent. I have thought it best to let their works speak for them.—Your obedient servant,

Canadensis.

THE IDOLATRY OF MUSIC.

Sir,—I was pleased, on taking up The Christian of this week, to find that "A Lover of Music" has given airing to a subject which has been too long overlooked in our places of worship. It is not my intention to go into the rights and wrongs of the subject, but a few plain facts may, or ought to, open the eyes of both our ministers and fellow-Christians.

Take, first of all, paid choirs, consisting of men and boys, cassocked and surpliced: you will find the boys, in nineteen cases out of twenty, to be the worst behaved boys at service, as well as away from it. They feel they have a special license to be bad. Then the senior members: you will also find that the same percentage "have no fear of God before their eyes," but (from experience I speak) are guilty of all manner of evil and vice. A leading choirman in one of our cathedrals is, I know from acquaintance, an infidel, and yet daily goes to sing praises to God! What mockery!

Turning from paid to voluntary choirs in churches or dissenting places of worship, you will find much evil there, even though all profess to be serving one Master, Christ the Lord. The choir commences well, but after a time jealousies, envyings, and strifes soon take the place of Christian charity. Nature has given one a better voice than another; he or she is soon picked out for solos, then the devil quickly gets a footing, and things go on from bad to worse. This is no picture of the imagination; these things exist, and if any of your readers can inform me of the choir that has no such dissensions in it, I should be glad to know it. Is it right that such things should be tolerated in the worship of God?—Yours very truly,

Holloway, Sept. 27. An Organist.

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me a little space in your columns in reply to your Canadian correspondent on "The Idolatry of Music" in our churches? It is a source of pain, regret, and objection to me, the present plan or mode of music in many, I am sorry to say, Nonconformist churches. However, in Mr. Spurgeon's church it is different. One's heart is made quite glad at the earnest, simple, hearty congregational singing there—the evident "making melody to the Lord" in it. And as this is such a large centre of influence, it is all the more a cause for thanksgiving that it retains a Christian simplicity in its "Service of Song."

What are rather quiet, unimportant members of churches to do about things which pain the heart thus? Being a minister's daughter, I find myself often jealous, as I believe, for the Lord God, about things so differently done now from what my dear father did. So many hymns of such a different tendency, sung so quickly one after another, that the prayers in between are ordered to be short—so little reading of the Word of God, and no dwelling upon it, and the singing often seeming a display, rather than serious earnestness of thanksgiving to Jehovah. My father had a richly musical voice, and could set the tunes himself at our prayer meetings. I often long even now for those days over again, and the serious earnestness and all-pervading power of the Lord the Holy Spirit "present to heal," that was our usual experience in those blessed services.

As it is, an earnest spirit of prayer for a fresh baptism of the Holy Spirit to be poured out upon our churches and our pastors, is what I feel to be my duty and work in the matter, at present. I cannot help enjoying much more quite illiterate and discordant singing amongst a very few disciples who meet in small and plain rooms, but who evidently are seeking to worship the Lord "in spirit and in truth," and who shun worldly conformity as you would the plague.

I am very fond of music, and we always sang a good deal in our home, but it was always by precept and example taught us, for "the praise and glory of God." Is there not a fear lest in these days we put pleasure in the wrong place?—Yours most truly, A Minister's Daughter.

THE STUDY OF GREEK AND HEBREW.

Dear Sir,—Let me call the attention of those of your readers who are resident in or near London to the advantages of the Sunday-school Union classes for the study of Greek and Hebrew. Intended for the benefit of Sunday-school teachers, these classes are nevertheless open to all who desire to attain some acquaintance with the Scriptures in their original tongues. The fees are merely nominal; and attendance at a winter's course of lessons in either language will give a very appreciable grip of one or the other. Having profited by these classes myself, I am anxious that others should be "partakers of the benefit."

The Hebrew class meets at 7.30 on Thursdays, and the Greek class at 7.30 on Mondays, at the Sunday-school Union, 56, Old Bailey.

John R. Cheyse.

12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

ROSSLYN MISSION, HORNSEY-ROAD.—This Mission was started some few years since in Barnsbury, and continued in Islington. We have now secured a hall and suitable premises for the extension and continuance of the same in a very thickly-populated part of Hornsey. The Lord has blessed the work in the ingathering of souls, and the extension of his kingdom. There are willing and efficient workers, and much more could be done if the funds at our disposal were sufficient. Aid in money or left-off clothing may be sent to the Superintendent, Miss Garnet, 32, Westbourne-road, Barnsbury, N.

MAJOR AND MRS. EVERED POOLE visited Exeter, Teignmouth, and Dawlish, after leaving Stafford, in the interests both of the Army Scripture Readers' Society and of Gospel Temperance. The market hall at Teignmouth was crowded on Friday last to welcome the evangelists, who some eighteen months ago conducted a most successful Mission in the town. The meeting was a most impressive one, Mrs. Evered Poole rendering at the close the effective solo, "Not my own," from The Christian Choir. Major Poole speaks at Exeter on Thursday, and at Portland Castle on Monday, October 6, to the soldiers, by special invitation of Colonel Carey and Colonel Marshall, commanding the district. On Tuesday, October 7, Major Poole speaks at Dorchester, and on Wednesday he and Mrs. Poole leave for the Channel Islands, where Major Poole will conduct all meetings, Mrs. Evered Poole being unable to speak.

Notices of Books, &c.

Contemplative Gleanings, by George Windley (Richard Poole, High-street, Maldon), is a small collection of poetical meditations on various themes. The thoughts are fresh, and vigorously expressed in flowing and rhythmical verse.

The Uncanonical and Apocryphal Scriptures. Edited by the Rev. R. W. Churton, B.D. London: J. Whittaker. 7s. 6d. This is a really useful and valuable volume for divinity students. Uncanonical and uninspired, the Apocryphal Books of the Old Testament period are yet of great historical value, and throw light upon many points of Biblical importance and interest. Canon Churton has produced an edition which may be justly spoken of as complete and unique. Each book is prefaced by an introduction giving all that can be ascertained as to its date and authorship, and containing critical references to its contents. A corrected text, together with copious marginal references, forms another feature of a volume which should find a place in every theological library, and on every Bible-student's table.

SOME OCTOBER MAGAZINES.

Old Jonathan (1d. Collingridge) runs a close race with its many competitors, for the entertainment and instruction of old and young.

Our Own Magazine (1d. 48, Paternoster-row) holds its unique place as an earnest and attractive advocate for the spiritual welfare of the young.

The Sentinel (1d. Dyer Bros.) pursues a straight and courageous path in "the exposition and advancement of public morality, and the suppression of vice." It ought to receive the heartiest support of all social reformers.

The Illustrated English Magazine (6d. Macmillan & Co.) begins its second volume with an instalment of a clever story from the pen of "Hugh Conway." The paper on Loch Fyne is capitally illustrated. We scarcely know how to characterise "The Spiritual Romance," by Mr. Shorthouse. Readers must extract from it what they can.

The Quiver (6d. Cassell & Co.) preserves its high standard, giving in their due proportions, sermon, story, sketch, and song. The programme for the new volume, which commences with the November part, is a very full and varied one. While the editor can summon to his aid such a splendid roll-call of eminent authors he need not fear any falling off in his constituency.

Messrs. Partridge & Co.—What with their sprightly stories and splendid pictures, the monthlies sent out by this firm are always welcome visitors to the juvenile members of the household. Beginning at the bottom, we have The Infant's Magazine (1d.), which gives a very pretty engraving of four grandchildren of Mr. Gladstone. The Children's Friend (1d.) is rich in first-rate pictures, and so is The Family Friend (1d.), which also contains excellent fireside reading. The Friendly Visitor (1d.), with its large, well printed letterpress, is well suited for failing sight. The Band of Hope Review (½d.), The British Workman, and The Welcome all amply sustain their high reputation. Among the portraits in the last-named are Joseph Livesey and Rev. Dr. Greeves. A story by Mrs. Haycraft, the scene of which is laid at the Health Exhibition, and a short article on "Some Rejected Manuscripts," strike us as being of exceptional interest.

Messrs. Cassell & Co.'s Serials.—Several of the current issues by this firm conclude the volumes. Greater London (part 24, 7d.) and The World of Wonders (part 24, 6d.) bring to a close two most interesting and readable serials. The Magazine of Art (1s.), with a rich treasury of exquisite engravings and descriptive letterpress, closes the yearly volume. The History of Protestantism (8½d.) terminates the first volume of this reissue, and gives index for binding. The Encyclopædic Dictionary (part 9, 1s.) continues to give lucid and exhaustive statements of the origin, meaning, and application of the words that compose our mother tongue. Cassell's Household Guide (part 6, 6d.) gives many a practical treatise on domestic economy. Great Industries of Great Britain (part 7, 7d.) unfolds something of the secret of our national strength and importance in the markets of the world. The other serials we have received, each full of its peculiar interest, are Old and New London, The Countries of the World, The Peoples of the World, Doré's Illustrated Bible (7d. each), and Familiar Garden Flowers (6d.)

Many readers of The Sunday Magazine (6d. Isbister & Co.) will turn to Mrs. Garnett's able and discriminating sketch of the Salvation Army Training Home at Clapton. While seeing much to admire, she greatly deplores the absence of adequate attention to scriptural study in the cadet's brief curriculum. Good Words does not contain any paper of striking merit this month, if we except the tale "Between Heather and Sea."

CONTINENTAL AND FOREIGN NOTES.

Mr. Weylland's "Fifty Years of London City Mission Work" has been, in an abbreviated form, translated into German and published at Elberfeld.

Sunday-Schools in Belgium.—The Chrétien Belge gives several very encouraging facts of the good done to whole families through little children who attend missionary Sunday-schools, which are carried on by Protestants in the midst of Roman Catholic populations in Belgium.

Pastor Vernier writes to a friend in England some most cheering details of recent evangelistic efforts in the west of France, in connection with the McAll Mission. During a missionary tour lately completed at St. Etienne (Loire), he saw a really wonderful revival movement among the people.

A Large Shooting Contest took place this summer at Leipzig. The local journals state that on this occasion pawn tickets for 1,125,000 francs were issued in one week to those who wished to amuse themselves at the fête. From this some notion may be formed of the material and moral misery which these continually multiplying fêtes entail.

Zambesi Mission.—The Journal des Missions Evangeliques also contains a long and cheery letter from Mr. and Mrs. Coillard, written May 25, at Kane, en route for the Zambesi. They had experienced much difficulty in travelling, but much kindness was shown them on the journey, and many valuable presents of oxen, sheep, milch cows, poultry, &c., were made by native chiefs and European friends. Kane is the Beersheba of the desert. They found seven wells there; but as there are no springs, in a few years these wells will be dry.

In the Haute Loire a religious work of great promise is quietly going on. Three or four Catholics have become not only Protestants, but Christians. A colporteur has held meetings of thirty or forty persons in the midst of an entirely Catholic population, and all his books were sold in a twinkling. The male population here, as in so many other parts of France, is almost entirely detached from the Catholic worship, and if an evangelist were fixed in Brionde there is every probability that many would take part in Protestant services.

Tract Distribution is exciting much opposition from the Belgian priests. The little Protestant books are denounced from the pulpit, and one priest near Dinant went from house to house offering five cents for every tract given to him. Whatever many may think, it is evident that the enemy dreads this broadcast sowing of the seed of the kingdom. The offer of a tract often leads to the purchase of the New Testament. During the past year 14,700 tracts were given away in Brussels. Pastor Nicolet has begun, by their means, a Mission among cab-drivers at Liège. The young men also are using them, as far as their limited means permit, for evangelisation by post.

St. Servan, France.—We are sustaining a great loss in the departure from this neighbourhood of a family who have for some years carried on classes both for men and women, a Sunday-school, and fortnightly a Gospel meeting in their kitchen for the poor French of the quarter, which is about a mile from the town of St. Servan. Will you kindly make known this opening in The Christian, as at this season many families are seeking a winter residence abroad and a sphere of Christian work. The climate is most healthy. The house which my friends are leaving will accommodate a small family, but there are smaller residences to be had in the neighbourhood. For further details address Mrs. Irwin, La Tréhérais, St. Servan, Ille et Vilaine, France.—Yours very truly,

A. D. Fraser.

2, Rue Jacques Castier, St. Servan.

CHOOSING A MAGISTRATE.

At the end of last year it became necessary to choose a new chief or magistrate on the Gold Coast. The natives selected a Christian, Joseph Bosompon, who was not willing to accept the post, "fearing to lose his faith." He being "a man without fear, and without reproach, and universally esteemed, would be sure to be obeyed," so the missionary was requested to use his influence with him. After a "palaver," Joseph made known the conditions on which he would accept the post. These were four:—

(1) All heathen ceremonies to be dispensed with.

(2) Should the laws of the country be contrary to Christian principles, then English legislation should be recognised.

(3) Abolition of the practice of offering intoxicating drinks to those chiefs appointed to execute justice.

(4) The usual worship of the throne of a defunct chief to be dispensed with.

The first three conditions were readily accepted, and found to be natural as coming from a Christian, but the fourth excited lively opposition. The omission of the usual ceremony would, it was said, be followed by much misfortune. But Joseph was immovable, and finally it was decided that the throne should be confided to the care of the Presbytery, who undertook to guard it. This is the first Christian chosen as magistrate.—Chrétien Belge.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr. W. R Bradlaugh has conducted a series of successful evangelistic meetings at Wishaw, N.B.

Mr. S. A. Blackwood has been actively engaged in Gospel work during a holiday sojourn in the Scottish Highlands.

Rhyl, North Wales.—Colonel T. Smith, of co. Dublin, writes:—"Having been at Rhyl for a short time in September, I had much pleasure in attending the meetings held by Mr. Lloyd, of Dublin, and hearing the very earnest addresses given by him on the sands in connection with the Children's Special Service Mission. The attendance of both children and adults was very numerous on each occasion, and among the hearers were ministers of different denominations, and there were signs of much regret that the meetings were brought to a close.

Messrs. Fullerton and Smith.—These well-known evangelists began a short series of meetings at Selkirk, N.B., on Monday, September 15, which have resulted in much spiritual blessing to the community. Many never before seen in evangelistic meetings were present. Anxious inquirers were spoken to each night, and not a few were led to put their trust in Christ. The work, so far as the evangelists were concerned, was brought to a close on Friday, the 19th inst., but the interest manifested was so great that it was agreed, with the help of the various ministers, to continue the work for another week. The special feature of the work has been a revival of zeal amongst Christians, which it is hoped will lead to still further blessing. Robert Little.

3, Murrayfield-cottages, Selkirk.

Exeter.—Few laymen are labouring more earnestly or, perhaps, with more success in spiritual matters than Mr. Heyman Wreford, a preacher who has gained much popularity in connection with the Plymouth Brethren in Exeter. Less than four years ago he began his evangelistic labours in Exeter in a room capable of holding about 200 persons. His aptitude of speech and fervent manner gained him at first many hearers, and so rapidly did his audience increase within a few months that the Royal Public Rooms had to be secured for the Sunday services of the Brethren. The accommodation of the hall—where seats are found for something like 1500—became, in course of time, inadequate to the requirements of his listeners, and a few months since a Sunday lease of the Victoria Hall was entered upon for twelve months. Here, twice every Sunday, Mr. Wreford addresses an audience which, even in the summer months, has been more or less crowded. Although Mr. Wreford preaches the Gospel, he does not live on the Gospel, neither admission fee nor donation being required of those who attend the services. A series of his sermons is being published by Mr. Alfred Goodere, 141, Sidwell-street, Exeter.

"Dr. Barnardo's Homes for Destitute Children."

Stepney, Limehouse, and Bow, E.; Ilford, Essex; Hawkhurst, Kent; Gorey, Jersey; and Ontario, Canada.

The Committee of these Institutions appeal very earnestly for IMMEDIATE HELP to sustain their Work of Rescue amongst Homeless and Outcast Children.

Contributions will be gratefully received and acknowledged, if addressed to the Treasurer, Wm. FOWLER, Esq., M.P., or to Dr. Barnardo at the Offices of the Institutions, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

P.O. Orders should be made payable at the G.P.O., and crossed, as well as Cheques, "London and South Western Bank."

Under the Patronage of H.R.H. the Princess Christian.

MRS. HILTON'S CRECHE, INFANT INFIRMARY, AND ORPHAN HOME,

12, 14, & 16, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, COMMERCIAL ROAD, E.,

AND

TRAINING AND CONVALESCENT HOME, THE LIMES, FELTHAM.

SPECIAL AND URGENT.

We are in great need of help for the above work, which is quite without Funds. There are several vacancies in the Home, which we should be very glad to fill if the means were forthcoming, as we have a long list of distressing cases waiting admission. We have also some heavy payments to meet before the end of the month.

Our Thirteenth Report is in the press, and can be forwarded on application.

Contributions to be forwarded to Mrs. HILTON, Langveld House, Burdett-road, E.

THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE
OF THE
CHRISTIAN WOMEN'S UNION
WILL (D.V.) BE HELD AT
GLASGOW, November 12, 13, 14.

A PRELIMINARY MEETING
will be held at the Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W., on the 2nd of October. (All Day.)

PRAYER MEETING (Members only) ..... 10 a.m.
CONFERENCES..... 11 a.m., 3 and 5 p.m.

Subjects:

Womanhood in Christ..... Miss Ellice Hopkins.
Women's Services on Public Boards.. Mrs. Haycroft.
Women's Work among the Jews .... Mrs Wilkinson.
Temperance Work .... Mrs. Stuart and Mrs. Casson.
Deaconess Orders, Sisterhoods, and Associations } .....Several ladies.
EVENING MEETING..Spiritual Life..Mrs. Armitage..7 p.m.

Tickets of Admission may be had by either enclosing stamp; or at Office, Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W.

Easy access to the Conference Hall by tram from Westminster or Blackfriars Bridges, or from Victoria to Clapham-road Station.

BIBLE LIGHT

For Truth Seekers & Christian Workers.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."—Ps. cxix. 105.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light."—Ps. cxix. 130.

THE OBJECT of "BIBLE LIGHT" is to interest its readers in the written Word, and to lead them through the latter to the Living Word, for the salvation of the unsaved, and the strengthening of the believer's faith. Monthly, One Penny. Strongly recommended by the Press. The Vol. for 1883, price 1s. 6d.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.
And of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

A CONVENTION

For the Exposition and Promotion of

CHRISTIAN HOLINESS,

Will (D.V.) be held at

THE FREE ASSEMBLY HALL, EDINBORO',

From October 28th to 30th inclusive, at 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. each day.

For List of Speakers and Subjects, or other information, address the Secretary of the Convention, Regent Hotel, Waterloo-place, Edinboro'.

THE LONDON GENERAL MISSION.

If any London Incumbents are still without Mission Preachers, the

CHURCH PAROCHIAL MISSION SOCIETY.

Will make every effort to find a suitable one for such, providing application be made to the Secretary, Rev. S. W. DARWIN FOX, 21, John-street, Adelphi, London, W.C., not later than October 10 next. An immediate application in all cases would be advisable.

NEW WORKING LADS' INSTITUTE, WHITECHAPEL, E.

Patron—HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

The MEMORIAL STONES will (D.V.) be laid on WEDNESDAY, Oct. 15, at 4 p.m., by the President, The Right Hon. the LORD MAYOR, SIR R. W. CARDEN, Ald., M.P., Mrs. HORACE B. MARSHALL, EDWIN ARROWSMITH, Esq., F. A. BEVAN, Esq., HENRY HILL, Jun., Esq. Refreshments at 6. Public Meeting at 7. Tickets for Ceremony and Refreshments, 2s. 6d.; for Tea only, 1s.

£5,500 still required. Contributions earnestly solicited. F. A. BEVAN, Treasurer, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; HENRY HILL, Jun., Hon. Secretary, 38, Bow-lane, London, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND,

ESTABLISHED 1823.

President, The Rt. Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

OFFICES:
27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAS. KEARNEY WHITE, or by the Proprietors of this paper.

NOTE.—Subscriptions or Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

By HECTOR BETTEX. Translated by JOHN CHURCHILL

I. The Kingdom will be established by the Glorious and Personal Coming of the Lord.
II. The Kingdom in the Present Dispensation as seen in the Seven Parables of Matthew xiii.
III. The Coming of the Lord, first to receive His Church, then to establish His Kingdom.
IV. Antichrist and his Destruction by the Lord, when He comes to establish His Kingdom.

London: JAMES E. HAWKINS, 26 Baker-street.

"Moon's" Society for Embossing the Scriptures and other Books for the Blind.

Dr. Moon's simplified type, suitable for all ages and capacities of the blind, is of universal application. It has been adapted by him to 250 languages and dialects. More than 150,000 volumes of the Word of God, and other books, have been supplied to the blind of numerous countries.

Subscriptions and donations are urgently needed to carry on this daily increasing work, and will be gratefully received by Dr. W. MOON, 104, Queen's-road, Brighton (Acting Trustee); also by the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN.

OUR LITTLE LADS.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM and SWANLEY.

FUNDS are still URGENTLY NEEDED to feed, clothe, and educate 230 homeless little ones in the Cottage Homes at Farningham, and to complete the new Homes for Orphans at Swanley.

Will each reader of this do something?

Bankers.
Messrs. SMITH, PAYNE, & SMITHS, 1, Lombard Street, E.C.
Offices: Ludgate Circus. A. O. CHARLES.

Requests for Praise and Prayer.

PRAISE.—Last April prayer was asked that the Gospel might once again be proclaimed from Crediton Church pulpit. Praise that this has been granted. Will Christians ask for a special blessing on a schoolroom service now to be held weekly in that place, that a rich outpouring of the Holy Spirit may fall on these services, and great blessing follow?——For marked blessing on a class of lads held on Sunday afternoons.

PRAYER.—For one who is passing through severe and prolonged trial of faith and adverse circumstances.——For a series of Sunday evening services in the Amercan Theatre, Pontypool.——For Gospel services in Lincolnshire villages by Mr. John Elliott.——On behalf of a fortnight's evangelistic meetings beginning Sept. 29, to be conducted in Glasgow by Messrs. Mateer and Parker.——That a mother may be restored to health and spared to her family.——For services by Mr. Opie Rodway at Uffculme, Devon, from Oct. 4 to 13.——Earnest prayer is asked by Mr. Somerset Gardner for special meetings to be held in Dover by himself and his wife from Oct. 5 to 13.——For blessing upon Gospel Temperance work by Mrs. J. W. Bradley, at Sunderland, Morpeth, and Ulverston, in October.——On behalf of Mr. Henry Thorne's Mission in Curzon Hall, Birmingham, from Oct. 5 to 19.

RANDOM GLEANINGS.

The State Church in Japan has been disestablished, and practically disendowed.

The Brisbane Y.M.C.A. has for some time sustained a mission to neglected children in that city.

Mr. E. A. Freeman, the historian, writes to the daily papers urgently pleading the claims of Miss Irby's Schools, at Serajevo, Servia.

A swimming bath has been added by Mr. Quintin Hogg to the other advantages of the Polytechnic Young Men's Christian Institute, Regent-street, at a cost of £8000.

The series of papers under the title of "Centres of Spiritual Activity," which have appeared in The Pall Mall Gazette, are about to be issued in volume form.

Bible carriage work in Brittany, France, under M. Pointet, is being carried on with encouraging results. In one month he sold 410 New Testaments, and gave away 6000 Gospels.

Smuggling spirits, tobacco, silks, and satins, is said to have been attempted lately by some fishermen on the Yorkshire coast, through the temptation put in their way by Dutch and German "coopers."

Rev W Adamson, of Old Ford, has addressed a letter to the Committee of the coming Church Mission in London, representing strongly that the last Mission resulted in greatly strengthening the Rit ualistic element.

A deputation, representing over 3,000 workmen of the Dusseldorf district, has presented an address to the Emperor of Germany, thanking him for his care for the welfare of the labouring classes.

Referring to the French attacks on Tunis, Madagascar, and Tonquin, the Word, Work, and World says: "The weakness and wantonness of the Republic is really pitiful and provoking."

An American missionary, in Formosa, says the Chinese are the greatest nation on the face of the earth to-day, in the extent of their territory, the number of inhabitants, and their vast resources.

According to Truth, the Queen peremptorily vetoed the proposed appointment of Baker Pasha to a post in the Egyptian Expedition. "The personages who urged in favour of Baker were sharply snubbed."

A Romish ecclesiastic, speaking lately in Lanarkshire, stated that forty years ago there were in the whole county only three Roman Catholic churches and ten priests; now there are over fifty churches and one hundred priests.

The Indian Witness rejoices to hear that Mr. Tucker, in reporting some Salvation Army meetings in Galle, Ceylon, says he has the cordial co-operation of the Wesleyans there. Our contemporary hopes this policy will be maintained to the end.

A correspondent of Truth describes the way in which he saw the surpliced choir of St. Paul's Cathedral "amuse themselves" on Sunday afternoon, while Canon Liddon preached. Several went to sleep, and others extemporised various forms of entertainment to keep themselves awake.

Rev. W. K. Landels, of Naples, writes to The Baptist that the cholera epidemic seems to be subsiding, but another terrible enemy is before the people. A great part of his congregation is on the verge of starvation, and he appeals to Englishmen for help.

Mrs. Morrill, the widow of an eminent American politician, writes to the New York Herald, thanking God that her husband was called home before the Republican party, he loved so well, had disgraced itself by nominating to the Presidency so wicked and corrupt a man as Mr. Blaine.

Dr Frances Hoggan and Mrs Emly read papers at the Social Science Congress at Birmingham, on "The position of the mother in the family." A long discussion resulted in an endorsement of the opinions of the essayists that the rights of the mother over young children ought to predominate.

On one of the Atlantic steamers, lately returning from Europe to New York, permission was freely accorded to gamblers, and facilities were given for concerts and lectures, "but," says a passenger, "the captain refused us the use of any part of the ship for a half-hour prayer meeting, saying it was against the rules of the Company."

Forthcoming Meetings.

COMING CONFERENCES.

Christian Women's Union.—Preliminary conference, Thursday, October 2, Conference Hall, Clapham-road, S.W. Prayer and conference, 10 and 11 a.m., and 3, 5, and 7 p.m. Annual Convention, Glasgow, November 12—14.

Sevenoaks Quarterly Conference.—Vine Hall, Wednesday, October 4, 10.30 a.m.

Conference on Prophecy, Avenue-road Church, Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's Bush, W., October 7, 8, and 9, at 3 and 7 p.m. For particulars see The Christian of September 11.

Clifton, Victoria Rooms.—October 7—9. Subjects: "Prophetical Signs of the Last Days;" "The Attitude of the Church with Reference to Them;" "The Glorious Hope of the Church." Inquiries of Rev. J. Ormiston, 14, Arlington-villas, Clifton, Bristol.

Dublin.—Young Women's Christian Associations of Ireland, Friday, October 17. Secretary, Miss Marrable, 49, Waterloo-road, Dublin.

Glasgow Half-yearly Meetings of Christians.—October 23, Queen's Rooms, Clifton-street, 11 a.m. and 5.30 p.m. Friday, 24th, 4 till 6 p.m., in Christian Institute, Bothwell-street, Answering of Questions to be sent in in writing the day before; 7 p.m., reports and conference.

EVANGELISTIC.

The Evangelisation Society will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send lay preachers and Evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-square, S.E.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Children's Evangelistic Mission.—Messrs. T. Eyres and Jeynes conduct Missions for children in any chapel, hall, or school of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Secretary, 253, Southampton-street, Camberwell, S.E.

Rev. W. Hay Aitken.—To October 6, All Saints', Hoole, Chester; October 12, St. Andrew's Parish Church, Plymouth; November 16 to 30, St. John's, Bethnal Green, E.; November 30 to December 15 (or longer), All Saints, South Lambeth.

Rev. W. Haslam.—Silverdale, Hastings, October 11; Ryde I. of W.), 25th.

Messrs. Fullerton and Smith.—Belfast, October 5, and onwards.

Mr J. M. Scroggie.—October, Bristol; November 2, Elgin, N.B. November 15, Inverness; December, Paisley.

Mr. Henry Thorne.—October 4—20, Birmingham; 21, Derby; November 1—10; Doncaster; 15—24, Shrewsbury; 29 to December 8, Halifax; 12, Derby; 13—22, Duffield.

Messrs. Mateer and Parkee.—To October 12, Glasgow: 13 to 26, Mirfield; 27 to November 9, Trowbridge; 10 to 23 London (West-end); 24 to December 7, Margate; 8 to 21, Ramsgate.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.—William Catlin next Sunday evening, at 7.

Stepney Meeting House.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney gives an address every Sunday at 3 p.m.

Agricultural Hall, Islington, N.—Sunday, October 5, Sixteenth Anniversary, Revs. Dr. Davidson, W. E. Haigh, J. Ellis, and W. Norris, 3.30 p.m.; Mr. Elvin and a soloist, at 7 p.m.

Children's Special Service Mission.—Mr. W. F. Seagrove, Whitefield Tabernacle, Whitfield-street, October 1—3, at 7 o'clock; Mr. Lidstone, Hornsey, October 27—30; Mr. W. L. Seyler, Landseer-street, Battersea, October 20—24.

Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W. (near Victoria Station).—Evangelistic meetings, by Captain Baring and others. Sundays at 3.45 and 7 p.m.; Thursdays at 8 p.m. Meetings of Christians for prayer and instruction, Tuesdays at 11.30 a.m.; Fridays at 8 p.m.

Evangelistic Mission.—Bignold Hall, Forest-gate; Dalston Hall, opposite Dalston Junction; Hammersmith—Upper Mission Room, 130, King-street; Kilburn Hall (not Town Hall), Kilburn-gate; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill;—all, Sunday, 7 p.m. Prayer meeting for workers, at 190, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, Wednesday, at 10.30 a.m.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Merchants' Lecture, Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields, City. Rev. Henry Allon, D.D., every Tuesday, at 12 noon, during October.

Bethshan, 10, Drayton-park, Highbury, N.—Opening of the new hall will take place on Thursday, October 23. Public meetings at 3 and 7 p.m.

Upper Norwood, Stafford House, Tudor-road.—General Field will to-day (Thursday), at 3 p.m., give an account of the Conference recently held by the Evangelical Alliance at Copenhagen.

Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Friday, October 3. Tea at 6; meeting at 6.45. Mr John Wilkinson will give an address, subject, "God's Revealed Purpose Concerning Israel."

Fox-court Ragged-School and Mission, Gray's-inn-road, Holborn.—Sir Robert W. Carden, M.P., will open the new building on Thursday, October 2, at 3 p.m. Mr. J. D. Allcroft, Sir William Wheelhouse, Q.C., and others will speak.

Moderate Drinking.—Public meeting, Large Room, Exeter Hall, Friday, October 17, to direct attention to the evils and dangers of "Moderate Drinking." Lord Bishop of Exeter will preside. Addresses by Dr. Alfred Carpenter, Dr. B. W. Richardson, Rev. Colmer B. Symes, &c. Chair taken at 7 p.m. Admission free.

Y.M.C.A. ASSOCIATIONS.

61, Gracechurch-street, E.C.—Daily prayer meeting 1.15 to 2 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Bible-readings in Isaiah each Tuesday, 6.15 p.m. Monthly social meeting of members, at Conference Hall, Mildmay, Saturday, October 18. Further particulars will be announced.)

Exeter Hall.—Gospel meeting every night at 8 (Saturday excepted). Mid-day prayer-meeting 1 to 2 (Saturday excepted). Bible-reading, Saturday, at 8, by Colonel Puget. Gospel Male Choir practises every Friday, at 7.30. Musical Christian men cordially invited. Rev. J. Wilkinson, of Mildmay, will (D.V.) give a special address to workers, Thursday, October 16, at 8 p.m.

186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.—Central Noon Prayer Meeting, daily, 12 to 1 o'clock. Sunday, Bible-class, 3.15 p.m.; evangelistic meeting, 7 p.m. Monday, strangers' reception, 8 p.m. Tuesday, teachers' preparatory Bible-classes, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Thursday, foreign Mission prayer-meeting, 7 p.m; devotional meeting and address, 8 p.m. Friday, Gospel meeting, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Workers' praise and prayer meeting, 7.30 p.m.

The Priory, 198, Upper-street, Islington, N.—Thursday, October 2, 7.3 p.m., public meeting and valedictory service on the departure of missionaries for China. Wednesday, 6 to 10 p.m., anxious inquirers and strangers.

Notices.

J. Scott, 2, Glenfield-place, Ormeau-road, Belfast, desires some of our readers to name the most devotional volume of prayers for family and for private use, or both combined, couched in language simple but chaste and spiritual; purely evangelical in tone, and free from the disfigurement of bracketed sentences or remarks.

Communications Received with Thanks.—F.M.B. S.P.S. G.S. G.K. J.A.J. R.H. B.H. G.P. E.W.C. H.C.C. F.N. C.D. F.H.S. E.A.L. E.M.C. F.K. E.M.B. T.P. L.B. M.B. R.N. I.M.W.S. J.E.S. L.C. W.H.S. J.H. S.K. D.M. J.G.K. J.C.S. G.H. I.H. J.P. S.C. P.A.D. J.H.G. J.E. H.B. Hy H. W. E. G. M.E.C. J.S. A.Y. J.P.B. F.O.E.H. A.D. H.R.A. A.G. W.S. M.P.H. W.A. S.A.B. R.H.W. J.B. R.M. W.H.C. V.M.S. M.M. E.S.T. J.D. J.H.G. G.K. J.M.R. C.M.F. F.C.B. H.H. J.J. E.J.W. G.R. H.F. W.T. A.W. A.J.B. K.R. G.S.B. E.P. H.W. H.M. H.V. H.W.F. W.M. L.B. J.L. E.J.M. A.A.S. V.D. A.C. C.M. L.S.D. A.B. J.K.

Applicants for Tracts.—J. E. Dodd 15, Plummer-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne; Miss Beswick, Ellesmere-terrace, Chester-road, Hulme, Manchester; Mr. Latham, 28, Bucks-road, Douglas, Isle of Man; N. Wickes, missionary, 57, Cyril-street Northampton; E. Lander, 7, Milton-street, Liverpool-road, Patricroft, Manchester; J. S. Haggett, 4, Cowper-road, Clifton, Bristol; H Whitehead, colporteur, 53, Ethel street, Northampton; Mr. Smith, Bible Depot, Aylesbury, Bucks; Mrs. E. Bilbey, Aylesbury-road, Aston Clinton, Bucks; D. Smyth, Carlton Villa, Argyle-street, Harrow-green, Leytonstone, E.; J. Doherty, 56, Silvergrove-street, Belfast; D. Henderson, Rawlinson terrace, Tottenham, N.; F. Karslake 5 Seymour Villa, Morthoe, near Ilfracombe; W. Reeve, 16 Edgar-street, Jarrow-on-Tyne; C. Rose, 59, High-street, Glastonbury, Somerset; Mrs. J. Carine, Sea View, Port St. Mary, Isle of Man; Miss Abbott, 1, Richardson's-place, Church-street, Greenwich, S.E.; Miss Corderoy, Bexley House, Greenwich Park, S.E.; F. G. Horsit, 2, Summerfield-terrace, Ellacomb Torquay; A. C. Trew, town missionary, 17, Alfred-street, Burnham, Somerset.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, September 27, 1884.

	£	s.	d.
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—Southsea Friends, 15s.; M. L. £1; M. G. £1 5s.; H. W. V. B. 10s.; F. B. £1; R. O. O. £1; A Norwegian Sea Captain, £1 ..	6	10	0
London Medical Mission—E. S. 10s.; Southsea Friends, 5s.	0	15	0
Home of Industry—E. S.	0	10	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—Southsea Friends, £1; E. D. 10s.	1	10	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—Southsea Friends ..	0	5	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—P. W.	70	0	0
Mission to Hop-pickers (Mr. Chinn)—E. B. 5s.; J. L. F. 5s.; E. D. 10s.	1	0	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—(Discharged Prisoners) M. S.	0	10
Scriptures for the Blind (Dr. Moon)—E. D.	0	10	0
Railway Mission—E. D.	0	10	0
Barkingside Village Mission (Mr. Hill)—E. D.	0	10	0
Work among Cholera Sufferers (Miss De Broen)—E. D.	0	10	0
Asylums at La Force—E. D.	0	10	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—E. D.	0	10	0
Evangelistic Mission (Tent Services)—E. D.	0	10	0
China Inland Mission—E. D. 10s.; R. O. O. £1.. ..	1	10	0
St. Bride's Youths' Institute—M. and S..	2	2	0
Deaconesses' House, Mildmay—J. T.	1	0	0
Mr. Hy. Cook's Seaman's Mission, Gosport—(Repair of Vessel) M. and S.	5	0	0
Free Distribution of the Scriptures—Mrs. M	0	2	6
Rescue Society—R. O. O.	1	0	0
London City Mission—R. O. O.	1	0	0
Young Men's Foreign Missionary Society 185, Aldersgate-street—R. O. O.	1	0	0
Home for Aged Blind Christian Women—R. O. O...	1	0	0
Universal Beneficent Society—R. O. O.	1	0	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—Leigh Y.W.C.A.	0	5	0
Miss E. Hopkins' Work—Leigh Y.W.C.A.	0	5	0
Miss Mittendorff's Homes—M. and S.	5	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation of The Christian—A. M...	2	5	2
	£106	19	8

[Advertisement.]

Sadler's Wells Theatre Services (W Catlin—S. M. £10; C. B. £5; the Misses P. £5.

SAILORS' REST, NAPLES.—Mrs. Campbell, whose plans on behalf of the sailors visiting this port we lately referred to, writes that she has moved her residence to 2, Via Piliero, Naples. The situation of the house could not be better adapted to its purpose, and she hopes to be of much service to the British sailors in the port. Friends who send parcels of tracts, papers, &c., are desired to note the new address.

EVANGELICAL SOCIETY OF FRANCE.—We have received from one of the agents of this Society a strong appeal for help in its operations. These have been carried on for the past 51 years. The Society has at present 20 agents labouring in 150 towns and villages, but, owing to lack of the requisite means, the activity of these workers is greatly curtailed. Any of our readers who may be moved to assist this excellent Society may communicate with the secretary, Pastor Mouron, 76, Rue d'Assas, Paris.

Continued from page 3.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortable winter Apartments, board if required, close to pleasure gardens, few minutes' walk from sea; in centre of the Pines. Home comforts, good cooking. Terms moderate.
CHELTENHAM, Crescent-road, Bournemouth.

REIGATE. — Apartments, Furnished, with attendance.
MRS EARL, London-road, Reigate.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS, near the sea, with garden Arrangements made for winter residence. Terms one to two guineas. LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

ACCOMMODATION FOR GENTLEMEN.—A comfortable Sitting-room, with one or two furnished Bed-rooms, in Blackheath. Three minutes' walk from station. Partial board if desired.—ALLAN & HIDER, Blackheath.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS, with Board, offered to Ladies who might wish for a happy, quiet home-life. Opportunities to continue some branches of study, or to be trained in housekeeping after having left school.—FERNLEA, 8, Stamford-grove West, Stamford hill, N.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—Comfortable Christian home for Young Ladies, students or otherwise engaged, on reasonable terms.—Mrs. GEORGE OWEN, Archibald House, Dalmeny-road, Tufnell-park.

Miscellaneous.

DEATH. — ROOKE. — Sept. 5, at Byculiah Park, Enfield, the residence of her sister, Mrs. Whitley, after a short illness, aged 44, ELLEN, third daughter of the late Thomas James Rooke, of 3, Highbury-hill, London. Friends will kindly accept this, the only intimation. No cards.

THE ADVERTISER (long resident in Hackney) seeks a Lady to join her, with a view to the extension of an already established Dressmaking business. References given and required.—A. Y., 20, Loddige's-road, St. Thomas'-square, Hackney.

ASTHMA. — Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

CLOTHING, BANKRUPT STOCK.—Boys' suits, from 3 to 10 years, well made and neatly braided, 5s. Sent Carriage paid on receipt of Postal Order. State age. If not approved will be exchanged or money returned.
6, LONDON 135 Tottenham Court-road, London.

NEEDLEWORK FOR LADIES, for Pleasure and Profit. All the New Art Work Directions for lovely things in knitting and crochet. Useful articles and wearable things. Saleable bazaar articles. How to Dispose of Work. and List of Work Societies. New and enlarged edition, price 1s. 7½d., post free.
RINGROSE, Malvern Link.

FURNISH on NORMAN & STACEY'S Hire-Purchase System. Deposit not necessary. True economy on sound commercial principles. Strictly private. 1, 2, or 3 years. 50 wholesale firms. Ordinary selling prices.—Offices, 79, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

VIOLIN FOR SALE (Solo), rare. Antique looking. "Stradivarius Cremona, A.D. 1721," is written inside. Full size, but short fingering, suit lady. Only 30s, with bow and case. Sent on approval any distance.—CLARA, 12, St. Michael's terrace, Wood Green, London.

Publications.

Twelfth Edition. Post-free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.—SIMPKIN MARSHALL.

MRS. GRIMKE having now printed 50 languages, wishes to send out one million Text Cards to Missionaries this year, cost about £500, proposing to double all gifts sent by Christians, whose aid she asks. Many varieties of English (some very beautiful), F. M. sheets, tracts, quilt texts on calico, &c., always on sale.—For list, send stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. GRIMKE, Prestwich, Manchester.

FLOWER MISSION CARDS.—New and convenient design, plain white, 8d., Crimson, 1s; Gold, 1s. 2d. per 100, post free. Sample pack of 50 (assorted colours), 6d.
Only of F. V. HADLOW, Lithographer, Brighton.

Terms for Advertisements

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words	3	0
,, 39 ,, ...	3	9
,, 48 ,, ...	4	6

And 3d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.

Extra flexible, silk sewed, in best Bagster morocco, kid-lined, elastic band. With full helps. Prices from 20s.
In French morocco, projecting edges, elastic band. From 4s.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

Price 1*s., in beautifully illustrated covers, stiff boards.*
NOW READY.

THE HERALD OF MERCY

VOLUME FOR 1884.

This volume will be found suited to all, acceptable as a present, and calculated to do good wherever it goes. It contains Telling Articles, Addresses, Extracts, Poetry, Children's Pages, &c., &c., and abounds in Illustrations.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"A VERY PRACTICAL AND HELPFUL LITTLE VOLUME."
Evangelical Christendom.

THE ENQUIRY ROOM:

HINTS FOR DEALING WITH THE ANXIOUS.
By GEORGE SOLTAU.
TINTED COVERS, 4d.; CLOTH LIMP, 6d.

"Many Christian workers have felt the need of such a handbook as this; and Mr. Soltau's wide experience makes his advice specially valuable."
Christian Miscellany.

"The 'Enquiry Room' is a very clear and simple, yet thorough and comprehensive, direction for those who undertake to guide the awakened to the Saviour."—The Outlook.

"We heartily commend this little manual to all who would be wise in soul-winning, and also to the earnest perusal of the anxious themselves; and may it be as the good Samaritan to many."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

"This is an excellent little handbook for all Christians who desire to help wisely and well in the great work of winning souls for Christ."
The Watchman.

"In this little book Mr. Soltau furnishes Christian workers with counsels, which they will find invaluable in leading anxious souls to Christ. Even experienced evangelists may derive help from it."
Primitive Methodist.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY. ONE HALFPENNY.

The Herald of Mercy:

AN ILLUSTRATED MESSENGER FOR HUMBLE HOMES.
ORIGINATED BY THE LATE DUNCAN MATHESON.

"It is a true 'messenger' for all homes, whether humble or high. The pictures will make the children's eyes sparkle with delight the pretty stories, short papers, poetry, and telling illustrations of life, will help many a weary heart; and, indeed, no one can read without both pleasure and profit."
Irish Congregational Magazine.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS,
TRACT DISTRIBUTORS,
ARE INVITED TO AND CHRISTIAN PARENTS
Send to the Publishers for a Specimen Copy, which will be forwarded post free.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"The Christian."

SUBSCRIPTION FOR 1885.

DURING the ensuing year (1885) there will be fifty-three Thursdays in the twelve months, and consequently there will be an additional week's issue of THE CHRISTIAN. This necessitates a slight alteration in the subscription for the year. The particulars are given below:—

ENGLISH.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	0	7	0
2 Copies ,,	1d.	0	14	0
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	1	1	0
4 ,, ,,	2d.	1	8	0

FOREIGN (POSTAGE ½d.)

Austria.	Holland.
Belgium.	Italy.
California.	Madeira.
Canada.	Malta.
Canary Islands.	Norway.
Cyprus.	Persia, viâ Russia.
Denmark (including Faroe Islands and Iceland).	Portugal.
	Russia.
	Spain.
Egypt.	Sweden.
France.	Switzerland.
Germany.	Turkey.
Gibraltar.	United States.
Greece.	Vancouver's Island.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	0	7	2
2 Copies ,,	1d.	0	14	4
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	1	1	6
4 ,, ,,	2d.	1	8	8

FOREIGN (POSTAGE 1d.)

Africa.	Mexico.
Australia.	Natal.
Cape de Verd Islands.	New Zealand.
Demerara.	South America.
Fiji Islands.	Tasmania.
Hawaiian Islands.	Transvaal.
Madagascar (St. Mary's only).	West Indies.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	1d.	0	9	2
2 Copies ,,	2d.	0	18	4
3 ,, ,,	3d.	1	7	6
4 ,, ,,	4d.	1	16	8

FOREIGN (POSTAGE 1½d.)

Aden.	Japan.
Borneo.	Java.
British Burmah.	Philippine Islands.
Ceylon.	Singapore.
China.	Straits Settlements.
India.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	1½d.	0	11	5
2 Copies ,,	3d.	1	2	10
3 ,, ,,	4½d.	1	14	3
4 ,, ,,	6d.	2	5	8

NETTIE'S MISSION.

SERIES OF SMALL BOOKS.
A Set of 6 Books, suitable for Birthday Gifts, Rewards, &c., for the Young.

Cloth Boards, 6d. each;
Superior Edition, Toned Paper, 1s. each.

NETTIE'S MISSION; or, "Hallowed be Thy Name."
LITTLE MARGERY; or, "Thy Kingdom Come."
MARGERY'S HOME; or, "Thy Will be Done."
MAGGIE RILEY; or, "Give us this Day our Daily Bread."
ROSY CONROY; or, "Forgive us our Debts."
NED DOLAN; or, "Lead us not into Temptation."

The Set may be had in a Neat Box, price 3s.

"A story of the right sort. Short, telling, with a thoroughly sound, moral, and religious ring about it."—From a Review of "NED DOLAN" in the Sword and Trowel.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

FAITHFUL RECORDS

A Series of 12 Narrative Tracts,
Specially adapted for Sick-room Visitation.
ATTRACTIVELY BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE 1s. 6d. POST-FREE.
May be had also in Assorted Packet, Price 1s., post-free

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Conversion of Children.

By REV. EDWARD PAYSON HAMMOND, M.A.
Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d. Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SIXPENCE POST FREE.

LARGE EDITION, BOUND IN CLOTH, 1s. 3d.

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work

ON

CONSUMPTION

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

AND ALL

OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. May be had from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C., or from Mr. Congreve (the Author), Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

Eleventh Series of Weekly Cases.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

CASE of MR. H. RODGER, of HAWICK, ROXBURGHSHIRE.

The correspondence on this case was with the patient's brother, Mr. Robert Rodger, of Satchells, Ashkirk, Hawick, and was carried on for about six months, up to the spring of the present year. The symptoms were very severe cough, causing distressing nights of sleeplessness, expectoration, and hæmorrhage, with general decline.

In January the brother reported: "Very beneficial effects have resulted from the last bottle of medicine. He has had no bad nights. There is a marked improvement in his general appearance."

From this time he rapidly recovered. After waiting several weeks to see if he continued as well, Mr. R. Rodger again writes me:—

"It is with great pleasure I announce the successful result of your treatment. My brother is now free from any expectoration, and has become quite strong. I shall not fail to speak of you to all who are suffering from consumption."

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Tinted Paper, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 2s.

"BLACK, BUT COMELY;"

OR,

Glimpses of Aboriginal Life in Australia.

By the Rev. J. B. GRIBBLE
(Founder of the Warangesda Mission).

All profits to be devoted to the Warangesda Training College.

"Its contents are of the most absorbing interest."
The Christian.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOLD MEDAL, CALCUTTA, 1884.

Fry's Cocoa

Guaranteed Pure. Extract

"There is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.
"Strictly pure."—W. W. Stoddart, Analyst for Bristol.
"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin

NINETEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

WORKS BY D. L. MOODY.

PREVAILING PRAYER. A Series of Addresses on Prayer. In tinted covers, 1s. limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
(Just Published.)

"This book shows partly in what Mr. Moody's power lies—his clearness, earnestness, simplicity, and faith. Would that we had a thousand such preachers! Surely they would move the world!"—Watchman.

SOVEREIGN GRACE: Its Source, its Nature, and its Effects. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
(6th Thousand.)

"Will be welcome to multitudes. Has the directness, the illustrative power, the righteousness, the earnestness, and the nervous English, that have made Mr. Moody so effective a preacher of the Gospel of the Grace of God.—Christian Treasury.

ADDRESSES BY D. L. MOODY. Delivered in Great Britain in 1874-75. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. (110*th Thousand.*)

"Will be read by thousands with the memorable interest attaching to the words which God used in first awakening them to spiritual life."—Children's Record.

THE WAY TO GOD. A Series of Addresses on the Way of Salvation. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
(43*rd Thousand.*)

"Full of the point and pathos, the fire and force, of this great evangelist.—The Outlook.

POWER FROM ON HIGH: or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
(25*th Thousand.*)

"This series of earnest and solemn addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

STAND UP FOR JESUS! Five Addresses to Christian Workers. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth limp, 8d.; cloth boards, 1s.

The Prophet Daniel.
Personal Effort for Christ.
On Prayer.
Be Strong!
How to Study the Bible.

THE FAITHFUL SAYING. A Series of Addresses. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
(14*th Thousand.*)

"Full of the Gospel; well illustrated; thoroughly alive."—Sword and Trowel.

HEAVEN: Its Hope, Its Inhabitants, Its Riches, Its Rewards. Tinted covers, 1s.; limp cloth, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
(42*nd Thousand.*)

"Simple, direct, anecdotal, and earnest."—Freeman.

DANIEL THE PROPHET. An Amplification and Extension of Mr. Moody's various Lectures on the Life of Daniel. Tinted covers, 6d.; cloth, 1s.
(8*th Thousand.*)

"A small book; but big as regards the truth it contains. Every worker in the Lord's vineyard would be helped by reading it."—Railway Signal.

THE GREAT SALVATION. Sixteen Addresses. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Come thou into the Ark.
Confessing Christ.
"Seek ye the Lord."
Grace.
Law and Grace.
"What must I do to be saved?"
The Way of Life.
Trust.
The Love of God.
Repentance.
Seeking and Finding.
The Return of Christ.
Substitution.
The Prey taken from the Mighty.
"One Thing."
The Prodigal Son.

WONDROUS LOVE. Fifteen Addresses. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, 2s.; cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Christ's Compassion.
The New Birth.
The Blood.
Heaven.
"Son, Remember!"
Christ All in All.
Naaman the Syrian.
One Word—"Gospel."
The Way of Salvation.
The "I wills" of Christ.
Christ's Commission.
Faith.
The Dying Thief.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SPARKLING MORELLA,

THE NEW HIGH-CLASS SUBSTITUTE FOR WINE,

Absolutely void of alcohol, from the pure juice of the famous Kentish Morel Cherry; sold in Champagne pints at 21s. per double dozen. Remittance with order; no booking. Not less than two dozen delivered in London, or to any British Railway Station. Sample pint bottle by post for 1s 6d. Special terms for philanthropic objects, bazaars, fêtes, &c. The Trade supplied. Apply to THOS. GRANT and SONS, Maidstone Producers also of the popular Tonic Liqueurs, "Grant's Morella Cherry Brandy," "Grant's Orange Cognac," and "Grant's Ginger Cognac," the best of all remedies for disorders of the stomach. A bottle by post, as sample, for 4s. 10d., addressed to our London Office, 22, Walbrook, London, E.C.

Allen & Hanburys' "Perfected" COD-LIVER OIL

"Is as nearly tasteless as Cod Liver Oil can be."—Lancet.

"No nauseous eructations follow after it is swallowed."—Medical Press.

It can be borne and digested by the most delicate; is the only oil which does not "repeat," and for these reasons the most efficacious kind in use. In capsuled bottles only, at 1s. 4d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 9d., and 9s. Sold everywhere.

Allen & Hanburys, Plough-ct., Lombard-st., London.

ANNUAL SALE OF OVER HALF A MILLION.

McCALL'S PAYSANDU OX TONGUES.

A DELICACY FOR BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, OR SUPPER.

TO BE HAD AT ALL GROCERS.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 12 months, for 6s. 1od., including Double Numbers.
"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months, for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 767.] THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1884. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

The Glory of the Lord 5
Soul-Rest 5
Home Mission Sketches 6
A Summer's Work in Hyde Park ... 7
Peace, Blessing, and Power 7
Obituary 7
A Message to the Churches 8
The Rescue of Little Girls 9
Defending the Faith 9
Poetry—Not Satisfied 9
A Light in a Dark Place 9
For the Young 10
At Work in North Spain 11
The Cholera in Naples 11
Boys' Home, Clapham 11
Notes and Comments 12
A Visit to the Grimsby Fleet 14
Bishop William Taylor 14
Blackgang Mission 15
Mr. Muller's New Report 15
Rev. Dennis Osborne 16
A Highly-Favoured Town 16
Mr. Radcliffe in Scotland 16
Christian Woman's Union Conference 17
Evangelistic Notes 17
French Prisons 18
Y.M.C.A. Notes 18
Continental and Foreign Notes 19

WORKS PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT,

AND MAY BE ORDERED OF ANY BOOKSELLER.

"This is a powerful, brilliant, and thrilling work. Dr. Pentecost is not only a man of marked ability and scholarship, but he is a pulpit orator of the highest order. He at once arrests the attention, penetrates the heart, moves the affection, and directs the conduct."—Oldham Chronicle.

Tinted Covers, 2s.; Cloth Limp, 2s. 6d. On Toned Paper, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d. (SUITABLE FOR PRESENTATION.)

OUT OF EGYPT.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES and BIBLE READINGS on the EXODUS OF ISRAEL: and its SPIRITUAL LESSONS.

By Rev. Dr. G. F. PENTECOST, M.A.

"Dr. Pentecost's power as a teacher and expositor of the Word is anew displayed in these addresses, and we are not surprised to learn that there has been an earnest demand for their publication."—Word and Work.

"This is a capital book, and is especially appropriate and valuable to young Christians. There are sixteen chapters, some of them treating very effectively with the methods by which such difficulties as often meet the young and thoughtful reader may be overcome. The general treatment is marked by much originality, the style by much perspicuity, while the illustrations are apt and striking."—Methodist Recorder.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Limp, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

IN THE VOLUME OF THE BOOK;

Or, THE PROFIT AND PLEASURE OF BIBLE STUDY.

By Rev. Dr. PENTECOST. With Introductions by Revs. JOSEPH COOK and J. H. VINCENT, D.D.

Eighth Edition.

"We cannot too highly commend this little publication; plain, concise, thorough, and spiritual, it is a handbook differing from all others, inasmuch as it takes up the spiritual rather than the material aspect of the Word of God."—Preachers' Analyst.

New Edition now ready; 474 pages. Price 5s. in Cloth Boards, or 6s. Bevelled Boards. Gilt Edges. FOR PRESENTATION. Also to be completed in Twelve Fourpenny Parts.

The Tabernacle, The Priesthood, AND THE OFFERINGS.

By HENRY W. SOLTAU. Author of "The Holy Vessels of the Tabernacle," "The Soul and its Difficulties," "The Scarlet Line," &c., &c.

WITH FOUR BEAUTIFUL COLOURED ILLUSTRATIONS AND NUMEROUS SMALLER ENGRAVINGS.

"The reading of this book has been to us a precious means of Grace, and to all those who love Truth sweetly told, we advise its study. It is full of Christ. The truths of the Gospel gleam on every page, and we feel that we shall be doing good work for any Christian brother whom we can induce to read it."—Baptist Messenger.

"Dr. Anderson's counsels and suggestions are most valuable; and the design of his work is one which will meet with ready acceptance from those who have learned that God's Word is a lamp to their feet and a light to their path."—Christian Week

Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 3s. 6d. Second Edition.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD.

ALSO SUGGESTIONS FOR BIBLE READING AND STUDY, AND A PLAN FOR CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING.

By Dr. ANDERSON.

"Whether viewed as an analysis of the whole Bible, or as a plan for its daily perusal, or as a directory to the spirit and intention with which it should be studied, it is equally judicious and complete. The one design of the whole Scriptures is kept in view throughout."—Sword and Trowel.

"It is quite refreshing to turn to Mr. Gilchrist's profitable Meditations on the Crucifixion."—Record.

"Old-fashioned divinity presented in a pleasing form. May its readers be many."—Sword and Trowel.

Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

CHRIST LIFTED UP.

MEDITATION on the DEATH, RESURRECTION, and ASCENSION OF OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST.

By Rev. ROBERT GILCHRIST.

'An earnest, practical exhibition of the Gospel under a variety of aspects. Christ lifted up on the cross, and at the Father's right hand, is the grand theme, and affords scope for setting forth a wide range of Gospel teaching. The writer does this in an interesting, while simple style."—British Messenger.

"This is a life well worth recording. There was much in the experience and labours of this evangelist that was remarkable, and deserves the careful study of all who are interested in the special work done by the evangelists of our day."—Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

Handsomely Bound in Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

HENRY MOORHOUSE,

THE ENGLISH EVANGELIST.

WITH LITHOGRAPHED PORTRAIT.

"The record is full of interesting incidents from which counsel and encouragement may be gathered; and we heartily commend it to the attention of those who would know what may be done by workers somewhat off the ordinary recognised lines."—The Rock.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

George Holland thankfully acknowledges receiving from. D., £1.

For the "Children's Nest," Stroud Green-road, Shirley—G. S., toys; C. M., scrap-book; M. C., books and toys.

The Infant Day Nursery. Free Day Ragged Schools Evening Classes for Elder Girls and Young Women. Mutual Industrial Classes for Lads. Bible Classes. Mission to Inebriate Women. Mothers' Meetings. Evangelistic and Lodging House Services. Room to Room Visitation, and other Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 65, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to George Holland, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

SEVEN DIALS MISSION.—The Mission Hall, Short's-gardens, having just undergone needful repairs at a cost of about Forty Pounds (a heavy addition to the ordinary expenses), contributions in aid of the work are urgently needed, and will be thankfully acknowledged by Rev. F. S. Swindell, 32, Broad-street, Seven Dials, W.C.

HOME FOR FEMALE ORPHANS, Grove-road, St. John's Wood.—This Institution maintains about 70 Orphan Girls who have lost both parents. They are received at the age of 6 to 11, and are retained until 16 to 17. They are boarded, clothed, and educated free of all expense. The majority on leaving enter service, and for them suitable situations are provided. They are elected in January and July, by the votes of the subscribers. In urgent cases arrangement can be made for immediate admission, on a small payment pending election. An annual subscription of half a guinea, or a donation of five guineas, constitutes a Governor, with the privilege of one vote at each election. Candidates can now be received for the January election. It is very seldom that a candidate, unsuccessful at the first election does not succeed at the second. For forms of nomination and further information, apply by letter to the Honorary Secretary, at the Home. President, the Right Hon. the Earl of Aberdeen. Honorary Secretary, Ed. B. Randall.

NEWRY SAILORS' HOME.—Would those interested in the spiritual and temporal welfare of Sailors, kindly help to support this Institution? Now in need of £60, for rent, &c. References permitted to James Barton, Esq., Dundalk.—N. Thomson, Hon. Sec. and Treasurer, Downshire House, Newry, Ireland.

THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, Paddington-green, is in urgent need of Funds. There are 25 beds now occupied, and the attendance of out patients is about 100 daily. This Hospital entirely depends on voluntary assistance. All parents, whether their children are in health or sickness must surely sympathise with this good work, for the sake of Him who loved little children. Treasurer, George Hanbury, 21, Portman-square, by whom any donations will be most thankfully received

DAILY PRAYER MEETING at 12.0, at the House of Rest, Burlington-place, Eastbourne. Close to the Parade, near the Cavendish Hotel. Christian brethren and sisters are earnestly invited.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.—The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, M.P., Treasurer; J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman; Mr. Sheriff Clarence Smith, Hon. Secretary. For ninety-nine years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 250 Christian men and women. Subscriptions and letters for Convalescent Homes are urgently needed. The Banking account is considerably overdrawn. The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.—Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. B. H. Gerrans, Secretary.

GEE-STREET Christian Mission and Ragged School, Goswell-road, earnestly solicits donations to continue the good work of preaching, teaching the Gospel, temperance, and relieving deserving poor.—Bankers, Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard-street; Treasurer, Robert Baxter, Esq., 6, Victoria-street, Westminster; Hon. Secretary, Rudgley, 32, Wood-street, Cheapside.

FAITH-HEALING Meetings, conducted by the Rev. John Allen, Trinity Church, Triangle, Hackney, London, E. Sundays, 3 p.m. Mondays, 7 p.m., addresses and testimonies; Tuesdays, 11.30 a.m., anointing service. Royal Oak-station. Special all night prayer meeting at Trinity Church, Hackney, Thursday, October 9th, commencing at 11 p.m.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 23, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College Avenue, Hackney.—The Annual Sale of Work will be held at the Home, on the 28th, 29th, and 30th of October. Articles for sale will be gratefully received by Miss S. Rye.

BRISTOL BIBLICAL INSTITUTE. For Young Men desirous of being trained as Candidates for the Ministry or Town Missionaries.—Send a stamped envelope to Rev. F. Prescott, Coronation-road, Bristol.

BETHSHAN.—Faith Healing Home. 161, Islington, Liverpool. For particulars apply to Miss Gibbs.

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION.

To Meet the Needs of the SICK POOR. "Preaching the Gospel and Healing."
Donations and clothing (new and old) thankfully received. Reports sent on application.
Hon. Director—Dr. G. Saunders, C.B. Hon. Treasurer—Dr. W. R. Bell. 47, Endell-st., St. Giles'.

STAR VILLA ORPHAN HOME.

Will every reader kindly respond to the APPEAL in The Christian of August 28, and send as the Lord may enable them towards the needed help. Bankers—London and Provincial, Chatham. Hon. Superintendent, Mrs. Willis, Star Villa Orphan Home, Rainham-road, Chatham, Kent.

MRS. PARSONS' ORPHAN HOME, WALTHAMSTOW.

We shall (D.V.) hold our usual ANNUAL SALE in aid of the Orphan Home in December next, and contributions of all kinds for this object are very earnestly solicited. Will kind friends make a special effort to help us in this way?
Cumberland House, Walthamstow, Essex.

TRINITY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Kentish Town-road.—Sale of Work on October 20, 21, 22, 1884, in Royal Park Lecture Hall, Park-street, Camden Town, to reduce the debt on the Church. Contributions of money, or articles for sale, will be thankfully received by Mrs. Whitmore, 88, Caversham-road, London, N.W.

MODERATE DRINKING.—A Special PUBLIC MEETING of the National Temperance League will be held in EXETER HALL, on Friday, 17th October, to direct attention to the Evils and Dangers of "Moderate Drinking" The Right Rev. The Lord Bishop of Exeter, President of the League, will preside; and the meeting will be addressed by Alfred Carpenter, Esq., M.D.; B. W. Richardson, Esq., M.D., F.R.S.; John James Ritchie, Esq., M.R.C.S., Leek; Rev. Colmer B. Symes, B.A., and other gentlemen. Doors open at 6.15; Chair to be taken at 7 p.m. Admission Free. Tickets for Reserved Seats, 1s. each, may be obtained at the Offices of the League, 337, Strand.

COSTERMONGERS' COTTAGE MISSION, Vinegar Ground, City-road, E.C.—Established 1872.—Funds are greatly needed at the present time to carry on the Lord's work among this class of poor. Also parcels of left-off clothing will be thankfully received for the little costers this coming winter.—Walter Penrose, Supt.; W. Owen, Treasurer, 22, St. George's-road, Tufnell-park, N.

Educational.

MORAVIAN EDUCATION.—Fulneck, near Leeds. Established 1750. Application to be made to Miss Shawe for the Girls' School, and to Rev. W. T. Titterington for the Boys' School.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, Belgrave-place. Principals Mrs and Miss Wilkin.—High class education for Girls. Pupils prepared for the Royal Academy (Music) and University Examinations. Healthy situation. Home comforts. Prospectus and references on application

ROTHESAY HOUSE, Alum Chine, Bournemouth.—Miss Cole (certificated in London University Examinations for Women), having for some years successfully conducted a large school for girls, now receives a few Pupils in her own home Healthy position near sea. Thorough education, combined with comforts of refined Christian home. Lady boarder received.

MRS. TATE, widow of a medical man, offers a happy home to children whose parents are abroad, and who need motherly care and education; or to any attending the High School. References:—Dr. Kidd, Col. Brooke, and others.—For terms, &c., address, Leigh's Villa, Bennett-park, Blackheath, London, S.E.

ALBURY HEATH, near Guildford.—Miss Baker receives six Young Ladies. Home comforts. Excellent education. Certificated governesses. Visiting professors. Healthy and beautiful situation. Indian children received. Highest testimonials. Pupil Teacher required, premium £20.

CAMBRIDGE TRAINING for Holy Orders at Theological College Rates.—Full use of inter-collegiate system. Fee for board, lodging, tuition, and all University and College charges, £25 a term. Theological course. Six Terms; B.A. course, Nine Terms. For particulars apply,
Principal, Ayerst's Hostel, Cambridge.

PRIVATE TUITION.—The Rev. Henry T. J. Coggin, M.A. Cantab., and Mr. H. G. Harris, B.A. London, receive a few resident pupils. Terms, 100 guineas; under 14, 80 guineas.—St. John's House, Finchley, Middlesex.

HASTINGS.—Wellington College for Ladies, 4, Wellington-square. Head Mistress, Miss De la Mare. Honours in the L.L.A. Examination for women. Science and other certificates. Pupils prepared for the local and higher examinations. Kindergarten department for young children. Vacancies for two boarders.—Prospectus on application to the Secretary, Rev. F. Leaver.

HOLLAND HOUSE, Clarence-parade, Southsea.—School for the daughters of gentlemen. Special educational advantages, with home comforts and care. Indian charges received. References kindly permitted to the parents of present and former pupils. Prospectus on application to the Principal.

EDUCATION.—Two Boys between the ages of 5 and 13 can be received at nominal terms in a high class Preparatory School in the North of England, to fill vacancies. Happy home. Great educational advantages.—Address, in the first instance, A. B., care of Mr. Chappel, Stationer, Brecknock-road, London, N.W.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE for Young Ladies, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon, and CLARENDON HOUSE, Topsham (for delicate girls requiring sea-air) Education of the highest order. Professors, English and foreign certificated governesses. Pupils successfully passed Edinburgh, Oxford, Trinity College, College of Preceptors. Honours, and special certificates. The Principal's aim is to secure a training that will ensure spiritual well-being; she engages as teachers ladies of decided piety only. Numerous references to parents in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and abroad. Pupils accompanied to and from London (journey of four hours).

LONDON.—First-class Education for the daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors; their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles. —Delta, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE,
Principal: Dr. Cranage.

SOUTHPORT.—First-class Girls' School. Conducted by members of the Society of Friends. Special educational advantages. Masters and Lecturers of acknowledged merit. Watchful care and home comforts. Situation particularly open and healthy.—Mrs. Wallis, Brighthelmston, Birkdale, Southport.

VACANCIES will occur September 29, in an old-established School, in which Young Ladies have a thorough education based upon Gospel principles, combined with the advantages of a happy home. Holidays only twice a year: Christmas and Midsummer Terms moderate Miss Birch, Florence House, Baschurch, Salop

SOUTHDENE, Ramsgate.—Splendidly situated Home for delicate children requiring sea and country air combined with educational advantages. Under the personal supervision of experienced Christian Lady. Prospectus on application. Terms moderate.

EDUCATION.—The Misses Wilkinson receive a limited number of Boarders as well as Day-pupils. References are kindly permitted to several clergymen and parents of pupils, who are willing to testify to the evangelical teaching and loving care bestowed, as well as to the sound education imparted.—Prospectuses on application to 55, Highbury-park, N.

BELLE VUE, Ambleside.—Good School for Girls.—Having increased accommodation, Mrs Fleming can now receive six additional Pupils. House well and healthily situated, with large rooms, garden, tennis ground. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Distinguished success in Cambridge Examinations, which are optional. Resident foreign and English governesses. Visiting masters. 50 to 60 guineas.

DAILY GOVERNESS.—A Lady having completed a five years' engagement, desires an appointment. Very advanced English, French, Latin (Cæsar), music, drawing, calisthenics. First-rate references.—Alpha, Mr. J. Kirkman, opposite Lewisham-hill, S.E.

A YOUNG LADY (age 20) is desirous of meeting with a re-engagement as Nursery Governess to children under 12. Would be willing to make herself generally useful.—S. J. H., care of Mrs. Whiting, High-street, Sutton, near Ely.

TWO BACKWARD or delicate children, for whom individual teaching upon a successful system is desired, can be received by a Christian lady and daughter, living in their own house. Healthy and beautiful neighbourhood. Home comforts and careful training. Lawn tennis. Terms each, including books, music, laundress, 50 guineas.—X., care of Mr. Carter, Stationer, Northwick-terrace, Cheltenham.

A COMFORTABLE and Refined Home on the South Coast offered to a lady, who will teach music three hours daily to advanced pupils.
A. B., 11, Freeling-street, Caledonian-road, N.

GOVERNESS, experienced and decided Christian, wishes re-engagement.—English, French, music, &c. Pupils under 12 preferred. Excellent testimonials. Recommended by Rev. William Haslam.—Beta, Mr. Howard's, Albion Printing Office, Upper Sydenham.

EXPERIENCED NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted, in a gentleman's family in the country, to take entire charge of three children, under 12. Capable of teaching thorough English, French, Latin, music, singing, and drawing. Only a Christian Lady of experience and a good disciplinarian need apply Age 25 to 30.
S J., Birchwood, Dedham, Colchester.

A LADY wishes to find a situation in a Christian family for a German Swiss, as Governess to young children. German and French. Willing to help in needlework. Age nearly 20. Protestant. Can be highly recommended. Has not been out before.
Mrs. A. H. Heywood, Elleray, Windermere.

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted for two boys, aged six and three years. Must be musical and good needlewoman. — Apply, by letter, to Mrs. Finlay, Glenmona, Cushendeen, co. Antrim.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

CHRISTIAN MAN, 49, abstainer, without encumbrance, seeks employment. Understands gardening, horses, and willing to make himself useful. Good reference.
Beta, 17, Station-road, New Southgate, N.

A HUNGARIAN (Hebrew Christian), 30 years of age, who speaks English and German fluently, seeks a situation as Manservant, Messenger, or any place of trust. Good references.
S. B., 4, Approach-road, Victoria-park.

AS INDOOR SERVANT.—A Lady wishes to recommend a Christian young man, abstainer, aged 22, height 5 ft. 4 in., nice appearance. Thoroughly trustworthy, willing, and active. Undertakes pantry work, and pony if required.—V. L., Post-office, Mansfield.

ESTATE AGENCY, Resident Factorship, or position of trust.—A Solicitor, in good practice in Scotland, desires such in dry and bracing part of England, on account of health. Highest references.—Apply, with particulars, to Solicitor, 9, Bank-street, Edinburgh.

WANTED by Man and Wife (27), experienced, management of small Coffee-house and Gospel work. Combined or separate. Thorough knowledge of lime-light and magic lanterns.—G. D., 35, Broad-street, Reading.

Mr. W. MORTLOCK, Evangelist, has been holding some very successful services among the hop-pickers of Worcestershire. He will now be willing to work in any chapel or mission with the view of uplifting Christ (John xii. 32). Undoubted references.
W. M., 1, Dace-road, Monier-road, Old Ford, E.

A LADY WISHES to recommend as Butler, a man of 35, with 20 years' good references. A total abstainer and Christian.
Miss Fraser, The Hope, Merton, S.W.

FOR PLACE OF TRUST.—A Lady highly recommends energetic, conscientious person, with a thorough knowledge of household matters. Could attend on a delicate lady, take charge of the linen, and superintend the house.
M. C., Farmer's Library, Kensington.

CARETAKER. — Wanted, by a young woman and her brother, charge of offices, house, or mission-room. References given. London preferred.
M. T., 83, Manor-street, Chelsea, S.W.

LADY SECRETARY.—A Minister's Daughter seeks daily employment in London. Book-keeping, correspondence, shorthand, &c. Highest references from former employers.
L. M. G., 43, Breakspears-road, Brockley, S.E.

HOUSEKEEPER. — Re-engagement to Gentleman, or Lady and Gentleman where servant is kept. Thoroughly domesticated. Good needlewoman. Fond of children. Good references. Town or country.
E., 267, Brixton-road, S.W.

AN OFFICER'S DAUGHTER (26), desires re-engagement as Companion to an elderly Lady. No accomplishments; accustomed to reading. Six years' reference. Country preferred.—Caffreria, 22, Romola-road, Norwood-road, Herne hill, S.E.

GERMAN YOUNG LADY (23), who has been three years in Scotland, would like a situation as a useful, companionable Help to a Lady. Very fond of housekeeping, and is a good sewer. Well recommended.
Miss E., 8, Douglas-crescent, Edinburgh.

AS MOTHER'S HELP, or Attendant Companion to an invalid Lady, by a clergyman's daughter, who has had some little experience in nursing. Good references.
C. L., The Bury, Pavenham, Bedford.

AN ENGAGEMENT wanted amongst poor children by a young woman, 28, Scotch, accustomed to teach, sew, sick nurse. Great love for the work
J. Lyon, Broomfield House, Row, Helensburgh.

A FRENCH PROTESTANT young Lady, who has been in Ireland before, wishes to go again as Companion in a family of distinction. No salary.
Madame Hitschler, 20, Chaussée d'Antin, Paris.

NURSE to an Invalid, or monthly nursing, by a Christian person.
J., 31, High-street, St. John's-wood, London.

AS YOUNG LADY'S MAID or Useful Companion (23); previously engaged as Nursery Governess; bright and cheerful disposition. Abstainer. Good needlewoman. Salary £20.
Spero, Royal Library, Sutherland-gardens, W.

A LADY WISHES to recommend late cook as good plain Cook and working Housekeeper to Lady or Gentleman, where other servants are kept. Good character. Dissenter. Aged 41.—A. B. C., Albion House, Herbert-road, Plumstead, S E.

A WIDOW desires a situation as Lady Housekeeper, or as Companion to a Christian Lady. References exchanged.
U., 139, East-street, Newton Abbot.

WANTED, by an experienced Cook, few hours' daily work. Thoroughly understands economy. Could teach cooking in a school Many years' good character.
E. M., 9, Norfolk-street, Brighton, Sussex.

A LADY DESIRES to hear of some kind person who would take a motherless girl, between 13 and 14, to train as house servant, without wages; to one who would give her the protection of a kind mistress. She is strong, willing, and useful.—Mrs. M., care of Rev. Lewis Saunders, Wentworth-place, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

A LADY recommends a girl (17) as Under Nurse; or to take one or two children, under mother's supervision. Had some experience. Near London preferred.
G., 71, Fellows-road, Hampstead.

A YOUNG PERSON seeks a situation as Upper Housemaid, or Useful Maid in a Christian family. Is a good needlewoman. About five or six weeks.—C. C., 278, Pentonville-road, King's-cross, London.

A CHRISTIAN WORKER requires evening engagements. Free after 4 p.m. Secretarial, Editorial, Choral, Accountancy, or organising work preferred. References given.
R. C., 16, Sydenham-park, S.E.

NURSERY GOVERNESS, Housekeeper, or any position of trust.—A young Lady (29) desires a re-engagement. Domesticated, good needlewoman. Total abstainer. Excellent references of five and six years.
M. A. R., 38, Cranfield-road, Brockley, S.E.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS wanted, for the St. James's Gospel Mission.—Apply to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. W. E. COOPER, 17, Prince's-square, S.E.

CURATE WANTED, for sole charge. Thoroughly Evangelical. Stipend £120. —Bishop HANNINGTON, care of D. Neve, Esq., Hurstpierpoint, Sussex

A CHRISTIAN PARTNER wanted, in an old-established Printing Business. Must have from £300 to £500 at disposal for extension of above.
PRINTER, 35, Northampton-road, Clerkenwell.

BIBLE-WOMAN wanted. Must be an active, earnest Evangelical Christian.
Apply to VICAR, St. Mark's, Barrow-in-Furness.

BIBLE - WOMAN wanted for Charles Parish, Plymouth She must know something of a Nurse's work among the poor, and be a total abstainer. Salary £25 a year.—Apply by letter to Rev. G. F. HEAD, 15, Woodland-terrace, Plymouth.

MEDICAL ASSISTANT wanted. Must be an earnest Christian, have excellent references, used to good society, accustomed to general practice in all its branches.
Dr. W., 39, Hall Gate, Doncaster.

AN ORGANIST will be required at Christmas, for Christ Church, Worthing. He must be a communicant of the Church of England, and satisfied with a simple service. Testimonials as to Christian character, primarily, and thorough efficiency, to be addressed to the Vicar. Stipend £40.

MAN AND WIFE wanted, in a Christian family. Man as butler, wife as good cook and housekeeper. Total abstainers. Good references indispensable.
W. H. TOOMER, Esq., Twyford, Berks.

WORKING HOUSEKEEPER wanted, for an Invalid Lady. Must be active and trustworthy. Good references required.—Apply daily to Baroness CELLI, from 4 to 5, 19, Kennet-road, Elgin-road, W.

GROOM wanted. Single. To live in.—Apply by letter, Grafton Manor, Bromsgrove, Worcestershire.

WORKING MATRON wanted, in Co. Down, Ireland, for a country Orphanage where ten children are cared for. None need apply but a Christian with some experience of household management.—ALPHA, 6, Portland-place North, Lower Clapton.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY, for the Bristol Penitentiary, a respectable Christian woman. Abstainer. Competent to do and teach first-class laundry work. Wages £20, and all found.—Apply to the MATRON, 60, Upper Maud-in-street, Bristol.

WANTED FOR THE MAGDALEN ASYLUM, an experienced Laundress to teach young women laundry work. Good wages given. This is a comfortable situation for one desiring a quiet home.
The MATRON, 8, Lower Leeson-street, Dublin.

ENERGETIC, CHRISTIAN young woman wanted, to assist in the bar, and be generally useful.—Apply, personally or letter, to MANAGER, Calverley Coffee House, 10, Calverley-road, Tunbridge Wells.

A MARRIED LADY, and her Husband, wish to secure the assistance of a Christian Lady of experience and superior attainments, for the management of their household. She must be a facile correspondent, and willing to act as amanuensis; rendering generally such companionable help as may be needed.—Please address, with full particulars (in own handwriting) of antecedents, age, religious views, and salary, to C. W., care of Housekeeper, 11, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

WANTED, AT ONCE, two Young Lady Evangelists, who can sing, and lead Salvation Meetings.
Mr. T. BOYCE, 9, The Shambles, York

YORK ASSOCIATION for the care of Young Girls.—Wanted, a Lady interested in Rescue Work, to manage a Cottage Home. Board and lodging are provided, but no salary can be offered. All particulars from Mrs. WILKINSON, 6, Wenlock-terrace, York.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a Christian Nurse for a baby? She will have to take it from the mouth, and bring it up by hand. One who has brought up a baby preferred. Her age about 24.
Apply to Mrs. WELDON, Morden-hill, Lewisham.

AS NURSE, a conscientious Christian Young Person wanted, about 20 years old. Good health and character required. A quiet country home.—Mrs. COOPER, Knodishall Hall, Saxmundham, Suffolk.

NURSE (Upper), trustworthy and experienced, wanted, for Gentleman's family in Edinburgh. Scotchwoman, not over 35, preferred. Good needlewoman. Can any Lady recommend such?—No 29, KEITH & Co., Advertising Agents, Edinburgh.

UNDER NURSE.—Will any Lady recommend a respectable Girl? Must be honest, truthful, obliging, active, well trained. Country preferred. Would have comfort of Christian home. Age 16 to 18.—Apply by letter, E., Chappell's Library, Brecknock-road, London, N.

A MIDDLE-AGED woman, or woman and daughter, wanted, to manage a Coffee House. Must be well recommended.—Apply, with full particulars, to Mr. MADDISON, Ledbury.

RESPECTABLE, STRONG WOMAN wanted, age about 30, to act as bath attendant to a few ladies.—Apply, by letter, to A. B. C., C. F. Carpenter's Health Resort, Bishops Teignton, S. Devon.

CAN ANY LADY recommend an Orphan Girl, about 12 years, to be trained for a servant in a Christian home?—Miss ARNOLD, 50, Victoria-road, Clapham-common, S.W.

COUNTRY GIRL wanted, able to do plain cooking, as General Servant. Age about 16 to 20.—SAXONIA, Croxted-road, Dulwich, S.E.

FOR EDINBURGH.—Table and Sewing-maid. English preferred. Also thorough HOUSEMAID. Unexceptionable references. Christian girls who will appreciate a comfortable home.—Apply immediately to A. B., 3, Charlotte-place, Edinburgh.

PLAIN COOK wanted in quiet family, or general servant who can cook well.—Those with good character may apply by letter to B. C., Lyndhurst, Kew-gardens, Surrey. State wages required.

THOROUGH GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, the beginning of November, for neighbourhood of London. Family of two. Must be a Christian and total abstainer. A quiet, comfortable home.—Apply by letter, H. M., Belle Vue House, Matlock Bath, Derbyshire.

PLAIN COOK wanted, about 30, who will assist in housework. Wages £16. Two in family. Moving shortly to Birkenhead.—Mrs. MORRIS, Ocklynge, Tulse Hill-park, S.W.

HOUSEMAID, to wait on a Lady.—Wanted, in London, an active person, who must be a fair dressmaker. The family is very small. Parlourmaid kept. Not less than a year's good character from last place essential. No letters from a distance, an interview in London being desired.—Address, by letter only, Mrs. C., 11, Phillimore-gardens, Kensington, W.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a trustworthy Upper Housemaid (abstainer), not under 40? Comfortable home in country town. Two in family.—Mrs. C., care of Mr. Tracey, South-street, Dorking.

AN UPPER HOUSEMAID wanted, not under 25. Large house in Hants, quiet situation Must be thoroughly experienced.
Miss ONSLOW, 2, Clifton-gardens, Folkestone.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted.—Small family. Comfortable situation for steady girl with good character. Could a lady recommend one either from the country or otherwise?
BETA, 7, Woodside, Ewell-road, Surbiton.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, in a house of business Must be a good plain cook. A comfortable home for a Christian.
Apply at 151, City-road, E.C.

PAGE OR FOOT-BOY wanted, in a Gentleman's small family in the Isle of Wight. Must be a quiet, steady, respectable, willing lad, who has been trained to indoor work.—Address, with full particulars of age, wages, references, &c., to L. T., care of Mr. Taylor, Bookseller, 31, Castle-street, Edinburgh.

GOOD HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID wanted, where one other servant is kept. Wages £16. All found except beer.—Mrs. KING, Chesils, Christ Church-road, Hampstead, N.W.

A STEADY, RESPECTABLE GIRL wanted, as General Servant. One who can do plain cooking. Family consisting of two children, and nursemaid kept.—W. FARAKER, Esq., Churchfields, Broxbourne, Herts.

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, for a small, quiet family. Good character indispensable. Religious privileges. Please write, stating age and wages, to J. K. L., care of Messrs. Bull & Son, Victoria-road, Surbiton.

AGENTS (male and female) required throughout England, Scotland, and Ireland to sell our pure Teas on commission varying from 7d. per lb. Our terms are the most liberal in the trade, enabling Agents to earn £2 weekly. Payment only required after sale. Special terms for cash. Free delivery. Write for samples (gratis) to the United Tea Growers' Association 114, Union court, E.C.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

This First-class Private Hotel is highly recommended by readers of THE CHRISTIAN from all parts of the world. The Bishop of Algoma writes: "The comfort, perfect order, and attendance at PERCY'S Hotel, render it all that can be desired as a central place of sojourn in this great city." Beds from 1s. 6d. Tea, 1s. 3d. Tariff on application.

VISITORS TO LONDON will find a Christian home at Taverner's Temperance Hotel, 35 & 36, Hunter-street, Euston-road. Five minutes from G. N., Mid., and N. W. Railways. Patronised by ministers and Christians of all denominations.

HUTCHINSON'S PRIVATE HOTEL, 24, Guilford-street, Russell-square, the most central position for all parts of London. Extensive patronised and strongly recommended. Home comforts. Terms moderate.

LONDON.—Insull's Temperance Hotel, 20, 21, Burton-crescent, Tavistock-square, W.C.—Five minutes' walk or 1s. cab fare from Euston, St. Pancras, King's Cross Railways; easily reached from other stations. Patronised by readers of THE CHRISTIAN.

BRIGHTON.—Sussex House Boarding Establishment, pleasantly situated in the Old Steine, having a sea view, and the beautiful Steine Gardens in front. Near to Pavilion, Aquarium, and piers. Liberal table, with every home comfort.—Mr. & Mrs. Box 58, Old Steine.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA Boarding Establishment. The home of a Minister's daughter. Established 11 years. Mansion replete with every comfort. Fine sea view.—Miss NEWBURY, Cavendish House, Warrior-square.

SOUTHSEA.—Solent House Boarding Establishment. Sunny, cheerful, and most comfortable winter residence. Due south, facing sea and Isle of Wight. Late dinner. Terms 25s. to 35s.—Misses BAKER, South Parade.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—A widow Lady wishes to receive a Lady Boarder. A permanency preferred. Healthy locality. An invalid not desired
Z., care of Miss Linney, 3, London-road.

EASTBOURNE.—Board and Residence.—Comfortable home. Kind care given to invalid. Or pleasant sitting-room with two bedrooms could be had. Near sea. Terms moderate.—A. Z., Mandy's, Terminus-road, Eastbourne.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Apartments, with or without Board, in private family. No children. House facing south, near church, sea, and station. Kind attention to an invalid.—Miss MATTHEWS, Cadogan Villa, Church-road, Bournemouth.

HASTINGS NEW HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT.—Now open. Charming residence for change and rest. An unequalled health resort. Purest air. Turkish bath, with sea-water plunge. Scientific baths of every description, with skilled attendants One and a half hours from London. Moderate charges.
Apply to the SECRETARY.

HASTINGS.—Boarding Establishment, 3 and 4, Cornwallis-gardens. Most comfortable family house. Position good and central. Excellent table. Can be well recommended.
Proprietress, Mrs. BUTTERWORTH.

FINSBURY PARK. — To Let, furnished Apartments, suitable for one or two Gentlemen. Terms moderate; no other lodgers. Convenient for City or West-end.
W. T., 73, Tollington-park, N.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL. — To Let, furnished or unfurnished, a House in Royal Park. Sixteen rooms, two gardens. £60 per annum, unfurnished; £74 per month, furnished.
5, Kensington-place, Clifton, Bristol.

PUTNEY.—Best part, and close to railways. Front sitting-room and bed-room to Let, unfurnished, with attendance Quiet family.—Apply by letter, in first place, to W. B., 7, Woodford-villas, East Hill, Wandsworth.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, close to sea and Warrior-square station. Every attention to home comforts Smoking room. Moderate and inclusive terms. Miss RENNECK, Hartington House, Church-road.

PARTIAL, or full, Board in healthy village offered a Gentleman or Lady seeking quiet, comfortable home Private house. Separate sitting-room. Rooms large and airy. Terms moderate. Particulars (by letter in first instance) of K. W., Clare Lodge, Southall.

SCHOOL or Institution, Leyton Manor House, Capworth-street, Lea Bridge-road, to be Let or Sold at very low price, with or without land.—Apply to Caretaker, or GEO. WAYMOUTH, Architect, 23, Moorgate-street, E.C.

HASTINGS.—Board and Residence or private Apartments. Close to sea and station. Terms moderate for winter month.
St. Albans House, Cambridge-road.

WINTER HEALTH RESORT for the Lord's People, Rothesay, N.B. Famed for its mild climate The House of Rest a Christian Home and Hydropathic. Terms from 25s. per week inclusive.—C. CAMPBELL.

REQUIRED in Kensington or Notting-hill, a really comfortable Home for a lady engaged in Mission Work. Terms moderate.—Full particulars to E. M., 18, Percy-circus, King's-cross.

HOME with a married Lady of position, for Orphan, Ward, or otherwise. Highly recommended. Detached house. Bracing air. Near Highgate.
HOME, 11, Station-road, Finsbury-park.

GRANGE-OVER-SANDS, viâ Carnforth.—To Let, for the winter, comfortably furnished House, containing two sitting-rooms, six bed-rooms, kitchen, &c. Lovely view of Morecambe Bay and its surroundings.
Mrs. GOODALL, 2, Eastwood-terrace, as above.

A WIDOW LADY, having a large well-furnished house, offers a most comfortable Home to Gentlemen of quiet habits. Terms moderate. Four minutes from Canonbury station.
A. B., 37, Petherton-road, Highbury New-park, N.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS with Board, offered to a Lady for a permanency, situated in the healthiest part of Buxton. Fine, bracing air. Happy, quiet, home life. Terms, two guineas per week.
S. M., 49, High-street, Buxton.

HOME OFFERED to an Invalid, mental or otherwise, in the house of a Widow Lady, well experienced in the care of such. Every comfort and attention. Good nursing. Moderate terms.—Mrs. ANDERSON, 12, Adelaide-terrace, Portishead, Somerset.

A HIGHLY RESPECTABLE Widow offers a comfortable Home for an aged person, or care of a child over three years. Would receive every attention, with home comforts. Terms moderate. Clergyman's reference.—M., 14, Doris-street East, Kennington-road, London.

FURNISHED DRAWING-ROOM Floor, or Bed-room, and use of sitting-room, for a Lady or Gentleman. No lodger or children. Trams pass door to City.—167, Southgate-road, N.

A COMFORTABLE HOME and Sea Air.—Mrs. P., 17, St. Peter's-road, Great Yarmouth, has vacancy for Lady Boarder (invalid would receive care and attention). Terms moderate. Arrangement on application.

REQUIRED, a Comfortable Home with companionable Christian Widow or single Lady. Good bed-room indispensable. In London or near Bayswater preferred.
M. S., Waters' Library, 97, Westbourne-grove, W.

INVALIDS' HOME for Gentlewomen of means.—A married Christian Lady receives into her private cheerful residence three patients. Experienced nurse and medical attendant.—Mrs. D., 21, Norfolk-road, St. John's-wood.

RESIDENT PATIENT. — South Coast.—Medical man, married, desires to receive, or charge of delicate children. Large house, facing common and sea. Carriages kept.
MEDICUS, Fleming, 87, Palmeston-road, Southsea.

A MARRIED MEDICAL MAN in Kensington offers advantageous accommodation for Resident Patient. Full particulars on application by letter.—MEDICATOR, 6, North-crescent, Bedford-square, London.

A LADY IS DESIROUS to hear from others caring to Rent Rooms (furnished or unfurnished) in same house, for mutual help and sympathy in Christian work.
F. C., Mr. Bachhoffner, Bookseller, Clapham

INVALID AND CONVALESCENT Gentlewomen's Home. Terms moderate, including medical attendance and nursing. A few vacancies for the winter.—Apply to the LADY SUPERINTENDENT, 67, Dyke-road, Brighton.

A QUIET, REFINED HOME, with a Gentleman's family, living at the West-end, is offered to the sons of Gentlemen, while pursuing their studies in London.—S. G., Plummer's Library, 84, Norfolk-terrace, Bayswater, W.

SOUTH DEVON.—To Let, furnished, with attendance, for the winter, sitting-room, two bed-rooms, facing south. Suitable for ladies, or lady and gentleman. Every attention and convenience.
F. S., Post-office, Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth.

DIPSOMANIA. — A successfully established private Home at the seaside for six, suffering from excess of morphia, chloral, absinthe, stimulants, or Nervous Debility, Christian care and influence. Judicious supervision and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

Continued on page 22.

CONSTITUTIONAL AND EFFECTIVE TREATMENT OF CHRONIC AFFECTIONS.

There are affections which no ordinary medicinal compounds can cure, because their operation is limited to the alleviation or palliation of an ailment; by holding the symptoms in abeyance they modify the severity of an attack or help through a crisis, while they do not reach, and consequently cannot remove, the actual cause or causes of an ailment, simply because medicinal means are powerless to increase the vitality of the system or heighten its recuperative power, so as to overcome the tendency to a recurrence of the attacks. In Magneto-Electricity we have, on the contrary, a natural influence which affects the cause of the symptoms, and, while gradually removing the ailment itself, eradicates a tendency to its return by rectifying the conditions under which it exists. And it is because we have at our disposal a remedy, the success of which has been chiefly among cases despaired of in ordinary medical practice, that we hold firmly by this principle, that all treatments which would be final and effective must be constitutional. This is the basis of treatment, and, to us, its soundness is very apparent in that large variety of chronic affections for which Magnetism is undoubtedly the specific. It is often an easy task to treat symptoms only, but in doing this we should do no more for a patient than the ordinary medical treatment is supposed to do. It follows of necessity that unless we restore the true balance of the vital forces by simultaneously energising the whole organism, we are only dealing with the symptoms of disease, and not with their cause.

From Mr. F. MATTHEWS,
68, Vassall-road, Brixton, S.W.

June 26, 1884.

"From early childhood until the time of adopting your advice, I was a sufferer from chronic bronchitis and general debility. I was very susceptible to cold, the least exposure being followed by a severe attack of bronchitis quite prostrating in its effects. However, since adopting your treatment, two years ago, I have not had a single attack, and my general health has greatly improved. Of course it is a very great boon to me, and I cannot be too thankful that I was led to try your valuable and effective remedy, which I shall be very happy to recommend to any sufferer I may happen to know."

Having spent many years of patient, laborious, and continued study in adapting his treatment to some of the most obscure and intractable affections, Mr. Garratt now claims, as the result of his professional career, to have attained a success unparalleled in the healing art. Those who desire further information on his method of treatment should peruse his essays, explaining the radical effect of Magnetism upon the human organism in health and disease. It is Mr. Garratt's careful study to adapt the remedy to the requirements of each case—a practice based upon the principles laid down in his published essays, which can be obtained post free on application. He will always be happy to confer with any scientific or medical gentleman, either personally or by letter, upon any phase of the subject, or any case for treatment, and will send a private list of 950 names as referees to any address.—B. Copson Garratt, Medical Electrician, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

WORKS BY ANNA SHIPTON.

REVIEWS.

"They are songs of the heart, and will be read with greatest pleasure by those who live nearest to Jesus."
Christian World.

"We sincerely hope these 'Whispers' may prove soothing, comforting, and encouraging to the souls of all who may be drawn within the sphere of their utterance."
British Workwoman.

"We commend it especially to those who find in spiritual poetry an important stimulus to the spiritual life. It is full of elevated thought and quiet beauty."
The Christian.

"Full of devout and gentle earnestness. This book has greatly refreshed us. Its quiet, chastened, and trustful spirit adapts it to the sick chamber and the time of trial."
The Sword and Trowel.

"We cannot but affectionately recommend this volume."
Gospel Magazine.

"These 'Footsteps' are true to life, and abound with practical illustration."
Methodist Recorder.

"The various chapters are mines of richest experience. The author lives at the feet of Jesus, or rather in His bosom, and she receives intimations of guidance which none but such can know."
The Sword and Trowel.

"Marked by deep piety, quiet thoughtfulness, and a considerable familiarity with the Bible."
English Independent.

"We can recommend it to all those who know what it is to dwell in the secret place of the Most High."—Sunday School Chronicle.

"It is one of the sweetest pieces of female biography with which we are acquainted."
Christian Age.

The Brook in the Way.

A Volume of Original Hymns and Poems illustrative of the Christian Life.

Third Edition.

Beautifully printed on toned paper, and elegantly bound, 3s. 6d. (post-free).

Whispers in the Palms.

A Volume of Hymns and Poetic Meditations.

Fourth Edition.

Beautifully printed on toned paper, and elegantly bound, 3s. 6d.

Waymarks of My Pilgrimage.

POEMS.

Elegantly bound in cloth, bevelled boards, gilt side and gilt edges, price 2s. 6d.

Wayside Service; or, The Day of Small Things.

Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation), 2s. 6d. (post-free).
Cheap Edition in tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, 1s. 6d. (post-free).

"Asked of God:" Experiences of Answered Prayer.

Attractively bound, gilt edges, 2s. 6d. (post-free).
Cheap Edition in tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, 1s. 6d. (post-free).

Footsteps of the Flock.

A Series of Narratives in Christian Life.

Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation), 2s. 6d. (post-free).
Cheap Edition, tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, 1s. 6d. (post-free).

God's Messengers; or, The Lost Blessing.

Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation), 2s. 6d. (post-free).
Cheap Edition, tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, 1s. 6d. (post free).

The Secret of the Lord.

Sixth Thousand.

Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation), 2s. 6d. (post-free).
Cheap Edition, tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, 1s. 6d. (post-free).

The Sure Mercies of David.

Cloth neat, 2s. 6d.
Superior Edition, toned paper, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.

"The Message from the Throne."

A Brief Memoir of Harriet Perfect, a Servant of Christ, and a Succourer of many.

With Photographed Portrait.

Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt edges, bevelled boards, 2s.
Cheap Edition, tinted covers, 1s.

REVIEWS.

"These simple and strong writings hold into the most vivid light especially the following truths; viz. the sphere and power of faith; the certain prevalence of prayer; the particular providence of God; the proposition that nothing is secular which is sacred enough to be mentioned to God in prayer; the necessity of continual labour for Christ; the vital importance of seizing opportunities to do good, and to illustrate in the life the difficult and Christly graces of forbearance, forgiveness, and that charity, or love, which literally 'beareth all things.' By various arguments, by numberless touching and startling incidents, these truths are brought to view. There is something in the revelation of such implicit confidence in God and His writter word that staggers the philosophy of materialism, and does mightily brace the faith of believers."
The Christian at Work.

"Those readers especially, who by sorrow or suffering are 'shut in' from active service for Christ, and who often lament that they can do so little for Jesus, will find in these books much instruction and comfort, and learn something of the mysteries of God's dealings with His chastened ones. Those who may have read the books will appreciate the aptness and beauty of these remarks, and any who may yet read them will, I am persuaded, do so with an increased interest."—New York Advocate and Guardian.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Christian.

THE GLORY OF THE LORD.

"I BESEECH Thee show me Thy glory," was the earnest cry of desire uttered by Moses when communing with God in the tabernacle on the eve of his journey to Canaan at the head of the chosen race. And such a prayer still becomes the leaders of God's people, and, indeed, all who are called by his name. It is an age of activities; ceaseless and innumerable are the calls to engage in all kinds of effort. Conferences, congresses and committees, abound on every hand, and machinery in abundance is to be found for use in social, moral, and spiritual reforms. But there is something lacking, spite of all these signs of vigour and indications of desire for better things. The earnest and thoughtful among those who join in the manifold agencies employed are conscious of dissatisfaction with their results, and behind all the éclát and jubilant feeling which often attend large assemblies and popular religious demonstrations, there is a consciousness that the point has not been reached, the great desideratum has not been attained.

One flash of the light which pertains to the glory of the Lord does more to quicken, sanctify, and bless, than all the multiple and costly expedients so often resorted to, and so greatly trusted in. In Exodus xxix. 43, we read: "Israel shall be sanctified by my glory" (marg.), and the palmiest days of Jewish history were those when that glory filled the house and manifested itself to the wondering eyes of the favoured beholders. The absence of that sight accounts for Israel's darkness and despair to-day; not until that glory is again revealed can the seed of Abraham be glad or strong. But when its bright and holy rays shall again fall upon them, then shall it be said of them and to them: "Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." Without that glory, "Ichabod" may indeed be written on our sanctuaries, on all our chosen places of resort, and on our hearts.

Are there not signs that unless more desire for its continuance, more concern for its conscious enjoyment, more readiness to acknowledge its supreme necessity, is shown in the churches, the glory of the Lord will withdraw itself rather than reveal its radiance? Ezekiel "heard a voice as of a great rushing, saying, 'Blessed be the glory of the Lord from his place.'" But, alas! it did not proceed from the earthly sphere of its manifestation where it ought to have been magnified and delighted in. Soon after, the prophet beholds that same glory in the temple (Ezek. viii. 4), but it is not long to abide there. Presently he sees it remove from "the cherub whereupon it was to the threshold of the house" (ch. x. 4). After a brief pause it further removes from the threshold to the air, hovering in the midst of the city" (ch. x. 18); then, as though lingering, loth to depart from so once blest a spot as Jerusalem had been, it went up from the midst of the city and stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city" (ch. xi. 23); finally, it departs entirely from sight, and Israel is desolate.

Surely a lesson is here for ourselves: "The light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" has shone upon us. By the presence and power of the Holy Ghost, through the Word, the Church of Christ, and each believer in it, "beholding as in a mirror the glory of the Lord," may be, and, if faithful, is, "changed into the same image," and reflects its brightness upon the world around. In proportion as spiritual life is thus developed, nurtured, and delighted in, the churches are powerful and divinely blessed. But let idols be enthroned in the heart, worldliness, that "image of jealousy," be set up in the Church, which is, or ought to be, the house of the Lord, and lo! the glory shall withdraw, and the Spirit of God, grieved and neglected, will withhold his power. Turning their back on the temple of the Lord as they stood in the inner court, Ezekiel saw five-and-twenty men worshipping the sun toward the east (viii. 16). Forsaking the "Sun of Righteousness," they sought to bask in the beams of the sun of this world. Do not many now do the same? Instead of drawing near to God, and deriving strength and beauty from his sanctuary, do not multitudes of modern professors ally themselves with earthly schemes and projects, seeking human prestige and carnal influence rather than relying on the presence and power of God?

The remedy lies only in individual and collective return unto the first love. To the Church of Ephesus Jesus said, "Remember, therefore, from whence thou art fallen; and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of its place, except thou repent." The voice re-echoes in the ear of the churches of to-day. Everything urges a personal and general drawing nigh unto God on the part of his professing people. Our attitude should be that of men who "watch for the morning," as those who are eager to see that glory which is our only source of light, life, and love. Many of us, who "love his appearing," are anticipating the return of our Lord, when "He shall come the second time without sin unto salvation." More than anything else to prepare us for that event, and to enable us "to stand before the Son of Man," we need to live now in the light of his spiritual presence and to behold the glory of God, as it is to be seen by faith. Leviticus ix. directs us how to do this. Let us comply with Divine directions and it shall be said unto us, "This is the thing which the Lord commanded that ye should do; and the glory of the Lord shall appear unto you."

"Therefore also now, saith the Lord, turn ye even to Me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning: and rend your heart, and not your garments, and turn unto the Lord your God: for He is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth Him of the evil. Who knoweth if He will return and repent, and leave a blessing behind Him; even a meat offering and a drink offering unto the Lord your God?" (Joel ii. 12—14.)

W. F. G.

SOUL-REST.

By Rev. MARK GUY PEARSE.

"He maketh me to lie down."—Ps. xxiii. 2.
"I will feed my flock, and I will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord God."—Ezek xxxiv. 15.

MAKETH me to lie down! If there is any one thing that a sheep can do for itself, surely it is just that—lying down. A sheep may want feeding; it may want leading; it may need to be delivered out of the hand of many enemies; it may need bringing back to the fold; but lying down, surely it is able to do that for itself!

Ah, so we think, and so we never come to the Lord for this great gift and grace. And all the time it is the Lord's own secret, which He keepeth ever to Himself. The sheep are always seeking to lie down, and they cannot. The world is always trying to find this power, but in vain. The Tempter would sell almost anything in his realm if he could but buy this knowledge—how to make his sheep lie down.

I was leaning over a gate one day watching the flock as they rested in the green pastures. "When do your sheep lie down, shepherd?" said I. "Well," said he, "I don't know; I suppose it is when they have had enough."

Only the Lord can give his sheep that. Presently there came the master of the flock. "When do your sheep lie down?" I asked. "Only when they are very comfortable," said he; and even as he spoke they rose up frightened and hurried together for protection, because the dog was looking in at the gate.

Only the Lord can make his sheep lie down. And this is the first thing—not the last. He maketh me to lie down, then He leadeth me. Many of us have a private version of this Psalm, which runs thus: He leads me until I am dreadfully tired, and then He lets me lie down for a little while. No—listen to the sweet music of the song: He maketh me to lie down, then He leadeth me. Stay, timid soul, you think that to follow Him means a panting journey across a desert place, footsore, thirsty, urged on by fear of the night and beasts of prey, with the Shepherd Himself ever so far on before thee, and moving so quickly that thou, poor wearied one, canst scarce keep him in sight! Oh, the worry, the burden, the fretting that religion is to many! Rest? no, indeed. It is a wearied effort, dragging tired steps for ever up a steep hill and fearing that they will never get to the top! Ah, before you take a step He would have you at rest with Him. "Lie down, dear child," saith He; "lie down. My service is not weariness, but rest. Lie down, then; when thy fears are gone to sleep and thou hast learned my love, then will I lead thee."

There is the same wonderful tenderness in the blessed Lord's own words, "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest—then learn of Me." "Rest first, and then I can teach thee," saith He.

See, into the school here comes the new scholar—a timid little fellow, with frightened eyes, looking round on all the clever boys and girls, wondering if he will ever get to know so much as they do; burdened and bewildered by the maps and boards and all the signs of learning that everywhere look down so sternly on him, making him feel almost guilty at being so ignorant. So dull, so stupid as he feels himself, poor little lad, he wonders if he will ever get through the mysteries of the alphabet, or if he will ever get up the slippery heights of the multiplication table. Ah, see, here comes the gentle mistress, without book or cane, and draws the frightened little scholar to her side with pleasant smile and merry words, and begins to tell him a story and makes him forget that he is at school, and then when he is at home with her, she opens a book and teaches him a lesson without his ever guessing that he is learning anything.

This is just the blessed Master's own method, "Rest; then learn of Me." Come and know first of all my patient gentleness and love, then I can teach thee—this first, not last. He maketh me to lie down, then He leadeth me. He who hath not learned to rest, hath not learned how to learn. He who knows not how He makes us to lie down, knows not how to follow Him. . . . .

Power, wisdom, love, these are the three great gifts and qualifications of the Good Shepherd. Power to defend and to deliver; wisdom to select and to guide and to restore; love that never wearies, never forsakes, never turns aside forgetful of the flock. With us the shepherd is above all a man of peace; but as he appears in the East it is as a strong man armed. He goes forth with his sheep as one who goes to war. A long gun is slung from his shoulder, a dagger and heavy pistols are thrust in the belt, and a light axe or iron-headed club in the hand. He must be as brave as he is strong, for often he has to fight with savage beasts of prey, as David did; and when the robber band comes the good shepherd does battle for his flock, and sometimes loses his life in guarding them.

Come then, timid soul, think of the might of thy Shepherd. Well may we lie down at rest in the keeping of such a one as He is. How safe are they for whom He cares! With what assurance of safety can they lie down in the blessedness of his keeping? . . .

Then further needful to this rest is the constant presence of the Shepherd. Many have but a dead Christ. He has laid down his life for them, and in his death they find their deliverance. Many have a far-off and glorified Christ, who is gone away up the high hill of Zion. These cannot rest. What of his power and his love if He is gone away! What of that life if it only lit the world with its blaze of glorious brightness eighteen hundred years ago, and left to all the ages but the fading after-glow of the better times. If that is all, then call not the Church a bride, she is a widow indeed! Yet there is a kind of thought, not uncommon amongst Christians, that Christ has gone away, and sent the Holy Spirit to take his place. Is it so? "It is expedient for you that I go away, for if I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you. But if I depart, I will send Him unto you." But why? "That ye may be strengthened with might by the Spirit in the inner man, that Christ may dwell in your heart." "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world!" The blessed Spirit comes to enlighten the eyes of the heart that we may see Him always, to open the ears of the heart that we may hear his voice and follow Him, to bring us into a communion with Him, constant, unbroken, more real, more intimate than was possible so long as He was here in his bodily presence. Now it is ours to know and to rejoice in the largest fulfilment of that ancient promise: "My presence shall go with thee, and I will thee rest."

Our rest is in the complete abandonment of ourselves to Him. He is mine, and I am his. He altogether mine, all that He is, all that He has, all that He can be, and all that He can do, mine. And I altogether his—out into all the past goes the hush of his gracious forgiveness breathing over it a peace that cannot be broken. Close over me He standeth with his tender whisper, "Fear not;" ever caring for me, and caring for me in everything. On into the unknown He looketh. He planneth all; He provideth; He leadeth. So compassed about with his favour as with a shield, He maketh me to lie down.—Sunday Magazine.

HOME MISSION SKETCHES.

By A PRESBYTERIAN ELDER.

A WELL-KNOWN writer has somewhat quaintly remarked that those who prefer pigs to parsons are rarely found possessed of either. Doubtless, "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." As previously stated, the district that formed the centre of our evangelistic labours was one of the most destitute and degraded in the town. It was, therefore, gratifying to observe that many of those who professed to have undergone a saving change soon found themselves in a position to remove to more respectable quarters, where, possessed of such domestic and personal comforts as they had formerly been strangers to, they became connected with one or other of the evangelical churches in their neighbourhood, and in not a few instances turned out most earnest and devoted workers in the Lord's vineyard. And it was further observable, that in the case of those whose circumstances, owing to advanced age, &c., did not permit of their leaving the district, the truth of the text above referred to was also verified in respect of their food, dress, and cleanly habits.

Some years after we had commenced evangelistic operations it became painfully evident to some of the members of the society, that notwithstanding our increasing efforts, and the success which from the outset had attended them, the vice of intemperance continued to work most insidiously and disastrously in our midst. We were also sadly conversant with the fact, that the greater portion of our failures amongst those who professed to have received spiritual good was due to the same cause. It was therefore resolved to establish a Gospel Temperance Association for adults, and a Band of Hope for the young; our esteemed President and Pastor in this, as in all the other departments of our labours, took the lead and a large share of the work. Rules were drawn out and office-bearers appointed; the conditions of membership being that the members were "neither to use nor countenance the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage." In this work we had considerable encouragement and success, especially amongst the young. It also brought the members of the society more into contact and sympathy with a noble and devoted band of labourers, who under much opposition and discouragement from unexpected quarters, had done giant service in the amelioration of the lower classes.

Manifold were the heartrending scenes occasioned by indulgence in strong drink, with which we were made from time to time sadly familiar. Let the following, however, for the present suffice:—

James B——, well known to the writer, was employed as a porter in a wholesale grocery establishment, where he gave much satisfaction to his employer, and was in receipt of good wages. Of obliging disposition and steady habits, his home might have been, so far as it depended on him, an earthly paradise. But, alas! the spell of the intoxicating cup was too much for his poor wife, who, not satisfied with spending a large portion of his weekly earnings in the gratification of her morbid desires, and thus depriving her husband and family of proper clothing and food, would, when in a drunken frenzy, which was of frequent occurrence, dispose of the household furniture and their Sunday clothing. Much was done to get her to forsake her evil ways, but to comparatively little purpose. When her husband was on his death-bed some time ago, he was found by a friend in a state of great destitution, attended only by his son, a weak-minded boy, the mother at the time being in gaol, undergoing a sentence of imprisonment. Ultimately she became a moral and physical wreck, having by her drunken habits sunk into a state of drivelling idiocy.

At the Temperance meetings, which were held statedly and regularly, earnest and interesting addresses, bearing on the evils of indulgence in alcoholic liquors and the advantages of total abstinence, were delivered. The proceedings were also pleasingly diversified and enlivened by the use of music. What specially characterised these meetings, however, was their deep spiritual tone and character, the Gospel of the grace of God being ever proclaimed as the grand panacea for drunkenness, as well as for all other moral and spiritual evils.

From the very outset of the Society's operations the prime importance of open-air work in the district was in a measure realised; but for it hundreds in the district would have been almost entirely without the means of grace. In this work the best and most experienced speakers were engaged, and it is worthy of note that so far as the services were conducted by members of the Society, anything like interruption or interference on the part of the hearers was exceedingly rare; on ereason probably was that while the speakers did not refrain from declaring the whole counsel of God, they were uniformly careful to say nothing that could readily be considered as gratuitously offensive or unnecessarily personal. On one occasion, however, when a stranger, who was recommended to the writer, was addressing a meeting on a Sunday afternoon, he, knowing that a large portion of his hearers were Roman Catholics, commenced a tirade against the Pope, the Catholic religion, and clergy. The consequence was that in the course of a few minutes his voice could not be heard for howlings and imprecations, and, but for the timely intervention of the Christian brethren present, affairs might have terminated seriously.

The most hopeful and encouraging part of the Society's labours still remains, however, to be noticed—namely, that amongst the young. It is to this the workers can look back with most satisfaction, as from it results of a gracious and permanent character are the most easily traceable. With two large Sabbath forenoon services for the young, and two flourishing Sabbath-schools, few weeks ever passed without interesting cases being brought under the notice of the monitors and teachers. Prayer-meetings were commenced and carried on at an early stage of our proceedings by the scholars themselves, under the supervision of the teachers; and in not a few cases known to the writer, the little ones were used by the Lord in the awakening and conversion of others.

The following incident in illustration of this also confirms the Scriptural statement that out of the mouths of babes and sucklings God perfects praise. A little girl, who had derived good at the meetings, and who was in the custom of committing herself to the care and protection of her heavenly Father before retiring to rest, observed that her elder sister, who slept with her, always went to bed without prayer. One evening she said to her sister, "Aggie, do you never pray?" The question was the means of leading her sister to earnest and solemn reflection. Some time afterwards she was enabled to decide for Christ, and became a most devoted and efficient Christian worker.

As the work now became more consolidated, the district was brought more under the supervision of the Church, of which the writer was a member and office-bearer; and in addition to the evangelistic services, Bible-classes, temperance meetings, and prayer-meetings referred to, savings' banks and mothers' meetings were established, as also sewing and knitting classes for young women.

During the winter months two nights a week were set apart for teaching young men over sixteen years of age reading, writing, and arithmetic. Classes were also formed for training the young in the theory and practice of music.

This organisation, embracing as it did so many departments of philanthropic and Christian work, yielded employment during their spare hours to a very large number of ladies and gentlemen, who, I am sure, continue to look back with much satisfaction upon those days, and regard them as being amongst the brightest and best of their earthly existence. And if these too hastily written sketches are the means of leading any Christian friends to enter heartily upon the somewhat arduous but most encouraging and blessed work of seeking to win souls for the Saviour from the Home Mission field, the writer's object will have, to a very considerable extent, been attained.

A SUMMER'S WORK IN HYDE PARK.

ON Sunday last we closed our meetings in the Park, having had a season of unprecedented blessing. Never have we seen the powers of evil more manifested; and the rapid strides made by the enemies of the Cross this year in the Park are most striking. Quite a new feature has been introduced, open revolution and socialism being promulgated on the Sunday, whilst Christadelphians and infidels are also seen with their select admirers round.

Yet God is above all. We have never had better meetings, and never were they more quiet and orderly. Among the particular cases of our own countrymen who have been blessed this season, we know of eight couples (man and wife) who have lately been converted. It is also interesting to find among the foreigners who have been brought to confess Christ that we have two Germans, one Swiss, one Dane, an Indian gentleman, and two from France who are greatly interested in our meetings. Among the regular attendants at the Park has been an Oriental, in whom we hope the Spirit of God is working.

We have lately formed a male choir, which has been of much use in our work. We have now opened the Metropolitan Music Hall for the winter season, at a rental of £150, and are looking to God to supply our need through his people. We are in want of a few good soprano voices for our united choir.

Hyde Park Hall, W. CHAS. COOK.

LIVERPOOL CHILDREN.—Mrs. Burt, of the Sheltering Homes, Sugnall-street, Liverpool, writes:—We rejoice at the thought of this year's three bands (a total of 212) of rescued little ones safely and happily settled in the quiet farmsteads of plenty in Canada, far off from the squalid and the sinful sights and sounds seen and heard in the courts of our crowded city. I am again overwhelmed with cases of fatherless, motherless, and destitute children, who need a helping hand. The sale of work to be held in St. George's Hall, on December 17, 18, and 19, will, we hope, provide adequate and suitable premises to carry on this work. Any of our London friends desirous of helping in this cause could send their contributions to Mrs. Hayne, 17, Cornwall-gardens, S.W., or to my sister, Miss Macpherson, 60, Commercial-street, Spitalfields, E.

PEACE, BLESSING, AND POWER.

ADDRESS AT THE GLASGOW CONFERENCE.

By Rev. CHARLES GRAHAM.

THE late John Angell James, toward the close of his life, remarked that the generality of Christians whom he knew were shut up in Doubting Castle; but he said, considering the character of their lives, he would have wondered to find them anywhere else.

It is a question whether things have improved in the professing Church since the days of John Angell James. The experience of most Christians seems to be the contradiction of the Divine order, which is, that they should be as the shining light, which shines brighter and brighter to the perfect day; for their first days are their best days. The tendency of the fallen nature that is in us is ever to drag us down to the earth, and it is only the power of God which can enable us to keep our mind constantly set on things things above.

With the early Christians it was the same as with us. They ran well for a time, but, with few exceptions, soon grew tired. So full of zeal for God were the first churches of Palestine, that Paul could say to them, "Ye took joyfully the spoiling of your goods, knowing that ye have in heaven a better and enduring substance." But how soon did their declension begin! When he addressed his letter to them they were returning to the exploded ceremonies of the Law; and in the sixth and tenth chapters of his Epistle to the Hebrews, he writes in burning words, to dissuade them from utter apostasy.

To the Galatians, of the beginning of their course, Paul writes, "Ye did run well: who did hinder you that ye should not obey the truth?" Such was their love for himself, as the instrument of God in their enlightenment, that he could say, "If it were possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me." But how great and how rapid was the declension when he had to vindicate his very apostleship, which was denied by them, and ask, "Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?"

One may say that the Hebrews were Jews, and the Galatians chiefly Jews, and that their natural tendency was to return to the ritualism of the Law. But was it better in the Gentile churches? The largest and most influential of all the European churches was Corinth. How soon did that church become tainted with moral evil, corrupted by the spirit of the world, filled with sectarian disputes and jealousies, and poisoned with a heresy which subverted the Gospel, by denying the resurrection of the dead! The return of the Hebrews and the Galatians to the ritualism of the Law, neutralised the power of the Gospel; but the heresy of the Corinthians was the denial of its truth. "For," says the Apostle, "if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen your faith is vain; our preaching is also vain; and ye are still in your sins."

No Church, so far as New Testament history informs us, had greater privileges than the Church of Ephesus. There for three full years Paul himself ministered, shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God, and warned every man night and day with tears. There he left Timothy to guard the truth, to maintain purity of discipline, and to appoint a faithful ministry. There the venerable and loving John, the last of the Apostles, both lived and laboured.

No portion of Holy Scripture is more instructive, or more solemn, as a warning to believers, than the short letter sent by Christ, from Patmos, to that Church. (Rev. ii.) If we restricted our attention to two-thirds of that Epistle, we might be ready to conclude that Ephesus was presented to us as a pattern for imitation.

(1) For its works, labour, and patience, the Lord commends it.

(2) Its zeal for purity was such, that it could not bear them that were evil.

(3) It maintained a sound ministry; it tried those who said they were apostles, and were not; found them to be liars, and treated them as such.

(4) It had borne all its afflictions and persecutions, and performed all its labours, from no unworthy motive, but for Christ's name's sake.

(5) Lastly, what the Lord Himself hated, the deeds of the Nicolaitans, the Antinomians of that day, it also hated.

Apply these tests to most of our modern churches, and Ephesus will not compare with them unfavourably. But was Ephesus a model church? Alas! the fly was in the pot of ointment; a deadly disease was sapping its vitals. Of that disease the Lord, in one sentence, gives us the diagnosis: "Nevertheless I have against thee that thou hast forsaken thy first love." This is not, as in our Authorised version, a mere "somewhat;" it is, in the mind of the Lord, one of the gravest of charges. In his estimation, the soul that has left its first love is a fallen soul. Hence his address: "Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and remove thy candlestick out of its place, except thou repent."

The Lord our God is a jealous God. His first demand is, "Son, give me thine heart." And He demands all the heart: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." For our love He will accept no substitute. Without love our eloquence is as sounding brass; our brightest gifts and deepest knowledge are nothing. Without love, if we give all our goods to feed the poor, and our bodies to be burned as martyrs, it will profit us nothing.

"God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." The first fruit of the Spirit is love; and without it no other fruit can be borne. Every offering burned in this fire is a sweet savour to God. The secret of all Paul's labours is expressed by him in one word, "The love of Christ constraineth us."

If we would see the root of the Church's failure, and our own, we must look here. And if we want to rise from the fallen state of Ephesus, we must obey the counsel of the Lord: "Repent, and do the first works." Repentance is turning to God in confession and sorrow. Our first works were to renounce self, to take up our cross, and follow Christ, consenting to our own death. When we do this we will receive the Holy Spirit in his fulness; and with that fulness the fulness of his first, best fruit—the fulness of love.

OBITUARY.

JERRY M'AULEY, NEW YORK.

THE funeral of Jerry M'Auley last Sunday (says the New York Independent of 25th ult.) was one of the largest New York has seen for a long time. The Broadway Tabernacle was packed till not even standing room remained, while men and women of the highest social circles came side by side with publicans and harlots, to look for the last time on the face of the dead. If anyone suggests that the occasion was "sensational," he will be strictly correct. When a river thief, a State prison convict, is brought to become a respectable man, a man commanding the confidence and co-operation of the best men and women of the city, the case is as sensational as was the work of Jesus in cleansing the lepers and opening the eyes of the blind. We read that the multitude felt a curiosity to see Lazarus, who had been raised from the dead; and what wonder is it that attention should be attracted by a case of resurrection from moral death, from the sheol of sin and crime?

He has been a wonderfully useful man. In the last fifteen years he has been the means of the conversion and elevation of a very great number of the criminal and vicious, the very lowest of both sexes. And he was a man of remarkable abilities in many respects. Many a dignified clergyman would hardly have wanted him as a companion in labour; but there is a "diversity of gifts," and he had talents which, in his peculiar work, gave him remarkable power.

[Our own recollections of this beloved and faithful man of God are of one whom it was a means of grace to know. He was the preacher of a clean salvation, bodily and spiritually. We trust his noble work will be carried on in the uncompromising spirit which has always been the characteristic of himself and of his no less devoted wife.]

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCHES.

DELIVERED AT EDINBURGH,

By Mr. REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

THE burden upon my heart is, and has been for a long time, this: that the churches in Great Britain and America, for generations, perhaps from blindness, but wickedly, have been neglecting the people of other nations. Britain—for we have chiefly to do with Britain—has been wickedly keeping the Gospel to itself, and refraining from sending it abroad. We have actually coined an expression which I believe many people almost think is a text out of Scripture—"Charity begins at home." Well, that saying has been used to hinder the spread of the Gospel to foreign countries. When Christ says or does anything to show us where charity commences, He shows us that our neighbour is the foreigner. It was a stranger, a Samaritan, who relieved the poor wounded man: the Levite passed by.

But I would like, before I go further, to refer to a few texts of Scripture, to show more plainly what is the very mind of Christ; because I do solemnly believe there is a blood-guiltiness upon us, and that we cannot come together as believers—as to-night we profess to be—and confess our sins, and seek forgiveness of the Lord, without being ready to express our willingness to go to the ends of the earth. Let me ask your patience while I give you two or three texts bearing on this question. "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you" (John xv. 14). That implies that you, dear believers here to-night, will not be friends of Christ unless you are ready to do whatsoever He commands you. Then let us come to his command: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations." He says before: "All power is given to Me in heaven and in earth" (Matt. xxviii. 18); so that you cannot go to any foreign nation without the power of Christ being there before you, and ready to work with you. Let us look at the last chapter of Mark, and see how it is put there: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature" (Mark xvi. 15).

WITHOUT EXCUSE.

Our forefathers had more excuse than we have, in Scotland and in England. The subject was not brought prominently before them, and so they passed over these blessed, golden commands of the Lord Jesus. They did not conceive it was any duty of Scotchmen to carry the Gospel out of Scotland; and they in London did not consider it any duty of their forefathers in London to carry the Gospel abroad. It is only within late years—within the last 150 years—that there has been a little spirit stirred up in the acknowledgment and keeping of these commandments of the Lord Jesus. We are now without excuse. I remember about thirty-six years ago being in your town, wishing to preach in the open air, and one of your citizens, a fine, handsome young fellow, stood beside me—David Sandiman—whilst the preaching was going on in the Grassmarket. You know, some of you, that he went and laid down his bones in China; and before he went he asked me to follow him. Well, I am without excuse unless I cry aloud for China.

Then after that, it was my privilege to be working with W. C. Burns. You older ones will remember about him—that in his day he was the man of all others. He was a man whose prominence in Scotland was used by the Holy Ghost. He sent a thrill through Scotland by his preaching, and very many were brought out of darkness. It was a darker day in Scotland then. He stood alone—as a thrilling, wondrous preacher he stood alone. What a lesson to you, older ones and younger ones. Having been filled by God as the man of Scotland, the Holy Ghost comes mightily upon him, and he says, "I won't preach in Scotland or in England." After he had been in China for some time, he came back with his translation of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," but he had no word for the Englishman. His one message from the Holy Ghost was for China. We in this town are, therefore, without excuse, if we go on neglecting the people.

David Livingstone goes abroad, and he works in a noble fashion, and dies a martyr's death. And, to our disgrace, we then commence our work, not at the bidding of Jesus Christ, but at the bidding of David Livingstone. There was a large field for missionary labour before he stepped forth, but, to our disgrace, we wait to be awakened by David Livingstone. And so we stand as a disgraced Church. We profess to value the Word of God, we profess to follow the commands of the Lord Jesus Christ. Long since, He commanded us to go to Africa. We did not stir to go to Africa until within the last generation. We are now in Africa, some of us. The most of us are busy grubbing for money. We are kept back, too, by love for our native land. We are busy staying at home in England or Scotland, except when we hear of money to be made somewhere—perhaps in the commercial cities of heathendom; then we send out, either to India or America, our English sons or our Scotch sons. We send them to every city under the sun. So it is that along with the American Church. It was only the death of Livingstone that roused the American churches, and now they are sending out missionaries. But they, along with ourselves, are only sending out aid in driblets. And Christ says, "Ye are not my friends—whether you live in Edinburgh or in Liverpool—unless ye do whatsoever I command you."

WE STAND DISGRACED,

But let us take another text:—"But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judæa, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts i. 8). Now, those believers who are sitting before me to-night profess to have received the Holy Ghost, and those also who have been living in England and in Scotland for the last fifty years, profess to have received the Holy Ghost. Surely to many of you the Holy Ghost has said, "Go to Africa and China, and to your immediate neighbours, Germany and Russia—to those places where you go for your health and travel." Yet you do not send the Gospel to those places. How has this come about? How does it come about that we are resisters of the command of the Lord Jesus Christ? How does it come about that we have not yielded ourselves to the Holy Ghost, and that our friends have not yielded themselves to the Holy Ghost? "The Holy Ghost shall come, and He shall teach you all things;" and certainly He would have taught us obedience to a plain command like this, "Go ye unto the whole world, and unto every nation." Yet how many labourers are there even in and around this Free Assembly Hall? How is all this? Is it not time that we should come together for prayer?

Let us look at another text. Christ had told Peter to go unto all the world. He was to go everywhere, and yet he could not be persuaded that he was to preach to any ears which were not Jewish ears. Christ had been prophesied as the Saviour for all the world; and now He deals with Peter as He will gently deal with us if we will be willing to receive Him. He will forgive all past sin, even the sin of blood-guiltiness which has come upon our skirt. And just as Christ came to Peter after he denied Him, so He now comes like a mother to teach a wayward child, and He says, "Arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing: for I have sent them" (Acts x. 20). What was the result? We have no such result equal to it in any other part of the Acts of the Apostles. They were all assembled, and as the words came out of Peter's mouth, before he had time to ask them any questions, every single man there was instantly forgiven, and instantly converted. And if we are ready with willing obedience to rush in at the open door which the Lord has opened for us, He will answer from heaven, and we shall be filled with the Holy Ghost. Those who listen to you shall receive the Holy Ghost, and they shall be converted, and there shall be a mighty awakening throughout the whole world.

The Continent! What does it wait for? It waits only until the disobedience of Edinburgh is put aside. And what do Africa and China wait for? They wait until the disobedience of professing Christians is put aside. How can they be Christians? Even the Brahmin can take your New Testament, and can see the command I have spoken of. He can say, "You are not Christians in Edinburgh; you don't obey the plain command; you have not compassion for us."

We will take one text more from the Acts (chap. xiii.):—"Now there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the Tetrarch, and Saul. As they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate Me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away." Let me be allowed to fall on my face before the living God, and confess my own sin, and the sin of my friends, and of my fellow-Christians. And, oh, let every one come and join us while we confess those sins of ours, and the blood-guiltiness and the sins of our fellow-Christians in England and in Scotland; and let us be in the position of this church at Antioch, and see if the Lord will not show us something.

What do all our missionary agents accomplish at present? I suppose I am not far wrong when I say that the natural increase of the heathen population is far outnumbering our efforts every year. In this very year, 1884, the natural birth of children amongst the heathen is beyond all comparison outnumbering the increasing supply of missionaries that you are giving from America, from England, and all the places of the earth. Yet we have a mighty God to deal with! Cannot He reveal something to us? Cannot He show us, first of all, our sin and blood-guiltiness; and then cannot we come to Him as ignorant children, having no wisdom, and ask Him to promise to give us wisdom, to show how we can accomplish the mighty work? But we must promise not to go on next year as we have been going on this 1884; for then we should be further off the mark still. And if we wait for another year, all the extra increase we have been putting on this last year or two, or more, will be almost wasted; we shall be in a worse position numerically than we were before. I wish I could explain what is in my heart now. Is it not time to be awakened by a mighty working from heaven? Oh, that the Holy Ghost would awaken the Church in London, in England, and in Edinburgh!

There is one thing in Edinburgh that is very dear to me, and that is the Carrubber's-close Mission. They are at work every night, and souls have been gathered in during all these years. Oh, that similar efforts were multiplied a thousand-fold for the heathen. Long have they been anchored in Carrubber's-close and Canongate, and this neighbourhood, and we from our hearts thank God for every Christian minister and man who has laboured in Edinburgh. But then we say, Is not this God our God—the same who spoke to the disciples when they said of the multitude, "Send them away." We have nothing here to eat but a few loaves and a few fishes, not more than enough for ourselves. "Send them away." What did He say? "Give ye them to eat. They need not depart." Now, I believe in my own inmost soul to-night, between me and my living God, I believe that the same Lord whose blessed hands brake that bread for the multitude, will break bread for us, this little gathering here to-night, and that we shall be forgiven, and that Europe, Asia, and Africa will benefit, as well as America, with its cities that are rapidly springing up, and in which even our native English tongue will do in declaring the message of the Gospel.

But I would ask you not to stagger in unbelief. Abraham laid hold of the true God, and He continued to bless and to bless until Abraham ceased to lay hold of Him. Take hold of our living Father in the name of Jesus, and ask, Is it a reality or a myth that our Lord brake bread and made the people sit down? It is ours now to bid the people sit down and eat. We are to have this high and glorious privilege of feeding the multitude. Talk about the natural increase of the heathen! "What art thou, O great mountain, that thou shalt not be made a plain?" My first hope is in the living God; and we shall not stagger in unbelief though you tell us about multitudes of heathen. We do not care for their number, or for the fewness of the labourers. Our only cry is, "Come with us." He has given us a command, and there must be a new era, and that means a new time. The living God will devise from his heavenly wisdom all plans and all methods, and we shall be babes no longer—children in swaddling clothes no longer. We shall go forth, and go forth not as babes, but as giants. God, even our own God, will bless us. By the memories of your William Burns, by the memories of your David Livingstone, let us go forth: nay, let us go forth by a better name—by the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, who hath all power in heaven and in earth.

THE RESCUE OF LITTLE GIRLS.

SIR,—Through your kindness in printing a letter of mine on this subject some months ago, I have been able to place several children in happy homes, thereby making room in our cottage for others rescued from misery and degradation. May I ask you to let me try again a method which has been so successful.

One lady has taken two little girls, and three other ladies one each, placing them with trustworthy cottagers near their own homes, where they can watch over and provide for them till they can earn their own living. I have visited all five in their new homes, and have every reason to be satisfied and thankful for the safe and happy provision made for them. Each attends the village school regularly.

Another lady living alone has received one of these little outcasts into her own home, and is bringing her up with love and care as if she were her own.

I believe there are many other Christian women living lonely lives, who would be all the happier for such a little companion if they would only try it; they would at the same time be serving the Master, whose will is that not one of these little ones should perish.

For those who have not heard of our work I may just say that "Hope Cottage" is a home for little girls who must inevitably swell the ranks of sin and crime unless early removed from their terrible surroundings, in some cases from mothers the example of whose life is one of unmixed evil. We have only ten beds, and are therefore anxious, so soon as the children are sufficiently improved by training, to have them provided for elsewhere, in order to be able to take in others of the same class.

In some the change for the better is rapid. The motherly love of the kind matron, far more real than they ever knew before, wins their hearts to her, and by degrees to Christ Himself, which is her great aim.

Just now we have several ready to pass on; but after months of careful training, and sowing the good seed, we are anxious only to transplant them into soil where it will grow, viz., in truly Christian homes. It is my earnest hope that such will offer. The age of the children varies from two to thirteen. They are, therefore, too young for service.

I find that children can be placed with respectable poor people at 5s. per week in the country, and at 6s. near London. At these prices I can generally find good homes. Any lady who may be unable personally to take or superintend a child, can help by giving me the cost of one so provided for.

CHARLOTTE JOHNSTON.

The Firs, Woodford Green.

DEFENDING THE FAITH.

I SHOULD be glad to offer a few remarks supplemental to Mrs. Ashworth's letter on this subject, which appeared in a recent issue. With that view, I do not think that I can do better than to give a very short summary of what I witnessed on the morning of Sunday week. Being informed that an anti-infidel lecture would be delivered on the Albert Embankment about eleven o'clock, I made a point of attending, for the purpose of ascertaining for myself whether any genuine work was being done in this direction. When I arrived, an infidel lecturer was holding forth to a somewhat large audience against the Bible.

Meantime, a large number of persons were sitting upon the wall of the Embankment, apparently waiting for some one to arrive, whilst close at hand was the platform of the Christian Evidence Society. Suddenly there was a loud clapping of hands, and turning round to see what this meant, I ascertained that the anti-infidel lecturer had just arrived.

The Chairman of the C.E.S. immediately introduced the lecturer with a few appropriate observations.

Mr. Goodship then commenced his lecture, entitled, "The Authenticity of the New Testament." He spoke upon this subject in a very vigorous and able manner for close upon an hour, riveting the attention of a large concourse of working men, and disposing of the infidel objections in a manner which entirely satisfied the whole audience. Meantime, the assembly, which before the arrival of the lecturer had congregated around the platform of the infidel party, had made a stampede to the platform of the C.E.S. During the whole of the discourse the lecturer had by far the greater audience of the two speakers.

Discussion was invited, to which two or three unbelievers responded. They put forward various objections, which were very readily disposed of by the lecturer.

At the end of the discussion, after thanking the people for the very kind and hearty way in which they had supported the lecturer in defence of the truth, the Chairman suggested that it would be a fitting way to conclude the meeting by singing a good old-fashioned hymn. He then gave out, "There is a fountain filled with blood," in which the whole audience joined in a very hearty style.

Subsequently large numbers shook hands with the lecturer, thanked him for the discourse which he had delivered, and expressed a wish that he should go there again as soon as he possibly could. He concluded the meeting with a fitting appeal to the people to rally round the truths of the Gospel, and to accept Christ as their Redeemer.

If such addresses as these could be delivered throughout the metropolis, and also at the various centres in the country where infidel lecturers are at work, a vast amount of good would certainly be accomplished. J. J. B.

SAILORS IN MARSEILLES.—DEAR SIR,—A Swiss lady of some years' experience in work amongst sailors offers herself to labour in Marseilles in connection with the Srangers' Rests in that city. She is warmly commended to me as one familiar with several languages. I am hopeful that, should the way be opened up for her to go, she may be instrumental, by holding meetings and by individual dealing, in leading many sailors to faith in Christ. I shall be happy to be the medium of any help towards the £50 needed for our sister's present expenses. If that is received, she will take it as a token from the Lord that she is to go. I thankfully record the Lord's goodness in connection with the Rests during the late cholera visitation. There has not been one case of either cholera or sickness; all the workers have been able to keep to their posts. I am expecting to return to France on the 10th inst., and would offer my heartfelt thanks to all who have kindly given me opportunities for speaking of the work during the past three months, and to those who have helped me by their means. I have received £200 towards the £300 needed by the 15th of this month.—Yours in his service,

CHARLES E. FAITHFULL.

Care of Dr. Clapton, 105, Cheapside, London.

NOT SATISFIED.

Mr. Moody, when asked at the close of the London meetings if he was satisfied, replied, "Pleased, but not satisfied. I am never satisfied."

"NOT satisfied." The fields are lying white
To harvest, and the labourers are few,
The grain may perish from neglect or blight
Before the evening shades bring back the dew.

"Not satisfied." The vines are running wild,
The plants and hedges need unceasing care.
The heaps of rubbish here and there are piled,
And much is wilderness that should be fair.

"Not satisfied." For still the tide of sin
Is bearing downward countless guilty souls,
The foaming maelstrom slowly sucks them in,
And over them the awful torrent rolls.

"Not satisfied." Work on with quickened zeal,
Ye Christian toilers, for the world is wide;
Go preach the Gospel, seek thy brother's weal,
And wait for heaven to make thee satisfied.

—Gospel Union News.

A LIGHT IN A DARK PLACE.

DEAR SIR,—Several years ago, in the providence of God, I was placed as chief officer of the Coastguard at Pevensey Sluice, on the Sussex coast, where the spiritual privileges of the force, and of the few scattered inhabitants, were confined to a monthly service in a small schoolroom by the clergyman of the parish, whose church was three miles distant, and only accessible by a road along the beach, often impassable in the winter. Glad to do something to keep up the life of God in my own soul, as well as to testify for my Master, I opened my own house for little services, and a Bible-class for the elder children. After several months it was found that more came than my limited space could accommodate, and we were forced to rent a small cottage close by, throwing two rooms on the ground floor into one.

Here, for several years, the services have been continued, and God has put his seal to the proclamation of Jesus, several having yielded themselves to God from time to time, so that a little band of believing Christians has been formed. Now the people are desirous of having a Mission hall of their own. A little plot of ground has been purchased of a freeholder who has himself got good at the services, and we are appealing for the funds necessary to erect a permanent building. About £100 will be required for this purpose. This is, however, quite beyond the power of the poor people to raise themselves, and I would appeal to wealthy Christians, who may have it in their power to help, to do so.—Your obedient servant,

W. H. MATTHEWS.

Government House, Marine Parade, Hastings.

[From various circumstances that have come to our knowledge, we are deeply impressed with the value and importance of this effort. Those who can contribute towards the erection of the proposed Mission hall may be assured that they are helping to keep the light of the Gospel shining in a very dark place. We shall be glad to receive any gifts towards that object.—ED.]

MRS. K. YEOLAND, lady evangelist, is now in London. She will be glad to receive communications from those who need her services. She is very warmly commended by Mr. C. H. Spurgeon and other friends, as an able and earnest preacher of the Gospel. Address, Mornington House, Clapham-road, S.W.

METHODIST FREE CHURCH MISSION (Johnstreet, Edgware-road, W.)—The members and congregations are all of the very poorest class of people, thereby causing great difficulty in obtaining the funds necessary to carry on the work. Notwithstanding this, we have succeeded after a great struggle in paying off an old debt. Our building is at the present time in a most dilapidated condition, the rain actually penetrating the roof, and it will cost us at least £100 to do all that is necessary, but we cannot possibly raise the money amongst ourselves. JOHN E. LEWIS, Hon. Sec.

35, Wyndham-street, Bryanston-square, W.

For the Young.

ANSWER TO BIBLE ACROSTIC.

"Zerubbabel" (Hag. i. 1).

Z iph.....1 Sam. xxiii. 14.
E ldad.....Num. xi. 26.
R am.....Gen. xxii. 13.
U riah.....2 Sam. xi. 15.
B enjamin.....Gen. xxxv. 18.
B eryl.....Rev. xxi. 20.
A nakims.....Deut. ix. 2.
B ethesda.....John v. 2.
E ndor.....1 Sam. xxviii. 7.
L eprosy.....2 Kings v. 27.

We have received answers to the above from M. Burns and Miss Jackson (Croydon), Jane Corlett (Sandycove), "Catholicus" (Rye), Annie Chisholm (London), J. R. Long (Dover), J. W. Strathearn (North Shields), Anne M. Lamont (Stone), Ida King and Helen Couper (London), J. P. Burkett (Killybegs), Florence Newell (Greenock).

THE HARVEST BY THE SEA.

It is a brilliant September day, at noon, and I am seated on a bench half-way up a tall rock. It is dead low water, and, as far as the eye can reach, there is nothing to be seen but wrack-covered rocks. The only spot of bright colour amidst all this brown is the red-trimmed hat and red stockings of my little Eva, who bends motionless over a rock pool, looking in the distance like some tropical bird. Not a sound, not a sigh of life anywhere.

All at once, an old woman is standing not ten yards off, quite still, and shading her eyes with one hand, gazing seaward. She wears the usual peasant dress—a tidy dark stuff skirt, a light print jacket, fastened in at the waist by an apron, all beautifully clean, and a sun-bonnet. By and by she slowly descends a few yards, and then stops, still gazing seawards. What can she be looking for? No boat could come within miles of where she stands. Now I see she is accompanied by a dog, an ugly rough little black fellow, with no tail to speak of. He follows her closely, and when she stops, he lies down as if exhausted, and really looks as old as she does. What are they waiting for? At last from behind a tall rock emerges an old, bent man, wheeling a barrow piled up with the sea-wrack, and now the old woman and dog advance to meet him at the foot of the incline, and the man stops and rests.

Now I see why the woman has come. It is to help pull the barrow up. How they strain and drag! The dog walks slowly alongside, the picture of dejection. At length they reach the line above high water mark, and the barrow is emptied of the wrack, which forms a little heap all by itself, and I see many other little heaps, quite fresh, showing how often the old man has come and gone that bright morning. Once more he sets off with the empty barrow, and the old woman and dog disappear.

I read on: my little Eva climbs up my rock to display her treasures of the deep—small crabs, shells, &c. It is nearly one o'clock, so we must go in. Suddenly my old woman and dog appear. Again she scans the expanse of rocks, and again slowly descends the incline. Far off, in the brown fields, there is some movement, and soon the old man and loaded barrow come slowly, very slowly. There is a long rest, then a few words of old Normandy French is spoken, and they begin the ascent, the dog seeming in an agony of remorse at his inability to help. But help comes. A comely strong young woman, in clean print dress, and hair tidily twisted up, appears, and with a bright smile seizes the wheel of the barrow, and it is at the top and emptied in a second!—the old people almost running to keep up with it; and the dog brightens up, and even tries to wag his poor stump of a tail.

Then all three go off to their hut, nearly hid by the huge stacks of dried wrack which dot the common, and, no doubt, enjoy their well-earned mid-day meal. But the dog remains to guard his master's property, and lies down close to the fresh heaps, with his poor old nose resting on his paws, and one vigilant eye fixed on us, whom he evidently regards as suspicious characters.

Oh, peaceful, lowly life! For how many years has it gone on? These peasants neither plough nor sow, yet their heavenly Father feedeth them. No care have they. The farmer ploughs and sows, and watches and waits, yet his crops may fail, but the wrack-gatherer sleeps peacefully in his hut, and awakes without anxiety. Storm and tempest, rain and hail, cannot hurt his harvest of the sea.

A few hours later, and the sea has come up to my rock, and covered the brown fields, only the tops of the taller rocks being visible. The old man has spread out his heaps to dry, each by itself, and soon another stack will be added to those about his hut; and the farmer will come, and buy them from him, and cart them away to manure his fields.

La Roque, Jersey. H. C. H.

CHILDREN IN CHUNG K'ING.

BY MISS FAUSSET.

Since I came here in January, 1883, a number of little girls have been left at the door, whom we have not been able to take in; so they have either been taken back by their friends, or taken to the Roman Catholics, or to the Chinese Foundling Hospital, which, report says, is a very poor place. I think of going there some day to see for myself, and then I shall know better what fate awaits the poor little ones who are taken there.

We have saved four such little ones, and two older girls—one of whom was at first a scholar in the school. Now she is not able to walk the least little bit, or even to stand; she lies on her back all day, but is very patient, and likes to embroider very much when it does not hurt her side. She is very helpful, too, in talking to the women about Jesus, and they understand her words better than ours. Her mother died last year, and her father, who is a poor heathen water-carrier, did not like her when he found she was going to be sick and helpless. Sometimes she had no one to cook food for her, poor thing, till night; when asked how old she is, she says she does not know. I think she is about twelve. The other big girl has only one eye. She asked to have her feet unbound. I hope she is really a Christian, though she sometimes quarrels and says naughty words—indeed, I hope both the little girls love the Lord Jesus.

Every day we have a number of girls coming to school; to-day we had twenty-eight. Miss Butland takes in a class, those who are not yet advanced enough to read the Gospel. She teaches them a text, and a verse of a hymn, and hears them read a catechism. Then they sing, and pray too. It is very nice to teach little children to kneel and pray to the Lord Jesus, who, perhaps, before they could speak, bowed down to the idols. They have learnt a good many texts, and the hymns, "Jesus, who lives above the sky," "Jesus, tender Shepherd, hear me," "Come to the Saviour," "Around the throne of God in heaven," and others that you know. The bigger girls learnt last, "The Great Physician," and they are going to learn "Knocking, knocking—who is there?" to-morrow.

There is another little girl staying here now, who is about seven; her mother has been dead some time, and her grandmother died lately; so she has no one at home to take care of her, and has come here to live with her aunt, who has lately been baptized. Perhaps her father will not give her to us entirely, as he is able to support her; but if he did, we could have her feet unbound; they are very sore when bound, as you know.

Some time ago two little girls came to this city from America, ten and twelve years old, called Lu-lu and Maude; very soon they heard that a little girl, a little more than a year old, had been left at their door, so they begged their mamma to allow them to take the little girl as their own. When their mamma consented, they were very glad, and from that time they have taken care of her, feeding and playing with her. They have not got the least tired of her, and she has grown quite fat and strong; she does not cry much, and seems so happy and contented that they call her "Tenty," as the short for contented. Their papa told us that when they are reading the Bible and praying, she always sits very still; and though she cannot understand the foreign words, she seems pleased they are praying to God.

And now I have written you a letter about some of our Chung-k'ing girls and babies. You would very soon grow fond of them; will you pray for them?—China's Millions.

LITTLE THINGS.

Are there any "little" things?
Those we deem so are so great!
Poison fangs are hidden and small,
But they kill the strongest man;
Poisonous weeds can harm us all,
More than leafy forests can;
Little lies on little wings
Are dread messengers of fate.

Little rifts make music cease,
Little rocks sink vessels great,
Little leaks in dam and dyke
Loose the floods to spoil and rend;
Little whispered words can strike
Cruel blows at heart of friend,
Little signs be auguries
Of great changes in the state.

Little habits grow to chains
Which can fetter man's strong will;
Little kindnesses can heal;
Little helps may save a soul;
Little hands for woe or weal
Can the sternest lives control;
Fortunes start from petty gains;
Every river was a rill.

"Small," we say, "of little worth,"
Heedless what the end shall be;
But the angels sadly sigh
Over what we so despise,
And the small faults we decry
Bring a cloud to heavenly eyes,
And the petty deeds of earth
Mould the long eternity.

—Susan Coolidge.

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT.—Dear Sir,—The time is now approaching when we shall require a large number of tracts, &c., for distribution amongst the fallen. The value of these silent messengers cannot be over-estimated. May I appeal to your readers for such aid as they may be able to afford me? I have lately been holding meetings for the fallen in Scarborough, Portsmouth, and London, with many promises of good resulting. —Sincerely yours, John H. L. Christien.
8A, Red Lion-square, W.C.

AT WORK IN NORTH SPAIN.

DEAR FRIENDS,—This summer has been one of intense heat in Spain. Even strong men looked quite overpowered here, in the north; what must it have been in the south? It was almost too hot to eat; what an effort, therefore, to work! When in England I often hear of the "indolent Spaniard," but now that I have spent a summer in their country I can sympathise with them, for surely their hot climate has more to do with the characteristic than their nationality. See how industrious and thrifty are the Spaniards of the north, and in mountainous parts. At three and four o'clock in the morning they go to work, returning home (as I have often seen them) at 8.30 p.m.; and the dear converts of Vilabertran, after such a long day of hard toil in the fields, just change their working clothes, take a hasty meal, and come to our meeting at 9 p.m., the old people looking so weary, that we have determined for their sakes to get backs put to the benches in the hall. When winter comes, of course the hours are shorter for the men, but the needlewomen, &c., work from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

In August we went for a fortnight or so to Rosas, for needed change and rest, Pastor Rodriguez going to and from Figueras to carry on the meetings there, and in Vilabertran. We were glad to have the opportunity of seeing the working of our new station there, so efficiently carried on by our brother, Don Alejandro. Both the mayor and the priests did all they could to oppose us, but in the name of the Lord we set up his banner, and He has blessed us beyond our expectations. We began the day and Sunday-schools with one boy; and great was my joy, therefore, to see forty-five children come to be taught God's Word.

At the first Gospel meeting only two men ventured to attend, so I did indeed rejoice to see the room as full as it would hold with men, who listened with unwavering attention, notwithstanding the heat. Our landlord has consented to remove a wall to enlarge the place, which will be a great improvement. I was struck by seeing a congregation of men, with the exception of one woman, who told me that the women of Rosas are terribly under the power of the priests, but we hope that in time they will gain confidence in us, and come with their husbands to hear the Gospel.

Owing to the cholera, the work among the sailors is almost suspended for the present. Previously very many portions of Scripture had been distributed, and we hope soon to be able to resume this most interesting branch of the work. Lately we have been much encouraged with our Wednesday-night cottage meetings in Figueras, which have kept up well all through the hot weather: attendance, between thirty and forty persons.

We hope for much blessing from these meetings, as many might not have courage to be seen going to our hall, but would not mind going to the convert's house where they are held.

Just now the country is in a critical state. The king is suffering from a disease pronounced incurable. On his death, the Government wish to recall Isabella, a step which would, to say the least, greatly hinder the Gospel in Spain. Another party are in favour of Don Carlos, hardly more hopeful; and the Liberals aim at a Republic. Neither faction can hope to attain its object without a severe struggle. Poor Spain! even now torn and bleeding from the scourge of so many recent wars, which have drained her of her youth and wealth. Whether on account of the cholera or for political reasons we cannot tell, but the "cordon" has been placed three miles distant from Figueras, to intercept travellers along the high road. Passengers leaving or arriving by trains are compelled to show their credential papers.

Meantime we will, with the Master's help, continue "toiling on," and the Christian friends in England will, we trust, hold up our hands in prayer, and not suffer the work to be hindered for lack of the needed means. Last winter I began a mothers' meeting, which was well attended, and the women really enjoyed the reading and prayer at the close. A kind friend in Dublin made me a gift of some material, which has helped to clothe some of our very poor Spanish children. If some other friends would help us in the same way with gifts of material, calico, or flannel, many more needy but deserving mothers would be greatly helped. The Jesuits are now distributing soup, rice, and bread. I wish we could do likewise. Any help for the Mission should be sent to Colonel Baynes, 87, Elgin-crescent, Notting-hill, London, W.—Yours in hearty service for the King,

EMILY L. RODRIGUEZ.

Calle Pedro 3, Figueras, Spain.

THE CHOLERA IN NAPLES.

THE following extracts are from a letter of Mme. Meuricoffie, Naples, sister of Mrs. Josephine Butler. She and her husband were on a visit to England, when, hearing how severe was the outbreak of cholera in Naples, they hastened back, to be at the post of duty:—

"It was sad in coming from Rome to dash with our little train of two carriages (containing only ourselves and some poor workmen) through the market garden tract of country between Cancella and Naples, and to see the thousands of great golden gourds, beautiful melons, and scarlet tomatoes lying rotting on the ground; and then to enter the nearly empty station. The station is in the sorely visited Mercati district, and I had forbidden anyone to meet us. But F—— was there, accompanied by Mr. ——, who handed me down, with tears running down his cheeks. Oh, how sad the city looked! Accustomed to watch our coachman thread his way adroitly through the long Marinella, in the midst of a moving mass of trams, carriages, omnibuses, ox waggons, mule carts, and foot-passengers, as thick as in the Strand, in London, the change struck us much. It was a desert; a long, empty vista, except for two or three old omnibuses piled up to the top with coffins, going to the cholera pits at Poggi Reale. Up all those little crowded streets which run up from Marinella, where the poor live in high houses, several families in one room, opening upon a common stair, there were piles of coffins at the foot of the stairs, waiting for the dying. Signor M—— went on Saturday to one of the warehouses, and while he was unlocking the door eight corpses were carried out of the next door; he felt sick, and returned to his house.

"The doctors have not time to report all the cases, because as soon as one sufferer is judged past hope they must leave him to hurry to another. The King's example has done much good. Many persons of influence and authority, who had hidden themselves away in the country, felt ashamed, and came back to town to accompany him. I am glad King Humbert has shown himself so humane and brave. I always thought his face had power in it; it is not the countenance of an ordinary man. We met him in the night returning to Monza. At one station we saw a touching sight—a party of elderly Garibaldians, in their old red shirts and medals, coming down to devote themselves to waiting upon the sick.

"The blind panic is over .... When we turned into the court a crowd of poor men and their wives surrounded us, kissing our hands, with tears and smiles, and sighs of relief, and thanks to us for coming. It was such a reward. They are like children, or like animals who turn to their masters when frightened. S—— has established an economic kitchen in a poor quarter, where a certain number can dine wholesomely every day. There will be many orphans to be cared for. . . . 'Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee.' Yes, perfect peace. If, now and then, amidst sickening sight and smells, a sudden chill comes over one, as if one had swallowed death, and one catches one's breath with a momentary apprehension, at once there comes the assurance that God is faithful. The sudden spasm of fear softly relaxes, and it is again perfect peace."

In a letter, dated Naples, September 28, Mr. Stephen Burrows, harbour evangelist, writes:—

"I have heard of noble work being done by members of the evangelical churches here, administering all kinds of comforts to the sick and destitute. I was witness to the earnest efforts of the Wesleyan minister and the members of that church in alleviating human distress. The Red, White, and Green Cross Societies are doing willing work among the smitten ones.

"Several English ladies are active in their different spheres. Instead of fleeing from the fell destroyer, they have opened soup kitchens, orphanages, &c., and one lady employs 400 women in making underclothing for the poor people.

"I would plead with Christian people in England to provide Sailors' Rests in these plague-stricken ports. For a long time the cholera will leave its seeds in localities frequented by the more foolish of our seamen, and unscrupulous guides will lead the men to these parts, where the germs of the disease may be taken to their crews, their friends at home, and thus become a calamity to the country. One Rest is opened at Naples, and help is needed to open one in every large port in the Italian peninsula, Sicily, and the Adriatic. Mr. S. J. Alexander, Ashfield, Leominster, has kindly consented to receive and administer the funds. Mr. Alexander is well acquainted with the ports here, and has a warm sympathy for our seamen. Captain Darbey, of Gosport, has a similar knowledge of what is required. A committee of English residents will direct the Rests in each port."

BOYS' HOME, CLAPHAM.

THE readers of THE CHRISTIAN will be interested in hearing that the Carter Home for Destitute Boys, 65, High-street, Clapham, has met with increased encouragement during the past year. Through the kindness of many friends the premises have been considerably extended. During the year 93 boys have been assisted. Out of this number four have been sent to Canada in charge of Miss Macpherson. Of these boys very good reports have been received. There are now 58 in the Home. The health of the boys has been excellent, and much spiritual blessing has been experienced.

One very satisfactory result of the year's operation is the large amount received for the boys' work, which for the twelve months amounted to over £580. Boot and shoe-making, chair-caning, the sale of firewood, the services of the boys as messengers at shops, are the chief employments. At present there is room for two or three boys, but only cases of real destitution will be received.

Mr. Gray, the master of the Home, will gladly forward reports upon application. Dr. Eugene Cronin, Old Manor House, Clapham, is Treasurer.

MRS. AMANDA SMITH.—Mrs. T. Davis, Foxrock, co. Dublin, reports that subscriptions having reached her, a second £10 is on the way to Amanda Smith, who expresses herself most thankful, and says she feels this second remittance is sent in direct answer to prayer. In Sinoe, one of the provinces of Liberia, there are some very earnest Christians, but very poor, whom she was most anxious to assist in their really self-denying endeavour to erect a place of worship. She also speaks of a good work going on at Arllington.

DEACON ABRAHAM and his son have been exciting no little interest throughout the country by their presence and by the addresses of the Nestorian patriarch on the history and spiritual needs of his ancient people. At Ripon a meeting was lately held at which the Dean of that cathedral city presided and spoke in terms of warmest commendation of the Mission of our Persian visitors. The Deacon gave a lucid and lively sketch of the history of the Nestorian church, and of his own labours among his countrymen, making special reference to the two orphanages under his supervision. Communications may be addressed to our care.

Notes and Comments.

IN acknowledging the receipt of sums contributed by our readers, Miss Ellice Hopkins, of Brighton, writes :—

"I cannot be too grateful to the readers of The Christian for their generous help. I have got the money for the four industrial schools with the greatest ease and satisfaction. Our first, at Hemel Hempstead, is only waiting for the Government certificate."

Mr. E. C. Newbery left London on Monday last for Italy, intending to work wherever the cholera rages most fiercely. He desires the prayers of our readers.

Rev. Dr. A. N. Somerville, the veteran Scottish pastor and evangelist, is planning for another Mission to "the regions beyond." This time, we understand, the field will be Greece, for which land Dr. Somerville will probably set out before the end of this month. We hear with sorrow of the death of the wife of his son, Rev. James Somerville, lately Free Church minister at Broughty Ferry. We hope in our next issue to give some reminiscences of her useful life, which reached us too late for this week.

The opening of the winter session of the Medical Schools of the London Hospitals has afforded opportunities for the leading members of the profession to express their opinions on cognate topics. It is very gratifying to note the high sentiment which prevailed in several of the addresses given. Dr. Hughes Bennett reminded the students at Westminster that "the well-being of the community in great part depended on the honour and moral rectitude of the members of their profession, whose powers of doing good or evil were almost unlimited." The Lecturer at University College emphasised the importance of utilising the mental training they received as essential for their future work, and urged that there should be a conscious endeavour on the part of the student to enter into the feelings and modes of thought of the sick, so as to ensure considerate tenderness in dealing with them. The lives of medical men were often saddened by the sufferings of those around them, and no statement was more untrue than that the sight of suffering destroyed the power of sympathy.

Two other eminent scientists may also be quoted as indicating the same high regard for something beyond the merely physical aspects of their calling. At St. Thomas's, Sir J. Risdon Bennett addressed the students, and warned them against being influenced by the mere theories and passions of the day, and to take care to have their own mental powers well regulated. It was necessary for them to study man, not only as an organised being, but as endowed with a mental constitution with which his physical nature was combined, and by which his material organism was largely influenced. Many diseases had a strictly moral origin. The Rev. Dr. Wace, the new Principal of King's College, also impressed upon the students that judgment and self-control were rarer qualities than brains, and that these qualities did more than others to make a useful man. The importance of a high standard of morality and refinement being maintained by all members of the medical profession is so great, that the stimulus thus given to it in these great centres of influence is specially noteworthy.

The meetings of the Church Congress at Carlisle were last week inaugurated by an address from Dr. Goodwin, the popular Bishop of that diocese, who took a most hopeful view of ecclesiastical affairs. The first subject dealt with was the duty of the Church in reference to the overcrowding of the poor. The Bishop of Bedford, in answer to the question, What can the Church do to remedy the existing state of things? gave four practical suggestions: (1) Create and direct public opinion; (2) Enlist and encourage workers in the cause, on the plan of Miss Octavia Hill and her band of trained ladies; (3) Stir up the owners of property to a higher conception of their responsibilities; (4) Teach the people to care for better homes and purer surroundings, and foster the great movements for promoting temperance and purity.

A paper was read at the Congress by Mr. W. H. Gladstone, M.P., on Church Music as an aid to worship and work. It gave well-merited blows to the modern choir system, which does its best to shut out congregational singing, by adopting unsuitable music performed at express speed. It is true of many Nonconformist, as well as Episcopalian sanctuaries, that "the choir discourages the congregation by leading where it is impossible to follow;" all attempts to give utterance to the spirit of praise are thus effectually nullified. So experienced and high an authority as Mr. W. Parratt, Mus. Bac. Oxon., in the same discussion, strongly condemned another evil also common to most modern places of worship, that of playing inappropriate voluntaries before, after, and even during service. These are often antagonistic to the impression the preacher seeks to produce; certainly they are alien to the spirit of true worship. Mr. Parratt added that it was doubtful whether prayers should ever be intoned.

The Rev. J. Horsley, the well-known Chaplain to the House of Detention, read a trenchant paper at the Carlisle assembly on obscene literature and prints as aids to infidelity and immorality. The Echo, calling attention to Mr. Horsley's vigorous and outspoken method of dealing with the subject, says it is high time the police were quickened into greater activity.

"A stranger revisiting London after an absence of twenty years, as he gazes upon the abominable photographs openly sold on street barrows and exposed for sale in not a few shop-windows, would be inclined to ask whether Lord Campbell's Act was repealed. A few years ago this reprehensible laxity did not exist, and the vile trade, when carried on at all, was pursued in secret; prurient youths had to seek out such things if they desired them; now they are thrust upon the public gaze almost without restraint. We are apt to congratulate ourselves upon our superiority to our Parisian neighbours at any rate, but it is stated on good authority that books whose sale has been stopped in Paris, through the operation of an Act recently passed, have been exposed for sale in the shops of London booksellers. Barrow-men are not unfrequently arrested and punished, but in shops the most abominable things are exposed with impunity. If the authorities in Scotland-yard doubt this, we will engage to take them to a dozen shops, within a mile of our office, where photographs are exposed which any sensible magistrate would at once condemn."

We were shocked a few days ago by seeing a number of well-dressed young women turning over the impurities on one of these photographic barrows.

There is great laxity somewhere in relation to this abominable trade, and public action of strongest kind is called for in dealing with it. Mr. Horsley referred to the traffic carried on by vendors of these vile productions with boys in public and other schools, and suggested that one means of dealing with the evil would be for the Postal authorities to open all communications addressed to known dealers in such commodities. No measures can be too strong to cope with, or language too severe in which to denounce, this demoniacal assault on all that is pure and sacred among men. Heads of families and masters of schools ought to be continually on the alert to detect the efforts made to contaminate the youth in their charge.

Referring to the duty of Christians in relation to Egypt, Major-General Sir F. J. Goldsmid said at the Church Congress, "The prestige of a high and God-fearing man like Gordon was far more potent than that of the British uniform at any time." Such a sentiment from a military man is not sufficiently common to be allowed to pass unnoticed. The faith of many in moral force seems to be on the wane, and needs quickening. Big battalions and huge navies are being clamoured for and exalted as essential to British prestige in circles where surely higher confidences should be reposed.

Our readers will be interested in the sketch of work in North Spain, to be found elsewhere, from the pen of our friend Signora Rodriguez, of Figueras. We sincerely trust the dreaded political disturbances will be averted from that land, oppressed as it is now by priestly domination. Protestant labourers have much to contend with in Spain; we desire to commend Pastor and Signora Rodriguez, and their fellow-workers, to the best sympathies of Christians in this land of privilege and freedom.

Sir R. Rawlinson as President of the Dublin Sanitary Congress, henceforth to be known as "The Sanitary Institute of Great Britain and Ireland," referred to the value of the laws and regulations for preserving health to be found in the Books of Moses. These, he contended, were such as might be studied with advantage by Christian communities in all countries. The adage, "Cleanliness is next to godliness," was well illustrated by his exhaustive address, which closed with the following weighty and striking sentences :—

"The question of sanitary improvement is an all round question. It embraces the entire nation, as no rank or station is exempt from disease. Fever strikes down the highest in the land as the most lowly. A nation may be wealthy and yet be unhealthy. Richly-endowed colleges may impart learning to the select few, but in town-slums vicious habits are much more profusely engendered, leading to vice and crime. In the world there is no value but in human life, and human life has the greatest value when healthy and moral. The strength and glory of a nation is not in standing armies and ironclad fleets, but in the health, well-being, and contentment of the people."

The rations sent out for use in the Nile expedition seem in no way based on temperance principles. Among them we find 1000 bottles of brandy, 30,000 gallons of rum, 2000 bottles of ale, 2000 of stout, and 1000 of champagne. Except the rum, these may be mainly intended for hospital use, but it is open to question whether the cost of these items, if expended in enlarging some of the rations of good nourishing food, would not have been a far safer and wiser investment.

The advantages are not all on the side of social life, such as that experienced in our Old World cities and towns, at least not if the testimony of a "Settler" writing from New South Wales is to be taken. Morally, as well as from the secular standpoint, life in the distant colonies of the south and west is desirable, and tending to good. He says:—

"There are advantages attending life in the bush. People get out of the groove in which, perhaps, they have been accustomed to travel. They learn courage, truthfulness, respect for their fellow-men, and self-control. They find out, too, what a very habitable earth this is, and how very well adapted man is for enjoying life on it under a great variety of circumstances; and they learn something of the wonderful goodness and mercy of the Supreme Ruler."

A prison chaplain, under the title, "At Home in Prison," contributes an article in the current number of Eastward Ho, in which he argues that our prisons are made altogether too comfortable. He justly says of the many habitual criminals who form so large a proportion of their inmates: "If they could only be made less at home in prison, if discontent could be aroused in them, then there would be a chance of reforming them. As it is, many make a trade of going to prison." We recently had the opportunity of going over one of our large county gaols, and of seeing a number of the prisoners confined in it. Whether we had regard to the cleanliness, culinary arrangements, general air of satisfaction which pervaded the place, or whatever beside, except the treadmill, we could but wish the tens of thousands of honest labourers who toil for hard-earned pittances fared anything like as well.

Coarseness or extreme harshness no one would plead for in the treatment even of those hardened in crime, and it is right to make a difference between young offenders and those old in sin; but the prison chaplain utters wise and practical words when he says:—

"I have great respect for the philanthropists who altered the once brutal regulations of prisons. I know that Society is, in a great measure, responsible for the criminal acts of its erring members, and that if when in prison people are too harshly treated, they will be broken in spirit and too weak to work on being released. Still it does seem absurd to have prisons at all if they are not deterrent, and considering the sort of people they have to deal with, it may be questioned whether they are not too considerate in the matter of food, and too lax in enforcing discipline It is time enough to pet up ruffians when they begin to pity their victims. Nor is it kind to criminals themselves to make a prison so comfortable that, on going out, they resolve to return to it as to a home.

'Guilt's a game where losers fare
Better than those who seem to win.'"

"It is not so much a scheme of union as the spirit of union that is wanted in order to bring about the closer unity of the several churches of Christ. So soon as they are prepared to co-operate, union will come, and no sooner." Such were the words of Principal Tulloch at a conference of the Church of Scotland held last week at Inverness. Their truth is undeniable. It is impossible to galvanise Christians into oneness, or by any mere mechanical means to bring about real cohesion. Unity at public meetings and congresses is pleasant and refreshing, but often evanescent. What is needed is the true catholicity and fraternity which manifests itself everywhere and at all times. "The unity of the Spirit" and the unity of the body go hand in hand. We are "baptized by one Spirit into one body," and only by plenteous reception of that baptism can we live in the love of Christ and of one another as we ought.

The Early Closing Movement is one which deserves, and demands, general co-operation and support. A great wrong is done to employés and others by tradesmen refusing to adopt the principle of early closing, and by the public persisting in late shopping. On behalf of thousands of young people of both sexes who would value and wisely use the privilege, we renew our advocacy of this good cause, and commend it to our readers, both on physical and mental grounds, as worthy of their hearty concurrence.

We mentioned on September 18 the disaster to Mr. Henry Cook's Mission vessel, the Mystery, which was rescued off the Gunfleet Sands by the crew of the Clacton lifeboat. We are very happy to learn from the Secretary of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, that the lifeboat-men have, in a most handsome and praiseworthy manner, reduced their fair claim for property salvage from £65 to £36, of which sum £10 has been already paid them by Mr. Cook. Also, that the Committee of the R.N.L.B.I. have, in consideration of all the circumstances connected with the Mystery, very liberally decided to pay £18 15s. of the balance due from Mr. Cook to the lifeboatmen, so that he will only have to pay a further sum of £7 5s. We hope the friends of Mr. Cook, and of his inestimable work, will at once enable him to clear off this debt, and the other expenses arising out of the disaster, which, but for their providential rescue, might have issued in the loss of the boat and all on board.

Astronomical observations ought to become a common source of interest and instruction, according to Mr. Norman Lockyer. Speaking at a soirée given in connection with the opening of Toynbee Hall, as a University centre of popular instruction for the East-end, he exhibited a telescope which could be made by anyone, he said, for eighteenpence, and which was superior to anything of the kind which was within the reach of Galileo when he made the discoveries which have immortalised his name. No study has a greater tendency to elevate and refine the mind than astronomical science, and if what is generally regarded as an abstruse and transcendental pursuit can be brought within the range of practical observation at so cheap a rate as this, we may expect to soon find it becoming a very general subject of inquiry and delight.

The Daily Telegraph, in a recent article on smoking, cites it as a significant illustration of the social insularity of England that, "as a rule, the great Dissenting community are non-smokers." While quoting Mr. Bright and Mr. Spurgeon as distinguished exceptions to this rule, the same journal asserts that "the great body of Nonconformists are, to all appearance, tacit abstainers from, if not strenuous opponents of the fragrant weed." It would be curious if it were so, and a new argument in favour of Dissent might be said to have been discovered; but we believe it to be a groundless fancy rather than fact. However great the virtues of Nonconformity may be, that of abstinence from the vice of tobacco is by no means monopolised by its representatives. The habit is far too deep-rooted to be controlled by ecclesiastical distinctions or theological differences. The enormous strides the practice continues to make in society, especially among boys, call for earnest and serious action on the part of all thinking men.

Two or three weeks ago we received a note respecting the obelisk which Earl Granville is erecting at Pegwell Bay to commemorate the landing of Augustin and his companions on the shores of Kent in 597. The note attributed to them the introduction of Christianity into England. We marked it to be omitted as being incorrect, but by an oversight it was inserted last week. Although it is widely taught from manuals of history, it is not true that Augustin introduced Christianity into England; a Christian Church flourished in Britain long before Augustin was born. Under him the Anglo-Saxons became Roman Catholics. The Britons had already been driven to Wales, and Cornwall, and Scotland, by the Saxon invaders, and retained their pure Scriptural Christianity. Of course, the Abbot Augustin here referred to must be distinguished from the great St. Augustine, who flourished in the fourth century.

We are sure a multitude of our readers will unite with us in responding to the following request of Lord Radstock:—

"Dear Sir,—I should be glad if you will ask the prayers of the Lord's children for a blessing on my proposed visit to India. I sail with my son (D.V.) on October 29. Shall be in Bombay about a fortnight, then Madras for about a fortnight, then Calcutta about January 1—21, then N.W. Provinces of Central India till about April 1. My desire would be to have the privilege of meeting Christians in united conferences, and then to make known the Gospel to the natives (English speaking), aided by their counsel and help. Surely, when the educated natives are wavering between the relics of their Hindoo faith and Atheism, we ought to expect great things if all the Lord's servants would by believing prayer and consecrated effort seek to proclaim the name of Jesus, who is exalted far above all principality and power, 'Christ the power of God.'—Yours, &c., "Radstock.

"Cramond House, Edinburgh, October 3."

"Truth embodied in a tale," especially when the tale is a true and intensely interesting one, will find its way into many minds, to which the theorisings of the philosopher may seem as the idle wind. Dr. Crichton Browne's famous report on "Over-pressure in Elementary Schools" has in many quarters been scouted as the product of an overheated professional imagination. The same treatment cannot well be accorded to the "School Board Idylls" which are appearing in the Saturday issues of the Pall Mall Gazette.

The first tells of a young schoolmistress who was done to death in her attempt to keep pace with the demands of a heartless inspector. Last Saturday's "idyll" recounts the brief career of "Totty," a clever and conscientious seven-year-old child, who fell into feeble health through the poverty of her parents, and succumbed to "Standard III." The writer of these remarkable and deplorable idylls thus closes his biography of Totty: "Only about one in a hundred thousand of our children die from overpressure, but the one is very precious to somebody." We wonder if he could tell us how many from the same cause are in danger of being crippled for life, or, indeed, of not living out half their days.

As may be seen from our announcements of forthcoming meetings, Wednesday next will mark a new and important era in the Mission to Working Lads at Whitechapel, so earnestly and successfully carried on by Mr. Henry Hill and his helpers. We hope many old and new friends of the work will be present on that occasion, to encourage this valuable endeavour to benefit a long-neglected class.

A VISIT TO THE GRIMSBY FLEET.

WE have received from Mr. W. C. Miles an interesting account of an evangelistic visit he lately paid to the Grimsby fishing fleet in the North Sea. We make the following extracts:—

The first to greet us was the "Admiral" of the fleet, a staunch teetotaler, who came on board our steamboat. With him we had a lively conversation about the hardships of a fisherman's life, the revolting scenes which too often spring from a visit to "the floating grog-shop," and the immense boon conferred upon fishermen by the humane and spiritual efforts of the Thames Church Mission. He did not "profess to be a Christian," himself, but he was bound to speak "candidly" of the great good being done by the Mission smacks. The "Cooper" was the "great curse" of all fishing fleets, and he earnestly hoped something would soon be done to let the fishermen have tobacco out of bond, and thus enable them to dispense with the "Cooper" and his "maddening grog." I am glad to say efforts are now being made in this direction with every hope of success.

ON BOARD THE SALEM.

We were not long on board the Thames Church Mission smack Salem before visitors began to arrive. Boats came pretty frequently for a supply of medicine or "something to read." This went on daily in fine weather, from early morn till sundown; and never were they allowed to leave the Salem without a word being spoken for the Master. But there were those who came to have a "yarn," as they called our conversation with them, and were in no hurry to depart. This gave a fine opportunity of telling out the Gospel story, which was always attentively listened to. The weather being most of the time exceptionally fine, we were able to have several Bible-readings on deck, to one of which the "Admiral" came.

No trawl goes down from a Mission smack on Saturday night; consequently, all is clear for Gospel work on the Lord's day. Sunday begins with an early prayer-meeting amongst the crew and any who are able to join them, followed by service in the forenoon and again in the afternoon. Great was our joy to see the power of the Lord at work amongst them, as evidenced by tears of contrition stealing down some bronzed cheeks. One of the skippers specially attracted our attention after one of the services. The moment light from the Word broke in upon his soul, tears of wonder at the goodness and grace of God began to flow freely. "To think that I should have been carrying this load for eight years," said he, "and now it's gone in a moment. How wonderful!" Coming on deck, and pointing his finger down the "companion," he again broke out: "For eight years I have been under conviction of sin—miserable, seeking rest but finding none; but the Lord has converted me—saved me—in that cabin to-day."

VISITING.

Much depends upon weather in the North Sea. By far the most dangerous part of a fisherman's occupation is that which takes him away from his trusty smack in a small boat. But this duty he has to perform often in weather that would make a landsman shudder to look at. He has to fetch boxes from the steamboats and convey them back again when filled with fish. In this risky work lives are lost every year. But given a calm sea, with just wind enough to enable the smacks to move along gently, then perhaps no part of the North Sea Mission work is more interesting than to lower the boat and pull off on a visiting cruise.

On one of these trips we were able to reach some half a dozen smacks before dinner. In each case our object was to deliver orally the message of salvation whilst Skipper Smith, of the Salem, sold Bibles, Gospel Compasses, &c., or distributed gratuitously such Gospel literature as kind friends on shore had provided. Such visits often result in blessing.

"Here, have a talk with this chap, sir, he needs it bad enough," was a salute we received on boarding the smack ——. The subject of our interest was a tall, spare man of about 24, who bore in his countenance the evidence of early and protracted dissipation—a sad picture of hardened indifference. But there was something in his bearing that did not belong to the ordinary run of fishermen. We were afterwards confidentially informed he was the son of a clergyman turned adrift and disowned through his wild conduct. He listened attentively to the story of God's love in the gift of his Son, and professed—we cannot say more—to be now anxious about his soul's salvation. Two others had drawn aside to listen to our conversation, of whom one appeared to be anxious, whilst the third, so far as man could judge, was a case of genuine conversion to God. Several days afterwards, No. 3 followed us on board the steamboat as we were leaving, and again testified joyfully of what the Lord had done for his soul.

ON BOARD THE FLOATING GROG SHOP.

It may be interesting to mention that one of our visits was paid to the now notorious "Cooper," the Diedrich. This is the floating grog shop said to have been pillaged by English fishermen in the North Sea. She was on her way from the Dogger Bank, where the alleged piracy took place, and had joined the Grimsby Fleet.

The skipper of the Diedrich, who had with him the cabin boy, a fine bright German lad, listened to our strong denunciation of his trade, and also to the Gospel message we put before them, most attentively. We were permitted also to go below and see where the drink and tobacco were sold and stored, and at the same time obtained a sample of "grog" for analysis. At the conclusion of our visit a new sound rose from the deck of that Cooper. It was the voice of prayer by our Christian companion, ascending up to God that the words spoken might be blessed, and that the dreadful traffic hitherto carried on with the Diedrich and all similar vessels might speedily be brought to an end. The Salem's boat returning shortly afterwards with a Gospel Compass, which the skipper wished to purchase, he was "found in a state of considerable agitation," and was reported to be "trembling all over from head to foot." Next day he left the fleet for home; we hope never to return with such merchandise.

CUFFS AND COMFORTERS.

These are a great boon to the fishermen, and surely there are many lady readers of The Christian who have time to knit a few pairs of cuffs or a few woollen comforters now and again. A real service would be done by sending a parcel of these occasionally to the Secretary of the Thames Church Mission (31, New Bridge-street, E.C.), who is at all times pleased to see to their distribution. Even during the fine summer weather we had, the eagerness to possess these comforts surprised us. The morning we left the fleet we had occasion to open a parcel of books from the Mission which had just arrived. On the top lay about a dozen pairs of woollen cuffs. Several of the fishermen caught sight of these, and begged hard to have them there and then. We were sorry to refuse, but were reminded that they had all been promised.

SEA SONGS.

Like most fishermen we know, these Grimsby trawlers are fond of singing. In a calm night it is no uncommon thing to hear sounds from an accordion or fiddle, accompanied by singing, floating over the sea. And even when all hands have "turned in," the night-watch sings incessantly. Songs and Solos are as common on the bleak North Sea as they are in Exeter Hall or Mildmay. Estimated merely by their singing, a stranger might easily be led to fancy he was surrounded by hundreds of Christian men and boys. Alas! we know how different the fact is. But to see Christian fishermen—or, for the matter of that, others who are not Christians—in what appears to be their element, is to gather them round a harmonium, such as is on board all the Mission vessels, and hear them expending their vocal powers on Mr. Sankey's hymns.

The expenses of this admirable and truly Christ-like Mission are considerable. Help is much needed to carry it on, and, if possible, extend its usefulness to other fleets. There are four of these Mission smacks now at work in the North Sea.

BISHOP WILLIAM TAYLOR.

IN a recent letter from New York, Dr. Dowkontt, of the Medical Mission of that city, sends some interesting details relating to the election by the Methodist Episcopal body of America of Rev. William Taylor to the bishopric of Central Africa. After describing the election itself our correspondent says:—

"The Bishop felt the need of more general information up to date concerning the whole country than he possessed, and he prayed that the Lord would give him a man, a co-labourer, who was acquainted with the field, its needs, &c., also that some parts of the country hitherto unevangelised might be opened up to him. He was not kept waiting long for an answer, the man being found in the person of Dr. W. R. Summers, who had been studying up the most recent works on Africa, and had been impressed for the past three or four years that the Lord desired him to go to Central Africa. With this end in view, Dr. Summers studied medicine in this city, and was graduated in March last from the N. Y. University.

"At their first interview, the bishop and the doctor each felt that it was of the Lord that they had met in answer to their prayers, and they decided to join each other in the work. Dr. Summers then pointed out to the Bishop a large field comprising nearly two million square miles, and containing about a hundred millions of people situate between the Congo on the north and the Zambesi on the south, and bounded on the east by the great lakes, and containing only two Mission stations, the one being that of the Bailunda Mission, the other that in the charge of Mr. Arnot.

"After mature consideration of the subject, it was decided to establish a line of stations from Loando on the west to Lake Tanganyika on the east, on the route of the Pogge and Weissman expedition. It has been decided that two parties shall be formed, the one, under the Bishop, entering from the west coast, the other in the charge of the Doctor, entering from the east side, and meeting at some central point, when each will traverse the district passed over by the other, and thus come out on the opposite side to that which he entered. The plan proposed is to form stations on the line, leaving two members at each, and thus some sixteen or eighteen will be established.

"The bishop and the doctor have been engaged for the past two months or so delivering addresses at the great camp meetings at Ocean Grove and elsewhere, the doctor having himself prepared a large map of the present condition of Africa as far as known to date. While the bishop is obtaining the needed men and means in America, the doctor will endeavour to do the same thing in England.

"You will readily understand the peculiar interest felt by myself in these things, when I say that Dr. Summers is our first medical missionary student, in whose conversion I was interested when labouring in the Liverpool Medical Mission six years ago. I therefore desire to commend him to the Christian friends on 'the other side,' and to bespeak for him their hearty sympathy and co-operation."

THE LATE REV. T. E. SKUSE.—A fund is being raised on behalf of the six orphans of the late Rev. T. E. Skuse, who, after ministering to an East-end parish for several years, has died at the age of forty. His wife died three weeks afterwards. The fund will be managed by Rev. J. F. Kitto, M.A., rector of Stepney; Rev. F. J. Hobbins, M.A., vicar of Christ Church, Stepney; and the Rev. A. W. Cribb, M.A., vicar of St. Thomas, Arbour-square, E., who all knew the deceased clergyman well. Contributions should be sent to the last-named.

BLACKGANG MISSION.

THE ANNUAL HARVEST THANKSGIVING.

DEAR SIR,—Our annual harvest thanksgiving meeting was held, as usual, in the Mission Hall on September 19. We have abundant cause to praise the Lord for many manifest tokens of his loving-kindness on the occasion. The day was splendid, enabling those from the distant towns and outlying villages to come to our "Harvest Home," and return again without harm or inconvenience. It is gratifying to us, after working here for eleven years, to find that our invitations to these gatherings continue year by year to be warmly and heartily responded to.

The present was no exception to past occasions. From 11 a.m. onwards vans were arriving from various parts of the island, and the happy faces of their occupants told of their pleasure and expectancy in once more meeting at the spot endeared to many of them by hallowed associations. The hall, which has been lately renewed, was tastefully decorated by the skill of our colporteur, and by many loving hearts and hands, who delighted to display to the best advantage the gracious gifts of our heavenly Father. Flowers, fruits, and vegetables had their place, as well as the more immediate results of the late specially bountiful harvest. Almost all these trophies of garden, field, and orchard were contributed by the dear parishioners themselves, who days previously walked many miles, bringing us their loving offerings.

About 300 persons assembled for tea, which was served punctually at 4 p.m., and the arrangements regarding which appeared to give universal satisfaction. Upwards of 400, it is reckoned, were at the meeting which followed, every available space in the hall being in requisition, including standing room in the aisles. The meeting was opened by Colonel Forster at seven o'clock with prayer and an appropriate portion of Scripture.

A few words of welcome from ourselves followed, and a letter was read from Mrs. Reade, expressive of her appreciation of the love manifested by the little church in delaying the date of the meeting in hopes of her being able to be present. She explained that she found herself wholly unequal to the effort, with the too sad associations connected with such a gathering, but assured them on behalf of herself and of Miss Reade (who is also absent for rest and change), of presence in spirit, and union in prayer and praise. I may mention that the affectionate allusion made by many to the sorely felt blank caused by the removal to be with Christ of beloved Mr. Reade was very touching, and, combined with the sympathy expressed by all for us, as a family and a church, in our sore and deep bereavement, was most sweet and comforting to us as a testimony of the well-deserved affection and respect in which Mr. Reade was held, even by those at a distance from our immediate neighbourhood.

Short addresses were given by the Rev. J. Harrison, of Niton; Mr. J. Newman, of Shanklin; Colonel Forster and Captain Michell, of Sandown. Local preachers also spoke, and some of the converts bore bright testimony to the Lord's loving-kindness in winning them to Himself, while the more established Christians gladly told forth his praise. As a crowning token of the Lord's love, a precious soul was brought to Christ at the close of the meeting—a young man of 18, the son of many prayers. Those who have so kindly and generously contributed towards the "Mission house," or "house of rest," will be pleased to know that it was hailed by all as a great boon on this occasion. Indeed, ever since it was opened in March last it has proved so great an assistance and comfort in the work, that we trust the Lord will incline his servants to enable us to continue to maintain it as a most useful adjunct to the work here.—Yours in the love of Christ,

F. HAMILTON.

MR. MULLER'S NEW REPORT.

THE forty-fifth annual report of Mr. Geo. Müller's many-sided work has reached us. No brief sketch can give any idea of its value. The first ten pages are devoted to a condensed statement of the writer's recent missionary tour of 21,000 miles, through India, in the seventy-ninth year of his life, thus consummating a desire which had been latent for nearly half a century.

Referring to the support of the institution during the same period, Mr. Müller says "That it still exists, and is now in its fifty-first year; we most heartily praise God. As for every day's supply we continue to be dependent on Him, and are only able to carry on the work as He is pleased in answer to prayer and faith to supply us with means, it becomes us to acknowledge gratefully his kindness in having upheld this institution during another year, and for so long a period. Also for preserving our extensive buildings from fire and other great calamities. Above all, we praise Him for the great amount of spiritual blessing which He has graciously vouchsafed to rest on the various departments of the work in hand." This spiritual blessing we find extends to the eighty-four schools of the Scriptural Knowledge Institution, the circulation of the Holy Scriptures, the missionary work, the circulation of religious books, pamphlets, and tracts, and the 2160 orphans under his care. Devout recognition is also recorded of the amount of physical and mental strength with which in his seventy-ninth year he is blest.

Since the founding of the Scriptural Knowledge Institution for Home and Abroad in 1834, God has been pleased to send £1,012,770 simply as the result of prayer and faith, and by these means 95,143 children or grown-up persons have been taught in the 84 schools, entirely supported by the funds of the institution, besides the tens of thousands who have been benefited in the schools which are assisted by its funds. There are now in the 84 schools, 5947 pupils. There have been circulated in various languages, 189,359 Bibles, 647,775 New Testaments, 20,275 Psalms, and 205,084 other portions of the Holy Scriptures. In addition to this there have been circulated 80,219,334 pamphlets and tracts. From the earliest days of the institution, missionaries have also been assisted by its funds, and for very many years a considerable number of them. On this object alone the sum of £196,633 has been expended. No less than 6895 orphans "have been under our care," and five large houses, at an expense of £115,000, have been erected and fitted up for the accommodation of 2050 orphans at a time, and 110 helpers. "As to the spiritual result of these operations, we have the fullest reason to believe," says Mr. Muller, "that tens of thousands of souls have been blessed, but the day of the Lord alone will fully make manifest all the good which through his wondrous condescension has been accomplished during the last fifty years by means of the Scriptural Knowledge Institution."

The method adopted by the writer of the report is first to give a few specimens of the manner in which the Lord has provided the necessary funds for the past year for the orphans and all the institutions, and secondly to furnish some facts of interest concerning the objects of the institutions. "As this report, however, is intended for the spiritual benefit of the reader, so, as God shall help me, the whole will be interspersed with practical remarks as either the subjects or dates may lead to them, although these remarks may not be immediately connected with giving an account of our stewardship." And then follows the marvellous narrative of how God has sent the money in answer to prayer during the past twelve months, for the support of more than 2000 orphan children, and for the other institution. As usual, from all parts of the world has it come. The little notes accompanying the donations are as touching and beautiful as ever. Mr. Müller's "comments" are as good as a Bible-reading, and the careful and prayerful perusal of the entire report is truly a means of grace.

One very valuable statement by Mr. Müller we must not omit. "April 2, from Yorkshire, £200. This kind donor whom God has raised up for the institution within the last eight years, has helped us again and again in a similar manner in time of our need without knowing it. I say, without knowing about it, for we never make known our wants. The reason why we refrain from this is not because we consider it sinful to let our Christian friends know that we are without means for the work of the Lord, but because from the beginning the Orphan Institution had for its especial object to strengthen the faith of Christians, and to encourage them increasingly to give themselves to prayer in all their necessities. We desire also to show to an unbelieving and sceptical age how much, even in the nineteenth century, can be accomplished by prayer and faith. On this account I never speak about the state of the funds except in the yearly Reports, and all my fellow-labourers are requested to refrain from doing so when we are in need, in order that the hand of God in sending to us help simply in answer to prayer may be clearly seen."

On page 24, Mr. Müller writes: "This morning the sum of £256 came in, but the expenses of the day were so great that the last sovereign was called for and we had nothing left at all. The next day (Dec. 8) £140 came in, but all was called for again, and thus up to Dec. 12 we were continually helped day by day without any balance in hand, though helped day by day. In this state of things we continued till the 19th, when our balance was reduced to £7 0s. 4d. I mention these particulars because some of my readers may suppose that our trial of faith as to means existed only forty-six years ago. Ever since the commencement of the work we have gone on in the same way, and have acted on the principles on which the institution was first begun. See, therefore, Christian reader, how truly blessed it is to have real trust in God; and not only to say 'I rely on God,' but in reality to do so. Our daily average expenses for the orphans alone amount to £72 0s. 4d., and all we had left on Dec. 19, 1883, amounted to £7 0s. 4d.

Meanwhile, Mr. Müller's own pastorate at Bethesda is not forgotten. The Sunday-school contains about 400 scholars, of whom 77 are believers, and 24 were recently in an anxious state about their souls. The teachers are all Christians; "for we deem it unscriptural," says Mr. Müller, "that persons who do not profess to know the Lord themselves, should be engaged in giving religious instruction to others." From the orphanage fifty of the boys have been sent out to learn a trade or business, and 135 of the girls have been sent out as domestic servants. Of these latter 78 were believers, and altogether 111 have been converted during the year.

HIGH SECTARIANISM.—By his contribution of £10 to the building fund of a Primitive Methodist's chapel the Bishop of Worcester, while he has secured the admiration of all catholic-minded Christians, has incurred the spiteful maledictions of that "religious" paper, The Church Times. In an article which is as inconsistent as it is long-winded, and as scurrilous in epithet as it is feeble and halting in composition, this sacerdotal organ puts before the public its notions regarding the "separatist sects" in general, and the Primitive Methodist community in particular. To encourage such a system is, in the view of this Christian journalist, "not only rebellion against the Church but treason against society." No better reason for so scathing a denunciation is adduced than that in a book published by a lady (whose name is not given) some thirty years ago, it was asserted that Dissent "had a baneful influence on our working population," and that "if a professing Churchman is known to be immoral, no one counts him religious; it is not so among Wesleyans." So that on the authority of a prejudiced and obscure pamphleteer, whose assertions are so wildly libellous as to be in the eyes of impartial observers simply contemptible, The Church Times considers itself justified in lecturing a Bishop of its own Church on a kindly and graceful act of Christian courtesy and generosity.—Nonconformist.

REV. DENNIS OSBORNE.

THE sojourn in London of this Indian missionary was very brief; it was long enough, however, to be memorable. He had to hurry back to his native land, to be present at a Conference in connection with his church — the Methodist Episcopal; so his stay in our midst was unexpectedly and unavoidably curtailed.

Besides the Sunday evening address at Exeter Hall, to which we alluded last week, Mr. Osborne spoke in the same place on the following evening. His theme was "Some Incidents of the Indian Mutiny," and it was handled in a way that could not fail to extort the unqualified admiration of every hearer. It did seem a little strange, at the first blush, to find in Exeter Hall a narrative of warlike exploits received with the most rapturous approval and applause. But the seeming incongruity vanished quick when we reflected that the deeds of prowess that marked that critical and never to be forgotten period of our national history, were not done in the interests of conquest or oppression, but for the defence or preservation of our innocent kinsfolk, and for the punishment or prevention of crimes as foul as have ever stained the annals of this sad earth.

We need not follow Mr. Osborne through his eloquent and heart-stirring recital of the tragic details of the rise and progress and suppression of the mutiny. A generation has not yet passed away since these events thrilled the civilised world, and they are fresh in the memory of many of us. The lecturer was personally cognisant of them. He has visited and revisited many of the places made famous, or infamous, by heroic endurance and bravery, or by vile treachery and unspeakable acts of cruelty and shame. His story, therefore, was told with a depth of emotion and pathos that no outsider or mere historian could have simulated. Little wonder that the feelings of the large audience were thoroughly stirred, and that the mention of such names as Lawrence, Outram, Havelock, and others "brought down the house." Suffice it to say that Mr. Osborne's account of the way in which British rule came to be established in India, convinced us more strongly than ever that the hand and purpose of God were clearly at work, in entrusting to the English nation the destinies of that vast continent. No less striking was the wonderful way in which the mutiny was, so to speak, "nipped in the bud," and crushed out before the far-reaching scheme could be fully developed. The sum of the whole matter is this: God has plainly put into the hands of the British people the possession of India, as a high and sacred trust, not for purposes of ambitious aggrandisement, but that we may give to the millions of India the knowledge of the true God, and that we may dispense throughout her rich and fertile provinces a righteous and Christian rule. God means India to be for the Indians, as much as He means Egypt to be for the Egyptians, or China for the Chinese. If we are not faithful to our trust, there is no reason to doubt that He will in some way cancel the trust-deed, and appoint new trustees.

Mr. Osborne pleaded with native and genuine eloquence for the evangelisation of India—a work to which he is giving his life. He would have us believe that it is not a distant or inhospitable land, but one easy of access, and pleasant in many parts, even for a Briton born, to live and labour in. His burning words of appeal will surely not be in vain. Let those who are not fast bound by circumstances to their island home, go forth to this larger and far needier field. Let all, whether they go or whether they stay, bear upon their hearts the 260 millions of India's dusky sons and daughters before the God of the whole earth.

In speaking of Mr. Osborne's departure from America en route to India, an American contemporary says:—"Three missionaries going to India accompanied him in the ship, and some fifteen more are soon to follow, influenced to go by the result of Mr. Osborne's visit to this country. A lady in the West hearing of Mr. Osborne's desire to erect a Christian school for native boys, and that the cost would be 10,000 dollars, contributed the whole amount herself."

A HIGHLY-FAVOURED TOWN.

WE have had a very blessed time in this town for the last year, and are still having it —such a union of Christians as I never heard of before in any place. The vicar and his curates, the Baptist, Independent, Bible Christian, Methodist, and Wesleyan ministers, all went out together to preach the Gospel one after the other to their united congregations on the esplanade every Lord's day evening throughout the season. I, too, preached with them on every occasion, and I cannot tell you the happy fellowship we had. I need scarcely add the Lord commanded a blessing.

We have also a charming prayer-meeting every Monday at 12 o'clock, at which each minister in the town successively presides—that is, gives a few minutes' address to the Lord's people present, who generally fill the room. It is an open meeting; no one is named to pray. The vicar has a similar meeting on Saturday night, as open and free as the union meeting on Monday, at which he presides, and addresses his own congregation ostensibly; but fully half of them are Dissenters and brethren. It is simply a delightful meeting. I am rejoiced to say that I am personally on the most intimate, affectionate terms with them all, and am allowed the fullest liberty, and, perhaps, the largest share of any in this blessed work. We have a union Bible-reading, also well attended.

Sandown, Isle of Wight. M.

STRANGERS' REST, RATCLIFF HIGHWAY.

THE monthly meeting of workers was held on Friday last at 163, St. George's-street, when a number gathered to hear a deeply interesting address from Rev. J. Wilkinson.

Mr. Isaac, secretary, said there was need of someone to come and fill Mr. Kay's place at the children's service on Sunday, as he is just leaving for China. Will kind friends also remember the sailors' book-bags? The supply of magazines and books is almost exhausted.

Mr. Wilkinson spoke in a lucid and interesting way on "God's revealed purpose concerning Israel." In conclusion, he said: "You ask when 'the times of the Gentiles' shall close? I believe the time is very near, so if there is anything to be done, it must be done quickly. The Bible is very clear. In Isaiah xi. 11 it says: 'The Lord shall set his hand the second time to recover the remnant of his people . . . from the four corners of the earth;' and Amos ix. 15: 'I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land that I have given them.' These words have never yet been fulfilled. Then they are promised 'a good land and large.' We find 30,000 square miles was all they had, but they shall have 300,000; and then the land will be differently treated than before, and the tribes differently located (see Ezek. xlviii). Palestine is 'in the midst' of the earth, and the mission of the Jews will be to evangelise till 'all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.'"

WORKERS AND INVALIDS.—It is earnestly desired to extend the usefulness of "The Christian Workers' and Invalid Men's Mutual Help Association." Christians willing to help by corresponding with invalids, or invalids to whom a bright, cheering letter from one actively engaged in the Master's vineyard would be acceptable, are asked to communicate with Miss Hesketh Sanders, 1, Newstreet, Dorset-square, W., who has undertaken the honorary superintendence. Any members who have ceased writing or receiving letters are also requested to notify the fact, in order to the reorganisation of the work. Letitia Jennings.

MR. RADCLIFFE IN SCOTLAND.

WITHIN three-quarters of an hour of his arrival in Edinburgh from Liverpool, Mr. Radcliffe and his travelling companion stood upon the platform of the Saturday-evening Gospel Temperance meeting of the Carrubber's-close Mission. Each Saturday evening since the opening of the new building the large hall, seating 1400 people, has been filled. This occasion proved no exception, and at the close many rallied to Mr. Radcliffe's call to immediate decision.

On Sunday morning the free breakfast in the Drill Hall, with its 1400 guests, old and young, was, of course, attended.

Mr. Radcliffe on this occasion, however, visited Scotland not, as formerly, for the purpose of preaching the Gospel—though this in every place accompanied his earnest testimony. His object was to fix the attention of Christians, individually and as churches, on their personal responsibility in sending the Gospel to the millions who, in Continental and other countries, are perishing for lack of knowledge. On Sunday evening the Free Assembly Hall was full. Mr. Radcliffe briefly opened the subject of his Mission by narrating a few incidents of the recent visit to Russia of himself and his wife and daughter. This Sunday evening meeting being specially devoted to evangelistic work, a fuller account of his visit was deferred till Monday evening, when a large congregation gathered in the same hall. Mr. Radcliffe, amongst other points, spoke of the facility with which English-speaking visitors can preach the Gospel to Continental nations by interpretation. He also delivered an earnest, heart-stirring address on the general subject of the pressing need of foreign lands. This address we print elsewhere.

The immediate result of the meeting was a gathering for prayer in the rooms of the Y.M.C.A. on the following evening. At the close of the meeting, which was marked by intense earnestness in prayer and brief testimonies, opportunity was given for questions and for personal conversation. Immediate indications and subsequent reports from friends justify the hope that much practical result will ensue.

After a flying visit to Glasgow, Mr. Radcliffe and his companions proceeded to Ayr, where a very warm welcome awaited them. The hall of the Association was filled with men. Three of the ministers of the town took part in the meeting, and so deep an interest in the subject was evinced, that it was resolved to improvise a meeting for the following evening, when ladies also should be invited to attend. Not only was practical response elicited on the part of several who were present, but one of the immediate results is likely to be the establishment of regular meetings for prayer and testimony on the subject of Foreign Missions.

In Dundee, the last town visited on this occasion, Mr. Radcliffe addressed the Bible-class of the Y.M.C.A. The class in this town is remarkable for its large and sustained attendance. Its weekly average is six hundred young men, from fifteen years of age and upwards. After a brief address by Mr. R Burn, and some well-told personal testimony by Mr. Heber Radcliffe, an earnest appeal was made by Mr. Reginald Radcliffe for workers for "the fields white unto harvest." A large number of young men in one of the side rooms met Dr. Lowe of the Edinburgh Medical Mission, who was present, and had personal conversation with him. In the evening the hall was filled, this time with both sexes, and some of those interested again remained for conversation.

In each of the towns visited—except Dundee, where rain fell heavily—open-air meetings were addressed by Mr. Heber Radcliffe and Mr. Burn. Mr. Radcliffe, sen., hopes to revisit Scotland very shortly. Meanwhile he will hold some meetings in London, commencing with an address in Park Church, Grosvenor-road, Highbury (Rev. Dr. Edmond's), on Sunday next, at 6.30 p.m.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN'S UNION CONFERENCE.

THE Annual Conference of the Christian Women's Union, to be held next month in Glasgow, was prefaced by a preliminary all-day meeting at the Conference Hall, Clapham, on Thursday last. The first hour of the morning was spent in prayer.

The first address was given by Miss Ellice Hopkins, whose subject was—

CHRISTIAN WOMANHOOD.

She gave a short account of the progress of the movement with which she had been associated for the last eight years, for the promotion of purity and the prevention of the degradation of women and children. That movement was originally confined to women, but their quickened sense of the dignity and sanctity of their own womanhood had soon reacted on men. She pointed out that the strength of these great movements, as in the past they had sprung from the woman's movement, must continue in the future to spring from a higher womanhood which would look upon itself as especially the guardian of the purity of men.

Addressing herself to mothers, she besought them not to look upon this as a question having to do only with back streets, with the poor and degraded, reminding them that the gravest problems of all were those presented by our public and private schools, where we send our own sons to be educated. Having quoted the words to herself of a leading missioner, "You must remember that with nine young men out of ten this is the temptation they have to fight," she besought Christian mothers to constitute themselves the guardians of their own sons' purity, (1) by self consecration; (2) by bringing up their sons in the Christian ideal that the man is "to love the woman and give himself for her," training their boys to serve their sisters, and not to make them the willing slaves of their selfishness; (3) to bring up their girls with a deeper sense of the responsibilities of their own womanhood, and the formation of fine manners and high thinking, and noble actions, that they might teach it to the men around them.

Mrs. Haycroft, of Brighton, spoke next, on the subject of "Women's Service on Public Boards." She affirmed her belief that if woman is to fulfil her mission in the world she must go hand-in-hand with her compeers. She was not prepared to admit that the benefit of a woman's presence on public boards was limited simply to the tender and softening influence which the womanly character has on men. She was increasingly persuaded that their wisdom and discernment in dealing with cases relating to their own sex were equally beneficial. She had never yet made a speech at the Brighton Poor Law Board, but she had seen abundant evidence that her presence there was doing its own silent mission, and she fully believed that the service of women on public boards was one of the greatest wants of the day. For her own part, she had undertaken the work in distinct obedience to the manifest will of God; and to Him alone she looked for support and guidance in its discharge.

Mrs. Wilkinson, speaking on "Woman's Work among the Jews," gave an interesting sketch of what had already been accomplished. The work among the Jewish children was specially encouraging. The night-school for men was doing much good. Great ignorance prevailed among them as to the Scriptures. One of them recently was astonished when Isaiah liii. was read to him, and assured that it was from their Bible. The essential qualification for reaching them was intense love to the Saviour and to them.

Another address was given on the same subject by a lady who has worked among Jews for five years. Her work lies mainly about Highbury New Park, where a large number of Jewish families reside. Several attend a Bible-reading which she holds for them on Saturdays, and they now love to have her among them, saying, "It does not seem to us like the Sabbath unless you come and read to us."

Mrs. Shakoor spoke on "Work in Egypt," and referred to the increasing demand for more workers. The people were being much improved by the concern shown, in medical aid, for their bodies as well as their souls. There is less opposition among the parents now than formerly, pressing requests being frequently made to admit their children to the schools. With Miss Whately and the Doctor she recently visited a neighbouring place inhabited by the Moslems, and was soon surrounded by a crowd of inquirers eager to accept the Scriptures and medicine. Had we but adequate support, said the speaker, how gladly would we send a worker to live among them.

A most able and scholarly paper was then read by Miss Petrie, B.A., the subject being, among women of the intellectual classes. She said:—The beginning of individual religious life is a matter rather of the heart than of the head; but our first knowledge of God through the teaching of others must be followed up, if spiritual life is to be sustained, by a diligent study of the things of God. The Church, through an indiscriminate fear of "head-knowledge," sometimes lays aside the power it might have to lead the thought of the age. The partial and fair-speaking infidelity of the present day cannot be met, as the wholesale scoffing unbelief of the last century was met, by a great tide of religious emotion; we must return to the intellectual standpoint of the Reformation. No book is more read or less studied than the Bible. Many Christian women read it both devotionally and practically, yet the element of thought, which is as necessary as devotion and action in the religious life, is lacking; and thus they lose influence over young minds, coming in contact with problems of whose existence such Bible readers are ignorant.

HOW TO PROMOTE BIBLE STUDY

The Bible should not be read as a collection of texts, since it is an organic whole; nor with a superstitious veneration for the letter, ignoring the spirit; since it is one thing to believe that the Bible contains truth, and another to believe the truth that it contains. It should not be read controversially, in constant relation to some favourite opinions; nor with pre-conceived ideas, which are fatal to the right understanding of any book. Much may be done to interest young people in the Bible, by those who are intelligent Bible students, and they may thus be led to form a life-long habit of studying the Scriptures.

Miss Petrie then spoke of the great work accomplished during the last ten years by the Scripture-reading Unions founded by Rev. Thos. Richardson and Rev. Ernest Boys; and of the effort on behalf of girls whose schoolroom days are over, in connection with the Students' Branch of the Christian Women's Education Union. This was organised by her three years ago, and now numbers over 800 members, all of whom promise to study the Bible half an hour every day. In conclusion, she referred to the study of the Greek Testament, and to our need of prayer for the Holy Spirit, that we may have a right judgment in all things.

The next subject introduced was defined as Deaconess Orders, Sisterhoods, and Associations. Among those who took part in the discussion were Mrs. Meredith, Miss Lloyd, Miss Mason, Mrs. Pepper, Miss Hopkins, Mrs. Haycroft, Miss Cavendish, and others. A sisterhood was described as being an association of Christian women who amalgamate their property and cooperate in religious work. It was admitted that a danger existed of their coming under the dominant influence of the clergy and priesthood, and that undoubtedly a strong ritualistic tendency pervaded them in almost every instance. Enforced celibacy, perpetual vows, uniform dress, and constrained obedience to superiors, were points on which various opinions were elicited. The advantages arising from cooperation in Christian work, the facility for discovering special fitness for positions, and the opportunity afforded for mutual counsel, fellowship, and prayer were among the arguments suggested in their favour.

At the evening meeting an address of considerable power was delivered by Mrs. Armitage on "Spiritual Life." Her own experience was narrated with much fervour, and made a deep impression upon the meeting. The meeting was then thrown open for general testimony, to which many responded, most telling of the way in which they had been led by God into the deeper experience of spiritual things.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Greenock, N.B.—Miss Macprinn, of Edinburgh, has held Gospel meetings at the Christian Mission Hall, West Burn-square, Greenock. The meetings were well attended, and the spiritual results gratifying.

Hayle, Cornwall.—A Mission-room is needed in this Cornish town, which has recently been visited by a gracious revival. Help will be gratefully received by Mr. Roach, Messrs. Bolitho's Bank, Hayle.

Battersea.—A ten weeks' Gospel Mission, says a correspondent, has been closed in a tent in Victoria-road, Battersea. The word preached was with power, and the workers have been permitted to see no small fruit of their labours.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiggan have concluded their Gospel Mission at Carlton-road, Kilburn. At a farewell tea-meeting there were many earnest expressions of grateful interest in these friends, who had toiled so unremittingly and successfully for the salvation of the masses in that neighbourhood.

Mildmay Mission to the Jews.—The itinerant branch of this Mission is being prosecuted with regularity and vigour. Our brethren, Messrs. Baron and Barnett, have just gone to Bradford to preach Christ to the Jews there; they will be grateful for the prayers of your readers for blessing on their testimony. On Sunday week another son of Abraham publicly confessed his faith in Christ, and received baptism at the Conference Hall, Mildmay. Several Jewish converts are in deep poverty; will Gentile Christians help them?—Faithfully yours, J. Wilkinson.

79, Mildmay-road, N.

Glasgow Seamen's Evangelistic Mission.—This new Mission was begun six months ago in a small hall in Carrack-street. We were packed out the first Sunday. The same thing happened repeatedly, so that numbers decided to attend no more until a larger place could be found. Scarcely a meeting passed without several conversions in the small hall. At last we felt compelled to look about for more accommodation, and we rented a large warehouse in the same street to hold about 600. It was put in order, and was opened with great rejoicings. At present we have five indoor meetings per week, and four open-air services. We are looking forward to a grand winter's work. Will your readers help us with tracts or ships' bags?—Yours faithfully, A. M. A. Graham.

353, Paisley-road, Glasgow.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for the ensuing week:—Oct. 12, Acts xviii. 1—17; Oct. 13, Acts xviii. 18—28; Oct. 14, Acts xix. 1—12; Oct. 15, Acts xix. 13—22; Oct. 16, Acts xix. 23—41; Oct. 17, Acts xx. 1—12; Oct. 18, Acts xx. 13—24.

PROFESSOR LEONE LEVI ON THE SUNDAY QUESTION.—In a recent letter to Mr. Charles Hill, Secretary of the Working Men's Lord's-day Rest Association, Professor Leone Levi says in respect to the Sunday opening of museums, &c.:—"Anxious as I am that our working classes should have the amplest facilities for visiting our museums and art galleries as a means of enlightenment and education, I am of opinion that the gain accruing from the opening of the same on Sundays to those who could or would avail themselves of the privilege would scarcely be equal to the national loss arising from the lessening in any degree of the rest and repose now enjoyed on that day—a rest so essential to the recruiting of our powers, whether mental or physical. The working classes have now, in common with other classes, many more half-day and whole-day holidays than they used to have, and I am glad to see that our museums and galleries are not neglected on those occasions. With the extension of the electric light there is no reason why the British museum and like institutions should not be open in the evenings."

FRENCH PRISONS.

By Mr. CHARLES COOK.

LILLE.

AT the Maison Centrale at Loos, near here, there are 1200 convicts. Having bought several hundred French Testaments in Paris, I came here with the hope of giving them away among the prisoners. The Trinitarian Bible Society have published a Testament in French for one penny, containing twenty pictures; and there is also sold in Paris a much better book for twopence (or 20 centimes), with stiff covers and a number of good, coloured maps. These I gave away to the officials and to many of the prisoners. Before I had gone over half the prison my stock of Testaments was exhausted; and, as in so many former visits to foreign prisons, I left the place without a single copy.

I recognised one of the convicts as an Englishman whom I had seen in La Roquette prison, Paris, some eighteen months previously, and who on his discharge, shortly afterwards, came to London at my request, I promising to find him work. Alas! in three weeks afterwards he was again picking pockets on French soil, was caught and sentenced to two years, and is here "doing his term."

The authorities here are very strict, by reason of a remarkable attempt to escape, which reads more like romance than truth. There are about 15 English prisoners here, and I went to visit the one who figures most conspicuously in the following statement. An Englishman arrived at the Lille station a few weeks ago, and was closely watched by two detectives, who followed him to an hotel and took rooms adjoining the one occupied by him. Early the next morning he hired a cab and drove at a sharp pace through Lille. The detectives, who had been awake all night, followed, but could not keep up with the vehicle; but they did not mind as they knew where their man was bound for. Every morning a large van leaves the prison containing two good-sized baskets of slippers and boots made by the prisoners. Shortly after ten on this particular morning the two detectives with two of the secret police dressed as labourers were waiting near the Maison Centrale, when the doors opened, and the van containing the baskets, &c., came slowly out. It was stopped when it had got clear of the prison; the baskets cut open, and two English prisoners with bundles of private clothes, false whiskers, and eye-glasses were found inside. They were at once taken back to the prison, and placed in close confinement, and soon after the van with the baskets again came out. On reaching the end of the avenue of trees which leads to Lille, the stranger from the hotel (previously mentioned) rushed from the side of the road, stopped the vehicle, and cutting the strings of the baskets, cried out, "You are saved, you are saved!" "Ah! but you are not!" cried the detectives, who had themselves been secreted in the baskets, and who at once secured their prisoner; he in his turn was safely conveyed inside the gaol. It need hardly be said that these men had confederates inside the prison, and but for the one whom I had occasion to visit they would have made good their escape. They are supposed to have been concerned in the great robbery of diamonds in Paris. One of the warders has been arrested; he was to have had £800 for his share in the escape. 2000 francs were found upon the Englishman when searched.

ST. DENIS.

I found 980 inmates in this prison, which had formerly been a monastery. They are principally those who have only very short sentences to serve; and on their discharge, if they cannot find work, they may come back here, where they will be fed, lodged, and paid a small salary. It was a sad sight, reminding one somewhat of our Ragged Church of London, or the Free Breakfasts at Edinburgh, for at the time of our visit they were all enjoying their mid-day meal. Again our books were offered, to the officials first, and then to these poor "waifs and strays" of humanity. They were gladly accepted, and very soon our stock became again exhausted. I have hitherto generally given away only the Gospels, but as the expense is now not very much more, I prefer to give the whole Testament, as being more likely to be preserved and read.

PARIS.

I have completed my visits to all the prisons of Paris and its suburbs, and am able, by God's goodness, to say that I have succeeded in leaving the Word of God in them all. Only in one did I find any difficulty, and even there I was enabled to give Testaments to the officers, and the governor, and even to the Lady Superior herself. St. Lazare, to which I refer, is the central prison of Paris for women, and is under the zealous care of Sisters of Mercy. I therefore deemed it wise not to attempt to give our books away to the Catholics under their charge. The Protestant women are all well cared for and visited by English ladies.

We enjoyed great pleasure in distributing copies of the Scriptures as we journeyed by rail, throwing them out to the platelayers, signalmen, and others whom we saw, each Testament being turned down and marked at John iii. 16, and on the inside front page of each book we had written, "Les mots de Dieu pour vous; lisez le bien." At one station we gave away 60, the people coming from all parts.

Letter to the Editor.

VILLAGE LIFE AND VILLAGE NEEDS.

Dear Sir,—I see in a recent number of the Christian an article headed, "Village Life and Village Needs." The writer says: "Wages are frightfully small, 12s. or 14s. a week, and even less, having in many cases to suffice for a family of nine or ten children, all depending on the father's earnings." This is simply absurd. There is no such case in this county. Where a man has nine or ten children, the eldest are out at service, or if at home, three or four are at work, and the combined earnings of the family are from £2 to £3 per week. Those men who are paid by the day, at 2s. or 2s. 6d., have from 3s. to 5s. per week extra during the harvest months. A good deal of work is done by contract, and the men very often get 5s. and 6s. per day. I myself paid two men last week for getting up potatoes for five days £2 1s. 6d., or £1 0s. 9d. each.

We are certainly short of reading-rooms and Mission halls.

The writer also says: "Higher wages, cheaper food, and suitable dwellings are among the material advantages which are not merely desirable, but essential." Now, wages were never higher, food never cheaper than at present, and the dwellings are far superior to those occupied by common workmen in towns. Each labourer has a good cottage and garden at a low rent. Many a one has told me that he could do better in the country on 10s. a week, with cottage and garden, than in the town on 25s. or 30s.

The writer also says: "Grinding poverty drives many mothers to toil in the fields." That is not the case here. I have offered women 2s. a day to do light work in the fields, and they would not accept it; they say they can do better. In fact, we have some difficulty to get a charwoman at 1s. 6d. a day and her food. The only time you can see a woman in the fields is now, when the blackberries are ripe. They gather the fruit, for which they have a good market, and can get from 2s. to 4s. a day by doing so.

Then again: "Children are untrained and uncared for." That is not so. They are kept at school, well clad, and well fed—far better than town children. I lived in a town eighteen years. I speak to facts, and can prove all I have said. I know for a truth that the working man in the country at the present time lives better and spends more money foolishly than many a farmer.—Yours respectfully,

A. Roxburgh.

Danemore Farm, Malvern Wells,
Sept. 29.

REV. W. SPENCER EDWARDS.—Just as we go press we learn of the death, on Saturday last, of this well-known Congregational minister. He had recently retired from regular duty owing to failing health.

MR. RICHARD BROWN, the coloured evangelist, and Mr. John Taylor, of Manchester, have held successful Gospel Temperance meetings at Mossley, Woodhouse, Oldham, and Lees, during the past two weeks. Mr. Brown tells the story of his slave life with touching pathos and effect.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES.

BRIGHTON.

A MOST important Conference was held on the 3rd inst., with a view of facilitating more definite co-operation with the other young men's societies in the town.

SHEFFIELD.

After being non-existent for eight years, the Association in this large industrial centre has now been resuscitated, with every hope of a flourishing career in the future. Mr. Rosevear, late of Exeter Hall, is the new secretary.

LEWES.

The annual business meeting was held on Sept. 30, when Mr. Hind-Smith delivered an address. We are glad to report that the association has had presented to it 4000 volumes by the representatives of the late Mechanics' Institute.

SOUTHPORT.

The half-yearly Conference of the Manchester district Association has just been held at this favourite watering-place. Various aspects of the work were ably discussed, and a large public meeting was held, at which the Mayor of Southport presided.

HASTINGS.

The annual meeting was held on the 1st inst., Mr. A. C. P. Coote in the chair. Mr. Hind-Smith represented the National Council. The Report was read by Mr. West, and showed that forty additional members and associates had joined during the last year. The finances had been greatly improved. Practical spiritual work was reported.

EASTBOURNE.

A meeting was held here on the 2nd. inst., when Mr. Hind-Smith gave an address on the "Importance of personal testimony on the part of the members, and their fidelity to the first principles of the Association." The alterations of the premises have been successfully carried out, and for the size of the town very few associations can now show such a home for young men.

ALDERSGATE-STREET.

Amongst many details of arrangement for the forthcoming season, courses of lectures on Christian evidence are announced. Dr. Wainwright lectures on Monday evenings this month; in November and December the lecturer is Dr. Monro Gibson. On the last Monday in November, however, a "medical talk," by the eminent physician, Sir Andrew Clark, Bart., is announced. His subject will be: "Considerations respecting the constitution of man and its relation to Health, Knowledge, and Religion." Dr. Anderson, author of "The Coming Prince," is to give a course of Bible lectures on "The Life and Visions of the Prophet Daniel," on successive Thursdays, commencing Nov. 6.

Amongst the varied classes in Educational subjects, we mention, as likely to prove specially helpful to Christian workers, a Tonic Sol-fa singing class on Wednesday evenings, conducted by Mr. Joseph Proudman. Lectures on Elocution will be given by Professor Plumptre. The prospectus, which we commend to the notice of all City young men, is full of interesting and important announcements.

LAY PREACHERS' ASSOCIATION—A social meeting of the members of this Association was held at 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C., on the 6th inst., Mr. J. E. Jack presiding. Mr. S. Ireland, the hon. secretary, gave a brief account of what this young society had done. Its object is to provide accredited preachers, without respect to denomination, for those who may desire them. Thus far the services rendered have been much appreciated and blessed. The honorary secretary will be glad to hear from any minister or others who desire help, and also from evangelists and others who wish their names to be placed on the roll. His address is 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

MRS. HAMPSON'S HOME. — We regret, says The Sentinel, the closing of one of the most useful helps to rescue work in London, as well as at the untoward circumstances which have caused it. Early in 1883 Mrs. Hampson, the excellent directress of the Home at Winifred House, Tollington-park, London, met with a serious cab accident. She continued her work for some months, in fact, till she actually dropped at it. She is now quite invalided, and the committee have been compelled to close the Home for at least a year, to see if complete rest will restore Mrs. Hampson to any degree of health. This Home has done good service in caring for previously respectable girls who had been led astray, tending them before and after their confinement; and has restored many such to respectable life.

Notices of Books, &c.

THE TEMPTATION OF CHRIST. By AN OXFORD GRADUATE. E. Stock. Four sermons containing many useful thoughts, and copious references and quotations of an illustrative character taken from a variety of sources.

A HANDY-BOOK ON THE PSALMS, by Rev. ARTHUR BROWN (Partridge & Co.), would make a useful and rather handsome present to any lover of the sacred Psalter. The "hints" or notes are plain, but practical and suggestive.

PERFECT THROUGH SUFFERING. By Rev. F. WHITFIELD. Nisbet & Co. Sermons preached during Passion week and Easter, on the betrayal, sufferings, crucifixion, death, and resurrection of our Lord. Valuable exposition is here combined with rich experimental teaching and evangelical fervour. Deeply spiritual, and abounding in consolation.

Messrs. Cassell & Co. have published the first part (7d.) of their serial issue of Bishop Elliott's OLD TESTAMENT COMMENTARY. In these days, when the battle of modern criticism rages so sharply around the first books of the Bible, this effort to expound and interpret that portion of the canon of Scripture is of inestimable value. To young students of the sacred oracles it may be specially commended as a capable and trustworthy counsellor.

A striking instance of thorough Bible study, as well as most original application of Bible truth, is furnished by a little book entitled JOHN ISRAEL: An Ideal Career of Life, by ELLEN FAIRBROTHER. It contains nothing but the words of Scripture, these being so arranged as to give a picture of human life in all its stages and under all circumstances. It has been compiled by the wife of a working man in the county of Surrey, and displays remarkable tact and discernment in its arrangement of texts. (S. W. Partridge & Co.)

WALKS IN AND AROUND LONDON. By UNCLE JONATHAN. Woolmer. Whether for the information contained, the pictorial illustrations which crowd the pages, or the general interest of the contents, this volume is worthy of high commendation. Young people in the country who have never seen the great city, may by its means get almost as well versed in metropolitan lore as Londoners themselves, while even city folks may learn something from its perusal; it is a capital book for all classes, and should have wide circulation.

THE AGE TO COME; OR, THE MILLENNIUM. By WILLIAM FRITH, Gunnersbury. Partridge & Co. Part I. considers the national life, and Part II. the Church life, of the approaching age. Under the former head, government, laws, knowledge, flora, husbandry, population, commerce, language, and peace are treated of. The city, temple, ritual, catholicity, and final conflict of Gog and Magog are reviewed in Part II. The work is not so speculative as the detail of contents would suggest. Many will be surprised to find how much is revealed in the prophetic Word on these topics. The numerous references to, and quotations from, the writings of well-known prophetic students add considerably to the value of the book.

WELSH CALVINISTIC METHODISM: AN HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF WALES. By Rev. W. WILLIAMS. 3s. 6d. 18, Paternoster-square. The revival in Wales, inaugurated by the efforts of Howell Harris, Daniel Rowlands, and Howell Davies, forms one of the most enchanting and instructive pieces of church history on record. Its story is told in this volume, by Mr. Williams, in a way calculated to impress and captivate all readers. The book abounds with striking incidents, pithy sayings, and vivid sketches of character. Large use has been made of the voluminous history written in Welsh by Rev. John Hughes, of Liverpool; but the work possesses an individuality of its own, and cannot fail to stimulate earnest desire to catch the spirit and emulate the works of the noble martyrs and heroes whose career it describes.

"*" In our recent notice of two of the "Present Day Tracts," issued by the Religious Tract Society, that by Dr. Cairns was erroneously stated by our reviewer to be one of the "Cunningham Lectures." The tract was specially written for the "Present Day" series.

MORE OCTOBER MAGAZINES.

FOOTSTEPS OF TRUTH. 3d. Shaw & Co. Besides the usual quota of expository papers, there are interesting obituary notices of Mr. G. A. Colman, with portrait, Mr. J. P. Larkins, and a continuation of the sketch by Countess de Manin of the labours of the late Mr. Rees, of Sunderland.

THE REGIONS BEYOND (2d. Elliot Stock), in addition to much interesting foreign missionary intelligence, contains a description of "A Fortnight in Holland," by Mr. Grattan Guinness. In brief compass, Mr. Guinness gives many particulars as to the country and the character of the people.

EVANGELICAL CHRISTENDOM (6d. Johnson, 121, Fleet-street) is a double number, and contains a very complete report of the recent Alliance Conference at Copenhagen. Principal Cairns contributes some fresh and cheering reflections on the special features of the gathering. The foreign news and monthly survey of Missions are valuable departments of this magazine.

OUR DARLINGS. 3d. Shaw & Co. With this month's number Dr. Barnardo completes the present volume of his delightful magazine for the children. It seems to contain a little of everything, though the outstanding feature is the full-page pictures, each of which tells its own story almost without the aid of letterpress. There are also puzzles and questions, and poems and prizes, and we know not what besides.

THE SWORD AND THE TROWEL. 3d. Passmore & Alabaster. One of Mr. Spurgeon's Friday afternoon talks to his students at the Tabernacle College is the first article in this month's number. We wish he would favour us in that particular way a little oftener. It would be hard to find more good advice to young and would-be preachers, crammed into the same space. Tom Spurgeon contributes two of his sparkling papers, and the "Notices of Books," presumably by the editor, are as pithy and pungent as ever.

SUNDAY TALK. Elliot Stock. We have aforetime remarked on the amazing cheapness of this young serial, and though the price is now raised from 2d. to 3d. we are "of the same opinion still." In the number before us Mr. Tulloch, the editor, finds space for contributions from Mrs. Oliphant, the well-known "A.K.H.B." of St. Andrew's, Lady John Manners, Professor Stuart Blackie, and others of lesser fame. Perhaps the most interesting paper in the number is an illustrated sketch of "A Communion Sabbath in the Hebrides," by George McCrie. The illustrations are rough, but the letterpress is excellent. The engraved reproduction of a notable picture by a gifted Scottish artist forms an attractive frontispiece.

RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY.—Among the most interesting of the contents of The Sunday at Home (6d.) are the two chapters of the series of "Rocky Mountain Sketches;" they are most graphic reproductions of startling and adventurous experiences. An account of the services rendered to suffering humanity by "William Wilberforce and the first Champions of the Anti-slavery Cause," and a splendid portrait-engraving of the new Bishop of Ripon, are among the other attractive items in the number. The Leisure Hour (6d.) has, inter alia, an amusing paper on "House-hunting," and a well-written sketch of the remarkable career of the late lamented Professor E. H. Palmer. There is a portrait of the late Lord Ampthill, and some vigorously-written lines from the pen of Professor Stuart Blackie on "Rules for a Happy Life," which thus conclude:—

> "Split the rock, and turn the sod,
> With busy hand cast honest seed,
> Stoutly uproot each harmful weed,
> And let the seasons wait on God!"

The other magazines in the Tract Society's budget are marked by their characteristic attractive features. They are: Friendly Greetings, Cottager and Artisan, Child's Companion, Tract Magazine, Girl's Own Paper, and Boy's Own Paper.

We have also received the following:—Free Church of Scotland Monthly — Presbyterian Messenger — Christian Church—Life of Faith—Church Missionary Intelligencer—Church Missionary Gleaner—Our Sisters in other Lands—Voice of Warning—National Church—Clergyman's Magazine—Expositor—Young England—Children's Advocate—Western Temperance Herald—Christian Ambassador—Irish Congregational Magazine—Ragged-school Union Quarterly Record—Pitman's Musical Monthly—British Friend—The Friend—Band of Hope Chronicle—City Mission Magazine—Church Missionary Juvenile Instructor—Irish Temperance League Journal—Gospel Temperance Monthly—Preacher's Analyst—On the Road—On and Off Duty—Pearl of Days—National League Journal—Child's Own Magazine—Herald of Peace—Helmet—Golden-lane Mission Magazine—China's Millions—Fireside—Home Words—Day of Days—Indian Female Evangelist—Postman—Woman's Work—Friend of Missions—Sabbath-school Magazine—Christian Worker—Evangelist—Believer's Pathway—Wesleyan Sunday-school Magazine—Delving and Diving—Good News—Gospel Trumpet—British Messenger.

Books received:—

Wyman & Co.:
Paul the Author of the Acts of the Apostles and the third Gospel, by Rev. H. H. Evans.

Nisbet & Co.:
From the Beginning to the Glory, by Lady Beaujolois Dent, 3s. 6d.
The Shoes of Peace, by Anna Warner.
The Young Trawler: A Story of Life and Death and Rescue on the North Sea, by R. M. Ballantyne, 5s.
The Red Wallflower, by Susan Warner, 3s. 6d.
The Gospel in Great Britain from St. Patrick to John Knox and John Wesley, by Rev. S. MacNaughton
Knocking: A Sacred Monody, by Dr. J. R. Macduff, 1s 6d.
Gates and Doors, by Mrs. A. R. Simpson, 1s.
The Christian's Jewels, by Rev. T. Leary, 1s. 6d.

T. Fisher Unwin:
Dr. Johnson: His Life, Works, and Table Talk. Centenary Edition, edited by Dr. Macaulay, 2s.

Office of the "Christian Commonwealth":
A Year's Ministry: First series. Twenty-six Sermons, by Dr. A. Maclaren, of Manchester.

Gall & Inglis:
The White Bear's Den: A Tale of Labrador, by "A. L. O. E."

A new work on "Indian Missions" is announced by Mr. T. Fisher Unwin, from the pen of the veteran Indian Missionary, Rev. James Kennedy. It is entitled "Life and Work in Benares and Kumaon, 1839—77," and will have a keen personal interest in connection with the author's experiences during the Indian Mutiny. Sir William Muir contributes an Introduction.

CONTINENTAL AND FOREIGN NOTES.

DR. MURRAY MITCHELL is to be the minister in the Scotch Church, Nice, during the coming winter. His ministry at Cannes and Nice last season was much valued, and many will be glad to know that he is to be stationed at Nice this winter.

WHAT INDIA NEEDS.—A lady who recently left Boston, U.S., to labour in India, writes to her American friends:—"I am convinced of the way to reach India—preaching and publishing. It needs men to travel through the country, preaching to the men, and women following after, preaching to the women in the zenanas, while translators and printers and publishers flood the land with Christian literature. The Gospel—nothing more, nothing less—is wanted."

MISSIONS IN NATAL.—Mr. W. Christison, late of the Gordon Mission, Natal, has completed his engagement with that Mission. Being strongly under the impression that itinerant evangelistic effort is the best mode of getting about preaching the Gospel among the Zulus, he purposes, on his return to South Africa, to begin such a Mission. Any friends who are disposed to help in the projected effort may communicate with Mr. Christison, at Fordoun, Kincardineshire, N.B.

WORK IN SAVOY.—It has pleased the Lord to open a door for the Gospel in Savoy. I have found an excellent room at Annemasse, and the opening takes place on Sunday next. It is a significant fact that I have rented the room from the Mayor of the town, who is Counsellor for Savoy, and he has shown no little kindness. It is quite a blow to the Romish Church to have an official thus giving his sanction and property for the Gospel. I trust it may be the beginning of brighter days for Savoy. ALEX. DONALDSON.

Pension Watson, Rue Grenade, Geneva.

HAMBURG.—A Society has been formed in Hamburg, the object of which is to supply Christian literature to those whose employment prevents them from attending Church services on Sunday. In a city like Hamburg the number of cabmen, omnibus and tramcar conductors, railway officials, postmen, and others who rarely have an opportunity of hearing a sermon, is considerable, and this Society intends to provide such with a good weekly religious paper, and occasionally with a printed sermon. It is intended that during the first half-year, beginning October, 1884, the papers will be given gratis; but the hope is entertained that it may be possible afterwards to charge a small sum.

PRIESTLY INTOLERANCE IN SPAIN.—Miss E. J. Whateley tells us of a case of gross intolerance that recently happened at Puerto Santa Maria, near Cadiz. An English lady there had visited a dying girl, and had the satisfaction of seeing her pass away in perfect peace, trusting in Christ. The priest, having heard that the girl had not confessed or received absolution, would not allow the body to be interred in the cemetery, and it was "buried like a dead dog," in a grave dug by the roadside. The people were highly indignant. "No wonder," said one of the spectators, "there are revolutions, when things like this happen." In spite of much priestly opposition this English lady hopes soon to commence an evening class for women.

HEAVEN.

O HEAVEN! most glorious kingdom,
O Christ! thrice crownèd King!
We, heart and voice upraising
Thine endless glories sing.
O Heaven! the home where angels
Breathe out their souls in song,
For thee our hearts are weary,
For thee our spirits long.

Heaven! where the face of Jesus
Is seen unveiled and bright,
Where his eternal presence
Sheds endless life and light;
O paradise of beauty,
O blissful rest of saints,
For lack of thy sweet sunshine
My darkened spirit faints.

O Heaven! my blood-bought portion,
I claim thee as mine own;
In thee I find my promise,
My mansion, harp, and crown:
O Heaven! my Lord has bought thee
For sinners saved by blood,
And by his Spirit taught me
To seek my home with God.

O Heaven! where all my best loved
Are now at rest for aye,
Where every bud of promise
Will blossom into day:
O Heaven! my soul is thirsting
To taste thy endless life,
To find in thee the hushing
Of all my storm and strife.

EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE.

Notices.

THE address of Mrs. W. F. Chambers, Bible-woman, late of Newbury, Berks, is 8, Calthorp-street, London, W.C.

OLD numbers of THE CHRISTIAN, "Christian Herald," "Word and Work," and papers and books fit for sailors' bags will be thankfully received by Mrs. Elwin, 17, Clyde-road, Bristol.

A SALE OF NEEDLEWORK, with useful and fancy articles, will be held during the last week in October, in connection with the Mission of St. John the Evangelist, Caledonian-road, N. Mrs Charles Ouch, Worthing House, Montfort-terrace, Barnsbury-square, N., writes to say that all kinds of help, either in articles or money, will be most gratefully received.

A SALE OF WORK is to be held in Park Hall, Camden-town, on October 20 to 22, to reduce the debt on Rev. C. J. Whitmore's Church at Kentish-town. An earnest appeal is made for contributions in money or articles for sale These may be sent to Mrs. Whitmore, 88, Cavershaм-road, London, N.W. A revival of God's work has taken place under the ministrations of the present Pastor, and the debt reduced to £800. The friends greatly desire to see the remaining sum cleared off, so as to remove a standing hindrance to spiritual operations.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—E.B.S. G.F. M.S.S. W.S. C.B. G.U. Miss G. J.J.B. G.E.P. J.E.L. J.J. H.E.B. C.C. J.E.B. S.G. F.R. H.J.E. J.Y. J.H.C. H.F. J.C.S. T.F.I. H.H. D.McO. J.E.L. A.W. E.H. C.G. A.J.B. W.W.T. E.L.R. W.A.A.R. S.A. K.H.E. C.M.C.P. W.R. R.S. R.J.C. E.G. J.B.W. Miss M. E.W.J. J.D. A.G. H.L.O. A.T.B. Miss R. B.B. E.M.B. A.C. A.M. R.K. B.M. C.J.W. J.H.S. A.R.N. A.L.S. S.B. J.P.T. J.V.S. J.L.D. An Englishman. S.G.P. A Christian. J.R.L. W.J.E. D.S. R.E.M.S. G.S. T.F. C.J. C.A.B. W.H.(' K.Y. C.H. J.W. K. W.F.W. I.K. J.P. W.G. G.V. J.C.A. T.R. G.R. E.B. A.N.S. C.P. C.M. A.M.L. R.C. A.C.T. J.P.B. A.D. H.C.C. W.B.C. R.A.R. W.C. H.W. A.S.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—G. Harris, 19 Hafod-street Swansea, South Wales; A. Bland, Duffield, Derby; S. Wolstencroft, 6, Ryder-street, off Prince-street, Heywood; J. Richardson, 13, Bede-terrace, Sunderland; Rev W. Roberts, Aberg-le North Wales; G. J. Absolon, 43, Smith's-terrace, Smith-street, King's-road, Chelsea, W.; Miss L. Brown, 60, Clapton-common, Upper Clapton; J. Garnham, 4, Grandpont-villas, Oxford; J. P. Squire, 1, Adelaide-terrace, New Benwell, Newcastle-on-Tyne; J. C. Morley, 1, Devonshire-street, Great Portland-street, W.; J. Galt, Town Missionary, Tunstall, Staffordshire; Mrs. Riley, 4, Richmond-terrace, Gateshead-on-Tyne; Rev. C. Gaussen, 1, Fitzroy-terrace, University-street, Belfast; T. Whiteley, New North-road, Rastrick, Yorkshire.

MR. SPURGEON says in the October Sword and Trowel:—"Solicited on all sides to preach abroad, and abundantly willing to do so, we made another trial of labouring in the provinces with the same result as on former occasions, an utter breakdown, a sharp agony, and a long weakness. What can we do but keep to our own home duties? Yet even this day, when we are still feeble as a child, we are implored to take a public engagement. Oh, that we could! We must again cancel all promises, and for awhile do home work, and nothing more. Crowded chapels, windows necessarily opened, and consequent cold draughts, foul air from below, and cold air from above, make up an arrangement which must arouse rheumatism when it slumbers in the constitution. It may be that as the attacks are becoming briefer the evil will die out; but that consummation is not yet reached."

Forthcoming Meetings.

COMING CONFERENCES.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN'S UNION.—Glasgow, November 12—14.

DUBLIN, Christian Union Buildings, October 13—16.—Addresses by Rev. Dr. Morgan (Swansea), Rev. H. J. Berguer (London), Rev Hamilton Magee (Dublin), Rev. J. Hudson Taylor (London), Rev. Dr. J. Marshall Lang (Glasgow), Rev. Henry Dening (Dublin), Rev. Thomas Hackett (Bray), Rev. H. Simon (London), Rev. E. Smith (Fairfield Manchester), Rev. Dr. J. Elder Cuming (Glasgow), Professor Henry Drummond, Rev. Samuel King (Dublin), Rev. H. Montgomery (Belfast), and others.

CHRISTIAN UNION BUILDINGS, Dublin.—Conference of Y.M.C. Associations in Ireland, October 17 and 18 Addresses on "Y.M.C.A. Work" by Mr T. J. Aimers, Mr. W. Hind Smith, Rev. David Mullan, Mr. S. S. M'Curry, Mr. Frank M. Fitt. Rev. James Robertson, Mr. J. J. P. Egerton, Mr. Robert M'Cann, Mr. S. H. Watson, and others.

DUBLIN.—Young Women's Christian Associations of Ireland, Friday, October 17. Secretary, Miss Marrable, 49, Waterloo-road, Dublin.

GLASGOW HALF-YEARLY MEETINGS OF CHRISTIANS.—October 23, Queen's Rooms, Clifton-street, 11 a.m. and 5.30 p.m. Friday, 24th, 4 till 6 p.m., in Christian Institute, Bothwell-street, Answering of Questions to be sent in in writing the day before; 7 p.m, reports and conference.

EDINBORO', Free Assembly Hall.—Convention for the Exposition and Promotion of Christian Holiness, October 28—30, at 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. each day.

EVANGELISTIC.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand. W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and Evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-square, S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHILDREN'S EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—Messrs. T. Eyres and Jeynes conduct Missions for children in any chapel, hall, or school of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Secretary, 253, Southampton-street, Camberwell, S.E.

MESSRS MATEER AND PARKER.—October 13 to 26, Mirfield; 27 to November 9, Trowbridge; 10 to 23, London (West-end); 24 to December 7, Margate; 8 to 21, Ramsgate.

REV. W. HAY AITKEN.—October 12, St. Andrew's Parish Church, Plymouth; November 16 to 30, St. John's, Bethnal Green, E.; November 30 to December 15 (or longer), All Saints, South Lambeth.

REV. W HARLAM.—Silverdale, Hastings, October 11; Ryde (I. of W.), 25th.

MR. J. M. SCROGGIE.—October, Bristol; November 2, Elgin, N.B. November 15, Inverness; December, Paisley.

DR. THAIN DAVIDSON'S Monthly Sermon to Young Men, Colebrooke-row Church, Islington, N., Sunday, October 12, at 6.30 p.m.

MR. HENRY THORNE.—October 4—20, Birmingham; 21, Derby; November 1—10; Doncaster; 15—24, Shrewsbury; 29 to December 8, Halifax; 12, Derby; 13—22, Duffield.

STEPNEY MEETING HOUSE.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney gives an address every Sunday at 3 p.m.

CLAPTON HALL, Upper Clapton.—Mr. Shuldham Henry during October. Sundays, 6.30 p.m.; Fridays, 7.30 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, October 12, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Mr. Gawin Kirkham.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Sunday, October 12, Rev. G. D. Wyatt, 3.30 p.m.; Mr. Elvin and a soloist, at 7 p.m.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr Herbert Taylor during October. Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Wednesday, at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, at 8.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W.—Friday, October 10, all-day meetings, commencing at 10.30 a.m., closing at 8.45 p.m. Intervals at 1 o'clock and 5. Christian Workers specially invited.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.—Mr. Lidstone, Hornsey, October 27—30; Mr. W. L. Seyler, Landseer-street, Battersea, October 20—24; Mr. Spiers, Swansea; Mr. G. Banaster, Leeds, October 20—31.

METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION.—Public meeting, Metropolitan Tabernacle, Friday, October 10. 7 p.m. Mr. C. H. Spurgeon will preside. Addresses by Dr. J. Thain Davidson, D.D., and members of the association.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street, S.W. (near Victoria Station).—Evangelistic meetings, by Captain Baring and others. Sundays at 3.45 and 7 p.m.; Thursdays at 8 p.m. Meetings of Christians for prayer and instruction, Tuesdays at 11.30 a.m.; Fridays at 8 p.m.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields. City Rev. Henry Allon, D.D., every Tuesday, at 12 noon, during October.

BETHSHAN, 10, Drayton-park, Highbury, N.—Opening of the new hall will take place on Thursday, October 23. Public meetings at 3 and 7 p.m.

PARK CHURCH, Grosvenor-road, Highbury, N.—Sunday evening, October 12, at 6.30, address by Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, on "The urgent need of the Gospel abroad, and the many openings now presented."

WORKING LADS' NEW INSTITUTE, Whitechapel-road, E.—Seven memorial stones, placed by various friends, 15th October, 4 p.m. Tickets, 2s 6d. each. Public meeting, 7 p.m. Lord Shaftesbury will preside. The Alpine Choir have promised to attend.

MODERATE DRINKING.—Public meeting, Large Room, Exeter Hall, Friday, October 17, to direct attention to the evils and dangers of "Moderate Drinking." Lord Bishop of Exeter will preside. Addresses by Dr. Alfred Carpenter, Dr. B. W. Richardson, Rev. Colmer B. Symes, &c. Chair taken at 7 p.m. Admission free.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—Bignold Hall, Forest-gate; Dalston Hall, opposite Dalston Junction; Hammersmith—Upper Mission Room, 130, King-street; Kilburn Hall (not Town Hall), Kilburn-gate; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill;—all, Sunday, 7 p.m. Prayer meeting for workers, at 190, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, Wednesday, at 10.30 a.m. Annual meeting of the Mission, Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W., Tuesday October 21, 7.30 p.m. Tickets from 164, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

THE SALVATION ARMY.—Addresses by Mrs. Booth, Prince's Hall, Piccadilly, Wednesday afternoons, October 29, November 5, 12, and 26.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY'S CHOIRS.—Service of Praise, Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, Thursday, October 23, by choirs who assisted our American brethren during the late London mission. Tickets and programmes by enclosing stamped addressed envelope to the Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N., or the Secretary, 9, The Crescent, Leighton-grove, N.W.

Y.M.C. ASSOCIATIONS.

61, GRACECHURCH-STREET, E.C.—Daily prayer meeting 1.15 to 2 p.m. (Sat. excepted) Bible-readings in Isaiah each Tuesday, 6.15 p.m. Monthly social meeting of members, at Conference Hall, Mildmay, Saturday, October 18. Further particulars will be announced.

EXETER HALL.—Gospel meeting every night at 8 (Saturday excepted). Mid-day prayer-meeting 1 to 2 (Saturday excepted). Bible-reading, Saturday, at 8 Gospel Male Choir practises every Friday, at 7.30 Musical Christian men cordially invited. Rev. J. Wilkinson, of Mildmay, will give an address to workers, Thursday, October 16, at 8 p.m.

186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Central Noon Prayer Meeting, daily, 12 to 1 o'clock. Sunday, Bible-class, 3.15 p.m.; evangelistic meeting, 7 p.m. Monday, 7 p.m., reception meeting for young men commencing business life in London; 8 p.m., lecture by Rev. Dr. Wainwright on "A Faith Founded on Fact." Tuesday, teachers' preparatory Bible-classes, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Thursday, foreign Mission prayer-meeting, 7 p.m.; devotional meeting and address, 8 p.m. Friday, Gospel meeting, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Workers' praise and prayer meeting, 7.30 p.m.

BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W.—Wednesday, October 8, Mr. Herbert W. Taylor; Thursday, 9th, Rev. Barclay F. Buxton, 8.30 p.m.; Friday, 10th, Rev. F. H. White; Sunday, 12th, 3.15 p.m., farewell missionary service, Rev. E. P. Herbert, a member of the West Branch, is leaving for North India, and others for the China Inland Mission will take part.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, October 4, 1884.

	£	s.	d.
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—Emily	0	11	0
Mission to Hop-pickers (Mr. China)—E. S. 2s.; T. N. J. 10s.	0	12	0
Oxford Music Hall Services (Mr. Hurditch)—Mrs. G. P. 1s. 6d.; C. P., Bristol, 10s.	0	11	6
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—E. C. 2s. 6d.; A. S. W. £5; A. M. 1s.	5	3	6
China Inland Mission—John xv. 5, 5s.; V. W. 10s.; C. L. M. T. £1.	1	15	0
East London Training Institute—John xv. 5.	0	5	0
Dock Labourers' Mission—Two Little Girls, 2s.; (New Home) Miss J. £1	1	2	0
C. Govier—T. F. P.	0	5	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—M. and S.	1	1	0
East London Tract Society—M. and S.	1	1	0
Soldiers' Home, Curragh—M. and S.	1	1	0
One Ton Potatoes, St. Malo.
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—M.	5	0	0
Home of Industry—W. C.	1	0	0
Schools at Nazareth (Miss Webb)—T. N. J.	0	10	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—T. N. J.	0	0	6
Mission to Kabyles—V. W.	0	10	0
Strangers' Friend Society—M. and S.	5	5	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—C. O. M.	0	10	0
London Missionary Society—C. P., Bristol.	4	0	0
Poor Jews in Jerusalem (Mr. Friedlander)—H. E. S.	1	13	4
Miss Mittendorff's Homes—C. E. J. 5s.; A. S. 5s.	0	10	0
Friendless and Fallen—C. E. J.	0	2	6
Bristol Orphan Houses—C. L. M. T. £1; (Missions) C. L. M. T. £1.			0
Indian Female Normal School Society (Zenana Mission)—Lover of the Lord	0	10	6
	£34	19	10

[ADVERTISEMENTS]

Evangelistic Mission—W. E. L. L. 10s.
China Inland Mission—A Friend, £10.
Union Hall Mission—Leominster, 5s.; R. W. V. 6d.; A Friend, 10s.; A Well-wisher, 1s.

FRESH RECRUITS FOR CHINA.—Another party of missionaries leaves our shores this week to swell the ranks of the little army of Christian soldiers in China, fighting under the flag of the Inland Mission. Their names are Messrs. Duncan Kay, Thomas Hutton, George Miller, Charles Hordbin, William Laughton, John Reid, Stewart McKee, and Albert Phelps. Various good-bye meetings have been held in Edinburgh, Glasgow, and London; by these means it is hoped and believed that a deeper and more wide-spread interest has been aroused in the speedy evangelisation of the millions of China.

SADLERS' WELLS THEATRE SERVICES.—This building was re-opened for Gospel testimony last Sunday evening, and in a short time was crowded. An hour previous to the opening, Mr. Catlin, with his band of helpers, processioned the neighbourhood of Clerkenwell, with the result as above stated. Miss Watts, of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, was the preacher indoors; afterwards there was a most encouraging meeting of inquirers in the "green room." The Lord Mayor has signified his intention of being present on the 26th inst. Mr. Catlin, of 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, is alone responsible for the heavy expenses of these services. £150 is needed for the six months' theatre work, in addition to that in Glo'ster Hall and the general work of the "Cow Cross Mission." Mr. Catlin has for thirty years been a missionary or evangelist in the neighbourhood of King's-cross and Clerkenwell.

"Dr. Barnardo's Homes for Destitute Children."

Stepney, Limehouse, and Bow, E.; Ilford, Essex; Hawkhurst, Kent; Gorey, Jersey; and Ontario, Canada.

The Committee of these Institutions appeal very earnestly for IMMEDIATE HELP to sustain their Work of Rescue amongst Homeless and Outcast Children.

Contributions will be gratefully received and acknowledged, if addressed to the Treasurer, Wm. FOWLER, Esq., M.P., or to Dr. Barnardo at the Offices of the Institutions, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

P.O. Orders should be made payable at the G.P.O., and crossed, as well as Cheques, "London and South Western Bank."

CHILDREN'S Special Service Mission.

SEASIDE SERVICES.

A MEETING

WILL BE HELD (D.V.) AT

EXETER HALL, STRAND,

(LOWER HALL)

ON

THURSDAY, October 16,

AT HALF-PAST SIX O'CLOCK,

To hear Accounts of the Work during the past Summer.

S. D. WADDY, ESQ., Q.C., M.P.,

WILL PRESIDE.

It is expected that the following friends will give addresses:—E. ARROWSMITH, Esq.; E. T. M. DENNES, Esq.; E. J. KENNEDY, Esq.; W. FRANK SEAGROVE, Esq.; INNES B. WANE, Esq., B.A. (Ridley Hall, Cambridge); J. C. FARTHING, Esq. (Caius College, Cambridge).

Office of "Our Own Magazine,"
48, Paternoster-row, E.C.

T. B. BISHOP, Hon. Sec.
H. HANKINSON, Asst. Sec.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

MRS. BOOTH

Will deliver a series of

ADDRESSES

AT

Princes' Hall, Piccadilly, London, W.,

On WEDNESDAY AFTERNOONS, October 29, November 5, 12, 26.

ADMISSION BY TICKETS ONLY.

Reserved Seats, One Shilling, to each meeting.

Apply personally or by letter to 101, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C.

THE LONDON GENERAL MISSION.

If any London Incumbents are still without Mission Preachers, the

CHURCH PAROCHIAL MISSION SOCIETY

Will make every effort to find a suitable one for such, providing application be made to the Secretary, Rev. S. W. DARWIN FOX, 21, John-street, Adelphi, London, W.C., not later than October 10 next. An immediate application in all cases would be advisable.

NEW WORKING LADS' INSTITUTE, WHITECHAPEL, E.

Patron—HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

THE MEMORIAL STONES will (D.V.) be laid on WEDNESDAY, October 15, 1884, at 4 p.m. The Right Honourable the LORD MAYOR will preside, and lay the Principal Stone. Mr. Alderman and Sheriff WHITEHEAD; Sir ROBERT W. CARDEN, Alderman, M.P.; Mrs. HORACE B. MARSHALL; EDWIN ARROWSMITH, Esq.; F. A. BEVAN, Esq.; H. HILL, Jun., Esq., will take part in the proceedings. Refreshments at 6 o'clock.

PUBLIC MEETING at 7, when the Right Honourable the EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, K.G., will preside, supported by LORD BRABAZON; Sir ROBERT W. CARDEN, Alderman, M.P.; Rev. WM. BARKER, M.A., Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen; JOHN HILTON, Esq.; Rev. DONALD FRASER, D.D.; EDWIN ARROWSMITH, Esq.; Rev. J. DE KEWER WILLIAMS; Rev. CHAS. SPURGEON; Rev. WM. TYLER; F. A. BEVAN, Esq.

THE ALPINE CHOIR will give Musical Selections during the evening.

Tickets for Ceremony and Refreshments, 2s. 6d.; Tea and Public Meeting, 1s., may be obtained at the Working Lads' Institute, The Mount, Whitechapel, E.; of any Member of the Committee; or of HENRY HILL, Jun., Hon. Sec., 38, Bow-lane, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND,

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President, The Rt. Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

OFFICES:
27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAS. KEARNEY WHITE, or by the Proprietors of this paper.

NOTE.—Subscriptions or Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

"Moon's" Society for Embossing the Scriptures and other Books for the Blind.

Dr. MOON'S simplified type, suitable for all ages and capacities of the blind, is of universal application. It has been adapted by him to 250 languages and dialects. More than 150,000 volumes of the Word of God, and other books, have been supplied to the blind of numerous countries.

Subscriptions and donations are urgently needed to carry on this daily increasing work, and will be gratefully received by Dr. W. MOON, 104, Queen's-road, Brighton (Acting Trustee); also by the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN.

OUR LITTLE LADS.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM and SWANLEY.

FUNDS are still URGENTLY NEEDED to feed, clothe, and educate 320 homeless little ones in the Cottage Homes at Farningham, and to complete the new Homes for Orphans at Swanley.

Will each reader of this do something?

Bankers.

Messrs. SMITH, PAYNE, & SMITHS, 1, Lombard Street, E.C.

Offices: Ludgate Circus. A. O. CHARLES.

A CONVENTION

For the Exposition and Promotion of

CHRISTIAN HOLINESS,

Will (D.V.) be held at

THE FREE ASSEMBLY HALL, EDINBORO',

From October 28th to 30th inclusive, at 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. each day.

For List of Speakers and Subjects, or other information, address the Secretary of the Convention, Regent Hotel, Waterloo-place Edinboro'.

BIBLE LIGHT

For Truth Seekers & Christian Workers.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."—Ps. cxix. 105.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light."—Ps. cxix. 130.

THE OBJECT of "BIBLE LIGHT" is to interest its readers in the written Word, and to lead them through the latter to the Living Word, for the salvation of the unsaved, and the strengthening of the believer's faith. Monthly, One Penny. Strongly recommended by the Press. The Vol. for 1883, price 1s. 6d.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.
And of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

SERIAL ISSUE OF BISHOP ELLICOTT'S OLD TESTAMENT COMMENTARY.

Now Ready, Part 1, price 7d., of

THE OLD TESTAMENT COMMENTARY FOR ENGLISH READERS. Edited by the Rt. Rev. C. J. ELLICOTT, D.D., Lord Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol.

"The work is entitled to the highest commendation. The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol—himself a distinguished Biblical scholar—has enlisted as his collaborateurs many of the most eminent scholars and some of the best Biblical critics which the English Universities have yet turned out. The work has been entrusted to competent hands, and what the best English scholarship can do in elucidating and explaining the text has been done, and in the best manner. As a practical, moral, and religious commentary, it seems to leave little to be desired."—Scotsman.

 Prospectuses at all Booksellers', or post free from CASSELL & COMPANY, Limited, Ludgate Hill, London.

Continued from page 3.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS, near the sea, with garden. Arrangements made for winter residence. Terms one to two guineas.—Lady Superintendent, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

ACCOMMODATION FOR GENTLEMEN.—A comfortable Sitting-room, with one or two furnished Bed-rooms, in Blackheath. Three minutes' walk from station. Partial board if desired.—Allan & Hider, Blackheath.

HOME OF REST, The Hollows, St. Albans.—Christian Workers needing rest can obtain prospectus of terms, &c., on application to Lady Superintendent as above.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortable winter Apartments, board if required, close to pleasure gardens, few minutes' walk from sea; in centre of the Pines. Home comforts, good cooking. Terms moderate.
Cheltenham, Crescent-road, Bournemouth.

Miscellaneous.

ASTHMA. — Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

CLOTHING, BANKRUPT STOCK.—Boys' suits, from 3 to 10 years, well made and neatly braided, 5s. Sent Carriage paid on receipt of Postal Order. State age. If not approved will be exchanged or money returned.
S. London, 135, Tottenham Court-road, London.

FURNISH on Norman & Stacey's Hire-Purchase System. Deposit not necessary. True economy on sound commercial principles. Strictly private. 1, 2, or 3 years. 60 wholesale firms. Ordinary selling prices.—Offices, 79, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

A DELICATE LADY, barrister's widow, greatly needing help towards the education of her four children, would feel deeply grateful if some kind friend would give her son nomination to Christ's Hospital.—Particulars, address, Mrs. Navillus, General Post Office, Cork.

NURSE CHILD wanted, in small family. No other young children. Healthy situation. Excellent references. Terms moderate.—Mrs. J., 35, Stanley-road, Brighton.

WORK FOR SALE.—A quantity of saleable articles for a bazaar to be disposed of. Proceeds for a charitable object.—Miss Ahier, Oxford Lodge, Southfields, Wandsworth.

DIABETES, Liver, Dropsy, and Kidney Diseases cured by Glenn and Bethesda Mineral Waters Carbonized. A valuable table water. Bronchitis and Asthma cured by Allen's Euphorbia Remedy. Testimonials by physicians, bishops, and ministers, from Rev. T. Penrose, Reading.

IMPORTED. — Sixty Tulips, in seven choice named varieties, 4s. 6d.; Anemones, 65, including Fulgens, French, &c., 3s. 3d.; Ranunculus, 12 splendid mixed French, with three White, 1s., fifty 2s. 3d. Free.
Simcox, 158, Severn road, Cardiff.

Publications.

Twelfth Edition. Post-free, 1s.

DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By Robert G. Watts, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c.
London: C. Mitchell & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.—Simpkin Marshall.

MRS. GRIMKE having now printed 50 languages, wishes to send out one million Text Cards to Missionaries this year, cost about £500, proposing to double all gifts sent by Christians, whose aid she asks. Many varieties of English (some very beautiful), F. M. sheets, tracts, quilt texts on calico, &c., always on sale.—For list, send stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. Grimke, Prestwich, Manchester.

Now Ready.

Y.W.C.A. ALMANACK, 1885, in Sheet or Book form. Containing Daily Readings and Texts on the Y.W.C.A. Scripture Subject for Study for the year, The Periods of the Exodus of Israel, Y.W.C.A. Information, Hymns, &c. Price 1d. each, or 5s. per 100.

NOTES, QUESTIONS, AND ANSWERS, and Y.W.C.A. Monthly Subjects for Bible Students and Teachers. Price 2d. a month and postage.

A CHART OF THE EXODUS AND EISODUS (the going out and coming in) OF ISRAEL. Compiled by Anne Boobyer. Price 1s. 4d. Key to ditto, 6d.

Y.W.C.A. MOTTO CARD, 1885. Landscape and Figures Illustrative of the Motto Text "Go Forward." Price 1d. each, or 5s. per 100.

All the above to be obtained from 5, Kensington-place, Clifton, Bristol.

Terms for Advertisements

(PREPAID)

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding	30 Words	3	0
,,	39 ,, ...	3	9
,,	48 ,, ...	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.

Extra flexible, silk sewed, in best Bagster morocco, kid-lined, elastic band. With full helps. Prices from 20s.
In French morocco, projecting edges, elastic band. From 4s.
Samuel Bagster & Sons, Limited, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

Price 1s., in beautifully illustrated covers, stiff boards.

NOW READY.

THE HERALD OF MERCY

VOLUME FOR 1884.

This volume will be found suited to all, acceptable as a present, and calculated to do good wherever it goes. It contains Telling Articles, Addresses, Extracts, Poetry, Children's Pages, &c., &c., and abounds in Illustrations.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE

CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

A Quarto Volume of Music & Words.

By IRA D. SANKEY and J. McGRANAHAN.

Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

May be had either in Old Notation or in Sol-fa.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions, when all the mists have rolled away."
Baptist Messenger

This Volume, which is largely composed of New Sacred Songs, Duets, Choruses, and Anthems, has been used alternately with "Songs and Solos," during the great London Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. Mr. Sankey and Mr. Mc Granahan are already well known by their hymns, which are sung all the world over; and the present collection, which is specially suitable for Gospel Choirs, will doubtless add to their reputation as true Gospel musicians.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE

GOSPEL MALE CHORUS BOOK.

Collection of New Part Songs, Choruses and Anthems.

Written and Arranged expressly for Male Voices.

By JAMES McGRANAHAN.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Limp, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

The Gospel Male Choir was, during the last five months of the London Mission, a special feature of the meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey There are, doubtless, many more who would wish to dedicate their voices to the service of the Master; and with the present volume (which is arranged for 1st and 2nd Tenor and 1st and 2nd Bass) in their hands, and the hearty co-operation of a few brethren like-minded, this wish can be easily gratified. Says Mr. Mc Granahan:—"Organize a quartet, a double quartet, or better still, a chorus of male voices; and prove the power for good in the harmony of male voices when consecrated to the glory and service of our divine Master."

May be had either in Old Notation or in Sol-fa.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"The Christian."

SUBSCRIPTION FOR 1885.

During the ensuing year (1885) there will be fifty-three Thursdays in the twelve months, and consequently there will be an additional week's issue of The Christian. This necessitates a slight alteration in the subscription for the year. The particulars are given below:—

ENGLISH.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	0	7	0
2 Copies ,,	1d.	0	14	0
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	1	1	0
4 ,, ,,	2d.	1	8	0

FOREIGN (POSTAGE ½d.)

Austria.	Holland.
Belgium.	Italy.
California.	Madeira.
Canada.	Malta.
Canary Islands.	Norway.
Cyprus.	Persia, viâ Russia.
Denmark (including Faroe Islands and Iceland).	Portugal.
Egypt.	Russia.
France.	Spain.
Germany.	Sweden.
Gibraltar.	Switzerland.
Greece.	Turkey.
	United States.
	Vancouver's Island.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	0	7	2
2 Copies ,,	1d.	0	14	4
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	1	1	6
4 ,, ,,	2d.	1	8	8

FOREIGN (POSTAGE 1d.)

Africa.	Mexico.
Australia.	Natal.
Cape de Verd Islands.	New Zealand.
Demerara.	South America.
Fiji Islands.	Tasmania.
Hawaiian Islands.	Transvaal.
Madagascar (St. Mary's only).	West Indies.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	1d.	0	9	2
2 Copies ,,	2d.	0	18	4
3 ,, ,,	3d.	1	7	6
4 ,, ,,	4d.	1	16	8

FOREIGN (POSTAGE 1½d.)

Aden.	Japan.
Borneo.	Java.
British Burmah.	Philippine Islands.
Ceylon.	Singapore.
China.	Straits Settlements.
India.

	53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage	1½d.	0	11	5
2 Copies ,,	3d.	1	2	10
3 ,, ,,	4½d.	1	14	3
4 ,, ,,	6d.	2	5	8

NETTIE'S MISSION.

SERIES OF SMALL BOOKS.

A Set of 6 Books, suitable for Birthday Gifts, Rewards, &c., for the Young.

Cloth Boards, 6d. each;

Superior Edition, Toned Paper, 1s. each.

NETTIE'S MISSION; or, "Hallowed be Thy Name."

LITTLE MARGERY; or, "Thy Kingdom Come."

MARGERY'S HOME; or, "Thy Will be Done."

MAGGIE RILEY; or, "Give us this Day our Daily Bread."

ROSY CONROY: or, "Forgive us our Debts."

NED DOLAN; or, "Lead us not into Temptation."

The Set may be had in a Neat Box, price 3s.

"A story of the right sort. Short, telling, with a thoroughly sound, moral, and religious ring about it."—From a Review of "Ned Dolan" in the Sword and Trowel.

London: Morgan & Scott, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Price One Shilling, post free.

THE

"Wondrous Love"

PACKET OF

ASSORTED ADDRESSES.

By D. L. MOODY.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

Christ's Boundless Compassion.
The Blood. Two Addresses.
Heaven. Two Addresses.
"Son, Remember!"
Naaman, the Syrian.
One Word—"Gospel."
The Way of Salvation.
Eight "I Wills" of Christ.
The Master's Parting Commission.
The Right Kind of Faith.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SIXPENCE POST FREE.
LARGE EDITION, BOUND IN CLOTH, 1s. 3d.

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work
ON
CONSUMPTION
CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,
AND ALL
OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. May be had from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C., or from Mr. Congreve (the Author), Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

Eleventh Series of Weekly Cases.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"
WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

"CONSUMPTION IN AGGRAVATED FORM." CASE of Mrs. PUGH, of SHIFNAL.

In a letter, dated May 20, 1884, Mr. Pugh writes me: "Pardon me that I have not written ere this, expressing my gratitude for the great good your Balsam and Liniment have done for my wife. Consumption had set in evidently in the most aggravated form. Through your kindness in making a reduction in your charge, we were able to continue your treatment for twelve months, when she quite recovered, and has been wonderfully well since.—John Pugh, Prior Lee, Shifnal, Salop."

ANOTHER CASE REPORTED by REV. J. RAYMENT, B.M.

"I am glad to say that the case of Mrs. L. (after long suffering, and spending many pounds in other doctors, who did her no good) has gone on so far towards recovery, that when I took her some medicine I was delighted to find such marvellous improvement. Her husband joins with her in thankfulness. I often think we share with our divine Lord, who, when here, went about doing good."

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

GOLD MEDAL, CALCUTTA, 1884.

Fry's Cocoa
Guaranteed Pure. Extract

"There is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.
"Strictly pure."—W. W. Stoddart, Analyst for Bristol.
"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin
NINETEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

Ask for
Allen & Hanburys'
TRADE MARK. "Tasteless"
A.D. 1715. Castor Oil.
The Safest and Best Aperient.
Sold everywhere at 6d., 1/., 1/9 & 3/-

It is guaranteed to be pure Castor Oil, of full medicinal activity, and is absolutely free from odour and unpleasant taste.
"It possesses all the advantages claimed for it."—Lancet.

MR. MOODY'S MOTTO.
On Card, 7½ by 4½ inches, with Ribbon for hanging up. One Shilling the dozen, post free. The same words on a small Floral Card, Sixpence per dozen, post free.
John G. Wheelis, 88, Mildmay Park, London, N.

SPARKLING MORELLA,
THE NEW HIGH-CLASS SUBSTITUTE FOR WINE,

Absolutely void of alcohol, from the pure juice of the famous Kentish Morel Cherry; sold in Champagne pints at 21s. per double dozen. Remittance with order; no booking. Not less than two dozen delivered in London, or to any British Railway Station. Sample pint bottle by post for 1s. 6d. Special terms for philanthropic objects, bazaars, fêtes, &c. The Trade supplied. Apply to THOS. GRANT and SONS, Maidstone Producers also of the popular Tonic Liqueurs, "Grant's Morella Cherry Brandy," "Grant's Orange Cognac," and "Grant's Ginger Cognac," the best of all remedies for disorders of the stomach. A bottle by post, as sample, for 4s. 10d., addressed to our London Office, 22, Walbrook, London, E.C.

ANNUAL SALE OF OVER HALF A MILLION.
McCALL'S
PAYSANDU OX TONGUES.
A DELICACY FOR BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, OR SUPPER.
TO BE HAD AT ALL GROCERS.

RIPPINGILLE'S PATENT
WARMING STOVES
THE ONLY PERFECT OIL STOVES. Made to burn absolutely without Smoke or Smell, Trouble or Dirt. Unequalled for Warming
GREENHOUSES, VINERIES, SHOPS, BEDROOMS, HALLS, OFFICES, DAMP ROOMS, &c.
Perfectly safe; require no pipes or fittings; will burn from twelve to twenty hours without attention; give off no injurious vapour, and are the best stoves ever invented to save plants from frost, keep out damp, &c.
PRICE FROM 4s. 6d.
Write for Illustrated List of Warming Stoves to
The Holborn Lamp and Stove Co.,
118, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.
And say where you saw this advertisement.

JUST PUBLISHED. Price 1d.; 7s. 6d. per 100.
THE GOSPEL:
AS VARIOUSLY VIEWED
By New Testament Writers.
By G. F. TRENCH.
Reprinted from "The Christian."

"The Gospel is preached variously. It is sung by angels; it is lived by the Lord; it is exhibited in miracles of healing and resurrection; it is plainly published by the burning words of Peter and Paul, and of the others who had felt its life-giving joy in themselves. Sometimes it is a tale of love, of mercy, and of life; sometimes a command; sometimes a warning; sometimes an entreaty."—Extract from Introduction.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PART I. NOW READY, PRICE 6d., of
MORGAN & SCOTT'S ILLUSTRATED EDITION OF CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE
(COMPLETE)
TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

ILLUSTRATED WITH
THE FOLLOWING EXQUISITE STEEL PLATE ENGRAVINGS:

SAMARIA.
ELISHA'S FOUNTAIN, JERICHO.
REPHIDIM.
DAMASCUS.
MOUNT TABOR.
TYRE.
HEBRON.
JERUSALEM FROM THE SOUTH.
SHECHEM—SYCHAR.
TIBERIAS.
BETHANY.
ATHENS.

AND SIX BEAUTIFULLY COLOURED MAPS.

"I have never seen any engravings equal to these for the purposes of Biblical Illustration. True to existing nature, exact in outline, beautiful in execution, they leave nothing to be desired. Knowing the country so well, I am pleased to have my recollections refreshed by the minuteness of detail, in which engravings got up for illustration so frequently fall short."—Rev. H. B. TRISTRAM, LL.D., Canon of Durham, Author of "The Land of Israel," "Bible Places," &c., &c.

"I have examined with care the views for Biblical Illustration. . . . The engravings are very beautiful. In clearness, accuracy, and general effect, they surpass, I think, any I have seen. The places represented are all familiar to me; and I have been particularly struck by the fidelity with which your artist has reproduced Frith's admirable photographs. The views of Hebron, Shechem, Tabor, Tiberias, and Jerusalem, could scarcely be surpassed. . . . It would mark a new era in Biblical Illustration if the work were extended to all the scenes of Bible incidents; and if, instead of fancy pictures, which only misrepresent the East, engravings from photographs were introduced."—Rev. J. L. PORTER, D.D., Professor of Biblical Criticism, Author of "The Giant Cities of Bashan," and "Syria's Holy Places," &c., &c.

TO BE COMPLETED IN 18 MONTHLY PARTS, PRICE SIXPENCE EACH.

May also be had Complete in One Volume. Library Edition, Handsomely Bound, 10s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Allen & Hanburys' "Perfected" COD-LIVER OIL

'Is as nearly tasteless as Cod-Liver Oil can be.'—Lancet.
'Has almost the delicacy of salad oil.'—British Medical Journal.
'No nauseous eructations follow after it is swallowed.'—Medical Press.

It can be borne and digested by the most delicate; is the only oil which does not 'repeat;' and for these reasons the most efficacious kind in use. In capsuled bottles only, at 1/4, 2/6, 4/9 and 9/. Sold everywhere.

ALLEN & HANBURYS' MALT EXTRACT

Forms a valuable adjunct to Cod-Liver Oil. Highly concentrated and nutritious. A powerful aid to digestion. In bottles, 2/ and 3/6.

ALLEN & HANBURYS, Plough Court, Lombard Street, London.

WHAT SHALL I DRINK?

The LANCET says:—'We counsel the public to drink their Lime-Juice whenever and wherever they list. As a rule, Lime-Juice is, particularly during the summer, a far more wholesome drink than any form of alcohol. We have subjected the samples of the "Lime-Fruit Juice" of the Montserrat Company to full analysis, with a view to test its quality and purity. WE HAVE FOUND IT TO BE IN SOUND CONDITION, and ENTIRELY FREE FROM ADULTERATION."

MONTSERRAT LIME-FRUIT JUICE & CORDIALS.

Limetta or Pure Lime-Juice Cordial.

Aromatic Clove, Strawberry, Raspberry, Pineapple, Sarsaparilla, Jargonelle, Peppermint, Quinine.

SAVE 30 PER CENT.

Pure Calicoes

FREE PATTERNS.—Write to THE HOPWOOD COTTON MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Princess Mills, Hopwood, Manchester.

Pure Calicoes

who will send, POST FREE, Patterns and Prices of Unadulterated Calicoes, Twills, Sheetings, &c. (Bleached and Unbleached.)

Pure Calicoes

ANY LENGTH CUT. ALL PARCELS DELIVERED CARRIAGE FREE.

Richest Custard! Without Eggs!!

BIRD'S CUSTARD POWDER

At Half the Cost and Trouble!!!
Choice! Delicious!!
A Great Luxury!!!
Sold everywhere in 6d. & 1s. Boxes.

ALFRED BIRD & SONS, Birmingham, will send on receipt of address, POST FREE

"PASTRY & SWEETS."—A Little Work containing Practical Hints and Original Recipes for Tasty Dishes, for the Dinner and Supper Table.

HUDSON'S Extract of SOAP

Ask for Cadbury's

Cocoa

"IT is often asked, 'Why does my doctor recommend Cadbury's Cocoa Essence?' The reason is, that being absolutely genuine and concentrated by the removal of the superfluous fat, it contains FOUR TIMES THE AMOUNT OF NITROGENOUS OR FLESH-FORMING CONSTITUENTS than the average in other Cocoas which are mixed with sugar and starch."

"NONPAREIL" VELVETEEN.

The "Nonpareil" is the richest, softest, and most becoming Velveteen ever produced, and is pre-eminently suited for Ladies' Indoor and Outdoor Costumes, Boys' Suits, and Children's Dress.

The finer qualities are equal in appearance, and wear better than the very best Lyons Silk Velvet, and cost only a quarter of the price. Can be purchased from all leading Retailers at from 2s. to 6s. per yard.

EVERY YARD IS STAMPED ON THE BACK "NONPAREIL," to protect the Public from Fraud.

Wholesale Agents—J. H. FULLER, 92, Watling St., London; JOHN R. TAYLOR, 51, Miller St., Glasgow.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 768.] THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1884. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

The Congregational Union and the late London Evangelistic Mission. 5	The Baptist Union 8	Notes and Comments 12
Help for the Desponding 5	A Destitute Colony 8	Mr. Spurgeon's Evangelists 14
Workers for Jesus Wanted 6	Missions in China, India and Japan. 8	St. Giles' Christian Mission 14
Notes on Scripture 6	Young Men in the City 10	The London "Mizpah Bands" 14
For the Young 7	Young Workwomen in the City 10	Conference on Prophecy 15
The Congregational Union 7	Poetry—Precious Blood of Christ...11	A Doomed Institution 16
	Liverpool Christian Convention.....11	Notes from New York 16
		The late Mrs. James Somerville.....17
		Requests for Prayer 17
		Rev. W. Hay Aitken in Chester 17
		Clifton Conference 18
		Poetry—Walking in Darkness 18
		Y.M.C.A. Notes 19
		Evangelistic Notes 22

C. F. CARPENTER'S HEALTH RESORT, BISHOP'S TEIGNTON, SOUTH DEVON.

Extract from Testimonials.

VICARAGE,
BISHOP'S TEIGNTON,
October 24, 1879.

As Vicar of the parish in which Mr. Carpenter's Health Resort is situated, I am able from personal knowledge to bear testimony to the high respectability and Christian character of its proprietor, and to the successful and satisfactory manner in which he has conducted the establishment from its commencement to the present time.

* * * * *

It gives me, therefore, much pleasure to recommend this establishment to all who are seeking either a pleasant and healthy place of séjour or a system of careful treatment for the recovery of health.

W. R. OGLE, M.A.

VIEW FROM THE TERRACE AND GROUNDS, LOOKING SOUTH.

Beautifully situated.

Sea and Moorland Air.

Boating and Fishing.

Delightful Drives.

Extensive Private Grounds.

Lawn Tennis Courts.

Home Comforts.

No Alcohol.

A FIRST-CLASS SUITE OF BATHS UNDER MEDICAL SUPERVISION. PROSPECTUS FORWARDED ON APPLICATION

THE

CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

A Quarto Volume of Music & Words.

By IRA D. SANKEY and J. McGRANAHAN.

Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions, when all the mists have rolled away."

Baptist Messenger

This Volume, which is largely composed of NEW SACRED SONGS, DUETS, CHORUSES, and ANTHEMS, has been used alternately with "Songs and Solos," during the great London Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. Mr. Sankey and Mr. Mc Granahan are already well known by their hymns, which are sung all the world over; and the present collection, which is specially suitable for Gospel Choirs, will doubtless add to their reputation as true Gospel musicians.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE

GOSPEL MALE CHORUS BOOK.

Collection of New Part Songs, Choruses and Anthems.

Written and Arranged expressly for Male Voices.

By JAMES McGRANAHAN.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Limp, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

The Gospel Male Choir was, during the last five months of the London Mission, a special feature of the meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. There are, doubtless, many more who would wish to dedicate their voices to the service of the Master; and with the present volume (which is arranged for 1st and 2nd Tenor and 1st and 2nd Bass) in their hands, and the hearty co-operation of a few brethren like-minded, this wish can be easily gratified. Says Mr. Mc Granahan:—"Organize a quartet, a double quartet, or better still, a chorus of male voices; and prove the power for good in the harmony of male voices when consecrated to the glory and service of our divine Master."

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in SOL-FA.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with much thankfulness from B., £3; S., £1; a Parcel, F. S.

The Infant Day Nursery at 7.30 a.m. The Free Ragged Day Schools open at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Sunday Schools at 10 a.m., 2.30 and 6.30 p.m. Sunday Classes for Lads at 3 and 7.30 p.m. Classes and Meetings for Elder Girls and Young Women, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays at 8.30 p.m., Sundays at 3. Saturdays at 4 p.m. • Men's Bible Class on Fridays at 8. Mission to Inebriate Women. Weekly Meeting on Thursdays at 3. Mothers' Meetings on Tuesdays at 3 and 6.30 p.m. Evangelistic and Lodging House Services at 7 o'clock on Sundays. Room to Room Visitation daily, and other Missionary Agencies.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to George Holland The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street Whitechapel, London, E.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.—The Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor, M.P., Treasurer; J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman; Mr. Ex-Sheriff Clarence Smith, Hon. Secretary. For ninety-nine years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 250 Christian men and women. Subscriptions and letters for Convalescent Homes are urgently needed. The Banking account is considerably overdrawn. The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.—Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. B. H. Gerrans, Secretary.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

£1000 URGENTLY WANTED at once for the purchase of a large Mission Hall in the midst of a poor and populous parish in Birmingham, containing 28,000 souls. There is a very promising opening here for the preaching of the Gospel if the necessary funds are forthcoming.—Contributions will be thankfully received by the Rev. P. E. Wilson, All Saints' Rectory, Birmingham.

INDIAN FEMALE NORMAL SCHOOL AND INSTRUCTION SOCIETY, or Zenana Bible and Medical Mission (in co-operation with the Church Missionary and other Protestant Missionary Societies in India), founded 1853, 2, Adelphi-terrace, London, W.C. A Valedictory Meeting, to take leave of five Lady Missionaries proceeding to India, will be held (D.V.) in the Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N., on Monday, October 20th, 1884, at 3 p.m., J. E. Mathieson, Esq., in the Chair. The Farewell Addresses will be delivered by Rev. John Bennett, M.A., and Rev. J. W. Budden. A collection will be made. Tickets may be had of the Secretary.

AN EARNEST APPEAL is made by Gipsies, encamped in the Forest of Dean, for a Mission-room in which to have Gospel Meetings held. Help will be gratefully received by Rev. J. Moxz, The Manse; or Miss Clifford, Bramleigh, Cheltenham.

FAITH-HEALING Meetings, conducted by the Rev. John Allen, Trinity Church, Triangle, Hackney, London, E. Sundays, 3 p.m. Mondays, 7 p.m., addresses and testimonies; Tuesdays, 11.30 a.m., anointing service.

THE CONVALESCENT HOME FOR POOR GIRLS at Broadwater, near Worthing, is in great need of a good-size vehicle to convey the children to and from the seaside. The Committee will be glad to hear from any friend who would wish to supply this need.—Aulay Macaulay, Hon. Secretary, Latymer-road Mission, Blechynden street, Notting-hill.

PRIVATE HOME-HOSPITAL, 9, Lupus-street, St. George's-square, South Belgravia, for Ladies and Children (medical, surgical, and obstetrical cases). Situation most healthful, being open back and front, and adjoining the square. Applicants are requested to send in their names, as the beds are filled up in order of application, unless in cases of urgency. There are vacancies for three lady probationers. Terms, including board, residence, and instruction, one guinea per week. For terms apply to the Lady Superintendent at the Hospital, enclosing stamped directed envelope.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College Avenue, Hackney.—The Annual Sale of Work will be held at the Home, on the 28th, 29th, and 30th of October. Articles for sale will be gratefully received by Miss S. Rye.

BRISTOL BIBLICAL INSTITUTE. For Young Men desirous of being trained as Candidates for the Ministry or Town Missionaries.—Send a stamped envelope to Rev. P. Prescott, Coronation-road, Bristol.

BETHSHAN.—Faith Healing Home, 161, Islington, Liverpool. For particulars apply to Miss Gibbs.

THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, Paddington-green, is in urgent need of Funds. There are 25 beds now occupied, and the attendance of out patients is about 100 daily. This Hospital entirely depends on voluntary assistance. All parents, whether their children are in health or sickness must surely sympathise with this good work, for the sake of Him who loved little children. Treasurer, George Hanbury, 21, Portman-square, by whom any donations will be most thankfully received.

DAILY PRAYER MEETING at 12.0. at the House of Rest, Burlington-place, Eastbourne. Close to the Parade, near the Cavendish Hotel. Christian brethren and sisters are earnestly invited.

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION.

To Meet the Needs of the SICK POOR. "Preaching the Gospel and Healing."

Donations and clothing (new and old) thankfully received. Reports sent on application.

Hon. Director—Dr. G. Saunders, C.B. Hon. Treasurer—Dr. W. R. Bell. 47, Endell-st., St. Giles'.

MRS. PARSONS' ORPHAN HOME, WALTHAMSTOW.

We shall (D.V.) hold our usual ANNUAL SALE in aid of the Orphan Home in December next, and contributions of all kinds for this object are very earnestly solicited. Will kind friends make a special effort to help us in this way?

Cumberland House, Walthamstow, Essex.

GEE-STREET Christian Mission and Ragged School, Goswell-road, earnestly solicits donations to continue the good work of preaching, teaching the Gospel, temperance, and relieving deserving poor.—Bankers, Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard-street; Treasurer, Robert Baxter, Esq., 6, Victoria-street, Westminster; Hon. Secretary, Rudgley, 82, Wood-street, Cheapside.

SEVEN DIALS MISSION.—The Mission Hall, Short's-gardens, having just undergone needful repairs at a cost of about Forty Pounds (a heavy addition to the ordinary expenses), contributions in aid of the work are urgently needed, and will be thankfully acknowledged by Rev. F. S. Swinnell, 32, Broad-street, Seven Dials, W.C.

COSTERMONGERS' COTTAGE MISSION, Vinegar Ground, City-road, E.C.—Established 1872.—Funds are greatly needed at the present time to carry on the Lord's work among this class of poor. Also parcels of left-off clothing will be thankfully received for the little costers this coming winter.—Walter Penrose, Supt.; W. Owen, Treasurer, 22, St. George's-road, Tufnell-park, N.

THE CHURCH ARMY.—A Meeting in support of the above organisation will be held at the Mansion House on Tuesday, October 21, at 3 p.m. The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, M.P., will preside. Tickets can be had on application at the Central Office, 21, John-street, Adelphi, W.C. Funds are urgently needed.

Educational.

MORAVIAN EDUCATION.—Fulneck, near Leeds. Established 1750. Application to be made to Miss Shawe for the Girls' School, and to Rev. W. T. Titterington for the Boys' School.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, Belgrave-place. Principals, Mrs. and Miss Wilkin.—High-class education for Girls. Pupils prepared for the Royal Academy (Music) and University Examinations. Healthy situation. Home comforts.—Prospectus and references on application.

ROTHESAY HOUSE, Alum Chine, Bournemouth.—Miss Cole (certificated in London University Examinations for Women), having for some years successfully conducted a large school for girls, now receives a few Pupils in her own home. Healthy position near sea. Thorough education, combined with comforts of refined Christian home. Lady boarder received.

ALBURY HEATH, near Guildford.—Miss Baker receives six Young Ladies. Home comforts. Excellent education. Certificated governesses. Visiting professors. Healthy and beautiful situation. Indian children received. Highest testimonials. Pupil Teacher required, premium £20.

HASTINGS.—Wellington College for Ladies, 4, Wellington-square. Head Mistress, Miss De la Mare. Honours in the L.L.A. Examination for women. Science and other certificates. Pupils prepared for the local and higher examinations. Kindergarten department for young children. Vacancies for two boarders.—Prospectus on application to the Secretary, Rev. F. Leaver.

HOLLAND HOUSE, Clarence-parade, Southsea.—School for the daughters of gentlemen. Special educational advantages, with home comforts and care. Indian charges received. References kindly permitted to the parents of present and former pupils. Prospectus on application to the Principal.

SOUTHDENE, Ramsgate.—Splendidly situated Home for delicate children requiring sea and country air, combined with educational advantages. Under the personal supervision of experienced Christian Lady. Prospectus on application. Terms moderate.

BELLE VUE, Ambleside.—Good School for Girls.—Having increased accommodation, Mrs. Fleming can now receive six additional Pupils. House well and healthily situated, with large rooms, garden, tennis ground. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Distinguished success in Cambridge Examinations, which are optional. Resident foreign and English governesses. Visiting masters. 50 to 60 guineas.

GOVERNESS, experienced and decided Christian, wishes re-engagement. English, French, music, &c. Pupils under 12 preferred. Excellent testimonials. Recommended by Rev. William Haslam.—Bees, Mr. Howard's, Albion Printing Office, Upper Sydenham.

A LADY wishes to find a situation in a Christian family for a German Swiss, as Governess to young children. German and French. Willing to help in needlework. Age nearly 20. Protestant. Can be highly recommended. Has not been out before.
Mrs. A. H. Heywood, Elleray, Windermere.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE for Young Ladies, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon, and CLARENDON H[illegible], Topsham (for delicate girls requiring sea-air). Education of the highest order. Professors, English and foreign certificated governesses. Pupils successfully passed Edinburgh, Oxford, Trinity College, College of Preceptors. Honours, and special certificates. The Principal's aim is to secure a training that will ensure spiritual well-being; she engages as teachers ladies of decided piety only. Numerous references to parents in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and abroad. Pupils accompanied to and from London (journey of four hours).

LONDON.—First-class Education for the daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors; their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles.—Delta, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE,
Principal: Dr. Cranage.

SOUTHPORT.—First-class Girls' School. Conducted by members of the Society of Friends. Special educational advantages. Masters and Lecturers of acknowledged merit. Watchful care and home comforts. Situation particularly open and healthy.—Mrs. Wallis, Brighthelmston, Birkdale, Southport.

FOR DISPOSAL, a first-class Ladies' School. Only those with capital and some experience of scholastic life need apply. Principal retiring on account of failing health. No agents.—T. R. S., 45, Dyke road, Brighton.

A LADY LIVING in the healthiest part of Eastbourne wishes to hear of two little Girls, ages 6 to 8, to educate with her own child under competent Governess. A happy, comfortable, Christian home.
H., 11, Hartfield-road, Eastbourne.

NO SALARY.—A Lady, middle-aged, would assist the Principal of a school in housekeeping and a little teaching, in return for a comfortable home and laundress. Experienced. Highly recommended.
H. F., Victoria Library, St. Leonard's-on-Sea.

A THEOLOGICAL STUDENT, Spanish, who can teach French and German, wishes to find a situation as Tutor in a family. References, Messrs. Porret & Gautier, Professors of Theology, and Mr. Montandon, Minister, Lausanne, Switzerland.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY, by young married Lady, situation as resident Governess. Fluent French and German, both acquired abroad, painting, music, elementary Latin, and Italian. Twelve years' experience. Could take entire charge of motherless or delicate pupils. India not objected to. Highest references and testimonials.
Y., 2, Norburn-street, Notting-hill.

MRS. BARNARDO wishes to recommend a competent Governess for young children. A member of the Church of England.
Miss Tayler, St. George's-terrace, Felixstowe.

GOVERNESS, experienced, just returned from Paris, desires re-engagement in Christian family. Teaches English, music, drawing, painting. Excellent references.—Z Y., 2, Blandford-place, Clarence-gate, Regent's-park, N.W.

DAILY OR MORNING GOVERNESS.—A Lady desires an engagement where earnest and faithful teaching would be appreciated. Subjects: English, French, music, rudimentary Latin. Excellent references.—A. B., care of Miss Stroud, Deaconess Home, Mildmay-park, N.

ORPHANS' HOME, Austral-street, West-square.—Wanted, a Governess; also an Assistant. Both must be accustomed to institution work. A young Teacher also wanted, for the Tunbridge Wells Branch Home.
Miss Sharman, 20, West-square, Southwark.

AS GOVERNESS to one or two young children. A Lady wishes to place a young friend (18). Gentleman's daughter. Church of England. Would assist in needlework.
Miss Greene, Midgham, Reading.

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted for two boys, aged six and three years. Must be musical and good needlewoman.—Apply, by letter, to Mrs. Finlay, Glenmona, Cushendeen, co. Antrim.

A YOUNG LADY seeks an engagement (with Brethren) to instruct young children in the Kindergarten, also advanced music and class singing.—Y., care of Mrs. Newton, West Shrubbery, Redland, nr. Bristol.

CAN ANY LADY inform experienced Christian Governess of good opening for high-class Day School, town or country, or other suitable engagement.—B A., 3, Blandford-place, Clarence-gate, Regent's-park, N.W.

A LADY RESIDING in a healthy part, north of London, offers a happy home to a little girl, 9 or 10 years of age, to educate with her own child. Terms moderate.
E. S., Book Stall, Clapton-station.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

ESTATE AGENCY, Resident Factorship, or position of trust.—A Solicitor, in good practice in Scotland, desires such in dry and bracing part of England, on account of health. Highest references.—Apply, with particulars, to Solicitor, 9, Bank-street, Edinburgh

EVANGELIST.—A Gentleman of considerable experience in preaching, visiting the sick, conducting Bible Classes and Prayer meetings, desires to meet with a suitable sphere of labour. A moderate stipend would suffice. Reference may be made to Rev. W. G. Lewis, St. Albans; or Rev. G. Twentyman, New Barnet, to whom the applicant is well known.

AS LAY READER, Evangelist, or Secretary to an Institution or Mission. Gentleman (26) desires engagement. Experienced. Good testimonials.
Spes, Mrs. Whalley, 112, Ecclesall-road, Sheffield

A PLACE wanted, in a Christian family, as Butler, where footman is kept; or single-handed in a small family. Age 25. Height 5 ft. 7 in.—J. T., Hinxton House, East Sheen.

LAW.—A Christian Solicitor, admitted last year, desires a partnership or appointment in country or town. Preliminary clerkship not objected to.—Solicitor, Box 1043, Sell's, 167, Fleet-street, London.

SITUATION WANTED by a Young Man to take charge of Branch Office, or as Collector. Please state salary given. Disengaged November 5th. Total abstainer.
H. S., 31, Augusta-gardens, Folkestone, Kent.

EVANGELISTIC or Coffee House work, or combined, wanted by experienced man. Married, no family. Thorough knowledge of magic lanterns and lime light.—G. D., 17, Lambert-villas, Branksome-road, Brixton, London.

EMPLOYMENT wanted by an active elderly Man, a believer in Christ, Blue Ribbon, non-smoker; has been coffee-house manager, cook, and steward at sea, &c. Wages not so much an object as work for the Master in any part of the world.
J. W., 31, Sutton-street, Commercial-road, E.

AS CARETAKER of a Mission House or Institute, or charge of an infant Nursery, by respectable woman. Good references. L. C., 519, Liverpool-road, Holloway, London, N.

AS GARDENER where another is kept; or good Single-handed. Understands his work. Good character. Age 27. Single. Christian and abstainer.
M., care of Mr. Long, Ridge, Barnet, Herts.

AS UNDER GARDENER, and can attend to horse or cows. Good character. Total abstainer. Age 22.
W. Sharman, Granville-road, North Finchley.

UNDER GARDENER.—A Lady recommends steady, quiet, willing young man. Age 19. Has been in her garden and stables a year and a half. Address,
C. G., May's Advertising Offices, 159, Piccadilly.

AS GARDENER OR COACHMAN.—Clergyman thoroughly recommends as above his man, now leaving through change of residence. Highly conscientious Christian. Married.—Coachman, Rev. Dr. Morgan, The Vicarage, Swansea.

A VERY STEADY, plodding, active young man, 27, reliable, single, would be grateful to any gentleman for constant employment. Has been 11 years a grocer.—Matron, Lady Pembroke's School, South Newton, Salisbury.

AS SECRETARY Companion, or any position of trust. German Lady wants engagement. Protestant. Age 23. Good reader. French and English. Total abstainer. No objection to daily.
Fräulein R., 8, Endsleigh-gardens, N.W.

WILL SOME CHRISTIAN person give domestic Employment to a very efficient Widow, who having been a victim of intemperance has been under restraint for six weeks, but is unable to continue further payments in an inebriate asylum? She is a good Cook, and generally useful.—Rev. J. A. Fairfull, Holy Trinity Parsonage, Scarborough.

AS BIBLEWOMAN.—Ten years' experience in Mission work, conducting of classes, mothers' meetings, &c. Could commence a work. Could work alone or under another.
A. T., Dossitor's Library, Dalston, London.

A LADY WISHES to place a respectable girl (about 15) as under Servant in gentleman's household. Has had some training.
Mrs. C., Weston Vicarage, Bath.

A LADY WISHES to recommend her Cook as Cook-Housekeeper in small family, Widower's or otherwise, where kitchenmaid is kept. Wesleyan.—Mrs. Ogle, The Elms, Derby

AN ENGAGEMENT wanted, in a Home or Orphanage, by a domesticated young Lady, who has had a thorough training and considerable experience in teaching.
A. M., 72, Sandmere-road, Clapham, S.W.

RE-ENGAGEMENT as Lady's Maid Good needlewoman. Dressmaker, machinist, understands her duties. Age 33. One year and three months' character; three and half previous. Quiet family preferred.
M. R., 37, West Cliff-road, Ramsgate.

A LADY, highly recommended, is desirous of some post of trust, in a family or institution, as Lady Housekeeper, or as Travelling Companion. Highest references.
A. C., 30, York-street, Portman-square.

A LADY WISHING to live in England, seeks any position of trust, in a clergyman's or other nice family. References given and required.—L., Miss Williams, Oldtown House, Rathdowney, Ireland.

A YOUNG WOMAN, age 23, total abstainer, married, husband abroad, seeks re-engagement with Christians as Manageress, Book, or Housekeeper; or Companion to a Lady. Would not object to travel. Good references.—J. M., Mr. Gour, Southend Railway Cottage, Tilbury, Essex.

RE-ENGAGEMENT desired as Useful Companion. An abstainer. Christian home highly appreciated. Good references. State salary.—A. K., 3, The Heights, St. John's-hill, Sevenoaks, Kent COMPANION or Lady Housekeeper.—A Lady of education who is competent, good reader, musical, abstainer, desires Christian home. Would combine Christian work.

R., 7, Kingsford-terrace, Seven Sisters'-road, N.

A LADY of some experience desires the post of useful Companion, or in any position of trust, such as care of children. Spiritual element valued. References given and required. E. G., care of Mr. Williams, Stationer, Union-street, Bath.

A YOUNG LADY (20), Clergyman's daughter, desires an engagement as Companion. Good reader and amanuensis. Cheerful. No objection to children. Moderate salary.—C. A. M., Christ Church Vicarage, Rotherhithe, Surrey.

COMPANION, &c.—A Lady would gladly recommend some one (26) as a Companion to a lady, not an invalid. A good reader, writer, and pianist. Does not object to light employment.—Apply in first place, to Mrs. Britten, Knowle Villa, Gravelly-hill, Birmingham.

A YOUNG LADY (aged 23), well domesticated, wants a situation as Lady Help, where there are several children. Country preferred. Good references.—E. C., 30, Stanley-road, Balls Pond-road, Islington.

WANTED, by an experienced person, the position of Matron, Housekeeper, Companion, Attendant to Invalid, or any position of trust in a Christian home.
Faith, 8, Hopkins-street, Weston-super-Mare.

WANTED, NEAR LONDON, a situation as Useful or Sewing-maid. Good plain needlewoman. A comfortable home preferred to salary. Good reference. Age 26.
F. P., 8, Woodville-street, Woolwich, S.E.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

A BLIND SCRIPTURE READER wanted by The Indigent Blind Visiting Society. Candidates must be intelligent, and of undoubted piety.—Applications, with testimonials, to be sent to the Office, 27, Red Lion-square, W.C.
W. C. Lester, Secretary.

SHORTHAND Corresponding Clerk wanted. Must be of high Christian character, and of some years' experience in managing business correspondence — Address, stating terms, Clergyman, 1, Bakehouse court, St. Paul's, London.

A COLLECTOR wanted, for London, by an old-established religious society. A decided Christian. Salary and commission.—Apply by letter, with references, to Secretary, 184, Tulse-hill, S.W.

AN OPENING OCCURS in an architect's office, for a respectable, well-educated lad, willing to make himself useful, to acquire a general knowledge of the work.—Apply, in own handwriting, R. H. H., 9, Clement's-lane, E.C.

BIBLE-WOMAN.—Wanted, for a Cathedral City parish, a consistent Evangelical Churchwoman, who would help to minister to the spiritual and temporal wants of the poor. Stipend £35. Application, with references, to be made to M., care of James Williamson, Bookseller, High-street, Lincoln.

BIBLE-WOMAN wanted for Charles Parish, Plymouth She must know something of a Nurse's work among the poor, and be a total abstainer. Salary £25 a year.—Apply by letter to Rev. G. F. Head, 15, Woodland-terrace, Plymouth.

A LADY wanted, who would undertake the charge of a small Training Home and Laundry, for rough girls.
Miss Hopkins, North Marine-road, Scarborough.

A STRONG, ABLE MAN wanted, as Handy Man, accustomed to milk cows and to do odd jobs in the house and on the grounds. Wages £1 per week, milk, &c.
Mr. Wicks, Belmont-road, Lewisham, S.E.

A LADY WANTED, experienced in Mission work, to come as a visitor (or, if preferred, as a boarder) to a Gentleman's country residence, and work with a Lady in only mission work. Unsectarian: singing and music essential. References exchanged.—E. L., care T. Eyres, 3, Carthusian-street, Aldersgate-street, London.

BASKET MAKER wanted.—Must be an abstainer. State wages
Tebbutt & Co., Melton Mowbray.

GROOM wanted. Single. To live in.—Apply by letter, Grafton Manor, Bromsgrove, Worcestershire.

NURSE, in a doctor's family.—A trustworthy Nurse wanted, good needlewoman preferred.—Apply, stating age and full particulars, to Mrs. R., 32, Birnbeck-road, Weston-super-Mare.

NURSE wanted, to take charge of one baby four months old, and to assist in waiting on invalid Lady. Age 20 to 25 preferred.
Mrs. Jewell, Hughenden, Esplanade, Ventnor.

NURSE AND COOK, for Sandgate, Kent.—A capable and trustworthy Nurse. Good needlewoman. Christian much valued. Also a good plain Cook. Must be well recommended and strong.
D. J., 7, Vanbrugh-park-road East, Blackheath.

WANTED AT ONCE, NURSE for five children, experienced. Also COOK, age about 30. Quiet country vicarage, near Derby. Both must have excellent characters. Good wages, comfortable home, and all found, except beer.—Mrs. M., care of Mr. Tapper, 40, Westbourne-grove, Bayswater, W.

NURSE.—A strong, trustworthy young woman, to assist a lady with three young children, and do nursery work. One other servant.—Apply, with references, stating age, wages, &c., Mrs. Howard, 6, Demontalt, Combe Down, Bath.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a respectable, bright girl of 15, as Under-Nurse and young Housemaid, in Christian teetotal family? Girl to apply personally.—Mrs. Dixon, Calverley Lodge, Wood-lane, Highgate.

THOROUGHLY GOOD PLAIN COOK, trustworthy and efficient. Used to small dairy No beer.—Apply, stating age length of character, and wages, to Mrs. Morris Ashby, Northlands, Virginia Water, Staines.

A COOK wanted, for the Orphan Home, Grove-road, St John's Wood, N.W.—Must be thoroughly trustworthy, a decided Christian, and a communicant of the Church of England. Age not under 30.—Apply at the Home, on Monday, the 20th, or Tuesday, the 21st October, between the hours of 9 and 11 a.m.

HOUSEMAID, to wait on an Invalid Lady, wanted by the 27th. Age not under 22. Must be strong, willing, an early riser, and understand plain needlework. Two in family. Another servant kept. Personal character required. Wages £16, all found.—By letter only, G. G., 41, Carlyle-square, Chelsea, W.

WANTED, by a widow Lady and her daughter, a young Housemaid, who has been trained to wait at table, and can have a good character. A Christian preferred.
Mrs. Gardiner, The South Brink, Wisbech.

HOUSEMAID wanted, in Christian family. Not under 23. Must help parlourmaid, wait at table, get up fine things, and be a good needlewoman.
Mrs. Leake, Summerfield, Forest-hill.

STRONG, HARD-WORKING WOMAN wanted, to attend the sick and aged, and keep clean the rooms of a small workhouse infirmary. Good character indispensable. Age not under 35. Wages £20. No beer.
The Matron, Workhouse, Therne, Doncaster.

A THOROUGH PARLOURMAID wanted, in a gentleman's quiet family. Age about 26. Also a Kitchenmaid, to do a little housework, age about 18, who has been carefully brought up. Good recommendations for both will be valued.—Apply, any morning before 1 o'clock, to Mrs. Ware, 10, Astwood-road, S.W.

LADY'S MAID WANTED.—Good dressmaker and hairdresser. Thoroughly recommended; Church of England. Communicant and abstainer preferred. Quiet situation. Age 25 to 40.—Mrs. Hewitt, Hope End, Ledbury, Herefordshire.

A SUPERIOR YOUNG PERSON wanted, aged about 19, as House and Parlourmaid in a small family.
Mrs. F. Fremlin, Earl-street, Maidstone.

A RESPECTABLE GIRL wanted, with good character, as General Servant. She will be thoroughly taught plain cooking. Housemaid kept. Small family.
Mrs. C., 5, Carnaby-street, Regent-street, W.

A GOOD GENERAL Servant or Plain Cook wanted, about 30. Quiet Christian family. Business house. Good wages to a steady, reliable person. Housemaid kept.
Mrs. Speechly, Bishops Stortford.

A GENERAL SERVANT wanted, where another is kept, at Mill Hill Park, Acton.—Apply by letter to Mrs. Willett, jun., 58, The Drive, West Brighton.

THOROUGH GOOD PLAIN COOK, also good HOUSE AND PARLOURMAID wanted, for small quiet family in Bournemouth. Good characters indispensable. Religious privileges. Good wages. Please give reference and state age.
L. R., 38, Leinster-square, Bayswater, W.

AGENTS (male and female) required throughout England, Scotland, and Ireland to sell our pure Teas on commission varying from 7d. per lb. Our terms are the most liberal in the trade, enabling Agents to earn £3 weekly. Payment only required after sale. Special terms for cash. Free delivery. Write for samples (gratis) to the United Tea Growers' Association 11½, Union court, E.C.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.

40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

This First-class Private Hotel is highly recommended by readers of The Christian from all parts of the world. The Bishop of Algoma writes: "The comfort, perfect order, and attendance at Percy's Hotel, render it all that can be desired as a central place of sojourn in this great city." Beds from 1s. 6d. Tea, 1s. 3d. Tariff on application.

VISITORS TO LONDON will find a Christian home at Taverner's Temperance Hotel, 35 & 36, Hunter-street, Judd-street, Euston-road. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Railways. Patronised by ministers and Christians of all denominations.

HUTCHINSON'S PRIVATE HOTEL, 24, Guilford-street, Russell-square, the most central position for all parts of London. Extensive patronised and strongly recommended. Home comforts. Terms moderate.

LONDON.—Insull's Temperance Hotel, 20, 21, Burton-crescent, Tavistock-square, W.C.—Five minutes' walk or 1s. cab fare from Euston, St. Pancras, King's Cross Railways; easily reached from other stations. Patronised by readers of The Christian.

BRIGHTON.—Sussex House Boarding Establishment, pleasantly situated in the Old Steine, having a sea view, and the beautiful Steine Gardens in front. Near to Pavilion, Aquarium, and piers. Liberal table, with every home comfort.—Mr. & Mrs. Box 58, Old Steine.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA Boarding Establishment. The home of a Minister's daughter. Established 11 years. Mansion replete with every comfort. Fine sea view.—Miss Newbury, Cavendish House, Warrior-square.

SOUTHSEA. — Solent House Boarding Establishment. Sunny, cheerful, and most comfortable winter residence. Due south, facing sea and Isle of Wight. Late dinner. Terms 25s. to 35s.—Misses Baker, South Parade.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, close to sea and Warrior-square station. Every attention to home comforts Smoking room. Moderate and inclusive terms Miss Rennick, Hartington House, Church-road.

HASTINGS, Shaftesbury Hotel.—This first-class Hotel or Boarding House, formerly a gentleman's mansion, has been redecorated and handsomely furnished throughout, and is opened for the reception of Ladies and Gentlemen Terms exceedingly moderate, from 6s. 6d. per day, or £2 2s. per week.
Miss Ablewhite, Manageress.

LONDON. — Mrs. Greatley's Christian Boarding House is highly recommended for comfort, economy, and being convenient to all parts. References kindly permitted to the Rev. Dr. Thain Davidson. Terms from 2s. 6d. bed and breakfast
17, Tyndale-place, Upper-street, Islington.

WORTHING.—The whole or part of a first-class House to be Let for the winter. Three reception-rooms, seven bed-rooms, three w.c.'s, dressing-room Occupation may be had the 10th of October. Good cooking and attendance.
Mrs. Austin, 6, Ambrose-place.

BRIGHTON, 116, Lansdowne-place.—Two or three Ladies received for Board and Residence, at the Misses Asher's Preparatory Boys' School. Reference permitted to the Rev. J. G. Gregory, Incumbent of Emmanuel Church.

WORTHING.—A Lady is anxious to recommend the Apartments Let by Mrs. Clay, of 91, Marine-parade, Worthing (facing the sea). Consisting of three sitting, and eight bed-rooms, together or separate. Good cooking and attendance.

HOME.—A Young Lady seeks a refined and comfortable home in a Christian family, with companionship, in the neighbourhood of Highgate. Baptists or Congregationalists, the former preferred.
A. B., 6, Marine-parade, Southend.

CANNES.—A Cambridge Graduate advised to winter at the above, for his health, is anxious to meet with Christian Companions, or a home in a Christian family. References given and required.
E. C., care of Mr. Lockyear, Emsworth, Hants.

SCHOOL or Institution, Leyton Manor House, Capworth-street, Lea Bridge-road, to be Let or Sold at very low price, with or without land.—Apply to Caretaker, or Geo. Waymouth, Architect, 23, Moorgate-street, E.C.

HASTINGS.—Board and Residence or private Apartments. Close to sea and station. Terms moderate for winter month.
St. Albans House, Cambridge-road.

WINTER HEALTH RESORT for the Lord's People, Rothesay, N.B. Famed for its mild climate. The House of Rest a Christian Home and Hydropathic. Terms from 25s. per week inclusive.—C. Campbell.

BUXTON, Derbyshire. — Alpine Boarding House. Terms from 30s. Proprietress, Miss Palmer. Special terms for the winter months, for invalids or others requiring change, who will receive every attention

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortable Apartments, near sea. Sheltered position, cooking, attendance good Terms moderate
Proprietress, The Pines, West Cliff-gardens.

HASTINGS.—Board and Lodging offered in quiet home on very moderate terms; or nicely furnished Apartments. Locality pleasant and central.
A., 6, Trinity-place, Cambridge-road.

HASTINGS HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT.—Charming winter residence for change and rest. Beautifully situated and handsomely furnished. An unequalled health resort. Purest air. Abundant sunshine. Turkish baths, with sea-water plunge. Droitwich, Ozone, and all other baths, with skilled attendants. One and a half hour from London. Moderate charges.
For prospectus, apply to the Secretary.

TO WORKERS and Philanthropists.—For Sale, on moderate terms. Freehold Premises, which have been for some years used as an orphanage for girls. Commodious school-room, play-room, dormitories, heating apparatus, &c. A home for boys of respectable parentage is greatly needed. Will not some Christian worker open such an institution?—Apply for particulars to Messrs. Blackmore & Shields, Alresford, Hants.

MENTONE. — Home for Invalid Ladies of limited means, open on the 1st of November.—Applications to be made to Mrs. Dendson, 30, Lancaster-gate, W.

DETACHED COUNTRY HOUSE wanted, within fifty miles of London, one from station. Light soil, high, dry. South aspect. Fowl run. Outside rent, thirty.
B., 72, Gloucester-road, Bishopston, Bristol.

FURNISHED HOUSE.—A Gentleman wishes to Let his House at Notting-hill, retaining a few rooms. Some attendance required. Moderate rent. Write in first instance,
Care of Miss Greene, Midgham, Reading.

A CHRISTIAN LADY wishes to meet with another to share her home, or three or four little children to board and educate. Terms on application.—N., 46, The Grove, Ealing.

A LADY RECOMMENDS Cottage Home for children, orphans or otherwise.
Miss Foster, Great Totham, Witham, Essex.

COMFORTABLE HOME for one or two Ladies in the house of a widow Lady and her daughter. Beautiful and healthy neighbourhood. Terms moderate. References exchanged.
E. P., Glandwr, Penmaenmawr.

A LADY HAVING a larger House than she requires, would like to Let two or three Rooms; or would take two Boarders.
A. B., Dudley Library, 228, Clapham-road.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS, near Canonbury Station; or good Board and Residence. Recommended by the Rev. Gordon Calthrop, Vicar of St. Augustine's, Highbury.
The Terrace, 107, Green-lanes, N.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE is offered to a single Lady or Widow, in a well-appointed and quiet Christian home, without family, in the best part of Surrey. Twelve miles from London, 20 minutes' walk from station. Pony and carriage kept. Terms 2 guineas a week. Best references exchanged.—Apply, by letter, L. M., care of J. W. Vickers, 5, Nicholas-lane, E.C.

APARTMENTS, Furnished.—Dining-room with bed-room, to quiet Lady. Permanency preferred. One other Lady Close to Saint Michael's Church, Notting-hill.—M. N., Tamblyn's Library, Ladbroke Grove-road, W.

A COMFORTABLE and Christian Home offered, to one or two ladies or gentlemen, in a gentleman's family, residing close to the Crystal Palace.
K., Oakdene, Vermont-road, Upper Norwood.

APARTMENTS FURNISHED.—Bed and sitting-room for Gentleman; or part of house for married couple. Terms moderate. Highly recommended. Station, New Southgate.—Miss Wildbher, May Villa, Oakleigh-road, Whetstone, N.

TWO CHRISTIAN FRIENDS, having a comfortable home, would be glad to have the care of one or two children out of arms.—Miss Carpenter, 66, Quentin-road, Blackheath, S.E.

TO LET, with immediate possession, 7-roomed House. Sheltered; pleasantly situated. Suitable for invalids; in good repair. Large garden. Rent moderate. Few minutes from Teignmouth.
Mr. Brock, Coombe, Teignmouth.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS with Board, offered to a Lady for a permanency, situated in the healthiest part of Buxton. Fine, bracing air. Happy, quiet, home life. Terms, two guineas per week.
S. M., 49, High-street, Buxton.

DIPSOMANIA. — A successfully established private Home at the seaside for six, suffering from excess of morphia, chloral, absinthe, stimulants, or Nervous Debility. Christian care and influence. Judicious supervision and home comforts.
Medicus, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

Continued on page 23.

Health! Strength!! Comfort!!!

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD
For INFANTS.
SATISFYING—STRENGTHENING—SOOTHING.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD
For INVALIDS.
AGREEABLE—DIGESTIBLE—NOURISHING.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD is the best, and enjoys a larger sale than any other.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD POSSESSES the FOLLOWING ADVANTAGES over all other Articles of a similar character, viz.:—
Having been cooked, it goes further.
Being in a concentrated form, it is cheaper.
Is made without trouble in two minutes.
Requires no cooking.
Does not cause acidity or wind.
Guaranteed purity.
Gives quiet nights to mothers, nurses, and invalids.
Health! strength! and comforts to all!
As professionally certified, it has saved the lives of many, when all other diets had failed.
Will support life single-handed, either with or without milk, being a Milk Food.
Is put up in sizes to suit all classes, and sold everywhere.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD is of a BROWNISH COLOUR.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD.—ARTHUR HILL HASSALL, M.D., writes:—
"Dr. Ridge's Food is a very nutritious article of diet, well adapted for the use of infants, children, and invalids."

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD.—SAMUEL BARKER, M.D., Hon. Physician to the Brighton Hospital for Children, says:—
"Ridge's Food for Infants is an excellent compound, on which infants grow and fatten who previously seemed as though they would not or could not thrive on anything. So closely does it resemble the mother's milk, that many infants are reared, and well reared, exclusively upon it."

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD.—DR. BARTLETT, the eminent Analyst, who was examined before the Adulteration Committee of the House of Commons, writes:—
"Gentlemen,—I have completed a very elaborate analysis of your Food. It proves perfectly genuine, and the preparation it has undergone during the lengthened process of gentle heating prevents any liability to the hatching of animal life, so common among raw farinaceous foods. As food for children during and after dentition, these constituents contain the elements of strong flesh-forming nutriment, while for invalids the lightness consequent upon the time occupied in cooking must be a most valuable quality."

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD.—A late eminent Physician thus wrote of Ridge's Food:—
"I have examined and tried Dr. Ridge's Patent Food, and find it a very useful thing for children and invalids. It has a great advantage over many articles of diet, by possessing an agreeable flavour, and leaving no acidity behind. I often recommend it to invalids because it is so easy of digestion and so very nourishing, and it contains all the elements essential to growth and repair. For young children, and for those whose digestive powers are impaired by loss of teeth or imperfect mastication, this diet is invaluable."

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD, it will be seen by the foregoing testimonials, is a thoroughly genuine article of diet. Scores of equally valuable documents might be quoted if necessary.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD makes delicious CUP PUDDINGS for Infants.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD makes delicious CUSTARDS for weakly children.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD makes delicious PUDDINGS for invalids. For FRUIT PUDDINGS, PIES, JELLIES, SPONGE CAKES, &c., is UNSURPASSED for those suffering from weak digestion.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD is also largely used and greatly esteemed for THICKENING SOUPS, SAUCES, BEEF TEA, thus adding to their nutritious properties.

DR. RIDGE'S FOOD can be obtained of nearly all Grocers, Chemists, &c., throughout the World.

DR. RIDGE and CO., Royal Food Mills, London.

EVERY MOTHER AND NURSE SHOULD SEE and READ

DR. RIDGE'S ILLUSTRATED PAMPHLET, "OUR BABY." Price 1½d., post free.

RIDGE and CO., Royal Food Mills, London.

"Moon's" Society for Embossing the Scriptures and other Books for the Blind.

Dr. Moon's simplified type, suitable for all ages and capacities of the blind, is of universal application. It has been adapted by him to 250 languages and dialects. More than 150,000 volumes of the Word of God, and other books, have been supplied to the blind of numerous countries.

Subscriptions and donations are urgently needed to carry on this daily increasing work, and will be gratefully received by Dr. W. Moon, 104, Queen's-road, Brighton (Acting Trustee); also by the Editors of The Christian.

HOMES OF HOPE, Nos. 4, 5 & 6, Regent-square, Gray's-inn-road, London, W.C.

Special efforts are made on behalf of mothers with their first infants, who are really the most hopeful class of the fallen, and are generally greatly to be pitied.

A Home has been opened for the reception of such young women, before they become mothers, as are unfitted, from their previous good character and position, to mix with others.

The applications are most distressing, and the funds are quite exhausted.

HENRY THOMPSON, Treasurer, 38, Mincing-lane.

THE EMPIRE LAMP
(RIPPINGILLE'S PATENT)
IS THE
MOST BRILLIANT & ECONOMICAL DOMESTIC LIGHT EXTANT.

It equals Gas for simplicity, but surpasses it for illuminating power.

It burns without a chimney a pine-shaped globe only being required, which has never been known to break from the heat of the flame. It will give more light than any other lamp with a wick of equal size. The combustion is so perfect that it deodorises the oil and burns absolutely without smell, giving an intense pure white and beautiful light. It is unrivalled for simplicity in lighting, cleaning, and trimming, and is, in fact, the perfection of artificial light.

Suitable for Cottage, Mansion, Churches, Chapels, &c.

Illustrated Catalogue, with full particulars, and giving valuable hints on domestic lighting and management of lamps, free on application.

The HOLBORN LAMP CO., 118, Holborn, London, E.C.
(Say where you saw this Advertisement.)

"MANNA CAKE."

Children take it readily; they do not suspect its properties; they like its sweet, strong flavour. Truly termed by an Agent, "The Children's Friend." Manna Cake is the mildest and yet the most certain in action of all aperients; it does not gripe, and leaves no after constipation. A singularly mild, pleasant, and efficacious substitute for Castor Oil. Eminently suitable for women at all times without exception, where an aperient is needed.

From W. H. Hayward, Chemist, Trowbridge:—"A Physician in the West of England says he gave Calomel and Jalap in repeated doses without effect, but a Manna Cake acted almost immediately."

Ask for Manna Cake, price 1½d. per cake, or 1s. 3d. per doz. of any chemist or medicine vendor. Wholesale of Barclay's; Edwards; Hovenden's; Newbery's; May Roberts; Sanger & Sons; Sutton & Co.; &c., &c.

Seventh Thousand, Cr. 8vo., Cloth ex., 326 pp., 2s. 6d.

THE MESSIAH KING.

An invitation to Christians to inquire whether JESUS THE KING has been permitted to occupy the august position in the affairs of Mankind, which was designed for Him by the great love of JEHOVAH. By James Withers.

The Author, "by independent inquiry into the Gospel of Christ, has reached strong convictions, which seem to force an utterance. These convictions for the most part appear to be in agreement with the Word of God, and are of great practical importance."—The Homilist.

"What Mr. Withers says on Modern Christianity and the Second Coming of Christ is worthy of very serious consideration."—Christian Commonwealth.

S. W. Partridge & Co., 9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

OUR LITTLE LADS.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,
FARNINGHAM and SWANLEY.

FUNDS are still URGENTLY NEEDED to feed, clothe, and educate 330 homeless little ones in the Cottage Homes at Farningham, and to complete the new Homes for Orphans at Swanley.

Will each reader of this do something?

Bankers.
Messrs. Smith, Payne, & Smiths, 1, Lombard Street, E.C.
Offices: Ludgate Circus. A. O. CHARLES.

WOMAN'S MISSION TO WOMEN.
LONDON MISSION, 1884-5.

The Committee of the Female Mission to the Fallen are considerably increasing the accommodation at their Mission Houses, in view of the extra efforts that will be put forth to reclaim our Fallen Sisters during the Church Missions to be held during November and February in the Metropolis.

The Committee appeal for liberal Christian sympathy and support. About 800 cases are aided annually, at an expenditure of £4000. The annual subscriptions amount to only £1436.

Full particulars of the work are contained in the Annual Report, which will be forwarded on application to Arthur J. S. Maddison, Secretary, 32, Charing-cross, S.W.

In Neat Packet. Price Sixpence.

SMALL BOOKS
BY ANNA SHIPTON.
AUTHOR OF
"The Sure Mercies of David;" "Tell Jesus;"
"The Promise and the Promiser;" &c.

Contents.
"Love did it;" or, Caught at Last.
Naomi's Night Watch; or, What can a Child do?
Widow Gray and the Little Song Bird.
The New Sixpence; or, "God is Good, God is Love."
"Just Like Me."
God is as Good as His Word.
A Brief Memorial of a Ragged School Boy.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

IN THE PRESS, AND WILL BE READY SHORTLY.

Price One Penny. 7s. 6d. per 100.

Twelve copies and upwards sent post free.

The Christian Sheet Almanac for 1885.

Attractively printed in Red and Black, on a large sheet,

20 in. by 30 in.

Containing carefully selected Scripture Texts for every day in the year, Postal Information, Changes of the Moon, &c.

AND

EIGHT EXCELLENT ILLUSTRATIONS.

"The Christian" Sheet Almanac is admirably suited for the walls of the Cottage or the Mission Hall. Quantities of not less than 500 copies, with special matter, may be had for localization, terms for which will be forwarded on application to the Publishers.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Christian.

THE CONGREGATIONAL UNION AND THE LATE LONDON EVANGELISTIC MISSION.

SIR,—I am sure that not a few of the readers of the report of the meeting of the Congregational Union last week, whether Congregationalists or not, will have seen with deep regret some of the statements made by one of the speakers regarding the recent Mission of the American evangelists; and still more the way in which they were received. I refer to the following, taken from the Daily News of the 10th inst. "Rev. Dr. Bevan said the great evangelistic movements of the past few years had not been altogether beneficial in their tendency. They had tended to lead away from the churches rather than to them (loud cheers). Better that their evangelistic brethren should never have crossed the sea than they should disturb the Christian earnestness of the members of their churches (hear, hear). . . . He asked in all solemnity what had been the result of that evangelistic fervour of the past two years? Give him the wealth, the enthusiasm, the publicity, to pour into the churches, that had been expended during that time in London, and he would guarantee that London would be stirred to its depths, as it never had been before (loud applause)."

It may be due to the very abridged report of what the reverend gentleman said, but I honestly confess I am at a loss to understand what his meaning is. "Disturb the earnestness of the churches!" Does he mean that churches which were earnestly at work in preaching the Gospel and gathering in those who were outside to hear, have been rendered apathetic, or that their work has been hindered? If so, it might have been well that examples were given. Perhaps they were; but they are not reported. And what is meant by "Give me the wealth, the enthusiasm, the publicity, to pour into the churches," &c.? The "wealth" expended on the recent mission in London was about £15,000. There are, I understand, about 250 Congregational Churches in the London district. If this "wealth" were poured into them, it would give about £60 to each. If the speaker meant to include all evangelical churches, of course the dividend to each would be much smaller. But, presuming he meant to restrict the division to the Congregational churches, are we to understand that if £60 were assigned to, say Highbury Quadrant Chapel, the speaker would guarantee it would do its full share in stirring London to its depths as it never had been before? It should not be very difficult, one would think, for that sum to be raised; nor would it be at all difficult to give the necessary "publicity" to the effort.

But the speaker stipulates also for "the enthusiasm"—ay, "there's the rub." How is that to be "poured into the churches"? It may be that in the discussion which ensued, something was said upon that most important point. I trust there was. I trust that someone pointed out that it is not by the multiplication of Mission-halls, whether attached to churches or not, but by the preaching of Christ crucified, the propitiation for the sins of the world, that the enthusiasm for winning souls is to be secured. I thoroughly agree with the speaker that if the churches were imbued with that enthusiasm, results immensely more satisfactory than those of any "Mission" whatever would be attained. But if the preaching recommended in the most widely circulated of the journals whose names are printed in the Year Book among the "Periodicals by Congregationalists," be that most frequently heard in the pulpits (which I will not believe), it were vain to expect either wealth, enthusiasm, or results.

I observe, with much satisfaction, that Dr. Macfadyen "testified, by way of protest, that his most effective workers in all forms of evangelisation were those who had either been brought under the influence of the Gospel, or had had their spiritual life quickened, through the influence of Messrs. Moody and Sankey (hear, hear)." Apparently these brethren had not "disturbed the earnestness" of Dr. Macfadyen's church. This testimony of his regarding a provincial city in England is exactly that of many Christian ministers in Ireland and Scotland, regarding their experience of workers called forth in the Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey in 1873—5. "He admitted, however, that as Congregationalists they had been during the last fifty years lacking in evangelistic, aggressive, and earnest effort; but they had power enough to lay hold on any town or city in the kingdom. Let them buckle to their work, for the present was their greatest opportunity (hear, hear)." Well said. Is there any hindrance?

Might I venture to suggest with all respect, not to the Congregationalists only, but to other bodies as well, that if, in their corporate capacities (not as individual Christians), in their assemblies, conferences, &c., the element of this world's politics were excluded; if in the churches the things which pertain to the Kingdom were alone introduced, the spirit of the meetings would be greatly improved; the atmosphere would, I think, be more congenial, and their memories more refreshing and stimulating.

I would not be misunderstood. I abjure as a serious error the notion of some good people that Christian men should take no part in politics; should disavow their duties as citizens, should neither be legislators, magistrates, councillors, nor, I suppose, electors. But it is a very different thing to introduce politics into a church meeting, or into a meeting of churches, as I observe the Franchise Bill was introduced into the Baptist Union last week, as "the Eastern Question" into the Congregational Union some years ago. I believe it will be found that just in proportion as such themes are discussed in these assemblies, in that proportion will their spiritual power be crippled.—Yours faithfully, LAMBDA.

HELP FOR THE DESPONDING.

AMONGST the many readers of THE CHRISTIAN there are doubtless some sad and weary ones of Christ's "little flock," with nerves in an overwrought state, consequent on the whirl and excitement of our age, and also owing to various physical and mental causes. They are harassed by Satan till their hearts sink in fear, as he torments them with doubts and scruples, very worms gnawing away all peace and tranquillity from their souls. How many there are who are writing hard things against themselves, saying they are cast-off by God, whose hearts would be cheered if they could only discern the connection that exists between soul and body, and, by simply following the plain rules of health, no longer allow (as a quaint American writer puts it) "the indignant body to seize the soul by the throat, exclaiming: 'You will not allow me to have a good time, neither shall you.'"

Dr. Andrew Clark's advice to a nervous patient is worth wide circulation. He said, "You must take regular occupation, principally manual work. Recreation to be entered on as a religious duty. Variety, and cheerful society. The mind never to be allowed to brood over doubts, nor to give way to fear. All will depend, under God, on the effort of the will. Avoid tea, coffee, and wine."

In the September number of Christian Progress, the Editor's remarks are most helpful and encouraging to the weak ones who complain that faith is to them unreal. He says, "The reason for this is, that the mind is the organ through which faith becomes a reality to the individual. In very many cases, when people are troubled about faith seeming such an unreality to them, the real fault lies not in the faith, but in the morbid and unhealthy condition of the mind. Hence the necessity, from the highest point of view, of a properly-balanced mind; and we say, without hesitation, that one most necessary condition of this is, that we allow it sufficient recreation and variety in what occupies its daily attention."

Our adversary knows full well that quietness of mind "without carefulness" is needful for our growth in grace; therefore he casts his fiery darts to impair that joyousness of heart and soundness of mind that glorifies God, and attracts souls to heaven. Francis d'Assisi said, "Of all the demons he dreaded most for his novices was that of sadness, because sadness insensibly leads to discouragement, and discouragement to despair."

I close these remarks to the weak and weary ones by quoting Rev. Ernest Boys' advice to such: "Take every means of improving your general health; give up, as far as possible, all causes of mental and bodily exhaustion; enter as cheerfully as you can into your earthly surroundings, trying to make all around you bright and happy. Forget yourselves as much as you are able, and we think you will soon find that you are more able to 'see Him who is invisible,' which it is the privilege of faith to be able to do." X.

WORKERS FOR JESUS WANTED.—5.

By Rev. E. BALLEY.

BE NOT DISCOURAGED.

IT is needful that all Christian work should be done in entire dependence on the Holy Spirit. Without Him no work can be properly done, and no soul can be saved. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord." It is the Holy Spirit who worketh all, and in all; and it is when the believer is in the Spirit, filled with the Holy Ghost, that he goes forth to labour, and is successful in his work. Without the Spirit all Christian work would be without life, power, and effect; it would be like a body without a soul, a firmament without a sun, incense without odour, a ship without sails, and a train without fire. The way is prepared, the metals are laid down, the engine and train are ready, the water is in the boiler, the coals are in the furnace, and the stoker is there to stir them; but there is no fire, and all are still, and no work is done. Apply the fire, the water boils, the steam rises, the machinery is put in motion, and the train moves on to the place of its destination. So in the Church there is the machinery, all the apparatus, in her members, in her organisation, in her institutions, for working; but it is the Holy Spirit's fire—the baptism of the Holy Ghost—that puts all in motion, and renders them effectual in saving men. The Spirit has always been in the Church, using and blessing her efforts, and as a consequence she has been successful, and preserved in most troublesome times. The Holy Spirit is given in answer to prayer. "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father who is in heaven give his Holy Spirit to them that ask Him?" Seek the Holy Spirit; go forth to work in his name; depend on his power, and your labour shall not be in vain in the Lord.

Paul, in writing to the Corinthians, says: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord; forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord." Solomon says: "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver." Work hard, work constantly, work in faith and love, work for results, and sooner or later you shall see the fruit of your labour.

A sceptic was drawn to hear a popular preacher. The discourse was on the love of Jesus. He listened with interest to the orator; he admired his eloquence and great ability, but the discourse produced no beneficial effect on his mind. On leaving the place, he saw an aged woman with great difficulty descending the steps. He kindly asked if he should be permitted to assist her. The offer was accepted, and as the two were proceeding, the aged Christian said: "I hope you love my Jesus too?" The question went as an arrow to the sceptic's heart, and he who was not moved by an eloquent sermon, was brought as a penitent to the feet of Jesus by the question of an unpretending Christian woman.

A young man, whose heart was warm with the love of Christ, was very desirous to be useful. He went to his pastor, told him what he felt, and asked in what way he thought he might be employed? He told him that he thought he might be useful among the young. On his suggestion, he set to work in prayer and dependence on the Holy Spirit, and the result was that in a short time four young persons were led to the Saviour.

A pious Christian woman for many years was always seen in her place in the house of God on the Sabbath. As she watched the people coming in, she saw many among them who were unconverted, for whom she prayed. A short time before her death, she stated that she had lived to see twenty persons for whom she had prayed brought to Jesus and members of the Church. She was truly a mother in Israel.

A youth not much above the age of fifteen was brought to a saving acquaintance with Jesus. His young heart glowed with an intense desire to be engaged in some Christian work. Many, many times did he offer up to God this one short prayer: "O Lord, make me useful; make me the means of winning one soul to Thee!" A mind so earnest could not be long unemployed, and the Lord did not allow him to labour in vain. A former school-fellow who had just commenced a course of evil was placed in his way. He took him by the hand, walked with him in the darkness and silence of the night, talked with him on the love of Jesus, urged him to renounce his evil course, and give his heart to God. The result was, his young friend was converted, brought into the Church, and soon after became a preacher of the Gospel. Having led one soul to the Cross he sought others. Two brothers were converted. Another and another soul was saved, till that youth had gathered around him a number of young disciples of Jesus like himself. The result was a long season of prosperity in the church to which he belonged.

If we work earnestly, faithfully, and diligently for the Lord, He will not fail to own the work of our hands. Expect the fruit of your labour, and when you see it, do not become proud, and think that by your wisdom and might you have done it, or God may soon blight you and your work. Go and place your laurels down at the feet of Jesus, and give Him all the honour, glory, and praise. When we have done all, we are unprofitable servants, we have done no more than is our duty to do.

Get a holy passion for souls; travail in birth for souls. Seek that the burden of the Lord may rest upon you. Think of it when you lie down to rest; think of it when you rise in the morning; think of it when you walk the streets. Pray over it, till your heart burns within you, and, like Jesus, you can say, "The zeal of thy house hath eaten me up." Work on in faith, and be not discouraged. You may have toiled much and long in the vineyard of the Lord, and seen but little fruit of your labour, and you may begin to think it is no use for you to try, for you can do no good. Go and lay your head on the gentle bosom of Jesus, and take comfort in the thought He knows all; that you have honestly and sincerely sought to do good, and that if men are not saved it will not be because you have not shown them the way of life, and urged them to flee from the wrath to come. Do not think your labour lost because the blessing is long delayed. Allow not neglect or guilty silence to lead you to withhold the offer of life from those who are ready to perish. "Be not weary nor faint in well-doing."

Take Jesus as your example. Think of his astonishing love to men. Think of his great love to souls; think of his labour and toil for the good of man. He failed not, nor was He weary, till the work was done. Think of the hatred, contempt, and scorn with which He was treated: the scourges upon his back; the crown of thorns thrust upon his head; the nails that were driven through his hands and feet, and the spear that was plunged into his side. Think of the still deeper agonies of his soul when He said, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death;" "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me." Think of the prayer which He offered to the Father for those very persons who nailed Him to the cross: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." And, oh, think all this was for men; for the salvation of the precious souls of men. Let this stimulate you to action; let it lead you like Paul to say, "The love of Christ constraineth us." Do not conclude that you are too busy, too young, too old, too ignorant, too poor, too unworthy to be employed for God. He has given a work for all to do, who are willing to be employed for Him. Seek to serve Him according to your opportunities and means. And let not Satan, nor men, nor difficulties discourage you.

Tunbridge Wells.

NOTES ON SCRIPTURE.—14.

"LOOSE HIM, AND LET HIM GO."

John xi. 44.

IS there not here a command implicitly conveyed to the disciples of Christ to lend a willing helping hand in breaking the bonds of sin from off all whom the voice of Christ has awakened from spiritual death, whether the bonds be those of habit, association, or circumstance? Wherever a dead soul has heard the voice of Jesus, and is striving to come forth from the grave of sin to his Saviour, is there not a call to the already emancipated believer, "Loose him, and let him go"? E. R. G.

IS SICKNESS FROM GOD'S HAND?

In reference to the question as to whether sickness is from God or Satan, may I draw your readers' attention to the following passages, most of which will be found in Miss Havergal's last book (p. 155), "Starlight through the Shadows."

The Lord will smite thee with the botch of Egypt (Deut. xxviii. 27).

The Lord shall smite thee in the knees and in the legs (ver. 35.)

Then the Lord will make thy plagues wonderful . . . sore sicknesses, and of long continuance. Moreover, He will bring upon thee all the diseases of Egypt, ... also every sickness, and every plague, . . . them will the Lord bring upon thee (ver. 59—61).

The Lord struck the child, and it was very sick (2 Sam. xii. 15).

The Lord smote him in his bowels with an incurable disease (2 Chron. xxi. 18).

The Lord smote the king, so that he was a leper unto the day of his death (2 Kings xv. 5).

For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me (Ps. xxxii. 4).

Thine arrows stick fast in me, and thy hand presseth me sore (Ps. xxxviii. 2).

Remove thy stroke away from me: I am consumed by the blow of thine hand (Ps. xxxix. 10).

Himself hath done it (Is. xxxviii. 15).

Therefore also will I make thee sick in smiting thee (Micah vi. 13).

The angel of the Lord smote him [Herod] (Acts xii. 23).

So far, these verses will all be found quoted in the book by Miss Havergal already referred to. I should like, at the same time, to ask any unbiassed reader of Scripture whether the "he" in "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth," can possibly mean Satan, as has lately been asserted. Let me simply quote the context, without comment:—

"My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him: for whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons, for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?" (Heb. xii. 5—7.)

A. C. P. Coote.

For the Young.

BIBLE ACROSTIC.

THE initials form the name of a celebrated and ancient city:—

(1) A woman who was raised to life.
(2) One of the precious stones set in the High Priest's breastplate.
(3) One who was healed by Christ.
(4) One of the judges of Israel.
(5) A chief ruler of a Jewish synagogue.
(6) A woman noted for piety.
(7) A river on the banks of which a prophet had a vision.
(8) A musical instrument.

H. A. N.

We have received additional answers to the last Bible acrostic from the following: H. J. Lockett, Isabel Steward, Maud and J. H., G. Grimes, Eva, Winnie, Gwen, J. B. C., G. M. Devenish-Meares, R. Reid, F. E. V. Higgins, J. Perkins, A. M. B., Mabel Carter, J. C. Carment, Mabel Vines, Kate Ellen Smith, Lizzie Christey, A Stranger (not quite correct), Annie Robinson, Evelyn Toulmin, Annie Wells, Helen B——, Minnie Budge, Gertrude, Jessie Smith, Nellie Lugton, Edith Campbell, Winnifred White, Joseph A. Morse.

"IS IT RIGHT, FATHER?"

In a pleasant suburb on the sunny side of London there lived a married couple whose early life had been passed in a very busy district of the borough of Southwark. They were fruiterers, and had from year to year carried on their business without ever thinking of the Sabbath. One great trouble had clouded their lives. Out of a large family only one child had survived beyond the first two years, and little Annie would most probably have lain beside her little brothers and sisters in Norwood Cemetery, but that she had been sent down to the coast of Sussex to an aunt who lived there, and who not only had to rejoice in seeing the little sickly blossom consigned to her care grow into a blooming, active child, but was successful in teaching her little charge some divine truths, that when received into the mind fill it with heavenly light. Annie was both in body and soul a healthy child. The parents naturally pined after their darling, who was likely now to be their only treasure. Mr. Richards, the father, took a house a few miles from London, and having established his wife there, brought his little girl, now seven years old, home to be the joy as well as the treasure of his dwelling. On the first Sunday after the child's return she came down stairs, thinking that her father was going to take her with him to church, as her aunt had done. He kissed her kindly, and to her surprise was going away.

"Where are you going, father?" she said.

"Oh, I'm going to business, child."

"But it's Sunday, father."

"Yes—yes—I know that, my dear, but I'm obliged to go. I'm very sorry, but I must—now, do not cry. I will be home early, my child."

"But is it right, father?" sobbed little Annie. "Is it right, father?"

"Is what right?"

"Why, going to work on Sunday, father."

"Right—I do not know. It is very hard, that I know: but I must go—I must go."

He kissed the little girl's wet cheek fondly, and with an uncomfortable feeling that he had never felt before, he set off toward the city.

"Is it right, father?"—the words kept ringing in his ears. He could not silence them. He felt that if he had told the child yes, he would have uttered a lie—taught his innocent child a wicked lesson. No, it was not right. Was he, then, to keep on doing wrong when his little child had, by her question, convicted him?

For hours that day these thoughts troubled him. The words, "Is it right, father?" vibrated through him until he was brought to say, "No, it is not right; and, God helping me, I will give up Sunday trading—I will."

He got home in time to hear Annie say her evening prayer, "Make me a good girl." "Ah, child," said Mr. Richards, interrupting her, say also, "Make father a good man." The simple words were uttered, the loving kiss given. It was the father's turn now to wipe the tears from his eyes. From that day he closed his shop on Sundays.

"We shall have to leave our new country dwelling," said his timid wife. But they had not to leave. They prospered more than ever from that time forth.

"I like to deal with tradesmen who keep the Sabbath," said one of the most respectable people of the district where his shop was, "for if he will not cheat his own conscience, he will not cheat me."

And he still lives to testify, as he has often done, "My little girl turned me from Sabbath-breaking when she said, 'But is it right, father?'"

THE CONGREGATIONAL UNION.

THE autumnal session of this large and influential assembly has been an almost unprecedented success, both as to the numbers attending and the enthusiasm displayed. We need not report at any length the various meetings held, as by means of the daily press, and also by the special and full reports of The Nonconformist and Independent, these will have already been in the hands of many readers. The address of the President is naturally looked forward to, at all times, with special interest, and the fact that Dr. Parker was the chairman, and had promised in his Spring address to deal with practical themes at this time, aroused more than ordinary expectation.

The subject chosen by the President was "The Larger Ministry," by which he intended a ministry dealing with all subjects affecting the moral and social welfare of men. A plea was urged for the training of ministers as musicians, medical men, &c., and to fill various offices other than theological or spiritual. In dealing with doctrinal subjects, Dr. Parker firmly and clearly contended for God, Inspiration, Redemption, and Immortality, as forming the four corner-stones of the Christian edifice, and comprising within themselves the Christian faith. On these points it is gratifying to find the President of the Union speaking out so boldly, and contending for the Bible idea of God, advocating the truth of plenary inspiration, emphatically declining to give up the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, and asserting the evangelical aspects of the sacrifice of Christ as forming the only Gospel that will save mankind.

With regard to the plea that the theme and scope of the ministry should be wide enough to admit of political and secular aims, opinions will widely differ. It is quite true that a minister should be much more than a mere sermon maker, but it is equally true that he is sent to preach the Gospel, and that commission, if faithfully fulfilled, is sufficient to fill both heart and hands. The address, on the whole, well repays careful reading, and suggests, in brilliant and telling style, many thoughts of permanent value.

The discussion which followed the reading of papers by the Rev. G. S. Reaney and the Rev. Thos. Green, on "Recent Movements in regard to the Moral and Social Condition of the Poor," was warm and vigorous. Two lines of thought were marked out, the one advocating political economy as the remedy for the acknowledged evils which exist, the other urging a so-called Christian socialism as the cure for ills such as the poor of to-day are heir to. The lack of Christian principle in much of the trade and commerce of our land is but too patent, and undoubtedly lies at the root of a large part of the prevalent poverty and distress. It is to the Christian heart and conscience more than to anything else that we must look for an answer to the burning question: How to rectify the wrongs which exist. Human nature is intensely selfish and fearfully depraved, and as one of the speakers argued, "you must bring the sympathy of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to bear upon political economy before you can swear by it." The discussion was formally adjourned until the next Spring session of the Union; but we trust that present good results will follow.

Among other subjects brought before the assembly was "Mission Halls and their relation to the Churches," introduced by the Rev. J. Ogmore Davies, of Craven Chapel. The need of more earnest and decided evangelistic effort was generally acknowledged. Dr. Bevan urged the duty of Church members to take up work in their own communities as heartily and generously as many of them had done in the great central movement led by Messrs. Moody and Sankey. Dr. Macfadyen's testimony to the value of the work of these evangelists ought to be read by all. He said:—

"I am not able to say anything as to the effect of the Mission of Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey in London; but I am prepared to speak as to the effect of the work which was done by them, so far as my own church was concerned, and I am bound to say that at this moment the most effective workers in all forms of evangelistic work that I have in connection with my own church are men and women who were brought under the influence of Divine truth, or whose spiritual life was deepened, somehow or other, in connection with the work that Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey did in Manchester."

It may fairly be expected that a Conference so large and well sustained, on a subject so vital to the spiritual interests of the people, will result in greatly stimulating the work of home evangelisation in the Congregational body during the ensuing winter. Among other papers read, we can only refer to one by the Rev. J. Chadburn, on "Our loss of senior scholars, its cause and cure." The subject is so pre-eminently important that it demands serious attention. A very hearty and fraternal interchange of greetings was made with the Baptist Union assembling simultaneously at Bradford.

BROUSSA ORPHANAGE.—The sad news came by telegram on Friday week of the death of Mrs. Baghdassarian, the devoted foundress of this orphanage. Mrs. B. had been quite prostrated since July last, the cares and responsibilities of the work having brought on an illness which, alas! terminated fatally. The loss will be deeply felt, not only by her fellow-workers, but by the many poor orphans whom she has rescued from abject misery, and who have been wont to look to her as to their fond mother. Happily the institution will still be carried forward on the same principles as before; her bereaved husband is actuated by the same benevolent motives. He greatly needs the prayerful and practical sympathy of the friends of the institution. About one hundred pupils, several of whom are of Turkish families, are at present receiving a truly Christian education.

HENRY JONES.

7, Adam-street, Strand, W.C., Oct. 6.

THE BAPTIST UNION.

THIS Union met last week at Bradford under the presidency of the Rev. R. Glover, of Bristol. As usual, the first days of the session were devoted to missionary operations, sermons and public meetings in connection with the Foreign Missionary Society being held at Hallfield Chapel and other places. As a practical outcome of these services resolutions were passed pledging the churches to raise an additional £5000 per annum to the income of the Society. The growing vigour of the missionary institutions of this section of the Church is one of the most promising and encouraging features of its present condition.

The address of the Chairman of the Union was delivered on Wednesday morning, in Sion Chapel, Mr. Glover selecting for his theme "The Work of the Church To-day." This was spoken of as having a threefold bearing: first, on the prevailing unbelief; secondly, on the masses of our own countrymen lying outside the pale of the Christian Church; and thirdly, on the heathen world. The gist of the first part of the address may be gathered from the following extract: "If I am right, our duty to the unbelief of to-day may be summed up in the words: No surprise; no alarm; tender compassion; the ministry of loving witness of the truth of God."

In dealing with the second head, Mr. Glover spoke forcibly on the terrible sin of drunkenness, and the duty of the Church to deal with it, and also referred to the work of the Salvation Army. His remarks on this subject are worth reproducing while so much attention is being drawn to its operations. He said—

"We have had an illustration on a large scale of what the Gospel may effect in the great work accomplished by the Salvation Army. Much in that movement we must all regret—its dubious doctrines and wild ways—methods sometimes more apt to lower than enhance men's self-respect—its tendency to exaggerate God's severity instead of exhibiting his infinite love. But one Christlike quality at least will win for Mrs. Booth 'the full and everlasting and passionless renown:' she gazed upon the most depraved without despair, and believed they might be won for Christ. And going forth in that spirit, the hearts of multitudes turned to the Light of Life she offered them, and arose and came unto their Father."

All will agree that a similar zeal as to the spirit cherished and effort put forth, though not as to the means employed, is the great need of the churches on all sides. In reference to the claim of foreign Missions the address eloquently pointed out the wonderful openness to truth manifested by the heathen world just now, and the solemn responsibility of Christians to meet it promptly.

A paper was read by the Rev. W. Steadman Davis, of Ryde, on "The Economy of Spiritual Power in our Churches." The purpose for which such power is given was designed to be helpful service, while the profusion of effort, ignorance, indifference, and neglect, were referred to as sources of waste. The varying types of character to be found in the churches required to be utilised, and spheres of service found for all. Consecrated energy was the great need all round. Sunday-school work, and the nurture of young disciples, introduced by Dr. S. Green and Rev. J. Wood, of Holloway, also formed prominent topics for discussion. A general feeling was expressed that more attention should be paid to the children of the congregations than is usual, and that bright, helpful services for the young should form a prominent part of the work of every church.

On Thursday the Assembly was occupied by papers and discussions on the Progress of the Denomination, and of the Christian Church generally, during the last twenty years. Dr. Angus, in introducing the first of these points, gave statistics showing that there had been in that period a net increase of 100,000 members for the whole of Great Britain, of whom 60,000 were added in the first ten years, and 40,000 in the last ten. The increase of chapel accommodation had been very great, more than a million and a half sterling having been expended on that behalf. A most optimist view of the state of things in the Church of Christ as a whole was taken by the Rev. C. Williams, of Accrington, who contended that there was far less of evil in the world, and far more of good, than twenty years before, all things tending to spiritual growth. Home and Irish Missions were brought up for consideration, and various agencies reported on, a sermon of a very practical kind being brought to a close by a large meeting held in St. George's Hall, for the exposition of Free Church principles. In connection with both the Congregational and Baptist Unions, total abstinence principles received warm recognition, enthusiastic meetings being held in advocacy of them.

A DESTITUTE COLONY.

ABOUT sixteen years ago a number of English families were induced, by misrepresentation, to emigrate to the Colony of Assungay, Brazil, where the soil is totally unfit for profitable cultivation. The hardships and sufferings of these people have been fully described in a Parliamentary Report. There are at present about thirty families remaining in the colony, quite cut off from the civilised world, there being neither railway communication nor ordinary roads to the colony.

One of the settlers—Mr. William Westley—has been most useful to his fellow-settlers, especially in attending to them medically, there being no doctor nearer than sixty miles. He and his wife, being Christians, have also been spiritually useful to their neighbours. Mr. Westley is a teetotaler, and refuses to make profit by distilling spirit from the sugar cane, the only remunerative business in the colony. Mr. John Pearce, of 27, Tavistock-street, Coventgarden, W.C, desires to send to Mr. Westley, for the use of the colonists, a £10 case of homœopathic medicines, with surgical appliances, and suitable religious books, and he will be glad to receive help from our readers to enable him to carry out this commendable object.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for the ensuing week:—Oct. 19, Acts xx. 25–38; Oct 20, Acts xxi. 1—14; Oct. 21, Acts xxi 15–26; Oct. 22, Acts xxi. 27—40; Oct. 23, Acts xxii. 1—16; Oct. 24, Acts xxii. 17—30; Oct. 25, Acts xxiii. 1—11.

CITY MISSIONARIES AND PUBLIC-HOUSES.—To have persevered amid such early discouragements until, at the present time, the Society has seventeen missionaries almost wholly devoted to this special visitation of public-houses and beershops, reflects the highest honour on the moral courage and Christian tact and patience of its missionaries. Truly a grander field for mission work than the public-house could not exist. "Why, them missionary fellows," said a man in a public-house, "walk bang into the beershops now; and one's been in here, taking his religion and his tracts with him, and he has so worked on the landlord's mind that he has quite turned it. He won't serve you now if you're only a little bit tight; and if you let slip a word he says, 'Now then, that won't do in this house.'" "Well, he wasn't always so," said another, "he used to be as good a chap as any, and could swear a bit; I've heard him." "Ah!" said another, "he's not fit to be a publican now." "Forty years," said a man on another occasion, "I have been in and out of these cribs, and never heard a spouter before. What next, I wonder, after this?" Surely the men who do this brave work are worthy not only of Christian sympathy and support, but even of the Victoria Cross.—Mr. C. Sawell.

MISSIONS IN CHINA, INDIA & JAPAN.

By Rev. Dr. MURRAY MITCHELL.

(Paper read at Copenhagen Conference.)

HE said he had lately had occasion to visit Japan, China, and India, and he had earnestly endeavoured to observe the position of Missions in those countries. He would give a brief statement of the impression made on his mind by what he had witnessed.

JAPAN.

In Japan he had seen Mission work at Yokohama, Osaka, Tokio, Kobe, Kiyoto, and Nagasaki. Japan was opened to Western nations in July, 1853. Since then it has passed through immense changes. The Government has to a large extent followed the example set by the great civilised nations in their naval and military organisations, schools, postal service, railways, banks, jurisprudence, &c. &c. But at present we speak only of religion.

Protestant Missions in Japan began in 1859. But for several years hardly any evangelistic work could be done. The Government was hostile; and the penalty of conversion was death. Missionaries studied the language, and did all they could in the way of education. The first Protestant church was opened in March, 1872, in the city of Yokohama.

In February, 1873, the edicts against Christianity which were publicly posted up were removed. Since that time the progress has been rapid. At the end of last year the communicants amounted to 6598, of whom more than 1600 had been gathered in during the year. These estimates are under-statements of the truth; for the statistics are not quite complete. The entire Christian community, including children, exceeds 30,000. One remarkable thing is that in several places native churches are springing up that have had no connection with any foreign society.

More cheering than even these numbers is the character of the converts. There is a spirit of beautiful harmony and love among them. No sectarian controversy has as yet arisen. They belong to different Missions, but appear as a band of brothers. They are occupied with the essential truths of the Gospel, and they have no time to fight about points of minor importance.

The missionaries themselves connect with this unity of spirit the remarkable revival of religion that has lately been witnessed in Japan. There was a deep impression made during the week of united prayer in the beginning of 1872; but the hearts of all were still more profoundly stirred during the week of prayer in January, 1883. When the first week was over, a second was set apart for earnest supplication, and from that time there have been great awakenings at many places. A venerable American missionary says he never witnessed in his native land any renewal of spiritual life more remarkable than that which has lately been experienced in Japan. The hearts of multitudes were so enlarged that they felt as if they had received a second conversion—a fresh baptism of the Holy Ghost. There is a branch of the Evangelical Alliance in Japan, which is flourishing.

The native churches are zealous in evangelisation, and they contribute for this and the support of ordinances among themselves more liberally than Christians in Europe or America. The difficulties in the way of evangelisation are less than in many other countries. There is only one language. They are to a great extent an educated, reading people. Being debarred from political discussion, they eagerly turn to science, history, and religion. They have no caste—that great curse of India. They are a homogeneous people. Three Pagan religions exist in Japan, viz., Shintoism, Buddhism, and Confucianism. None of them are strong. Shintoism, the original faith of Japan, is a vague system of spirit-worship, with no definite doctrines and few definite rites. It is shadowy and powerless. Buddhism has greatly degenerated. It has split into at least eight sects, of which only one seems to have any life. Confucianism is a system of morality and nothing more. It cannot satisfy the human heart. The Gospel comes to supply the void.

The Government is entirely tolerant. The leading officials probably wish Christianity to spread. For the Government is uneasy at the reception it meets—or fancies it meets—from the great Christian powers; and the Japanese believe they would be received into the comity of civilised nations if they were Christians. The Government quite possibly may soon declare itself Christian; and if so, the heathen systems will quickly disappear.

Many things seem to indicate that the fulness of time has come to the "Land of the Rising Sun." The Japanese Christians say they are praying and working that their country may be wholly Christian by the year 1900. Let us unite our efforts and prayers with theirs!

And yet, while there are cheering grounds of hope, undoubtedly there is cause for anxiety. Japan is rushing into the forms of Western civilisation. She is now demanding representative institutions, and the Government, while afraid to grant, cannot venture to refuse them. Can Japan bear our civilisation without accepting the religion on which that civilisation entirely rests? Can we have the fruits without the roots? We think not. Now, at present, nearly all the education given by Government is wholly secular. At the same time, agnostic and materialistic treatises are passing into Japan from Europe and America, partly sought by the Japanese, partly sent to them unsought. Tom Paine, of whom we seldom now hear in the West, is an authority in the farthest East. Heathenism is dying, and will die out in a generation; but the tremendous question is—Shall it be succeeded by secularism or Christianity? The answer depends on the Christian Church. Will she put forth far greater efforts than she is yet doing on behalf of Japan? Will she pray far more, and give far more, and work far more, for that most interesting, but greatly imperilled land? If not, the consequences may be fearfully disastrous.

The Japanese are not naturally religious; they are a fickle people; one, therefore, is filled with anxiety as he tries to forecast the possible future. God grant that the Christian Church may awake to the solemnity of the position, and rise to the height of the great occasion!

INDIA.

Dr. Mitchell then proceeded to speak of India. He had lately traversed it from Calcutta to Lahore, and from the Himalayas to Cape Comorin. To an audience in Copenhagen everything connected with India must be specially interesting, inasmuch as the first Protestant missionaries to that continent went forth under the patronage of Frederick IV., King of Denmark. Things were very different now from what they were when Ziegenbalg and Plütschau were sent to Tranquebar, in the end of 1705. It was highly honourable to Denmark that in the year 1714 there was established at Copenhagen a Missionary Institute—Collegium de cursu evangelii promovendo; and no one can forget the noble efforts of Hans Egede and his successors any more than he can forget the men who laboured in India.

India contains a population of fully 250 millions. The foreign missionaries in 1881 were 558 in number; native pastors and missionaries, 574; Communicants, 145,097; native Christians, 528,590 (we do not include Romanist and Syrian Christians). These figures indicate very cheering progress. Thus in 1851 the native pastors and missionaries were only 29, so that there has been a twenty-fold increase. The communicants in 1851 were 17,306, so that there has been fully an eight-fold increase. Native Christians in 1851 were 102,951, so that there has been a five-fold increase. And the ratio of increase has been steadily rising.

The increase of work done by women for Indian women has been very great, even during the last ten years. Foreign female agents have increased from 370 to 479; native female agents from 800 to 1600. Female pupils have risen in the same time from 26,000 to 56,000; and among these the pupils in zenanas have increased from 1900 to 9100 and upwards.

Medicals Missions have also been prosecuted. Ladies who have received a thorough medical training have a most noble sphere of usefulness among their Indian sisters.

There are at least six systems of Pagan religion in India, viz., Hinduism, Mohammedanism, Parseeism, Buddhism, Jainism, and Sikhism, and the de non-worship of the le s civilised races. The great system of faith is Hinduism, with nearly 190 millions of adherents. Mohammedanism has 50 millions. The Gospel has to contend with all of these religions. The most remarkable success has been among the aborigines and less civilised, but all the systems have been powerfully affected by Christian truth. It is generally believed that the Mohammedans have scarcely been impressed. The truth is, however, that as much success has been granted in their case as in the case of the Hindus, in proportion to the effort put forth on their behalf.

The character of the Native Christians in India is not inferior to that of Christians in Europe or America. Their character differs in several respects from ours; and has both merits and demerits in which we are wanting. They have to learn from us, and we have to learn from them.

The Native Christians are already a power in society, and are daily becoming more so. Their union makes their influence felt. They make little of the ecclesiastical divisions which exist in Europe and America; they cherish the great truth which is embodied in the motto of the Evangelical Alliance, Unum corpus sumus in Christo. In Calcutta the Brahmo Somaj—in connection with which the names of Rammohun Roy, and Keshub Chunder Sen are so well known—has been split into four branches, all of them unfriendly to each other; but the Christians are conspicuously one, a band of brothers. Long may that unity continue!

The Christian community is steadily rising in the social scale. As a rule, the Christians are better educated than their neighbours, and are more and more occupying important positions as Government servants, physicians, lawyers, &c., but the influence of Christianity spreads far beyond the circle of the baptized. The great truths of the Gospel, when once clearly uttered, cannot be forgotten. They may be disliked, oppressed; but forgotten? No; they carry with them their own bright evidence, and those who are not wilfully blind begin ere long to recognise it.

Thus an immense change has taken place in the feelings of vast multitudes. Where Christianity was hated, it is often not only tolerated, but approved. It was said by Carey, regarding Bengal, about seventy years ago, "The people hate the very name of Christ, and refuse to listen when it is mentioned." Now a missionary writes: "See that the name of Christ is plainly printed on the title-page of every book. It will make the book be read." Or, as they lately said in the South of India, when the wretched Theosophists were reviling Christianity, "Say as much good of Hinduism as you please; but don't say evil of Christianity."

Do I affirm that this change is universal? No. A Brahman generally, and a Mohammedan frequently, will oppose the preaching; still, as a rule, the common people hear the Gospel willingly, and often gladly. I admit that it is not simply the truth that attracts. We have many beautiful Christian hymns in the Indian languages, and when these are sweetly sung the attraction to the natives is very great. They will sit for hours, or all night long, listening to simple touching lyrics that speak of the love of Christ.

Is Hinduism then likely to perish soon? And are the other systems also passing away? We do not affirm this. It was three centuries before the Gospel had more than six millions of adherents in the Roman Empire; such at least is Gibbon's estimate. Christianity is advancing much faster in India now than it did in the old empire, and, at the present rate of progress, it will reckon six million of followers in forty years. But we may hope that the advance will be more and more rapid. And be it remembered, India is gregarious. Mass movements may soon be expected. Let us cherish high hopes, but always in a spirit of simple, entire dependence on God! If we give Him the glory, He is ready to work salvation in the midst of the earth.

CHINA.

With regard to China we may say there exists in that great empire a state of things most remarkable and encouraging. For example, China is now thrown open to secular and religious enterprise. It was too long looked upon as an impenetrable rock, and the almost despairing cry was—"O rock, rock, when wilt thou open?" But now, at the treaty ports, and for thousands of miles in the interior, the way is open both for the trader and the missionary. Missionaries who knew China twenty years ago are astonished at the change.

Again, the success attending Christian effort has been very great. The membership of the various native congregations is not under twenty or twenty-five thousand. The native pastors and teachers have in many cases been distinguished for piety, ability, and usefulness. Christian schools have been largely established. Books literary, scientific, and religious have been prepared, which have been widely circulated and noticed in the highest quarters. The books and daily papers published by foreigners in the Chinese language are read by great numbers.

We are called on to avail ourselves of this vast alteration that has taken place in the Chinese empire, and use it for the glory of God and the good of men. A vast extension of Christian work of all kinds is imperatively called for: more missionaries, European and native; more female labourers; more teachers, new schools, more books. Some would say that the last—the books—are especially required.

Further, I feel bound to mention the need of more of union and co-operation among the Missions. Let me quote the words of a venerable missionary, who had been more than forty years in China, Mr. Muirhead, of Shanghai: "It is my decided conviction that greater union and co-operation on the basis of the Evangelical Alliance is absolutely necessary for the efficient conduct and extension of missionary work in China." I am sure my friend does not mean to imply that there is any want of brotherhood and sympathy among Protestant missionaries in China; nor have we reason to say that there is less need of union and co-operation in other lands than there is in that particular field. He asks whether the Evangelical Alliance can do anything towards securing the union which he so earnestly longs for.

OBITUARY.—The death is announced from Andover, Massachusetts, of Professor John Lord Taylor, D.D. He was well known as one of the most eminent Congregational ministers of the United States, and was connected for nearly thirty years with Andover Theological Seminary, in the capacity of trustee, treasurer, and professor of theology and homiletics. He resigned, owing to delicate health, in June, 1879, leaving to the institution a parting gift of 20,000 dols.

YOUNG WOMEN IN WATERFORD.—On Tuesday evening, September 9, Mrs. Noble, President of the Irish branch of the Y.W.C.A., addressed a large meeting of the members and friends interested in the association in the Diocesan Room. The Waterford branch numbers now 150 members. Mrs. J. Strangman, the earnest and zealous secretary, holds meetings for members every Monday evening. The first and the third Mondays of every month are devoted to the Bible-classes, the alternate Mondays are for Prayer Union members.

MORMONS IN INDIA.—We have received a strongly-worded letter about the Mormon missionaries in our midst, which we must decline to print, simply because we cannot defile our columns with the blasphemies which are reported as uttered by these men. They surpass any human beings we have ever known in piously blaspheming Jesus Christ, and in view of the immorality of their teaching, we regard them as men to be shunned like so many cobras. Of all the strange disguises which the devil had ever worn, this modern iniquity of Mormonism is probably the most repulsive.—Indian Witness.

YOUNG MEN IN THE CITY.

IT seems a curious arrangement that the prizes gained by study in one winter season should be withheld till the opening of the next. This is the method adopted in connection with the evening classes at the Aldersgate-street Y.M.C.A. However it may commend itself to the young students themselves, it shows a good deal of shrewd wisdom on the part of the friends in charge. It ensures on the eve of the coming session a bumper audience, to whom the claims and advantages of the institution may be set forth. On Monday week the rooms of the Aldersgate-street building were far too strait for the comfortable accommodation of the crowd of "young fellows" (to use the genial Secretary's homely phrase) who thronged in, and made short work of the tea and coffee and comestibles kindly provided. It is on such occasions as these that the need of a more capacious home for the City young men is most emphatically felt. When an adjournment was made to the lecture hall there was not even standing room for all, though an embargo was placed this year on the attendance of lady friends, from want of space. In the crowded state of the room it was scarcely surprising that Rev. H. Price Hughes, the chief speaker of the evening, should promptly have seized the opportunity of saying, when dilating on matters physical, that the Christian capitalists of the City would do well to provide more lung space for the institution. Of course the perspiring crowd of "young fellows" cheered this suggestion to the echo.

The Lord Mayor presided during the evening, and presented the prizes to the successful competitors. The prizes consisted mainly of books, chosen by the students themselves, and were awarded for proficiency in French, German, Latin, Greek, English, shorthand, writing, book-keeping, athletics, &c. Certificates were granted by the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, after examinations in animal physiology, magnetism and electricity, and mathematics. The leading prizemen were rewarded by the ringing plaudits of the audience, as they stepped to the front, and received the visible tokens of their application and perseverance. The earnest words of the Lord Mayor about the importance of physical and intellectual progress, and, above all, of true spiritual enrichment, were very heartily received, as they deserved to be.

Mr. R. Burn, the Secretary, in the course of a brief but warm-hearted and rousing talk, said that the previous year had been the most successful they had ever known, judging from the numbers on the books. He was anxious that this year should surpass the last; indeed, he went so far as to say that the institution was yet in its babyhood, and he looked for a great increase of associates and members in the immediate future. He recapitulated the many attractions, in the way of classes, lectures, &c., they had provided in the winter programme. These certainly make an excellent show, and any young man who makes 186, Aldersgate-street his place of evening resort, these next few months, will not lack for pleasant and profitable occupation. We hope the rooms will be so crowded all the winter through, that larger premises will become an imperative necessity.

As already remarked, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes was the chief speaker of the evening. It is not too much to say that he amply sustained his great and growing reputation. He took for his text a sentence uttered by Socrates, who, after returning to Athens from assisting in some military expedition, anxiously inquired of his fellow-townsmen "about the present state of philosophy, and about the young men." He wished to know what the greatest and the wisest of the people were thinking about, and what sort of "young fellows" they had among them. There is one point, said Mr. Hughes, in which we who are Christian philosophers surpass, or ought to surpass, Socrates. We should be equally interested in our young women. On the moral and intellectual condition of our young women, as much as on that of our young men, the future of our city and our country must largely depend. It is high time that we young men should wake up and look to our laurels. I am proud to say that my own sister is Senior Moralist in the University of Cambridge this year; she has defeated all the young men who entered the lists with her. If you had permitted young ladies to compete for your prizes, perhaps they might have achieved a similar result. We greatly rejoice in the growth throughout our land of Young Women's Christian Associations.

Mr. Hughes proceeded, in his own peculiarly incisive and courageous fashion, to expand his theme. He was glad to know that the Association believed in animal physiology and in boating clubs, as well as in prayer-meetings; these go beautifully together. Christianity attaches the greatest importance to the health of the body. No doubt many of the hallucinations from which monks and nuns and hermits suffer are the result of indigestion or liver complaint. Mr. Hughes strongly commended early rising, with some tricycle practice before beginning the business of the day, as an excellent specific for health. A moderate indulgence in plain food is another, and entire abstinence from intoxicants will complete the physical regimen. Having touched on the drink question the speaker levelled some well-aimed shafts at The Times for its recent articles on Temperance. Its anonymous scribe says, forsooth, that teetotalers are a feeble and inferior set of people. What about Dr. Guthrie, the greatest light in his day in the Free Church of Scotland, and a teetotaler? What about Mr. Spurgeon, the greatest Baptist preacher in the world? What about Dr. Lightfoot, the ablest theologian in the State Church? Both are teetotalers. If his native modesty had not forbidden, Mr. Hughes might very properly have cited himself as an illustrious representative of the Methodists. "It would be an immense advantage to the human race," he exclaimed, "if The Times would give up writing nonsense."

Coming to the advantages of mental equipment, Mr. Hughes quoted Southey, who, in reply to one who said Christianity had no need of his learning, observed that it had much less need of his stupidity. As to special subjects, he thought more attention ought to be paid to English history. Then every young man should have a corner in his mind for the best poets. Languages of course are useful, and so is some branch of natural science. As to music, he thought every young man ought to be compelled to sing, whether he could or not! Further than that, every man should be taught to play either the piano or the violin. There is a refining influence about music, and it promotes social fellowship, as well as being supremely helpful in the high service of God.

But the supreme and crowning necessity is that we should be in conscious fellowship with Jesus Christ. True religion qualifies a man for every duty in life to which he may be called. It is only in company with Jesus Christ, and under the inspiration of his influence, that we can properly realise the possibilities of our manhood and of the human race. No man is a true man until he is a Christian. If we are Christians we have all a great part to play in hastening on the millennium of peace and joy. The great secret of happiness is to realise that we in our sphere may do something to hasten that glad day when the world shall be filled with purity and peace. We are dealing with the great evil of drunkenness. Another evil that we young men will have to face is the great curse and madness of war. It is for us to create a noble Christian sentiment that will always substitute arbitration for war. A passing reference must be made to another social wrong, the cure of which is largely in our hands. The chief scoundrels in perpetrating the most awful evil that afflicts our society are not young, but middle-aged and old men. It is for us young men to boycott them, with a stern Christian judgment to put them down. Let us create such a strong Christian opinion that if these vile scoundrels do not desist from their evil courses, they shall be put on board some ship and sent to some solitary island in the South Seas and condemned to live there by themselves. I appeal to every young man to do his duty in resisting this most infamous social crime.

Mr. Hughes, in closing his eloquent and practical utterance, exhorted his young friends not to be afraid of the seeming progress of atheism. There is less of it than many people think. As for democracy, there is no cause to dread its advance. In all civilised countries power is passing more and more out of the hands of privileged classes. There is nothing to fear in its passing into the hands of the masses of the people, provided they are permeated with Christian principle. Let us be brave and do all we can to make our brother man more like to Jesus Christ.

Some earnest words followed from Mr. George Williams and from Mr. R. Searle, of Adelaide. The latter said he was converted at the Aldersgate-street Y.M.C.A., in the days when Mr. Tarleton was Secretary; for some years past he has had the privilege of fostering such work in the land of his adoption on the other side of the globe. Then the Lord Mayor thanked the audience for thanking him, and we were dismissed with the doxology and the benediction.

YOUNG WORKWOMEN IN THE CITY.

WE thank the friends through whose kindness so many of these young women have been enabled to enjoy a day in the country during the past summer. The various excursions have been sources of much pleasure and benefit. Kind friends also invited large numbers of the young women from time to time on Saturdays, when they were hospitably entertained, and always gathered for a Gospel Service before they returned to London. We could tell much of spiritual blessing which has come to our knowledge from these meetings.

Some of those among whom we labour were converted by the instrumentality of Dr. Pentecost, at Mildmay Conference Hall. They have since been amongst the most regular attendants at our Monday evening home meetings. They are holding steadily on their way.

Hearty thanks are also given to the friends who have taken tired, delicate girls for a week or fortnight's visit to recruit.

We have lately been cheered by receiving gifts of £10 and £2 from kind friends in Chicago and South Africa respectively. These sums came to hand when we were in straits for lack of the needed funds, and our hearts were filled with praise to God for having prompted these helpers to come to our aid.

A week's Mission has lately been held at Cross Keys-square for our young girls. We believe over 800 have listened to the message of salvation from Miss Cobb. These services have been thoroughly appreciated, and many have received definite blessing. We have been obliged, by the growing demands of the work, to secure another room in Cross Keys-square in which to hold Gospel and other meetings. We look for a great blessing during the coming winter. This fresh extension, however, will considerably increase our monetary responsibility. We therefore earnestly commend our work to the sympathy of all who are interested in the salvation of the young toilers of the City. (Mrs.) C. Fisher.

Cross Keys-square, Little Britain, E.C.

AMERICAN WOMEN AND TEMPERANCE.—Ten years ago, at the first Chautauqua Assembly, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was organised. The little one has become ten thousand, now covers the entire land with the network of Women's Christian Temperance Unions, and is doing more to further the greatest reform of our age than any other organisation. This summer it celebrated its tenth anniversary at its birthplace. Miss Frances Willard delivered the principal address, though there were many other speakers, for the ladies reigned supreme on the platform for two days.

THE PRECIOUS BLOOD OF CHRIST.

A TRUE INCIDENT.

IN a lonely Irish cabin,
No friend or kindred nigh,
An outcast, and a wanderer,
Had lain her down to die.
So young, so fair to look on,
So worn, so old in sin;
Yet He who saved the Magdalene
Had stooped, and drawn her in.

I sat by the lonely bedside
And spoke of the wondrous love
Of the Saviour, who brings the sinner
To his home of light above.
While lit with a holiest presence,
Grew that chamber poor and dim,
And our voices sank to silence,
In our quiet talk of Him.

Then the dying face grew radiant,
And the dying eyes grew bright,
As though some vision tarried,
Hid from our earthly sight:
"Oh, sweet," she said, "is the story
Of the Cross of Calvary,
But dearer far, the knowledge,
That Jesus died for me.

"Oh, sweet is the free salvation
To every sin-sick soul,
But dearer far the knowledge:
Jesus has made me whole.
Come nearer while I tell you
(Praise to his blessed name!)
What Christ Himself has taught me,
And how the lesson came.

"Last night, when all was silent,
And quiet here I lay,
The darkness seemed to vanish
Before the light of day;
A glory filled my chamber;
A strange and heavenly light,
Fairer than sun at noon-day,
Burst on my dazzled sight.

"And then a strange sweet music
Of voices glad and free,
Like those heavenly who sing the song
Upon the crystal sea.
I longed to catch the chorus,
To hear one word of love,
Brought by the blessed angel band
From their bright home above.

"And while I longed and listened,
Five words, most sweet, and clear:
'The Precious Blood of Jesus,'
Fell on my wondering ear.
The Precious Blood of Jesus!
Gone was the heavenly ray,
The sunshine and the singing,
The glory, passed away!

"But, oh! those words, they lingered,
They could not, could not go,
And they will linger with me
On to the end, I know.
And when I cross the river
And join the white-robed throng,
The Precious Blood of Jesus
Shall be my only song."

"'Dear Lord,' I prayed, as slowly
I took my homeward way
From that still bed of suffering,
That quiet autumn day,
'Dear Lord, if in thy wisdom
(For all my life is thine,)
The sunshine and the singing,
The joys of life decline,

"'If in thy love's appointment
Thine own sweet gifts must be
All yielded up, that in my heart
No guest may reign but Thee;
Yet here I rest, my anchor sure,
My confidence, my trust,
My peace, my hope, my glory this,
The Precious Blood of Christ.

"Yes; here I rest, all fear dispelled,
My longings satisfied;
All service sweet, all burdens light,
Touched with that crystal tide;
And when I pass within the veil,
To know as I am known,
To see the Lamb who once was slain
Upon his kingly throne,
The burden of my song shall be
That gift of gifts unpriced;
While angels echo back the strain,
The Precious Blood of Christ."

LIVERPOOL CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

THIS seventh annual gathering of Christians in Liverpool was held in Hope Hall, Hope-street, on Thursday and Friday, October 2 and 3. The Convention was largely attended by Christians of various denominations, including the leading evangelical clergy and laymen of the city. A most important subject was selected for consideration: "The Christian's Power for Service." The subject was considered under four divisions: (1) Conscious union with the risen Lord; (2) The Holy Spirit indwelling, teaching, leading, filling; (3) The burden of souls with constraining love; (4) Personal consecration.

On Thursday a meeting for united prayer, presided over by Rev. Dr. HARRISON, was held from 10 to 11 a.m. This was followed by a Bible-reading given by Rev. HUBERT BROOKE, founded on 2 Kings xi. He pointed out the meaning of the words Gilgal and Bethel. In the case of the Israelites Gilgal was a place where all confidence in the flesh was put aside. It was the starting-place for Joshua's armies when they went out to victory, and it was also the resting-place after the victory was won. How often have we gone out, and God has worked with us, and we have won the battle. Yet we have often come back, and have fallen, because we did not go right to Gilgal and say once more, "Lord, we are unprofitable servants." Bethel means, "I am with thee." The secret of the Christian's power lies in these words. It is not a feeling of power that will enable us to do work for God, but it is a whole-hearted reliance upon the present God.

In the afternoon the Convention again met under the presidency of Mr. ALEXANDER BALFOUR. On behalf of Mr. Matheson, who was prevented from being present, he briefly touched on the topic of the day. He said, if we were to do Christ's work we must be much in his company. One could not wonder at the lack of power shown by professing Christians, who lived in an atmosphere of worldliness, and gave but little time and thought to communion with the Lord.

Rev. J. BURBIDGE delivered an address on "Conscious Union with the Risen Lord." In this lies the ground of the believer's safety, and the source of the believer's strength. No comfort can be got from a crucifix, bearing on it the resemblance of a dying or a dead Saviour. We think not now of a Saviour who is dead, but of a Saviour who lives for evermore. This union is the very marrow of experimental religion; it is no mere matter of theological opinion. The subject is also closely bound up with practical religion. "He that saith he abideth in Him ought himself so to walk even as He walked."

Rev. E. R. BARRETT, in a forcible address, showed that God would not call the believer to this fellowship if He did not intend that he should realise it.

The Chairman asked Rev. Eli Walter and Dr. Brown to pray that the commercial depression existing in this country and city, the agricultural depression, and the unsettled condition of men's minds in public affairs, should be overruled by God for the best interests of the nation.

At the evening meeting Mr. B. F. BABCOCK presided. In the course of a brief address he remarked that "the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in the believer" was not a mere theory, or doctrine, but an actual fact, that gave grace and power to the believer's life.

Rev. Dr. MONRO GIBSON delivered an address on "The Holy Spirit Indwelling, Teaching, Leading, Filling." He referred at length to the words, "Ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things." He showed that the word "unction" meant christening, though not in the sense in which the word was used in these days. When we receive the Spirit, we are not merely Christianised, but "Christed"—made partakers of Christ, incorporated into Him, identified with Him, made one with Him, so that He lives in us. That is the idea of christening, or unction from the Holy One. The word "Christian" is a title of heathen origin, and occurs only three times in the Scriptures, and each time it is used as a heathen word. The inspired writers never use the word as applied to the people of Christ. It is not a strong enough word to express the relationship. The Christian might have no closer relationship to Christ than the Platonists had to Plato. That will not do. What word do they use in its place? They called them "Christ." The Lord Jesus is the head of his Church, and his people the members. The head and the people together constituted one body. The result of this is holiness. Does that mean that after we receive the unction from the Holy One we become immediately perfect in character? Not by any means. But it does mean that thereafter we have an abiding desire and determination to follow after holiness.

Mr. Reginald Radcliffe led in prayer, and Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT delivered an address on the same subject. It is not the least use, he said, for us to think of being baptized and filled with the Holy Ghost, unless in purpose, and aim, and will, we are ready to put aside every weight, and the sin which so easily besets us.

On Friday morning there was again a large attendance. At eleven o'clock a Bible reading was given by Dr. Monro Gibson, on "The Israel of God," divided under three heads: (1) Israel, the partriarch—Jacob; (2) Israel, the nation; (3) Israel, the Church.

At the afternoon session Rev. Canon TAYLOR presided, and spoke briefly as to the essential oneness of all true believers.

Rev. Principal BROWN, of Aberdeen, in the course of his address upon the Christian's service, said the great majority of Christians did not feel the burden of souls; they shrank from speaking to individuals about salvation. We want more spiritual adaptation. Addressing his brethren in the Gospel ministry, he said, the power of their preaching was sometimes lost by the way in which they spoke. He did not care a farthing about oratory; he believed those who studied it most made the least of it. But there was an oratory of reality, an oratory of earnestness, and there was an oratory of the power of the Holy Ghost upon the human spirit, which was beyond all other oratory. They should aim at getting themselves into the spirit of what they said. It was necessary sometimes to preach terror, but it must be tempered by love.

Rev. T. CHAMPNESS said no one could estimate the power a man or a woman had who had the burden of souls on them, and how much they could control the destinies of the empire of which they formed a part. If a man had this burden it would save him from being mechanical, and from ambition. Lord Macaulay had said, "Unsatisfied ambition anticipates the pains of the damned." There were some preachers who needed to learn this.

The Convention met for the last time on Friday evening, when an address was given by Rev. Mr. Laycock, in the absence of Rev. H. Armstrong Hall, on "Personal Consecration." There was a very large attendance. At eight o'clock the Lord's Supper was observed, presided over by Rev. David Brown; there were a very large number of communicants. This brought the interesting Convention to a close.

A CONVALESCENT HOME FOR BOYS was opened in September at Abbott's-hill, Ramsgate, in connection with the Latimer-road Mission. There are twelve beds in the Home, and these were all filled at once. The cottage at Broadwater, Worthing, is retained for girls only. As the additional Home necessarily entails an increased expenditure, the Committee earnestly appeal for help. The Hon. Secretary is Mr. Aulay Macaulay.

Notes and Comments.

WE again remind our readers that any useful books which they can spare from their shelves will be much appreciated, if sent to Mr. R. Paton, 180, Aldersgate-street, for the libraries of Mr. Moody's Seminaries at Northfield.

It is a circumstance worthy of special remark that one lady should have been able to write a series of letters addressed to those engaged in the most varied worldly callings, and each containing some pertinent counsel conveyed in suitable phrase, and in a spirit that could not give offence to the most sensitive. This task has been achieved by Miss V. M. Skinner, of Bath, whose "Friendly Letters" have just been published in a collected form by Messrs. Jarrold and Sons, of Norwich. There are twenty-seven letters in all, and they are for as many sections of the community, commencing with cabmen and ending with printers.

In her latest letter—to Printers—Miss Skinner makes an appeal which we wish, from the bottom of our hearts, the members of the handicraft would, to a man, respond to:—

"We hear a good deal about 'strikes' nowadays, but I should be glad if every printer would strike work when an immoral or infidel MS. is offered to him to print. You have mighty power entrusted to you, and if only the imprimatur—'let it be printed'—much used on the title-pages of books printed in the 16th and 17th centuries could be changed into 'let it not be printed' for every bad book, what a blessing it would be."

The present position of Mormonism as a religious sect is well summed up in the columns of the Spectator as follows:—

"The Mormon Church numbers at the present moment over 130,000 members; it possesses one of the most populous and wealthy territories in the Union, and nobody knows how much personal property; it has a highly organised system of immigration, which brings in 2000 recruits from Europe alone every year; it has 15,000 church members in Europe, and over 5000 in New Zealand; 400 Mormon missionaries are constantly engaged in preaching its doctrines abroad, and the whole body moves in the strictest subjection to the spiritual head and his representatives, recognising no other law than the decree of the church, accepting its awards and submitting to its punishments."

The worst of it is, the tendency of this moral pestilence is to spread even more widely, notwithstanding all protests against its abominations.

To our national discredit, the writer of the article quoted above asserts that it is in Great Britain that the large majority of the Mormon recruits, mostly young girls and women of the peasant class, are found.

"The English headquarters of the Church are in Liverpool, and there is a 'Perpetual Immigration Fund' deposited in the Bank of England, from which all the expenses of converts are defrayed. The foreign population of Utah at the last census was about 44,000, and of these 27,000 came from Great Britain, England alone furnishing over 20,000. And in one of the latest scandals in Salt Lake City that have come to public knowledge, the victim was described as 'a young girl from Leicestershire.'"

In view of such facts it is surely incumbent on public teachers who are located where these prophets of iniquity are most busily engaged, to be clear and outspoken in their declaration of what the system is, and whither it leads those who are deluded into joining it.

Norway is another field where successful operations are carried on by Mormon missionaries. A Christian captain from that country has just thanked us for our recent exposure of the system, and expresses his regret to know how large is the number of converts drawn from Scandinavian countries.

Now that all eyes are on Egypt we may be permitted to mention the work of Miss M. L. Whately, at Cairo, which we know to be in pressing need of help.

A statistical report of the population of Japan issued officially by that Department of the Japanese Government, gives the number of Christians in the empire as 80,000. Of these 60,000 are Roman Catholics, 20,000 Protestants. The number of converts to the Greek Church is also said to be very large. The success of evangelical Missions in Japan of late years has been a cause for great joy and thankfulness, but according to these figures what has been done only serves to show how great is the need for redoubled ardour in prosecuting the work. Japan numbers not less than 25,000,000 of inhabitants; we may well pray the Lord to send out more labourers, and scatter more abundantly the seed in so vast a field.

The subject of providing penny dinners for the children attending our Board Schools is not likely to drop. The Committee of Representative Board School Managers is awake to its importance, although unable to act officially in the matter. They have, however, addressed a circular to individual managers urging the value of the scheme, and suggesting plans for its adoption in different districts. One great desideratum in our social economy would be met by its being generally carried into effect.

As an illustration of the way in which the mystery of lawlessness doth already work, a correspondent, signing himself "One of the Lower Orders," sends us an account of a lecture he has just attended, delivered by Mr. Hyndman. The subject was "Law: or how the people are legally robbed." The lecturer contended that all law, human and divine, should be overturned, especially the decalogue, and urged that as a result great ease and pleasure would be enjoyed by the masses. The marriage tie could then be broken at the desire and will of either party, and social communism of rankest type be introduced. This is a line of teaching which is being extensively promulgated all over Europe, and the ignorant multitudes are receiving it only too readily. The result cannot be regarded too seriously, or deprecated too earnestly.

Our correspondent, in view of these facts, urges the necessity for the Christian Church more firmly to maintain in its teaching the sovereignty of God as the Ruler of the universe, and to uphold the authority of his Word in relation to human governments. Doctrines of a distinctly evangelical kind are of highest value and importance, but the times require the enforcement also of practical truths affecting the relations of God to man. It is doubtless true that to the lawless spirit of the age we need to oppose the spirit of obedience to the laws of God, and the maintenance of Divine supremacy. The selfishness and greed which so widely prevail among all classes, and which account so largely for the discontent and bitterness which exist among the poor, are but too rife even in the churches of Christ, and we need to testify against them.

Mr. Charles Cook has, as our readers are aware, again taken the Metropolitan Music Hall for evangelistic services during the winter. £150 is needed. It is a courageous thing to undertake this work single-handed, and we hope the financial burden will be taken off Mr. Cook's shoulders.

In the Report of the London Y.M.C. Associations, recently issued, there is a very valuable list of the Associations throughout the world, with names and addresses of secretaries. There should be a copy of this list in every family where there is a young man who will have to go forth and fight his way in the world. Wheresoever his footsteps may be directed, at home or abroad, he can be assured that if there is a Y.M.C.A. in that place, there he will find a hearty welcome and a helping hand. Copies of this list can be procured at Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C., price 6d.

The advances made by sacerdotalism form one of the most ominous features of our times, to the seriousness of which the public mind is by no means awake. It is operating throughout the land to undermine and destroy the influence of the truth. In the East-end of London there are churches to be found, such as those at St. James's, Curtain-road, Shoreditch, and St. Michael's, Mark-street, Finsbury, where in the midst of dense populations doctrines and practices of a distinctly Romish character are unblushingly resorted to. The result is not so much that the people are converted to their pernicious ways, as that they are led to ridicule religion, and regard its claims with indifference and contempt.

What is wanted in order to meet the danger caused by modern Ritualistic revivals is a more decided and outspoken testimony on the part of all believers in the Gospel of Christ—testimony to the all-sufficiency of his priesthood and work, and against all teaching which upholds the clericalism and sponsorship of man. In these times fidelity to such truths as the Headship of Christ, the oneness and completeness of his mediation, and the perfectness of his atoning sacrifice, is of supreme importance. It behoves every servant of Christ to clear himself of all complicity with whatever tends to compromise these fundamental doctrines.

The French Government, it is said, has announced its intention to make use of the law of 1791, and to fix a tariff for bread, if the bakers of Paris do not of their own accord reduce the price of that commodity. It does this on the ground that it is unjust for one trade to reap the advantage of plenteous harvests at the expense of the general community. In some of the provincial towns the mayors have already fixed a tariff.

The Annual Report of the Howard Association has just been issued, and contains a large amount of useful information on social themes of pressing moment. The prison system in vogue in our country undoubtedly requires vigilant and careful supervision, and in this direction the Society is specially valuable, pointing out where defects exist, and suggesting their remedy. Under the headings, "insane and weak-minded prisoners," "prison architecture," "convict classification," "prisoners' appeals," &c., much information is afforded. The Report may be had at the office, 5, Bishopsgate-street Without, E.C.

Referring to the housing of the poor, the Report lays great stress on the importance of relying on the spread of education, temperance and religion, for improvement, rather than on State provision. If millions were expended on new dwellings for the people, while they remain irreligious and ignorant, the committee holds that it would be a huge waste. Illustrations abound that if cottages ever so neat and commodious are put into the hands of morally low and degraded classes, they soon become as filthy and shabby as other slums. This important aspect of the subject requires the serious attention of all philanthropists.

The address on "Democracy" last week at Birmingham by Mr. Russell Lowell, the United States minister to Great Britain, contained many good points. It, nevertheless, reveals the weakness and oft self-contradiction of human philosophy, even at its best. Mr. Lowell is reported to have said:—

"For the individual man there is no radical cure for the evils to which human nature is heir outside of human nature i self. The rule will always hold good that you must 'Be your own palace, or the world's your gaol.'"

And yet he added further on:—

"Our healing is not in the storm of the whirlwind; it is not in monarchies, or aristocracies, or democracies, but will be revealed by the 'still, small voice' which speaks to the conscience and the heart, prompting us to a wider and wiser humanity."

Probably the lecturer would say that "still, small voice" is not "outside of human nature itself." But if so, we know how the inspired Word gives it as the voice of God, and are sure that, whether for the ills of society at large, or of the individual man, the only remedy is for its Divine accents to reach the inner ear of the soul.

A very interesting gathering is expected in connection with the meeting, at Mildmay Conference Hall next Thursday evening, of the combined choirs who assisted at the special services conducted by Messrs. Moody and Sankey. It ought to awaken many pleasant reminiscences of the past winter's busy work. We observe that, in addition to the singing of our chorister friends, there are to be addresses by Dr. Sinclair Paterson and Mr. Marcus Rainsford, jun. As the admission is free, we hope there will be a generous collection, which is to be devoted to the purchase of books for Mr. Moody's Northfield libraries.

A writer in Eastward Ho for this month lodges a heavy indictment of bribery against our police force. He declares that he "can bring the most unimpeachable evidence to prove that the police are not, as a body, the honest, sober, respectable, and incorruptible men many in their innocence believe them to be." The facts he adduces go far to sustain his argument, and to prove the need of reform. The chief blame, the writer alleges, lies with the inspectors, and these, he argues, should be drawn from a higher class than at present. We have heard of some who have sought to preserve their integrity, and have had to suffer for it. Were the police faithful in the execution of their duty, it would be simply impossible for houses of ill-fame to escape detection and remain undisturbed, as they do in many districts. Such charges as the writer brings against the force demand official investigation and remedy. We much fear, however, that official investigation will not ensure the remedy, until officialdom is purified by letting in upon it the light of Christian testimony.

In connection with the Reformed Nestorian Church, Pastor Jacob, of Oroomiah, and his wife, Moressa, are labouring earnestly and successfully among the Mahommedan population of their native land. Their second son, a young man of twenty, is an ardent convert to Christ, and is led to consecrate his life to medical mission work in Oroomiah, and it is desired to provide means for his needful training. The worthiness of his case is abundantly testified by those who are intimately acquainted with the facts. Friends in Manchester and Southport have guaranteed £50 a year for four years, but additional aid will be required to meet the need. Further information may be obtained of the Rev. T. W. Brown, of the Turkish Missions' Aid Society, 7, Adam-street, W.C.

The Boston Traveller states that on August 28 the largest cargo of New England rum ever shipped from the United States left for Africa. No less than 150,000 gallons of this fiery spirit were exported from Boston to this newly-opened field of enterprise. Thus do human greed, Satanic influence, and heartless indifference to the moral welfare of the African race, combine to obstruct the path of progress in the regeneration of the Dark Continent. The African Trading Company of the Zambesi and the Shire will not allow liquors to go in on their ships. Would that all shipping companies were of the same mind. As it is otherwise, these efforts to demoralise the races of Africa must serve to stimulate to greater zeal all branches of the Church, in striving for their evangelisation.

Among the topics dealt with at the recent Church Congress, social purity occupied a prominent place. Considerable tact and skill in its treatment were displayed by Capt. Seton Churchill, who read a paper in which he claimed that the importance of the subject gave it priority over even Temperance itself. His advice to parents to forewarn their children was both wise and timely.

The annual report of the work done by the London School Board has just been given in an address by the Chairman, read at the weekly meeting of members the other day. There are at present 367 schools, accommodating 328,683 children. An increase of 18,683 scholars has been made to the rolls during the past year. Progress is still to be the law of action, contracts for thirty-seven new schools, beside others for enlargement having just been entered into, the result being the levying a still higher rate upon the ratepayers. It is satisfactory to find that Mr. Buxton recognises the need for vigilance in relstion to the subject of over-pressure, and that in the matter of teachers' salaries, readjustments are being made.

There is much indiscriminate charity which is but ill-bestowed, and probably results in evil rather than good. In a sermon recently preached by the Rev. Hugh Stowell Brown, of Liverpool, he stated his belief that there was in that city a population of at least 10,000 persons whom indiscriminate liberality encouraged in idleness and lying, supported in laziness, and plentifully supplied with strong drink. Probably a similar statement might be made of other large towns and cities. The donors of such charity have no idea of its being misplaced, but for want of thought and investigation they fall into the traps laid for them. It is, however, a duty not only to be liberal, but to see that our liberality flows in right channels.

In the same sermon Mr. Brown makes some trenchant remarks on the undue multiplication of churches and chapels. He said he was sure that not a few places of worship were built that were scarcely required. Naturally, every man wished to have a church of his own kind, and within a few hundred yards of his own door, and so merely to save a very few good Christian people rom a very slight inconvenience, churches all round must be multiplied, and when the place was built it often turned out a dismal failure, especially when it was built for the people, and not by them. Mr. Brown also expressed his conviction that denominationalism and want of catholicity of feeling among Christians, in spite of Evangelical Alliances and other institutions, were more rife than in his younger days.

The following, from the telegraphic correspondence of The Times on Saturday last, does not encourage the hope of the speedy dawn of brighter days in Russia. When will governments and ecclesiastics learn the first elements of the principles of the Gospel of Christ?

"St. Petersburg, Oct. 10.—At Novomoskofsk, in the province of Ekaterinoslav, a trial of heresy is about to take place, in which ninety-two men and eleven women sectarians will figure as accused. They belong to a new sect of seceders from the Orthodox Church, which recognises neither spiritual nor temporal authorities, and disbelieves in the sacrament and the virtue of holy pictures. Its members lead sober, industrious lives. The Council of Bishops of the Orthodox Church, which has been sitting at Kieff, is said to have had for its object the consideration of the measures to be taken against the continual growth of dissent."

Londoners cannot fail to be gratified with the statement lately made by Dr. Sedgwick Saunders, Medical Officer of Health to the Corporation, in his report on the sanitary condition of the Metropolis, that it was never cleaner, healthier, or more free from nuisances than at the present time. The death rate in the City as compared with that in twenty-eight large towns in England and Wales is exceptionally small. Between July 19 and Sept. 6, it is said that it amounted only to 12·42 per thousand, as against 24·20 per thousand in the case of the towns selected. Supposing the statistics on which this report is founded to be correct, and based on sure premises, the state of things as thus set forth at a time when disease threatens, is eminently reassuring and satisfactory. There is no room, however, for relaxing due sanitary precautions.

Referring to the subject of the Christian's duty in reference to amusements, the gifted authoress of the Life of Capt. Hedley Vicars, and other well-known works, says: "Many years ago four simple thoughts as to the vexed question of how far those who desire to live for God should join in social amusements, seemed to me to reduce every mountain of difficulty to a molehill. They were these: As I belong to the Lord Jesus by creation, by redemption, by his choice, and by my choice, I will not go to any entertainment where I could not ask for his presence to go with me; where I could not, as opportunity might occur, give a message from Him to anyone who should converse with me; where, if He were still on earth, I could not have expected to meet Him; and where, if He should return suddenly, I would rather that He should not find me."

NORWOOD.—The Upper Norwood branch of the Young Women's Christian Association have entered their new premises in Gipsy-hill. It is in contemplation, we believe, to establish a Young Men's Association in this neighbourhood.

MR. SPURGEON'S EVANGELISTS.

NOT the least of the many agencies on foot at the Metropolitan Tabernacle is the Evangelists' Association, which consists, as Mr. Spurgeon well puts it, of "men and women who have given themselves up for the extension of the Redeemer's kingdom." On Friday evening last the annual meeting was held in the Lecture Hall of the Tabernacle, with Pastor C. H. Spurgeon in the chair. "I have been lecturing in the College until now," he said, as he entered the room while the members and friends were enjoying a cup of tea, "and now I have come to rest, it gives me great pleasure to look on your faces." What Mr. Spurgeon's idea of rest is it is difficult to tell; but we were sorry to observe the worn and weary expression on his face.

One cheerful element of the meeting was the hearty singing of duets and choruses (chiefly from The Christian Choir) by the members of the choirs in connection with the various Missions represented at the meeting. And certainly all chilliness was driven away from the gathering as the "Asylum Choir" vigorously struck up the chorus to a Salvation Army tune:—

"At the end of our journey I shall wear a crown!
I shall wear a crown! I shall wear a crown!
At the end of our journey I shall wear a crown,
In the New Jerusalem!"

Mr. G. E. Elvin, the secretary, read his interesting report, which stated that there were seven Mission stations connected with the Association, and that during the year no less than 3393 services, comprising evangelistic meetings in Mission halls, open-air services, and pulpits supplied in London and the provinces, had been held by the members of the Association. A balance of £3 7s. 11d. was reported. We feel sure that if the existence and work of the Association were better known to the Christian public, it would not be necessary for the president to contribute £100 for annum towards its support. One telling incident in the report is worth repeating. Some friends of one of the Mission stations, in their endeavour to secure an audience, accosted a man who, with his jug, was going to the public-house for his supper beer. The heartiness of the invitation induced him to attend the meeting: the Lord met with him there; and, forgetting his jug, he went home full of joy, to tell how great things the Lord had done for him. The jug is still to be found at the Mission hall, where it is kept as a trophy from the camp of the enemy.

Then followed some pungent remarks by the Chairman to "those who go out to preach, and the sisters and brethren who go to sing." "Your preaching," said he, "should be with all your mind, and with all your heart, and with all your soul, when you are at it. The seed which you sow is living seed. It has the same living power as it had in the time of the Apostles; and it is when living men, having received the living Word, scatter the seed with a living hand in a living way, that it springs up, and fruit follows." Then followed some good sound advice for preachers and teachers—and, in fact, all Christian workers—on the importance of earnest prayer; of looking after the seed sown; of using common sense; and last, but not least, of love. "I have never heard," said Mr. Spurgeon, "of an institution where young mothers are taught to nurse their babes; but as soon as a child is born, it is love that prompts the mother to cherish her child. Love becomes the best instructor. So must you preachers love the people if you would be the means of saving them. Don't try to bully anyone to heaven; you won't lug them to glory by the ears!"

Mr. Britton, one of the members of the Association, told of the blessing that had attended his work.—He mentioned the success of some meetings in Northampton, where he was told by some friends to "tell the people of London that though we have a black name, there is a good work being done here; the Gospel is winning its way, and the Saviour's kingdom is being extended in this hotbed of infidelity."

Mr. Thomas Spurgeon, in an eloquent address, said that on one occasion he took up a paper, and was struck with an item in the "shipping intelligence" which announced the arrival of a schooner with a cargo of "fireworks and fruit." "I had to attend that same day," said the speaker, "the Recognition Services of a new minister who had come to settle down in the neighbourhood, and I wondered if he had come with such a cargo." After cautioning his hearers against some useless fireworks, he said: "But there are some fireworks which it would be well for every Christian minister to display. Let us always show the blue light of God's saving grace; the red light of Jesus' crimson blood; and for a set piece let the words 'God is Love' shine out in letters of fire. For a rocket," he continued, "let it resemble the life-saving apparatus which is gladly welcomed by the wrecked mariner. If you must have a rocket, let it be of that sort." Then he spoke of the fruits which every evangelist should bear—first of all, fruits meet for repentance; then the fruits of personal character; finally, the fruits of the Spirit—love, joy, peace, &c.

Rev. Dr. Thain Davidson then spoke of the evangelistic services at the Agricultural Hall, and of the blessing which had attended them during the past sixteen years. In an able and telling address, he referred to the characteristics of every member of the Association, the heads of which formed an acrostic of the secretary's name:—

E—Evangelicalism of doctrine.
L—Liberality of spirit.
V—Vivacity of style.
I—Indomitable perseverance.
N—Novelty of method.

On the last head he referred to the thousands who had been brought into the Kingdom of Christ through the service of song, and was glad that by means of the Association the ladies were being brought to the front, and were rendering good service to the cause of Christ.

Several other short addresses were delivered by members of the Association, interspersed with lively singing by the various Mission Choirs, and the meeting was brought to a close after three hours' duration.

ST. GILES' CHRISTIAN MISSION.

AFTER an absence from home of some two months and more, I have been graciously permitted to return to my loved work in St. Giles, with slightly improved health, and I shall be grateful if you will allow me to return my heartfelt thanks to our many friends who have written us to make kindly inquiries, and to express sympathy during my enforced retirement. I am most thankful to be able to report that all the various agencies in active operation in connection with our many-sided Mission are in a very healthy condition.

Last Sunday evening we were unable to accommodate the numbers who sought for admission at the Mission chapel, although we have seats for nearly 1000 persons, beside which some precious cases of blessing are gladdening our hearts. The work among discharged prisoners under the special care of my valued fellow-helper Mr. Wheatley is also very cheering in its results.

While all this is most encouraging, the finances of the Mission are so very unsatisfactory that we are much perplexed. Some £500 at the least is needed to pay pressing outstanding liabilities, and then we have not a fraction wherewith to meet our daily demands. We cannot believe that the Lord's people who sympathise with this Rescue Work will allow us to stay our hands at this juncture for the lack of means.
—Sincerely yours, Geo. Hatton.

12, Ampton-place, Regent-square, W.C.

GIBRALTAR.—The Gibraltar Seamen's Missioner, Mr. Sylvester, visited the ship conveying the Canadian boatmen to Egypt. After an earnest address to them on deck, no less than eighty-two came forward and signed the total abstinence pledge. During the six months since he commenced work here he has taken upwards of 500 pledges from the mercantile seamen visiting our port.

THE LONDON "MIZPAH BANDS."

DEAR SIR,—The deep interest taken by your readers in the formation of these bands has prompted me to crave a small portion of your space to tell how the good work has gone on among them since the departure of our esteemed brethren, Messrs. Moody and Sankey, for America.

At the close of the New Cross Mission several of the more influential brethren, who took a deep interest in its success, were applied to, to aid in the formation of a Mizpah Band; but this was found inconvenient for them, as their hands were so full of work already, and few of them resided in the immediate locality. A warm-hearted friend of Gospel Temperance in the neighbourhood kindly offered the use of the schoolroom belonging to his chapel. A meeting was called, when some six or seven working men came together, some of whom had suffered severely from the curse of strong drink. On hearing the nature and object of the organisation explained to them, they manifested deep interest and earnest desire for its success.

The few friends desirous of planting their standard where it was most needed, and where the greatest amount of good might be done, suggested that Deptford was in the immediate locality, and appeared to be a more necessitous field than New Cross. A sub-committee was appointed, to try and find a hall for a weekly meeting. They returned with the intelligence that all the halls were already occupied, and that the only place they could find was an empty shop and a dwelling-house, the rent of which was about £40 a year. To the handful of working men this seemed an insurmountable difficulty. An effort was made, and the first quarter's rent was raised and paid in advance. This was all well so far, but there were no seats of any kind in the building, for the use of the congregation that might be gathered together. As some of the friends were joiners or carpenters by trade, they suggested, if we bought the wood, they would gladly make the forms themselves. This was speedily done, and the new Mission Hall was opened on the first Saturday evening. Three meetings were held in it on the following Sabbath. The following, received a few days ago, relates how the good work goes on at Mizpah Hall, Wellington-street, Deptford.

Yours faithfully, R. Simpson.

Glasgow.

Deptford.—I am pleased to state that God has blessed us; we have taken, since the hall first opened, about 200 pledges, and about fifty have found peace. This is very encouraging to us as a band of workers. We found that our hall was not large enough on a Sunday evening to hold our congregations. We have altered it to accommodate about fifty more, and have renovated the inside so as to make it more comfortable for the people. On Wednesday last we had the senior and junior tea meeting; it was a great success. The hall was overcrowded. Several, we believe, were convicted of sin, and we trust it may lead to their conversion.

We have formed a Mothers' Meeting, held every Monday afternoon, which is well attended. We have also formed a Band of Hope, which we call the Junior Mizpah Band, and which meets every Tuesday; in this we have about 100 children. During the summer months we have had three services a week in the open air, and at these we have had large gatherings of listeners.

We find that our alterations have somewhat embarrassed us in our money matters. We have had to pay for these alterations, and, of course, spent some of the money we had for our rent, so shall have to fall back upon a few friends to assist us. We trust by the goodness of God we shall go on all right. The hall itself is now self-supporting.—Yours in Christ,

Caleb S. Pellatt, Secretary.

A THANK-OFFERING.—A lady writes the following:—"Will the Secretary of the Railway Mission accept the enclosed donation of 10s. towards its funds, as a thank-offering to God for many safe journeys granted to dear ones during the past six months?" The office of the Mission is at 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

CONFERENCE ON PROPHECY,

AVENUE-ROAD CHURCH, SHEPHERD'S BUSH,

October 7, 8, and 9.

YEAR by year this Conference grows in numbers and importance, giving clear evidence of the growing interest of Christians in the great hope of the Church—the return of her Lord.

TUESDAY.

After singing, and prayer by Pastor FRANK H. WHITE, at the opening meeting, October 7, three o'clock, Mr. GRAHAM, the pastor, said: It affords us much pleasure to meet our friends in this our third Conference, for the study of the prophetic Word. In asking you together for prayer and meditation on those Scriptures which speak of the advent in glory of our blessed Lord, and the subjects connected with it, we are convinced that we are in sympathy with the purposes of God. Our blessed Lord has shown us that the testimony which will awake the slumbering virgins, both wise and foolish, and will lead the wise to trim their lamps, and recruit them with oil, is the midnight cry, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye forth to meet Him."

All truth has its ministry; for "all Scripture is given by inspiration of God;" but to emphasise the great truth of the Lord's advent becomes more and more important as the day approaches. If the words of the apostle Peter were needful for the warning and instruction of the Church in his day, how much more needful is it in ours? "For we did not follow cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eye-witnesses of his majesty. For He received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to Him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." This vision and voice, the Apostle tells us, has made to us "the word of prophecy more sure; whereunto," he says, "ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts" (2 Pet. i. 16-19.)

The sanctifying power of this blessed hope is forcibly expressed by the apostle John: "Beloved, now are we children of God, and it is not yet made manifest what we shall be. We know that if He shall be manifested, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is. And every one that hath this hope set on Him purifieth himself, even as He is pure" (1 John iii. 2, 3). Our desire is, that through the unfolding in this Conference of the exceeding great and precious promises given us, we may "cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of the Lord."

Mr. PEMBER: The object of these Conferences is to obtain spiritual power to grow and work for God. The advent of the Lord may be near, and the greatness of its glory we may see from what was required to purchase it. Hence the importance of seeking to increase present usefulness, to work hard, preach, walk seemly, and deny ourselves. The slothful servant shall be shut out. To five of the virgins the door was not opened. Paul gave unceasing thanks to God on behalf of the Thessalonians, because of "their work of faith and labour of love and patience of hope." We see what that hope was: "They turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven." From Acts xvii. we see their Church was founded in suffering. The consolation for that suffering was the coming glory, concerning which Paul had taught them.

This truth, when first received by the Thessalonians, was not fully understood. They expected the day of the Lord without the resurrection of the dead, and were, therefore, troubled by the thought that their friends who slept in Jesus should not be with them in the glory of the Kingdom. Every great event in the life of Christ has its counterpart in its members. We, like Him, emerge out of death into resurrection life and glory. Our union with Christ is now mystical, but will soon be visible. That shout with which the Lord will descend is the word of command which, like the voice that awoke Lazarus, will raise all who sleep in Jesus.

Rev. W. FULLER GOOCH: Unlike many Christian teachers in the present day, Paul would not have the Thessalonians to be ignorant of the great subject of prophecy. Peter told the scattered strangers to whom he wrote that they did well to take heed to the prophetic Word, made more sure by the vision on the mount, and the voice from the excellent glory (2 Peter ii.). Paul's prophetic teachings to the Thessalonians were designed to give them special comfort under bereavement, a comfort which the Divine Spirit intends also for us. The first advent was once, as the second advent now is, a prophetic study. The resurrection of the saints, and their coming with Christ, is a certainty. "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, then them also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." Seven things are affirmed of Christ in relation to his people: (1) He died for our sins; (2) He rose again from the dead; (3) He is now at the right hand of God, our life and joy; (4) He is coming again; (5) At his coming He will raise his sleeping saints; (6) He will change all believers then alive; (7) All shall then be caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall ever be with the Lord. It is at this period that all believers shall appear before the judgment-seat of Christ to receive according to the deeds done in the body.

Evening meeting, seven o'clock. Subject, 2 Thess. ii. After some important words on the character of the times, and the coming personal anti-Christ, from Rev. John Reeves Purcell,

Dr. ANDERSON said: As we look for a personal Christ, so we look for a personal anti-Christ. To deny what God affirms is more than irreverent. When Paul beseeches the Thessalonians by the coming of Christ, and our gathering together unto Him, it is clear they were well acquainted with these subjects. The mystery of lawlessness, which was to culminate in the man of sin, was then working. That coming (or presence) by which the Lord will destroy him, includes the whole subject of Christ's manifestations. The terrible character of "the day of the Lord" we have in Joel i. 15; Isa. xviii. 6; Zeph. i. 14. No wonder that the Thessalonians should be troubled, if they thought that day had come. Under the sixth seal the great day of wrath is at hand, and the seventh seal ushers it in. The coming of the man of sin, the lawless one, will be after the working of Satan, with all power, and signs, and lying wonders—wonders to establish his lie, that he is God. The dragon will give him his throne, and great authority. He will be the travesty of the incarnation and resurrection of Christ (Rev. xiii).

Rev. JAMES STEPHEN, having given a summary of the argument, dealt with its practical lessons. The Apostle exhorts us not to be troubled, for the coming of Christ will take us out of all troubles. The man of sin comes in "the energy of Satan, with all power, and signs, and lying wonders." These are the terms applied to the works of Christ. The progress of the world is progress toward apostacy. The reason why men will receive the anti-Christ is "because they received not the love of the truth that they might be saved." The Jews would not receive the true Christ, but they will receive the false one. Our safety is in holding fast the Word of God. Satan is strong; Christ is stronger. The greatest power of Satan precedes the mighty power of Jesus when He shall become King over all the earth.

WEDNESDAY.

The Rev. JOHN WILKINSON observed that the true way to understand the prophetic Scriptures is to take them always literally when the literal sense is not absurd. It was prophesied that our blessed Lord was to ride into Jerusalem upon an ass, and there to be sold for thirty pieces of silver. The literal, though unlikely sense, in these instances was the true one. Mr. Wilkinson's observations on the genealogies of our Lord, in Matthew and Luke, in connection with "the rod out of the stem of Jesse" (Isa. xi.) were very instructive. It is to be hoped they will be published in an amplified form. That the Jews will be restored to their own land, we have the following evidences: Isa. xi 1: "The Lord shall set his hand the second time to recover the remnant of his people that shall be left." One restoration has taken place; the second is to come. (2) They are to be gathered from the four quarters of the earth. (3) Once gathered they are never again to be scattered. (4) They have never yet possessed all the land promised to them, equal to 300,000 square miles. (5) From the end of Ezekiel's prophecy we see that, when restored, the division of the land to the tribes will be quite different from that made by Joshua.

In the evening the Rev. JOHN BENNETT, Chelsea, remarked that, however Christians may differ on some points of prophecy, all look to meet Christ in person, and when they see Him hope to be like Him. It is by this prospect, the Apostle exhorts us, "Stablish your hearts." Seven times, in Rev. xx. 2—7, to give emphasis to the fact, the period of the Lord's reign with his people over the earth is stated to be a thousand years. The Book of Revelation is a supplement to the prophetic Scriptures. It assumes that we are already familiar with what is written in the Psalms, Isaiah, Daniel, &c. It is in Old Testament prophecy that we have the fullest description of the earthly aspect of the Millennium. That the first resurrection precedes the thousand years of earthly blessedness is not only the teaching of Rev. xx., but of many other Scriptures—1 Thess. iv., 1 Cor. xv., &c.

The Rev. F. H. WHITE read the clear and forcible remarks of Dean Alford, on the first resurrection as preceding the Millennium (Rev. xx. 4). The prophecies, as scattered over the Scriptures, are like a dissected map; we may have difficulty in rightly putting all the pieces together, but those large pieces, which we can put in their place, let us hold to and stand on. Satan, who is here presented to us under four descriptive titles, is soon to be bruised under our feet; but in Rev. xx. we see him more than bruised; we see him bound, and shut up for a thousand years in the abyss. At the end of the thousand years we see him loosed for man's last trial, and after his vain attempted attack on the camp of the saints and the beloved city, cast for ever into the lake of fire. Awful words! Into that lake of fire all whose names are not written in the Book of Life are cast. This is that punishment from which there is no release, and of which there is no end.

THURSDAY.

Mr. J. E. MATHIESON, presiding in the afternoon, read Rev. xxi., and remarked that the title of Christ, the Lamb, which occurs in this chapter seven times, points to that Atonement on which our hope rests. This is a doctrine to which we should give prominence at the present hour; for "the enemies of the Cross of Christ" are many.

The Rev. W. Fuller Gooch and Mr. Russell Hurditch followed with two solemn and instructive addresses on the subject for consideration, Rev. xxi.

The evening meeting was devoted to the consideration of "Practical Lessons," when the Rev. J. E. Linnell and Mr. R. C. Morgan dealt solemnly and searchingly with the consciences of both saints and sinners, in view of the Lord's advent and of the things which are coming on the earth. After Mr. Pember had spoken some appropriate and instructive words, this Conference, marked throughout by a spirit of harmony and devotion, was closed by Mr. Graham with a hymn of thanksgiving and prayer.

A SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION was held last week at Kirkcaldy, N.B., when valuable addresses were given by Mr. Munro-Ferguson, M.P., Rev. J. Stalker, Professor Drummond, and others. We hope to give some details in our next.

A DOOMED INSTITUTION.

IF anyone who is familiar with the course of events in Europe for the last decade and a half were to be asked, What is its greatest plague spot? he would, without hesitation, answer "Monte Carlo." For that period or more the public gaming-tables of Monaco have been the source and centre of a moral malaria that has turned one of the fairest spots on earth's surface into a hissing and a reproach throughout the civilised world. Viewed as it came from the hands of its Creator, it is "a veritable paradise." Through the perverted ingenuity of bad men it has become a devil's sanctuary—"a golden hell," as a recent Italian writer tersely and truthfully describes it. Mr. Spurgeon, in an article in The Sword and Trowel, calls it "the serpent in Paradise."

Last year upwards of 400,000 railway tickets to Monaco were sold. Apart from its charming situation by the sea, and its natural beauties, now enhanced by art, the human propensity for gambling at Monte Carlo is increased by the fact that public gaming tables have been suppressed in all other parts of Europe. This liliputian state is thus enriched by the plunder of foreigners, some of whom, resorting thither for the restoration of their health, too often end by sacrificing their lives and fortunes. Nowhere does suicide leave such sanguinary traces, both publicly and privately, as at Monte Carlo. As many as five suicides of ruined gamblers have occurred in one week. During last season forty-two cases were recorded.

We hope we are not over-sanguine in describing Monte Carlo as "a doomed institution." The wonder is that the collective moral sense of Europe has not long ere now taken some form or other that would have consigned it to condign destruction, as the Alpine avalanche wipes out of existence the remote mountain village that lies in its course. The history of Monte Carlo, comparatively short though it be, has been written in dissipated fortunes, in tears and anguish, in broken hearts and worse than wasted lives, exceeding all human computation. The marvel is, we repeat, that such a baleful upas tree should have flourished, and claimed its yearly holocaust of victims, so long. We rejoice to believe that ere many more months go by, the death-warrant of this unspeakable institution will have been signed and sealed—perhaps put into execution. There will be joy in many hearts and homes—without presumption we may say there will be joy in the presence of the angels of God—when that auspicious moment arrives.

How, it may be asked, has this consummation, so devoutly to be desired, been brought about? We direct the attention of all such inquirers to a most timely volume that has just issued from the press.* We call it timely because at this season many English families may be preparing to spend the inclement winter months on the sunny slopes of the Riviera. They will proceed thither with a lighter heart after they have mastered the contents of this book and gathered from it the comforting assurance which we have ventured to express. The volume is timely, too, because it may—we trust it will—largely supply the stimulus that may yet be needed, before the consentient opinion of respectable Europe finds its due fruition in the mandate that must proceed from the French Executive, for the abolition of this "golden hell" within its borders. Nothing can be clearer, from an impartial view of the facts, than that Monaco is under the jurisdiction of France. That nation, to its credit be it said, was the first to suppress public gambling in Europe, some half-century ago. It remains for it now to crown the work by doing for Monte Carlo what Germany did some years since for Wiesbaden and Homburg and Ems, greatly to the real prosperity of these popular health resorts.

The limits of our space will not permit us to reproduce in detail the striking descriptions and denunciations of Monte Carlo that are to be found in this volume, culled with a skilful and careful hand from the public journals of Italy, France, Germany, England, and America. The writers of these articles condemn the place and its ways with one consent. They seem almost to have exhausted the entire vocabulary of strong and expressive epithets, in passing indignant sentence upon this gilded charnel-house. One calls it "a den of thieves and doubtful women." There are graphic portrayals of the play, and its strangely fascinating hold upon those who once put themselves under its magic spell. One striking extract we may make, from one of a series of articles by the gifted French writer Gabriel Charmes, that appeared last February in the Journal des Debats:—

"Often women are seen rushing out of the casino, inflamed with the passion of gambling, to their hotels, to cast into the hands of the usurers the ornaments with which they are bedecked. They would play away their hats, their dresses, all their clothes, if the rigid police of Monte Carlo allowed it. Men give up their watches, their studs, and their scarf pins. In a sale at Monte Carlo 1560 scarf pins were offered, which had been taken from the necks of ruined men, who thus were enabled to try their luck once more."

The annual income of the gaming establishment is stated on the best authority to be somewhere about thirty millions of francs! But of this, large sums are, of course, disbursed for expenses, including bribes to such of the French, and some few papers in other countries, as are amenable to that species of argument, and who pay for this complicity by observing a discreet silence with respect to the numerous suicides and other scandals of the place. It is an open secret that the Paris Figaro, the broadsheet of the boulevards, accepts from Monte Carlo, as the price of its guilt, an annual subvention of 150,000 francs.

It will be understood that it has been no easy task to fight such a powerful and moneyed establishment, and to bring to bear upon it the united condemnation of Europe. This result has, however, at great cost, been achieved by the International Association for the Suppression of the Gaming Tables, to whose efforts we have at various times referred. For five years this body of earnest-minded Christian gentlemen have been struggling to put at end to the legalised iniquity of Monte Carlo; now, happily, success seems within reach. To create and sustain the requisite public opinion papers and pamphlets containing the true state of the case have been strewn over Europe to the number of hundreds of thousands. A very large expenditure has been incurred in the prosecution of this stiff crusade, and the burden has mainly fallen on very few shoulders. We trust no effort will be spared that may yet be required to crown this movement with complete success. For this purpose immediate support is now needed.

It seems to us that England should specially bestir herself in the matter, and come to the help of the International Association. It makes us blush for shame to read that, though this country has been foremost in promoting the agitation for removing the plague spot, half the gamblers at Monaco are English. Let England make haste to clear her skirts from such a reproach. It was through the public spirit and ample generosity of a well-known English Christian gentleman—Mr. Henry Thompson, of London—that this movement of suppression was commenced. We may add that Mr. Alexander, the editor of the book to which we have referred, has himself been a most active worker in the cause; he is, therefore, fully conversant with the difficulties that have been encountered. Mr. Thompson is Treasurer of the International Association, and his address is 38, Mincing-lane, E.C.

SEVEN DIALS MISSION, SHORT'S GARDENS.—This Mission is in a prosperous state. The Sunday congregations are large, and on Wednesday evenings the attendance is particularly gratifying. In connection with the Mission is a mothers' meeting on Tuesday afternoons, at which the average attendance is 100 women of the poorest sort. The other branches of the work include a Saturday evening men's meeting, and house-to-house visitation. Help is much needed for the continuance of the work, which is under the superintendence of Rev. F. S. Swindell, 32, Broad-street, Seven Dials, W.C.

NOTES FROM NEW YORK.

AS the autumn days come on many who have been away from home are returning and entering their usual fields of Christian work. This increasing custom of using the summer months for travel and visits to the mountains or the seashore, necessarily affects the amount of work done in the ordinary channels of Christian activity.

Scarcely had the workers entered upon their fields, before our hearts were saddened by the news of the death of two representative men in widely separated lines of work in the Lord's vineyard—William Earle Dodge and Jerry McAuley. The one was but a young man of twenty-six, cultured, educated, from a family well-known in all the land for its consecration of wealth and time and influence to Christian work; the other was an illustration of the power of grace to save one from among the vilest, and use him in a few short years to lead multitudes, similarly fallen, to Christ. Mr. Dodge was Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, and was especially interested in the erection of the new building for the Bowery Branch of that Association, as well as in many other forms of Christian work. Jerry McAuley, under God, was the founder of the Water-street and Cremorne-garden Missions, and by his influence hundreds have been led to Christ. It will be hard to find one to take his place.

We are now in the midst of the quadrennial political excitement in our nation, yet the prospects of a vigorous and aggressive winter's work for the Master are very encouraging.

The Lord's-day afternoon services at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, conducted by Dr. Pentecost, are to be opened by Mr. Moody on October 12. On the 15th Mr. Moody is to conduct a Christian Convention in Buffalo, continuing two or three days. Many of our States will hold, during October, their annual State Convention, and Mr. Moody has promised to attend the one for Massachusetts, October 3—5. These gatherings are usually seasons of great spiritual refreshing. In six or eight of the leading cities of New York the pastors and Young Men's Christian Associations have united in an invitation to Mr. Moody to hold Christian Conventions among them. He has replied, giving them encouragement to expect his presence.

These things, with the fact that in our Y.M.C.A.'s, we have more aggressive young men's meetings and more Bible-classes this year than ever, encourage us to look for a rich blessing upon our State in the near future.

The Brooklyn Association are to have Mr. Moody with them October 11, to give the address at the laying of their corner-stone, while at Auburn, Syracuse, and Bowery Branches new buildings are in process of erection. May I urge your readers to remember our work in prayer, and ask for us gracious outpourings of the Divine Spirit upon us this year.

New York, Oct. 1. G. A. Hall.

VILLAGE LIBRARIES.—I would call the attention of your readers to the subject of free libraries for villages. I have now nearly 200 books that I lend free to all who will read. I call around and change the books, frequently sitting down and lifting up Christ to attentive and willing listeners. Much good might be done, I think, this way. I started with a few books, and they are gradually increasing. I have a young lady who assists me in two or three villages in distributing. People take to them better than tracts.

Camelford, Cornwall. G. E. Pearce.

MR. REGINALD RADCLIFFE gave a most spirit-stirring address at Park Church, Highbury, on Sunday evening last. In addition to engagements on Monday and Tuesday evening this week, he speaks at the Home of Industry Workers' Meeting on Wednesday evening, and at a meeting for conference and prayer at the Young Men's Christian Association, 186, Aldersgate-street, on Thursday evening at half-past seven o'clock, to which both ladies and gentlemen are heartily invited. Mr. Radcliffe also gives the address on Sunday morning next, at eleven o'clock, at Camden-road Chapel (Rev. F. Tucker's).

* Monte Carlo and Public Opinion. Edited by a Visitor to the Riviera. 3s. 6d. Rivingtons.

THE LATE MRS. JAMES SOMERVILLE.

By Rev. JAMES STALKER, Kirkcaldy.

WIDESPREAD sorrow has been caused by the death of Mrs. Somerville, of Broughty Ferry. In the circles of those who love the Evangel she had a very extensive connection, both through her father, the late Mr. James White, of Overtoun, one of the most princely of philanthropists, and her father-in-law, the Rev. Dr. Somerville, the evangelist of the English-speaking populations in foreign countries. She has been taken away at the age of thirty-five, in the very height of her activity and influence. The news of her death, which, owing to the shortness of her illness, came as a great shock to most of her friends, must to many have sensibly diminished the interest of the world, for few who knew her, however wide their circle of acquaintance, can have known a spirit more bright.

Her life was an instance of rare gifts of nature heightened and consecrated by grace. As a child she was remarkable for the sweetness of her disposition, but it was not till she was thirteen that she made her own decision for Christ. The death of a favourite sister was blessed to her, and she owed much to her minister, Rev. John Tait, of Dumbarton. Her first attempts at Christian work, made when she was eighteen, were of a very modest kind. She began to read to one old woman; after a few weeks some neighbours asked leave to listen too; one day she made an effort to pray with them; at last she ventured to speak a few words. It was a humble beginning, but it grew to great issues. So diffident was she at first that she only spoke after long and careful preparation. These early studies were afterwards of the utmost use, and they formed habits of thoroughness which she never lost. Her Bible became so filled with marks that in some parts, especially the Psalms, nearly every verse had some note appended to it, and the leaves were worn like bank-notes.

About this time she was led to take up strong views in regard to dancing, and abandoned the practice altogether. This step was to her, as it has been to many others, the entrance into perfect freedom and joy in the Lord's work. Hundreds of young ladies afterwards consulted her on this delicate point, and she was able to enter into their difficulties with sympathy. She had a singular power over this class; her hearty manner won them, and many leaned upon her as their heroine.

Her marriage in 1874 to Rev. J. E. Somerville, one thoroughly like-minded with herself, opened up to her a sphere in which her tastes received the amplest scope, and she exhausted its capabilities to the uttermost—first at Langholm, and afterwards at Broughty Ferry. Not having children, she was free to devote her time and energy entirely to the work of winning souls, which had become her absorbing passion. The ardour of her spirit never chilled, for she was sustained by the constant sense of the presence of the living Saviour. In order to attain the one object which she had in view, she grasped at every means within her reach—singing, reading, speaking, letter-writing. One New Year she wrote with her own hand different letters to half the patients in Dundee Infirmary, and got friends to write to the rest.

In Broughty Ferry she may be said to have lived many lives, for the variety of her work was almost incredible; she had special work among shoemakers, among railway porters, among fishermen, among cabmen; for servant girls, for young ladies in the Convalescent Home, for those in the Rescue Institution: even these do not exhaust the list. But hers was never the mere professional activity of the energetic minister's wife. Her drift was ever towards the one aim of the salvation of individuals; and her beautiful home, on the hill overlooking the sunny waters of the Firth of Tay, may be looked upon as a sort of sanctuary, for nearly every room of it is sacred to the memory of scenes of awakening and conversion, which she and her husband had the privilege of witnessing. It was in her home that she was seen at her best, surrounded with the elegance, which amidst the busiest work outside she never neglected, full of strength and gaiety in ordinary talk, but happiest when the conversation deepened to the subjects which lay nearest her heart, kindling everyone with enthusiasm as, seated at the organ, she played her favourite pieces, or led her guests with her fine voice in the words of a hymn. No one went away from that spot without being cheered, lifted, and purified.

It was a severe trial when, a few months ago, she had to leave this home on account of her husband's illness. Then came the heavy blow of her father's death. And then, six weeks before her end, she began to see death approaching herself. But amidst these thickening clouds her spirit only exhibited a rarer sweetness and spirituality; and to the very last she was pursuing incessantly her old loved work of letter-writing and speaking for Jesus.

There is something very mysterious in the sudden arrest of so much energy, and the removal of an influence so much needed; but in the early death of the bright and good there is this consolation, that their life remains in the memory complete and ever beautiful, unsullied by any weakness or failure such as prolonged years may bring; it is a possession lifted above the chances of time, and will continue to be a lifelong joy and inspiration. "She, being made perfect in a short time, fulfilled a long time."

Requests for Prayer.

FOR blessing on Gospel services at Frampton, by Rev. J. H. Scott, commencing October 26.——For a five days' Gospel Mission at Acton Hall, commencing October 19, by Mr. C. Ashton and others.——For blessing on evangelistic meetings at Teddington.——For services at Newport, Mon., conducted by Mr. Opie Rodway, to commence on October 18.——For blessing on the Thursday evening evangelistic service for young women at Cross Keys-square, Little Britain.——For Gospel services being held in the Rosslyn Mission Hall, Hornsey.——For blessing upon services in Bridlington, by Mr. Joseph Cleworth.——For a fortnight's Gospel services at Cage-lane Mission Hall, Plumstead.——For Gospel services at Erith, Kent, commencing 25th inst.——For a family who are passing through great sorrow, that God may sustain them and never suffer the innocent to be moved.——That a wife who is dangerously ill may trust in the Saviour.——For Gospel services at Maryport this week, conducted by Rev. J. E. Linnell.——For blessing upon three weeks' Gospel services in the Friars Mission Hall, Newcastle.——For a young men's Bible-class commenced at Plumstead.——For a mothers' meeting begun under very adverse circumstances.

THE McALL MISSION IN FRANCE.—There is great need of workers in this Mission for Paris and for the provincial towns. Ladies especially are required to play the harmonium, visit among the people, attend the meetings for adults, help in the Sunday-schools, and to conduct mothers' meetings and Bible-classes for young women. In fact, there are branches of work to suit all capabilities and tastes. Any communication addressed to the Secretary of the Ladies' Committee, McAll Mission, 102, Avenue des Ternes, Paris, will receive prompt attention. Members of the Committee are to be found every Friday from 4.30 till 7 p.m. at 404, Rue St. Honoré.

HOMELESS INFANTS, BRISTOL.—A Thanksgiving meeting was held at the Nursery, Manor House, Old Park, near St. Michael's Church, on Saturday, September 20, the second anniversary of the opening. In this short period a large Institution has been founded, and brought into good working order. The household consists at the present time of head and assistant matrons, nurse, cook, and laundress, twelve mothers, and thirty-eight children, twenty of these being infants under one year. Many mothers have been restored from a position of disgrace and sorrow to a good place of service. Many sickly infants have become healthy, and are under good and loving training for a life of respectability and usefulness. Funds are urgently needed to carry on the work. Gifts of clothing for mothers or children, fruit, vegetables, furniture, bedding, &c., are most acceptable; any sort of articles can be turned to good account. Help will be thankfully received by Miss Marriott, Oldbury House, St. Michael's Hill, Bristol.

REV. W. HAY AITKEN IN CHESTER.

A DEEPLY interesting Mission has just been concluded in All Saints' Church here, conducted by Rev. W. Hay M. H. Aitken, assisted by Rev. James Stephens, Rev. W. E. Cleworth, and Mrs. Crouch. The Mission was continued for sixteen days. From the first there were evidences of very solemn impressions being made; as the Mission proceeded, the interest deepened, and the congregations largely increased. The solemn stillness and breathless attention of the large congregations to the earnest, powerful pleading of the Mission preacher gave to many a very real and encouraging evidence that the power of the Spirit of God was present. Night after night men and women under deep anxiety of soul found their way to the inquiry-room, and there were led to trust and rejoice in a Saviour's love. A marked feature in connection with the work in the inquiry-room and among the congregation, was the number of men—and especially young men—who thus openly confessed their decision for Christ.

Every morning addresses on the Christian Life were given by Rev. W. Hay Aitken. These quiet morning services were times of deep heart searching and building up to many of the Lord's people, who will thank God for the clearer light and spiritual refreshment, which came to them through these services as cold waters to thirsty souls.

The afternoons during the Mission were devoted to services for children, young people, and domestic servants; they were conducted by Rev. James Stephens, and addresses, to women only, were given by Mrs. Crouch. At each and all of these there were manifest tokens of blessing. Addresses were also given at the general railway station and other places of business in the city. Services for men only on Sunday afternoons were largely attended, and a deep and lasting impression was made on many.

The Mission closed on Monday, the 6th of October, with solemn thanksgiving services, followed by the Holy Communion. It was very evident that the glad hymns of praise in which the large congregation so heartily joined were but the outward expression of the joy of heart of those whom Jesus had made glad. There were 208 communicants after the evening service. The thank-offerings of the day were given to the Parochial Mission Society, and amounted to £25. It would be well if this valuable Society, which is doing such great spiritual work throughout the country, was more widely known and supported both by the means and the prayers of Christian people.

On Tuesday evening a Temperance meeting was held in the Town Hall, at which addresses were given by Mr. Aitken and Mr. Stephens. There was a crowded attendance, and a number of pledges were taken at the close of the meeting.

PENARTH STREET MISSION.—A harvest festival was held last week at the Hall of this Mission. On Monday a tea and public meeting was held, when addresses were delivered by various evangelistic brethren. On Tuesday evening the aged people of the neighbourhood were invited: after tea, the fruit, vegetables, flowers, and bread that had been exhibited were distributed to the most needy ones present.

OTLEY AND WHARFEDALE MISSION.—The origin of this Mission is told in a little report lately issued:—In 1873 a few young men started cottage prayer-meetings in a neglected part of the town; then followed preaching services, which resulted in some striking instances of conversion. The present new hall was erected by Mr. William Brown, of Otley. With the exception of Mr. John McAuliffe, whose whole time is devoted to the work, all the remaining workers are employed in business, mills, factories, and tanneries. The people have much appreciated the Gospel services, which on Sundays have sometimes been filled to overflowing, the open-air preaching has been much blessed, and many have been saved. Every Sunday afternoon some 500 children are taught. Temperance is kept well to the front. Tent work and colporteur work are also in contemplation: this will be undertaken when funds permit, so that a suitable additional worker can be obtained.

CLIFTON CONFERENCE.

THE annual meetings of the Clifton Conference took place last week, from Tuesday to Thursday, at the Victoria Rooms, under the presidency of Rev. James Ormiston. The Chairman, in opening the Conference, alluded to the loss they had had during the past year in the removal of God's honoured servant, the Rev. Thomas Curme, who had presided over the afternoon Bible-readings with almost uninterrupted regularity, from the time of the formation of the Conference by the late Rev. Samuel Walker. After some wise and loving remarks on the spiritual blessing which he prayed they all might receive at this Conference, he called on

Rev. Talbot Greaves, vicar of Clifton, to give the first address. The subject was "The prophetical signs of the last days of this dispensation viewed in relation to the characteristics of the present perilous times." Mr. Greaves confined himself very much to an able and lucid exposition of the expressions "last times," "last days," "last day," as they occur in Scripture. He showed, by a careful examination of the passages where they occur, that whilst they are generally used with great latitude to denote the time intervening between the first and second advents, they are sometimes used with more special reference to the closing days of the dispensation, when the various independent lines of prophecy are converging to a point, and when the characteristics of the last days are becoming thereby intensified. In dwelling upon the visible fulfilment going on around us of the signs of the perilous, or "difficult" times of the end, as given in 2 Tim. iii., he remarked that few can have any idea how infidelity is working under the surface of mediæval superstition.

Rev. W. T. Austin, rector of Castlecomer, Ireland, dwelt on the second Psalm as characteristic of the dispensation. It is quoted by the Apostle Peter (Acts iv. 25) as applicable to the commencement, and we have reason to expect it will apply specially to the close. This shows that the conversion of the nations is not to be effected in this dispensation, it is rather a visitation of the nations "to take out of them a people for his name." He alluded to Ireland as a nation early called to a knowledge of Christ, but one whose history has shown her to be anything but a converted nation.

Rev. J. Hastings Kelk (Christ Church, Jerusalem) spoke of the signs in relation to the Jewish people, and said that the numbers of Jews had of late increased in Palestine, that they were now about 42,000, just the number of the congregation that returned under Ezra. He spoke, too, of late events having shown that the probable cause of their return to their land will be persecution from the nations among whom they are scattered. He mentioned as illustrating the false Christs that shall arise, that at present large numbers of an American sect called Second Adventists, or Overcomers, are arriving at Jerusalem. They say that Christ is come again to them and is in them, and on this ground refuse the Lord's Supper, as that was only to be observed "till He come."

In the evening Mr. George Muller gave a stirring address on the practical aspect of the consideration of "the last days." He dwelt specially and solemnly on the question, "Are we prepared for his coming?" and affectionately urged any present who had not yet come to Christ no longer to delay. He avowed himself a believer in the futurist view of Antichrist as a coming King over the ten kingdoms of the Roman world, and introduced a slight element of controversy which gave rise to some opposition the next day by denying that Popery was the Antichrist. However, lest this should be misunderstood as showing him to be indifferent to the evils of Romanism, he denounced the abominable evils of that system in the most scathing language, and specially urged all present to get and read a book which he had lately read with the greatest interest—"The Secret History of Romanism," by the Rev. Dawson Massy, published by Messrs. Hamilton and Adams. He repeated the title of the book, hoping that it might be taken down by all present, so important did he consider it that it should be extensively read.

A few earnest words by Mr. Inskip, followed by Mr. Benjamin Thomas, brought the first day's meeting to a close.

On Wednesday the opening speaker—after a few practical words from the Rev. J. Ormiston—was the Earl of Cavan, who gave an interesting exposition of 1 Thess. v., full of practical exhortation to the Church of God as to its responsibility in being in the light whilst the world was in darkness.

He was followed by Rev. W. Frith (of Gunnersbury), who pointed out the perfect fidelity of the coming Bridegroom of the Church as a motive to stir up his bride to fidelity to Him. He gave some strong and pertinent exhortations to Christians as to greater separation from the world, if they would be faithful to Christ.

The morning meeting was closed by some faithful words from Rev. H. Barne (late of Faringdon).

The evening addresses were by Rev. J. Martin, of Portsmouth, and Mr. George Müller and Mr. Wright (his son-in-law). The first speaker was very practical and experimental. He spoke much of responsibility, and how to bear it; urged on young Christians especially the attainment of assurance, not by looking within self, but into the Word of God. The sailor does not cast his anchor inside but outside the ship. The Word of God, not experience, is the true ground of assurance.

Mr. George Muller followed in the same vein, urging that the attitude of Christians should be, first, that of those who know the Lord themselves; secondly, feel constrained by this knowledge to urge on others the truth of the Lord's coming, and seek "till He come" to win souls to Christ; thirdly, bear their testimony in an opposite spirit to that spoken of in 1 Tim. iv. and 2 Tim. iii.

Mr. Wright spoke of the fitting posture of the Church of God, sitting, as the Apostles did, at the Lord's feet to learn of Him. Do we do this daily? He alluded to spiritualism and Anglo-Israelism and geological speculation as forms of error all tending "to puff us up," and to neglect the constant exhortation "to watch."

A few words from the Rev. J. Wilkinson closed the meeting.

On Friday morning the opening speaker was Rev. H. E. Brooke, who gave an exposition of 1 John iii. 1-3, taken in connection with the last two verses of the last chapter. The main point was that we are led by the context (ii. 28, 29) to consider Christ as the subject of the whole passage, and the words, "If ye know that He is righteous, ye know that everyone that doeth righteousness is born of Him" should be interpreted of Him likewise. Though "born of God" is the usual expression, there is special reason why attention should here be directed to Him in the aspect of the second Adam—the Head of the new family—from whom we inherit the new nature, which is the subject of the next chapter. This aspect of Christ is found in Romans v., as well as in Hebrews ii., "Behold, I and the children which God hath given Me." It is a view supported by Bengel, and lately advocated by Professor Westcott. It is the key to understand aright the "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed on us (which points back to the gift of his Son) in order that we should be called the sons of God." We then go on to the manifestation of these sons—"When He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." To be like Him is the Christian's hope, possessed now but in measure, but then perfectly. "Every man that hath this hope (grounded on) Him purifieth himself, even as He is pure."

The Conference closed with some very loving and earnest words by Mr. Barne, giving a very practical and hearty word of affectionate exhortation to all who attended the Conference to seek to walk in the spirit of the truths of which they had heard so much.

WALKING IN DARKNESS.

THOU seest, knowest, Lord, [our hearts.
The strange dark doubts that throng about
We turn away from all—from all the strife of
To Thee alone, [thought,
And at thy feet would fall. We are thine own.
Easily understood! [sad,—
O Lord! on every hand are problems dark and Griefs past all words,
That mind and faith would reel,
Could not Thy children feel
That Thou art good.

There are who say they see thy face
Without a cloud or fear.
Thy ways they love to trace;
Thy dealings all seem clear;
And yet their thoughts are so unlike to thine,
Who on th' unthankful bid'st thy sun to shine.
And others live so very near to Thee,
That they have caught thy tenderness and Whose eyes are dim with tears, [grace,—
Who cannot see what most they long for—
Thy unveilèd face.

In the dark city's lane
The little children cry,
Like old men bowed with pain,
Wearily dragging by;
Nothing but sin and crime on every breath of air.
These little ones of thine, born early to despair,
Better that they should die!
Yet in each tiny breast, [and scorn,
Each aged and haggard form covered with filth
Throbs a heart that could love—
Souls that could joy in God,
If not downtrod.

Sorrow! and Sin! and Shame!—
From all we turn to Thee. [canst see.
We cannot understand, but Thou the whole
We only see a part—in that perhaps see wrong;
And we are weak of heart,
And Thou, O Lord, art strong.
Help us to fix our gaze unswervingly on Thee,
To do the nearest work, contented not to see,
Helping the dark or sad
To come to Thee in rest,
Waiting thy own good time,
To show that it was best.

—Blanche A. F. Pigott, in "Eastward Ho."

MARYLAND POINT MISSION.—A good work continues to be done in this Eastern suburb by the various agencies of the Mission. It takes special care of the poor in the district, of whom there are many. By visitation, school-work, Temperance meetings, &c., as well as by temporal help, every effort is made to brighten their lives and impart to them the consolations of the Gospel. Help in sustaining the operations will be welcomed by Mr. John Stabb, 6, Norcott-road, Stoke Newington, N.

A CRYING EVIL.—Dear Sir,—A boy of one of our great public schools who attended my services at Scarborough writes to me:—"Here I might just mention that awful temptation at school, namely, impurity. Of course you know it exists, but do you think anyone ever realises to what extent it is practised? Oh, if by your Mission at Scarborough you have induced anyone to warn their sons, your labour has not been in vain. I have mentioned this subject, distasteful as it is to me, that you might have the witness of another public schoolboy to the great evil of the day."—Yours sincerely, E. Arrowsmith.

Arabin House, Loughton, Essex.

WASTED MONEY.—Tobacco is one of the most costly absurdities the world ever saw. In the city of New York alone ten millions of dollars are burned up every year in cigars! Thousands of young men who can ill afford it spend from fifty to two hundred dollars, or even more, every year for tobacco. A pastor states that while his whole society expended in a year only eight hundred and forty-one dollars for the support of the gospel at home and abroad, sixty-seven of his Church members expended eight hundred and forty-five dollars for tobacco. Scores of men spend fifty times as much for tobacco as they do for missions; and yet they profess to be servants of the Lord Jesus Christ, and to love Him more than all else.—Holiness Conservator.

Notices of Books, &c.

MANY friends will be glad to possess themselves of the eloquent discourse preached at Preston by Rev. Charles Garrett on the occasion of the late Joseph Livesey's funeral. It is published by Mr. Elliot Stock; price 2d.

Recollections of a Paris Evangelist. Part XXVI. Partridge & Co. 2d. This booklet is well worth reading, both for the interesting account it contains of Gospel work in Paris, and the Christ-like spirit in which it is written.

Ivy Leaves. By F. R. Havergal. 1s. Nisbet & Co. A treasure-house of beauty. Selections from Miss Havergal's poems are arranged for the morning and evening of the month, and the letterpress on each page is charmingly bordered with ivy leaves most artistically reproduced.

The Christian Birthday Souvenir (J. S. Virtue & Co.) is one of the choicest of its class. The daily motto texts are well selected, and so are the verses culled from the best known Christian poets. The get-up of the little volume is of a superior kind, and it would prove a very acceptable gift-book.

The Cottage and Artisan. Vol. 1884. 1s. 6d. Religious Tract Society. This beautifully illustrated volume is quite abreast of the best works of its kind, and will be found a valuable addition to the home circle or reading-room. The articles are written in an entertaining style, and convey excellent instruction alike for old and young.

Three Chief Errors in Romish Doctrine. In this neat little book the author makes short work of Popish teaching with regard to "the Immaculate Conception," Papal infallibility, and Transubstantiation. Copies may be had from the author, John R. Palmer, 36, Park-street, Brierley-hill, Staffs.

The Congregationalist for October (1s. Hodder & Stoughton) contains the address on "The Harmony of Science and Revelation," delivered at the Copenhagen Conference by Rev. Eustace Conder, of Leeds. The portrait this month is that of Mr. Rushton, the recently elected M.P. for Lincoln. The contents of the number are up to the usual high standard for variety and ability.

Drift Leaves. By Margaret Scott MacRitchie (1s. 6d. Nisbet & Co.) Mrs. Haycraft (better known, perhaps, to our readers as Miss MacRitchie) is one of the choicest poetic spirits of the time. This collection of little poems is full of beautiful, fresh, and suggestive thoughts, expressed with an unusual wealth of glowing language. It will be a very elevating and comforting companion for a quiet hour.

Doctor Johnson: His Life and Works and Table Talk. Centenary Edition. 2s. T. Fisher Unwin. One of the posthumous penalties of greatness in these latter days is a "centenary" or a "commemoration," or something of the kind. Dr. Macaulay, of the Leisure Hour, has signalised the centenary of the great lexicographer's death by preparing a small and most interesting memorial volume, which appears in parchment dress.

"Where was the Protestant Church before Luther's time?" This question is one that Romanists are very fond of asking. Those who know not how to answer it may be referred to a little tract published by Messrs. Shaw & Co., Paternoster-row, entitled, "Who is He?" showing that the Protestant Church existed in the lives of hundreds of thousands in Rome's proudest days. Every Protestant should know how to answer the question historically.

The report of the National Temperance Congress held in Liverpool last June has been published in a neat volume by the Temperance Publication Depot, 337, Strand, W.C. As a treasury of reference for facts and figures relating to the present state of the movement, we doubt if it has been surpassed. All the varied aspects of the question are ably handled by specialists, and the result is a body of evidence from which the Temperance advocate will be able to replenish his stock of arguments for many a day to come.

Although Mr. Thayer's admirable sketch of the life of the late lamented President Garfield—From Log Cabin to White House—has already had a wonderful run, the very elegant edition lately published by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton ought to give it a fresh start. There are splendid portraits engraved on steel of the late President and his venerable mother, besides twenty finely executed illustrations of various scenes in his life. Altogether, it is a singularly attractive contribution to the biographical literature of the time.

The Religious Tract Society has published some very fine pictorial cards for Christmas, the New Year, birthdays, Sunday-school rewards, &c. The colourings are exquisite, and the mottoes are mainly taken from Scripture.

The Young Trawler: A Story of Life and Death and Rescue on the North Sea. By R. M. Ballantyne. 5s. Nisbet & Co. Mr. Ballantyne's graphic and flowing pen has never produced a book more worthy of his literary skill, or more likely to do a real public service than this. The tale is written with a purpose, and that a most praiseworthy one—to depict the perils encountered by the fishermen of the North Sea, and the earnest efforts of the Thames Church Mission to evangelise and otherwise benefit these brave toilers on the stormy deep. Added to the dangers of wind and wave, these fishermen have to run the gauntlet of the "coopers," or floating grog-shops, which prove as serious a temptation to North Sea Jack afloat as the public-house does to Jack ashore. As special attention is just now being directed to this crying evil, Mr. Ballantyne's stirring story, written from personal observation, comes in the right nick of time. Many will read it for the graphic portraiture of life at sea; many more, we trust, will welcome it as a faithful record of well-done work for the highest good of a deserving class of the community.

Books received:—

Nisbet & Co.:
Further Recollections of an Indian Missionary, by Rev. C. B. Leupolt, 7s. 6d.
Sick-room Meditations and Studies, by Rev. Dr. J. Cross, 5s.
Like Christ: Thoughts on the Blessed Life of Conformity to the Son of God, by Rev. Andrew Murray, 2s. 6d.
Foursquare—Poems, 2s. 6d.
Up High, by Rev. Geo. Everard, 1s. 6d.
Balaam's Parables, by Rev. F. Whitfield, 1s.
Life in Hospital, by a Sister, 1s.

Hodder & Stoughton:
Our Blue Jackets: Miss Weston's Life and Work among Sailors, by Sophia G. Wintz, 1s.
First Principles of Faith, by Marshall Randles, 6s.
Martin Luther: Student, Monk, Reformer, by John Rae, LL.D., 7s. 6d.
Biblical Thesaurus, by Dr. Hellmuth (Part III., completing Genesis, 5s.

Perkin & Co., Bideford, Devon:
Poems by Claude Vincent, with a Prefatory Notice by the author of "Freaks of Fancy," 1s. 6d.

Henry Froude:
The Church of England Sunday Service Book for the Year 1885, 2s.

T. Woolmer:
Isaac Marsden, of Doncaster, compiled by Wm. B. Carter.

S. W. Partridge & Co.:
All of Blue—Ezekiel's Last Vision—Christ in the Tabernacle, by Frank H. White. New editions.
Annual volumes:—British Workman—Band of Hope Review—Family Friend—Friendly Visitor—Children's Friend—Infants' Magazine.
Story Books:—Mark Desborough's Vow—The Better Part—The Gypsy Queen—Clovie and Madge—Marion and Augusta—Jemmy Lawson—That Boy Bob—The Silver Cup—Albert Maurice—Polly's Victory—Maud's Visit—Dick and his Donkey—Dora Maitland—Stella's Nosegay.

CONTINENTAL AND FOREIGN NOTES.

The Bible in Japan.—In the course of last year the three Bible Societies at work in Japan circulated 85,818 copies or parts of Scripture; of these 43,275 copies were issued by the Scottish Society.

The Swiss Temperance Society was founded at Geneva seven years ago by four persons. Now it reckons nearly 4000 persons. In the single canton of Vaud 200 drunkards have been set free from their slavery to strong drink, and many of them have been won to Christ.—Journal Religieux.

German Evangelical Home Mission.—An Occasional Paper shows how widespread and varied is the work it undertakes. Like all similar Christian effort, it makes manifest by what is done how much yet remains to be accomplished. The Paper pleads for large additional personal help from among the young and strong in the case of the poor, the sick, the fallen, the orphan and neglected, idiots, prisoners, &c.

The French Minister of Marine has shown graceful tact in sending to the Amsterdam International Agricultural Exhibition a corvette called the Coligny. The name of the illustrious victim to Roman Catholic persecution is greatly venerated in Holland, and it will be remembered that William of Orange, the Stadtholder of the Seven United Provinces, married the daughter of Admiral Coligny.—Le Christianisme.

The Government of Schleswig has forbidden dances and balls for the Public School children, on account of the serious abuses often attending them. There are many clergymen and teachers who have not a word to say against these demoralising balls, and yet do all they can to prevent the establishing of Sunday-schools.—Der Evangelist.

The Crown Prince of Germany visited the Kaiserswerth Deaconesses' Establishment on Sunday, September 21. He first attended the church service, which was conducted by Pastors Disselhoff and Fliedner. After breakfasting in the school-room, he went over the establishment, giving a friendly word to the orphans and invalids.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES.

KENDAL.

AT the recent annual business meeting of this branch a good report for the past year was presented by Mr. R. Whitwell, one of the hon. secretaries. The Association has a membership of 150.

KIDDERMINSTER.

A new branch of the Association has been formed here as the result of a visit of Mr. H. Thorne. A most successful inaugural meeting was held. More than 150 young men were enrolled before the opening of the rooms, and an effort is now being made to employ a general secretary. Mr. Thorne has arranged to conduct a Gospel Mission here in the early part of next year.

NORWICH.

For some years this branch has been feeble. On Wednesday, October 8, a Conference of influential Norwich ministers and representative men was called to hear and discuss suggestions offered by Mr. Hind Smith for the purpose of resuscitating the work. The committee of the Association and Conference, presided over by Mr. J. Coleman, M.P., adopted the suggestions. A guarantee fund to cover the new expenses was raised, and the deputation was instructed to find a missionary secretary to devote his whole time to the interests of the young men of Norwich.

LINCOLN.

The fourteenth annual meeting of this branch was held on the 6th inst. The chair was occupied by the President, Mr. J. Rushton, M.P. Addresses were delivered by Rev. C. L. Wilson, subject, "Young Men: their special opportunities for working 'the works of God;'" and by Mr. Hind Smith, subject, "The special field of service occupied by the Y.M.C.A." The report, read by Mr. Johnson, the secretary, showed a large increase in the membership and general work of the Association. The newly-occupied premises are well-furnished and well-adapted to the purpose.

IPSWICH.

This Association held its eleventh annual meeting on 7th inst., and was more numerously attended than on any previous occasion. The Rev. Canon Garrett occupied the chair. The report was most encouraging, showing that the Association has had a year of real prosperity, were delivered by Messrs. Berry and Jeffreys, spiritually, numerically, and financially. Addresses also by Mr. Hind Smith. New branches have been formed through the evangelistic work of this Association at Needham Market, Hemingstone, and Framsden. An excellent male choir has also been formed.

EAST GREENWICH.

On Thursday week the campaign for the winter session was opened here. Colonel R. Wilmot Brooke presided. Mr. Currey, secretary, laid before the meeting the programme of winter work, and it was sufficiently interesting to suit every taste. There are Bible-classes, public lectures, devotional meetings, debates, and a singing-class, with the special aim of being well prepared in that department for the open-air meetings next summer. Earnest practical addresses were given by Mr. Blow, treasurer, Messrs. Saberton and Fiddes, City Missionaries, and others. We are glad to know that the prospects of this branch are most promising.

Letters to the Editor.

EVIL LITERATURE.

A CORNISH correspondent writes:—"I am glad to see you again calling attention to polluting literature openly sold in England. Could you not call attention to the fact that, whether by oversight or no, even The Spectator of October 4 (supplement) admits the advertisement of a novel by M. Zola, with a seductive commendation from Mr. Henry James; and this after denouncing M. Zola and all his works in no measured terms, in reviewing the novels of Alphonse Daudet three or four weeks previously. Punch, I am glad to see, has set its face against even expurgated readings from Rabelais. Your advocacy of the enforcement of Lord Campbell's Acts, and other practical steps towards public honesty and morality, will command the respect and sympathy of many.

VILLAGE LIFE AND VILLAGE NEEDS.

Dear Sir,—Referring to the letter in your last issue signed "A. Roxburgh," on "Village Life:" there may be districts where facts like those alluded to in the article he criticises are not to be met with. Malvern Wells may be one of them. But the articles in the Daily News, to which your leader of the 25th ult. referred, and also many corroborative testimonies given in the same journal, amply prove the general truth of the statements made. Any one well acquainted with the eastern and southern counties will have no difficulty in recognising the substratum of truth upon which the statement of physical and spiritual destitution contained in your columns rests. There may be many exceptions to the rule, and farmers as a class, we know, are under a heavy cloud, but agricultural labourers are very far as yet from the halcyon days your correspondent seems to think they have entered on. G.

SALVATION ARMY IN FRANCE.

Sir,—The journal En Avant of August 30, 1884, has borrowed a letter from Mrs. Jos. Butler in The Christian upon the Salvation Army in Marseilles, apropos of which I take the liberty of addressing to you some remarks.

Mrs. Butler writes: "Whilst the majority of men speak of and lament the afflictions of Toulon and Marseilles, the Captains of the Salvation Army have gone there full of joy to carry the news of salvation to all the despairing creatures in the hospitals and in the streets, and to console those who had lost their friends. If they only knew this, I believe that other devoted Christians would follow their example."

It is not correct that "the majority of men" are contented to "talk of" and "lament" the afflicted people of Toulon and Marseilles. They have, on the contrary, sent on all sides varied and plentiful help into those towns; and, more, many devoted persons have gone there at the most critical period, long before the members of the Salvation Army, who only arrived at the decline of the epidemic. It is also untrue that "the Captains of the Army have gone to carry the news of salvation to all the despairing creatures of the hospitals and the streets." "The Captains" resolve themselves into two lieutenants, whose whole activity consisted in selling the journal En Avant in the streets, and in holding some small meetings in the house of a brave Christian, whom they have detached from his church. Moreover, they have never entered any hospital where devoted persons were not wanting, and where several have even died at their post.

The numbers of En Avant for the month of August contained triumphant predictions concerning Marseilles; that of August 30 announced that they had sold 800 copies. But since—no more news of Marseilles. Indeed, this post would appear to be abandoned, in spite of the loud promises that they have published.

Do not think that I have always been an opponent of the attitude taken by the Salvation Army, or that I have ever approved the deplorable polemics that a great portion of the religious Press has too often directed against it. I have, on the contrary, aided and sustained it in many circumstances, and have even publicly defended it. But certain of its proceedings have compelled me to break with it; especially the manner in which it condemns other Christians, and this habit of publishing systematically exaggerated victories, that it takes care not to correct, even when it knows perfectly that it has been completely deceived. I have been able to prove with my own eyes the fruits of this system in Paris, where the work, far from advancing, goes from bad to worse. Alfred Bauer.

17, Rue Tournefort, Paris, October 8.

CHOIR v. PULPIT.

Sir,—With your other readers I have been much interested in the correspondence on music in public worship. Allow me to call attention to another aspect of the subject—viz., the selection of hymns. By leaving the choice of hymns to an organist, unless the hymnal in use is really free from the well-nigh all-prevailing taint of ritualism, a faithful minister in the Church of England may find the Gospel teaching of his pulpit counteracted, if not overthrown, by doctrines promulgated in the hymns.

As an instance, I may mention that, under an evangelical ministry, the congregation were recently invited to join in singing "We love the place, O Lord," &c., a hymn doubtless known to most of your readers as a sample of extreme High Church hymnology, and therefore need not be quoted at length. The first verse dogmatically asserts that a building other than the Temple at Jerusalem, which was the dwelling-place of the Most High, is the "abode" of God. The third expresses, not a hope or prayer, but the positive statement that a blessing is always conferred in the outward rite of baptism, and the fourth, describing the communion table as an "altar" teaches the doctrine that necessarily accompanies that most unscriptural designation.

I need scarcely allude to the painful incongruity of asking our Lord—the Bridegroom of our souls—for grace to love Him (the only worthy object of his people's love) more, while boastfully proclaiming affection bestowed on buildings, fonts and tables, surely very "wood, hay, and stubble."

C. S. R.

THE IDOLATRY OF MUSIC.

Dear Sir,—Under this heading, in your issue of October 2, a letter appears from "Organist," whose experience of choirs seems to have been very unfortunate. The charge he makes against choirs in general is very terrible, if true. He finishes his letter by asking to be informed of a choir that has no dissensions in it.

Well, doubtless this latter would not be an easy task, because, sad to say, it would be difficult to find any society, Christian or otherwise, where dissension in some form or other does not sometimes exist. Although it is our duty and privilege to put our shoulders to the wheel, and endeavour to be peacemakers in this world of sin and strife, "Organist" will probably have to wait for millennial days for what he asks. In the meantime, it is wisdom not to be hasty in our judgment, but attend to our Master's words, "Let both grow together until the harvest." It would indeed be a cause for rejoicing if all members of our choirs were truly Christian, but would it be right to exclude those who, as far as we can discern, are not so? Who knows the blessing which may result from their regular attendance in the house of God?

My experience is not quite so bad as "Organist's." Our choir numbers fifty men and boys. Amongst the adults we have communicants and Sunday-school teachers. Our vicar's rule is to admit no salaried adult unless he has been a communicant previously. Our boys are, like most boys, full of spirit, and need a firm, kind oversight; but all (except one—a very delicate lad) belong to our Sunday-schools or Bible-class.

If "Organist" can suggest anything within our power to adopt for improvement, we shall be obliged to him.—Yours truly,

A Choirmaster.

A HIGHLY FAVOURED TOWN.

Dear Sir,—I shall be glad if you can find space to emphasise, from a visitor's point of view, the remarks of your correspondent in last week's issue, on the great unity existing amongst the Christians of Sandown, Isle of Wight. My object is not to glorify them (which they would be the first to deprecate); I write in the earnest hope that a further description of what real communion is possible, among saints on earth, may lead Christians in other places to ask themselves why this is not as common as it ought to be.

I was at Sandown for the first time last May, spending a week or two for rest and change of air. I had no introduction, nor was I known, even by name, to any Christian in the place, yet before the end of a fortnight I had made many friends among those who were journeying to Zion. The first evening I was there I remarked in the porch of the Parish Church a notice to the effect that the united prayer-meeting of all denominations was held on Mondays at twelve, and this appealed to me at once; I shall never forget the deeply spiritual tone that prevailed at those meetings, and also at the church prayer-meeting. Ministers and people of every denomination were represented at each. The vicars and curates of both Episcopal churches seem to know nothing of self, having only one aim—the salvation of souls.

I cannot venture to enter into details of the work being carried on at Sandown by the different churches mentioned by your correspondent, but I must refer to the Bible-class conducted by the curate of St. John's (himself a native of the place), at which I had the pleasure of seeing a large number of "brands snatched from the burning," not the least interesting being a family of converted gipsies and the conductor himself.

During my visit the Isle of Wight Militia were stationed there. It is scarcely necessary to say that the spiritual welfare of the men was much in the hearts and prayers of these most united Christians, and all readily joined in an effort to take the Gospel to them, the result being, as I heard afterwards, that twenty men confessed Christ before leaving the town. F. H. P.

86, Loftus-road, W.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, October 11, 1884.

	£	s.	d.
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—J. W. and K. A. £3; F. S. T. £2; Mrs. B. 5s.	10	5	0
Drinking Fountains for Men and Cattle—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Old Beckenham Mission—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Anglo-Indian Evangelisation Society—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Home and Colonial Schools—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Church Pastoral Aid Society—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Home for Blind Children, Hackney—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Bible Stand, Crystal Palace—J. W. and K. A.	5	0	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society (Egypt)—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Brighton—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Sandgate—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Winchester—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Gibraltar (Mr. Tilson Blake)—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Woolwich—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Sailors' Rest, Constantinople—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Genoa Harbour Mission—J. W. and J. A.	4	0	0
Naples Harbour Mission—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Port Said, Work at (Mr. Eoll)—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Bethal Santhal Mission—J. W. and K. A.	5	0	0
Medical Mission, Rome—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Medical Mission, Damascus—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Medical Mission, Nazareth—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Dr. Cranage's Work—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Wandsworth Home for Poor Ladies—J. W. and K. A.	6	0	0
Seamen's Christian Friend Society—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Society for the Suppression of Vice—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
China Inland Mission—T. S. 5s.; L. E. S. £2	2	5	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—M. V. 5s.; F. S. T. £2; G. A. C. £1; M. A. G. £1.	4	5	0
East London Training Institute—L. E. S.	2	0	0
Miss Leigh's Home, Paris—L. E. S. £2; Mrs. B. £1	3	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—L. E. S. £2; F. S. T. £2; Mrs. B. 5s.; G. A. C. 10s.; M. A. G. £1	5	15	0
Miss Mittendorff's Homes—L. E. S. £2; M. P. 5s.	2	5	0
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—F. S. T. £2; G. A. C. 10s.	2	10	0
Sea-side Services for Children—F. S. T.	1	0	0
Open Air Mission—F. S. T.	1	0	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—J. W. and K. A.	10	0	0
Special Religious Services in Theatres—J. W. and K. A.	10	0	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—J. W. and K. A.	10	0	0
Homes of Hope, Regent-square—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Association in Aid of Deaf and Dumb, 419, Oxford-street—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Mr. J. W. Jordan's Work, Blackheath—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Miss Reynolds' Work among City Young Women—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
French Pastoral Relief Fund—J. W. and K. A.	4	0	0
Penarth-street Mission—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Miss Perks' Evangelistic Work, Winchester—J. W. and K. A.	3	0	0
Mr. H. Cook's Work, Gosport (Repairs of Boat)—J. W. and K. A.	2	0	0
Theatrical Mission—M. and S. £2 2s.; M. £2 2s.	4	4	0
Richard Weaver—J. B.	0	10	0
Mrs Parson's Girls' Home—J. B.	0	10	0
Maryland Point Mission—J. B.	0	10	0
Cage-lane Mission—J. B.	0	10	0
Hoxton Hall Blue Ribbon Mission—J. B. 10s.; Mrs. B. 5s.	0	15	0
Rev. McAll's Work, Paris—Mrs. B. 10s.; G. A. C. £1	1	10	0
Miss de Broen's Work. Paris—Mrs. B.	0	10	0
George-yard Ragged Schools—Mrs. B.	0	5	0
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche and Orphan Home—Mrs. B. 5s.; M. A. G. £1	1	5	0
Home for Working Girls—Mrs. B.	0	5	0
Mrs. Vicars' Work in Brighton—Mrs. B.	0	5	0
Mrs. Wilkes' Rescue Work, Poplar—Mrs. B.	0	5	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—Mrs. B.	0	5	0
Gratuitous Circulation of The Christian—Mrs. B.	0	5	0
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—W. F. G.	1	0	0
Barbican Mission to Jews (Second Hall)—E. R.	1	0	0
London City Mission—B. M. W.	1	0	0
Bird's Nest Mission—M. O.	0	5	0
Mr. Pascoe's Work in Mexico—G. A. C.	1	0	0
Distressed Jews in Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—G. A. C.	1	0	0
Home of Industry—J. S. 10s.; M. A. G. £1	1	10	0
Poor Jews in Jerusalem (Mr. Friedlander)—M. A. G.	1	0	0
Mission Hall, Pevensey Sluice—E. T.	1	0	0
	£209	14	0

[Advertisements]

Railway Mission—Anon. 10s.

Evangelistic Mission—Per C. R. H.: Anon., for Oxford Music Hall, 1s.

Sadler's Wells Theatre Services (Mr. Catlin)—Miss E. P. £3 3s.: A Neighbour, £4 4s.

Warangesdu Aboriginal Training College—An unknown friend, per Rev. J. B. Gribble, £16; W. Purves, Esq., Edinburgh, £1

A CONVENTION

For the Exposition and Promotion of

CHRISTIAN HOLINESS,

Will (D.V.) be held in

THE FREE ASSEMBLY HALL, EDINBORO',

From Tuesday, October 28, to Thursday, 30th, inclusive, at 9.30 and 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. each day.

The Meeting at 9.30 a.m. will be devoted to Prayer and Bible Exposition of the subject of the Convention, and will continue for one hour only.

Rev. E. W. Moore.
Rev. Hubert Brooke.
Rev. A. C. D. Ryder.
Mrs. Somerton.
Rev. E. L. Hamilton.
Miss E. M. Booth.
Col. and Mrs Pepper.
Mr. S. Horatio Hodges.
Dr. Woods Smyth.
Mr. Charles Hoe.
Major Edmonds, will take part.

For Lists of Subjects or other information as to the Convention, communicate by letter, enclosing stamped envelope, with the Secretary of the Convention, Regent Hotel, Waterloo-place, Edinboro'.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

MRS. BOOTH

Will deliver a series of

ADDRESSES

AT

Princes' Hall, Piccadilly, London, W.,

On WEDNESDAY AFTERNOONS, October 29, November 5, 12, 26.

Admission by Tickets Only.

Reserved Seats, One Shilling, to each meeting.

Apply personally or by letter to 101, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND,

Established 1822.

President, The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G.

OFFICES:

27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin; and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. Jas. Kearney White, or by the Proprietors of this paper.

Note.—Subscriptions or Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "The Christian."

Friends will please notice the exact title "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society.'

The Anchorage.

Hebrews vi. 19.

To shelter respectable Young Women in Trouble.

FOR rules of admission to the Anchorage House, and full particulars of the work of the Anchorage Mission, and for trained servants, apply (by letter only) to Mrs. H. Stuart-Wortley, Rosslyn House, Grove End-road, N.W., London.

Many of the young women admitted being mothers or about to become so, the extra care they require, and (when friendless) the help that the Mission must give towards paying for their infants at nurse during the first few months of the mother's return to service or other occupation, causes the work to be unusually costly, and subscriptions are much required, sent either to Mrs. H. Stuart-Wortley (President of the Ladies' Committee) at her private address as above, or to Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

BIBLE LIGHT

For Truth Seekers & Christian Workers.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."—Ps. cxix. 105.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light."—Ps. cxix. 130.

The Object of "Bible Light" is to interest its readers in the written Word, and to lead them through the latter to the Living Word, for the salvation of the unsaved, and the strengthening of the believer's faith. Monthly, One Penny. Strongly recommended by the Press. The Vol. for 1883 price 1s. 6d.

London: John F. Shaw & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.
And of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

MR. MOODY'S MOTTO.

On Card, 7½ by 4½ inches, with Ribbon for hanging up. One Shilling the dozen, post free. The same words on a small Floral Card, Sixpence per dozen, post free. John G. Wheeler, 88, Mildmay Park, London, N.

JEWISH REFUGEES' AID SOCIETY.

Settlement of Artuf, near Jerusalem.

APPEAL FOR ONE THOUSAND POUNDS

Immediately Required for Special Purposes.

These are, the planting of vines, the erection of walls for their protection, and the making of roads. It is most desirable, if not essential, that these works be completed at once, before the setting in of the rainy season next month.

God has prospered the work so far. Will Christian friends and lovers of Israel come forward to help the Committee?

Office of the Society, 96, Newgate-street, E.C. Cheques to be made payable to the Hon. Treasurer—SAMUEL FIELD, Esq., 10, Angel-court, E.C.

Mansion House Mission,

MANSION HOUSE SQUARE

(Between 212 and 214, Camberwell-road, S.E.)

Superintendent—G. W. LINNECAR, the Sailor Preacher,

89, BELLENDEN ROAD, PECKHAM, LONDON, S.E.

MISSION WORK IN SOUTH-EAST LONDON.

Urgent Appeal for Funds.

Will every Reader of The Christian kindly send One Shilling to help our work? Our Mission is to the poor of South-East London, and we cannot pay our way without help. Over eighty new Members have joined this year; twenty-six have been baptized. God's rich blessing rests on the Services. Come and pay us a visit if you can, my friend; you will then help me. If you can, at least do as I ask, and send One Shilling. Read what the nearest Baptist Minister, the Rev. S. H. Akehurst, says of the work.

The Rev. S. H. AKEHURST, of Arthur-street, Camberwell Gate (one of our nearest neighbours), writes thus of our work:—"Of all the mission work in this densely populated part of London, none commends itself more to my judgment and sympathy than this of Mr. Linnecar's. He gets the people into his chapel without any kind of 'clap-trap;' he preaches the Gospel in his own rough and ready way, with much power—souls are saved—are added to the Church in accordance with the Word, and continue in fellowship. He not only helps them—temporarily and spiritually—but, better still, he teaches them to help themselves and others. An honest, upright, self-denying working man, helping the poor around him. I am always glad to assist him myself, and can safely ask my friends, and all Christians everywhere, to do the same. May God bless him more and more."

OUR FOURTH ANNIVERSARY

Will take place on Sunday and Monday, October 26 and 27. After that date a full Report and Balance Sheet will appear in The Christian.

£470 will enable us to close the year free of debt. I have, promised and in hand, over £50. Who will kindly help us in this great uphill fight? Four years ago this old Chapel was a wreck, no one belonging to it; now we have 128 members, large congregations, good Prayer Meetings, six Visiting Ladies. But to reach the poor we need help. The Lord will provide.

OLD CLOTHING

For the poor will be very heartily received, as the winter is coming, and many of our friends are in need. Please look out your left-off clothing and send us.

COLLECTING CARDS.

Seventy-one friends have taken a card, and promised to collect, by October, 5s.; two have promised 21s. Will others write for a card and do the same? This will make our fourth Anniversary a great success. Full report will appear in this paper after Anniversary in October.

Extract from Christian Chronicle, June 5, 1884.—"Such men and such missions have our warmest commendation, and we wish Mr. Linnecar every blessing in his arduous post. He is eminently fitted for his work. For twelve years a sailor, and having worked on land for 18s. a week he knows something of 'How the poor live.' To this class he especially addresses himself, and to them he preaches Christ crucified: man a great sinner, Christ a great Saviour. We have referred to Mr. Spurgeon's help in this mission; we cannot better close our notice than by quoting his opinion of the evangelist."

Mr. SPURGEON says:—"In Gordon-road, Peckham, our student, Mr. Linnecar, an earnest evangelist fresh from the sea, has gathered a people together, fitted up an arc with his own hands, and formed a church. Here is the nucleus of a hopeful community, which may the Lord multiply exceedingly. We confess that our joy is great when we see the working-people drawn to attend the means of grace, and to take an interest in extending the Redeemer's kingdom. Men like Mr. Linnecar seem to gather a congregation better than some of those who are more refined, but have less energy. A railway arch is a poor makeshift, but if the Lord will give His blessing, though the beginning be small, the latter end will greatly increase. Mr. Linnecar does a great deal of open-air work."

Who will kindly help us? P.O.O. to Victoria-road, Peckham.

Yours gratefully,

G. W. LINNECAR,

The Sailor Preacher,

89, BELLENDEN-RD., PECKHAM, LONDON, S.E.

[747]

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Magherafelt, Ireland.—A most encouraging work of conversion has been experienced here in connection with two weeks' services in a tent, conducted by Messrs. Montgomery and Irvine.

Notting Hill, W.—A Gospel Male Choir is being formed in this western district. Any friends who can give their services are asked to communicate with Mr. Walters, 99, High-street, Notting Hill-gate, W.

Essex.—Services have been held and addressed by Mr. John Harris in the new Mission-room, Marks Tey, near Colchester. The room has been full each evening, especially on Sunday, when it was crowded to excess, some not being able to obtain admittance, and the people were much blessed.

Croydon.—A correspondent of the Bible Society writes: "A young man called upon me last night for a collecting box for the Society. He brought me 8s. 6d. for the Society, instead of spending it on a day's outing, for which he had been saving it up. He told me: 'This is owing to my having heard Mr. Moody.'"

A Gospel Male Choir has been formed at King's-cross, as one outcome of the recent meetings by Messrs. Moody and Sankey. Sir Henry Pitman has consented to be President, and various other local friends are interested in the effort. The Choir will freely give its help to any special evangelistic work in the neighbourhood.

Railway Men in London.—The sending of monthly Gospel packets to our railway men has been greatly owned of the Master. A platelayer in one of our London hospitals lately, when visited, said that the packets opened up the way for the Christian men to speak to their companions about the Saviour. Miss Jackson, 21, Stanley-gardens, London, W., will gladly send the names of men to any Christian who would help in the work.

Norwich.—A series of evangelistic services have lately been held for a fortnight by Mr. Spencer Walton, in the parish of St. Clement Without, Norwich. The numbers assembling every evening were quite as large as the schoolroom could hold, and the interest manifested was great. We believe that good was done, especially in bringing Christians to consecrate themselves wholly to their Master's service.

Mr. Henry Thorne in Birmingham. — For several weeks a large united committee, consisting of leading ministers and laymen of all evangelical denominations, have been preparing the way for a Mission which was commenced by Mr. Henry Thorne in Curzon Hall. A letter to young men, prepared by Mr. Thorne, has been sent round to most of the houses of business, and the members of the Association have been most earnest and active in distributing notices of the meetings in various parts of the town. As a result, thousands of people have gathered together to hear the Word of Life; and in the after meetings very many have been led into conscious peace with God. On the 8th inst., Mr. Thorne delivered an address on "Temptation," to young people of both sexes. These meetings will be continued till the 19th inst.

Agricultural Hall Services.—Sunday week was the sixteenth anniversary of the Lord's Day preaching at the Agricultural Hall, and, as usual, there was a very large congregation. Upon the platform were Dr. J. Thain Davidson, Revs. Mr. Haigh (Cloudesley-square), J. Ellis (Barnsbury Chapel), R. Berry (Islington Chapel), Mr. Norris (Baptist Chapel, St. John-street), Mr. Elvin, Mr. Layard, and others. Dr. Davidson said many instances of blessing received at those services had been forwarded from all parts of the world. From time to time additions were made to the Christian churches of various denominations in the district and elsewhere; through all those years the services had maintained their undenominational character. His acknowledgments were fervently given to his brethren in the ministry who had so willingly and worthily helped at the services without a farthing of remuneration. Especial thanks were also due to Mr. Elvin, who had come a considerable distance every Sunday in order to conduct the evening services. Mr. Haigh, Mr. Norris, and Mr. Elvin also spoke.

SAILORS IN PLYMOUTH.—We are endeavouring to supply all sailors and fishermen leaving our port with bags of books for their voyage. Tracts, magazines, Bibles and hymn-books will be most acceptable. I have made and filled 400 bags this year. I shall be glad to pay carriage to my address, and to send a Report, so that our friends may read a little of the work we are doing.

5, Bedford-terrace, Plymouth. Alice Pearse.

Forthcoming Meetings.

COMING CONFERENCES.

Glasgow Half-yearly Meetings of Christians.—October 23, Queen's Rooms, Clifton-street, 11 a.m. and 5.30 p.m. Friday, 24th, 4 till 6 p.m., in Christian Institute, Bothwell-street. Questions to be answered should be sent in in writing the day before. 7 p.m., reports and conference.

Edinboro', Free Assembly Hall.—Convention for the Exposition and Promotion of Christian Holiness, October 28–30, at 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. each day.

EVANGELISTIC.

The Evangelisation Society will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send lay preachers and Evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-square, S.E.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Children's Evangelistic Mission. — Messrs. T. Eyres and Jeynes conduct Missions for children in any chapel, hall, or school of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply Hon. Secretary, 253, Southampton-street, Camberwell, S.E.

Rev. W. Haslam.—October 25, Ryde (I. of W.).

Mr. J. M. Scroggie.—October, Bristol; November 2, Elgin, N.B. November 16, Inverness; December, Paisley.

Mr. Henry Thorne.—October 21, Derby; November 1–10; Doncaster; 15–24, Shrewsbury; 29 to December 8, Halifax; 12, Derby; 13–22, Duffield.

Messrs. Mateer and Parker.—October 27 to November 9, Trowbridge; 10 to 23, London (West-end); 24 to December 7, Margate; 8 to 21, Ramsgate.

Rev. W. Hay Aitken. — November 16 to 30, St. John's, Bethnal Green, E.; November 30 to December 15 (or longer), All Saints, South Lambeth.

Stepney Meeting House.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney gives an address every Sunday at 3 p.m.

Sadler's Wells Theatre, Clerkenwell. — Mr. Gawin Kirkham next Sunday evening, at 7.

Clapton Hall, Upper Clapton. — Mr. Shuldham Henry during October. Sundays, 6.30 p.m.; Fridays, 7.30 p.m.

Acton Hall, Church-road, Acton, W.—Opening services, Saturday, 18th inst. Prayer, praise, and testimony, 3 and 7. Friends invited.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Mr. Herbert Taylor during October. Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Wednesday, at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, at 8.

Open Air Mission. — Quarterly meeting, October 27, Y.M.C.A., 186, Aldersgate-street. "Summer Trips." Chairman, Lieut.-Colonel R. Wilmot Brooke. Tea at six. Conference at 7.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, October 19, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Mr. Stanley P. Smith. Mr. Wilkinson's Bible-readings in ladies' waiting-room, every Wednesday, 7.30 p.m.

Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W. (near Victoria Station). — Evangelistic meetings, by Captain Baring and others. Sundays at 3.45 and 7 p.m.; Thursdays at 8 p.m. Meetings of Christians for prayer and instruction, Tuesdays at 11.30 a.m.; Fridays at 8 p.m.

Children's Special Service Mission. — Meeting at Exeter Hall, for reports of sea-side services, S. D. Waddy, Q.C., M.P., presiding, October 16, at 6.30 p.m. Mr. Lidstone, Hornsey, October 27–30; Mr. W. L. Seyler, Landseer-street, Battersea, October 20–24; Mr. Spiers, Swansea; Mr. G. Bannister, Leeds, October 20–31. A suburban general meeting at Ealing, Rev. J. Summerhayes, M.A., presiding, October 20, at 7.30 p.m.

Evangelistic Mission. — Bignold Hall, Forest-gate; Dalston Hall, opposite Dalston Junction; Hammersmith—Upper Mission Room, 139, King-street; Kilburn Hall (not Town Hall), Kilburn-gate; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill;—all, Sunday, 7 p.m. Prayer meeting for workers, at 190, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, Wednesday, at 10.30 a.m. Annual meeting of the Mission, Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W., Tuesday October 21, 7.30 p.m. Tickets from 164, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, N.W. A preliminary meeting for prayer, &c., will be held in the upper hall at 4.30 p.m., to which Christian workers are specially invited.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Merchants' Lecture, Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields, City. Rev. Henry Allon, D.D., every Tuesday, at 12 noon, during October.

House of Rest, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W. —Friday, October 17, subject, "Promises and Conditions," 7 p.m. Tea at 6.

The Salvation Army.—Addresses by Mrs. Booth, Prince's Hall, Piccadilly, Wednesday afternoons, October 29, November 5, 12, and 26.

Bethshan, 10, Drayton-park, Highbury, N.—Opening of the new hall will take place on Thursday, October 23. Public meetings at 3 and 7 p.m.

186, Aldersgate-street.—Prayer meeting, first Friday in every month, 11.15 a.m., for women, for Gospel Temperance and other Christian work.

China Inland Mission.—Lady missionaries leaving for China will be present at 185, Aldersgate-street, noon prayer meeting, Tuesday, October 21.

Medical Prayer Union.—Annual meeting, Exeter Hall, Friday, October 17, 7.30 p.m. Addresses by Rev. Evan Hopkins and Captain Baring. All medical men and students cordially invited.

Moderate Drinking. — Public meeting, Large Room, Exeter Hall, Friday, October 17, to direct attention to the evils and dangers of "Moderate Drinking." Lord Bishop of Exeter will preside. Addresses by Dr. Alfred Carpenter, Dr. B. W. Richardson, Rev. Colmer B. Symes, &c. Chair taken at 7 p.m. Admission free.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Choirs.—Service of Praise, Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, Thursday, October 23, by choirs who assisted our American brethren during the late London mission. Tickets and programmes by enclosing stamped addressed envelope to the Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N., or the Secretary, 9, The Crescent, Leighton-grove, N.W.

Y.M.C. ASSOCIATIONS.

61, Gracechurch-street, E.C.—Daily prayer meeting 1.15 to 2 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Bible-readings each Tuesday, 6.15 p.m. Monthly meeting of members, at Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, Saturday, October 18. Tea at 5 p.m. Addresses by Messrs. J. E. Mathieson, A. C. P. Coote, and Stanley Smith, B.A. Male choir will lead the singing.

Exeter Hall.—Mid-day meeting every day (Saturday excepted) from 1 to 2. Meeting for Strangers, Monday night, at 8. Gospel meeting, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, at 8. Bible study, Friday and Saturday, at 8. Bible class, Sunday, at 3.30. Service, Sunday, at 7. Address to workers, by Rev. J. Wilkinson, Thursday, October 16, at 8 p.m. Rev. Dr. Bennett, Chelsea, will commence a series of Bible lectures, Friday, October 24, at 8 p.m.

186, Aldersgate-street, E.C. — Central Noon Prayer Meeting, daily, 12 to 1 o'clock. Sunday, Bible-class, 3.15 p.m.; evangelistic meeting, 7 p.m. Monday, 7 p.m., reception meeting for young men commencing business life in London; 8 p.m., lecture by Rev. Dr. Wainwright. Tuesday, teachers' preparatory Bible-classes, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Thursday, foreign Mission prayer-meeting, 7 p.m.; devotional meeting and address, 8 p.m. Friday, Gospel meeting, 8 p.m. (ladies also invited). Workers' praise and prayer meeting, 7.30 p.m.

Hampstead Branch.—Annual meeting, Thursday, 16th inst., 8 p.m., Vestry Hall, Haverstock-hill, Mr. H. M. Matheson in the chair. Speakers: Revs W. Brock, G. S. Kurney, Henry Le Pla, Dr. H. Sinclair Paterson, and Mr. C. Russell Hurditch.

The Priory, 198, Upper-street, Islington, N.—Thursday, October 16, at 8.30 p.m., address by Rev. R. Berry. Wednesday, 6 to 10 p.m., anxious inquirers and strangers.

Notices.

Mr. T. Rawlinson has removed from Kenmont-gardens, Harrow-road, to 41, Earl-street, Northampton.

If the lady who wrote from Congleton to Lady Sebright, and whose letter has been lost, will kindly communicate with her at Fakenham, Norfolk, she will be obliged, as she is going into that neighbourhood shortly.

Communications Received with Thanks.—H.J.L. I.S. E.B. M.C. J.C.C. L.D.W. H.A.N. F.S.S. J.C. Maud. J.B. W.H.C. E.G. G.G. E. W. G. J.B.C. I.M. A.P. G.M. R.R. H.J. G.K. F.H. J.P. A.M.B. E.L. E.A. T.E.K. D.S. R.M. E.D. C.S.R. G.H. W.S.W. J.S. W.H.R. V.M.S. B.B. G.E.S. A.C. T.M. H.R. H.T. W.H.S. G.F. W.H.L. E.W. E.R. F.H.P. D.L. G.P.H. W.B. C.C. E.T. D McL. H.E.B. F.A.W. J.H.G C.R.H. J.A. N.B.H. B.A. J.T.D. G.K. M.A.C. C.M. W.D. G.G.A. A.M.

Applicants for Tracts.—G. E. Pearce, Camelford, Cornwall; Miss Stront, district visitor, Sea View Cottage, Port Isaac, Cornwall; Miss E. Nanjullan, district visitor, Chapel-street, Camelford; D. Huggins, tract distributor, Launceston; J. Sleeman, local preacher, Pengelly, Camelford; W. Rowe, fishmonger, Medrose, Camelford; Edith Keast, Mount Charles, St. Austell, Cornwall; J. Doherty, 56, Silvergrove-street, Belfast; J. Simcox, 18, Ebury-street, Attercliffe, Sheffield; Mrs. Abbott, 107, Forest-road, Dalston, N.; Miss Dunsin, Thanet Nursery, Margate; Mrs. Pullar, Belgrave-villas, 202, Romford-road, Stratford, Essex; F. M. Whybrow, 15, Middle-row, New Town, Bishop's Stortford; Mrs. G. Turner, Cemetery-road, Peterboro'; Miss Mole, 15, The Crescent, Taunton; S. Stocks, 5, Sydney-cottages, Plumstead-common, Kent; D. Wright, 23, St. Mary's-vale, Chatham, Kent; F. W. Lloyd-Jones, 13, James-terrace, Wallsend-on-Tyne.

READING FOR SOLDIERS.—Mrs. Evered Poole, Enfield House, Southampton, sends to us extracts of a letter from a soldier stationed abroad, in which he expresses thankfully his indebtedness to this journal as a help to his spiritual life. Mrs. Poole will gladly furnish the addresses of soldiers abroad to any friends who may be disposed to forward to them copies of The Christian.

MR. WAKEFIELD MacGILL.—A gathering of friends, in connection with the Bromley Mission, to bid farewell to Mr. MacGill, was held on Monday week at the Gospel tent. Mr. Harry Guinness, who succeeds Mr. MacGill in the superintendence of the work, was in the chair. Various friends gave expression to the high esteem in which he is held, and the valuable services he has rendered during his term of labour in the East-end. As our readers were lately informed, Mr. MacGill goes to take charge of the Manchester City Mission.

TRACTS, &c., for NAVVIES.—Dear Sir,—From 3000 to 4000 navvies are at work on the new works for the East and West India Dock Company at Tilbury. These men are very accessible, and among others, labouring as missionaries among them, is one of our members, Charles Smith. He wants tracts, little books, and specially periodicals. Will any of the readers of The Christian help in supplying this need? If so, let them send to me, at my office, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, London, W.C., and they shall have grateful thanks.

Gawin Kirkham, Sec. Open-air Mission.

THE BIBLE FOR INDIA.—My wife and myself are sailing for India on the 15th inst. in connection with work for the British and Foreign Bible Society. Will your readers pray that God will make our way prosperous, and give us the joy of seeing that his work is being made known through the length and breadth of India. We hope that at the noon-day prayer-meetings at Aldersgate-street, India and our work there will not be forgotten. We hope eventually to establish a chain of native public Bible-readers across India—i.e., the line of railway from Calcutta to Peshawur.

Lewis D. Wozencroft.

Continued from page 3.

TO LET.—Business Premises, with or without stables. Consisting of shop, six large rooms, wash-house, yard. Marketing Place. Suitable for Coffee Palace or Eating-house, for a dispensary, home, or for meetings; or for a fish shop or furniture warehouse. Rent for all, £65.—May, 148, Clarendon-road, Notting-hill.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS, near the sea, with garden. Arrangements made for winter residence. Terms one to two guineas.—Lady Superintendent, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortable winter Apartments, board if required, close to pleasure gardens, few minutes' walk from sea; in centre of the Pines. Home comforts, good cooking. Terms moderate.
Cheltenham, Crescent-road, Bournemouth.

A QUIET, REFINED HOME, with a Gentleman's family, living at the West-end, is offered to the care of Gentlemen, while pursuing their studies in London.—S. G., Plummer's Library, 84, Norfolk-terrace, Bayswater, W.

INVALIDS' HOME for Gentlewomen; means.—A married Christian Lady receives into her private cheerful residence three patients. Experienced nurse and medical attendant.—Mrs. D., 21, Norfolk-road, St. John's-wood.

SECOND FLOOR, Unfurnished. Three rooms in good condition. Christians preferred.
92, Alderney-street, Warwick-square, S.W.

LODGINGS for respectable, business young men at Mr. and Mrs. Robinson's, 19, Canterbury-terrace, Maida-vale, W. Young men coming to London will find this a most comfortable Christian Home. Partial board if required. Terms moderate. Reference to Mr. W. H. Mills, Secretary, Young Men's Christian Association, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W.; and to Mr. and Mrs. Reid, 10, Pentonville-road, Brighton.

Miscellaneous.

CHRISTIANS are earnestly requested to pray for those anxious ones who may be induced to write to Evangelist, Clapham, S.W.

A GENTLEMAN studying for Holy Orders, wishes a Loan of £40, to assist in his university expenses. Amply secured on good property.
D. 528, Messrs. Deacon's, Leadenhall-street.

WILL ANY FRIEND send the Graphic or Illustrated News regularly each week for the use of a boys' night-school?
Miss W., Westbury-on-Trym, nr. Bristol.

HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES.—Will any Lady or Ladies, having time and means, kindly undertake the case of an afflicted Christian sister, who is applying for a pension?
Rev. T. G. Atkinson, Dunstable.

WANTED, for our Mothers' Dorcas Society, cast-off Clothing. Our Sunday-school work is amongst the very poorest, and many of the little ones need clothing.—Geo. Irving, Secretary, 6, Dapdune-road, Guildford.

MAGAZINE FOR SALE, for families and working people.—A good income has been made out of it. Good title. Most valuable to any Gentleman or Lady who has the interests of working people at heart.—Apply by letter to K., 61, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

NEEDLEWORK FOR LADIES, for Pleasure and Profit. All the New Art Work. Directions for lovely things in knitting and crochet. Useful articles and wearable things. Saleable bazaar articles. How to Dispose of Work and List of Work Societies. New and enlarged edition, price 1s. 7½d., post free.
Ringrose, Malvern Link.

WASHING WANTED, by an experienced Laundress. Terms moderate, with punctuality and care. Large open drying ground. Good references.—Mrs. Stocker, Hazell-road, Kensal-green (opposite Welford's Farm).

FURNISH on Norman & Stacey's Hire-Purchase System. Deposit not necessary. True economy on sound commercial principles. Strictly private. 1, 2, or 3 years. 60 wholesale firms. Ordinary selling prices.—Offices, 79, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

ASTHMA. — Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

IRON CHURCHES, &c., erected at lowest possible cost, by A. Chopping, 81, Derby-road, West Croydon, Surrey. Illustrated designs and estimates free.

Publications.

Twelfth Edition. Post-free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By Robert G. Watts, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c.
London: C. Mitchell & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.—Simpkin Marshall.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE TRACTS IN VERSE.—"Saturday's Wages are Going," 4d. per doz. New edition, arranged for Recitation by three persons, 6d. per dozen. "The Repentant Mother," a Temperance Tale, 4d. per dozen. "True Britons," 3d. per dozen.—L. S., 101, Cambridge-road, Kilburn, London, N.W.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.

Extra flexible, silk sewed, in best Bagster morocco, kid-lined, elastic band. With full helps. Prices from 20s.
In French morocco, projecting edges, elastic band. From 4s.
Samuel Bagster & Sons, Limited, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION for General Distribution, PRICE SIXPENCE.

TELL JESUS.

Recollections of EMILY GOSSE.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.; cloth, Gilt Edges, 2s. (post free).

"Presents us with notices of a life spent in loving, intimate, and uninterrupted communion with a personal Lord. . . . We have read the book with deep interest. We would that indolent professors might read it and be quickened, and that suffering saints might read it and be comforted."—Christian Times.

"The sentiment of this book is illustrated in a pleasing narrative, in which its influence upon the experience of an eminently pious friend of the author's, and of her own, is admirably pourtrayed. It is calculated to produce a certain impression upon the hearts of true Christians that will be greatly beneficial to them."—Sword and Trowel.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE POPULAR EDITION OF

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE

Strongly Bound in Cloth Boards, PRICE FIVE SHILLINGS.

Presentation Edition, handsomely bound in Cloth, price 7s. 6d.

THE POPULAR EDITION

Of CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE (Published by Morgan & Scott) contains a carefully revised and much extended List of the PROPER NAMES of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS with their Meanings in the Original Languages, by Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., Author of "The Proper Names of the Old Testament Scriptures Expounded and Illustrated.

Mr. D. L. Moody, after having recommended the purchase of a good Bible, says, "Next I would advise you to get Cruden's Concordance and a Scripture Text Book. These books will help you to study the Word of God with profit. If you have not got them, get them to-morrow, for every Christian ought to have them."

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

A Cheap Edition, price 6d.

The Life of GEORGE WHITEFIELD.

By J. R. ANDREWS,

Author of "The Life of Oliver Cromwell to the Death of Charles I."

In cloth (with Portrait), 1s.

Superior Edition in large type, for Presentation, cloth, bevelled boards (with Portrait), price 5s.

"Whitefield was not a framer of discipline, not a leader of a sect, not a founder of societies, not a ruler of men, but pre-eminently a winner of souls. Would that such preachers were multiplied in the present day! We thank Mr. Andrews for this seasonable addition to our religious biography. No young preacher or student should be without it. But it possesses an interest far beyond any special class, and deserves a wide and general circulation."—Methodist Recorder.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 6d.; Limp Cloth, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 1s. 6d.

John Wesley:

HIS LIFE AND TIMES.

By JOHN W. KIRTON, LL.D.,

Author of "Happy Homes, and How to make Them."

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

MRS. GRIMKE having now printed 50 languages, wishes to send out one million Text Cards to Missionaries this year, cost about £500, proposing to double all gifts sent by Christians, whose aid she asks. Many varieties of English (some very beautiful), F. M. sheets, tracts, quilt texts on calico, &c., always on sale.—For list, send stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. Grimke, Prestwich, Manchester.

"The Christian."

SUBSCRIPTION FOR 1885.

During the ensuing year (1885) there will be fifty-three Thursdays in the twelve months, and consequently there will be an additional week's issue of The Christian. This necessitates a slight alteration in the subscription for the year. The particulars are given below:—

ENGLISH.

53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage ½d.	0	7	0
2 Copies ,, ½d.	0	14	0
3 ,, ,, 1½d.	1	1	0
4 ,, ,, 2d.	1	8	0

FOREIGN (POSTAGE ½d.)

Austria.	Holland.
Belgium.	Italy.
California.	Madeira.
Canada.	Malta.
Canary Islands.	Norway.
Cyprus.	Persia, viâ Russia.
Denmark (including Faroe Islands and Iceland).	Portugal.
	Russia.
	Spain.
Egypt.	Sweden.
France.	Switzerland.
Germany.	Turkey.
Gibraltar.	United States.
Greece.	Vancouver's Island.

53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage ½d.	0	7	2
2 Copies ,, ½d.	0	14	4
3 ,, ,, 1½d.	1	1	6
4 ,, ,, 2d.	1	8	8

FOREIGN (POSTAGE 1d.)

Africa.	Mexico.
Australia.	Natal.
Cape de Verd Islands.	New Zealand.
Demerara.	South America.
Fiji Islands.	Tasmania.
Hawaiian Islands.	Transvaal.
Madagascar (St. Mary's only).	West Indies.

53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage 1d.	0	9	2
2 Copies ,, 1d.	0	18	4
3 ,, ,, 3d.	1	7	6
4 ,, ,, 4d.	1	16	8

FOREIGN (POSTAGE 1½d.)

Aden.	Japan.
Borneo.	Java.
British Burmah.	Philippine Islands.
Ceylon.	Singapore.
China.	Straits Settlements.
India.

53 weeks.	£	s.	d.
1 Copy and Postage 1½d.	0	11	5
2 Copies ,, 3d.	1	3	10
3 ,, ,, 4½d.	1	14	3
4 ,, ,, 6d.	2	5	8

Price One Shilling, post free.

THE

"Wondrous Love"

PACKET OF

ASSORTED ADDRESSES.

By D. L. MOODY.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

Christ's Boundless Compassion.
The Blood. Two Addresses.
Heaven. Two Addresses.
"Son, Remember!"
Naaman, the Syrian.
One Word—"Gospel."
The Way of Salvation.
Eight "I Wills" of Christ.
The Master's Parting Commission.
The Right Kind of Faith.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster buildings and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Terms for Advertisements

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words		3	0
,, 39 ,, ...		3	9
,, 48 ,, ...		4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of The Christian they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning's first post.

SIXPENCE POST FREE.

LARGE EDITION, BOUND IN CLOTH, 1s. 3d.

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work

ON

CONSUMPTION

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

AND ALL

OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. May be had from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C., or from Mr. Congreve (the Author), Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

Eleventh Series of Weekly Cases.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

CASE of MR. BOWLEY, COCKERMOUTH.

In the early part of last year I was consulted by Mr. Herbert Bowley, of 29, Main-street, Cockermouth. He had been strongly advised by a friend to apply to me. Weakness in the chest had been felt for some few winters, each year being worse, and now accompanied with severe pains; troublesome cough, perspirations, and depression of spirits.

For six weeks there was such improvement that the patient was disposed to leave off the medicine, but continued on in deference to my decided opinion that he should persevere until thoroughly well, and free from every symptom.

I have recently heard that he is well, and has been recommending my treatment to many.

CASE REPORTED by Rev. SOL. S. ALLSOP, BRANSTONE ROAD, BURTON-ON-TRENT.

Several cases reported by this minister have appeared before.

"A little girl, whose chest and lungs were seriously affected, has been supplied with your Balsam. In a week she began to improve, and is now almost well. The effect of the medicine on her spirits, appetite, and appearance is simply wonderful. With care, and God's blessing, I think we shall raise her."—May, 1884.

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

TONGA FOR NEURALGIA

ALLEN & HANBURYS

"Invaluable in facial Neuralgia. Has proved effective in all those cases in which we have prescribed it."—Medical Press.

"Tonga maintains its reputation in the treatment of Neuralgia."—Lancet.

Tonga is sold at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s. Of all Chemists.

Plough Court, Lombard St., London.

JUST PUBLISHED. Price 1d.; 7s. 6d. per 100.

THE GOSPEL:

AS VARIOUSLY VIEWED

By New Testament Writers.

By G. F. TRENCH.

Reprinted from "The Christian."

"The Gospel is preached variously. It is sung by angels; it is lived by the Lord; it is exhibited in miracles of healing and resurrection; it is plainly published by the burning words of Peter and Paul, and of the others who had felt its life-giving joy in themselves. Sometimes it is a tale of love, of mercy, and of life; sometimes a command; sometimes a warning; sometimes an entreaty."—Extract from Introduction.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

2nd Edition. Now Ready.

THE MORTE STONE.

A BOOK FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

By EBENEZER WILMSHURST.

With several Illustrations. Price One Shilling.

Review, by MR. C. H. SPURGEON, in the "Sword and Trowel."

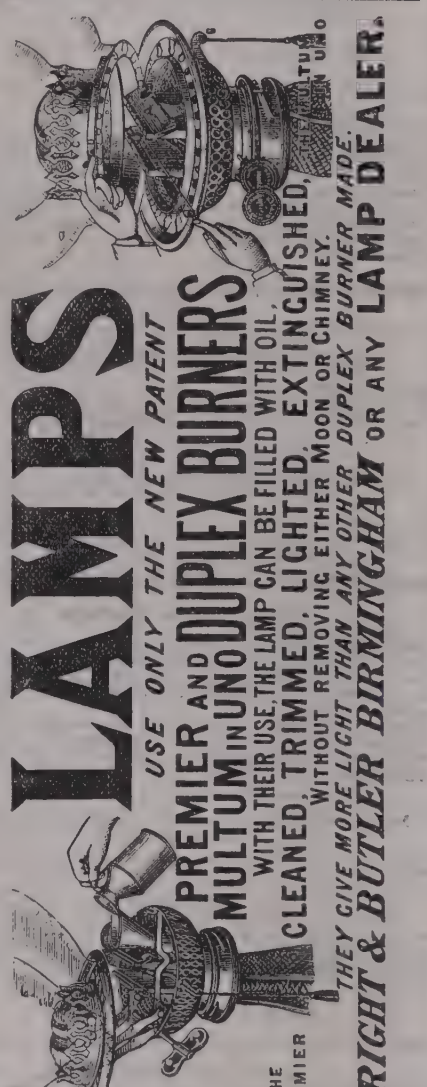
"None of your nod-your-head-and-go-to-sleep Sunday School Addresses, but all alive-and-awake ones, enforced by crisp dewy illustrations and anecdotes, and all leading to personal piety and robust godliness. Get it and study it, Mr Proser, next time you intend to torture the children from the platform, and if they do not open their eyes—and keep them open—we shall open ours in surprise."

Post-free from MR. E. WILMSHURST, BLACKHEATH.

London: C. A. Bartlett & Co., Paternoster-row.



LAMPS
USE ONLY THE NEW PATENT
PREMIER AND MULTUM IN UNO DUPLEX BURNERS
WITH THEIR USE THE LAMP CAN BE FILLED WITH OIL, CLEANED, TRIMMED, LIGHTED, EXTINGUISHED,
WITHOUT REMOVING EITHER MOON OR CHIMNEY.
THEY GIVE MORE LIGHT THAN ANY OTHER DUPLEX BURNER MADE.
WRIGHT & BUTLER BIRMINGHAM OR ANY LAMP DEALER.
THE PREMIER

Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth, 6d.

THE ENQUIRY ROOM.

Hints for Dealing with the Anxious.

By GEORGE SOLTAU.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

BOOKS FOR ENQUIRERS AND CONVERTS.

The Way of Life.

A Book for Enquirers. By Rev. Robert Boyd, D D. Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

"About fifteen years ago this little book attracted my notice. I read it with interest, and felt so much profited that I re-read it several times, and then circulated hundreds of copies among the soldiers during the American war. The number that then seemed blessed through reading the book has induced me to ask Messrs. Morgan & Scott to republish hoping it, that it may be the means of good in this country, as it has been in America." D. L. Moody

All About Jesus.

Thoughts and Reflections on the Person and Work of Christ. By Alexander Dickson. This book was printed at the express desire of Mr. D. L. Moody. Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s. 6d.

"The volume sets forth Jesus very much in Scriptural language, for we have counted over 1340 passages of Holy Writ, chastely and lovingly interwoven in the discourses. Throughout, Jesus is the subject of delightful meditation, affection, and adoration."

The Methodist.

Addresses to Young Men.

By Rev. Daniel Baker. With Preface by D. L. Moody. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

"These discourses were designed to be of an awakening character. They were preached (in substance) in numerous revivals, and were blessed to the hopeful conversion of many precious souls, of whom some fifty or more have become ministers of the Gospel. May He who was pleased to bless these discourses when they came from the pulpit, bless them also now."

Author's Preface.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

NOW READY.

Tinted Cover, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards 2s. 6d.

LIFE, WARFARE, AND VICTORY.

By MAJOR WHITTLE.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SPARKLING MORELLA

The New High-Class substitute for Wine.

Absolutely void of alcohol, from the pure juice of the famous Kentish Morel Cherry; sold in Champagne pints at 21s. per double dozen. Remittance with order; no booking. Not less than two dozen delivered in London, or to any British Railway Station. Sample pint bottle by post for 1s 6d. Special terms for philanthropic objects, bazaars, fêtes, &c. The Trade supplied. Apply to THOS. GRANT and SONS, Maidstone Producers also of the popular Tonic Liqueurs, "Grant's Morella Cherry Brandy," "Grant's Orange Cognac," and "Grant's Ginger Cognac," the best of all remedies for disorders of the stomach. A bottle by post, as sample, for 4s. 10d., addressed to our London Office, 22, Walbrook, London, E.C.

GOLD MEDAL, CALCUTTA, 1884.

Fry's Cocoa

Guaranteed Pure. Extract

"There is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.

"Strictly pure."—W. Stoddart, Analyst for Bristol.

"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin

NINETEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

ANNUAL SALE OF OVER HALF A MILLION.

McCALL'S

PAYSANDU OX TONGUES.

A DELICACY FOR BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, OR SUPPER,

TO BE HAD AT ALL GROCERS.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 12 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.

"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months, for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 769.] THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1884. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

Home Missions and the Churches ... 5
Sabbath Schools and Foreign Missions ... 5
Notes on Scripture ... 6
Theatrical Employes ... 7
A Worker in the Australian Bush ... 7
For the Young ... 8
Dublin Christian Convention ... 9
Children's Special Service Mission ... 11
South Africa ... 11
Notes and Comments ... 12
Poetry—Blandina ... 13
Jews in Bessarabia ... 14
Mr. Gough on Prohibition ... 14
The House of Rest, Kilburn ... 14
"Old Scholars' Meeting" ... 15
Working Lads' Institute ... 16
"Who will go for us?" ... 16
Caring for the Servants ... 16
Poetry—Knocking ... 16
Temperance Notes ... 16
Young Men in Ireland ... 17
Maloga Aboriginal Mission ... 17
The Smyrna Rest ... 18
Continental and Foreign Notes ... 18
Home of Industry ... 18
An Earnest Worker in Egypt ... 19
Tent Work in Fulham ... 22

ST. GILES' CHRISTIAN MISSION.

£500 URGENTLY NEEDED.

The present state of the finances of our Mission is most serious, caused partly by my enforced absence from home through ill-health, and partly from the slack season of the year: consequently, we are much perplexed as to our future movements; but should be intensely grieved to have to close the doors of any of our Mission Stations, or in any wise curtail our Prison Gate Work, but we dare not contract further liabilities.

Who will help us, among the Readers of "The Christian," to clear off this Debt of £500, that we may carry on our Daily Rescue Work without let or hindrance?

GEORGE HATTON,

12, Ampton-place, Regent's-square, W.C. Superintendent of the St. Giles' Christian Mission.

Treasurer—F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

"THE THEATRICAL MISSION."

Vice-Presidents.

THE RIGHT HON. THE LORD MAYOR, M.P. ALDERMAN SIR WILLIAM McARTHUR, M.P., J.P.
SIR WILLIAM MUIR, LL.D., K.C.S.I.

Director.

COURTHOPE TODD.

FIVE HUNDRED POUNDS REQUIRED AT ONCE

To Rent and Furnish EIGHT ADDITIONAL ROOMS IN THE INSTITUTE for the Sleeping Accommodation of COUNTRY AND FOREIGN GIRLS—"ALONE IN LONDON."

It is trusted that, by this means, many who have been induced to leave their Homes may, under Christian Influence, be persuaded to return to their Parents at the close of the Season.

Subscriptions may be sent to "THE THEATRICAL MISSION," 21, King-street, Covent Garden.

Bankers: Messrs. FULLER, 77, Lombard-street, E.C. Cheques, &c., to be crossed as above.

NOW READY. Price One Shilling, in Beautifully Illustrated Cover, Stiff Boards.

HERALD OF MERCY, VOLUME FOR 1884.

"We are glad to find that this little halfpenny Gospel monthly, originated by the late DUNCAN MATHESON, still holds on its way. The Annual Volume just to hand is very attractive in matter and illustrations, and good in paper, print, and binding. May it prove a channel of salvation to many souls."—Footsteps of Truth, October, 1884.

This volume will be found suited to all, acceptable as a present, and calculated to do good wherever it goes. It contains Telling Articles, Addresses, Extracts, Poetry, Children's Pages, &c., &c., and abounds in Illustrations.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

£100 WANTED IMMEDIATELY, to enable the Committee to carry on the following branches of work of the East London Tract Society and Christian Mission. An additional expense has been incurred by taking another and larger hall, close to docks:—Dock Labourers' Mission, Railway Employés Mission, Public House Mission, Missio to Policemen, Mission to Sailors, Home to Home Visitation, &c., &c. The work is strongly recommended by Samuel Morley, Esq., M.P., Sir A. Cotton, K.C.S., Lady Hope, Miss McPherson, and others. Funds, which are urgently needed, and tracts, may be sent to the Office, 47, Dee-street, Poplar, E.

Geo. Fuller, Supt.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with many thanks from a Coachman, 5s. Anonymous clothing, books, &c.

The Infant Day Nursery. Free Ragged Day Schools. Special work amongst Little Girls. Sunday Schools. Tey Classes. Mutual Industrial Classes for Big Rough Boys. (Mondays and Thursdays, at 8.30 p.m., will be the best times for seeing this branch of work in operation.) Classes and Meetings for Elder Girls and Young Women. Mothers' Meetings. Mission to Inebriate Women. Rations of food to Hungry Children. Common Lodging House Services. Clothing lent to Destitute Children. Room to Room Visitation. Evangelistic Services and other Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 63, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to George Holland, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

YORKSHIRE WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANC UNION.—Annual Meeting and Conference at Barnsley, November 4 and 5.—For information, apply to Miss Pumphrey, 17 Priory-street, York.

EARNEST APPEAL.—A Piano is much needed to assist in mission work amongst mill girls. Young Women's Help Society, Bachelor's Walk, Lisburn, Ireland.

DESTITUTE CHILDREN'S DINNERS SOCIETY.—The season for these dinners will commence on the 1st of November. During the past winter 53 dining-rooms were opened, and 188,384 dinners given to poor children attending schools. Subscriptions received by the Treasurers, Lord Kinnaird, 1, Pall Mall East, and Wm. Fuller, Esq., 111, Piccadilly; or the Secretary, Colonel Alston, 86, St. George's-road, S.W.

RESCUE WORK IN POPLAR.—Manor Cottage, Kersey-street, Poplar, E. Founded by Mrs. Wilkes, 1878. Treasurer, Henry Green, Esq., Blackwall, E. Miss Cooke 68, Mildmay-park, will also receive contributions for this work of mercy. Mrs. Wilkes at home Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, to see friends and give information respecting this effort to seek and save the lost.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.—The Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor, M.P., Treasurer; J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman; Mr. Ex-Sheriff Clarence Smith, Hon. Secretary. For ninety-nine years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 200 Christian men and women. Subscriptions and letters for Convalescent Homes are urgently needed. The Banking account is considerably overdrawn. The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.—Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. E. H. Gerrans, Secretary.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

GEE-STREET Christian Mission and Ragged School, Goswell-road, earnestly solicits donations to continue the good work of preaching, teaching the Gospel, temperance, and relieving deserving poor.—Bankers, Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard-street; Treasurer, Robert Baxter, Esq., 6, Victoria-street, Westminster; Hon. Secretary, Rudgley, 82, Wood-street, Cheapside.

SEVEN DIALS MISSION.—The Mission Hall, Short's-gardens, having just undergone needful repairs at a cost of about Forty Pounds (a heavy addition to the ordinary expenses), contributions in aid of the work are urgently needed, and will be thankfully acknowledged by Rev. F. S. Swinnell, 32, Broad street, Seven Dials, W.C.

COSTERMONGERS' COTTAGE MISSION, Vinegar Ground, City-road, E.C.—Established 1872.—Funds are greatly needed at the present time to carry on the Lord's work among this class of poor. Also parcels of left-off clothing will be thankfully received for the little costers this coming winter.—Walter Penrose, Supt. W. Owen, Treasurer, 22, St. George's-road, Tufnell-park, N.

FAITH-HEALING Meetings, conducted by the Rev. John Allen, Trinity Church, Triangle, Hackney, London, E. Sundays, 3 p.m. Mondays, 7 p.m., addresses and testimonies; Tuesdays, 11.30 a.m., anointing service.

ZENANA MISSION. — Christmas Cards sold for above, made of dried flowers from Jerusalem, 6d. and 3d. each.—M. G., Bryansford, Castlewellan, Co. Down, Ireland.

BETHSHAN.—Faith Healing Home, 161, Islington, Liverpool. For particulars apply to Miss Gibbs.

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION.

To Meet the Needs of the SICK POOR. "Preaching the Gospel and Healing."

Donations and clothing (new and old) thankfully received. Reports sent on application.

Hon. Director—Dr. G. Saunders, C.B. Hon. Treasurer—Dr. W. B. Bell. 47, Endell-st., St. Giles'.

ZENANA AND MEDICAL MISSION, School and Home, 58, St. George's-road, S.W. This Institution is undenominational. Christian ladies are admitted to be trained for Medical Mission Work in India, China, &c. The curriculum is for two years. All who have gone up for examination have passed and obtained diploma, as well as diploma in midwifery of Obstetrical Society. The year consists of three terms. The charge is fifty guineas per annum (including board, residence, and instruction fees), payable in advance, in three equal proportions of £17 10s. Ladies of limited means invited to apply, the committee sometimes having facilities for assisting such. Hon. Sec., Dr. Griffith; Treasurer, G. J. Green, Esq., London and County Bank, Victoria-street, S.W.

Funds are urgently needed.

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—A preliminary Meeting for confession humiliation, and prayer will be held, the Lord willing, at Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware road, on Friday, October 31, at 3.30 p.m. All Christians invited.

Educational.

BELLE VUE, Ambleside.—Good School for Girls.—Having increased accommodation, Mrs Fleming can now receive six additional Pupils. House well and healthily situated, with large rooms, garden, tennis ground. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Distinguished success in Cambridge Examinations, which are optional. Resident foreign and English governesses. Visiting masters. 50 to 60 guineas.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, Belgrave-place Principals, Mrs and Miss Wilkin.—High-class education for Girls. Pupils prepared for the Royal Academy (Music) and University Examinations. Healthy situation. Home comforts.—Prospectus and references on application.

ROTHESAY HOUSE, Alum Chine, Bournemouth.—Miss Cole (certificated in London University Examinations for Women), having for some years successfully conducted a large school for girls, now receives a few Pupils in her own home. Healthy position near sea. Thorough education, combined with comforts of refined Christian home. Lady boarder received.

ALBURY HEATH, near Guildford.—Miss Baker receives six Young Ladies. Home comforts. Excellent education. Certificated governesses. Visiting professors. Healthy and beautiful situation. Indian children received. Highest testimonials. Pupil Teacher required, Premium £20.

HASTINGS.—Wellington College for Ladies, 4, Wellington-square. Head Mistress, Miss De la Mare. Honours in the L.L.A. Examination for women. Science and other certificates. Pupils prepared for the local and higher examinations. Kindergarten department for young children. Vacancies for two boarders.—Prospectus on application to the Secretary, Rev. F. Leaver.

HOLLAND HOUSE, Clarence-parade, Southsea.—School for the daughters of gentlemen. Special educational advantages, with home comforts and care. Indian charges received. References kindly permitted to the parents of present and former pupils. Prospectus on application to the Principal.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE for Young Ladies, Parkbeare, Exeter, Devon, and CLARENDON HOUSE, Topsham (for delicate girls requiring sea-air). Education of the highest order. Professors, English and foreign certificated governesses. Pupils successfully passed Edinburgh, Oxford, Trinity College, College of Preceptors. Honours, and special certificates. The Principal's aim is to secure a training that will ensure spiritual well-being; she engages as teachers ladies of decided piety only. Numerous references to parents in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and abroad. Pupils accompanied to and from London (journey of four hours).

LONDON.—First-class Education for the daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and wise training while pursuing their studies under first-class professors; their health, individual character, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles.—Delta, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

FOR DISPOSAL, a first-class Ladies' School. Only those with capital and some experience of scholastic life need apply. Principal retiring on account of failing health. No agents.—T. R. S., 45, Dyke road, Brighton.

SOUTHDENE, Ramsgate.—Splendidly situated Home for delicate children requiring sea and country air, combined with educational advantages. Under the personal supervision of experienced Christian Lady. Prospectus on application. Terms moderate.

A THEOLOGICAL STUDENT, Spanish, who can teach French and German, wishes to find a situation as Tutor in a family. References, Messrs. Porret & Gautier, Professors of Theology, and Mr. Montandon, Minister, Lausanne, Switzerland.

AS GOVERNESS.—Situation wanted after Christmas, in school or family, in or near London, for young Lady experienced in teaching. Has high recommendations. Certificates from Cambridge, College of Preceptors, Academy of Music, &c. Is decided Christian, kind, earnest, helpful, extremely lady-like, and most capable. Salary, resident £30 to £70; non-resident, £90.—Apply, stating particulars, to N. B., 53, Hilldrop-road, Camden-road, London.

EXPERIENCED NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted, in a gentleman's family residing about 50 miles from London, to take entire charge of three children, under 13. Capable of teaching thorough English, French, Latin, music, singing, and drawing. Only a Christian Lady of experience and a good disciplinarian need apply. Age 25 to 30.

Beta, 14, Moray-road, Finsbury-park, London, N.

A MISTRESS wanted immediately, for a mixed school in the neighbourhood of Birmingham.

Woodville, Handsworth, Birmingham.

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS wanted, or Mother's Help. Five children, eldest (girl) seven years. Two servants.—State qualifications, age, salary, references, &c., to Box 3, Hartlepool.

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted, for two little girls, 4 and 7 years, and assist in light household duties. Comfortable Christian home.—Apply personally to Mrs. Fisher, 10, High-road, Kilburn, London, N.W.

SOUTHSEA.—A Clergyman is anxious to recommend a first-class School for a few girls, exclusively Gentlemen's daughters, where his own daughters finished. Thorough teaching. Sound Christian training. Terms to fill one vacancy at Christmas, forty guineas per annum.—Rev. J. Johnson, Bitteell Rectory, Watlington, Oxon.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,

WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE,

Principal: Dr. Cranage.

SOUTHPORT.—First-class Girls' School. Conducted by members of the Society of Friends. Special educational advantages. Masters and Lecturers of acknowledged merit. Watchful care and home comforts. Situation particularly open and healthy.—Mrs. Wallis, Brightholmston, Birkdale, Southport.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

ESTATE AGENCY, Resident Factorship, or position of trust.—A Solicitor, in good practice in Scotland, desires such in dry and bracing part of England, on account of health. Highest references.—Apply, with particulars, to Solicitor, 9, Bank-street, Edinburgh

EVANGELIST.—A Gentleman of considerable experience in preaching, visiting the sick, conducting Bible Classes and Prayer meetings, desires to meet with a suitable sphere of labour. A moderate stipend would suffice. Reference may be made to Rev. W. G. Lewis, St. Albans; or Rev. G. Twentyman, New Barnet, to whom the applicant is well known.

SCRIPTURE READER desires a sphere of town work, under an earnest clergyman. Nine years' experience. Accustomed to services in mission, chapel, Sunday, and night schools, Bible classes, &c.—Reader, care of Rev. W. Thompson, M.A., Guidrey Lodge, Sedbergh, Yorks.

VILLA RONVENELA, MONTREUX, LAKE OF GENEVA.

Monsieur and Madame Renkewitz, having directed a Boarding School for Young Gentlemen for many years, receive a limited number of Pupils desiring to study foreign languages. Every attention is paid to the health, comfort, and progress of the Pupils, who are under the immediate care of the Principal, assisted by competent teachers. Montreux being noted for its healthy and mild climate, youths of delicate constitution are offered a plentiful English diet and special care. In order to give pupils the opportunity of perfecting themselves in French and German, those languages are habitually spoken. Branches of Instruction are: French, German, History, Geography, Arithmetic, Mathematics, Writing, and Drawing. Latin, Music, and Painting are extra. The English of the Junior Pupils, and of all those who require it, is carefully kept up, that they may not forget to write their own language correctly. Pupils remaining during the Midsummer holidays, are expected to contribute £8 to enable them to make excursions with the Principal. Terms £80 per annum, including washing and repairing linen, use of bed and table-linen, books, and stationery, drawing materials, and baths. Pupils remaining less than a year, pay £24 per quarter. Payments are expected quarterly in advance. A quarter's notice before removal. An excellent Gospel ministry, both Scotch and Swiss, is within easy reach. The house is situated in a pleasant garden, commanding beautiful views. Mrs. Renkewitz is an English lady, and she and a friend residing with her, take every care of the comfort of the pupils. References: Miss Whately, care of Archdeacon Whately, 21, Belmont Park, Lee, S.E. and Mrs. Wale, Pavelle, Clarens, Switzerland.

Th. Renkewitz, Director.

EARNEST YOUNG CHRISTIAN Carpenter and Joiner (life-abstainer), wishes for situation in Institution to teach boys his trade. Gospel Temperance worker. Strongly recommended by Miss Fraser, The Hope, Merton, Surrey.

SCRIPTURE OR LAY READER, or any sphere of Missionary Work. A zealous Christian (26). Evangelical, experienced in mission and other work. Recommended by Evangelical clergy.

Studiosus, 27, Park street, Hereford.

A GENTLEMAN, member of the Society of Friends, desires to meet with responsible appointment as Manager or Secretary to a bonâ fide concern, where first-class references as to character would be valued.

M., 11, Ampton-road, Birmingham.

A SCRIPTURE READER, or similar engagement, earnestly desired by young man. Highest references. Salary not so important as obtaining engagement.

Williams, Temple News Rooms, Fleet-street, E.C.

AS WAITER OR CARVER, or any place of trust, wanted, by Christian man, age 42. Twelve years' good personal character. No Sunday work.

S. F., Victoria House, Newcastle street, Strand.

A MIDDLE-AGED COUPLE want employment, care of mission hall, or office, or as Gatekeeper. Well recommended by their minister and others. Total abstainers.—J. H., 19, Fulney-street, Barnsbury-road, Islington.

AS INDOOR SERVANT, in or out of livery.—Thoroughly understands his duties. Good reference. Age 25; height 5 ft. 6 in.—A. B., 8, Moorend-street, Leckhampton, Cheltenham.

AS BUTLER, experienced; or House Steward to institution, school or business house. Earnest believer, testifying in the name of Jesus. Married. Age 38.

M. M., Stoke Holy Cross, Norwich.

GARDENER, Head or Single-handed. Well experienced. Age 45. Married. No children. Can be well recommended. Total abstainer. Schools or Institutes not objected to.

Gardener, Manor House, Sidcup, Kent.

EMPLOYMENT WANTED, by a Christian young man, as Lay Reader, Caretaker, or in any kind of Mission work. Well recommended.

J. D., 110, Beaufort-street, Chelsea, London, S.W.

A CHRISTIAN WIDOW wishes to place her son (13), a bright, nice looking boy, in a Christian family, abstainers, as Page. Wages no object.—M., 50, Station-road, Anerley, S.E.

A THOROUGH INDOOR SERVANT who has been on jobs, would be glad to meet with a permanent situation. Forty. Married. No family. Christian and total abstainer.

C. P., 61, Grove-place, Brompton-road, S.W.

AS COMPANION, travelling or otherwise, by a young Lady, member of Church of England. Understands dressmaking, housekeeping, &c.; good needlewoman, musical.—Address stating salary to, Catharine, 19, Kenton-road, Hackney, London.

Mrs. ROBERT BURN, 196, Green Lanes, N., is anxious to recommend a most trustworthy Widow, who would undertake to do the domestic work for an elderly couple, or be capable of nursing and managing for an invalid. 352, St. James'-road, Old Kent-road, Bermondsey.

AS ATTENDANT, or in any capacity requiring strict integrity and willing usefulness.—A Lady can recommend Christian man, known to Advertiser for 15 years.

R., 14, Elm-place, Fulham road.

A LADY in Tunbridge Wells would be glad to hear of occupation as Companion to a Lady, invalid or not. To be engaged for a short time or permanently. Good references and excellent testimonials can be given.

Y. Y., 25, Grosvenor-road, Tunbridge Wells.

AS THOROUGH WORKING LADY HOUSEKEEPER. Servant kept. Possessing superior qualifications. Unusual supervision and industry. A Christian. Conscientiously recommended. State salary and particulars.—H. E., Mr. Scotney's Library, Weston-super-Mare.

A CLERGYMAN'S DAUGHTER (30) wishing to winter in a warm climate, would be glad to make herself useful in a family in return for board and lodging; or would pay a moderate sum in addition to giving services. Brilliant pianist. Cheerful companion.

Miss Brooke, Post office, Rochester.

AS HOUSEKEEPER where servant is kept; or Working Housekeeper in small family. Advertiser trustworthy, with good reference. Age 29.—C. M., 6, Clarence-square, Brighton.

A LADY WISHES to recommend a respectable young person as Useful Maid, or Attendant to an invalid Lady. Good plain needlewoman. Two years' reference. South preferred.—L. J. Ody, New-road, Chatteris, Cambs.

A LADY seeks a situation as Under Housemaid for a young woman, aged 20, disengaged early next month. Christian privileges valued.

E. A., 4, South View, Whitton-road, Hounslow.

A LADY IS ANXIOUS to find a situation in a Christian family of abstainers for a good servant of respectable family. Housemaid, or House and Parlourmaid.

Mrs. Boyle, Wallington Vicarage, Surrey.

AS GENERAL SERVANT in a small quiet family near London, where another is kept; or would go as Housemaid. Age 25.
Mrs. K., Christchurch Vicarage, Hoxton, N.

A LADY, highly recommended, is desirous of some post of trust, in a family or institution, as Lady Housekeeper or as Travelling Companion. Highest references.
A. C., 20, York-street, Portman-square.

GIRL, as Under-maid in kitchen and house, near London. Age 16. Good character from training home. Kind, thorough teaching desired.—Miss M., 31, Kensington-gardens-square, Bayswater, London.

A LADY can thoroughly recommend a Lady (30) with 2½ years' reference, for a position of trust, where reliable principle and ability would be appreciated. A clever worker. Practically domesticated, and conscientiously competent to take superior charge of house and young family.—C. T., 47 Abbey-road, N.W.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

BIBLE-WOMAN wanted for Charles Parish, Plymouth. She must know something of a Nurse's work among the poor, and be a total abstainer. Salary £18 a year.—Apply by letter to Rev. G. F. Head, 15, Woodland-terrace, Plymouth.

IN CONSEQUENCE of promotion, wanted, a Church of England Missionary for seamen in Gibraltar Bay. Earnest and experienced. Total abstainer preferred. Stipend £100 and furnished room. £6 for voyage.—Address, with testimonials and photo, Archdeacon, Gibraltar. Postage 5½d. per oz.

SCRIPTURE READERS WANTED.—The Church of England Scripture Readers' Association have one or two vacancies in London for active, energetic, and truly converted men, desirous of devoting their whole time to work for Christ. Age between 25 and 45. Commencing stipend £77. Must be communicant members of the Church. Candidates resident in London and the neighbourhood preferred. Unsuitable applications not replied to.—Forms of application and all particulars on applying to the Lay Secretary, at the Offices, 56, Haymarket, S.W.

YOUTH WANTED, as Apprentice to Chemist and Druggist for three years. Son of Christian parents preferred, who would appreciate Christian home. Premium £55.
Andrew, Chemist, Rainham, Kent.

CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted, in a Young Ladies' School, who thoroughly understands household work and domestic arrangements generally, to superintend and take part in both, as well as to act as Maid. Must be total abstainer, early riser, good needlewoman. Those only need apply who are competent, and prepared to undertake and fulfil the duties faithfully.—Apply any evening, between 6 and 8, 12, Melbury-road, Kensington, W.

TWO ACTIVE, energetic women wanted (mother and daughter or sisters), Churchwomen, with thoroughly good references, for the care of mission house, soup kitchen to cut out plain under-clothing, and act as saleswomen; also to take charge of maternal boxes. Salary £1 weekly. Rent free.—Apply by letter to Miss Bowman Bowman, Park-hill, Clapham.

WANTED, in a North Devon farmhouse, a conscientious girl, to take charge of two little boys, under five years, and do nursery work. Very light duties. Small wages. Also trustworthy GENERAL SERVANT, able to cook.—Mrs. Lee, Holwell, Crediton, Devon.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—Wanted, two young Lady apprentices for fancy drapery. Premium required. A comfortable Christian home, and good business. Close at five o'clock on Saturdays.—Apply to Charles Fisher, 10 & 10a, High road, and Greville road, Kilburn, London, N.W.

COFFEE TAVERN.—Wanted, a Christian man and wife, without children, accustomed to the business. Must be interested in mission work.—C. T., 186, Aldersgate street.

RAMSGATE.—Will some Ladies offer themselves as workers in a poor parish, where the ministry is Evangelical? They are invited to reside on moderate terms in St Luke's Invalid and Convalescent Home.—Miss Rosalind Hosking, Finsbury House, Ramsgate.

LAUNDRESS wanted, to work daily in a Gentleman's family near London. An abstainer, and of very respectable character. State wages, with or without a house.—Address, by letter only, Mrs. A., May's Advertising Offices, 159, Piccadilly, London, W

CAN ANY LADY recommend an experienced Nurse for first baby, in the country? Christian and abstainer. Required 1st November.
E. C., 1, Norfolk-crescent, Hyde-park.

PLAIN COOK, to attend daily, wanted. Cottage provided. Other members of the family might be employed in or out of the house. An abstainer preferred.—Address, by letter only, H. A., May's Advertising Offices, 159, Piccadilly, London, W.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted.—Wages £16 to £18, all found except beer. Two in family. Two servants. Must be thoroughly trustworthy and steady. Good character indispensable. One trained under good cook preferred.
Mrs. Herbert Padwick, Seafield, Emsworth.

HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID wanted. Must be willing, strong, early riser, good needlewoman. Churchwoman. Three in family.
Miss Sophia Fryer, Chatteris, Cambs.

GOOD PLAIN COOK, to assist in housework, where another is kept; valuing quiet home. No cooking on Sunday. Early dinners. Abstainer. Trustworthy person. Excellent character.
L., 14, Woodlands terrace, Blackheath.

WANTED, in a small family, by a clergyman's widow, in the country, a good plain cook, or good general servant who can cook. Wages £18 all found. Good character essential. Age from 20 to 30.
Mrs. Postlethwaite, Kenley, Surrey.

COOK, ALSO HOUSEMAID, wanted. Private family, five in number, no young children. Washing put out; no knives or boots. Abstainers preferred. Wages £20 and £16.—Apply, personally or by letter, A. B., 6, Ladbroke-gardens, London, W.

THOROUGH INDOOR MAN Servant wanted. Single-handed. Total abstainer preferred.—Apply by letter to Mrs. Bairstow, Mayfield, Clapham Common, S.W.

NURSEMAID.—Wanted, a strong, healthy, willing Nursemaid experienced with young children. Early riser, good needlewoman indispensable. Some assistance given.—Apply, stating age, wages, former experience, to Mrs. R. Ecroyd, The Briery, Harrogate.

CHRISTIAN YOUNG WOMAN wanted, as Nursemaid, to take charge of three little children the youngest eight months old. Must be strong and healthy and a good needlewoman.—Mrs. Carter, Harpenden Lodge, Weston-super-Mare.

WANTED, END OF OCTOBER, an experienced Christian Nurse, for four children. Eldest boy seven, baby three months. Must be good needlewoman. Nursemaid kept.—Write, stating age, wages, &c., Mrs. Sherrard, Hillside House, Plumstead.

A STRONG STEADY GIRL wanted, who is willing to learn cooking, and to do kitchen work. There is another kept for upper work.
M. C., 3, London-road, Bromley, Kent.

WANTED, in Clergyman's family, good plain Cook or General Servant, over 30 preferred. A little housework. Communicant preferred. Wages £20, no beer. Country.—Mrs. Aldous, Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth, Devonshire.

THOROUGH PARLOUR-MAID required, in a Gentleman's quiet family. Age from 25 to 30.
Mrs. Ware, 10, Astwood-road, S.W.

AGENTS (male and female) required throughout England, Scotland, and Ireland to sell our pure Teas on commission varying from 7d. per lb. Our terms are the most liberal in the trade, enabling Agents to earn £3 weekly. Payment only required after sale. Special terms for cash. Free delivery. Write for samples (gratis) to the United Tea Growers' Association 111, Union court, E.C.

WOULD ANY LADY, for the Master's sake, undertake the superintendence of a Men's Mission? In connection with a Congregational Church. A small salary if required. Good mission premises.
Rev R. B. L., 2, St. Agnes-terrace, E.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

This First-class Private Hotel is highly recommended by readers of The Christian from all parts of the world. The Bishop of Algoma writes: "The comfort, perfect order, and attendance at Percy's Hotel render it all that can be desired as a central place of sojourn in this great city." Beds from 1s. 6d. Tea, 1s. 3d. Tariff on application.

VISITORS TO LONDON will find a Christian home at Taverner's Temperance Hotel, 35 & 36, Hunter-street, Judd-street, Euston-road. Five minutes from G. N., Mid., and N. W. Railways. Patronised by ministers and Christians of all denominations.

HUTCHINSON'S PRIVATE HOTEL, 24, Guilford-street, Russell-square, the most central position for all parts of London. Extensive patronised and strongly recommended. Home comforts. Terms moderate.

LONDON.—Insull's Temperance Hotel, 20, 21, Burton-crescent, Tavistock-square, W.C.—Five minutes' walk or 1s. cab fare from Euston, St. Pancras, King's Cross Railways; easily reached from other stations. Patronised by readers of The Christian.

BRIGHTON.—Sussex House Boarding Establishment, pleasantly situated in the Old Steine, having a sea view, and the beautiful Steine Gardens in front. Near to Pavilion Aquarium, and piers. Liberal table, with every home comfort.—Mr. & Mrs. Box, 58, Old Steine.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA Boarding Establishment. The home of a Minister's daughter. Established 11 years. Mansion replete with every comfort. Fine sea view.—Miss Newbury, Cavendish House, Warrior-square.

SOUTHSEA.—Solent House Boarding Establishment. Sunny, cheerful, and most comfortable winter residence. Due south, facing sea and Isle of Wight. Late dinner. Terms 25s. to 35s.—Misses Baker, South Parade.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, close to sea and Warrior-square station. Every attention to home comforts. Smoking room. Moderate and inclusive terms. Miss Rennick, Hartington House, Church-road.

HASTINGS, Shaftesbury Hotel.—This first-class Hotel or Boarding House, formerly a gentleman's mansion, has been redecorated and handsomely furnished throughout, and is opened for the reception of Ladies and Gentlemen. Terms exceedingly moderate, from 6s. 6d. per day, or £2 2s. per week.
Miss Ablewhite, Manageress.

HASTINGS HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT.—Charming winter residence for change and rest. Beautifully situated and handsomely furnished. An unequalled health resort. Pure air. Abundant sunshine. Turkish baths, with sea-water plunge. Droitwich, Ozone, and all other baths, with skilled attendants. One and a half hour from London. Moderate charges.
For prospectus, apply to the Secretary.

HASTINGS.—Board and Residence or private Apartments. Close to sea and station. Terms moderate for winter month.
St. Albans House, Cambridge-road.

WINTER HEALTH RESORT for the Lord's People, Bothesay, N.B. Famed for its mild climate. The House of Rest a Christian Home and Hydropathic. Terms from 25s. per week inclusive.—C. Campbell.

HOME OF REST, The Hollows, St. Albans.—Christian Workers needing rest can obtain prospectus of terms, &c., on application to Lady Superintendent as above.

FOLKESTONE.—Christians wanting change of air or rest during the coming winter, will find all they need in this healthy town, standing high and dry, and sheltered from easterly winds. Reduced terms.
Y.M.C.A., Pembroke House, Folkestone.

LOWESTOFT.—Board and Residence, Apsley House, Esplanade, for Ladies and Gentlemen. Few yards from the sea. Most comfortable home. Late dinners. Terms reasonable. Good references given.—Apply Manager.

BRIGHTON.—To be Let, part of a small furnished House, in a healthy locality, with a view of the sea. Terms low. References required.—D. D. D., Homewood's Library, Dyke-road, Brighton.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Ivors, Old Christchurch-road, Boarding House.—Cheerful central position, near Holy Trinity Church. Very comfortable house. Permanency or otherwise. Terms moderate.

CLAPHAM.—Partial or full Board offered a gentleman or lady seeking quiet and good home. Separate sitting-rooms. Mutual help and sympathy in Christian work valued.
M., 22, Offerton-road, Grafton-square, Clapham.

EASTBOURNE.—A Lady wishes to receive a Lady Boarder. Invalid not objected to. Good references. Near sea.
Beta 17, Cornfield terrace.

MATLOCK BATH, Derbyshire.—A Lady wishing to spend the winter on the Continent, desires to Let her small furnished House from November 1, to a quiet family without children or dogs. Eight rooms, bath room. Good drainage and water. High situation; mild climate. Terms moderate.
Mrs. C. Balguy, Belmont.

LADIES WITH LIMITED INCOME find a pleasant home in a School at the sea-side. A lady willing to take a class, French or drawing, would be received upon reduced terms.—Florence, Mr. Bishopp, Stationer, West Hill, Hastings.

ST. LUKE'S INVALID AND CONVALESCENT HOME, Ramsgate.—Residence for several months is allowed in winter for gentlewomen and servants, in distinct apartments.—Miss Rosalind Hosking, Finsbury House, Ramsgate.

TO LADIES SEEKING A HOME.—A Clergyman's daughter can strongly recommend a refined and comfortable home, where a few gentlefolk are received as boarders. A private sitting-room if required.—For particulars address E. C., 112, Pembroke-road, Clifton, Bristol.

TO CHRISTIAN LADIES in reduced circumstances.—Good-sized Bed-room. Large bow window. Rural scenery. Use of pleasant sitting-room; kitchen same floor. Half usual terms. No attendance. No servant kept. Near station.—Delta, Beeney, Draper, Haywards Heath, Sussex.

THE CARE AND CHARGE of one or two young children is offered in a quiet and thoroughly reliable family, where maternal care and influence would be faithfully exercised.
M. W., Marsh House, Tottenham.

TO WIDOWERS AND GUARDIANS.—A happy Home is offered in the country to little children needing care, love, and attention; where their spiritual welfare will be studied.—A. H., care of Mr. Goodwin, 64, Coleman street, City.

LODGINGS for respectable, business young men at Mr. and Mrs. Robinson's, 19, Canterbury-terrace, Maida-vale, W. Young men coming to London will find this a most comfortable Christian Home. Partial board if required. Terms moderate. Reference to Mr. W. H. Mills, Secretary, Young Men's Christian Association, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W.; and to Mr. and Mrs. Reid, 10, Prestonville road, Brighton.

COMFORTABLE HOME, with a Lady having a well-furnished house, at Birkdale, Southport, for two or three young children of residents abroad, or others. Partial education if required. Highest references.—Mr. A. Holden, Bookseller, Church-street, Liverpool.

A YOUNG LADY, living alone, offers comfortable seaside Home and Companionship to a young Lady willing to pay thirty shillings a month, and give partial assistance with young daily pupils and in light domestic duties. References exchanged.
C. B., 46, Essex-street, Strand.

A LADY, who is giving up her house at Christmas wishes to meet with a tenant who will take it with the fixtures. Rent £45.
Faith, 14, Kelvin-terrace, Highbury-park.

FRONT SITTING-ROOM and Bedroom to Let, furnished, to a Lady or Gentleman. Near to tram and rail. Quiet family. Terms moderate.
Mrs. G., 1, Manor-villa, St Paul's-road, Tottenham.

A GENTLEMAN who has lately left London wishes to recommend his late Apartments, bed-room and sitting-room. Five minutes' walk from Stamford-hill Station, on the Great Eastern Railway. Terms moderate.—Mr. Codlin, 21, Vartry-road, Stamford-hill, London, N.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE.—A Lady is wishing another lady to join her in apartments. Companionship desired. Terms moderate. Place not fixed on. References exchanged.—E. L., 22, High-street, Lowestoft.

APARTMENTS.—Comfortably furnished, Sitting-room and Bedroom, in a healthy neighbourhood, near three railway stations. Easy access to City and West-end. No other Lodgers. Terms moderate.—W., 3, Dorset villas, Thurlow-hill, West Dulwich.

REQUIRED, IN NOVEMBER, by a young Frenchman engaged in the City board and lodging in a cheerful Christian family. Late dinner, full board on Sundays. N. or N.W. preferred.—Address, stating terms, which must be moderate and inclusive, Mr. Barlow, Cromartie House, Hornsey rise.

APARTMENTS, Unfurnished, and attendance wanted, by a young Gentleman, with Christian family, within easy access of City.—Write, stating terms, to Viz, care of J. E. Hawkins, 17, Paternoster-row, E.C.

A LADY WISHES to recommend a Lady at Hampstead-heath, who would receive into her family a Lady or Gentleman or both as Boarder. Kind attention given to an elderly person, or to a young one attending classes.
M. S., 10, Bedford square, Brighton.

SCHOOL or Institution, Leyton Manor House, Capworth-street, Lea Bridge-road, to be Let or Sold at very low price, with or without land.—Apply to Caretaker, or Geo. Vaumouth, Architect, 23 Moorgate street, E.C.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS, near the sea, with garden. Arrangements made for winter residence. Terms one to two guineas.—Lady Superintendent, Rutherford Lodge Worthing.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Comfortable winter Apartments, board if required, close to pleasure gardens, few minutes' walk from sea; in centre of the Pines. Home comforts, good cooking. Terms moderate.
Cheltenham, Crescent-road, Bournemouth.

INVALIDS' HOME for Gentlewomen means.—A married Christian Lady receives into her private cheerful residence three patients. Experienced nurse and medical attendant.—Mrs. D., 21, Norfolk-road, St. John's-wood.

TWO GENTLEMEN can be accommodated with comfortable sitting-room, and double-bedded room, for 9s. per week each, including attendance and lighting. Healthy locality. Near bus, tram, and rail.—W., 23, Tremlett grove, Junction-road, Highgate, N.

LIPSOMANIA.—A successfully established private Home at the seaside for six, suffering from excess of morphia, chloral, absinthe, stimulants, or Nervous Debility. Christian care and influence. Judicious supervision and home comforts.
Medicus, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

Miscellaneous.

CHRISTIANS are earnestly requested to pray for those anxious ones who are now invited to write to Evangelist, Clapham, S.W.

ADOPTION.—Wanted, a little Girl, about four years old, healthy, and of respectable birth. Must be given up entirely to those who are able and willing to offer her a home.—Mrs. Whiting, Regent-villas, Headingly-hill, Leeds.

WANTED, for our Mothers' Dorcas Society, cast-off Clothing. Our Sunday-school work is amongst the very poorest, and many of the little ones need clothing.—Geo. Irving, Secretary, 6, Dapdune-road, Guildford.

WASHING WANTED, by an experienced Laundress. Terms moderate, with punctuality and care. Large open drying ground. Good references.—Mrs. Stocker, Hazell-road, Keusal-green (opposite Welford's Farm).

FURNISH on Norman & Stacey's Hire-Purchase System. Deposit not necessary. True economy on sound commercial principles. Strictly private. 1, 2, or 3 years. 60 wholesale firms. Ordinary selling prices.—Offices, 79 Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and 121, Pall Mall, S.W.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth Hastings.

Continued on page 23.

A HEALTHFUL REMEDY.

Some of the most startling scientific discoveries of the present age are based upon Magnetic principles. And the efficacy of Magnetism as a healer promises to lead to results quite as startling as any that have attended it in other directions. Let it be clearly understood that Magnetism is not Galvanism. The latter often fails, and even where it succeeds it is open to the objection that its effect is too powerful. In skilful hands it has been, and may be, used with success; but it is, nevertheless, in its application often of a painfully irritating character, because it must come into direct contact with the body, requiring the nerves as a conducting medium.

A great advantage, also, in connection with this special form of application is that the currents generated by the appliances are continuous, and so gentle and uniform as to be rarely detected when used by the most sensitive patient. Their construction is the acme of simplicity; it consists of specially-prepared magnets, wrought in comfortable garments of different fabrics; no metallic materials are visible, and such as exist add no objectionable weight or stiffness to the appliances.

A lady at Kensington, who will willingly answer any inquiries, writes, October 16, 1884:—

"For some months I suffered severely and increasingly from weakness in my left arm and knees, the primary cause being neuralgia and failing strength in the whole system. I took the advice of several physicians, but by degrees entirely lost all power in that arm. I am thankful to say, I had not used your appliances a week before I lost the pain in the arm, and it has improved till I have nearly recovered the full use of it, and my general health and strength have improved wonderfully. I have recommended it to several friends, who have all derived benefit, and will do so to all who suffer from nervous and other ailments. I cannot speak too highly of the skill, care, and attention of Mr. Garratt's lady assistant."

If the power of the remedy employed is such as to overcome the torpor of lifeless limbs and spinal affections, what may we hope for from its judicious application in cases where no part of the nervous or muscular tissue is diseased, but while perfect in all its parts, lacks only such a stimulus to nervous energy as Odo-Magnetic influence has proved itself to be!

Having spent many years of patient, laborious, and continued study in the art of healing by natural remedies, and in adapting his treatment to some of the most obscure and intractable affections, Mr. Garratt now claims, as the result of his professional career, to have attained a success unparalleled in meeting the essential needs of chronic sufferers. He will always be happy to confer with any scientific or medical gentleman, either personally or by letter, upon any phase of the subject, or any case for treatment, and will send a private list of 950 names as referees to any address.—16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

Evangelical Alliance.—Annual Conference to be held at Brighton, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 28th and 29th. Among those who have consented to take part in the programme and give Addresses are the following:—Revs. J. G. Gregory Clarmont Skrine, H. E. Brooke, L. L. Roxby, Dr. John Bennett, W. Fraser, Chas. Graham, Dr. Clement Clemance, Dr Donald Fraser, and J. B. Figgis. Programme, &c., to be obtained of the Secretaries, 7, Adam-street, Strand, London.

Seventh Thousand, Cr. 8vo., Cloth ex., 326 pp., 2s. 6d.

THE MESSIAH KING.

An invitation to Christians to inquire whether JESUS THE KING has been permitted to occupy the august position in the affairs of Mankind, which was designed for Him by the great love of JEHOVAH. By James Withers.

The Author, "by independent inquiry into the Gospel of Christ, has reached strong convictions, which seem to force an utterance. These convictions for the most part appear to be in agreement with the Word of God, and are of great practical importance."—The Homilist.

"What Mr. Withers says on Modern Christianity and the Second Coming of Christ is worthy of very serious consideration."—Christian Commonwealth.

S. W. Partridge & Co., 9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

BIBLE LIGHT

For Truth Seekers & Christian Workers.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."—Ps. cxix. 105.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light."—Ps. cxix. 130.

The Object of "Bible Light" is to interest its readers in the written Word, and to lead them through the latter to the Living Word, for the salvation of the unsaved, and the strengthening of the believer's faith. Monthly, One Penny. Strongly recommended by the Press. The Vol. for 1883, price 1s. 6d.

London: John F. Shaw & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.
And of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Lately Published.

Demy 8vo., cloth. Price 12s.

Outlines of Prophetic Truth;

Viewed Practically and Experimentally in the Light of the Divine Word.

By ROBERT BROWN,

Author of "The Hidden Mystery," &c.; "Babylonianism"; "Jesuitism," &c., &c., &c.

"A fund of Scriptural knowledge . . . handled with much ability . . . presented with force and clearness."
The Christian.

"The familiarity with Scripture it displays is marvellous."—Evangelical Christendom.

"The work of an experienced writer . . . . accurate in fact, Scriptural in doctrine, and persuasive to practical holiness."—Clergyman's Magazine.

"Mr. Brown is a ripe Biblical scholar; his acquaintance with and insight into the Word of God strike us in every page. . . . As throwing great light on the period dealt with, we can heartily commend it as being full of instruction and original thought."—Record.

London: S. W. Partridge & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.

NOW READY.

THE NEW VOLUME OF

"OUR DARLINGS" FOR 1884.

Edited by DR. BARNARDO.

One of the most attractive books for children, containing in addition to a BEAUTIFUL COLOURED FRONTISPIECE and SEVERAL CHARMING PHOTO-LITHOGRAPHS, not less than 500 ENGRAVINGS;

Also interesting and instructive stories, and earnest Gospel teaching.

This volume is especially suitable as a gift book to children and young people, or as

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

Bound in delicately tinted boards with three choice pictures on the front cover, only 3s.; or in cloth, gilt edges, 5s.; to be obtained of the publishers, Messrs. John F. Shaw & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.; and of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

THIRD THOUSAND.

By GEORGIANA M. TAYLOR,

Author of the Hymn,

"Oh to be nothing, nothing!
Only to lie at His feet
A broken and emptied vessel,
For the Master's use made meet."

LAYS OF LOWLY SERVICE.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. Handsomely bound in Morocco, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.

"These lays are the outcome of an earnest, practical piety, and a warm, loving faith, and, employed in religious service, they will, we can believe, kindle and quicken devotions."—Edinburgh Daily Review.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Religious Tract Society's List.

THE MARQUIS OF LORNE'S NEW BOOK.

ONE OF THE CHEAPEST GIFT-BOOKS OF THE SEASON.

Imperial 8vo. Price 5s. in handsome cloth, or 25s. bound in morocco elegant.

CANADIAN PICTURES.

Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

With numerous fine Engravings by E. Whymper, from Sketches by the Marquis of Lorne, Sydney Hall, and others.

The Publishers' Circular says:—"It is not too much to say that if this book had been produced by a West-end publisher, at three times the modest price charged for it by the Religious Tract Society, it would have been esteemed remarkably cheap."

"Most interesting—an extremely pleasant book. The illustrations by Mr. Sydney Hall and Lord Lorne largely contribute to the attractiveness of this very attractive volume."
Saturday Review.

"It would be a mistake to regard the book as a mere ornament of the drawing-room table. It will undoubtedly answer this purpose, and give a pleasing occupation to any one who may listlessly turn over its leaves. But to the reader who takes it more seriously, it will convey also a large amount of solid information."—The Guardian.

In connection with the Egyptian difficulties, every one should read SIR WILLIAM MUIR'S NEW BOOK.

MAHOMET AND ISLAM.

A sketch of the Prophet's Life from original sources, and a brief outline of his Religion. By Sir William Muir, K.C.S.I., LL.D., D.C.L., formerly Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Provinces of India, author of "The Life of Mahomet," "Annals of the Early Caliphate," &c. With Illustrations and a large Map of Arabia. Crown 8vo., 4s., cloth.

Sir William Muir stands unrivalled in his knowledge of the life and times of Mahomet, and he has written this sketch to put the main facts of the origin of Mahometanism, and how it contrasts with Christianity, in a popular form.

Just Published.

JOURNEYS ON OLD HIGHWAYS IN CHINA.

By Isabella Williamson of the London Mission, Chefoo. With many Illustrations and a Map. Crown 8vo., 5s., cloth boards.

Mrs. Williamson was the first Western lady to travel through the great provinces of Shantung and Chi li. She speaks Chinese, and she has given in this book much interesting information derived from her own observation and experience about the habits and life and needs of Chinese Women.

BY-PATHS OF BIBLE KNOWLEDGE.

Vol. 5. BABYLONIAN LIFE AND HISTORY.

By E. A. Wallis Budge, B.A. Camb., Assistant in the Department of Oriental Antiquities, British Museum. Illustrated. Crown 8vo., 3s., cloth boards.

"An admirable addition to this excellent series of 'By-Paths of Bible Knowledge.' It is not long since such works as this were entirely beyond the reach of the many, while popular histories were too often both inaccurate and anscientific. Mr. Budge's method is sound, and his book is worthy of his reputation."
Saturday Review.

PRESENT DAY TRACTS

ON SUBJECTS OF CHRISTIAN EVIDENCE, DOCTRINE, AND MORALS.

Five Volumes are Now Ready, 2s 6d each, cloth boards.

Just Published.

VOLUME V. contains Tracts by Dr. F. Godet, Principal Cairns, D.D., Dr. Eustace Conder, the Rev. James Iverach, M.A., the Rev. Prebendary Row, M.A., and Dr. J. Murray Mitchell.

NEW BOOKS JUST PUBLISHED.

THE HONEY BEE: Its Nature, Homes, and Products. By W. H. Harris, B.A., B.Sc. With Eighty-two Illustrations. Crown 8vo., 3s., cloth boards.

This book is written by a well known and successful bee-keeper. It gives in an interesting popular way all that is known about the habits and nature of bees. It is also intended as a practical guide for bee keepers, and the latest information about the methods, risks, and profits of bee-keeping will be found in it.

LEADERS IN MODERN PHILANTHROPY.

By the Rev. W. G. Blaikie, D.D., author of "Better Days for Working People," &c. With Fifteen Fine Portraits. Cloth boards, 5s.

The object of these Biographical Sketches is to show that the great leaders in modern philanthropic labours have been true Christians, and that their Christianity was the mainspring and support of their self-denying toil. The volume is full of attractive, suggestive, and useful reading.

THE STORY OF JOSEPH READ IN THE LIGHT OF THE SON OF MAN. A Popular Exposition. By the Rev. A. M. Symington, D.D., author of "Vox Clamantis," &c. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

A clear, suggestive, and practical exposition of the wonderful history of Joseph. A new volume of the series of "Bible Monographs."

SHORT BIOGRAPHIES FOR THE PEOPLE.

Volume I., just published, contains Biographies and Portraits of Luther, Calvin, Farel, Melanchthon, Rullock, Wycliffe, Anselm, Wesley, Durer, Dr. Johnson, Knox, and John Huss. 1s. 6d. cloth.

TWO PRETTY POCKET TEXT BOOKS.

WHITE AS SNOW. A Text and a Meditation for Each Day of the Month. By Lady Hope, of Carriden. Beautifully printed in Colour with Floral Designs. 32mo., 1s., cloth boards.

FLOWERS FROM THE KING'S GARDEN. Gathered for the Delight of the King's Children at Morn and Eventide. 1s., cloth boards, coloured edges. Texts for every morning and evening for the month.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY,

London: 56, Paternoster Row.

The Society's publications for the present Book Season include Books for all Readers, adult and youthful, Coloured Picture Books for the Infants, a host of packets of Coloured Cards, &c., &c.

Please write for Catalogues.

The Christian.

HOME MISSIONS AND THE CHURCHES.

THE ideal of Christian work is that all agencies, however varied as to sphere and method, so long as they are actuated by the spirit of Christ, and true in their aim to exalt Him, should be one. Division, envy, or strife, should be far removed from the arena where the servants of the one Lord and Master engage in his service. Nor ought this ideal to be difficult of realisation. It is by no means impracticable, nor is it beyond the reach of those who are content to sink all minor considerations in the supreme desire to make known in every place the savour of Christ. The spirit of the great Apostle as displayed in Phil. i. 18, would suffice to unite all workers and concentrate all energies on the one object: "Notwithstanding, every way, whether in pretence or in truth, Christ is preached, and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice."

That this state of feeling is not so completely attained as the interests of Christian truth require, is evidenced by many facts and circumstances transpiring around us, and amongst others by the recent debate of the Congregational Union on the subject of Mission-halls and their relation to the churches. Dr. Bevan considers Mission-hall work outside church supervision, as "a distinct hindrance to the real work of Christ in London, and everywhere else." Work like that carried on by Messrs. Moody and Sankey he characterises as "religious dissipation," and boldly declares that "in the face of the great evangelical movements of our time," he feels bound "to protest against the modern Mission spirit." Dr. Bevan does not want "Mission-halls built by individual philanthropists;" only as they are built, sustained, and linked with denominationalism and churches has he any sympathy with them or anything to say in their favour. No doubt these sentiments are endorsed by a considerable section of the ministers and members of the various religious bodies, and a spirit of coldness, if not hostility, prevails in reference to Mission work of an independent and unsectarian kind.

But what are the facts in relation to modern revivals and evangelical Missions to the outcast and depraved? If we go so far back as the times of Whitefield, we shall see the churches cold and lifeless, devoid of concern for souls, and barren of spiritual results. Missions on which the churches frowned, and which knew nothing of sectarian strife or prejudice, gave rise to all the fervour and zeal which since those days have been expended on the cause of evangelisation. In proportion as sectarianism regained its hold, the fervour of much of the work done declined, and the churches relapsed into indifference. Within the last twenty years the fresh impetus given has not come from the churches, but from men who like Messrs. Moody and Sankey from abroad, Mr. Duncan Matheson, Mr. Brownlow North, and a host of others at home, have cast aside the trammels of sect, and solely for Christ's sake laboured to reach those whom the churches failed to impress.

If the churches threw half the fervour and earnestness into directly spiritual work that they at their Conferences, and other places, throw into political and extraneous subjects, and if fidelity to orthodox truth were as popular among them as new theologies are, possibly Mission halls and Mission work, as undertaken by them, would be more proportioned to the deep and growing need there is for such agencies. But as it is, the Rev. W. Tritton, of Yarmouth, in his address at the Congregational Union meeting, aptly expressed the truth when he said, "There are a good many people in our churches who would be astonished if they heard the sort of evangelistic addresses that are needful to reach the people outside. The gentlemen that read neat little sermons, about thirty minutes long, that sound something like an essay from The Saturday Review, but in another spirit, and tending in another direction, have a great deal to answer for in corrupting the simplicity of Christian teaching, in drawing the masses of ministers away from downright outspokenness and power and passion in preaching the Word of God."

Such essayings are, alas! only too often to be met with, and account largely for the alienation of the masses from the churches.

If the common people cannot find Gospel teaching adapted to their needs in the churches, and of a large number (notwithstanding bright exceptions), it is certainly true that they cannot, then in the name of all that is holy and true, and for the sake of perishing souls, let us have as many outside agencies as it is possible to command, suited to their case.

Denominationalism, as such, has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. If it can be infused with new life, and be directed successfully against the powers of ignorance, vice, and unbelief which exist, we have no wish to withstand or hinder its progress: but, as it is, it fails to do the work the Lord requires to be done. On all sides the spirit and action of modern evangelistic Missions, animated by pure and single-eyed devotion to Christ, as the Saviour of men, are essential, and must be increasingly developed.

The churches which have prayerfully sympathised with such efforts as Dr. Bevan condemns with so much severity, and so cordially dislikes, have no reason to be jealous of their influence, or to depreciate their worth. They reap the fruit of labours that Dr. Bevan brands as "a hindrance to the real work of Christ." The real work of Christ is to save souls, and wheresoever and by whomsoever this is done, whether in the churches or out of them, God is glorified, and the Redeemer sees of the travail of his soul. That the work of Mission-halls needs to be supplemented by the Christian culture of the converts, is a fact to be dealt with later on.

G.

SABBATH SCHOOLS AND FOREIGN MISSIONS.

By Professor HENRY DRUMMOND.

[The following trenchant and original address was delivered by Professor Drummond, of the Free Church College, Glasgow, at the recent Conference of Sunday-school Teachers held at Kirkcaldy. It is specially worthy of attention for its unconventional and happy method of dealing with a pre-eminently important subject. We quote the report of a Kirkcaldy contemporary.]

IT is not easy to interest in foreign missions men in middle life, with their sum of interests already made up and the romantic driven out of them long ago by the prose of business. But with children this problem scarcely exists. They are not yet rooted in the environment of any country. It is really only as we grow up that we become provincial. The child is the true cosmopolitan, has the universal mind, and India and Malabar are as real to it as the next parish. The Sabbath-school teacher will do well to mark this characteristic, and take advantage of it. Anything which makes foreign countries real is a contribution to the missionary cause.

Picture-books of wild animals, missionary adventures and travels, descriptions of the manners and customs of savage races—these have a most important function in preparing the mind to realise missions. Moreover, these are the most tempting of all themes to a boy or a girl—for there are no more voracious readers of boys' books than girls—so that this preliminary missionary education can be carried on without the possibility of prejudicing the scholar by the dryness of his task. A Sunday-school superintendent might do much worse occasionally than take his whole school to a menagerie, and a good paper might be written for next conference on the missionary function of Noah's arks.

No man, in fact, has a finer chance in any department of Christian work than the teacher who would interest the young in missions. While every other class of work is handicapped by difficulties of the most hopeless kind, this stands out as an almost solitary exception—an exception which would become the rule if men grew into the higher aspects of religion in childhood, instead of striving to force themselves into them in maturer years.

But, wholly apart from the religious nature, there is an appeal in missions to the instincts of the young, which affords an enormous leverage to those who would interest children in the missionary's work. Between the wondering adventurous spirit of the boy and the heroic career of the missionary there is a natural sympathy; and the question reduces itself mainly to this: Grant the preparation of the boy, grant the surpassing interest and fascination of the facts, how are we to bring the one in contact with the other? This is really the whole problem. The facts will make all the impression, create all the interest, enlist all the scholars, if they are only known. The teacher should know them. But the majority of teachers are simply ignorant of missions. I have lately returned from a visit to one of the best known missions in the world, an ideal mission, which has been before the public in many ways, and whose romantic story, one would think, must have given it a place in the hearts and interests of many. I have been moving among the people most likely to have shown that interest, and yet I have not found more than three persons who could ask an intelligent question about it.

I have been asked by intelligent people if I went to Lake Nyassa by the Congo, and a dozen times I have had to change the conversation in despair on being asked if I had seen anything of General Gordon. It is a teacher's duty to qualify himself for his work by a knowledge of foreign missions. With regard to the information to be brought under the notice of the Sunday-school, the main thing is definiteness. The ordinary appeal for collections for India, or China, or Lebanon, or the New Hebrides, is comparatively useless. The box goes round as a matter of mere routine, and, as a rule, the child sees no further than the hole into which it vacantly drops the reluctant copper. In many schools there is no more unintelligent part of service than the missionary collection, whereas, if wisely managed, it might become one of the brightest interests of the school.

The proper method consists in singling out some specific object, person, or place, and fixing it in the mind as a living interest. When a new steamboat is wanted for a missionary, half the schools in the country should be asked to put a plate in it. One large school should be asked to supply the funnel, another the compass, a third the screw, a fourth the anchor, others between them should pay the captain's salary, and there should be a competition open to all the mission schools in the country for the post of cabin boy. If a medicine-chest is wanted for the South Sea Islands, a hundred schools should furnish a bottle each for it; and in many such ways the fact that missions do not only exist on paper will be driven into the mind.

Another application of this principle consists in the singling out by a school of a certain person in the foreign field—a certain heathen to be taught, a certain native catechist to be maintained, a certain orphan to be educated in some missionary institution. Acting upon this principle, the United Presbyterian Church, after the Indian famine, had four or five hundred orphans distributed over the schools of this country. In many cases, the better to interest the home school in their welfare, these orphans received the name of their superintendent, or of the minister, or of the minister's wife, or of some leading teacher. This, by the way, I think a mistake, as well as an error in taste—Siamuka and Chipitula are much more picturesque than Norman McLeod or John Cairns.

In a similarly lively vein Mr. Drummond advised that every school should be equipped with a good set of maps. When a band of missionaries start for the foreign field the fact should be announced in every school, and their route traced with the pointer. With regard to collections, the traditional box might be laid on the shelf for a month or two, say at Christmas time, and a neat card for home use put in its place. The senior girls might make the cards themselves, illuminating them nicely with a text and the collector's name. The wide circulation of good missionary records and lives of missionaries, can scarcely be too much insisted upon. The chief duty here is to see that the literature is really of first-class quality, and especially that the narratives given are all rigidly true. One of the most efficient ways also of exciting missionary interest is the frequent exhibition of curiosities from missionary lands. These can now be had almost for the trouble of collecting, and few things are more stimulating to the mind of the child. Equally if not more valuable, are magic-lantern exhibitions with missionary slides. The churches might do worse than have one or two lanterns, with competent professional lecturers, in steady circulation, and a desideratum for the future to supply might be a carefully-projected, first-class, well painted missionary panorama.

